Resolved, 4. That the foundation of English Liberty, and of all free Government, is a right in the people to participate in their Legislative Council: and as the English Colonists are not represented, and from their local and other circumstances cannot be properly represented in the British Parliament, they are entitled to a free and exclusive power of legislation in their several Provincial Legislatures, where their right of Representation can alone be preserved, in all cases of taxation and internal polity, subject only to the negative of their Sovereign, in such manner as has been heretofore used and accustomed. But, from the necessity of the case, and a regard to the mutual interest of both Countries, we cheerfully consent to the operation of such Acts of the British Parliament, as are, bona fide, restrained to the regulation of our external commerce, for the purpose of securing the commercial advantages of the whole Empire to the mother country, and the commercial benefits of its respective members; excluding every idea of Taxation, internal or external, for raising a revenue on the subjects in America, without their consent.

Resolved, N. C. D. 5. That the respective Colonies are entitled to the common law of England, and more especially to the great and inestimable privilege of being tried by their peers of the vicinage, according to the coupe of that law.

Resolved, 6. That they are entitled to the benefit of such of the English statutes as existed at the time of their Colonization; and which they have, by experience, respectively found to be applicable to their several local and other circumstances.

Resolved, N. C. D. 7. That these, his Majesty's Colonies, are likewise entitled to all the immunities and privileges granted and confirmed to them by Royal Charters, or secured by their several codes of Provincial Laws.

Resolved, N. C. D. 8. That they have a right peaceably to assemble, consider of their grievances, and Petition the King; and that all prosecutions, prohibitory Proclamations, and commitments for the same, are illegal.

Resolved, N. C. D. 9. That the keeping a Standing Army in these Colonies, in times of peace, without the consent of the Legislature of that Colony, in which such Army kept, is against law.

Resolved, N. C. D. 10. It is indispensably necessary to good Government, and rendered essential by the English Constitution, that the constituent branches of the Legislature be independent of each other; that, therefore, the exercise of Legislative power in several Colonies, by a Council appointed, during pleasure, by the Crown, is unconstitutional, dangerous, and destructive to the freedom of American Legislation.

All and each of which the aforesaid Deputies, in behalf of themselves and their constituents, do claim, demand, and insist on, as their indubitable rights and liberties; which cannot be legally taken from them, altered or abridged by any power whatever, without their own consent, by their Representatives in their several Provincial Legislatures.

In the course of our inquiry we find many infringements and violations of the foregoing Rights, which from an ardent desire, that harmony and mutual intercourse of affection and interest may be restored, we pass over for the present, and proceed to state such Acts and measures as have been adopted since the last war, which demonstrate a system formed to enslave America.

Resolved, N. C. D. That the following Acts of Parliament are infringements and violations of the rights of the Colonists; and that the repeal of them is essentially necessary in order to restore harmony between Great Britain and the American Colonies, viz:

The several Acts of 4 George III. ch. 15, and ch. 34. 5 George III. ch. 25. 6 George III. ch. 52. 7 George III. ch. 41, and ch. 46. 8 George III. ch. 22, which impose duties for the purpose of raising a revenue in America, extend the powers of the Admiralty Courts beyond their ancient limits, deprive the American subject of trial by jury, authorize the Judge's certificate to indemnify the prosecutor from damages, that he might otherwise be liable to, requiring oppressive security from a claimant of ships and goods seized, before he shall be allowed to defend his property, and are subversive of American rights.

Also the 12 George III. ch. 24, entituled "An Act for the better securing his Majesty's Dock-yards, Magazines, "Ships, Ammunition, and Stores," which declares a new offence in America, and deprives the American subject of a constitutional trial by jury of the vicinage, by authorizing the trial of any person, charged with the committing any offence described in the said Act, out of the Realm, to be indicted and tried for the same in any Shire or County within the Realm.

Also the three Acts passed in the last session of Parliament, for stopping the Port and blocking up the Harbour of Boston, for altering the Charter and Government of the Massachusetts Bay, and that which is entituled "An Act for the better administration of Justice," &c.

Also the Act passed in the same session for establishing the Roman Catholick Religion in the Province of Quebec, abolishing the equitable system of English Laws, and erecting a tyranny there, to the great danger, from so total a dissimilarity of Religion, Law, and Government of the neighbouring British Colonies, by the assistance of whose blood and treasure the said country was conquered from France.

Also the Act passed in the same session for the better providing suitable Quarters for Officers and Soldiers in his Majesty's service in North America.

Also, that the keeping a Standing Army in several of these Colonies, in time of peace, without the consent of the Legislature of that Colony in which such Army is kept, is against law.

To these grievous Acts and measures Americans cannot submit, but in hopes that their fellow-subjects in Great Britain will, on a revision of them, restore us to that state in which both countries found happiness and prosperity, we have for the present only resolved to pursue the following peaceable measures: 1. To enter into a Non-Importation, Non-Consumption, and Non-Exportation Agreement or Association. 2. To prepare an Address to the People of Great Britain, and a Memorial to the Inhabitants of British America; and 3. To prepare a loyal Address to his Majesty, agreeable to Resolutions already entered into.

A letter being received from several gentlemen in Georgia was read.

Saturday, October 15, 1774.

The Congress resumed the consideration of the plan of Association for carrying into effect the Non-Importation, &c., and after some time spent on that subject, adjourned Monday.

Monday, October 17, 1774.

The Congress met according to adjournment.

Mr. John Dickinson appeared in Congress as a Deputy for the Province of Pennsylvania, and produced his credentials, as follows:

In Assembly, October 15, 1774, A. M.

"Upon motion by Mr. Ross,

"Ordered, That Mr. J. Dickinson be, and he is hereby added to the Committee of Deputies appointed by the late Assembly of this Province, to attend the General Congress now sitting in the City of Philadelphia on American Grievances. By order of the House,

"CHA. MOORE, Clerk of the Assembly."

The same being approved, Mr. J. Dickinson took his seat as one of the Deputies for the Province of Pennsylvania.

The Congress then resumed the consideration of the Plan of Association, &c., and after spending the remainder of that day on that subject, adjourned till to-morrow.

Tuesday, October 18, 1774.

The Congress resumed the consideration of the Plan of Association, &c., and after sundry amendments, the same was agreed to, and ordered to be transcribed, that it may be signed by the several Members.

The Committee appointed to prepare an Address to the People of Great Britain, brought in a draught, which was read and ordered to lie on the table, for the perusal of the Members, and to be taken into consideration to-morrow.

Wednesday, October 19, 1774.

The Congress met and resumed the consideration of the Address to the People of Great Britain, and the same being debated by paragraphs, and sundry amendments made, the same was re-committed, in order that the amendments may be taken in.

The Committee appointed to prepare a Memorial to the Inhabitants of these Colonies, reported a draught, which was read, and ordered to lie on the table.

Ordered, That this Memorial be taken into consideration to-morrow.

Thursday, October 20, 1774.

The Association being copied, was read, and signed at the table, and is as follows:

We, his Majesty's most loyal subjects, the Delegates of the several Colonies of New-Hampshlre, Massachusetts Bay, Rhode-Island, Connecticut, New-York, New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, the three Lower Counties of New-Castle, Kent, and Sussex, on Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina, deputed to represent them in a Continental Congress, held in the City of Philadelphia, on the fifth day of September, 1774, avowing our allegiance to his Majesty; our affection and regard for our fellow-subjects in Great Britain and elsewhere; affected with the deepest anxiety and most alarming apprehensions at those grievances and distresses with which his Majesty's American subjects are oppressed; and having taken under our most serious deliberation the state of the whole Continent, find that the present unhappy situation of our affairs is occasioned by a ruinous system of Colony Administration, adopted by the British Ministry about the year 1763, evidently calculated for enslaving these Colonies, and, with them, the British Empire. In prosecution of which system, various Acts of Parliament have been passed for raising a Revenue in America, for depriving the American subjects, in many instances, of the constitutional Trial by Jury, exposing their lives to danger by directing a new and illegal trial beyond the seas for crimes alleged to have been committed in America; and in prosecution of the same system, several late, cruel, and oppressive Acts have been passed respecting the Town of Boston and the Massachusetts Bay, and also an Act for extending the Province of Quebec, so as to border on the Western Frontiers of these Colonies, establishing an arbitrary Government therein, and discouraging the settlement of British subjects in that wide extended country; thus, by the influence of civil principles and ancient prejudices, to dispose the inhabitants to act with hostility against the free Protestant Colonies, whenever a wicked Ministry shall choose so to direct them.

To obtain redress of these Grievances, which threaten destruction to the Lives, Liberty, and Property of his Majesty's subjects in North America, we are of opinion that a Non-Importation, Non-Consumption, and Non-Exportation Agreement, faithfully adhered to, will prove the most speedy, effectual, and peaceable measure; and, therefore, we do, for ourselves, and the inhabitants of the several Colonies whom we represent, firmly agree and associate, under the sacred ties of Virtue, Honour, and Love of our Country, as follows:

1. That from and after the first day of December next, we will not import into British America, from Great Britain or Ireland, any Goods, Wares, or Merchandises whatsoever, or from any other place, any such Goods, Wares, or Merchandises as shall have been exported from Great Britain or Ireland; nor will we, after that day, import any East India Tea from any part of the World; nor any Molasses, Syrups, Paneles, Coffee, or Pimento, from the British Plantations or from Dominica; nor Wines from andeira, or the Western Islands; nor Foreign Indigo.

2. That we will neither import nor purchase any Slave imported after the first day of December next; after which time we will wholly discontinue the Slave Trade, and will neither be concerned in it ourselves, nor will we hire our vessels, nor sell our Commodities or Manufactures to those who are concerned in it.

3. As a Non-Consumption Agreement, strictly adhered to, will be an effectual security for the observation of the Non-Importation, we, as above, solemnly agree and associate, that from this day we will not purchase or use any Tea imported on account of the East India Company, or any on which a Duty hath been or shall be paid; and from and after the first day of March next we will not purchase or use any East India Tea whatsoever; nor will we, nor shall any person for or under us, purchase or use any of those Goods, Wares, or Merchandises we have agreed not to import, which we shall know, or have cause to suspect, were imported after the first day of December, except such as come under the rules and directions of the tenth Article hereafter mentioned.

4. The earnest desire we have not to injure our fellow-subjects in Great Britain, Ireland, or the West Indies, induces us to suspend a Non-Exportation until the tenth day of September, 1775; at which time, if the said Acts and parts of Acts of the British Parliament herein after mentioned, are not repealed, we will not, directly or indirectly, export any Merchandise or Commodity whatsoever to Great Britain, Ireland, or the West Indies, except Rice to Europe.

5. Such as are Merchants, and use the British and Irish Trade, will give orders as soon as possible to their Factors, Agents, and Correspondents, in Great Britain and Ireland, not to ship any Goods to them, on any pretence whatsoever, as they cannot be received in America; and if any Merchant residing in Great Britain or Ireland, shall directly or indirectly ship any Goods, Wares, or Merchandises for America, in order to break the said Non-Importation Agreement, or in any manner contravene the same, on such unworthy conduct being well attested, it ought to be made publick; and, on the same being so done, we will not from thenceforth have any commercial connection with such Merchant.

6. That such as are Owners of vessels will give positive orders to their Captains, or Masters, not to receive on board their vessels any Goods prohibited by the said Non-Importation Agreement, on pain of immediate dismissal from their service.

7. We will use our utmost endeavours to improve the breed of Sheep, and increase their number to the greatest extent; and to that end, we will kill them as sparingly as may be, especially those of the most profitable kind; nor will we export any to the West Indies or elsewhere; and those of us who are or may become overstocked with, or can conveniently spare any Sheep, will dispose of them to our neighbours, especially to the poorer sort, upon moderate terms.

8. That we will, in our several stations, encourage Frugality, Economy, and Industry, and promote Agriculture, Arts, and the Manufactures of this Country, especially that of Wool; and will discountenance and discourage every species of extravagance and dissipation, especially all horse-racing, and all kinds of gaming, cockfighting, exhibitions of plays, shews, and other expensive diversions and entertainments; and on the death of any relation or friend, none of us, or any of our families, will go into any further mourning-dress than a black crape or ribbon on the arm or hat for gentlemen, and a black ribbon and necklace for ladies, and we will discontinue the giving of gloves and scarfs at funerals.

9. That such as are venders of Goods or Merchandises will not take advantage of the scarcity of Goods that may be occasioned by this Association, but will sell the same at the rates we have been respectively accustomed to do for twelve months last past. And if any vender of Goods or Merchandises shall sell any such Goods on higher terms, or shall, in any manner, or by any device whatsoever, violate or depart from this Agreement, no person ought, nor will any of us deal with any such person, or his or her Factor or Agent, at any time thereafter for any commodity whatever.

10. In case any Merchant, Trader, or other person, shall import any Goods or Merchandise, after the first day of December, and before the first day of February next, the same ought forthwith, at the election of the owner, to be either re-shipped or delivered up to the Committee of the County or Town wherein they shall be imported, to be stored at the risk of the importer, until the Non-Importation Agreement shall cease, or be sold under the direction of the Committee aforesaid; and in the last mentioned case, the owner or owners of such Goods shall be reimbursed out of the sales the first cost and charges; the profit, if any, to be applied towards relieving and employing such poor inhabitants of the Town of Boston as are immediate sufferers by the Boston Port Bill; and a particular account of all Goods so returned, stored, or sold, to be inserted in the publick papers; and if any Goods or Merchandises shall be imported after the said first day of February, the same ought forthwith to be sent back again, without breaking any of the packages thereof.

11. That a Committee be chosen in every County, City, and Town, by those who are qualified to vote for Representatives in the Legislature, whose business it shall be attentively to observe the conduct of all persons touching this Association; and when it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of a majority of any such Committee, that any person within the limits of their appointment has violated this Association, that such majority do forthwith cause the truth of the case to be published in the Gazette, to the end that all such foes to the rights of British America may be publickly known, and universally contemned as the enemies of American Liberty; and thenceforth we respectively will break off all dealings with him or her.

12. That the Committee of Correspondence, in the respective Colonies, do frequently inspect the Entries of their Custom Houses, and inform each other, from time to time, of the true state thereof, and of every other material circumstance that may occur relative to this Association.

13. That all Manufactures of this country be sold at reasonable prices, so that no undue advantage be taken of a future scarcity of Goods.

14. And we do further agree and resolve that we will have no Trade, Commerce, Dealings, or Intercourse whatsoever with any Colony or Province in North America, which shall not accede to, or which shall hereafter violate this Association, but will hold them as unworthy of the rights of freemen, and as inimical to the liberties of this country.

And we do solemnly bind ourselves and our constituents, under the ties aforesaid, to adhere to this Association until such parts of the several Acts of Parliament passed since the close of the last war, as impose or continue Duties on Tea, Wine, Molasses, Syrups, Paneles, Coffee, Sugar, Pimento, Indigo, Foreign Paper, Glass, and Painters' Colours, imported into America, and extend the powers of the Admiralty Courts beyond their ancient limits, deprive the American subjects of Trial by Jury, authorize the Judge's certificate to indemnify the prosecutor from damages that he might otherwise be liable to from a trial by his peers, require oppressive security from a claimant of Ships or Goods seized, before he shall be allowed to defend his property, are repealed. - And until that part of the Act of the 12th George III. ch. 24, entitled "An Act "for the better securing his Majesty's Dock-yards, Magazines, Ships, Ammunition, and Stores," by which any person charged with committing any of the offences therein described, in America, may be tried in any Shire or County within the Realm, is repealed - and until the four Acts, passed in the last session of Parliament, viz: that for stopping the Port and blocking up the Harbour of Boston, - that for altering the Charter and Government of the Massachusetts Bay - and that which is entitled An Act for the better Administration of Justice, &c. - and that for extending the Limits of Quebec, &c., are repealed. And we recommend it to the Provincial Conventions, and to the Committees in the respective Colonies, to establish such farther Regulations as they may think proper for carrying into execution this Association.

The foregoing Association being determined upon by the Congress, was ordered to be subscribed by the several Members thereof; and thereupon, we have hereunto set our respective names accordingly.

In Congress, Philadelphia, October 20, 1774.

Ordered, That this Association be committed to the press, and that one hundred and twenty copies be struck off.

The Congress then resumed the consideration of the Address to the Inhabitants of these Colonies, and after debate thereon, adjourned till to-morrow.

Friday, October 21, 1774.

The Address to the People of Great Britain being brought in, and the amendments directed being made, the same was approved, and is as follows:

To the People of GREAT BRITAIN, from the Delegates appointed by the several ENGLISH Colonies of NEW-HAMPSHIRE, MASSACHUSETTS BAY, RHODE ISLAND and PROVIDENCE PLANTATION'S, CONNECTICUT, NEW-YORK, NEW-JERSEY, PENNSYLVANIA, the Lower Counties on DELAWARE, MARYLAND, VIRGINIA, NORTH CAROLINA, and SOUTH CAROLINA, to consider of their Grievances in General Congress, at PHILADELPHIA, SEPTEMBER 5, 1774.

FRIENDS AND FELLOW SUBJECTS: When a Nation, lead to greatness by the hand of Liberty, and possessed of all the Glory that heroism, munificence, and humanity can bestow, descends to the ungrateful task of forging chains for her friends and children, and instead of giving support to Freedom, turns advocate for Slavery and Oppression, there is reason to suspect she has either ceased to be virtuous, or been extremely negligent in the appointment of her Rulers.

In almost every age, in repeated conflicts, in long and bloody wars, as well civil as foreign, against many and powerful Nations, against the open assaults of enemies, and the more dangerous treachery of friends, have the inhabitants of your Island, your great and glorious ancestors, maintained their independence, and transmitted the rights of Men, and the blessings of Liberty, to you, their posterity.

Be not surprised therefore, that we, who are descended from the same common ancestors; that we, whose forefathers participated in all the rights, the liberties, and the Constitution you so justly boast of, and who have carefully conveyed the same fair inheritance to us, guarantied by the plighted faith of Government, and the most solemn compacts with British Sovereigns, should refuse to surrender them to men who found their claims on no principles of reason, and who prosecute them with a design, that by having our lives and property in their power, they may with the greater facility enslave you.

The cause of America is now the object of universal attention; it has at length become very serious. This unhappy country has not only been oppressed, but abused and misrepresented; and the duty we owe to ourselves and posterity, to your interest, and the general welfare of the British Empire, leads us to address you on this very important subject.

Know then, That we consider ourselves, and do insist, that we are and ought to be as free as our fellow-subjects in Britain, and that no power on earth has a right to take our property from us without our consent.

That we claim all the benefits secured to the subject by the English Constitution, and particularly that inestimable one of Trial by Jury.

That we hold it essential to English liberty, that no man be condemned unheard, or punished for supposed offences, without having an opportunity of making his defence.

That we think the Legislature of Great Britain is not authorized by the Constitution to establish a Religion fraught with sanguinary and impious tenets, or to erect an arbitrary form of Government in any quarter of the globe. These rights we, as well as you, deem sacred; and yet, sacred as they are, they have, with many others, been repeatedly and flagrantly violated.

Are not the Proprietors of the soil of Great Britain lords of their own property? Can it be taken from them without their consent? Will they yield it to the arbitrary disposal of any man, or number of men whatever? You know they will not.

Why then are the Proprietors of the soil of America less lords of their property than you are of yours? Or why should they submit it to the disposal of your Parliament, or any other Parliament or Council in the world, not of their election? Can the intervention of the sea that divides us cause disparity in rights? Or can any reason be given, why English subjects, who live three thousand miles from the Royal Palace, should enjoy less liberty than those who are three hundred miles distant from it?

Reason looks with indignation on such distinctions, and Freemen can never perceive their propriety. And yet, however chimerical and unjust such discriminations are, the Parliament assert that they have a right to bind us in all cases, without exception, whether we consent or not; that they may take and use our property when and in what manner they please; that we are pensioners on their bounty for all that we possess, and can hold it no longer than they vouchsafe to permit. Such declarations we consider as heresies in English politicks, and which can no more operate to deprive us of our property, than the interdicts of the Pope can divest Kings of sceptres which the laws of the land and the voice of the people have placed in their hands.

At the conclusion of the late war - a war rendered glorious by the abilities and integrity of a Minister, to whose efforts the British Empire owes its safety and its fame: at the conclusion of this war, which was succeeded by an inglorious peace, formed under the auspices of a Minister of principles and of a family unfriendly to the Protestant cause, and inimical to liberty; we say, at this period, and under the influence of that man, a plan for enslaving your fellow-subjects in America was concerted, and has ever since been pertinaciously carrying into execution.

Prior to this era you were content with drawing from us the wealth produced by our commerce. You restrained our trade in every way that could conduce to your emolument. You exercised unbounded sovereignty over the sea. You named the Ports and Nations to which alone our merchandise should be carried, and with whom alone we should trade; and though some of these restrictions were grievous, we nevertheless did not complain. We looked up to you as to our parent state, to which we were bound by the strongest ties, and were happy in being instrumental to your prosperity and your grandeur.

We call upon you yourselves to witness our loyalty and attachment to the common interest of the whole Empire. Did we not, in the last war, add all the strength of this vast Continent to the force which repelled our common enemy? Did we not leave our native shores, and meet disease and death, to promote the success of British arms in foreign climates? Did you not thank us for our zeal, and even reimburse us large sums of money, which you confessed we had advanced beyond our proportion, and far beyond our abilities? You did.

To what causes, then, are we to attribute the sudden change of treatment, and that system of slavery which was prepared for us at the restoration of peace?

Before we had recovered from the distresses which ever attend war, an attempt was made to drain this country of all its money, by the oppressive Stamp Act. Paint, Glass, and other commodities, which you would not permit us to purchase of other Nations, were taxed. Nay, although no Wine is made in any country subject to the British state, you prohibited our procuring it of foreigners, without paying a tax imposed by your Parliament, on all we imported. These and many other impositions were laid upon us most unjustly and unconstitutionally, for the express purpose of raising a Revenue. In order to silence complaint, it was, indeed, provided that this revenue should be expended in America, for its protection and defence. These exactions however can receive no justification from a pretended necessity of protecting and defending us; they are lavishly squandered on Court favourites and Ministerial dependants, generally avowed enemies to America, and employing themselves, by partial representations, to traduce and embroil the Colonies. For the necessary support of Government here we ever were and ever shall be ready to provide. And whenever the exigencies of the state may require it, we shall, as we have heretofore done, cheerfully contribute our full proportion of men and money. To enforce this unconstitutional and unjust scheme of taxation, every fence that the wisdom of our British ancestors had carefully erected against arbitrary power, has been violently thrown down in America; and the inestimable right of Trial by Jury taken away in cases that touch both life and property. It was ordained, that whenever offences should be committed in the Colonies against particular Acts imposing various duties and restrictions upon trade, the prosecutor might bring his action for the penalties in the Courts of Admiralty; by which means the subject lost the advantage of being tried by an honest uninfluenced jury of the vicinage, and was subjected to the sad necessity of being judged by a single man - a creature of the Crown; and, according to the course of a law, which exempts the prosecutor from the trouble of proving his accusation, and obliges the defendant either to evince his innocence, or to suffer. To give this new Judicatory the greater importance, and as if with design to protect false accusers, it is further provided, that the Judge's certificate of there having been probable causes of seizure and prosecution, shall protect the prosecutor from actions at common law for recovery of damages.

By the course of our law, offences committed in such of the British Dominions in which Courts are established and justice duly and regularly administered, shall be there tried by a jury of the vicinage. There the offenders and the witnesses are known, and the degree of credibility to be given to their testimony, can be ascertained.

In all these Colonies justice is regularly and impartially administered, and yet, by the construction of some, and the direction of other Acts of Parliament, offenders are to be taken by force, together with all such persons as may be pointed out as witnesses, and carried to England, there to be tried in a distant land by a jury of strangers, and subject to all the disadvantages that result from want of friends, want of witnesses, and want of money.

When the design of raising a Revenue from the Duties imposed on the importation of Tea into America, had, in a great measure, been rendered abortive, by our ceasing to import that commodity, a scheme was concerted by the Ministry with the East India Company, and an Act passed enabling and encouraging them to transport and vend it in the Colonies. Aware of the danger of giving success to this insidious manœuvre, and of permitting a precedent of taxation thus to be established among us, various methods were adopted to elude the stroke. The people of Boston, then ruled by a Governour, whom, as well as his predecessor, Sir Francis Bernard, all America considers as her enemy, were exceedingly embarrassed. The ships which had arrived with the Tea, were, by his management, prevented from returning; the duties would have been paid; the cargoes landed and exposed to sale; a Governour's influence would have procured and protected many purchasers. While the Town was suspended by deliberations on this important subject, the Tea was destroyed. Even supposing a trespass was thereby committed, and the proprietors of the Tea entitled to damages, the Courts of Law were open, and Judges appointed by the Crown presided in them. The East India Company, however, did not think proper to commence any suits; nor did they even demand satisfaction, either from individuals or from the community in general. The Ministry, it seems, officiously made the case their own, and the great Council of the Nation descended to intermeddle with a dispute about private property. Divers papers, letters, and other unauthenticated ex parte evidence were laid before them; neither the persons who destroyed the Tea, nor the people of Boston, were called upon to answer the complaint. The Ministry, incensed by being disappointed in a favourite scheme, were determined to recur from the little arts of finesse, to open force and unmanly violence. The Port of Boston was blocked up by a Fleet, and an Army placed in the Town. Their trade was to be suspended, and thousands reduced to the necessity of gaining subsistence from charity, till they should submit to pass under the yoke and consent to become slaves, by confessing the omnipotence of Parliament, and acquiescing in whatever disposition they might think proper to make of their lives and property.

Let justice and humanity cease to be the boast of your Nation! Consult your history; examine your records of former transactions, nay, turn to the annals of the many arbitrary States and Kingdoms that surround you, and shove us a single instance of men being condemned to suffer for imputed crimes, unheard, unquestioned, and without even the specious formality of a trial; and that, too, by laws made expressly for the purpose, and which had no existence at the time of the fact committed. If it be difficult to reconcile these proceedings to the genius and temper of your Laws and Constitution, the task will become more arduous, when we call upon our Ministerial enemies to justify, not only condemning men untried, and by hearsay, but involving the innocent in one common punishment with the guilty; and for the act of thirty or forty, to bring poverty, distress, and calamity, on thirty thousand souls, and those not your enemies, but your friends, brethren, and fellow-subjects.

It would be some consolation to us if the catalogue of American oppressions ended here. It gives us pain to be reduced to the necessity of reminding you that, under the confidence reposed in the faith of Government, pledged in a Royal Charter from a British Sovereign, the forefathers of the present inhabitants of the Massachusetts Bay left their former habitations and established that great, flourishing and loyal Colony. Without incurring or being charged with a forfeiture of their rights; without being heard; without being tried; without law, and without justice, by an Act of Parliament their Charter is destroyed; their liberties violated; their Constitution and form of Government changed; and all this upon no better pretence than because in one of their Towns a trespass was committed on some merchandise said to belong to one of the Companies, and because the Ministry were of opinion that such high political regulations were necessary to compel due subordination and obedience to their mandates.

Nor are these the only capital grievances under which we labour. We might tell of dissolute, weak, and wicked Governours having been set over us; of Legislatures being suspended for asserting the rights of British subjects; of needy and ignorant dependents on great men advanced to the seats of Justice, and to other places of trust and importance; of hard restrictions on Commerce, and a great variety of lesser evils, the recollection of which is almost lost under the weight and pressure of greater and more poignant calamities.

Now mark the progression of the Ministerial plan for enslaving us.

Well aware that such hardy attempts to take our property from us; to deprive us of that valuable right of Trial by Jury; to seize our persons and carry us for trial to Great Britain; to blockade our Ports; to destroy our Charters and change our forms of Government, would occasion, and had already occasioned great discontent in the Colonies, which might produce opposition to these measures, an Act was passed to protect, indemnify, and screen from punishment such as might be guilty even of murder, in endeavouring to carry their oppressive edicts into execution; and by another Act the dominion of Canada is to be so extended, modelled, and governed, as that by being disunited from us, detached from our interests, by civil as well as religious prejudices, that by their numbers daily swelling with Catholick emigrants from Europe, and by their devotion to Administration, so friendly to their religion, they might become formidable to us, and, on occasion, be fit instruments in the hands of power, to reduce the ancient, free, Protestant Colonies to the same state of slavery with themselves.

This was evidently the object of the Act; and in this view being extremely dangerous to our liberty and quiet, we cannot forbear complaining of it as hostile to British America. Superadded to these considerations, We cannot help deploring the unhappy condition to which it has reduced the many English settlers, who, encouraged by the Royal Proclamation, promising the enjoyment of all their rights, have purchased estates in that country. They are now the subjects of an arbitrary Government, deprived of trial by jury, and when imprisoned, cannot claim the benefit of the Habeas Corpus Act, that great bulwark and palladium of English Liberty. Nor can we suppress our astonishment, that a British Parliament should ever consent to establish in that country a Religion that has deluged your Island in blood, and dispersed impiety, bigotry, persecution, murder, and rebellion, through every part of the world.

This being a true state of facts, let us beseech you to consider to that end they lead.

Admit that the Ministry, by the powers of Britain, and the aid of our Roman Catholick neighbours, should be able to carry the point of taxation, and reduce us to a state of perfect humiliation and slavery; such an enterprise would doubtless make some addition to your National Debt, which already presses down your liberties, and fills you with pensioners and placemen. We presume, also, that your commerce will somewhat be diminished, However; suppose you should prove victorious, in what condition will you then be? What advantages or what laurels will you reap from such a conquest?

May not a Ministry with the same Armies enslave you? It may be said you will cease to pay them; but remember the taxes from America, the wealth, and we may add the men, and particularly the Roman Catholics of this vast Continent, will then be in the power of your enemies; nor will you have any reason to expect, that after making slaves of us, many among us should refuse to assist in reducing you to the same abject state.

Do not treat this as chimerical. Know that in less than half a century, the quit-rents reserved to the Crown, from the numberless grants of this vast Continent, will pour large streams of wealth into the Royal coffers; and if to this be added the power of taxing America at pleasure, the Crown Will be rendered independent of you for supplies, and will possess more treasure than may be necessary to purchase the remains of liberty in your Island. In a word, take care that you do not fall into the pit that is preparing for us.

We believe there is yet much virtue, much justice, and much publick spirit in the English Nation. To that justice we now appeal. You have been told that we are seditious, impatient of Government, and desirous of Independence. Be assured that these are not facts, but calumnies. Permit us to be as free as yourselves, and we shall ever esteem a union with you to be our greatest glory and our greatest happiness; we shall ever be ready to contribute all in our power to the welfare of the Empire; we shall consider your enemies as our enemies, and your interest as our own.

But, if you are determined that your Ministers shall wantonly sport with the rights of mankind; if neither the voice of justice, the dictates of the law, the principles of the Constitution, or the suggestions of humanity, can restrain your hands from shedding human blood in such an impious cause, we must then tell you that we win never submit to be hewers of wood or drawers of water for any Ministry or Nation in the world.

Place us in the same situation that we were at the close of the last war, and our former harmony will be restored.

But, lest the same supineness, and the same inattention to our common interest, which you have for several years shown, should continue, we think it prudent to anticipate the consequences.

By the destruction of the trade of Boston the Ministry have endeavoured to induce submission to their measures. The like fate may befall us all. We will endeavour therefore to live without trade, and recur for subsistence to the fertility and bounty of our native soil, which will afford us all the necessaries, and some of the conveniences of life. We have suspended our importation from Great Britain and Ireland; and, in less than a year's time, unless our grievances should be redressed, shall discontinue our exports to those Kingdoms and the West Indies.

It is with the utmost regret, however, that we find ourselves compelled, by the over-ruling principles of self-preservation, to adopt measures detrimental in their consequences to numbers of our fellow-subjects in Great Britain and Ireland. But we hope, that the magnanimity and justice of the British Nation will furnish a Parliament of such wisdom, independence, and publick spirit, as may save the violated rights of the whole Empire from the devices of wicked Ministers and evil Counsellors, whether in or out of office; and thereby restore that harmony, friendship, and fraternal affection between all the inhabitants of his Majesty's Kingdoms and Territories so ardently wished for by every true and honest American.

The Congress then resumed the consideration of the Memorial to the Inhabitants of the British Colonies, and the same being debated by paragraphs, was approved, and is as follows:

To the Inhabitants of the Colonies of NEW-HAMPSHIRE, MASSACHUSETTS BAY, RHODE-ISLAND, and PROVIDENCE PLANTATIONS, CONNECTICUT, NEW-YORK, NEW-JERSEY, PENNSYLVANIA, the Counties of NEW-CASTLE, KENT, and SUSSEX, on DELAWARE, MARYLAND, VIRGINIA, NORTH CAROLINA and SOUTH CAROLINA:

FRIENDS AND COUNTRYMEN: We, the Delegates up-pointed by the good people of these Colonies, to meet at Philadelphia, in September last, for the purposes mentioned by our respective Constituents, have, in pursuance of the trust reposed in us, assembled and taken into our most serious consideration the important matters recommended to the Congress. Our Resolutions thereupon will be herewith communicated to you. But, as the situation of publick affairs grows daily more and more alarming; and, as it may be more satisfactory to you to be informed by us in a collective body, than in any other manner, of those sentiments that have been approved, upon a full and free discussion, by the Representatives of so great a part of America, we esteem ourselves obliged to add this Address to these Resolutions.

In every case of opposition by a People to their Rulers, or of one state to another, duty to Almighty God, the creator of all, requires that a true and impartial judgment be formed of the measures leading to such opposition, and of the causes by which it has been provoked, or can in any degree be justified, that neither affection on the one hand, nor resentment on the other, being permitted to give a wrong bias to reason, it may be enabled to take a dispassionate view of all circumstances, and to settle the publick conduct on the solid foundations of Wisdom and Justice.

From Councils thus tempered, arise the surest hopes of the Divine favour; the firmest encouragement to the parties engaged, and the strongest recommendation of their cause to the rest of mankind.

With minds deeply impressed by a sense of these truths, we have diligently, deliberately, and calmly inquired into and considered those exertions, both of the Legislative and Executive power of Great Britain, which have excited so much uneasiness in America, and have, with equal fidelity and attention, considered the conduct of the Colonies. Upon the whole, we find ourselves reduced to the disagreeable alternative of being silent and betraying the innocent, or of speaking out and censuring those we wish to revere. In making our choice of these distressing difficulties, we prefer the course dictated by honesty, and a regard for the welfare of our country.

Soon after the conclusion of the late war, there commenced a memorable change in the treatment of these Colonies. By a Statute made in the fourth year of the present Reign, a time of profound peace, alleging "the expediency of new provisions and regulations for extending the Commerce between Great Britain and his Majesty's Dominions in America, and the necessity of raising a Revenue in the said Dominions, for defraying the expenses of defending, protecting, and securing the same," the Commons of Great Britain undertook to give and grant to his Majesty many Rates and Duties, to be paid in these Colonies. To enforce the observance of this Act, it prescribes a great number of severe penalties and forfeitures; and, in two sections, makes a remarkable distinction between the subjects in Great Britain and those in America. By the one, the penalties and forfeitures incurred there, are to be recovered in any of the King's Courts of Record, at Westminster, or in the Court of Exchequer, in Scotland; and, by the other, the penalties and forfeitures incurred here, are to be recovered in any Court of Record, or in any Court of Admiralty or Vice Admiralty, at the election of the informer or prosecutor.

The inhabitants of these Colonies, confiding in the justice of Great Britain, were scarcely allowed sufficient time to receive and consider this Act, before another, well known by the name of the Stamp Act, and passed in the fifth year of this Reign, engrossed their whole attention. By this Statute, the British Parliament exercised, in the most explicit manner, a power of taxing us, and extending the jurisdiction of Courts of Admiralty and Vice Admiralty in the Colonies, to matters arising within the body of a County, and directed the numerous penalties and forfeitures thereby inflicted, to be recovered in the said Courts.

In the same year a Tax was imposed upon us, by an Act establishing several new Fees in the Customs. In the next year the Stamp Act was repealed; not because it was founded in an erroneous principle, but as the Repealing Act recites, because "the continuance thereof would be attended with many inconveniences; and might be productive of consequences greatly detrimental to the commercial interest of Great Britain,"

In the same year, and by a subsequent Act, it was declared, "that his Majesty, in Parliament, of right, had "power to bind the people of these Colonies by Statutes "in all cases whatsoever,"

In the same year another Act was passed for imposing Rates and Duties payable in these Colonies. In this statute, the Commons, avoiding the terms of giving and granting, "humbly besought his Majesty, that it might be enacted," &c. But from a declaration in the preamble that the Rates and Duties were "in lieu of" several others granted by the Statutes first before mentioned, for raising a Revenue, and from some other expressions, it appears that these Duties were intended for that purpose.

In the next year, [1767] an Act was made "to enable "his Majesty to put the Customs, and other Duties in "America, under the management of Commissioners," &c. And the King, thereupon, erected the present expensive Board of Commissioners, for the express purpose of carrying into execution the several Acts relating to the Revenue and Trade in America.

After the repeal of the Stamp Act, having again resigned ourselves to our ancient unspurious affections for the parent state, and anxious to avoid any controversy with her, in hopes of a favourable alteration in sentiments and measures towards us, we did not press our objections against the above mentioned Statutes, made subsequent to that repeal.

Administration, attributing to trifling causes, a conduct that really proceeded from generous motives, were encouraged in the same year [1767] to make a bolder experiment on the patience of America.

By a Statute, commonly called the Glass, Paper, and Tea Act, made fifteen months after the repeal of the Stamp Act, the Commons of Great Britain resumed their former language, and again undertook to "give and grant Rates "and Duties to be paid in these Colonies," for the express purpose of "raising a Revenue to defray the charges of "the Administration of Justice; the support of Civil Government; and defending the King's Dominions," on this Continent. The penalties and forfeitures, incurred under this Statute, are to be recovered in the same manner with those mentioned in the foregoing Acts.

To this Statute, so naturally tending to disturb the tranquillity, then universal throughout the Colonies, Parliament, in the same session, added another no less extraordinary.

Ever since the making the present peace, a Standing Army has been kept in these Colonies. From respect for the mother country, the innovation was not only tolerated, but the Provincial Legislatures generally made provision for supplying the Troops.

The Assembly of the Province of New-York having passed an Act of this kind, but differing in some articles from the directions of the Act of Parliament made in the fifth year of this reign, the House of Representatives in that Colony was prohibited by a Statute made in the last session mentioned, from making any Bill, Order, Resolution, or Vote, except for adjourning or choosing a Speaker, until provision should be made by the said Assembly for furnishing the Troops within that Province, not only with all such necessaries as was required by the Statute, which they were charged with disobeying, but also with those required by two other subsequent Statutes which were declared to be in force until the 24th day of March, 1769.

These Statutes of the year 1767, revived the apprehensions and discontents that had entirely subsided on the repeal of the Stamp Act; and, amidst the just fears and jealousies thereby occasioned, a Statute was made in the next year, [1768] to establish Courts of Admiralty and Vice Admiralty on a new model, expressly for the end of more effectually recovering of the penalties and forfeitures inflicted by Acts of Parliament, framed for the purpose of raising a Revenue in America, &c.

The immediate tendency of these Statutes is to subvert the right of having a share in Legislation, by rendering Assemblies useless; the right of Property, by taking the money of the Colonists without their consent; the right of Trial by Jury, by substituting in their place trials in Admiralty and Vice Admiralty Courts, where single Judges preside, holding their commissions during pleasure; and unduly to influence the Courts of Common Law, by rendering the Judges thereof totally dependent on the Crown for their salaries.

These Statutes, not to mention many others exceedingly exceptionable, compared one with another, will be found, not only to form a regular system in which every part has great force, but also a pertinacious adherence to that system for subjugating these Colonies, that are not, and from local circumstances, cannot be represented in the House of Commons, to the uncontrollable and unlimited power of Parliament, in violation of their undoubted rights and liberties, in contempt of their humble and repeated supplications.

This conduct must appear equally astonishing and unjustifiable, when it is considered how unprovoked it has been by any behaviour of these Colonies. From their first settlement, their bitterest enemies never fixed on any of them a charge of disloyalty to their Sovereign, or disaffection to their mother country. In the wars she has carried on, they have exerted themselves whenever required, in giving her assistance; and have rendered her services which she has publicly acknowledged to be extremely important. Their fidelity, duty, and usefulness, during the last war, were frequently and affectionately confessed by his late Majesty and the present King.

The reproaches of those who are most unfriendly to the freedom of America, are principally levelled against the Province of Massachusetts Bay; but with what little reason, will appear by the following declarations of a person, the truth of whose evidence in their favour, will not be questioned. Governour Bernard thus addresses the two Houses of Assembly in his Speech, on the 24th of April, 1769, - "The unanimity and despatch with which you "have complied with the requisitions of his Majesty, require my particular acknowledgment; and it gives me "additional pleasure to observe, that you have therein "acted under no other influence than a due sense of your "duty, both as members of a General Empire, and as "the body of a particular Province."

In another Speech, on the 27th of May, in the same year, he says, "Whatever shall be the event of the War, it "must be no small satisfaction to us, that this Province hath "contributed its full share to the support of it. Every "thing that hath been required of it, hath began complied "with; and the execution of the powers committed to me, "for raising the Provincial Troops, hath been as full and "complete as the grant of them. Never before were "Regiments so easily levied, so well composed, and so "early in the field, as they have been this year: the common people seemed to be animated with the spirit of the "General Court, and to vie with them in their readiness "to serve the King."

Such was the conduct of the people of the Massachusetts Bay during the last war. As to their behaviour before that period, it ought not to have been forgot in Great Britain, that not only on every occasion they had constantly and cheerfully complied with the frequent Royal Requisitions; but, that chiefly by their vigorous efforts, Nova Scotia was subdued in 1710, and Louisbourg in 1745.

Foreign quarrels being ended, and the domestick disturbances that quickly succeeded on account of the Stamp Act being quieted by its repeal, the Assembly of Massachusetts Bay transmitted an humble address of Thanks to the King and divers Noblemen, and soon after passed a Bill for granting compensation to the sufferers in the disorder occasioned by that Act.

These circumstances, and the following Extracts from Governour Bernard's Letters in 1768, to the Earl of Shelburne, Secretary of State, clearly show with what grateful tenderness they strove to bury in oblivion the unhappy occasion of the late discords, and with what respectful deference they endeavoured to escape other subjects of future controversy. "The House, (says the Governour) from "the time of opening the session to this day, has shown a "disposition to avoid, all dispute with me; every thing, "having passed with as much good humour as I could "desire, except only their continuing to act in addressing "the King, remonstrating to the Secretary of State, and "employing a separate Agent. It is the importance of "this innovation, without any wilfulness of my own, which "induces me to make this Remonstrance at a time when I "have a fair prospect of having in all other business nothing but good to say of the proceedings of the House." *

"They have acted in all things, even in their Remonstrance, with temper and moderation; they have avoided some subjects of dispute, and have laid a foundation for removing some causes of former altercation." †

"I shall make such a prudent and proper use of this Letter as, I hope, will perfectly restore the peace and tranquillity of this Province, for which purpose considerable steps have been made by the House of Representatives." ‡

The vindication of the Province of Massachusetts Bay, contained in these Letters, will have greater force, if it be considered that they were written several months after the fresh alarm given to the Colonies by the Statutes passed in the preceding year.

In this place it seems proper to take notice of the insinuation of one of those Statutes, that the interference of Parliament was necessary to provide for "defraying the charge of the Administration of Justice; the support of Civil Government; and defending the King's Dominions in America."

As to the two first articles of expense, every Colony had made such provision as by their respective Assemblies, the best judges on such occasions, was thought expedient, and suitable to their Several circumstances: respecting the last, it is well known to all men the least acquainted with American affairs, that the Colonies were established, and generally defended themselves without the least assistance from Great Britain; and that, at the time of her taxing them, by the Statutes before mentioned, most of them were labouring under very heavy debts contracted in the last war. So far were they from sparing their money when their Sovereign constitutionally asked their aids, that during the course of that war, Parliament repeatedly made them compensations for the expenses of those strenuous efforts, which, consulting their zeal rather than their strength, they had cheerfully incurred.

Severe as the Acts of Parliament before mentioned are, yet the conduct of Administration hath been equally injurious and irritating to this devoted country.

Under pretence of governing them, so many new institutions, uniformly rigid and dangerous, have been introduced as could only be expected from incensed masters, for collecting the tribute, or rather the plunder of conquered Provinces.

By an order of the King, the authority of the Commander-in-chief and under him, of the Brigadier Generals, in time of peace, is rendered supreme in all the Civil Governments in America; and thus, an uncontrollable military power is vested in officers not known to the Constitution of these Colonies.

A large body of Troops, and a considerable armament of Ships of War have been sent to assist in taking their money without their consent.

Expensive and Oppressive offices have been multiplied, and the acts of corruption industriously practised to divide and destroy.

The Judges of the Admiralty and Vice Admiralty Courts are empowered to receive their salaries and fees from the effects to be condemned by themselves.

The Commissioners of the Customs are empowered to break open and enter houses without the authority of any Civil Magistrate, founded on legal information.

Judges of Courts of Common Law have been made entirely dependent on the Crown for their commissions and salaries.

A Court has been established at Rhode-Island, for the purpose of taking Colonists to England to be tried.

Humble and reasonable Petitions from the Representatives of the people have been frequently treated with contempt; and Assemblies have been repeatedly and arbitrarily dissolved.

From some few instances, it will sufficiently appear, on what pretences of justice those dissolutions have been founded.

The tranquillity of the Colonies have been again disturbed, as has been mentioned by the Statutes of the year 1767. The Earl of Hillsborough, Secretary of State, in a Letter to Governour Bernard, dated April 22, 1768, censures the "presumption" of the House of Representatives for "resolving upon a measure of so inflammatory a nature as that of writing to the other Colonies on the subject of their intended representations against some late Acts of Parliament," then declares that "his Majesty considers this step as evidently tending to create unwarrantable combinations, to excite an unjustifiable opposition to the constitutional authority of Parliament." - and afterwards adds, "it is the King's pleasure that as soon as the General Court is again assembled at the time prescribed by the Charter, you should require of the House of Representatives in his Majesty's name, to rescind the Resolution which gave birth to the Circular Letter from the Speaker, and to declare their disapprobation of, and dissent to that rash and hasty proceeding."

"If the new Assembly should refuse to comply with his Majesty's reasonable expectation, it is the King's pleasure that you should immediately dissolve them."

This Letter being laid before the House, and the Resolution not being rescinded, according to order, the Assembly was dissolved. A Letter of a Similar nature was sent to other Governours to procure Resolutions, approving the conduct of the Representatives of Massachusetts Bay, to be rescinded also; and the Houses of Representatives in other Colonies refusing to comply, Assemblies were dissolved.

These mandates spoke a language to which the ears of English subjects had for several generation been strangers. The nature of Assemblies implies a power and right of deliberation; but these commands, proscribing the exercise of judgment on the propriety of the Requisitions made, left to the Assemblies only the election between dictated submission and threatened punishment: a punishment too, founded on no other act than such as is deemed innocent even in slaves - of agreeing in Petitions for redress of grievances that equally affect all.

The hostile and unjustifiable invasion of the Town of Boston soon followed these events in the same year; though that Town, the Province in which it is situated, and all the Colonies from abhorrence of a contest with their parent state, permitted the execution even of those Statutes against which they so unanimously were complaining, remonstrating, and supplicating.

Administration, determined to subdue a spirit of freedom which English Ministers should have rejoiced to cherish, entered into a monopolizing combination with the East India Company, to send to this Continent vast quantities of Tea, an article on which a Duty was laid by a Statute that in a particular manner attacked the liberties of America, and which therefore the inhabitants of these Colonies had resolved not to import. The cargo sent to South Carolina was stored, and not allowed to be sold. Those sent to Philadelphia and New-York were not permitted to be landed. That sent to Boston was destroyed, because Governour Hutchinson would not suffer it to be returned.

On the intelligence of these transactions arriving in Great Britain, the publick spirited Town last mentioned, was singled out for destruction, and it was determined the Province it belongs to should partake of its fate. In the last session of Parliament, therefore, were passed the Acts for shutting up the Port of Boston, indemnifying the murderers of the inhabitants of Massachusetts Bay, and changing their chartered Constitution of Government. To enforce these Acts, that Province is again invaded by a Fleet and Army.

To mention these outrageous proceedings, is sufficient to explain them. For though it is pretended that the Province of Massachusetts Bay has been particularly disrespectful to Great Britain, yet, in truth, the behaviour of the people in other Colonies has been an equal "opposition to the power assumed by Parliament." No step, however, has been taken against any of the rest. This artful conduct conceals several designs. It is expected that the Province of Massachusetts Bay will be irritated into some violent action that may displease the rest of the Continent, or that may induce the people of Great Britain to approve the meditated vengeance of an imprudent and exasperated Ministry. If the unexampled pacifick temper of that Province shall disappoint this part of the plan, it is hoped the other Colonies will be so far intimidated as to desert their brethren suffering in a common cause; and that thus disunited, all may be subdued.

To promote these designs, another measure has been pursued. In the session of Parliament last mentioned, an Act was passed for changing the Government of Quebec, by which Act the Roman Catholick Religion, instead of being tolerated, as stipulated by the Treaty of Peace, is established; and the people there are deprived of a right to an Assembly; Trials by Jury, and the English Laws in civil cases, are abolished, and instead thereof the French Laws are established, in direct violation of his Majesty's promise by his Royal Proclamation, under the faith of which many English subjects settled in that Province, and the limits of that Province, are extended so as to comprehend those vast regions that lie adjoining to the Northerly and West-erly boundaries of these Colonies.

The authors of this arbitrary arrangement flatter themselves that the inhabitants, deprived of liberty, and artfully provoked against those of another religion, will be proper instruments for assisting in the oppression of such as differ from them in modes of government and faith.

From the detail of facts herein before recited, as well as from authentick intelligence received, it is clear beyond a doubt, that a resolution is formed, and now carrying into execution, to extinguish the freedom of these Colonies by subjecting them to a despotick Government.

At this unhappy period we have been authorized and directed to meet and consult together for the welfare of our common country. We accepted the important trust with diffidence, but have endeavoured to discharge it with integrity. Though the state of these Colonies would certainly justify other measures than we have advised, yet weighty reasons determined us to prefer those which we have adopted. In the first place, it appeared to us a conduct becoming the character these Colonies have ever sustained, to perform, even in the midst of the unnatural distresses and imminent dangers that surround them, every act of loyalty, and therefore, we were induced once more to offer to his Majesty the Petitions of his faithful and oppressed subjects in America. Secondly, regarding with the tender affection which we knew to be so universal among our countrymen, the people of the Kingdom, from which we derive our origin, we could not forbear to regulate our steps by an expectation of receiving full conviction that the Colonists are equally dear to them. Between these Provinces and that body subsists the social band, which we ardently wish may never be dissolved, and which cannot be dissolved until their minds shall become indisputably hostile, or their inattention shall permit those who are thus hostile, to persist in prosecuting, with the powers of the Realm, the destructive measures already operating against the Colonists, and, in either case, shall reduce the latter to such a situation that they shall be compelled to renounce every regard but that of self-preservation. Notwithstanding the violence with which affairs have been impelled they have not yet reached that fatal point. We do not incline to accelerate their motion, already alarmingly rapid; we have chosen a method of opposition that does not preclude a hearty reconciliation with our fellow-citizens on the other side of the Atlantic. We deeply deplore the urgent necessity that presses us to an immediate interruption of commerce that may prove injurious to them. We trust they will acquit us of any unkind intentions towards them, by reflecting that we are driven by the hands of violence into unexperienced and unexpected publick convulsions, and that we are contending for freedom, so often contended for by our ancestors.

The people of England will soon have an opportunity of declaring their sentiments concerning our cause. In their piety, generosity, and good sense, we repose high confidence; and cannot, upon a review of past events, be persuaded that they, the defenders of true religion, and the assenters of the rights of mankind, will take part against their affectionate Protestant brethren in the Colonies in favour of our open and their own secret enemies, whose intrigues for several years past have been wholly exercised in sapping the foundations of Civil and Religious Liberty.

Another reason that engaged us to prefer the commercial mode of oppositon, arose from an assurance, that the mode will prove efficacious, if it be persisted in with fidelity and virtue; and that your conduct will be influenced by these laudable principles, cannot be questioned. Your own salvation, and that of your posterity, now depends upon yourselves, You have already shown that you entertain a proper sense of the blessings you are striving to retain. Against the temporary inconveniences you may suffer from a stoppage of Trade, you will weigh in the opposite balance the endless miseries you and your descendants must endure from an established arbitrary power. You will not forget the honour of your country, that must, from your behaviour take its title in the estimation of the world, to glory, or to shame; and you will with the deepest attention, reflect, that if the peaceable mode of opposition recommended by us, be broken and rendered ineffectual, as your cruel and haughty Ministerial enemies, from a contemptuous opinion of your firmness, insolently predict will be the case, you must inevitably be reduced to choose, either a more dangerous contest, or a final, ruinous, and infamous submission.

Motives thus cogent, arising from the emergency of your unhappy condition, must excite your utmost diligence and zeal to give all possible strength and energy to the pacifick measures calculated for your relief: But we think ourselves bound in duty to observe to you, that the schemes agitated against these Colonies have been so conducted, as to render it prudent that you should extend your views to mournful events, and be, in all respects, prepared for every contingency. Above all things, we earnestly entreat you, with devotion of spirit, penitence of heart, and amendment of life, to humble yourselves and implore the favour of Almighty God: and we fervently beseech his Divine goodness to take you into his gracious protection.

Ordered, That the Address to the People of Great Britain, and the Memorial to the inhabitants of the British Colonies be immediately committed to the press; and that no more than one hundred and twenty copies of each be struck off, without further orders from the Congress.

Resolved, That an Address be prepared to the People of Quebec, and Letters to the Colonies of St. John's, Nova Scotia, Georgia, East and West Florida, who have not Deputies to represent them in this Congress Ordered That Mr. Cushing, Mr. Lee, and Mr. Dickinson, be a Committee to prepare the above Address and Letters.

Ordered, That Mr. Galloway, Mr. M'Kean, Mr. J. Adams, and Mr. Hooper, be a Committee to revise the Minutes of the Congress.

The Address to the King being read, after debate,

Ordered, That the same be re-committed, and that Mr. J. Dickinson be added to the Committee.

Upon motion,

Resolved, That the seizing, or attempting to seize, any person in America, in order to transport such person beyond the sea, for trial of offences Committed within the body of a County in America, being against law will justify, and ought to meet with resistance and reprisal.

Saturday, October 22, 1774.

The Honourable Peyton Randolph, Esquire, being unable to attend on account of indisposition, the Honourable Henry Middleton, Esquire, was chosen to supply his place as President.

An Address from Christopher Tully was read, and ordered to lie on the table.

Ordered, That the Journal of the proceedings of the Congress, as now corrected, be sent to the press, and printed under the direction of Mr. Biddle, Mr. Dickinson, and the Secretary.

Resolved, As the opinion of this Congress, that it will be necessary that a Congress should be held on the tenth day of May next, unless the redress of Grievances, which we have desired, be obtained before that time. And we recommend that the same be held at the City of Philadelphia, and that all the Colonies in North America, choose Deputies, as soon as possible, to attend such Congress.

The Committee appointed to prepare a Letter to the Colonies of St. Johns, &c., reported a draught, which was read, and being amended, the same was approved, and is as follows:

Philadelphia, October 22, 1774.

"GENTLEMEN: The present critical and truly alarming State of American affairs, having been considered in a General Congress of Deputies from the Colonies of New-Hampshire, Massachusetts Bay, Rhode-Island, Connecticut, New-York, New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, the lower Counties on Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina, with that attention and mature deliberation which the important nature of the case demands, they have determined for themselves and the Colonies they represent, on the measures contained in the enclosed papers; which measures they recommend to your Colony to be adopted, with all the earnestness that a well directed zeal for American liberty can prompt.

"So rapidly violent and unjust has been the late conduct of the British Administration against the Colonies, that either a base and slavish submission, under the loss of their ancient, just, and constitutional liberty, must quickly take place, or an adequate opposition be formed.

"We pray God to take you under iris protection, and to preserve the freedom and happiness of the whole British Empire. We are, &c.

"By order of the Congress,
"HENRY MIDDLETON, President."

Monday. October 24, 1774.

The Committee appointed to prepare an Address to the People of Quebec, reported a draught, which was read, and, after debate, recommitted.

The Committee, to whom the Address to the King was recommitted, brought in a draught, which was read, and ordered to be taken into consideration to-morrow.

Tuesday, October 25, 1774.

The Congress resumed the consideration of the Address to his Majesty, which being debated by paragraphs, was approved, and ordered to be engrossed.

Ordered, That the Address to the King be enclosed to the several Colony Agents, in order that the same may be by them presented to his Majesty; and that the Agents be requested to call in the aid of such noblemen and gentlemen as are esteemed firm friends to American liberty.

Ordered, That Mr. Lee and Mr. Jay be a Committee to prepare a Letter to the Agents of the several Colonies.

Resolved, That this Congress, in their own names, and in behalf of all those whom they represent, do present their most grateful acknowledgments to those truly noble, honourable, and patriotick advocates of civil and religious liberty, who have so generously and powerfully, though unsuccessfully, espoused and defended the cause of America, both in and out of Parliament.

Wednesday, October 26, 1774.

The Committee, appointed to prepare a Letter to the Agents, reported a draught, which was read, and being debated by paragraphs, was approved, and is as follows:

"GENTLEMEN: We give you the strongest proof of our reliance on your zeal and attachment to the happiness of America, and the cause of liberty, when we commit the enclosed papers to your care.

"We desire that you will deliver the Petition into the hands of his Majesty, and after it has been presented, we wish it may be made publick, through the press, together with the List of Grievances. And as we hope for great assistance from the spirit, virtue, and justice of the Nation, it is our earnest desire that the most effectual care be taken, as early as possible, to furnish the Trading Cities and Manufacturing Towns throughout the United Kingdom, with our Memorial to the People of Great Britain.

"We doubt not but your good sense and discernment will lead you to avail yourselves of every assistance that may be derived from the advice and friendship of all great and good men, who may incline to aid the cause of liberty and mankind.

"The gratitude of America, expressed in the enclosed Vote of Thanks, we desire may be conveyed to the deserving objects of it in the manner that you think will be most acceptable to them.

"It is proposed that another Congress be held on the tenth of May next, at this place, but, in the mean time, we beg the favour of you, gentlemen, to transmit to the Speakers of the several Assemblies, the earliest information of the most authentick accounts you can collect of all such conduct and designs of Ministry, or Parliament, as it may concern America to know.

"We are, with unfeigned esteem and regard, Gentlemen,
By order and in behalf of the Congress,

"HENRY MIDDLETON, President.

To Paul Wentworth, Dr. Benj. Franklin,
William Bolla, Dr. Arthur Lee, Tho.
Life, Edmund Burke, Charles Garth."

The Committee to whom the Address to the Inhabitants of Quebec was recommitted, reported a draught, which was read, and, being debated by paragraphs, approved:

TO THE INHABITANTS OF THE PROVINCE OF QUEBEC.

FRIENDS AND FELLOW-SUBJECTS: We, the Delegates of the Colonies of New-Hampshire, Massachusetts Bay, Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations, Connecticut, New-York, New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, the Counties of New-Castle, Kent, and Sussex, on Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina, deputed by the inhabitants of the said Colonies to represent them in a General Congress, at Philadelphia, in the Province of Pennsylvania, to consult together concerning the best methods to obtain redress of our afflicting Grievances; having accordingly assembled and taken into our most serious consideration the state of publick affairs on this Continent, have thought proper to address your Province, as a member therein deeply interested.

When the fortune of war, after a gallant and glorious resistance, had incorporated you with the body of English subjects, we rejoiced in the truly valuable addition, both on our own and your account; expecting, as courage and generosity are naturally united, our brave enemies would become our hearty friends, and that the Divine Being would bless to you the dispensation of his over-ruling providence, by securing to you, and your latest posterity, the inestimable advantages of a free English Constitution of Government, which it is the privilege of all English subjects to enjoy.

These hopes were confirmed by the King's Proclamation, issued in the year 1763, plighting the publick faith for your full enjoyment of those advantages.

Little did we imagine that any succeeding Ministers would so audaciously and cruelly abuse the Royal authority as to withhold from you the fruition of the irrevocable rights to which you were thus justly entitled.

But since we have lived to see the unexpected time when Ministers of this flagitious temper have dared to violate the most sacred compacts and obligations, and as you, educated under another form of Government, have artfully been kept from discovering the unspeakable worth of that form you are now undoubtedly entitled to, we esteem it our duty, for the weighty reasons hereinafter mentioned, to explain to you some of its most important branches.

"In every human society," says the celebrated Marquis Beccaria, "there is an effort continually tending to confer "on one part the height of power and happiness, and to "reduce the other to the extreme of weakness and misery. "the intent of good laws is to oppose this effort, and to "diffuse their influence universally and equally."

Rulers stimulated by this pernicious "effort," and subjects animated by the just "intent of opposing good laws against it," have occasioned that vast variety of events that fill the histories of so many Nations. All these histories demonstrate the truth of this simple position, that to live by the will of one man, or set of men, is the production of misery to all men.

On the solid foundation of this principle Englishmen reared up the fabrick of their Constitution with such a strength as for ages to defy time, tyranny, treachery, internal and foreign wars; and, as an illustrious author * of your Nation, hereafter mentioned, observes - "They gave "the people of their Colonies the form of their own Government, and this Government carrying prosperity along "with it, they have grown great Nations in the forests "they were sent to inhabit."

* Montesquieu.

In this form, the first grand right is that of the People having a share in their own Government, by their Representatives chose by themselves, and, in consequence, of being ruled by laws which they themselves approve; not by edicts of men, over whom they have no control. This is a bulwark Surrounding and defending their property, which, by their honest cares and labours they have acquired, so that no portions of it can legally be taken from them but with their own full and free consent, when they, in their judgment, deem it just and necessary to give them for publick services, and precisely direct the easiest, cheapest, and most equal methods in which they shall be collected.

The influence of this right extends still farther. If money is wanted by Rulers who have in any manner oppressed the people, they may retain it until their grievances are redressed; and thus peaceably procure relief, without trusting to despised Petitions, or disturbing the publick tranquillity.

The next great right is that of Trial by Jury. This provides that neither life, liberty, nor property can be taken from the possessor, until twelve of his unexceptionable countrymen and peers of his vicinage, who, from that neighbourhood, may reasonably be supposed to be acquainted with his character, and the characters of the witnesses, upon a fair trial, and full inquiry, face to face, in open Court, before as many of the people as choose to attend, shall pass their sentence, upon oath, against him; a sentence that cannot injure him, without injuring their own reputation, and probably their interest also; as the question may turn on points that, in some degree, concern the general welfare; and, if it does not, their verdict may form a precedent, that, on a similar trial of their own, may militate against themselves.

Another right relates merely to the Liberty of the Person. If a subject is seized and imprisoned, though by order of Government, he may, by virtue of this right, immediately obtain a writ, termed a Habeus Corpus, from a Judge, whose sworn duty it is to grant it, and thereupon procure any illegal restraint to be quickly inquired into, and redressed.

A fourth right is that of holding Lands by the tenure of Easy Rents, and not by rigorous and oppressive services, frequently forcing the possessors from their families and their business, to perform what ought to be done, in all well regulated states, by men hired for the purpose.

The last right we shall mention regards the Freedom of the Press. The importance of this consists, besides the advancement of truth, science, morality, and arts in general, in its diffusion of liberal sentiments, on the administration of Government, its ready communication of thoughts between subjects, and its consequential promotion of union among them, whereby oppressive officers are shamed or intimidated into more honourable and just modes of conducting affairs.

These are the invaluable rights that form a considerable part of our mild system of Government; that, sending its equitable energy through all ranks and classes of men, defends the poor from the rich, the weak from the powerful, the industrious from the rapacious, the peaceable from the violent, the tenants from the lords, and all from their superiours.

These are the rights, without which a People cannot be free and happy, and under the protecting and encouraging influence of which these Colonies have hitherto so amazingly flourished and increased. These are the rights a profligate Ministry are now striving, by force of arms, to ravish from us, and which we are, with one mind, resolved never to resign but with our lives.

These are the rights you are entitled to, and ought, at this moment, in perfection, to exercise. And what is offered to you, by the late Act of Parliament, in their place? Liberty of conscience in your Religion? No. God gave it to you; and the temporal powers with which you have been, and are connected, firmly stipulated for your enjoyment of it. If laws, divine and human, could secure it against the despotick caprices of wicked men, it was secured before. Are the French Laws, in civil cases, restored? It seems so. But observe the cautious kindness of the Ministers, who pretend to be your benefactors: The words of the Statute are - that those "laws shall be "the rule, until they shall be varied or altered by any "ordinances of the Governour and Council." Is the "certainty and lenity of the Criminal Law of England "and its benefits and advantages," commended in the said Statute, and said to "have been sensibly felt by you," secured to you and your descendants? No. They too are subjected to arbitrary "alterations" by the Governour and Council; and a power is expressly reserved of appointing "such Courts of criminal, civil, and ecclesiastical jurisdiction as shall be thought proper." Such is the precarious tenure of mere will, by which you hold your Lives and Religion. The Crown and its Ministers are empowered, as far as they could be by Parliament, to establish even the Inquisition itself among you. Have you an Assembly composed of worthy men, elected by yourselves, and in whom you can confide, to make laws for you, to watch over your welfare, and to direct in what quantity, and in what manner your money shall be taken from you? No. The power of making laws for you is lodged in the Governour and Council, all of them dependent upon, and removable at the pleasure of a Minister. Besides another late Statute, made without your consent, has subjected you to the impositions of Excise - the horror of all free states; thus wresting your property from you by the most odious of Taxes, and laying open to insolent Tax Gatherers, houses, the scenes of domestick peace and comfort, and called the castles of English subjects in the books of their law. And in the very Act for altering your Government, and intended to flatter you, you are not authorized to "assess, levy, or apply any Rates and Taxes but for the "inferiour purposes of making roads, and erecting and repairing publick buildings, or for other local conveniences, "within your respective Towns and Distriets." Why this degrading distinction? Ought not the property, honestly acquired by Canadians, to be held as sacred as that of Englishmen? Have not Canadians sense enough to attend to any other publick affairs, than gathering stones from one place and piling them up in another? Unhappy people! who are not only injured, but insulted. Nay, more! - With such a superlative contempt of your understanding and spirit has an insolent Ministry presumed to think of you, our respectable fellow-subjects, according to the information we have received, as firmly to persuade themselves that your gratitude for the injuries and insults they have recently offered to you, will engage you to take up arms, and render yourselves the ridicule and detestation of the world, by becoming tools, in their hands, to assist them in taking that freedom from us, which they have treacherously denied to you; the unavoidable consequence of which attempt, if successful, would be the extinction of all hopes of you or your posterity being ever restored to freedom; for idiocy itself cannot believe, that, when their drudgery is performed, they will treat you with less cruelty than they have us, who are of the same blood with themselves.

What would your countryman, the immortal Montesquieu, have said to such a plan of domination as has been framed for you? Hear his words, with an intenseness of thought suited to the importance of the subject: "In a "free state, every man, who is supposed a free agent, "ought to be concerned in his own government: There- "fore the Legislative should reside in the whole body of "the People or their Representatives." "The political "liberty of the subject is a tranquillity of mind, arising from "the opinion each person has of his safety. In order to "have this liberty, it is requisite the Government be so "constituted, as that one man need not be afraid of another. "When the power of making laws and the power of exe- "cuting them, are united in the same person, or in the "same body of Magistrates, there can be no liberty; be- "cause apprehensions may arise, lest the same Monarch "or Senate should enact tyrannical laws, to execute them "in a tyrannical manner."

"The power of judging should be exercised by persons "taken from the body of the people, at certain times of "the year, and pursuant to a form and manner prescribed "by law. There is no liberty, if the power of judging "be not separated from the Legislative and Executive "powers."

"Military men belong to a profession which may be "useful, but is often dangerous." "The enjoyment of "liberty, and even its support and preservation, consists in "every man's being allowed to speak his thoughts, and lay open his sentiments."

Apply these decisive maxims, sanctified by the authority of a name which all Europe reveres, to your own state. You have a Governour, it may be urged, vested with the Executive powers, or the powers of Administration; in him, and in your Council, is lodged the power of making laws. You have Judges, who are to decide every cause affecting your lives, liberty, or property. Here is, indeed, an appearance of the several powers being separated and distributed into different hands, for checks, one upon another; the only effectual mode ever invented by the wit of men, to promote their freedom and prosperity. But scorning to be illuded by a tinselled outside, and exerting the natural sagacity of Frenchmen, examine the specious device, and you will find it, to use an expression of Holy Writ, "a whited sepulchre," for burying your lives, liberty, and property.

Your Judges, and your Legislative Council, as it is called, are dependent on your Governour, and he is dependent on the servant of the Crown in Great Britain. The Legislative, Executive, and Judging powers are all moved by the nods of a Minister. Privileges and immunities last no longer than his smiles. When he frowns, their feeble forms dissolve. Such a treacherous ingenuity has been exerted in drawing up the code lately offered you, that every sentence, beginning with a benevolent pretension, concludes with a destructive power; and the substance of the whole, divested of its smooth words, is - that the Crown and its Ministers shall be as absolute throughout your extended Province, as the despots of Asia or Africa. What can protect your property from taxing edicts, and fire rapacity of necessitous and cruel masters? your persons from lettres de catchet, jails, dungeons, and oppressive services? your lives and general liberty from arbitrary and unfeeling rulers? We defy you, casting your view upon every side, to discover a single circumstance, promising from any quarter, the faintest hope of liberty to you or your posterity, but from an entire adoption into the Union of these Colonies.

What advice would the truly great man, before mentioned, that advocate of freedom and humanity, give you, was he now living, and knew that we, your numerous and powerful neighbours, animated by a just love of our invaded rights, and united by the indissoluble bands of affection and interest, called upon you, by every obligation of regard for yourselves and your children, as we now do, to join us in our righteous contest, to make common cause with us therein, and take a noble chance for emerging from a humiliating subjection under Governours, Intendants, and Military Tyrants, into the firm rank and condition of English Freemen, whose custom it is, derived from their ancestors, to make those tremble who dare to think of making them miserable?

Would not this be the purport of his address? "Seize the opportunity presented to you by Providence itself. You have been conquered into liberty, if you act as you ought. This work is not of man. You are a small people, compared to those who, with open arms, invite you into a fellowship. A moment's reflection should convince you which will be most for your interest and happiness, to have all the rest of North America your unalterable friends, or your inveterate enemies. The injuries of Boston have roused and associated every Colony from Nova Scotia to Georgia. Your Province is the only link wanting to complete the bright and strong chain of Union. Nature has joined your country to theirs. Do you join your political interests. For their own sakes they never will desert or betray you. Be assured that the happiness of a people inevitably depends on their liberty, and their spirit to assert it. The value and extent of the advantages tendered to you are immense. Heaven grant you may not discover them to be blessings after they have bid you an eternal adieu."

We are too well acquainted with the liberality of sentiment distinguishing your Nation, to imagine that difference of Religion will prejudice you against a hearty amity with us. You know that the transcendent nature of freedom elevates those who unite in her cause, above all such low-minded infirmities. The Swiss Cantons furnish a memorable proof of this truth. Their Union is composed of Roman Catholick and Protestant States, living in the utmost concord and peace with one another, and thereby enabled, ever since they bravely vindicated their freedom, to defy and defeat every tyrant that has invaded them.

Should there be any among you, as there generally are in all societies, who prefer the favours of Ministers, and their own private interests, to the welfare of their country, the temper of such selfish persons will render them incredibly active in opposing all publick-spirited measures, from an expectation of being well rewarded for their sordid industry, by their superiours; but we doubt not you will be upon your guard against such men, and not sacrifice the liberty and happiness of the whole Canadian people and their posterity, to gratify the avarice and ambition of individuals.

We do not ask you, by this Address, to commence acts of hostility against the Government of our common Sovereign. We only invite you to consult your own glory and welfare, and not to suffer yourselves to be inveigled or intimidated by infamous Ministers, so far as to become the instruments of their cruelty and despotism; but to unite with us in one social compact, formed on the generous principles of equal liberty, and cemented by such an exchange of beneficial and endearing offices as to render it perpetual. In order to complete this highly desirable Union, we submit it to your consideration, whether it may not be expedient for you to meet together, in your several Towns and Districts, and elect Deputies, who, afterwards meeting in a Provincial Congress, may choose Delegates to represent your Province in the Continental Congress, to be held at Philadelphia, on the tenth day of May, 1775.

In this present Congress, beginning on the fifth of the last month, and continued to this day, it has been, with universal pleasure, and an unanimous vote, resolved that we should consider the violation of your rights, by the Act for altering the Government of your Province, as a violation of our own, and that you should be invited to accede to our confederation, which has no other objects than the perfect security of the natural and civil rights of all the constituent members, according to their respective circumstances, anti the preservation of a happy and lasting connection with Great Britain, on the salutary and constitutional principles herein before mentioned. For effecting these purposes, we have addressed an humble and loyal Petition to his Majesty, praying relief of our and your grievances; and have associated to stop all importations from Great Britain and Ireland, after the first day of December, and all exportations to those Kingdoms and the West Indies, after the tenth day of next September, unless the said grievances are redressed.

That Almighty God may incline your minds to approve our equitable and necessary measures, to add yourselves to us, to put your fate, whenever you suffer injuries which you are determined to oppose, not on the small influence of your single Province, but on the consolidated powers of North America; and may grant to our joint exertions an event as happy as our cause is just, is the fervent prayer of us, your sincere and affectionate friends and fellow-subjects. By order of Congress,

HENRY MIDDLETON, President.

Resolved, That the Address of the Congress to the People of Canada be signed by the President, and that the Delegates of the Province of Pennsylvania superintend the translating, printing, publishing, and dispersing it. And it is recommended by the Congress to the Delegates of New-Hampshire, Massachusetts Bay, and New-York, to assist in and forward the dispersion of the said Address.

The Address to the King being engrossed and compared, was signed at the table by all the Members: -

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty:

MOST GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN: We, your Majesty's faithful subjects of the Colonies of New-Hampshire, Massachusetts Bay, Rhode-Island and Providence Plantations, Connecticut, New-York, New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, the Counties of New-Castle, Kent, and Sussex, on Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina; and South Carolina, in behalf of ourselves and the inhabitants of those Colonies who have deputed us to represent them in General Congress, by this our humble Petition, beg leave to lay our Grievances before the Throne.

A Standing Army has been kept in these Colonies ever since the conclusion of the late war, without the consent of our Assemblies; and this Army, with a considerable Naval armament, has been employed to enforce the collection of Taxes.

The authority of the Commander-in-Chief, and under him of the Brigadiers General has, in time of peace, been rendered supreme in all the Civil Governments in America.

The Commander-in-chief of all your Majesty's Forces in North America, has, in time of peace, been appointed Governour of a Colony.

The charges of usual offices have been greatly increased; and new, expensive, and oppressive offices have been multiplied.

The Judges of Admiralty and Vice Admiralty Courts are empowered to receive their salaries and fees from the effects condemned by themselves.

The Officers of the Customs are empowered to break open and enter houses, without the authority of any Civil Magistrate, founded on legal information.

The Judges of Courts of Common Law have been made entirely dependent on one part of the Legislature for their salaries, as well as for the duration of their commissions.

Humble and reasonable Petitions from the Representatives of the People, have been fruitless.

The Agents of the People have been discountenanced, and Governours have been instructed to prevent the payment of their salaries.

Assemblies have been repeatedly and injuriously dissolved.

Commerce has been burthened with many useless and oppressive restrictions.

By several Acts of Parliament made in the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth years of your Majesty's Reign, Duties are imposed on us for the purpose of raising a Revenue; and the powers of Admiralty and Vice Admiralty Courts are extended beyond their ancient limits, whereby our property is taken from us without our consent; the trial by jury, in many civil cases, is abolished; enormous forfeitures are incurred for slight offences; vexatious informers are exempted from paying damages, to which they are justly liable, and oppressive security is required from owners before they are allowed to defend their right.

Both Houses of Parliament have resolved, that Colonists may be tried in England for offences alleged to have been committed in America, by virtue of a Statute passed in the thirty-fifth year of Henry the Eighth, and, in consequence thereof, attempts have been made to enforce that Statute.

A Statute was passed in the twelfth year of your Majesty's Reign, directing that persons charged with committing any offence therein described, in any place out of the Realm, may be indicted and tried for the same in any Shire or County within the Realm, whereby the inhabitants of these Colonies may, in sundry cases, by that Statute made capital, be deprived of a trial by their peers of the vicinage.

In the last sessions of Parliament an Act was passed for blocking up the Harbour of Boston; another empowering the Governour of the Massachusetts Bay to send persons indicted for murder in that Province, to another Colony, or even to Great Britain, for trial, whereby such offenders may escape legal punishment; a third for altering the chartered Constitution of Government in that Province; and a fourth for extending the limits of Quebec, abolishing the English and restoring the French laws, whereby great numbers of British Freemen are subjected to the latter, and establishing an absolute Government and the Roman Catholick Religion throughout those vast regions that border on the Westerly and Northerly boundaries of the free Protestant English settlements; and a fifth, for the better providing suitable Quarters for Officers and Soldiers in his Majesty's service in North America.

To a Sovereign, who glories in the name of Briton, the bare recital of these Acts must, we presume, justify the loyal subjects, who fly to the foot of his Throne, and implore his clemency for protection against them.

From this destructive system of Colony Administration, adopted since the conclusion of the last war, have flowed those distresses, dangers, fears, and jealousies, that overwhelm your Majesty's dutiful Colonists with affliction; and we defy our most subtle and inveterate enemies to trace the unhappy differences between Great Britain and these Colonies, from an earlier period, or from other causes than we have assigned. Had they proceeded on our part from a restless levity of temper, unjust impulses of ambition, or artful suggestions of seditious persons, we should merit the opprobrious terms frequently bestowed upon us by those we revere. But so far from promoting innovations, we have only opposed them; and can be charged with no offence, unless it be one to receive injuries and be sensible of them.

Had our Creator been pleased to give us existence in a land of slavery, the sense of our condition might have been mitigated by ignorance and habit. But, thanks be to his adorable goodness, we were born the heirs of freedom, and ever enjoyed our right under the auspices of your Royal ancestors, whose family was seated on the British Throne to rescue and secure a pious and gallant Nation from the Popery and despotism of a superstitious and inexorable tyrant. Your Majesty, we are confident, justly rejoices that your title to the Crown is thus founded on the title of your people to liberty; and, therefore, we doubt not but your royal wisdom must approve the sensibility that teaches your subjects anxiously to guard the blessing they received from Divine Providence, and thereby to prove the performance of that compact which elevated the illustrious House of Brunswick to the imperial dignity it now possesses.

The apprehension of being degraded into a state of servitude, from the pre-eminent rank of English freemen, while our minds retain the strongest love of liberty, and clearly foresee the miseries preparing for us and our posterity, excites emotions in our breasts which, though we cannot describe, we should not wish to conceal. Feeling as men, and thinking as subjects, in the manner we do, silence would be disloyalty. By giving this faithful information, we do all in our power to promote the great objects of your Royal cares, the tranquillity of your Government, and the welfare of your people.

Duty to your Majesty, and regard for the preservation of ourselves and our posterity, the primary obligations of nature and of society, command us to entreat your Royal attention; and, as your Majesty enjoys the signal distinction of reigning over freemen, we apprehend the language of freemen cannot be displeasing. Your Royal indignation, we hope, will rather fall on those designing and dangerous men, who, daringly interposing themselves between your Royal person and your faithful subjects, and for several years past incessantly employed to dissolve the bonds of society, by abusing your Majesty's authority, misrepresenting your American subjects, and prosecuting the most desperate and irritating projects of oppression, have at length compelled us, by the force of accumulated injuries, too severe to be any longer tolerable, to disturb your Majesty's repose by our complaints.

These sentiments are extorted from hearts that much more willingly would bleed in your Majesty's service. Yet, so greatly have we been misrepresented, that a necessity has been alleged of taking our property from us without our consent, "to defray the charge of the administration of justice, the support of Civil Government, and the defence, protection, and security of the Colonies." But we beg leave to assure your Majesty that such provision has been and will be made for defraying the two first articles, as has been and shall be judged by the Legislatures of the several Colonies just and suitable to their respective circumstances; and, for the defence, protection, and security of the Colonies, their Militias, if properly regulated, as they earnestly desire may immediately be done, would be fully sufficient, at least in times of peace; and, in case of war, your faithful Colonists will be ready and willing, as they ever have been, when constitutionally required, to demonstrate their loyalty to your Majesty, by exerting their most strenuous efforts in granting supplies and raising forces.*

Yielding to no British subjects in affectionate attach-

* An Estimate of the number of Souls in the following Provinces, made in Congress, September, 1774:

In Massachusetts 400,000; New-Hampshire 150,000; Rhode-Island 59,678; Connecticut 192,000; New-York 250,000; New-Jersey 130,000; Pennsylvania, including the Lower Counties, 350,000; Maryland 320,000; Virginia 650,000; North Carolina 300,000; South Carolina 225,000. Total 3,026,678.

merit to your Majesty's person, family, and Government, we too dearly prize the privilege of expressing that attachment by those proofs that are honourable to the Prince who receives them, and to the People who give them, ever to resign it to any body of men upon earth.

Had we been permitted to enjoy, in quiet, the inheritance left us by our forefathers, we should, at this time, have been peaceably, cheerfully, and usefully employed in recommending ourselves, by every testimony of devotion, to your Majesty, and of veneration to the state, from which we derive our origin. But though now exposed to unexpected and unnatural scenes of distress by a contention with that Nation in whose parental guidance on all important affairs, we have hitherto, with filial reverence, constantly trusted, and therefore can derive no instruction in our present unhappy and perplexing circumstances from any former experience; yet, we doubt not, the purity of our intention, and the integrity of our conduct, will justify us at that grand tribunal before which all mankind must submit to judgment.

We ask but for Peace, Liberty, and Safety. We wish not a diminution of the prerogative, nor do we solicit the grant of any new right in our favour. Your Royal authority over us, and our connection with Great Britain, we shall always carefully and zealously endeavour to support and maintain.

Filled with sentiments of duty to your Majesty, and of affection to our parent state, deeply impressed by our education, and strongly confirmed by our reason, and anxious to evince the sincerity of these dispositions, we present this Petition only to obtain redress of Grievances, and relief from fears and jealousies, occasioned by the system of Statutes and Regulations adopted since the close of the late war, for raising a Revenue in America - extending the powers of Courts of Admiralty and Vice Admiralty - trying persons in Great Britain for offences alleged to be committed in America - affecting the Province of Massachusetts Bay - and altering the Government and extending the limits of Quebec; by the abolition of which system the harmony between Great Britain and these Colonies, so necessary to the happiness of both, and so ardently desired by the latter, and the usual intercourses will be immediately restored. In the magnanimity and justice of your Majesty and Parliament we confide for a redress of our other grievances, trusting, that, when the causes of our apprehensions are removed, our future conduct will prove us not unworthy of the regard we have been accustomed in our happier days to enjoy. For, appealing to that Being, who searches thoroughly the hearts of his creatures, we solemnly profess, that our Councils have been influenced by no other motive than a dread of impending destruction.

Permit us then, most gracious Sovereign, in the name of all your faithful People in America, with the utmost humility, to implore you, for the honour of Almighty God, whose pure Religion our enemies are undermining; for your glory, which can be advanced only by rendering your subjects happy, and keeping them united; for the interests of your family depending on an adherence to the principles that enthroned it; for the safety and welfare of your Kingdoms and Dominions, threatened with almost unavoidable dangers and distresses, that your Majesty, as the loving Father of your whole People, connected by the same bands of Law, Loyalty, Faith, and Blood, though dwelling in various countries, will not suffer the transcendent relation formed by these ties to be farther violated, in uncertain expectation of effects, that, if attained, never can compensate for the calamities through which they must be gained.

We therefore most earnestly beseech your Majesty, that your Royal authority and interposition may be used for our relief, and that a gracious Answer may be given to this Petition.

That your Majesty may enjoy every felicity through a long and glorious Reign, over loyal and happy subjects, and that your descendants may inherit your prosperity and Dominions till time shall be no more, is, and always will be, our sincere and fervent prayer.

GOVERNOUR GAGE TO PEYTON RANDOLPH,

Boston, October 20, 1774.

SIR: Representations should be made with candour, and matters stated exactly as they stand. People would be led to believe, from your letter to me of the 10th instant, that works were raised against the Town of Boston, private property invaded, the Soldiers suffered to insult the inhabitants, and the communication between the Town and Country shut up and molested.

Nothing can be farther from the true situation of this place than the above state. There is not a single gun pointed against the Town, no man's property has been seized or hurt, except the King's by the people's destroying straw, bricks, &c., bought for his service. No Troops have given less cause for complaint, and greater care was never taken to prevent it, and such care and attention was never more necessary, from the insults and provocations daily giving to both Officers and Soldiers. The communication between the Town and Country has been always free and unmolested, and is so still.

Two works of earth have been raised at some distance from the Town, wide of the roads, and guns put in them. The remains of old works, going out of the Town, have been strengthened, and guns placed there likewise. - People will think differently, whether the hostile preparations throughout the country, and the menaces of blood and slaughter, made this necessary. But I am to do my duty.

It gives me pleasure that you are endeavouring at a cordial reconciliation with the mother country; which, from what has transpired, I have despaired of. Nobody wishes better success, to such measures than myself. I have endeavoured to be a mediator, if I could establish a foundation to work upon; and have strongly urged it to people here to pay for the Tea, and send a proper Memorial to the King, which would be a good beginning on their side, and give their friends the opportunity they seek, to move in their support.

I do not believe that menaces and unfriendly proceedings will have the effect which many conceive. The spirit of the British Nation was high when I left England, and such measures will not abate it. But I should hope that decency and moderation here would create the same disposition at home; and I ardently wish that the common enemies to both countries may see, to their disappointment, that these disputes between the mother country and the Colonies have terminated like the quarrels of lovers, and increased the affection which they ought to bear to each other. I am, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

THOMAS GAGE

To the Hon. Peyton Randolph, Esq.

To the Honourable PEYTON RANDOLPH, Esquire, late President of the American Continental Congress:

SIR: The character in which you have lately appeared to the world, as President of the Grand Continental Congress, has placed you in so eminent a point of view, that, like a city set on a hill, you cannot be hid. Your name, till of late, known comparatively to but few out of your own Province, now holds rank with other Chieftains in the American cause, and is, of course, in the mouth of every politician; that is, of every man, woman, and child, throughout the extended Continent of English America. We all, gentle and simple, old and young, bond and free, male and female, fancy ourselves connected with you by a political relation, which entitles us to the most perfect liberty of speech to you and of you, whensoever we think the cause requires it. You will not, then, be surprised at finding yourself addressed by a stranger, and through a newspaper, the common channel of conveyance for modern addressers to Governours, Generals, and Kings. What your private political sentiments are I know not; nor do I conceive the knowledge of them to be material to any but yourself. It is, indeed, whispered that Mr. Randolph is very far from approving of many things adopted by Peyton Randolph, Esquire, President of the Congress. If this were a truth well established and universally known, Mr. Randolph and the President would have very different sets of men for their admirers; but this may be all false conjecture, which you will lay to the account of an unavoidable tax upon the great. Talked of you must be; and it would be strange, indeed, if some errors did not creep into the judgments, and some falsehoods shoot from the lips of three millions of politicians endowed with the gift of tongues.

Leaving, therefore, your private sentiments to yourself, until I am better acquainted with them, I shall, in the correspondence which I have now the honour to open, address myself to you as President of the American Congress, begun and held at Philadelphia, September 5th, 1774. I do not intend to take the liberty of modern addressers to Sovereigns and their Representatives, in loading you with scurility and abuse, where I find reason and argument to be wanting; but, on the contrary, it is my determination to reverence your's and my own characters as gentlemen, and to say nothing whereby I may wound the one or forfeit the other. At the same time, it is my fixed purpose to deliver my own sentiments with the freedom of an Englishman, nearly interested in the important subjects upon which they are formed.

If the freedom of the press is not denied me, I propose, in a course of letters, as health and leisure shall permit, to lay before you, without reserve, my thoughts on your Bill of Rights; your list of Grievances; your adoption of the Suffolk Resolves; your Letter to his Excellency General Gage; your Association; and your three very singular Addresses; and to point out to you the fatal consequences of which they have already been productive in this Province of Massachusetts Bay, and the still more fatal effects, there is reason to fear, they will produce to the whole of English America. If, in the prosecution of this plan, I shall preserve decency and good manners, notwithstanding we may differ very widely in our notions, I presume my freedom of disquisition upon the measures submitted to the judgment of every individual, by being exposed to the public eye, will give no just cause of offence. We are all embarked in one bottom; my life and the lives of my wife and children; my property - my all, stand most intimately connected with the loss or safety of the ship; the storm is violent; you, Mr. President, have undertaken to pilot her through to the much wished for haven of peace. You have taken the helm, and under your direction she is now going at a great rate; but the tempest increases; the Heavens lour; the clouds thicken and blacken every moment; the hoarse thunder very sensibly approaches nearer and nearer; the billows break on every side; and to complete the dismal prospect, the ship is too crazy to afford hopes of riding out the storm; and the mariners are upon the point of mutiny.

If, amidst all these circumstances of extreme danger, you, through want of skill in navigation, or from being unacquainted with the coast, or from any other cause, have run us among rocks, shoals, and quicksands, far distant from our desired port, you will most assuredly bless the man who seasonably points them out, though they may have been first discovered by a common eye; an eye in all other instances inferiour to your own. Perhaps it is not yet too late to retrieve our errors. There is a possibility, that, by adopting different measures, and pursuing an opposite course, we may yet be saved; and while there is a possibility, it is excusable - it is incumbent on every one freely to give us his opinion. And, on the other hand, if our apprehensions of danger, (for I am not alone) are ill-founded, and our fears proceed from ignorance and too great caution, still the interest we have at risk, will plead our excuse with you; and you will kindly compose our ruffled spirits, by gently explaining our situation, and pointing out to us our mistakes.

Without confining myself to the foregoing order of the subject upon which I intend to treat, I will conclude this address with some remarks upon your letter to General Gage, the causes which lead to it, and the effects it has produced.

In your letter, you first premise that "the inhabitants of the Town of Boston had informed you that the fortifications erecting within that Town; the frequent invasions of private property, and the repeated insults they receive from the Soldiery, had given them great reason to suspect a plan was formed very destructive to them, and tending to overthrow the liberties of America;" you then go on to express your deepest concern, that whilst "you," calling yourselves the Representatives of his Majesty's faithful subjects in all the Colonies from Nova Scotia to Georgia, "were pursuing every dutiful and peaceable measure, &c., his Excellency should proceed in a manner that bears so hostile an appearance." You then hold up to his Excellency "open hostilities and the horrors of a civil war;" and lastly, as the means of preventing this, "you hope he will discontinue the Fortifications in and about Boston; prevent any further invasions of private property; restrain the irregularities of the Soldiers, and give orders that the communication between Town and Country may be open, unmolested, and free." This, your letter, was no sooner delivered than, by your order or consent, as I presume, it was submitted to the perusal of every man, by being inserted in the publick newspapers.

Upon this give me leave to observe that the professed design of your appointment, which was to deliberate upon and propose to your constituents the best means for restoring peace and harmony between Great Britain and her Colonies; the violent inflammation to which you knew the passions of the people were then raised; the veneration with which you know they looked up to your body, however unconstitutional and void of legal power and authority it might be; the thorough knowledge which, from General Gage's long residence on the Continent, you must many of you have had of his wisdom, prudence, humanity, and love of justice; these all, I say, were weighty considerations which should have induced you to the greatest circumspection and caution in receiving complaints and adopting suspicions to the prejudice of so good a character, in stimulating to acts of rebellion a people already too much disposed blindly to rush into it, and thereby defeating the sole valuable purpose of your assembling. But the complaints upon which your letter were founded, were so entirely repugnant to the well known truths of facts, that had a letter appeared in print charging the Congress with the open breach of the whole decalogue it could not have occasioned more astonishment among your Members than that with which yours filled the minds of all in and about Boston. It is inconceivable how you could be so ignorant of the situation of things here at that time. The Suffolk Resolves, unhappily, you had seen, and (pardon the expression) in a paroxysm of epidemick madness you had fatally adopted. These, when cool reflection took place, told you, as plainly as if written with a sunbeam, or proclaimed in thunder from Sinai, that the voice of that leading County, as delivered by their Delegates, was for war. Previous to this, four thousand people had assembled at Cambridge, some in arms and others having lodged their arms at trifling distance ostensibly to inquire into the cause of grievances, but in reality to prevent, by force, the execution of Acts of Parliament. The transactions of that day I need not recapitulate; they are not done in a corner, but in the face of open day, with an éclat which must have penetrated the most secret recesses of the most obscure corner of British America. Before and after this, the design of a descent from the country for the purpose of attacking the small number of his Majesty's Troops then stationed at Boston was publicly talked of with an assurance which would have forced belief upon the most obstinate sceptick. Major Paddock's Field Pieces, with other Cannon, were secretly taken away and conveyed into the country; Powder, Ball, Flints, and Small Arms were purchased with unusual avidity, and a number of assailants, who were to make the attack, was publicly and universally set at thirty thousand. A Colonel *Putnam of

* EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK TO HIS FRIEND IN ANNAPOLIS, DATED SEPTEMBER 7, 1774.

Two days ago we were alarmed here by the arrival of an Express from a Colonel Putnam, of Connecticut, to the Committee of this City, with intelligence that a certain person was just come to his house from Boston, to acquaint him that an affray had happened between the People and the Troops, in which six of the former were killed; and that when said person left Boston, the Artillery from the Common, and Men-of-War, had been firing upon the Town all the night of the 1st of September. Colonel Putnam, upon this advice, alarmed the whole country, and requiring them to arm themselves and take the road to Boston, which they actually did, insomuch that the Post says the roads were covered with people.

However, I have the satisfaction to acquaint you that all was an infamous imposition to hasten matters, and consequently bring immediate destruction on a number of people. the real truth was only this, that General Brattle, of Cambridge, (seven miles from Boston) having wrote the Governour that the Militia of Medford, a place in that neighbourhood, had taken away their powder out of the Magazine there, and that only some of what belonged to the King was now remaining, the Governour sent a party of two hundred and fifty men, who took the King's powder and were conducting it to Boston, when upwards of three thousand men, unarmed, assembled on Cambridge Common to know the cause of seizing their powder; they were easily put right on this head, and dispersed, sending persons round the country to acquaint the people with the truth, and prevent their taking arms. In consequence of this, no steps have been taken at Boston besides reinforcing what is called the Neck Guard. On Monday, when these last advices left Boston, all was quiet.

BOSTON, September 29, 1774. - The following letter, dated September 12, from one of the best characters in a distant part of the Province to his friend in Boston, merits the attention of the publick: "I imagine that by this time you are made in a good degree acquainted "taken report that the Army was come out of Boston, murdering the people in the country, and taking from them their ammunition; the movements in Connecticut have been great - still greater in this Province; thousands of men have mustered, armed, and travelled, some on horseback, twenty, thirty, and forty miles. I apprehend that such mistakes, and the alarms occasioned by them, will be likely, by-and-by, to harden the people, so that there will be great danger of their not moving at all, or not in season, when there shall be real necessity of it. It appears to me, sir, therefore, absolutely necessary that there should be a number of vigilant, judicious, trusty, and faithful men appointed in Boston, another set of like men in Roxbury, another in Charlestown, and perhaps in other places, whose names shall be published to the country, whose particular duty and business it shall be to determine where the aid and assistance of the country shall be called for, and that the call and demand be always in writing, under the hands of such Committee, or some of them. and that they signify for what time the people should come prepared to stay, if the occasion will permit so much writing. Something of this sort, I humbly conceive, may be proper for the present groundless alarms, and that the people below, in case of emergencies, may have timely and necessary relief. But it seems to me most clear that there is an immediate necessity of a Provincial Congress or Convention, to settle more matters than I can now enumerate as the above. I am, &c."

POMFRET, October 3, 1774.

In Mr. Gaine's New-York Gazette, of the 12th of September, I am called upon to set the affair of my writing a letter to Captain Cleveland in a true light, which was wrote in consequence of intelligence brought me by Captain Keys, on the 3d of September last. Being then at home about my lawful business, said Keys came to my house about eleven o'clock, A. M., and informed me that an Express came from Boston to Oxford, who set out from thence on the preceding evening, and brought the alarming tidings contained in my letter herein inserted. The true state of the case, as I have since learned, is as follows: * * * * Wilcot, Esquire, of Oxford, hearing the news posted his son off towards Boston to learn the certainty of the report; and when he came to Grafton. about thirty-five miles from Boston, he heard a further confirmation of it, and returned immediately back to Oxford, when the said Wilcot, his father, sent him to Dudley, to Carter's Tavern, where one Mr. Clarke, of that Town, a trader, happened to be, and he came to his father, Captain Clarke, of Woodstock, who came to said Keys, and on his coming to me with the strongest assurances of the truth and reality of said report, I wrote the following letter to Captain Aaron Cleveland, of Canterbury:

"Mr. Keys this moment brought us the news that the Men-of-War and Troops began to fire upon the people last night at sunset, at Boatton, when a post was immediately sent off to inform the country, "He informed that the Artillery played all night; that the people were universally rallying as far as here, and desire all the assistance possible. This first commencement of hostilities was occasioned by the 'country' being robbed of their powder, from Boston as far as Farmington; and when found out, the persons who went to take the perpetrator of the horrid deed (who had fled to the Camp) were immediately fired upon; six of our number were killed the first shot, and a number wounded; and beg you will rally all the forces you can, and be upon the march immediately for the relief of Boston, and the people that way.

ISRAEL PUTNAM."

The title of "Lieutenant Colonel of the Connecticut Forces," I did

Connecticut, with a zeal, not according to knowledge, alarmed that and all the Southern Provinces, and the whole country was in motion. Under all these hostile appearances, what was it the duty of a good General to do? Was it not to secure his Troops in the best manner he could against the threatened invasion? This his Excellency General Gage did by repairing the old Fortifications at the entrance into the Town, and by throwing up an entrenchment still further from the Town, on each side of the common road. These works were manifestly not offensive against either Town or Country, but merely defensive against invaders, as every man, upon sight of them, must at once perceive, if he can distinguish the breach from the mouth of the Cannon. Besides these works there was at that time a train of Artillery in Boston; they were placed at the bottom of the Common, pointing as is usual towards the front of the encampment, which was on the side of the Common next to the Town. This circumstance the inhabitants, in a late Town Meeting, have alleged as an instance of the General's want of attention, when in his condescending answer to your letter, he said "not a single Cannon is pointed against the Town;" this is supporting their complaint by a miserable quibble; I wish I could say it implies nothing worse. I have been told that one sagacious gentleman observed, with great warmth, that it was strictly true "that every Cannon on the Neck was "pointed against the Town, because the bounds of the "Town extended half a mile beyond the lines," though, let it be observed, there are but two houses in that space; this likewise is a circumstance to which I am persuaded the General did not advert. By this kind of logick, if his Excellency had been charged with pointing his Cannon against Heaven, and it had happened that one of them had at any time been elevated more than forty-five degrees, this would have supported the charge.

The invasion of private property, charged upon the General, was equally novel and strange here with the complaint respecting the Fortifications. The only colourable pretext for it, that I know or have ever heard of; if this can be termed colourable, is the seizing of several pieces of Cannon, not assume in my said letter, it being inserted in the New-York Paper by the Printer's own capricious whim, or to gratify some of his votaries.

The above letter is as nearly conformable to the original as I can recollect, not having a copy of it; by comparing which with that inserted in said Gaine's Paper, the reader will perceive they somewhat differ. Whether the difference arises from a wrong copy sent forward by Captain Cleveland, or from some other cause, I am not able to determine. I hope the reader will make a proper allowance for incorrectness, when he considers it was wrote in great haste, and the author aimed at nothing but plain matters of fact, as they were delivered to him, not expecting said letter would have been transported through the Continent, subject to the critical inspection of the learned in every Town.

The writer in Mr. Gaine's Paper of September 10, who styles himself a New-York Freeholder, introduces his piece with a rhetorical picture of the horrors of a civil war; which, though I agree with him that it brings a train of evils along with it, yet when drove to a state of desperation by the oppressive hand of tyranny and the lawless violence of arbitrary power, what people on earth would not be justified, in the eye of right reason and common sense, for the resistance even to the shedding of blood, if the preservation of their liberties demanded it. After having said sufficient to alarm the fears of all those who have a pusillanimity of soul, or rather an infamous desire of screening their Jacobinish principles under the mask of dread of consequences, he ushers in this paragraph, with a sneer: "Colonel Putnam's famous letter, forwarded by special messengers to New-York and Philadelphia, and the "consequences it produced, are very recent and fresh in our memories." Then, after receiving some part of my letter, he proceeds, The "evident confusion of ideas in this letter betrays the state of the poor "Colonel's mind, whilst writing it, and shews he did not possess that "calm fortitude which is necessary to insure success in military enterprises." Paying all due deference to this author's learning, and his undoubted acquaintance with the rules of grammar and criticism, I would beg leave to ask him whether he does not betray a total want of the feelings of humanity, if he supposes, in the midst of confusion, when the passions are agitated with a real belief of thousands of their fellow-countrymen being slain, and the inhabitants of a whole City just upon the eve of being made a sacrifice by the rapine and fury of a merciless soldiery, and their City laid in ashes by the fire of the Ships-of-War, he or any one else could set down under the possession of a calmness of soul becoming a Roman Senator, and attend to all the rules of composition in writing a letter to make a representation of plain matters of fact, under the hieroglyphical similitude of tropes and figures?

He goes on to cast a censure upon the New England Colonies, saying the above mentioned report "has eventually made evident, past all "doubt, that many in the New England Colonies are disposed and ripe

"for the most violent measures." This is as gross a falsehood as the Boston alarm, and discovers the evident disposition of the author to cast an odium upon the patriotick sons of New England, whose arms are emblazoned with humanity; who wish to gain a redress of their grievances by the most pacifick and gentle means; but rather than submit to slavery, are determined to drench their swords in blood, and die gloriously, or live free! - Under whose banners, possibly, this jesuit not by the General, but by the Commander of one of his Majesty's ships, for being water-borne. They were intended to be smuggled into the country; but whether they were private property or not is unknown, as they were condemned in the Court of Admiralty for want of a claimant. I have heard mention made of the orders respecting the Merchants' Powder as another instance of this kind; it is very true before the defensive works at the Neck was finished, and while the threats of an invasion were warm, the General did, for a short time, very wisely and prudently prohibit the Keeper of the Magazine from delivering out any Powder - but this is, at most, only in the nature of an embargo, and is no more an invasion of private property than an embargo on ships is. These are all the pretended instances I have ever heard hinted at, in support of this part of the complaint. The suggestion of the irregularity of the Soldiers is truly astonishing; it is notorious, and is acknowledged by every one out of Town Meeting, that their regularity and decent inoffensive behaviour has been remarkably conspicuous. The Town has instanced only in the affair of one gentleman's horse; and this, I believe, happened since the date of your letter. But by what rule of justice does a single instance, in an individual, support a general charge against the whole body of the Soldiers? Would it be just to call the Town of Boston a den of thieves because one or two of the inhabitants have been guilty of theft? In short, Mr. President, it is a truth too glaring to be questioned, that his Excellency the General has constantly given the strictest orders, and attended with the most watchful eye, for the preservation of peace and good order, in consequence of which the good discipline and regular behaviour of the soldiery has been without parallel.

Such is the sandy foundation upon which you have adopted and published to the people suspicions of a plan to overthrow the liberties of America; upon which you have admonished General Gage, in the style of a Roman Emperor, to the Governour of a Province, hoping that he would discontinue the Fortifications, which he must have done at the price of his character and commissions, if not tical pretender to friendship for the liberties of America and the British Constitution, may be glad to take sanctuary, when the virtuous inhabitants of the Colony into which he fled from the Scotch rebellion, may find him out, and pass that act of outlawry against him, which every Jacobinish hypocrite deserves.

Now, I submit it to the determination of every candid unprejudiced reader, whether my conduct in writing the above mentioned letter, merits the imputation of imprudence, asserted by said writer; or whether they would have had me tamely sit down and been a spectator of the inhuman sacrifice of my friends and fellow-countrymen; or, in other words, Nero like, have sat down and fiddled, while I really supposed Boston was in flames; or exerted myself for their relief? And pray, in what easier way could I have proceeded, than in writing to one of the Militia Captains, (who I desired to forward the intelligence to the adjacent Towns,) when I really believed the story to be true? Which having done, I immediately mounted my horse and made the best of my way towards Boston, having only four gentlemen to accompany me. Having proceeded as far as Douglass, which is about thirty miles from my own house, I met Captain Hill, of that Town, with his Company, who had been down within about thirty miles of Boston, and had just returned. He informed me that the Alarm was false, and that the forces of Worcester and Sutton were upon their return. I then turned my course homewards, without loss of time, and reached my house on Sunday morning about sun-rising, taking care to acquaint the people on the road that they need not proceed any further. Immediately on my return I sent an express to Captain Cleveland, letting him know what intelligence I had heard, and desiring him to give the like information to the adjoining Towns to the Southward.

I believe the alarm was first occasioned by Mr. Benjamin Hallowell, who, going into Boston in a great fright, informed the Army that he had killed one man and wounded another, while they were pursuing him from Cambridge, and that the country were all in arms marching into Boston; which threw the military into great consternation; and they were quickly paraded and put into the most convenient posture of defence, in which situation they remained till next day. In the midst of this hurry and confusion, I believe a post was despatched into the country, but by whom, or to answer what purpose, I cannot tell; but what took place in consequence of it is evident. General Gage's apprehension of danger was so great, that he speedily began to fortify the entrance to the Town, to prevent a surprise from the enemy without.

From what has been said, I believe it will sufficiently appear that I was not the inventor of this alarm and I am told from good authority, that the people were in motion in the Northward part of the Massachusetts Government, even to the distance of one hundred miles from Boston, who were alarmed by an Express sent thither by the same Wilcot, above mentioned, before the news reached me which I think is enough to silence the ill-natured aspersions of every caviling Tory against my conduct, and make them, dog-like, draw in their tails and lop their ears, and skulk into some obscure hole or kennel and hide themselves from the contempt of the world. Having evidently discovered their attempt to stir up a spirit of animosity and disunion among the good people of the Colonies, I pray God it may prove abortive.

of his head; that he would restrain the irregularities of the Soldiers, which had been uniformly restrained almost to a miracle; and that he would give orders for opening the communication between the Town and Country, which had never been interrupted, but had been constantly kept open, unmolested, and free, for all his Majesty's subjects to pass and repass about their lawful business, as every townsman and countryman who had occasion to make the attempt can abundantly testify.

The consequence of your publishing to the world your misconceived opinions and censures, were the injuring a most amiable and worthy character with those whose remote distance from Boston deprived them of the means of knowing the truth respecting the General's conduct; (a character of which I would here, with pleasure, attempt a portrait, but that I know it would offend the delicacy of his sentiments;) increasing groundless, fears and jealousies in the minds of the people, and stimulating them to take up arms against his Majesty's Troops; for though this might be far from your intention, yet your authority over their passions was such, that your letter served to give sanction to those and, violent measures, to which they were before too much inclined. These were the evil effects of this your hasty measure; and I mention them, not because I take pleasure in a fruitless recrimination, but because I think it of the last importance that the people should be undeceived, and because you may possibly hereafter have it in your power, by retracting and rectifying your past errors, to prevent their future ill effects, and thereby in some measure atone for them. I am, sir, with perfect good will, your most obedient servant.

TO GENERAL GAGE.

Williamsburg, October 27, 1774.

SIR: The measures of the British Administration have of late been so infamous, that no man can guide them without being the subject of general censure. The domestic virtues of Lord North, and the religious graces of Lord Dartmouth, have not exempted them from the execrations of the publick. These facts have been examined by a new sect of philosophers at St. James's, and have been pronounced the truest touchstone of merit. The acclamations of millions are now looked upon as the breath of Faction, and the resentment of a Nation is esteemed the only reward, (to borrow a phrase from the Court) for doing one's duty. The times are forgotten when every breath that ascended from Britain called down blessings upon the heads of Burleigh and Chatham. Contemptæ, famæ, contemni virtutem. Publick virtue, and the love of fame, will always stand and fall together in a free country.

This introduction was necessary in an Address to your Excellency. You have learned since your graduation at the British St. Omer's, to prefer the approbation of your Sovereign to the applause of the whole of your fellow-subjects in America. You have substituted the former for the approbation of your conscience, and you have branded the just censures of the latter with the name of calumny. Give me leave, sir, to examine the nature of this vice, and to inquire how far you have a right to charge your loss of character on it.

Calumny is a tax, imposed, by a few bad men only, upon extraordinary merit. The influence of a party has sometimes made it general; but in such cases it is always transitory. A few strictures upon your character and conduct will show how far you are entitled to the honour of suffering from this cause.

You are so far from possessing any extraordinary merit, that you have defeated the designs of your friends, who attempted to supply your want of the qualities of a Governor and a General, by ascribing to you the simple virtues of a good man. You have not been condemned by a transitory faction, but by the permanent, unbiased suffrages of every freeman in America. By assuming to yourself, therefore, those credentials of merit, which justice and wisdom derive from calumny, you commit a more criminal act of forgery than ever was expiated at Tyburn.

You have received many flattering addresses since your accession to your Government. Permit me to furnish your Excellency with a medium, through which I beg you would read them. The art of embalming dead bodies was contrived only to prevent them from putrefaction. Flattery serves the same purposes upon living characters. It collects the scattered rays of human depravity into a focus. the most flagitious crimes appear like holiness, when compared with the offerings which it has kindled at the shrine of arbitrary power. I blush for my country, when I reflect that she has discovered in her infancy a relation to her fœderal head by signs of this original corruption. Men have been found, even in Boston, who have absolved a Bernard and an Hutchinson. The same men have extolled your moderation and equity. They have discovered an olive branch in your mouth. Nay, they have gone further, They have equalled in maturity of corruption the sycophants in the style of Westminster. They have ascribed to your Excellency abilities.

It is to no purpose to say, that some of those men are persons of the first rank and fortune in your Government. Men of such characters were the first on the list of defection in the United Provinces. I honour publick virtue in a rich man, as much as I do piety in a soldier; but I never harbour the idea of America being enslaved without fancying I see the badges of our subjection sealed with the names of men who have been fattened upon her breasts. This idea is at all times a fugitive one; for since the spirit of liberty has gone forth among our Farmers, I no longer wish to pry into the decrees of Heaven. I see already transcribed, in the annals of our history, the Americans are an invincible people.

The Dominion of Virginia has given the signal to the inhabitants of Massachusetts Bay for resistance and reprisal; and it is not because your iniquities have not exceeded the price of their blood that they have not made the severity of military discipline necessary in your Government. Their allegiance to the Crown of Great Britain borders upon enthusiasm; but should you provoke them by another illegal Proclamation, I tremble to think of the consequences. The savages who chased you on the banks of the Ohio, were gentle as lambs, compared with men bereaved of their liberties. You will find the strength of the British Lion has not been impaired by his couching a century or two in the woods of America.

The Americans have hitherto viewed you with pity, as part of that unconscious machine which was set to work by some invisible hands to destroy the British Constitution in America. But you have lately discovered your relation to human nature, by showing that you possess the principle of revenge. The Sovereign of the British Empire, the Arbiter of Europe, and the Neptune of the Ocean called forth the wisdom and power of both Houses of Parliament, together with the flower of his Troops, to deprive a Merchant in Boston of his property in a wharf. As humble in your imitation of his Majesty's resentment, as of his Royal Proclamation for encouraging virtue and piety, you have chosen the same man as the object of your revenge. You have deprived him of his company of Cadets, and have condescended to assign a reason for it, which will be ratified at St. James's:

"Colonel Hancock has used me ill, and has not treated me with that respect that is due to the Governour of the Province; therefore I dismissed him. I will not be treated ill by Colonel Hancock, nor any other man in the Province."

Could the truth of our reflections upon our Sovereign be washed away, tears of blood should not be wanting for that purpose. I cannot, however, agree with the majority of his subjects, in attributing to him a single wish to enslave his Empire. Tyrants have always made pioneers of their Ministers, but the present Ministry have placed our Sovereign upon the forlorn hope. By investing him with a discretionary power to repeal the Boston Port Bill, they have staked his popularity in America, his Revenues, and his Crown upon the success of a sham engagement. Let not our suffering countrymen in Boston call the wisdom, justice, and lenity of our King in question. The power of prolonging your misery was forced upon him by his Ministers. Let your imprecations for vengeance fall only upon the heads of Bute, Mansfield, and North. Mercy to such wretches would transform herself into a common prostitute. Let nothing satiate your rage till the scaffold overflows with their blood. The garden of Liberty in England stands in need of such manure. Patriots, American Patriots, shall spring up spontaneously from it.

JOHN DICKINSON TO ARTHUR LEE.

Philadelphia. October 27, 1774.

DEAR SIR: Yesterday the Congress broke up. You will immediately know their Proceedings from publications.

The Colonists have now taken such grounds that Great Britain must relax, or inevitably involve herself in a civil war, likely in all human probability to overwhelm her with a weight of calamities, in comparison of which, the contentions between the Houses of York and Lancaster, or the distractions of the last century, were gentle misfortunes.

A determined and unanimous resolution animates this Confined firmly and faithfully to support the common cause to the utmost extremity, in this great struggle for the blessing of liberty - blessing that can alone render life worth holding

I grieve for the fate of a brave and generous Nation, plunged by a few profligate men into such scenes of unmerited and inglorious distress. Let her rouse her noble spirit, be true to herself, and she cannot fail of being true to us; Let her not so far adopt the schemes of base yet visionary men and knaves, that she may think her dignity concerned to maintain the projects of those whom her justice commands her to punish.

Give up the Butes, Mansfields, Norths, Bernards, and Hatchinsons, whose falsehoods and misrepresentations have inflamed the people; call not their cause the cause of Great Britain; throw all errors and occasions of dissatisfactions on their guilty heads. A new Ministry of such a character that England and America both can trust, may do great things; especially if a considerable change be made at the next general election. Why should Nations meet with hostile eyes, because villains and ideots have acted like villains and ideots?

I wish for peace ardently; but must say, delightful as it is, it will come more grateful by being unexpected. The first act of violence on the part of Administration in America, or the attempt to reinforce General Gage this winter or next year, will put the whole Continent in arms, from Nova Scotia to Georgia.

May God of his infinite mercy grant a happy event to these afflicting agitations, Your friend,

JOHN DICKINSON,

P, S, It is suspected here that a design is regularly prosecuted by the Ministry, to make his Majesty dethrone himself, by the calamities and convulsions his reign is likely to bring on his whole people. Please to inform me what is thought on this point in England.

JOHN DICKINSON TO JOSIAH QUINCY, JUN.

Fairhill, October 28, 1774.

MY DEAR SIR: I should have answered your last letter before you left Boston, if I had not imagined from what you said in it, that you must have sailed before it could have reached that place.

I now congratulate you on the hearty union of all America, from Nova Scotia to Georgia, in the common cause. The particulars you are no doubt acquainted with.

The Congress broke up the day before yesterday; and if it be possible, the return of the Members into the several Colonies will make the people still more firm. The most peaceable Provinces are now animated; and a civil war is unavoidable, unless there be a quick change of British measures. The usual events, no question, will take place if that happens victories and defeats. But what will be the final consequence; If she fails, immediate distress; if not, ruin; if she conquers, destruction at last. But from the best judgment I can form, she will not wait long for her fate. Several European Powers, it is probable, will fall on as soon as she is entangled with us. If they should not, what can she effect at three thousand miles distance against at least four hundred thousand freemen fighting "pro aris et fads?"

I cannot but pity a brave and generous Nation thus plunged in misfortune by a few worthless persons: But it may be said, how can she retract with dignity in the present position of affairs? I answer, her dignity is not at all concerned, unless it be to punish those who have abused and betrayed her into measures inconsistent with her welfare. Is a Nation bound in honour to support every and or villainous step of a Ministry? It is mean to persist in errors because we have committed them. But what is to be said of those who talk of asserting their own dignity, by vindicating the errors of others?

The present cause is that of Bute, Mansfield, North, Bernard, Hutchinson, &c., not of Great Britain. Let her renounce their detestable projects, which point at her as their ultimate object, and reconcile herself to her children, while their minds are capable of reconciliation.

"Oh! for a warning voice," to rouse them to conviction of this important truth, that the reconciliation depends upon the passing moment, and that the opportunity will, in a short time, be irrecoverably past, as the days beyond the flood.

Every thing may yet be attributed to the misrepresentations and mistakes of Ministers; and universal peace be established throughout the British world, only by a general acknowledgment of this truth, that half a dozen men are fools or knaves. If their character for ability and integrity is to be maintained by wrecking the whole Empire, Monsieur Voltaire may write an addition to the chapter on the subject of "Little things producing great events."

As to your complaint against an expression of mine in a late letter, know, dear sir, I wrote in agonies of mind for my brethren in Boston. I trembled lest something might have happened which I could not only forgive, but applaud, but which might have been eagerly and basely seized by others, as a pretence for deserting them. This was the sense of men in Philadelphia, the most devoted to them; and under this apprehension, we agreed to make use of the strongest expressions.

May the Father of Mercies bestow every blessing upon you, is the fervent prayer of, my dear sir, your faithful and affectionate friend,

JOHN DICKINSON.

JAMES LOVELL TO JOSIAH QUINCY, JUN.

Boston, October 28, 1774

MY DEAR SIR: You will see by the papers, that immediately after you sailed, a Proclamation was issued to discharge the Members from attendance upon that General Court, for which precepts, you know, had been given out. They judiciously slighted sticking to Charter-rule; and upon finding Mr. Gage did not attend to his proper duty, they resolved themselves into a Provincial Congress, to meet at Concord to-morrow. They will be strenuous, I expect, in pressing the General to desist from his fortifications. Yet, what can he do? He cannot declare in plain English, that he is only striving to make the minds of his officers and men easy, and yet I believe that to be the truth and the whole truth.

I told you at parting, that if I was deceived in my countrymen, and found they turned out poltrons, I would not inform you of it, though such was your request. Let not that speech detract from my credit, when I tell you they rise every day in character, his become a downright task for the warmest patriots of our Town and County to confine the spirit of the other Counties to an attention to the causes, rather than to the executors of our wrongs. I am really pained at finding that the wickedness of Ministerial conduct has brought the Province so generally to make the idea of an engagement between fellow-subjects so familiar to their minds. How would such a thought have shocked us all a few years ago! But the insolent appearance of the works on the Neck has roused the inclinations of the vigorous country youth to play over again the Niagara game of filling trenches with round bundles of hay, under which they advanced securely. The folly and weakness of the works may easily be proved to be fully equal to the insolence. Our besiegers, sensible how much nature is against them, talk of employing constantly great numbers of their soldiery to break the ice of the two Bays; little knowing, however, what mighty reparation will be made in only one of our freezing nights; and little considering, also, the non-importance of its being broken in Bays which are a dead flat upon every ebb, I wish again and again that the temptations to chastise the insult were not so glaring; as the Provincial Congress, with all their efforts to confine the inland spirits solely to the defensive, will surely fail, upon notice of Ministerial determination to continue hostile. Nothing, I think, but a speedy knowledge of a change of measures in England, can prevent a capital winter stroke. They press us to leave the Town in the strongest manner. Many are for doing it, and others for sending off their most valuable articles, to be in readiness.

Our friend, Molineux, overplied in the good cause, was last evening laid to rest, where the incomparable Mayhew and the brother patriots, Dana and Thatcher, await the morning of a glorious resurrection! and where you and I had nearly gone to rest before him. May it not prove unimportant to ourselves and to the publick that a gracious Providence has been pleased to mark down for us some later date.

I am informed that a letter was yesterday read in the Provincial Congress, from Mr. S. Adams, purporting that things went in the Continental Congress without any motion of our Members, as perfectly to his liking as if he were sole director; and that in a very few days he doubted not his friends here would receive the most satisfactory intelligence.

Though the Kingfisher has orders to sail, yet, the weather being bad, I had thoughts of risking the chance, that I may gain some further light concerning this matter; but finding a general suspicion of the insecurity of conveyance by a King's ship, I am led to think most of your friends will wait other opportunity. I therefore close for the present, that you may not think yourself neglected, in consequence of what I think an ill-grounded suspicion.

We have London news so late as September 2d. If the people of England, our fellow-subjects, will cease obstinately to shut their eyes to the justice of our cause, we ask no more; conviction must be the consequence of a bare admission of light. God preserve you, my friend.

I remain your friend and obliged humble servant,

JAMES LOVELL.

GENERAL C. LEE TO THE DUKE OF * * * *

Philadelphia, October 29, 1774.

MY LORD: The noble part your Lordship has acted in opposing all the diabolical measures of our accursed misrulers, has encouraged me to address these few lines to you. Men who are embarked in the glorious cause of Liberty, should waive all ceremony; I shall, therefore, neither trouble you nor myself with making apologies. Enclosed I send your Grace a copy of the different Resolves of the Congress, (though it is probable you may have received them before,) their Address to the People of England; to the People of English America; to the People of Canada, and to the King. They argue so irresistibly, and they breathe so noble an ardour, that if there is the least understanding remaining in your Island, and the least virtue latent, the former must be convinced, and the latter roused to action: What could put it into our blockheads' heads, that these people could be tricked out of their liberties by their cunning, or bullied by any force which they can send over? What devil of nonsense could instigate any man of General Gage's understanding to concur in bringing about this delusion? I have lately, my Lord, run through almost the whole Colonies, from the South to the North. - I have conversed with all orders of men, from the first estated gentlemen to the poorest planters, and cannot express my astonishment at the good sense and general knowledge which pervades the whole; but their elevated principles, their enthusiasm in the cause of freedom and their country, is still more admirable.

I think I should not be guilty of exaggeration, in asserting that there are two hundred thousand strong bodied active yeomanry, ready to encounter all hazards and dangers; ready to sacrifice all considerations, rather than surrender a tittle of the rights which they have derived from God and their ancestors. But this is not all; they are not like the yeomanry of other countries, unarmed and unused to arms; but they are all furnished and all expert in the use. They want nothing but some arrangement, and this they are now bent on establishing. Virginia, Rhode-Island, and Carolina, are forming corps; Massachusetts Bay has long had a sufficient number instructed to become instructive to the rest; even this Quakering Province is following the example. I was present at a review of some of their Companies, at Providence, in Rhode-Island, and really never saw any thing more perfect. In short, unless the banditti at Westminster speedily undo every thing they have done, their Royal Paymaster will hear of reviews and manœuvres not quite so entertaining as those he is presented with in Hyde Park and Wimbledon Common.

I must now, my dear Lord, hasten to the main purpose of this letter. As your Lordship is justly considered as one of the most strenuous advocates and patrons of this country, and one of the most active asserters of the rights of mankind, I must beg leave to propose to you, what, had you adverted to, I am persuaded you would have already adopted; it is to set on foot a subscription for a relief, or an indemnification for the brave sufferers of Boston. These people's sufferings and merit are so transcendent, that men less animated with sentiment and publick spirit than your Lordship, would exert themselves in their cause. A Town consisting of thirty thousand people, perhaps of more ease and affluent circumstances than any other Town in the world, reduced at one stroke to beggary and wretchedness; every individual of them deprived of the means of supplying themselves with a morsel of bread, but what is furnished to them by the precarious hand of charity; to see a whole people struggling with the extreme of distress, not only magnanimously, but cheerfully, rather than comply with the wishes of brutal tyrants, and thereby admit precedents injurious to mankind and posterity, is, I say, a strain of virtue almost too bright for modern eyes to gaze at, and must fill every breast not totally dead to sentiment and feeling, with rage, indignation, horror, and compassion. But they went further; they made a formal offer to the Congress to abandon their Town, with their wives, children, aged and infirm - throw themselves on the charity of the inhabitants of the country, or build huts in the woods, and never revisit their native walls, until re-established in the full possession of their rights and liberties. Your Lordship will see the Congress' Resolve on this head. These instances, I am sure, render unnecessary any thing I could say to incite a man of your Grace's stamp to exertions in their favour; or, more properly, in favour and support of human virtue. I should be very happy in receiving a couple of lines in answer; it must be directed for me to Richard Penn, Esquire, at Philadelphia.

I am; my Lord, your Grace's true friend, admirer, and humble servant,

C. LEE.

To his Grace the Duke of * * * * *

EXTRACT OF LETTERS FROM THE HONOURABLE GOVERNOR GAGE TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH, DATED BOSTON, OCTOBER 30, AND NOVEMBER 2, 1774.

I transmit your Lordship a number of Resolves of the Provincial Congress, with some passed by the Continental Congress at Philadelphia, relative to the proceedings of this Province, which they have, in too great a degree, supported, though in some instances deceived by them. Expresses are frequently going from the one to the other, and they are very secret in both; and from what has transpired, there is opposition in both. Our Provincial Congress has appeared to be a good deal puzzled to determine to what lengths they should go and have had something of moment in agitation, which, by what has dropped from some of the Members, relates to the embodying about fifteen thousand men, and appointing four persons to command them, under the direction of a Committee; others deny it; so that time must clear up the truth of this rumour, which must be known soon. Common talk gives out that this body is to be ready at a moment's warning, and to be supported by this and the neighbouring Provinces.

The people would cool, was not means taken to keep up their enthusiasm. Truths or falsehoods equally serve the purpose; for they are so besotted to one side, that they will not believe or even hear what is said to convince them of their errors. This Congress made an effort to get all the inhabitants of this Town to leave it and retire to the country; but it was found to be an impracticable measure. Many individuals are gone, and others going through fear, as they give out, of being apprehended. So your Lordship will perceive some of the most obnoxious are in the number of those who mine.

From the union of the Provinces, and the similarity of their measures, I have not been without apprehensions that our supplies of provisions might be stopped, and gave early notice to the Contractors here to lay in large quantities in time. They assure me, that from the quantity they have collected, and the measures they have taken to procure more, that there is no danger of being in want; but if any thing more extraordinary happens, we shall not be able to procure provisions from any of the Colonies.

Major General Haldimand has joined me with the Forty-seventh Regiment, and three Companies of the Eighteenth, from New-York, and has put a large quantity of the most useful stores at that place, and which it became proper to secure, on board the transports; a good deal, but what would be of least service, still remains under the care of five Companies of the Eighteenth Regiment.

November 2, 1774.

The King's schooner the St. Lawrence, which conveys this despatch, being detained, I transmit your Lordship the last Resolves which this Provincial Congress has published; after which they adjourned to the 23d instant; and I learn that their secret determination is to assemble the old Council at their next meeting, in order to form as complete a Government as they can, and to have, as they say, a vast army in the field in the spring, at the Continental expense. I also transmit your Lordship a copy of another Message to me, in answer to mine to their first Message, which has been sent to your Lordship.

They have a particular manner in perverting and turning every thing to their purposes. A Regiment was encamped about a mile from Salem, two Companies of which marched out as far, perhaps, as some straggling houses, but was ordered back, and never came within a quarter of a mile of the place where the people were assembled; nor was there any occasion for them. No private property has been touched, unless they mean an order to the Store-keeper not to deliver out any Powder from the Magazine, where the Merchants deposite it, which I judged a very necessary and prudent measure in the present circumstances, as well as removing the Ammunition from the Provincial Arsenal at Cambridge.

They make the greatest handle of the works at the entrance of the Town, which I have very great reason to believe have obstructed some designs they had in view, and which I cannot doubt they have had it in deliberation to attack, but carried against the movers of the project.

The Officers of the Militia have, in most places, been forced to resign their commissions, and the men choose their officers, who are frequently made and unmade; and I shall not be surprised, as the Provincial Congress seems to proceed higher and higher in their determinations, if persons should be authorized by them to grant commissions, and assume every power of a legal Government, for their edicts are implicitly obeyed throughout the country.

The Tenth and Fifty-second Regiments are arrived and arriving in the Harbour. On their landing, I shall be able, from the whole, to form force of near three thousand men, exclusive of a Regiment for the defence of Castle William.

Your Lordship Will doubtless receive many accounts Of the situation of this Continent. This Province is without Courts of Justice or Legislature - the whole country in a ferment; many parts of it, I may say, actually, in arms and ready to unite. Letters from other Provinces tell us they are violent everywhere; and that no decency is observed in any place but New-York. Great Britain had never more occasion for wisdom, firmness, and unanimity,

JOSIAH QUINCY TO JOSIAH QUINCY, JUN.,
Braintree, October 31, 1774.

MY DEAR SON: It is now four weeks since you sailed, and if my prayers are heard and the petition of them granted, your health is restored, your voyage comfortable, and your arrival safe; news that would be almost as joyful and reviving to your aged father, as to hear that, through your mediation, peace and harmony were restored between the parent state and her injured and oppressed children upon this Continent. I have not, nor shall forget to inform you of facts as they have taken, or may take place, since you left us; but my retired situation will not permit my gratifying you so much as I should otherwise be glad to do.

All the Tories and some of the Whigs resent your clandestine departure. Many of the former say, that as soon as your arrival is known, you will be apprehended and secured. Some say you are gone to Holland, and from thence to the South of France. Others say the General Congress have appointed and commissioned you their agent at the Court of Great Britain, and that you had your credentials and instructions from them before you went away. Your friends say your principal motive is the recovery of your health, which if Providence should please to restore, they rest assured of your best endeavours to procure a redress of the grievances, and a speedy removal of the intolerable burdens, with which your native country is and has been long oppressed.

God Almighty grant, if your life and health are spared, that you may succeed in every respect.

When in Town I found two political productions, "An Essay on the Constitutional Power of Great Britain over the Colonies in America;" and "A Letter from Lord Lyttleton to Lord Chatham, on the Quebec Bill." They are each of them esteemed masterly productions by their respective partisans. Before this reaches you, I doubt not you will have received the former from its author. * I regret his allowing Great Britain a revenue from the Colonies, while she persists in her claim of an exclusive trade with them, which appears to me to be an overbalance for all the protection she has or can afford them, especially when it is considered that all the profits resulting from the immense extent of territory ceded to her at the Treaty of Paris, remains solely to her. At the same time, we are restrained from the profitable Whale and Cod fisheries in the Bay of St. Lawrence, and the Straits of Belle Isle, which we formerly enjoyed without interruption. If I am not greatly mistaken, there is not a single argument in Lord Lyttleton's letter, whereby he endeavours to prove the justice, wisdom, benevolence, and policy of Parliament in indulging the Canadians with the French laws, which will not much more forcibly conclude in behalf of the Colonies, that their respective Constitutions and Laws should remain inviolate, and the rights and privileges secured by them, upon no pretence whatever, to be abridged. Where then is the wisdom, benevolence, and justice of Parliament? What, besides low-cunning and left-handed policy, could induce them to their past and present violent measures, which must ultimately be as injurious to them as they are, or can be, to us. But his Lordship in the close of his letter tells us "it is necessary to conciliate the affections of the Canadians, and "thereby induce them to assist Administration in coercing "America!" Read this passage, attend to the meaning of it, and then, if you can, suppress your indignation. What! have we Americans spent so much of our blood and treasure in aiding Britain to conquer Canada, that Britons and Canadians may now subjugate us? Forbid it Heaven!

Is this the "policy," which he recommends as "best calculated to unite natural-born, and adopted subjects, in "one common bond of interest, affection and duty?" But I must quit the subject.

I have filled iny paper, and have only room to add the affectionate, regards of your family, joined to those of your unalterably fond parent,

JOSIAH QUINCY.

THE DEPUTY GOVERNOUR OF PENNSYLVANIA TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

Philadelphia, October 31, 1774.

MY LORD: I have the honour to acquaint your Lordship that the Congress of Delegates from the several Colonies dissolved themselves on the 26th instant, and have just published the principal part of their proceedings. I therefore take the earliest opportunity of transmitting you herewith two printed copies of them; and I am informed, that, besides what is contained in these extracts, they have framed a Petition to his Majesty, but not having had the least connection or intercourse with any of the Members of the Congress, I am entirely unacquainted with its contents, or with any other part of their transactions which they have not thought fit to make publick.

I am, &c.

JOHN PENN.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN AT BLADENSBURG, MD., TO HIS BROTHER IN GLASGOW, DATED NOVEMBER 1, 1774.

I wrote you by the Clyde three days ago, and now send you what news I have beard since. The Province of Virginia is raising one Company in every County, which will make a body of six thousand men. They are all independent; and so great is the ambition to get among them, that men who served as commanding officers last war, and have large fortunes, have offered themselves as private men. This Province has taken the hint, and has begun to raise men in every County also; and to the Northward they have large bodies, capable of acquitting themselves with honour in the field. Since the burning the ship at Annapolis, the common sort seem to think they may now commit any outrage they please; some of them told the Merchants yesterday, that if they would not sell them Goods, they would soon find a way to help themselves. A certain Merchant at Georgetown, ten miles from this, imported from London, on his own account, a large cargo of Goods this Fall, and thought to sell them higher than common. We understand that on Saturday a Committee is to examine them, and should they find the advance too much, they say, he shall, and must sell them lower. What think you of this land of Liberty, when a man's property is at the mercy of any one that will lead the mob!

EARL OF DARTMOUTH TO THE GOVERNOURS OF THE COLONIES.

Whitehall, November 2, 1774.

SIR: The Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations having complained that they are frequently put under great difficulties from the Governours of his Majesty's Colonies neglecting to transmit, at regular periods, Returns of the state of their respective Councils, I am commanded by the King to signify to you his Majesty's pleasure that you do regularly, every three months, or oftener, transmit to their Lordships a list of the names of the Council of the Province under your Government, noting such as are absent, for what time they have been absent, and with what license.

I am, sir, your most obedient humble servant,
DARTMOUTH.

EARL OF DARTMOUTH TO LIEUTENANT GOVERNOUR COLDEN.

Whitehall, November 2, 1774.

SIR: I have received your letter of the 7th of September, and have laid it before the King.

From the accounts you give of the characters and tempers of the five gentlemen appointed by the City of New-York to be their Delegates to the General Congress, I should suppose they would not be likely either to advise or support rash and violent measures; but there is but too much reason to fear that the majority of Delegates are of a different complexion.

In my letter to you of the 7th September, I acquainted you with the information I had received of large quantities of Gunpowder, exported from Holland to North America, and I mentioned to you a particular instance of that dangerous commerce; I make no doubt that you have, in consequence thereof, done every thing in your power to detect and punish such practices; but I am nevertheless again called upon to exhort you to be more than commonly attentive to that object, as every day almost furnishes some fresh intelligence of the Americans purchasing large quantities of Arms and Ammunition in the different Ports of Europe.

I am, sir, &c.,
DARTMOUTH,
Lieutenant Governour Colden.

PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL

At a Council held at Philadelphia, on Wednesday, 2d November 1774:

Present: The Honourable John Penn, Esquire, Governour, Richard Peters, James Tilghman, Benjam. Chew, Andrew Allen, Esquires.

Whereas on the Petition of sundry Freeholders and other Inhabitants of the County of Northampton, an Order of Council was issued on the 6th of April, 1771, directing six persons therein named, or any five of them, to view and lay out a Road from the North side of the Blue Mountain, in the said County of Northampton, to Wyoming, in the most convenient and direct courses and to make a return of the courses and distances, with a draught of the said Road, into the Provincial Secretary's Office within six months from the date thereof: And whereas another Petition from the Inhabitants of the said County of Northampton hath this day been presented to this Board, setting forth that the six persons named in the Order above mentioned, have neglected to view and lay out the Road therein directed, and therefore praying that six other persons may be appointed to view and lay out the aforesaid Road from the North side of the Blue Mountain, in the said County of Northampton; it is therefore ordered that Simon Heller, Casper Dull, Jonas Hartzall, Adam Hubler, Abraham Labar, and Adam Joke, do view and lay out a publick Road, or King's highway from the North side of the Blue Mountain, at a place called the Wind Gap, in the most direct and convenient courses, to Wyoming, so that the communication between the said places may be rendered as safe, easy, and convenient for carriages to pass as the nature of the country will admit, and to make a return of the courses and distances, with a draught of the said Road, into the Provincial Secretary's Office, in order to be confirmed if the same shall be approved.

The Governour laid before the Board a Letter which he received yesterday, by the Packet, from the Right Honourable the Earl of Dartmouth, one of his Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, which was read, and follows in these words, viz:

Whitehall, August 26, 1774.

SIR: It having been represented to the King that the Government of Pennsylvania has taken a resolution to extend its jurisdiction up to the line settled by Commissioners between that Province and Maryland, although the Guardians of the heir of Lord Baltimore have declared their incapacity, in point of law, to concur in a ratification of that line, and, consequently their inability to take the like step on their part; and it being apprehended that such a partial extension of jurisdiction may have the effect to disturb the peace of the King's subjects settled on the Frontiers of both Provinces, and may occasion violence and bloodshed, I am commanded by the King to signify to you his Majesty's pleasure, that you do desist from issuing any orders for extending the jurisdiction of Pennsylvania beyond those places where it has been hitherto usually exercised until the present difficulty on the part of Maryland shall be removed, or until his Majesty's further pleasure be known.

I am, sir, your most obedient humble servant,
DARTMOUTH.

Deputy Governour Penn.

Which Letter being duly considered, the Governour, in compliance with his Majesty's pleasure thereto-signified, issued he following Proclamation, viz:

By the Honourable JOHN PENN, Esquire, Governour and Commander-in-chief of the Province of PENNSYLVANIA, and Counties of NEW-CASTLE, KENT, and SUSSEX, on DELAWARE:

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas I have just received a letter from the Right Honourable the Earl of Dartmouth, one of his Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, informing me that "it had been represented to his Majesty that the Government of "Pennsylvania had taken a resolution to extend its jurisdiction up to the line settled by Commissioners between "that Province and Maryland, although the Guardians "of the heir of Lord Baltimore had declared their incapacity, in point of law, to concur in a ratification of "that line and, consequently, their inability to take the like step on their part; and it being apprehended that such a partial extension of jurisdiction might have the effect to disturb the peace of the King's subjects settled on the Frontiers of both Provinces, and might occasion violence and bloodshed, he was commanded by the King to signify to me his Majesty's pleasure, that I should desist from issuing any orders for extending the jurisdiction of Pennsylvania beyond those places where it had been usually exercised, until the present difficulty on the part of Maryland shall be removed, or until his Majesty's further pleasure shall be known." I have, therefore, in compliance with his Majesty's commands, thought proper to issue this, my Proclamation, hereby strictly commanding and enjoining all Magistrates, Sheriffs, and other Officers of Justice, to desist from exercising the jurisdiction of the Government of Pennsylvania or the Counties of New-Castle, Kent, and Sussex, on Delaware, beyond those places where the same hath been usually exercised, until the present difficulty on the part of Maryland shall be removed, or until his Majesty's pleasure shall be known in the premises, any thing in any former Proclamation contained to the contrary notwithstanding.

Given under my hand and the great seal of the Province of Pennsylvania, at Philadelphia, the second day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-four, and in the fifteenth year of his Majesty's reign.

JOHN PENN.

By his Honour's command,

JOSEPH SHIPPEN, Jun., Secretary.
GOD save the King.

November 3, 1774. - The Governour this day sent by the Packet a Letter to the Earl of Dartmouth, one of his Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, in answer to his Lordship's Letter of the 26th of August last:

Philadelphia, November 3, 1774.

MY LORD: I have just had the honour of your Lordship's letter, No. 5, of the 26th of August last, signifying his Majesty's commands "that I should desist from issuing any orders for extending the jurisdiction of Pennsylvania up to the line settled by Commissioners between that Province and Maryland, until the present difficulty, arising from the minority of the heir of the late Lord Baltimore, shall be removed, or until his Majesty's further pleasure be known." I am to inform your Lordship that before the receipt of your letter I had issued the enclosed Proclamation for exercising the jurisdiction of this Province up to the boundary lines run and marked out by Commissioners under the authority of the Proprietaries of Pennsylvania and Maryland, in consequence of Articles of Agreement executed by them for that purpose, and the decrees of the Lord Chancellor for the specifick execution of those Articles. As the Commissioners had completely finished the ruling and marking the lines in the life time of the late Lord Baltimore, and the Articles of Agreement between the Proprietaries for settling the boundary, as well as the proceedings of the Commissioners, had, on the joint petition of the respective Proprietaries, been ratified by his Majesty in Council, I conceived that a final end and period had thereby been put to a controversy which had been agitated for ninety years, at an immense expense to the parties, to the great detriment of the settlement of this infant country, and that nothing was wanting to validate or enforce a transaction so solemnly established. But I was not induced, my Lord, to take this step solely on motives founded on the interests of my family. The people living between the ancient temporary line of jurisdiction and that lately settled and marked by the Commissioners, were in a lawless state. Murders and the most outrageous transgressions of law and order were committed with impunity in those places. In vain did persons injured apply to the Government of Maryland for protection and redress. In this situation they have of late repeatedly petitioned to be taken under the protection of this Province, into which they fell by the lines run under the Articles and Decrees. Apprehensive lest some disturbances might possibly arise by my issuing an ex parte Proclamation for extending the jurisdiction, I applied to the Government of Maryland to join with me therein, and I deferred the measure till I found there was no hopes of a compliance with my request. And so far, my Lord, has this partial extension of the jurisdiction been from having the apprehended effect of disturbing the peace of the King's subjects on the Frontiers, and occasioning violence and bloodshed, that it has had a quite contrary tendency, and, as I have been well informed, has quieted the disturbances there, and given universal satisfaction to the people. His Majesty's commands, however, it is my inclination, as well as duty, on this and every other occasion, strictly, and without hesitation, to obey. I have, therefore, issued a Proclamation, a copy of which I enclose your Lordship, to counteract that lately published, and shall take no further steps in the affair, unless his Majesty, on this state of facts, and reconsidering the matter, shall be graciously pleased to permit me. I have the honour to be, with great respect, your Lordship's most obedient humble servant,

JOHN PENN.

To the Right Honourable the Earl of Dartmouth, one of his Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, Whitehall.

ARTHUR ST. CLAIR TO GOVERNOUR PENN.

Hanna's Town, November 2, 1774.

DEAR SIR: A hasty opportunity just offers, whilst we are in an adjourned court, and as the person is returning, I will beg the favour that you will send us the last Taxation and Insolvent Acts, neither of which we have, and have occasion for at this present juncture, and our Board cannot do business without the Taxation Act.

We have no news of Lord Dunmore that can be depended on since his departure from Hockhocking for the Shawanese Towns, but a report prevails that Colonel Lewis has been attacked at the mouth of Kenhawa, and has one hundred and twenty men killed and wounded, notwithstanding which he got the better of the Indians.

I hope I shall soon be able to send you some authentick intelligence of the operations of the Virginia Troops, and request you will excuse this scrawl, which I am obliged to make surrounded by a number of not the best bred men you ever saw, one of whom is peeping over my shoulder.

I am, dear sir, your very humble and most obedient servant,

AR. ST. CLAIR.

N. B. The Proclamation has done some good already.

Philadelphia, November 2, 1774.

TO THE FREEHOLDERS AND ELECTORS OF THE CITY AND COUNTY OF PHILADELPHIA.

As the Congress, in support and for the preservation of American liberty, have formed Resolves, and entered into an Association, in behalf of themselves and the Colonies they represented, and have recommended the appointment of Committees in the several Towns and Counties, for carrying the same into execution, we the Committee chosen for the City and County of Philadelphia, on the 18th of June last, having to the best of our abilities executed the trust then reposed in us, beg leave to recommend to our constituents the appointment of a new Committee for this City and County, on Saturday the 12th instant, at the State House, at ten o'clock in the morning, which time and place those qualified to vote for Representatives in Assembly are desired to attend.

November 7, 1774.

TO THE PUBLICK. - A number of the citizens of Philadelphia, anxious to comply with the eleventh Resolve of the Congress, in which it is recommended to each City, Town, and County, to form Committees for carrying into execution the whole of their Resolutions, beg leave to propose the choice of separate Committees for the City and County of Philadelphia; for the following reasons:

1. The business which will necessarily come before the City and County being different, they apprehend it will be better done by Committees in each place. In the City they include Southwark and the Northern Liberties.

2. The emergencies of business in the City will require such frequent and sudden meetings of a Committee, that members from the County cannot conveniently attend.

3. In complying with the Non-Consumption Agreement recommended by the Congress, they apprehend the City can afford no assistance to the County, nor the County to the City; so that should they attempt to act together, they will obstruct and delay the execution of that very necessary resolution.

4. By interesting people in every Township, in the most remote as well as adjoining parts of the country, in the execution of the Resolves of the Congress, they apprehend that intelligence, firmness, and unanimity, will be more generally promoted. By which means both City and County will be able to act with more success in the general cause of American liberty.

The Freeholders of the City are requested to meet at the State House this afternoon, at three o'clock, to consider of the propriety of electing, by ballot, a Committee according to the recommendation of the Congress; and for adopting a plan for the same, as near as may be to the mode of electing Members of Assembly; and to consider of such other matters as may be necessary to determine on before the day of election for Inspectors, who shall preside at the election advertised by the present Committee, to be held for the said purpose on the 12th instant.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LIEUTENANT GOVERNOUR COLDEN TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH, DATED NEW-YORK, NOVEMBER 2, 1774.

The Congress at Philadelphia broke up last week. They have published an extract of their proceedings, of which I enclose your Lordship a copy. It was received in this place only two days ago, so that there has not been time to discover the general sentiments of the people upon it. It is certain that the measures of the Congress do not meet with rapid applause here; but, on the contrary, the people even in the City appear to be rather dissatisfied. They continue, so far as I can discover, averse to all violent and irritating measures. The Merchants seem to disrelish the Non-Importation Association, and if I am not very much deceived, the Farmers will not bear the Non-Exportation; but at present, it is impossible to say with certainty what steps the people will take in consequence of what has been advised and determined by the Congress.

I think I may continue to assure your Lordship that a great majority in this Province are very far from approving of the extravagant and dangerous measures of the New England Governments, that they abhor the thoughts of a civil war, and desire nothing so much as to have an end put to this unhappy dispute with the mother country.

Our Assembly have not met for some years past, till after the Christmas holidays. Before that time I will endeavour to learn, whether I may expect that they will propose conciliatory measures.

Nothing material has happened in this place since my last letter to your Lordship. the Merchants are at present endeavouring to sift out each others sentiments upon the Association proposed by the Congress; a certain sign, I take it, that they wish to avoid it. About eighty Artificers went from hence with General Haldimand to work on the Barracks there; and last week Iron Pots and Stores were shipped for the use of the Troops at Boston, without an attempt being made to prevent it.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER AT BOSTON CAMP TO HIS FRIEND IN EDINBURGH, DATED NOVEMBER 3, 1774.

The state of this country is pretty much the same as when I last wrote you. You will see in the newspapers the Resolutions of the Congress. They are such as were expected from men violent in their dispositions, inflamed by sedition, and chosen by a riotous and tumultuous mob. These Resolutions in the opinion of all sensible and moderate men, never can, or are intended to be put in execution. They are only thrown out as a bug-bear to intimidate the Merchants in Britain, and frighten the Ministry into a repeal of the late Acts, as similar Resolutions did a former Ministry to repeal the Stamp Act; but from the opinion we have of the present Administration, we expect that they will act with that resolution and firmness which becomes the rulers of a great Nation. If they yield, Britain must give up all pretensions to any supremacy over her Colonies, whom she protected during the last war at the expense of so many millions, and at the price of so much blood. The faction at Boston is now very low. Believe me, all ranks of people are heartily tired of disorder and confusion; and as soon as the determination of Great Britain to despise their Resolves and Petitions is known, all will be very quiet.

P. S. It was thought that justice would at least have induced the Congress to order the Tea so wantonly destroyed to have been paid for.

DOCTOR CHARLES CHAUNCEY TO JOSIAH QUINCY, JUN.
Boston, November 3, 1774.

DEAR SIR: The enclosed letter I wrote with a view to its going by the first vessel that went from us since you embarked for London, but the vessel, unhappily, sailed before it got to Marblehead. The special reason for my writing was that you might see a few Resolves of our Continental Congress, as I supposed this would give you the first sight of them.

The Fortifications at the Neck are nearly finished; the Troops sent for from Philadelphia, New-York, and Canada, are mostly, if not wholly arrived. The Grand Congress, it is supposed, are broke up, either by dissolution or adjournment. Our Delegates are expected in Town next week. Our Provincial Congress is likewise adjourned to the thirteenth of this month, November. You will see what has been done by both the Congresses, so far as what they have done is known by the newspapers. Poor Molineux is dead, and died suddenly. Our sufferings in the Town increase as the Winter comes on; and our situation becomes more distressingly difficult, as we are guarded, both by sea and land, that we may be restrained from going out of Town and may lie at the mercy of those who are sent on purpose to distress us.

Would our circumstances permit it, the Town would be immediately evacuated of its proper inhabitants; and this will certainly be the case should Administration determine to proceed in an hostile manner against us. It may be depended upon that the Colonies are marvelously united, and determined to act as one in the defence of this Town and Province, which they esteem the same tiling with defending themselves. We are impatient to hear what is likely to be the resolution of Administration, upon their knowing, as they do by this time, the union of the Colonies in their resolution to defend their rights and liberties, even to the utmost. The spirit in the Colonies, especially the four New England ones, instead of being lowered since you went from us, is raised to a still greater height, insomuch that there may be danger of rashness and precipitancy in their conduct. I hope all prudent care will be taken to govern its operations by the rules of wisdom. It is the wish of every sober, understanding man amongst us, that harmony love, and peace, may be restored between Great Britain and the Colonies. They dread nothing more, slavery only excepted, than a bloody conflict for the security of their liberties; and yet this, so far as I am able to judge, they will readily and universally go into rather than submit to such cruelly hard and tyrannical measures as are imposed on them. I hope you are by this time in London. The weather has been uncommonly clear and mild since your departure. Wishing you prosperity in all your affairs, especially in your endeavours to serve your country, I am your assured friend and humble servant,

CHARLES CHAUNCEY.

To Josiah Quincy, Junior.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM JOHN PENN, DEPUTY GOVERNOUR OF PENNSYLVANIA, TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH, DATED PHILADELPHIA, NOVEMBER 4, 1774.

I have the honour of your Lordship's letter, No. 6, of the seventh of September, before the receipt of which I wrote you by the Packet, and enclosed you a pamphlet containing extracts of the proceedings of the late Congress of American Deputies at this place. What tendency the measures they have taken may have to compose the unhappy differences between the mother country and its Colonies, is a question which occasions a variety of opinion. I can only wish their transactions may not be viewed in such a light as to retard that union which all good men anxiously desire may be speedily established.

Charge of the Honourable WILLIAM HENRY DRAYTON, Esquire, one of the Judges of the General Sessions of the Peace, Oyer and Terminer, Assize and General Jail Delivery, for the Districts of CAMDEN and CHARLES, in SOUTH CAROLINA, on his Circuit, the fifth and fifteenth days of NOVEMBER, 1774, delivered to the several Grand Juries, and by them ordered to be published:

GENTLEMEN OF THE GRAND JURY: You are now met to discharge one of the most important duties in society, for you are assembled arbiters of the innocence or guilt of such of your fellow-citizens who are so unfortunate as to have afforded occasion, however slight, for the laws to take cognizance of their conduct. You are authorized to pass Judgment, in the first instance, upon the apparently guilty wretch, and by your acquitting voice, to shield apparent innocence from a malicious prosecution. Such powers have the Constitution of your country vested in you, powers no less important than truly honourable, when exercised with a fearless integrity.

It is your indispensable duty to endeavour to exercise these powers with propriety; it is mine concisely to point out to you the line of your conduct - a conduct which the venerable Constitution of your country intends, by protecting the innocent and by delivering the guilty, over to the course of law, should operate to nourish, in its native vigour, even that Constitution itself, from whose generous spirit we have a title to call ourselves freemen, an appellation which peculiarly distinguishes the English subjects, (those unfortunately disappointed fellow-citizens in Quebec excepted,) and ranks them above all the civilized Nations of the earth.

By as much as you prefer freedom to slavery, by so much ought you to prefer a generous death to servitude, and to hazard every thing to endeavour to maintain that rank which is so gloriously pre-eminent above all other Nations. You ought to endeavour to preserve it, not only for its inestimable value, but from a reverence to our ancestors from whom we received it, and from a love of our children, to whom we are bound, by every consideration, to deliver down this legacy, the most valuable that ever was or can be delivered to posterity. It is compounded of the most generous civil liberty that ever existed, and the sacred Christian Religion released from the absurdities which are inculated, the shackles which are imposed, the tortures which are inflicted, and the flames which are lighted, blown up and fed with blood by the Roman Catholick doctrines: doctrines which tend to establish a most cruel tyranny in Church and State a tyranny under which all Europe groaned for many ages. And such are the distinguishing characters of this legacy, which may God of his infinite goodness and mercy long preserve to us and graciously continue to our posterity: but without our pious and unwearied endeavours to preserve these blessings, it is folly and presumption to hope for a continuance of them; hence, in order to stimulate your exertions in favour of your civil liberties, which protect your religious rights, instead of discoursing to you of the laws of other States, and comparing them to our own, allow me to tell you what your civil liberties are, and to charge you, which I do in the most solemn manner, to hold them dearer than your lives; a lesson and charge at all times proper from a Judge, but particularly so at this crisis, when America is in one general and generous commotion touching this truly important point.

It is unnecessary for me to draw any other character of those liberties than that great line by which they are distinguished; and happy is it for the subject that those liberties can be marked in so easy and in so distinguishing a manner. And this is the distinguishing character: English people cannot be taxed, nay, they cannot be bound by any law unless by their consent, expressed by themselves or their Representatives of their own election. This Colony was settled by English subjects; by a people from England herself; a people who brought over with them, who planted in this Colony, and who transmitted to posterity the invaluable rights of Englishmen - rights which no time, no contract, no climate can diminish. Thus possessed of such rights, it is of the most serious importance that you strictly execute those regulations which have arisen from such a parentage, and to which you have given the authority of laws, by having given your constitutional consent that they should operate as laws; for by your not executing what those laws require, you would weaken the force, and would shew, I may almost say, a treasonable contempt of those constitutional rights out of which your laws arise, and which you ought to defend and support at the hazard of your lives. Hence, by all the ties which mankind hold most dear and sacred; your reverence to your ancestors; your love to your own interests; your tenderness to your posterity; by the lawful obligations of your oath, I charge you to do your duty; to maintain the laws, the rights, the Constitution of your country, even at the hazard of your lives and fortunes.

Some courtly Judges style themselves the King's servants, a style which sounds harshly in my ears, inasmuch as the being a servant implies obedience to the orders of the master, and such Judges might possibly think that, in the present situation of American affairs, this charge is inconsistent with my duty to the King. But for my part, in my judicial character, I know no master but the law; I am a servant, not to the King, but to the Constitution; and, in my estimation, I shall best discharge my duty as a good subject to the King, and a trusty officer under the Constitution, when I boldly declare the law to the people, and instruct them in their civil rights. Indeed, you gentlemen of the Grand Jury, cannot properly comprehend your duty, and your great obligation to perform it, unless you know those civil rights from which these duties spring, and, by knowing the value of those rights, thence learn your obligations to perform these duties.

Having thus generally touched upon the nature and importance of your civil rights, in order to excite you to execute those laws to which they have given birth, I will now point out to you the particular duties which the laws of your country require at your hands.

Unbiased by affection to, and unawed by fear of, any man, or any set of men, you are to make presentment of every person and of every proceeding militating against publick good. The law orders me particularly to give in charge, to watch carefully over our Negro Act, and our Jury Law - a law which cannot be too highly valued, whether we regard the excellency of its nature or the importance of its object. This law carries in itself an indelible mark of what high importance the Legislature thought it when they enacted it; and it carries in itself also a kind of prophecy that its existence in its native vigour would, in after times, be endangered, and therefore it is that the law orders the Judges ever to charge the Grand Juries to watch over it with care; indeed you ought to do so with the most jealous circumspection. A learned Judge says, "Every new tribunal erected for the decision of facts, without the intervention of a Jury, is a step towards aristocracy, the most oppressive of absolute Governments; and it is therefore a duty which every man owes to his country, his friends, his posterity, and himself, to maintain to the utmost of his power this valuable Constitution in all its rights, to restore it to its ancient dignity, if at all impaired; to amend it wherever it is defective, and above all to guard with the most jealous circumspection against the introduction of new and arbitrary methods of trial, which, under a variety of plausible pretences, may in time imperceptibly undermine this best preservative of English liberty." Mr. Justice Blackstone terms the English Trial by Jury, the glory of the English Law; let me tell you our Trial by Jury is that kind of glory in full meridian lustre, in comparison of which the English mode appears only with diminished splendour.

But let not your care of this great object occupy all your attention; you are to find all such bills of indictment as the examination of witnesses in support of them may induce you to think there is a probability that the fact charged is true; for you are not to exact such circumstantial and positive evidence as would be necessary to support the indictment before a Petit Jury. To make those presentments, and to find these bills, it is not necessary that you all agree in opinion; twelve united voices among you are sufficient to discharge the duties of a Grand Jury, but it is absolutely necessary that twelve of you agree in opinion upon every point under your consideration; and happy, happy, thrice happy are that people who cannot be made to suffer under any construction of the law, but by the united voices of twenty-four impartial men, having no interest in the cause, but that the laws be executed and justice be administered.

In short, that you may discharge your duty with propriety, and that you may pursue that course of conduct which the law requires, let me, in the strongest terms, recommend to you that you keep constantly in your mind the nature and particulars of the oath which you have just taken. To you this oath is of as much importance as the mariner's compass is to those who sail on the ocean: this points out the course of their voyage; your oath as clearly points out to you the course of your conduct. I dare say you are willing to discharge that duty which you owe to society; I make no doubt but that you will discharge it with advantage to the publick, and therefore with honour to yourselves.

PRESENTMENTS OF THE GRAND JURY FOR THE DISTRICT OF CAMDEN.

1. We present, as a grievance, the extensive bounds of the Parish of St. Mark, which makes it difficult for the Church Wardens and Overseers of the Poor to collect the Poor Tax, and a great means to hinder the propagation of the Gospel in the back parts of the said Parish.

2. We present, as a grievance, that there is not a law to ascertain the prices of Entertainment at publick houses, there being a great number of them in Camden District, who frequently impose on strangers and travellers, by making them pay exorbitantly for what they stand in need of, to the great detriment of the poor.

3. We present, as a grievance of the most dangerous and alarming nature, the power exercised by the Parliament to Tax and to make Laws to bind the American Colonies in all cases whatsoever. We conceive such a power is destructive of our birth-rights as freemen, descended from English ancestors, seeing such freemen cannot be constitutionally taxed or bound by any law, without their consent, expressed by themselves or implied by their Representatives of their own election; a consent which the good people of this Colony never have signified, to be taxed or bound by laws of the British Parliament, in which they never have had any constitutional representation.

And whereas we rather choose to die freemen than to live slaves bound by laws, in the formation of which we have no participation; so now, that the body of this District are legally assembled, as one step towards the defence of our constitutional rights, which are dearer to us than our lives and fortunes, we think it our indispensable duty to the people of the District, to ourselves, the Grand Jurors for the body of the people, and to our posterity, thus clearly to express the sense of this large and populous District, touching our constitutional rights, and the very imminent danger to which they are exposed from the usurped power of the British Parliament, taxing and by law binding the Americans in all cases whatsoever; being resolved to maintain our constitutional rights at the hazard of our lives and fortunes, we do most earnestly recommend that this Presentment in particular be laid before our constitutional Representatives in General Assembly, who, we doubt not, will do all in their power to support us in our just rights.

And lastly, in testimony of the satisfaction we feel, and the high estimation in which we hold the charge given by his Honour the Judge, at the opening of the Court, and the principles of loyalty and liberty in which the same is manifestly founded; and also, that a lasting evidence may remain of that true and constitutional language, which it is the duty of every Judge to adopt, in the exercise of an office instituted solely for the preservation of the laws, we make it our request that his Honour will be pleased to direct the said charge to be printed and made publick, fully persuaded that every man will read it with applause who wishes a lasting security to the British constitutional establishment of civil and religious liberty; we also recommend the publication of these our Presentments.

THE PRESENTMENTS OF THE GRAND JURY OF CHERAWS DISTRICT.

[After the Local Presentments.]

4. We present, as a grievance of the first magnitude, the right claimed by the British Parliament to Tax us, and by their Acts to bind us in all cases whatsoever. When we reflect on our other grievances, they all appear trifling in comparison with this; for if we may be taxed, imprisoned, and deprived of life, by the force of edicts to which neither we nor our constitutional Representatives have ever assented, no slavery can be more abject than ours. We are, however, sensible that we have a better security for our lives, our liberties and fortunes, than the mere will of the Parliament of Great Britain; and are fully convinced that we cannot be constitutionally taxed but by Representatives of our own election, or bound by any laws but those to which they have assented. This right of being exempted from all laws but those enacted with the consent of Representatives of our own election, we deem so essential to our freedom, and so engrafted in our Constitution, that we are determined to defend it at the hazard of our lives and fortunes; and we earnestly request that this Presentment may be laid before our constitutional Representatives, the Commons House of Assembly of this Colony, that it may be known how much we prize our freedom, and how resolved we are to preserve it.

We recommend that these Presentments be published in the several Gazettes of this Province.

ALEXANDER M'INTOSH, Foreman.

ADDRESS OF THE PETIT JURY OF CHERAWS DISTRICT TO JUDGE DRAYTON.

May it please your Honour:

As your Charge at the opening of the sessions contained matters of the highest importance to every individual in this Colony, as well as to the Grand Jury, to whom, in particular, it was delivered, we, the Petit Jury for the District of Cheraws, beg leave to testify our great satisfaction, and to return your Honour our warmest acknowledgments for so constitutional a charge at this alarming crisis, when our liberties are attacked, and our properties invaded by the claim and attempt of the British Parliament to tax us, and by their edicts to bind us in all cases they deem proper; a claim to which we will never submit, and an attempt which we are determined to oppose at the hazard of our lives and property; being fully convinced, that by the Constitution of this country, we owe obedience to no human laws but such as are enacted with the consent of our Representatives in General Assembly. These being our fixed sentiments, we take this opportunity of publicly declaring them; and we would esteem it a particular favour conferred on us if your Honour would direct your charge to be printed, that the benefit arising from it may be as diffusive as possible, and that it may remain as a pattern of that constitutional language which a Judge should deliver, who is above Ministerial influence, and knows no master but the Law.

CLAUDIUS PEGUES, Foreman.

MEETING OF OFFICERS UNDER EARL OF DUNMORE.

At a Meeting of the Officers under the command of his Excellency the Right Honourable the Earl of Dunmore, convened at Fort Gower,* November 5, 1774, for the purpose of considering the grievances of British America, an Officer present addressed the Meeting in the following words:

"GENTLEMEN: Having now concluded the campaign, "by the assistance of Providence, with h0nour and advantage to the Colony and ourselves, it only remains that "we should give our country the strongest assurance that "we are ready, at all times, to the utmost of our power, to "maintain and defend her just rights and privileges. We "have lived about three months in the woods without nny "intelligence from Boston, or from the Delegates at Philadelphia. It is possible, from the groundless reports of "designing men, that our countrymen may be jealous of

"the use such a body would make of arms in their hands
 "at this critical juncture. That we are a respectable body
 "is certain, when it is considered that we can live weeks
 "without bread or salt; that we can sleep in the open air
 "without any covering but that of the canopy of Heaven;
 "and that our men can march and shoot with any in the "known world. Blessed with these talents, let us solenn-
 "ly engage to one another, and our country in particular,
 "that we will use them to no purpose but for the honour
 "and advantage of America in general, and of Virginia in "particular. It behooves us then, for the satisfaction of our "country, that we should give them our real sentiments,
 "by way of resolves, at this very alarming crisis."

Whereupon the meeting made choice of a Committee to draw up and prepare Resolves for their consideration, who immediately withdrew; and after some time spent therein, reported that they had agreed to and prepared the following Resolves, which were read, maturely considered, and agreed to, nemine contradicente, by the Meeting, and ordered to be published in the Virginia Gazette:

Resolved, That we will bear the most faithful allegiance to his Majesty King George the Third, whilst his Majesty delights to reign over a brave and free people; that we will, at the expense of life, and every thing dear and valuable, exert ourselves in support of the honour of his Crown and the dignity of the British Empire. But as the love of Liberty, and attachment to the real interests and just rights of America outweigh every other consideration, we resolve that we will exert every power within us for the defence of American liberty, and for the support of her just rights and privileges; not in any precipitate, riotous, or tumultuous manner, but when regularly called forth by the unanimous voice of our countrymen.

Resolved, That we entertain the greatest respect for his Excellency the Right Honourable Lord Dunmore, who commanded the expedition against the Shawanese; and who, we are confident, underwent the great fatigue of this singular campaign from no other motive than the true interest of this country.

Signed by order and in behalf of the whole Corps,
 BENJAMIN ASHBY, Clerk.

New-York, November 6, 1774.

A discovery being made that eighteen Sheep were on board a Sloop in this Harbour, bound for the West Indies; a number of citizens waited on the Captain, and informed him that the exportation of Sheep was contrary to a Resolution of the Continental Congress, and thereupon obtained his promise that they should be re-landed, and not carried out of the Harbour. The people were satisfied, and patiently waited till evening, when a report prevailing that the vessel was to sail that night, about two hundred inhabitants assembled on the wharf, appointed and sent four persons to wait on the Committee of Correspondence, and request their advice concerning the measures proper to be taken. By their advice, the Merchant to whom the vessel came consigned, was sent for, and desired to cause the Sheep to be landed, and delivered to one of the Committee appointed on this occasion by the people, which person gave his promise to return the Sheep as soon as the vessel had sailed. Accordingly the Sheep were landed, delivered, and soon after the vessel was sailed, returned to the proprietor; on which the people, being well satisfied, peaceably dispersed.

JOSEPH REED, ESQUIRE, TO JOSIAH QUINCY, JUN.
 Philadelphia, November 6, 1774.

DEAR SIR: I wrote you the latter end of last month, expecting it would be the first advice you would receive of the proceedings of the American Congress; but by a delay of the vessel, and her being obliged to put into New-York in distress, it is probable that my well intended efforts will fail. the Congress broke up soon after, and your Boston brethren returned in high spirits at the happy and harmonious issue of this important business. Since that time, there has been a stagnation of publick intelligence and advices.

On Saturday next, agreeably to the directions of the Congress, a great Committee is to be chosen in this City to carry the Association of the Congress into execution.

The Quakers, who you know form a considerable part of this City, act their usual part. They have directed their members not to serve on the Committee, and mean to continue the same undecisive, neutral conduct, until they see how the scale is like to preponderate; then I doubt not they will contribute to the relief of Boston, and appear forward in their cause. But American Liberty in the mean time must take her chance for them. However, there is no danger of the enemy being let in through this City; there is a band of staunch, chosen Sons of Liberty among some of our best families, who are backed by the body of the people in such a manner that no discontented spirit dares oppose the measures necessary for the publick safety. I am more afraid of New-York - there has been a strange delinquency and backwardness during the whole Summer. If you have any correspondence there I wish you would endeavour to animate them. While they are attending to the little paltry disputes which their own parties have produced, the great cause is suffering in their hands.

There is too much reason to fear the powerful rhetorick of corruption, in which the present Administration is too well versed, has not been used in vain. Their publick papers are the vilest collection of invectives upon the cause, and every private character that appears in support of it, and are so replete with falsehoods invented to mislead and deceive, that we have little doubt they are brought by some Agent of Administration, and applied to promote their infamous purposes. You must therefore hear and read from these with some caution. You see by the example I set you of writing by every vessel, that you cannot oblige me more than by letting me hear often from you. I heartily wish you health, and as much happiness as the situation of your suffering country will allow you to take. And am with much esteem, dear sir, your very obedient and affectionate, humble servant,
 J.R.

P. S. The villainous tricks of the Post Office, against which we are cautioned from your side the water, induce me only to put the initials of my name; but I trust you will be at no loss to determine who this letter is from.

York-Town, Virginia, November 7, 1774.

The Inhabitants of York having been informed that the Virginia, commanded by Howard Eaton, had on board two half chests of Tea, shipped by John Norton, Esq., and Sons, Merchants in London, by order of Messrs. Prentis and Co., Merchants in Williamsburg, assembled at ten o'clock this morning, and went on board the said Ship, where they waited some time for the determination of the meeting of several Members of the House of Burgesses in Williamsburg, who had taken this matter under consideration. A messenger was then sent on shore, to inquire for a letter from the meeting; but returning without one they immediately hoisted the Tea out of the hole and threw it into the River, and then returned to the shore without doing damage to the Ship or any other part of the cargo. On the day following the County Committee met, to consider of this matter; and after mature deliberation, came to the following Resolutions:

Resolved, That we do highly approve of the conduct of the Inhabitants of York, in destroying the Tea on board the Virginia.

Resolved, That Messrs. Prentis and Co. have incurred the displeasure of their countrymen, by not countermanding their orders for the Tea, having had frequent opportunities to have done so; and that they ought to make proper concessions for such misconduct, or be made to feel the resentment of the publick.

Resolved, That John Norton, Esq., of London, must have known the determination of this Colony with respect to Tea, as the Ship Virginia did not sail from hence till after the late Assembly was dissolved, and the Members of that Assembly, in behalf of the Colony, immediately upon their dissolution, entered into a solemn Association against that article.

Resolved therefore, To convince our enemies that we never will submit to any measure that may in the least endanger our liberties, which we are determined to defend at the risk of our lives, that the Ship Virginia ought to clear out from hence in ballast, in eighteen days from this time.

Resolved, That Howard Esten, commander of the Ship Virginia, acted imprudently in not remonstrating in stronger terms against the Tea being put on board the Ship, as he well knew it would be disagreeable to the inhabitants of this Colony.

We submit to our countrymen whether every Ship, circumstanced as the Virginia is, ought not to share the same fate.

Signed by order of the Committee,
WILLIAM RUSSELL, Clerk.

Gloucester County, November 7, 1774.

From certain information that the Virginia, Captain Howard Esten, was arrived in York River with a quantity of Tea on board, twenty-three members of the Committee of Gloucester County, with a number of the other inhabitants, assembled at Gloucester Town, to determine how the said Tea should be disposed of.

Hearing that the Members of the House of Burgesses in Williamsburg, at eight o'clock this morning, had taken the matter under their consideration, we determined to wait the result of their deliberations. We accordingly waited till after twelve, but the determinations from Williamsburg having not then come down, we repaired to the Ship, in order to meet the Committee of York, which we supposed to be in the great number of those we discerned on board. On our arrival we found the Tea had met its deserved fate, for it had been committed to the waves. We then returned, and after mature deliberation came to the following Resolutions:

Resolved, That John Norton, Merchant in London, by sending over Tea in his Ship has lent his little aid to the Ministry for enslaving America, and been guilty of a daring insult upon the people of this Colony, to whom he owes his all.

Resolved, That the Ship Virginia, in which the detestable Tea came, ought and shall return in twenty days from the date hereof.

Resolved, That no Tobacco shall be shipped from this County on board the said Ship, either to the owners or any other person whatsoever; and we do most earnestly recommend it to our countrymen to enter into the same Resolution, in their respective Counties.

Resolved, That the said Norton has forfeited all title to the confidence of this County, and that we will not in future consign Tobacco, or any other commodity to his house, until satisfactory concessions are made, and we recommend the same Resolution to the rest of the Colony.

Resolved, That John Prentis, who wrote for, and to whom the Tea was consigned, has justly incurred the censure of this country, and that he ought to be made a publick example of.

Resolved, That Howard Esten, commander of the Ship Virginia, has acted imprudently, by which he has drawn on himself the displeasure of the people of this County.

Signed by order of the Committee,
JASPER CLAYTON, Clerk.

Williamsburg, November 24, 1774.

It gives me much concern to find that I have incurred the displeasure of the York and Gloucester Committees, and thereby of the publick in general, for my omission in not countermanding the order which I sent to Mr. Norton for two half chests of Tea; and do with truth declare, that I had not the least intention to give offence, nor did I mean an opposition to any measure for the publick good. My countrymen, therefore, it is earnestly hoped, will readily forgive me for an act which may be interpreted so much to my discredit; and I again make this publick declaration, that I had not the least design to act contrary to those principles which ought to govern every individual who has a just regard for the rights and liberties of America.

JOHN PRENTIS.

Philadelphia, November 7, 1774.

A respectable number of the Inhabitants of the City of Philadelphia, pursuant to notice given in the Pennsylvania Packet, met at the State House, to consider of such matters as it was necessary to determine upon previous to the election of a Committee on Saturday next. After some debate it was unanimously voted that the election be by ballot; whereupon a plan for that purpose was read, amended, and unanimously approved.

The company met, then took into their consideration whether the Committee should be chosen for the City and County jointly, or whether the City and Suburbs should choose a separate Committee; and after some debate, Voted unanimously, That the City and Suburbs shall choose a Committee to act for themselves distinct from the County.

Voted unanimously, That this Committee do consist of sixty persons.

Voted unanimously, That the Committee of sixty, proposed to be elected on Saturday next, for the City and Suburbs, shall be and continue in office until the close of the sessions of the General Congress, intended to be held next spring, and until two weeks afterwards and no longer.

Voted unanimously, That the following gentlemen be appointed and requested to take care that the election for Inspectors is held in the several Wards respectively, and in the Suburbs, agreeable to the plan of Election, to wit:

UPPER DELAWARE WARD, Jacob Bright, Philip Moore.
LOWER DELAWARE WARD, John Knowles, John Duffield.

MULBERRY WARD, Isaac Melchior, Jacob Winey.
NORTH WARD, Isaac Howell, Richard Humphreys.
CHESTNUT WARD, William Bradford, Joseph Dean.
WALNUT WARD, Adam Hubley, John Taylor.
NORTHERN LIBERTIES, Joseph Thatcher, W. Masters.
SOUTHWARK, Arthur Donaldson, Thomas Penrose.

THE PLAN, &c.

An Inspector shall be chosen in each Ward in the City, one for the District of Southwark, and one for that part of the Northern Liberties which lies Eastward of Fourth Street continued, and Southward of the Creek whereon Masters's Mill is erected, including also that part of Kensington to the Eastward of the Street leading from Frankford Road to the Bridge over Gunner's Run, and to the Southward of that Run. For this purpose the Freeholders and others, qualified to vote for Members of the General Assembly, in each Ward, shall meet on Thursday next, at the place where the Ward election for Inspectors was held at the last election, between the hours of two and five in the afternoon. - That part of the Northern Liberties before described, at the Northern Liberty Beerhouse, Southwark, to meet at the sign of the Blue Bell (Mr. Patton's.)

The Inspectors so chosen shall meet at the State House on Saturday morning next, at nine o'clock, and choose three reputable Freeholders, to preside as Judges at the election, and they shall, before they proceed in the said election, solemnly declare upon their honour, that they will superintend this election during the continuance of it, and conduct it as near as may be, according to the Act of Assembly for regulating of Elections, &c., passed 15. G. II. And if any person shall offer a vote, who is not known to some one of them to have a right to vote, they will require of him, instead of an oath, a solemn declaration, upon honour, of his right to vote for Members of the General Assembly, and inform him at the same time, that if it shall hereafter appear, that he has declared falsely, he shall be publickly advertised in the Newspapers, as having abused and insulted his distressed country.

The Judges and Clerks who shall assist at the proposed election, shall also make a solemn declaration, upon honour, that they will faithfully perform their duty according to the best of their judgment.

The Inspectors shall then proceed to receive the votes of the Freeholders qualified to vote for Members of the General Assembly, within the limits aforesaid; and having received all such votes as shall be offered, shall, about eight o'clock in the evening, give the usual notice, that the election will be closed in half an hour, and shall close it accordingly. They shall then carefully proceed to count off the tickets, in order justly to determine who are duly elected to be of the said Committee, and having determined it, shall make out three complete lists of the Committee so chosen, and deliver one to Mr. John Dunlap, one to Messrs. William and Thomas Bradford, and one to Messrs. Hall and Sellers, to be published in their Newspapers, with a request to the Committee so chosen to meet at the State House on Thursday, the 17th instant, at three o'clock in the afternoon, and proceed on the duty for which they are appointed.

New-York Committee Chamber, November 7, 1774.

Whereas, at the late Continental Congress, held at Philadelphia, it was resolved that a Committee be chosen in every County, City, and Town, by those who are qualified to vote for Representatives in the Legislature, whose business it shall be attentively to observe the conduct of all persons touching the Association entered into by the Members of the said Congress, in the name and on the behalf of themselves and their respective Constituents; and when it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of the majority of any such Committee, that any person within the limits of their appointment, has violated the said Association, that such majority do forthwith cause the truth of the case to be published in the Gazette, to the end that all such foes to the rights of British America may be publickly known and universally contemned as the enemies of American Liberty; and that thenceforth the parties to the said Association will respectively break off all dealings with him or her.

Which said Resolve of the Congress being this day taken into consideration by the Committee of Correspondence of this City of New-York, they do hereby recommend to the Freeholders and Freemen of the said City, to assemble together at the usual places of election, in their several Wards, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, on Friday, the 18th day of this instant, November, then and there to elect and appoint eight fit persons in each respective Ward, to be a Committee of Inspection, for the purpose expressed in the said Resolve of the Congress.

By order of the Committee,

ISAAC LOW, Chairman.

To the Honourable FREDERICK SMITH, Esquire, Chief Justice of the Province of NEW-JERSEY:

The Address of the Grand Jury for the Body of the County of Essex, at a Court of Oyer and Terminer and General Gaol Delivery, held at Newark, in the said County, the first Tuesday in November, 1774.

May it please your Honour:

As your Honour's charge from the Bench was not so properly directory to us with respect to our duty as the Grand Inquest of this County, as matter of instruction for the regulation of our own personal conduct amidst the present commotions of the Continent, we think ourselves obliged, from the singularity of the charge, and its paternal tenderness for our welfare, to express our gratitude for your Honour's friendly admonitions, (which doubtless derived great solemnity from the place in which they were delivered,) and at the same time to inform you how far we have the misfortune to differ from you in sentiment, both as to the origin and tendency of the present uneasiness so generally diffused through all the Colonies. If we rightly understood a particular part of your Honour's charge, you were pleased to tell us, that while we were employed in guarding against "imaginary tyranny, three thousand miles distant," we ought not to expose ourselves to a "real tyranny at our own doors." As we neither know, sir, nor are under the least apprehension of any tyranny at our own doors, unless it should make its way hither from the distance you mention, and then, we hope, that all those whom the Constitution has entrusted with the guardianship of our liberties, will rather strive to obstruct than accelerate its progress, we are utterly at a loss for the idea thereby intended to be communicated. But, respecting the tyranny at the distance of three thousand miles, which your Honour is pleased to represent as imaginary, we have the unhappiness widely to differ from you in opinion. The effect, sir, of that tyranny is too severely felt to have it thought altogether visionary. We cannot think, sir, that taxes imposed upon us by our fellow-subjects, in a Legislature in which we are not represented, is an imaginary, but that it is a real and actual tyranny; and of which no Nation whatsoever can furnish a single instance. We cannot think, sir, that depriving us of the inestimable right of trial by jury; seizing our persons and carrying us for trial to Great Britain, is a tyranny merely imaginary. Nor can we think with your Honour, that destroying Charters and changing our forms of Government, is a tyranny altogether ideal. - That an Act passed to protect, indemnify, and screen from punishment such as may be guilty even of murder, is a bare idea. - That the establishment of French laws and Popish religion in Canada, the better to facilitate the arbitrary schemes of the British Ministry, by making the Canadians instruments in the hands of power to reduce us to slavery, has no other than a mental existence. In a word, sir, we cannot persuade ourselves that the Fleet now blocking up the Port of Boston, consisting of ships built of real English oak and solid iron, and armed with cannon of ponderous metal, with actual powder and ball; nor the Army lodged in the Town of Boston, and the Fortifications thrown about it, (substantial and formidable realities,) are all creatures of the imagination. These, sir, are but a few of the numerous grievances under which America now groans. These are some of the effects of that deliberate plan of tyranny concerted at "three thousand miles distance," and which, to your Honour, appears only like the "baseless fabrick of a vision." To procure redress of these grievances, which to others assume the form of odious and horrid realities, the Continent, as we learn, has very naturally been thrown into great commotions; and as far as this County in particular has taken part in the alarm, we have the happiness to represent to your Honour, that in the prosecution of measures for preserving American liberties, and obtaining the removal of oppressions, the people have acted in all their popular assemblies, (which it is the right of Englishmen to convene whenever they please,) with the spirit, temper, and prudence, becoming freemen and loyal subjects.

To trespass no longer on your Honour's patience, we conclude with our hearty wishes, that while the great cause of liberty is warmly, and at the same time so peaceably vindicated, by all honest Americans, as essentially necessary to publick happiness; no bias of self-interest; no fawning servility towards those in power; no hopes of future preferment, will induce any man to damp their laudable and patriotic ardour; nor lend his helping hand to the unnatural and diabolical work of riveting those chains which are forging for us by that same actual tyranny, at the distance of three thousand miles.

BOSTON TOWN MEETING.

At a Meeting of the Inhabitants of Boston, by adjournment, November 7, the Committee appointed for that purpose, made the following Report, which was accepted by the Town:

Whereas, sundry Regiments of his Majesty's Troops are, contrary to law, and to the great annoyance and detriment of his Majesty's good subjects of this Province, now stationed in the Town of Boston, in a time of profound peace, for the avowed purposes of carrying into execution sundry Acts of the British Parliament tending to enslave the people and to subvert the Constitution of the Province, which it is our duty to protest against upon all occasions; yet, nevertheless, we, the inhabitants of the Town of Boston, in Town Meeting legally assembled, taking into serious consideration the distressed circumstances of this Metropolis, and being anxious still to use our best endeavours to preserve that decency and order for which the Town has ever been remarkable; relying on the justice of our cause; and confiding in the united endeavours of the Colonies; the wisdom of the Continental Congress; the justice and clemency of our Sovereign, and the smiles of Divine Providence, that our grievances will shortly be redressed, and our unalienable and precious rights, liberties, and privileges, be restored and secured to us upon a just and permanent basis: Therefore, we recommend, that as his Excellency the Governour has assured the Town that he will do all in his power to secure the peace and good order of the Town:

That the Town, on their part, will exert their best ondeavours to effect the same desirable purpose; and to this end would augment the Town Watch. And it is recommended to the Selectmen of the Town, that they increase the Watch to the number of twelve men in each watch-house, for the security and safety of the inhabitants; and that they be directed to patrol the streets of the Town for the whole night the ensuing season. And it is earnestly desired that his Majesty's Justices of the Peace, and other Peace Officers, would exert their authority for the observance of the laws and preservation of peace and order; and that when they hear of any disturbance, they would not wait for a complaint, but call on the inhabitants, who will at all times be ready in assisting to disperse such persons, or in bringing offenders, of what rank and order soever, to justice. And in our present situation, it is incumbent upon us particularly to attend to the peace and good m'der of the Town, it is therefore earnestly recommended to the inhabitants to do all in their power to prevent or suppress any quarrels or disturbances. And it is seriously recommended to all masters of families, that they restrain their children and servants from going abroad after nine o'clock in the evening, unless on necessary business. And it is further recommended to the Selectmen of the Town, to enjoin upon all retailers and taverners of the Town, that they strictly conform to the laws of the Province relating to disorderly persons.

Attest,

W. COOPER, Town Clerk.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK TO HIS CORRESPONDENT IN LONDON, DATED NOVEMBER 7, 1774.

Enclosed are the Resolves and Proceedings of the General American Congress. Several thousand copies of them are distributed over the Colonies. Many gentlemen in this and other Towns have got them elegantly printed, framed, and glazed, to perpetuate to their latest posterity the manly conduct of a people, not yet, like Britain, enervated by luxury, effeminacy, and corruption, but who claim and insist for the rights of men. The letter from the Congress to the Inhabitants of Britain is looked upon as one of the finest pieces of calm and cool reasoning which has yet appeared in America. But to these reasons, founded upon common sense, what answer do we receive from the tools of Government? They, indeed, oppose to them, in the arbitrary style of a King of France, the ultima ratio regum, the British Cannon; and tell us, like the tyrannick King of Prussia, that those things are so; why? sic vole, sic jubeo. But these arguments are not calculated to go down with a free people, descended from those brave Republicans who laid the foundation of that freedom which Britain has enjoyed since the glorious Revolution. We are branded with the titles of enthusiastick and puritanick; but had it not been for the enthusiasm and puritanism of our forefathers, the inhabitants of Britain would have been this day groaning under Popery, slavery, and arbitrary power. We were told that the people of Boston would soon yield, but, notwithstanding they have been besieged six months, they still retain that firmness and integrity which a good cause inspires: and the predictions of your Ministry, that the people of America would differ among themselves, have been falsified by that unanimity with which all ranks have united against their tyrannick measures. What would the Ministry be at? If it was only us they could ruin we would not be surprised at their conduct, but would look upon it only as that system of tyranny which they have adopted; but when we consider that every stab that America receives must also pierce the vitals of Great Britain, we are struck with amazement, and think that the depravity of the hearts of your Ministers can only be equalled by the weakness of their heads.

Boston, November 10, 1774.

The Town of Marblehead, at a full Meeting, on Monday, the 7th instant, unanimously made choice of a large Committee for executing the plans of the Continental and Provincial Congresses. It likewise appointed a day for choosing Militia Officers, and a Committee for each Company, to give personal warning to all on the Alarm List for the purpose mentioned. Directions were given by the Town to the Clerk for entering on the Records such persons as should by the Province be considered and published as "Rebels against the State," and to the Constables and Collectors to pay to Henry Gardner, Esquire, moneys which they then had, or in future might have in their hands, belonging to the Province; the advertisements of the late Treasurer Gray being treated with the contempt due to one on the Rebel list. A Company and train of Artillery, will, by private subscription, be likewise provided in said Town, for defence of American freedom.

Surely the Colonies are in earnest for preserving their liberties, and a general attention to the Art Military will in a short time render them secure, notwithstanding the designs of oppressive tyranny. May military discipline, then, immediately take place throughout America.

WESTMORELAND COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Committee for the County of Westmoreland, for seeing the Association duly executed, November 8, 1774:

Before them a certain David Wardrobe came, and being examined concerning a letter, false, scandalous, and inimical to America, published in the Glasgow Journal, August 18, 1774, said to be written by a gentleman from Westmoreland County, in Virginia, June 30, 1774, and charged to be written by the said Wardrobe; the Committee, on hearing the said Wardrobe acknowledge to have written the greatest part of said letter, and equivocating extremely concerning the rest of it, and seriously considering the fatal consequences that will infallibly be derived to the dearest rights and just liberties of America, if such enemies are suffered to proceed in this manner, of giving false and mischievous accounts to Great Britain, tending to misrepresent this country, and to deceive Great Britain, have come to the following Resolutions, which they do most earnestly recommend to all those who regard the peace, the liberty, and the rights of their country:

1. Resolved, That the Vestry of Cople Parish be desired no longer to furnish the said Wardrobe with the use of the Vestry House for his keeping school therein.

2dly. That all persons who have sent their children to school to the said Wardrobe do immediately take them away, and that he be regarded as a wicked enemy to America, and be treated as such.

3dly. That the said Wardrobe do forthwith write and publish a letter in the Gazette, expressing to the world his remorse for having traduced the people here, and misrepresented their proceedings in manner as in the said letter is done.

4thly. That the said Wardrobe be charged to appear at Westmoreland Court House, on the 29th day of this instant, to be dealt with further as the Committee shall direct, to which time and place they do adjourn themselves.

At a Meeting of the Committee at the Court House of Westmoreland County, the 29th day of November, 1774, agreeable to adjournment, the foregoing Proceedings, and the Letter mentioned therein, being read, and it appearing to the Committee that the said David Wardrobe was summoned, agreeable to the fourth Resolve, to appear on this day, and he failing to make his appearance accordingly, but having wrote a Letter to the said Committee, excusing himself for non-attendance, rather insulting than exculpatory, it is

Resolved, That the Proceedings of the former Committee be confirmed, and that the Letter mentioned therein, together with the whole of these Proceedings, be transmitted by the Clerk to the Printer, to be published in the Gazette.

Signed by order of the Committee,
JAMES DAVENPORT, Clerk.

N. B. Since the aforesaid determination of the Committee, the said David Wardrobe came to Westmoreland Court House, and, in the presence of a considerable number of people, made and signed the following Concession and Acknowledgment:

"Deeply affected with remorse for having traduced the good people of Virginia, in a letter I wrote to Archibald Provan, of Glasgow, dated the 30th of June, 1774, which has been since printed in the Glasgow Journal of the 18th August, in the same year, said to be written by a gentleman in Westmoreland County to his friend in Glasgow, containing falsehoods and misrepresentations, which may be of fatal consequence to the rights and liberty of America, in order to make every recompense to the community in my power for so gross an offence, I do, most heartily and willingly, on my knees, implore the forgiveness of this country for so ungrateful a return made for the advantages I have received from it, and the bread I have earned in it, and hope, from this contrition for my offence, I shall be at least admitted to subsist amongst the people I greatly esteem, and desire that this may be printed in the Virginia Gazette.

DAVID WARDROBE."

The following is a copy of the Letter referred to in the foregoing Proceedings:

Extract of a Letter from a gentleman in WESTMORELAND County, VIRGINIA, to his friend in GLASGOW, dated JUNE 30: from the GLASGOW JOURNAL of August 18, 1774.

As the present situation of affairs in this country is alarming, I make no doubt some account of them will be agreeable to you.

The Virginians (and indeed most of the Colonies) look upon the late Act of Parliament for blocking up the Harbour of Boston, and new modelling their Charter, as a thing that may one day or other happen to themselves; they, therefore, resolved to stand the friends and espouse the interest of the Bostonians, as far as lies in their power, and for that purpose they are forming Associations not to import any commodities from Great Britain, nor to export any of their own, until such time as the said Act is repealed. There is great clamour here against the Ministry at home. In the County of Richmond, about ten days ago, I saw an elegant effigy of Lord North hanged and burned in the midst of a vast concourse of people. I was particularly attentive to the countenances of the spectators, and was really pleased to see so very few express any outward signs of approbation on the occasion; there were, indeed, a few gentlemen who seemed to enjoy an ill-natured satisfaction at it, which they expressed by a loud huzza, and plenty of d - s. Then Parker, who is the King's Attorney for the County of Westmoreland, mounted on an eminence, and harangued the people, acquainting them of the efforts Parliament had made to abridge them of their liberties, and many more that would be made if they were not now unanimous and steady in their Resolves of breaking off all commercial connections with Great Britain until the said Act of Parliament be repealed, and the right they have assumed for taxing America be given up, and American freedom ascertained and settled upon a permanent and constitutional foundation. Yesterday we had a meeting of the Freeholders of this County at our Court House, where there were some of the greatest men in the Colony encouraging the common people to a like steady adherence to the aforesaid plan. These late meetings have been only to feel how the pulse of the common people beat; the Grand Meetings for signing the Association will not be until August, and then it will be four or five months more before the commencement of a discontinuation of exportation and importation.

If every Merchant in the Colony would fall upon the same scheme that four eminent Merchants of this County this day resolved upon, I do not know whether there would need to be such a bustle about importing and exporting. Their resolves are, that, as the Courts of Justice are discontinued, they think it prudent and necessary not to sell any thing but for ready money, or the ready produce of the country; they have, therefore, publicly advertised that no person need apply to them for any thing without they come furnished with one or the other of these materials. Credit is a thing so very common here that there is not one person in a hundred who pays the ready money, for the goods he takes up, to a store, and consequently they will be beginning to feel the ill effects before the day of signing. I forgot to tell you they have put a stop to the Courts of Justice, in order that none need be under any apprehension of distress by the Merchants during their Non-Importation.

It is true they always had the good fortune as yet to have a repeal of any thing that has been against them, even upon the very first mention of their Resolves; but you may believe me, if the present Act should be continued, their Resolutions will soon fail them, for I am convinced that the disadvantage they must labour under by adopting such a plan will be so great that had it been imposed upon them they would think it the greatest evil that ever befell them since they were a Colony.

By his Excellency ROBERT EDEN, Esquire, Governour and Commander-in-chief in and over the Province of MARYLAND:

A PROCLAMATION.

ROBERT EDEN.

Whereas, by my return into this Province, I have resumed the administration of the Government thereof; by and with the advice and consent, therefore, of the Lord Proprietary's Council of State, I have thought fit to issue this my Proclamation, notifying the same to all Sheriffs, Magistrates, and others, the Lord Proprietary's Officers in this Province. And I do further will and direct, that all Officers, both Civil and Military, execute and discharge the several trusts and duties in them reposed and enjoined by their present respective commissions, until such time as they shall receive directions to the contrary. And to the end that all persons concerned may have due notice thereof, I do strictly charge and require the several Sheriffs of this Province to make this my Proclamation publick in their respective Counties, in the usual manner, as they will answer the contrary at their peril.

Given at the City of Annapolis, this eighth day of November, in the fourth year of the dominion of the Right Honourable Henry Harford, Esq., Anno Domini 1774.

Signed by order,

JAMES BROOKS, Cl. Con.

ANNE ARUNDEL COUNTY (MARYLAND) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Inhabitants of Anne Arundel County and the City of Annapolis, qualified to vote for Representatives, on Wednesday, the ninth day of November, 1774:

Resolved, That Thomas Dorsey, John Hood, Junior, John Dorsey, Philip Dorsey, John Burgess, Thomas Sappington, Ephraim Howard, Caleb Dorsey, Richard Stringer, Reuben Merriweather, Charles Warfield, Edward Gaither, Junior, Greenberry Ridgely, Elijah Robeson, Thomas Mayo, James Kelso, Benjamin Howard, Ely Dorsey, Senior, Mark Brown Sappington, Brice T. B. Worthington, Charles Carroll, Barrister, John Hall, William Paca, Thomas Johnson, Junior, Matthias Hammond, Samuel Chase, Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, Rezin Hammond, Charles Wallace, Richard Tootell, Thomas Harwood, Junior, John Davidson, John Brice, John Weems, Samuel Chew, Thomas Sprigg, Gerard Hopkins, Junior, Thomas Hall, Thomas Harwood, West River, Stephen Stewart, Thomas Watkins, Thomas Belt, the Third, Richard Green, and Stephen Watkins, be a Committee to represent and act for this County and City, to carry into execution the Association agreed on by the American Continental Congress; and that any seven have power to act.

Resolved, That Thomas Johnson, Juninr, John Hall, William Paca, Charles Carroll, Barrister, Charles Carroll, of Carrellton, Matthias Hammond, Samuel Chase, and Richard Tootell, be a Committee of Correspondence for this County and City; and that any three have power to act.

Resolved, That it is the sense of this meeting, that the gentlemen appointed to represent this County and City in the late Provincial Convention, together with Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, ought to attend the next Provincial Meeting on the 21st instant, and have full power to represent and act for this County and City.

Williamsburg, November 10, 1774.

This afternoon the whole body of Merchants at present in this City, supposed to be between four and five hundred, waited upon the Honourable Peyton Randolph, Esquire, and the rest of the Delegates of this Colony assembled at the Capitol, and presented the following Address:

To the Honourable PEYTON RANDOLPH, Esquire, Moderator, and the other DELEGATES of the People of VIRGINIA, who assembled at the Capitol, in WILLIAMSBURG, on Wednesday, the ninth of November, 1774:

The Address of the Merchants, Traders, and others, at a General Meeting in WILLIAMSBURG.

GENTLEMEN: Your generous and voluntary interposition at a time when we were under apprehensions that some measures would be adopted derogatory to the importance of the cause we wish to support with propriety, and contrary to the intention of the General Congress; and by your wisdom and prudence pointing out such methods of proceeding as have removed our fears and given universal satisfaction, demands our grateful acknowledgment.

Truly sensible of the necessity of preserving peace and harmony, not only between the different Colonies, but also among all ranks and societies in each Colony; and to show our readiness to concur in such prudent measures as are most likely to procure a redress of our grievances, we now present the Association voluntarily and generally signed; and as we, on our parts, resolve to adhere strictly thereto, we hope to be favoured with your advice and assistance on every future emergency.

To which they received the following Answer:

GENTLEMEN: It gives us great satisfaction to find that our conduct has received the approbation of your respectable Body; and you may be assured we shall, on all occasions, endeavour to move on the firm principles of Justice and the Constitution. The Delegates are very sensible of the great advantage this country will receive from your union with them; and they consider it as very meritorious, that you, disregarding the influence of your commercial interest, have generously concurred with them in the great struggle for liberty. Such unanimity, we trust, will convince an inimical Administration of the imprudence of their measures, and produce effects so salutary as to make us reflect with pleasure on the part we have taken in support of American freedom.

PROVINCE OF MASSACHUSETTS BAY.

By the Governour. - A PROCLAMATION:

Whereas, a number of persons unlawfully assembled at Cambridge, in the month of October last, calling themselves a Provincial Congress, did, in the most open and daring terms, assume to themselves the powers and authority of Government, independent of and repugnant to his Majesty's Government, legally established within this Province, and tending utterly to subvert the same; and did, amongst other unlawful proceedings, take upon themselves to resolve and direct a new and unconstitutional regulation of the Militia, in high derogation of his Majesty's Royal Prerogative; and also to elect and appoint Henry Gardner, Esquire, of Stow, to be Receiver General, in the room of Harrison Gray, Esquire, then and still legally holding and executing that office; and also to order and direct the moneys granted to his Majesty, to be paid into the hands of the said Henry Gardner, and not to the said Harrison Gray, Esquire; and further earnestly to recommend to the inhabitants of the Province, to oblige and compel the several Constables and Collectors to comply and execute the said directions, contrary to their oaths, and against the plain and express rules and directions of the law; all which proceedings have a most dangerous tendency to ensnare his Majesty's subjects the inhabitants of this Province, and draw them into perjuries, riots, sedition, treason, and rebellion.

For the prevention of which evils, and the calamitous consequences thereof, I have thought it my duty to issue this Proclamation, hereby earnestly exhorting, and in his Majesty's name strictly prohibiting all his liege subjects within this Province from complying in any degree with the said Requisitions, Recommendations, Directions, or Resolves, of the aforesaid unlawful Assembly, as they regard his Majesty's highest displeasure, and would avoid the pains and penalties of the law. And I do hereby charge and command all Justices of the Peace, Sheriffs, Constables, Collectors, and other Officers in their several departments, to be vigilant and faithful in the execution and discharge of their duty in their respective offices, agreeable to the well known established laws of the land; and to the utmost of their power, by all lawful ways and means, to discountenance, discourage, and prevent, a compliance with such dangerous Resolves of the above mentioned or any other unlawful Assembly whatever.

Given at Boston, this tenth day of November, in the fifteenth year of the Reign of his Majesty George the Third, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c., Annoque Domini 1774.

THOMAS GAGE.

By his Excellency's Command,

THOMAS FLUCKER, Secretary.
GOD save the King.

Charlestown, South Carolina, November 11, 1774.

The Honourable John Stuart, Superintendent of Indian Affairs, having, in consequence of an application from his Excellency the Earl of Dnnmore, directed his Deputy, Mr. Cameron, to go to the Over-hill Cherokee Towns, and to make requisition of satisfaction for the murder of Mr. Russell and his party, on the Frontiers of Virginia, Mr. Cameron proceeded accordingly to Chote, where he arrived the beginning of September last, and after repeated consultations with the Chiefs, and much opposition from the young people, succeeded in having the Chief principally concerned in the said murder, named Nottawagui, put to death. The persons at first appointed to execute the sentence, wounded the Indian in several places, and thought that they had killed him; but he was recovering, and almost out of danger from his wounds, when Mr. Cameron renewed his requisition, and, with much difficulty and danger to himself, prevailed upon the principal Chiefs to go themselves and finish him, which they executed with much resolution, maugre all the threats and opposition of his numerous relations and followers; and upon the occasion made several spirited harangues to the people, warning them not to follow the example of the deceased, lest they should meet the same fate, and reprimanding them in sharp terms for their bad behaviour upon that and other occasions, which brought the young people to make their submission to their Chiefs, and, as a token thereof, they presented several strings of white beads. Another Chief concerned in several murders, was also condemned, but found means to make his escape to the Chickasaws; he is, however, proscribed, and will certainly suffer when and wherever found by his countrymen. These two were the only Cherokees concerned in the said murder; the rest were Shawanese. The talks from the Cherokees to the Superintendent, are expressive of the most pacifick disposition, and earnest desire to be esteemed friends.

On Tuesday last, Mr. Stuart arrived here from Georgia, having, with his Excellency Sir James Wright, Baronet, Governour of the said Province, finally settled all disputes, and concluded a Treaty of Peace and Friendship with the Creek Indians.

Rochester, New-Hampshire, November 11, 1774,

On Tuesday, the eighth instant, the Committee of Correspondence at this place, at the desire of a number of people, wrote to Mr. Nicholas Austin, of Middletown, to attend them at the house of Mr. Stephen Wentworth, it being suspected that he was employed in procuring artificers at Wolsborough, &c., to go to Boston to build Barracks for the Soldiery there. Mr. Austin accordingly waited upon them, and the charge in some measure being proved against him, he was obliged, on his knees, as nothing less would satisfy, to make the following confession, viz:

"Before this company I confess I have been aiding and assisting in sending men to Boston to build Barracks for the Soldiers to live in, at which you have reason justly to be offended, which I am sorry for, and humbly ask your forgiveness; and I do affirm, that for the future, I never will be aiding or assisting in anywise whatever, in act or deed, contrary to the Constitution of the country, as witness my hand.

NICHOLAS AUSTIN."

PROCLAMATION OF GOVERNOUR BULL, OF SOUTH CAROLINA, NOVEMBER 12, 1774.

Whereas, I have received notification from his Excellency Sir James Wright, Baronet, Governour of Georgia, that at a Congress holden on the twentieth of October last, at Savannah, in the Council Chamber, between his Excellency and the Honourable Mr. Stuart, his Majesty's Superintendent for Indian Affairs in the Southern Department, and several Head-men, accompanied by a large number of others of the Creek Nation of Indians, a Treaty of Peace, Friendship, and Commerce, was concluded with the said Indians, whereby the Indians have stipulated to give and complete the full satisfaction demanded for the murders and outrages committed by them last winter in the Province of Georgia; and farther desired, the better to prevent the like hereafter, that sundry Regulations may be made in the Indian Trade, for the more orderly carrying on the same, and to maintain peace between his Majesty's subjects and the Indians; whereupon, a Plan of Regulations for the Indian Trade accordingly hath been considered, formed, and agreed on by his Excellency Sir James Wright, and hath been approved and adopted by me in Council. And whereas, it is thought proper on this occasion to open the trade to the said Creek Nation again, and to lake off the temporary limitation upon the trade to the Cherokees, that they may now be plentifully supplied with goods, I have thought fit, by and with the advice of his Majesty's Honourable Council, to issue this nay Proclamation, giving notice thereof to all persons in this Province, concerned or willing to be concerned in such Trade, that I hereby revoke all former Indian Trading Licenses, and require them to take out new ones, by which they are to be subject to the observance of such Regulations as have been thought necessary for carrying on the trade in a manner which may secure the publick peace, the copy of which License, Bond, and Regulations, I have caused to be lodged in the Secretary's Office, for their inspection and information, of which all persons concerned are to take due notice, and govern themselves accordingly, as they shall answer for their neglect thereof.

POLITICAL OBSERVATIONS, WITHOUT ORDER; ADDRESSED TO THE PEOPLE OF AMERICA.

Philadelphia, November 14, 1774.

1. All power of Government is derived from God through the instrumentality of Kings or the People. Has the impartial Governour of the universe communicated his attributes of power, wisdom, justice and mercy to Kings only, and denied the least portion of them to every other class of mankind? Let history decide this question. The history of Kings is nothing but the history of the folly and depravity of human nature.

2. To live (says Bishop Hoadly) by one man's will became the cause of all men's misery. If the Bible was silent, analogy would teach us that the depravity and misery of one man could contaminate and render miserable a whole race of men. Look up then, mortals, to Kings with humility. They are living histories of your first calamity. One Man still continues to be the source of misery and depravity in all the Kingdoms of the world. God deals with all mankind as he did with the Jews. He gives them Kings only in his anger. We read now and then, it is true, of a good King, so we read likewise of a Prophet escaping unhurt from a Lion's den, and of three men walking in a fiery furnace, without having even their garments singed. The order of nature is as much inverted in the first, as it was in the last two cases. A good King is a miracle.

3. The American Congress derives all its power, wisdom and justice, not from scrolls of parchment signed by Kings, but from the People. A more august, and a more equitable Legislative body never existed in any quarter of the globe. It is founded upon the principles of the most perfect liberty. A freeman in honouring and obeying the Congress, honours and obeys himself. the man who refuses to do both, is a slave. He knows nothing of the dignity of his nature. He cannot govern himself. Expose him for sale at a publick vendue, Send him to plant Sugar with his fellow slaves in Jamaica. Let not the air of America be contaminated with his breath.

4. The Congress, like other Legislative bodies, have annexed penalties to their laws. They do not consist of the gallows, the rack, and the stake. These punishments belong to vindictive states, and are proper only for a corrupted people. They have held out no punishments but infamy, a species of infamy which sound more dreadful to a freeman than the gallows, the rack, or the stake. It is this, he shall be declared in the publick papers to be an Enemy to his country.

5. The wisdom and revenge of man have been exhausted to find out a suitable punishment for treason, or for those crimes which affect the liberty and happiness of a people. The least deviation from the Resolves of the Congress will be treason: - such treason as few villains have ever had an opportunity of committing. It will be treason against the present inhabitants of the Colonies: Against the millions of unborn generations who are to exist hereafter in America: Against the only liberty and happiness which remain to mankind: Against the last hopes of the wretched in every corner of the world. - In a word, it will be treason against God. It will be to take from Him (with reverence be it spoken) the power of making his creatures happy. I do not attempt to hint a punishment for Such extensive and complicated guilt. Infamy is a punishment of the soul. It can only affect a freeman. The body of the wretch who is capable of violating the Resolves of the Congress is the only part of him which can be punished. But here all ingenuity fails us. The tortures of Damien and Ravillac would be rendered abortive for this purpose by the longest possible duration of human life.

6. There is a strange veneration for antiquity and disinclination for innovations in all civil as well as religious bodies. We are now laying the foundation of an American Constitution. Let us therefore bold up every thing we do to the eye of posterity. They will probably measure their liberties and happiness by the most careless of our footsteps. Let no unhallowed hand touch the precious seed of Liberty. Let us form the glorious tree in Such a manner, and impregnate it with such principles of life, that it shall last forever. Greece, Rome and Britain would still have been free, had not the principles of corruption been concealed in the elements of their constitutions. Let us not avail ourselves of the just spirit of the times, but bind up posterity to be freemen. Our Congress were actuated with this prophetick benevolence, when they dissolved themselves, and recommended a new choice of Delegates in the Spring.

7. There is some reason to fear that the steps we are obliged to take to defend our liberties, will render us careless in establishing them. Wise and good men in Britain have lifted up the curtain of futurity in America. Let us not be afraid to look through it. Ye intuitive Spirits who see through the connection of cause and effect. Ye holy Spirits who have been accustomed to trace the operations of Divine Providence. Ye decisive Spirits who resolve and execute at once. - Ye know what I mean. "In eternitatem pingo" said a poet. Let us neither think, write, speak, nor act, without keeping our eyes fixed upon the period which shall dissolve our connexion with Great Britain. The delirium of the present Ministry may precipitate it: But the ordinary course of human things must accomplish it. Britain may relax from her present arbitrary measures, but political necessity, not justice, must hereafter be the measure of her actions. Freemen cannot bear a middle state between liberty and slavery. It is essential to the happiness of liberty, that it should be secure and perpetual.

8. A rotation of offices is one of the life guards of liberty. The right as well as the obligations to Legislation, are alike binding upon all men. To prevent pride and excessive popularity, and to diffuse knowledge and virtue, are the surest methods of securing and perpetuating publick liberty. These are to be obtained only by a constant rotation of offices.

9. I almost wish to live to hear the triumphs of the Jubilee in the year 1874; to see the medals, pictures, fragments of writings, &c., that shall be displayed to revive the memory of the proceedings of the Congress in the year 1774. If any adventitious circumstance shall give precedence on that day it shall be to inherit the blood or even to possess the name of a member of that glorious assembly: I cannot after this, be understood to mean the least reflection upon any one of that body when I urge, that only one-half, or at most two-thirds of the old Members should be returned from each Colony to attend the next Congress. The good dispositions in human nature sometimes lead us astray in publick affairs. Do not, illustrious Senators, avail yourselves of the gratitude and veneration of your countrymen. You have, we trust, made them free. But a nobler task awaits you. Instruct them, instruct posterity in the great science of securing and perpetuating Freedom.

Philadelphia, November 25, 1774.

Some perfectly original observations have made their appearance in the last Packet, addressed to the People of America, and their purposes being evidently to stir up dissension and create divisions in the Colonies, thereby greatly to prejudice the common cause of American Liberty, I beg you will insert in your next the following hints for the perusal of your author, which I hope will put an end to any further lucubrations, notwithstanding his promise to favour the publick with a continuation of them.

To the Man to whom it belongs: Any apology for considering you as an open, an avowed Republican, would be absurd. You have declared yourself an enemy to all Kings. You have declared yourself at enmity with the English Constitution: a fabrick that is the work of ages, that has long been the admiration of the whole world; you have therefore declared yourself an enemy to your country. A good King, you say, "is a miracle." "That God "gives to mankind Kings only in his anger; that Kings "are the source of the misery of all Kingdoms in the world." In these observations I know not whether your ignorance or your depravity verges nearest to excess. You tell us, "that the Congress derive all their authority from the People; it is treason therefore to make the least deviation "from their Resolves." Let me ask you from whence Kings derive their authority? Is it not from the People? Have not the Congress recognized this authority, and does not the Congress represent the People? Do you not therefore in your attempt to subvert their transactions, deviate from their Resolves, and (to take you upon your own ground) of what crime are you then guilty? "Treason." Such "treason as few villains have ever had an opportunity of "committing." What punishment then does your complicated guilt merit? The tortures of Damien and of Ravillac are too lenient. Reflect then on your happy situation, in having escaped the vengeance you would have inflicted on another, for the atrocious crime of which you yourself are guilty. "The Congress have annexed no penalties to their laws." Unsuspicious of their harbouring in their bosom so gross a violator of them as yourself, they have omitted a penalty equal to your guilt. Infamy, however, is your portion. Rejoice that your punishment is so slight, from concealing a name that hath in it rancour sufficient to contaminate the human race.

You tell us, we are now laying the foundation of a new Constitution. The Congress tell the inhabitants of Great Britain to place us "in the same happy situation we "were in at the close of the last war, and our former harmony will be restored." You have therefore given the lie to that respectable body; you attempt to counteract the very measures they have devised for the preservation of our liberties, and for bringing about an happy reconciliation. The Congress, in their Memorial to the People of Great Britain, say "you have been told that we are "impatient of Government, and desirous of independency; be assured these are not facts, but calumnies." You discover the greatest impatience of Government, and the strongest desire of independency.

While the Congress are using their utmost endeavours to remove the prejudices, which our enemies have with industry propagated against us, you are endeavouring to confirm those prejudices, instead of exerting your efforts to stop their circulation. Under a specious pretext of extolling their abilities and wisdom, and declaiming on their dignity, you undermine their proceedings, and sap the base of their stability. You compliment the rectitude and wisdom of a Legislature so equitable; you offer the incense of adulation with an unlimited profusion; yet you insinuate, that only one half, or at most two-thirds of the old Members are fit to be returned for the ensuing Congress: this reflection is mean, pitiful, and unmanly, but it is not singularly so.

Upon the whole, you have convinced the world that you are in possession of a Weak head, and a depraved heart; the one wanting ability to execute what the other would dictate; the feeble efforts of the former are only capable of displaying the extremes of folly, and a strong propensity to deceive characterises the latter.

Hence confine your dissertations to things within the sphere of your understanding. Nature never formed you for a politician; if she had she would have divested you of ignorance and madness.

Desist therefore from your disorderly observations.
Amici hunc cavete. NESTOR.

TO THE PRINTER OF THE NEW-YORK GAZETTEER.

SIR: Happening to be in several companies lately, where the conversation fell upon a most extraordinary piece published in the Pennsylvania Packet, and afterwards transcribed into the New-York Journal, entitled "Political "Observations, without Order, addressed to the People of "America," it was by all present, except myself, condemned as a vile, inflammatory, and treasonable publication. As I could wish my reasons for dissenting from the opinions of so many respectable persons were more generally known, I beg leave, through the channel of your paper, to lay them before the publick.

Every essay that makes its appearance in a paper which is confessedly under the influence of the Republican Party, and is copied into other papers of the same stamp, I consider as containing the sentiments of that party; it is their general way of broaching a new doctrine, to try how it will be relished by the palates of the People. As to myself, I am without a doubt that the Republicans of North America; particularly those of New England, have long been aiming at independency, and that they have eagerly seized this golden opportunity, when discontent prevails throughout the Colonies, to establish a grand American Commonwealth; but there are many honest well-meaning people who join heartily in contending for what they esteem their privileges, without knowing that they are in danger of being precipitated into the other extreme of being awakened from their pleasing dreams of liberty by the shackles of a Republican Commonwealth. It is to open the eyes of these secure politicians that so many pens have lately been drawn; but no argument strikes so forcibly, or carries more conviction to the mind, than those voluntary effusions of a hair-brained Republican: such persons cannot be tied down to secrecy by their adherents, till a proper time arrives for a disclosure of the grand arcana; their zeal hurries them on beyond the bounds of reason and their own shallow judgment, and then it is no wonder they should let the cat out of the bag before they are aware.

I never take up a newspaper which I know to be under Republican influence, but I expect to be put to the trouble of decyphering some enigmatical sentence, or of developing some deep laid scheme; on the contrary, the author of the Political Considerations saves me all this trouble; he stands acquitted, at least, of bearing the hypocritical badge of his party. Commend me to the man who speaks his sentiments undisguised, whatever they may be; and let me not be deceived by one who wears a vizor to hide his deformity, and endeavours to win me over by stratagem; this writer makes no scruple of throwing off the mask, and appears in all the terrible pomp of his own horrid visage.

Notwithstanding the secrecy enjoined, and so strongly insisted on by the Republican part of the Congress, it is now pretty generally known and believed that the first grand question proposed was, the throwing off all subordination to Great Britain; and when the Republicans found this point could not be carried, many of the members threatening to return home if it was not given up, they were compelled to adopt the present plan with a view of distressing the parent country; that by causing intestine broils at home, it would force her to recall her Troops from America, and then they might usurp the reins of Government unmolested; and yet this plan, moderate as it may, appear compared with the idea of an immediate usurpation, was not obtained without the meanest arts, and the vilest intrigues, both in and out of Congress; it is even now a matter of doubt whether some of the Members did not sign the Association more out of fear of popular resentment than from the calm dictates of their own unbiased judgment.

In a little time I expect to lay before the publick some secrets that will equally astonish and confound the generality of your readers. There are matters yet to be disclosed, the bare relation of which will "Make mad the guilty, and appal the free,

"Confound the ign'rant, and amaze indeed
"The very faculties of eyes and ears."

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN AMSTERDAM TO HIS FRIEND IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED NOVEMBER 15, 1774.

Since my last a very extraordinary affair has happened here. A small Brig, the master's name Page, from Rhode-Island or Boston, was loading with Cordage, Junk, Powder, Guns, &c., of which the Ministry having got intelligence, a small Cutter of six three-pounders, and thirty hands, was despatched from Dover with orders to come directly here, and when the Brig sailed to sail with her, and while at sea to board her and carry her to England. The Cutter arrived here the 23d or 24th of last month; the Brig had a full load, and was ready to sail at that time, but the Cutter's Officers coming ashore, by good fortune, came to the house where I lodged, and in a few hours I discovered their business.

As this was the only vessel then in Port of that kind, I was at no loss, and called that night on Mr. H-----n, to acquaint him with my suspicions, which he could not believe; but he has had sufficient proof since, for they lay looking at each other from that time to the 8th instant. When the Brig made sail, the Cutter got under way, which the Brig observing, she came to, and landed the cargo. There is certain advice that the Cutter's people went down to the Texel and got all the Brig's papers from the Custom House there, and also at this City. A Brig has since arrived from New-York, but the Merchants will not ship Goods in any English vessel, as there are several Cutters cruizing off Dover, to search all English vessels that pass through the channel, for Arms, &c., &c.

NATHANIEL APPLETON TO JOSIAH QUINCY, JUNIOR.

Boston, November 15, 1774.

Sift: When I parted from you I fully intended to have written you before this time; be assured I have not been unmindful of you, but publick and private business has entirely engrossed my time.

Your leaving this country so privately has been matter of general speculation. Some say you went away through fear; others that you went to make your peace; others that you went charged with important papers from the Continental Congress; many conjectured you were gone to Holland; upon the whole, it was a nine days' wonder. Since you left us there has been a Provincial Congress, which consisted of about two hundred and fifty members, in which matters of the greatest importance were debated. All their proceedings which I have liberty to communi- cate, you will see in the prints.

The Town continues to meet from time to time, without molestation. There have been frequent affrays between the Inhabitants and Soldiers, which have generally ended to the mortification of the latter. The Selectmen and Town Committees have frequent interviews with the General; he declares he has no expectations that this people will ever submit to the late Acts; he converses more freely with the inhabitants than Hutchinson did, on matters of a publick nature, though we are not off our guard, knowing that it is the part of a General to deceive. The inhabitants persisted in refusing to build Barracks for the Soldiers, but have in some measure assisted them in refitting old houses and stores. The Autumn has been remarkably moderate, so that the Soldiers are but now entering their Winter quarters. The main guard is kept at George Erving's Warehouse, in King street. Almost the whole Soldiery in America are now collected in this Town. The new erected Fortifications on the Neck are laughed at by our old Louisbourg Soldiers, as mud-walls in comparison with what they have subdued; and, were it necessary, they would regard them no more than a beaver-dam.

The spirit of the inhabitants, both in Town and Country, is as firm as ever; determined to defend their rights to the utmost. The Continental Congress broke up the 26th ultimo, and our Members all returned safe last Wednesday evening. The bells rang the whole evening. An extract of their proceedings you will doubtless have before this reaches you. It is the universal voice of this people that they will sacredly observe the injunctions and recommendations of the Grand Congress. The Provincial Congress meet by adjournment the 23d instant. The neighbouring Towns and Colonies continue to send in their generous donations to the poor of this Town. We have our Woollen Manufactory in good forwardness, having completed a considerable quantity of baizes; and should it be necessary we see that we could easily carry on any branch of Woollen or Linen Manufacture.

We have great expectations from your abilities and attachment to the rights and liberties of your country. We are sure you will not be an idle spectator, but will, with your usual spirit, be an active advocate for truth and justice, which is all we wish to take place in our present unhappy disputes with Great Britain.

It is said the Ministry cannot recede, now they have gone so far. I wish they would consult the good Bishop of St. Asaph, who I am sure could put them into an honourable way.

Mr. Molineux died, after a short illness, about three weeks past. All friends that I recollect are well. I presume you will receive several letters from your friends by this opportunity, which will doubtless be more entertaining than I can be.

Depending upon a line from you as soon as your leisure will permit, I conclude at present, with great respect, your sincere friend and humble servant,

NATHANIEL APPLETON.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM THE HONOURABLE GOVERNOUR GAGE TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH, DATED BOSTON, NOVEMBER 15, 1774.

The proceedings of the Continental Congress astonish and terrify all considerate men; but though I am confident that many of their Resolves neither can or will be observed, I fear they will be generally received, as there does not appear to be resolution and strength enough among the most sensible and moderate people in any of the Provinces openly to reject them.

This Provincial Congress has been encouraged by the general union and readiness shewn by the rest of the new England Provinces to appear in arms at their call to go the lengths they have. I transmit your Lordship a Proclamation which I have published against the proceedings of their last meeting, and I hope it will have some effect, for I learn that people are cooler than they were, and grow apprehensive of consequences. the Congresses have gone greater lengths than was expected.

Notwithstanding the impediments thrown in our way, we shall be able to put the Troops under cover to-morrow, except the two Regiments from Quebec, who must remain in their transports five or six days longer.

A considerable quantity of Flour was stopped for a time in Maryland, upon information that it was for the use of the Troops at Boston, but it is arrived, and we have, by various means, got provisions sufficient to last the Troops here about six months; and I hope, if it is found necessary, that we shall be able to procure further supplies.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM GOVERNOUR WENTWORTH TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH DATED NEW-HAMPSHIRE, NOVEMBER 15, 1774.

At an adjournment of a Town Meeting in Portsmouth, in October last, fifty-two voters reconsidered a vote of fifty-six voters in a previous meeting, "not to grant the Town "Moneys for a donation to Boston; but that a voluntary "subscription be opened for that purpose." This lesser number granted two hundred Pounds Proclamation-Money, which is near four times their Province Tax.

They also proceeded to choose a Committee of forty-five persons, chiefly out of the number then present, who style themselves "a Committee of Ways and Means." I hear one-half the number refused to act. The remainder convened together, and prevailed on Mr. Wentworth, an old gentleman of seventy-eight years, and lately extremely impaired by frequent epileptick fits, to be their Chairman. General Gage having desired me to furnish some Carpenters to build and prepare Quarters for his Majesty's Troops in Boston, the Carpenters there being withdrawn, and the service much distressed, I immediately engaged and sent him a party of able men, which arrived to the General and are very useful. However, this Committee considered it as very obnoxious and chose a Sub-committee from among their acting members to draw up Resolves relative to this matter, which I am informed they did, and were accordingly published in the enclosed New-Hampshire Gazette, No. 940, which excited the designed madness through the interior parts of the Province, and solely gave rise to the proceedings at Rochester, as published in the Gazette, No. 942, herewith transmitted. Indeed, had not the Rochester Committee acted with great prudence, and consented to call Mr. Austin before them, it is greatly to be apprehended very essential outrages would have been committed on his estate, and his person endangered through the violence of a deluded populace. From these motives only were those three gentlemen in Rochester prevailed on to act in a business the whole of which they publicly disapproved, but had not power to suppress. During these agitations Captain Holland, by desire of Brigadier General Robinson, had purchased some Blankets for the Army. The Committee forbade him to ship any, and he immediately sent them all to my house for safety, whence I directly shipped them for Boston, and they are safely delivered.

In the Counties of Hillsborough and Cheshire I have heard there have been several reprehensible violences committed under popular pretences of liberty; hitherto there has been no complaints made to me, nevertheless I took such measures, that, I am informed by the Magistrates of those Counties, the difficulties begin to subside. But I cannot flatter myself with any reasonable hopes of the legal establishment of the powers of Government in this Province, until they are effectually restored in the Massachusetts Bay. I have been successful in prevailing on Soldiers deserted from the King's Troops at Boston, to return to their duty, through the spirited and prudent activity of Major Thompson, a Militia Officer of New-Hampshire, whose management, the General writes me, promises further success. The Town of Exeter have followed the example of Portsmouth, and granted one hundred Pounds to Boston, and I apprehend many other Towns will do the like.

BY THE KING. - A PROCLAMATION.

GEORGE R.

Whereas it hath been humbly represented to us on the part and behalf of our Colony of Virginia, that a Currency of Copper Money within the same Colony would be highly beneficial to our good subjects, the inhabitants thereof, for the more easy and convenient making of small payments; and whereas the Treasurer of our said Colony, being thereunto authorized by an Act of our Governour, Council, and Assembly of our said Colony, passed in the tenth year of our reign, hath delivered to the master and worker of our Mint in our Tower of London, a sufficient quantity of fine copper in bars, heated, for the coinage of five tons of the pieces hereinafter mentioned, after making the just and usual allowances to the Officers of our Mint; and whereas our said master and worker of our Mint hath, in pursuance of our Warrant for that purpose issued, coined, thereout five tons of pieces of Copper Coin, of such weight that sixty pieces thereof are equal to one pound weight Avoirdupois, without erring either in excess or defect above one-thirtieth part, and are of the value of two shillings and six pence, according to the currency of money in our said Province of Virginia; and each piece is stamped on one side with our effigies, with the inscription "Georgius III. Rex." and on the reverse, with the Virginia Arms, with the St. George's Cross, leaving out the escutcheon of Crowns, except one Crown at the top as on the Guinea, without crest, supporters, or motto, except the word "Virginia" round the arms, with the date of the year; which are now ready to be exported to our said Colony of Virginia. We have therefore, with the advice of our Privy Council, thought fit to issue this our Royal Proclamation; and we do accordingly, hereby ordain, declare, and command, that the said pieces of Copper Money, so coined, stamped, and impressed, as aforesaid, shall be current and lawful Money of and in our said Colony of Virginia, and of and within the Districts and Precincts of the same; and shall pass and be received therein after the rate following, that is to say, twenty-four of the said pieces shall pass and be received for the sum of one shilling, according to the currency of our said Province of Virginia, and at and after such rate shall be computed, accepted, and taken accordingly in all bargains, rates, payments, and other transactions of money. Provided always, and we do hereby further declare, that no person shall be obliged to take more than one shilling of such copper money in any one payment of any sum of money under twenty shillings, nor more than two shillings and six pence thereof in any one payment of a larger sum of money than twenty shillings.

Given at Court at St. James's, the 16th day of November, 1774, in the fifteenth year of our reign.

GOD save the King.

CALVERT COUNTY (MARYLAND) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Inhabitants of Calvert County, qualified to vote for Representatives, on Wednesday, the 16th day of November, 1774:

Resolved, That Alexander Somervell, John Weems, Jun., Richard Parran, William Lyles, Benjamin Mackall, the Fourth, Edward Reynolds, William Alhnutt, Benjamin Mackall, Charles Graham, Edward Gantt, Dr. Edward Johnson, Samuel Chew, John Broom, Samuel Hance, William Allein, Daniel Rawlings, Frisby Freeland, James Heighe, Benjamin Skinner, and William Ireland, Jun., be a Committee to represent this County, to carry into execution the Association agreed on by the Continental Congress, and that any five have power to act.

Resolved, That the following gentlemen, or any three of them, be a Committee of Correspondence for this County, viz: Alexander Somervell, John Weems, Jun., Richard Patron, William Lyles, Benjamin Mackall, the Fourth, and Edward Reynolds.

And farther Resolved, That the former Committee for this County have power again to attend at the Provincial Convention to be held at the City of Annapolis, the 21st instant; and that the said former Committee have power to vote for Delegates to attend the Congress to be held at the City of Philadelphia, the 10th day of May next.

PROCEEDINGS OF YORK COUNTY CONGRESS.

We his Majesty's loyal subjects the Delegates of the several Towns of the County of York, deputed to meet in County Congress, held at Wells, the 16th day of November, 1774, truly professing ourselves liege subjects of his Majesty King George the Third, and sincere friends to all our fellow-subjects in Britain and the Colonies; for the necessary defence of our liberties and privileges, come into the following Resolutions:

1. Resolved, That his Majesty's subjects in the Province of the Massachusetts Bay, as well as in the other English American Colonies, have full right and authority to tax themselves, and grant their own Moneys by their several General Assemblies for all such purposes, and in such manner, as they shall see fit; and that no other State, Prince, or Parliament whatever, hath, or under the present Constitution of said Colonies can have, right or authority to grant the Money of said subjects, or Tax them in any other manner whatever; and therefore, that the several Acts of the British Parliament, made for the express purpose and design not only of raising a Revenue to his Majesty, by Duties to be laid on Goods landed in said Colonies, but establishing a precedent for further illegal taxation of the people therein, are unconstitutional, unjust, and oppressive, and never ought to have force in the Colonies; and all subsequent Acts made to enforce the same, more especially that for blocking the Port of Boston, are hostile, cruel, and arbitrary.

2. Resolved, That all Civil Officers within this County duly appointed by virtue of, and pursuant to the Charter of William and Mary, ought to use and exercise the several powers and authorities to their respective offices belonging, agreeable to the Laws of the Province of the Massachusetts Bay, in the same way and manner in every respect, intent, and purpose, as though the said Acts had never been passed; and that all persons ought to aid, assist, and countenance them therein, and particularly that the venires for Jurors for the several Courts of Justice in this County, ought to be issued as heretofore has been used and accustomed, agreeable to the Laws of the Province aforesaid; and that due obedience ought to be had thereto; and that a spirit of peace, friendship, and harmony, may subsist and be cultivated among the inhabitants of said County, the said Congress do recommend to them, that they produce no suit against each other, unless on some urgent necessity.

3. Resolved, That this Congress recommend to every individual in this County, in their several stations, to use their utmost endeavours to promote peace and good order. It is also recommended to the several Towns forthwith to meet and choose a Committee, whose business it shall be to see that the Association of the Continental Congress entered into in behalf of their constituents, be strictly observed and kept; and if any person or persons shall violate the same, said Committee are advised to post their names in the several publick houses of entertainment in the County; and also publish a state of facts in the several publick newspapers to the end all persons may withdraw from him, her or them, all commercial intercourse and connection whatsoever; and that no riots, disorders, or tumults may take place in said County, which in their nature and tendency are as well subversive of all Civil Government, as destructive to the very end and design of the present struggle for Liberty, and the present plan proposed and recommended by the Continental Congress for our deliver-once, the said Congress do recommend to the inhabitants thereof, that they do not with violence damage or injure the person or property of any one, that shall either break through said Association, or do any other matter or thing against the liberties of the country, but shall immediately give information to the Committee of the Town where the offence is committed, that such persons may be treated as aforesaid.

4. Whereas the late Sir William Pepperell, Baronet, deceased, (well known, honoured, and respected in Great Britain and America, for his eminent service in his life time) did honestly acquire a large and extensive real estate in this County, and gave the highest evidence, not only of his being a sincere friend to the rights of men in general, but having a paternal love to this County in particular; and whereas the said Sir. William by his last will and testament, made his grand-son, the present William Pepperell, Esquire, residuary legatee and possessor of the greatest part of said estate; and the said William Pepperell, Esquire, hath with purpose to carry into force and execution Acts of the British Parliament, made with apparent design to enslave the free and loyal people of this Continent, did accept, and now holds a seat at the pretended Board of Counsellors in this Province, as well in direct repeal of the Charter thereof, as against the solemn compact of Kings and the inherent rights of the People. it is therefore resolved, that the said William Pepperell, Esqr., hath thereby justly forfeited the confidence and friendship of all true friends to American liberty, and with other pretended Counsellors now holding their seats in like manner, ought to be detested by all good men; and it is hereby recommended to the good people of this County, that as soon as the present leases made to any of them by said Pepperell, are expired, they immediately withdraw all connection, commerce, and dealings from him - and that they take no further lease or conveyance of his Farms, Mills, or appurtenances thereto belonging, (where the said Pepperell is sole receiver and appropriator of the rents and profits thereof) until he shall resign his said seat, pretendedly acquired by mandamus; and if any person shall remain or become tenant on such estate to said Pepperell, after the expiration of their present lease, we recommend to the good people of this County, not only to withdraw all connection and commercial intercourse with them, but to treat them in manner provided by the third Resolve of this Congress.

5. And that the Association aforesaid be not violated, it is recommended that the law of this Province respecting hawkers, pedlers, and petty-chapmen be duly put in execution; and if any taverner, or innholder, shall knowingly entertain them, or permit and suffer any vendue or sale of goods in their respective houses, by any such person, said taverner or innholder be taken due notice of by the Selectmen, and that it be advised that the Selectmen do not approve or recommend any such taverner or innholder as a suitable person to renew his or her license; and it is also recommended to the people of this County not to trade with pedlers, hawkers, or petty-chapmen.

6. To ease the minds of the good people of this County, this Congress do assure them, that on inquiry, we do not find that any Civil Officer or other person therein, has made any attempt to put the Acts of Parliament aforesaid into execution, and trust that none will attempt it.

7. Whereas there have been several sums of Money raised for the General Assembly of this Province, and committed to the Constables to collect and pay the same to Harrison Gray, Esquire, Treasurer of this Province; and it evidently appearing by the late conduct of said Treasurer, that he is not of a sound mind, whereby there is danger of his paying the money belonging to the Province, to other purposes than that for which it was raised: therefore this Congress recommend to the inhabitants of each Town in this County to secure the Moneys that is or may be collected by said Constables in such manner as that they may command the same until the said Harrison Gray, Esquire, hath his reason restored to him; or some other Treasurer be constitutionally chosen.

8. Whereas the Delegates of the several Towns in the Province, while met at Cambridge to consult such measures as might tend to put their constituents in a posture of defence against the attack of military violence that might be offered; and while waiting the result of the Continental Congress, resolved upon such measures as they then thought might put the Militia on a reputable and formidable footing; and it appearing that a cultivation of the Military Art may have salutary effects in the settlement of the present political disputes: we therefore recommend to the Militia of this County, that if the Provincial Congress when met again as they soon will, do not alter the plan by them proposed, the people of this County adopt the same.

9. Resolved, That the thanks of this County be and hereby are given to the worthy and patriotick Members of the Continental Congress for their noble and faithful exertions in the cause of their country; and are of opinion that the rights of the American Colonies are by them clearly and fully stated in their several Resolutions; and that the wise and prudent plan by them projected, if carried into execution, cannot fail to restore that union and harmony between Great Britain and her Colonies so ardently wished for by all good men, and hope their names will be handed with honour to the latest posterity.

WILLIAM LEIGHTON, Clerk.

HENRICO COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Freeholders of Henrico County, at the Court House in the Town of Richmond, on Thursday, the 17th day of November, 1774, for the purpose of choosing a Committee, agreeable to the eleventh Article of the Resolves of the General Congress, to see that the Association is duly carried into execution within said County the majority of votes appearing from the poll, for the following gentlemen: Richard Adams, Samuel Du Val, Richard Randolph, Nathaniel Wilkinson, Turner Southall, Joseph Lewis, Peter Winston, Joshua Storrs, James Buchanan, Isaac Younghusband, Dan. Price, Jno. Hales, Martin Burton, Rev. Miles Selden, and Samuel Price,

Resolved, That they be appointed a Committee for this County, and that they, or the majority of them, do meet from time to time as occasion requires, for the purposes aforesaid.

After which, the Committee having formed themselves into a meeting,

Resolved, That John Beckley be appointed Clerk to this Committee.

ADDRESS FROM THE COMMITTEE OF MECHANICKS OF NEW-YORK, PRESENTED TO THE DELEGATES WHO REPRESENTED THIS CITY AT THE GENERAL CONGRESS.

GENTLEMEN: we, being actuated by a real regard for the interest and prosperity of our injured and oppressed country, and influenced by a principle of gratitude, embrace this early opportunity to testify our most grateful and unfeigned acknowledgments for your readiness in accepting, and fidelity in executing the high and important trust reposed in you by your fellow-citizens and countrymen; and for the wise, prudent, and spirited measures which you have adopted (in conjunction with the worthy and respectable Delegates of the neighboring Colonies) for obtaining a redress of grievances, and a restoration of our violated rights; and thereby re-establishing (upon the most permanent basis) that harmony and confidence between America and the parent state so ardently wished for by all good men, and so essentially necessary for the mutual advantage and security of both countries.

At the same time permit us to assure you that we are determined, as far as our influence extends, to exert ourselves in support of the common cause, and shall ever be ready to aid and assist in carrying the salutary measures of the General Congress into execution to the utmost of our power and ability.

That you may long live to enjoy the fruits of your labours, and receive, from a grateful people, the applause and honour which is justly due to the preservers of their country, is the sincere wish of, gentlemen, your obliged humble servants and fellow-citizens,

Signed by order of the Mechanicks' Committee,
DANIEL DUNSCOMB, Chairman.

To Philip Livingston, James Diane, Isaac Low, John Jay, and John Alsop, Esquires.

New-York, November 18, 1774.

To which they were pleased to return the following polite Answer:

GENTLEMEN: The polite and respectful terms in which you are pleased to communicate your approbation of our conduct, in an important office, demand our most sincere and grateful acknowledgments.

Honoured by the united suffrages of our fellow-citizens, and animated by a sense of duty, and the most cordial affection for our oppressed country, however unequal to the delicate and arduous task, we undertook it with cheerfulness, and have discharged it with fidelity.

While, from abundant experience, we bear testimony to the unshaken zeal for constitutional liberty, which has ever distinguished the worthy inhabitants of this metropolis, and is nobly exerted at the present alarming crisis, your anxious solicitude for the restoration of that harmony and mutual confidence between the parent state and America, on which the glory and stability of the British Empire so absolutely depend, cannot fail of recommending you to the esteem of all good men, and of holding you up as an example worthy of imitation and applause.

To soften the rigour of the calamities to which, in this tempestuous season, we may be exposed, let us all, with one heart and voice, endeavour to cultivate and cherish a spirit of unanimity and mutual benevolence, and to promote that internal tranquillity which can alone give weight to our laudable efforts for the preservation of our freedom, and crown them with success.

We are, gentlemen, with the most affectionate regard, your obliged and very humble servants,

PHILIP LIVINGSTON, JAMES DUANE,
JOHN ALSOP, JOHN JAY.

ISAAC LOW,

To Mr. Daniel Dunscomb, Chairman, and the Committee of Mechanicks in the City of New-York.

TO THE PEOPLE OF NEW-JERSEY,

MY FRIENDS AND COUNTRYMEN: I had once some hope that the Resolutions of the Congress would have been such as to produce some good to the Colonies, but I find my fears verified by their proceedings; chosen, on one side, they seem to have had no other view than to please their electors, and to forward confusion among us. They have formed no system by which the present differences might be solved, and future contentions avoided, but deliberately have made bad worse, left us no retreat, nor the mother country any opening to advance to a reconciliation.

With sovereign contempt they have overlooked the Legislature of Great Britain, and appealed to the People; will not this people take offence at the indignity so manifestly shown to their Legislature, and receive the appeal with disgust? especially when they see that we have forbid all intercourse with them, and that with as much seeming authority as if we were an independent state, and determining on a rupture with them? Nay, will not this conduct be construed as open enmity to the British name?

Again, with the greatest assurance they have arraigned the Lords and Commons of the highest injustice, in altering the form of one Government, though perhaps for the better, and yet have taken upon themselves to declare the old established forms in others, unconstitutional, dangerous, and destructive to the freedom of American Legislation, because they have a Legislative Council. Thus, by raising new contentions, and drawing us into new controversies, what end can this serve but to create confusion? From confusion, my countrymen, is to be reared the new Republick.

Again, they have warmly resolved against the Laws of Trade, the Officers of the Customs, the authority of Judges of the Admiralty, &c. Perhaps in some instances the Laws of Trade may be severe, and the appointment and exercise of the offices of Judges of the Admiralty, and of the Customs, may be real matter of complaint; but why did they not ask redress of the Legislature of Great Britain? I suspect, that feeling their influence, and elated with power, new and unconstitutional, they apprehended the application would be successful, and their authority at an end; they, therefore, have made their appeal to the people, hoping to stir up rebellion and strife again; they have tickled you by increasing the number of your Committees, that you may appear to have a great share in this new Government, and at the same time that they hold out to you an abhorrence of the Laws of Trade, and take upon themselves to give power, to Heaven knows who, to inspect the entries at the Custom House, and by the eleventh article of the Association, these Committee men have a large field to range in, and may hold up the most respectable characters among us to contempt, and turn him over to be treated as an enemy of his country.

Had an Act of Parliament formed such an inquisition, by giving power to any man, or set of men, to observe the conduct of their fellow-subjects, and, as a majority should determine, their neighbour should be exposed to insult and contempt at their pleasure, how should we have heard of the liberty of the subject, his right to trial by his peers, &c., &c. Yet these men, at the same time they arraign the highest authority on earth, insolently trample on the liberties of their fellow-subjects; and, without the shadow of a trial, take from them their property, grant it to others, and not content with all this, hold them up to contempt, and expose them to the vilest injuries.

View again the conduct of these men while they declare a Non-Importation from Great Britain and Ireland, of any Goods, Wares, and Merchandises, of Molasses, &c., from the West Indies, - of Wines from the Madeira and Western Islands, and thereby, in effect, prohibit an exportation of the Iron, Lumber, Wheat, Pork, Beef, Flour, and Corn, of the middle Colonies, and particularly of this, as the places to which all these are shipped can give us no return but in the articles our Congress prohibit us to import. Yet Rice, the staple of Carolina, is to be exported without restraint or limitation. Why this distinction? Is it because the Delegates of that Colony had more regard for the interest of the people they represented). Or that our Delegates could take what liberties they pleased with us? Or what was the reason?

When unreasonable partiality appears in men - when they take much pains, use studied language, and appeal to Heaven for the uprightness of their intentions, we have just cause to suspect; for the sincerity of our intentions is best shown by our actions, it wants not the parade of words; the plainest language is best, and requires no appeal to Heaven to induce our belief. Yet this Congress, in all their publications, (except the letter to General Gage) have paid more attention to sounding words, and taken more pains to convince the world they are scholars, than to show a disposition to settle our differences. In short, when they appear averse to conciliating measures, and show a disposition to create confusion, and hum us into war and bloodshed, it is manifest they are actuated by motives inconsistent with the people's interest. For examples of their inclination to war, let me appeal to their adopting the Suffolk Resolves; and to their own inconsistent minutes, for a determination upon confusion and mischief, particularly upon that arrogant Resolve, wherein they require the repeal of many Laws of Trade, &c., "as essentially necessary in order to restore harmony between Great Britain and the American Colonies." Can the people who they style spirited and brave, stoop to such humiliating terms? Could this Resolve then have been made with any other view than to affront a brave people, and prevent them from hearing and redressing real grievances? It is natural, my countrymen, for men who feel themselves suddenly clothed with unlimited powers, to have a desire to continue that authority they have by accident acquired, and to keep the ball up, for if once it comes to the ground, then authority vanishes, and the people will no longer be dupes to their ambition.

All changes in Government, my countrymen, are dangerous to the people - we have insensibly, and in the hurry of our zeal, departed from our Constitution, and entered a new mode of governing, as inconsistent with liberty as it is opposite to Monarchy; in short, we have slid into a Republick when we did not mean it, and out of fear of a distant and ideal tyranny, we have created a dangerous and real one among ourselves. We have no instances of laws so severe, or any regulations so inimical to liberty as the Resolves of this Congress, who show themselves double-faced on every occasion: read their cajoling letter to the Canadians; again, see how these Canadians are painted in another place as fit tools, from "ancient prejudices, to act with hostility against the true Protestant Colonies, whenever a wicked Ministry shall choose to direct them." See the artifice that is used through the whole of their proceedings to keep you in a ferment, and you will trace the thirst of dominion through every page. It is not so much, my countrymen, that the mother country is inclined to tyranny, as it is those among us who desire rule, and want to lord it over us, and therefore keep up a controversy that sooner or later will end in our ruin.

As we have already done what we ought not to have done, and left undone those things which we ought to have done, let us shun the rock these pilots would run us upon; let us in time return to our Constitution, and by our Representatives, like honest men, state our grievances, and ask relief of the mother state; let us do this with that plainness and decency of language that will show at once our sincerity, and remove every suspicion that we have the least intention or desire to be independent. Let us remember that our burden has been light; that the mother state has ever protected us by her arms, - and her renown among the Nations of the world - nay, let us remember that these men who are most forward and noisy patriots in the great Towns have acquired wealth in forbidden trade, and have, even in that trade, been protected by the name of Britain, and ought to be suspected and detested by us, as we have too long been duped by them.

Let us shun an Association artfully designed to entangle us, and fear not the threats contained in it; let us remember ourselves, our children, our country; and while we are attentive to our liberties, let us not forget our duty.

New-Jersey, November 19. 1774.

At a Town Meeting held at Providence, Rhode-Island, on the 21st day of November, 1774, A. M., called by Warrant, to order a Town Tax, &c:

NICHOLAS BROWN, Esquire, Moderator,

Voted, That the Committee of Correspondence for this Town be hereby empowered to receive of the Town Treasury the sum of one hundred and twenty-five Pounds, lawful money, and to transmit the same to the Committee in the Town of Boston for receiving donations for the distressed inhabitants of the Town of Boston and Charlestown; and the Treasurer is hereby ordered to pay said sum out of the first money he shall receive of the tax now ordered.

DOCTOR JOSEPH WARREN TO JOSIAH QUINCY, JUNIOR,

DEAR SIR: As nothing interesting, which I am at liberty to communicate, has taken place since your departure from home, except such matters as you could not fail of being informed of by the publick papers, I have deferred writing to you, knowing that upon your first arrival in London you would be greatly engaged in forming your connections with the friends of this country to whom you have been recommended. Our friends who have been at the Continental Congress are in high spirits on account of the union which prevails throughout the Colonies. - It is the united voice of America to preserve their freedom, or lose their lives in defence of it. Their Resolutions are not the effect of inconsiderate rashness, but the sound result of sober inquiry and deliberation. I am convinced that the true spirit of liberty was never so universally diffused through all ranks and orders of people, in any country on the face of the earth, as it now is through North America.

The Provincial Congress met at Concord at the time appointed; about two hundred and sixty Members were present. You would have thought yourself in an Assembly of Spartans or ancient Romans, had you been a witness to the ardour which inspired those who spoke upon the important business they were transacting. An injunction of secrecy prevents my giving any particulars of their transactions, except such as by their express order were published in the papers; but in general you may be assured that they approved themselves the true Representatives of a wise and brave people, determined at all events to be free. I know I might be indulged in giving you an account of our transactions were I sure this would get safe to you, but I dare not, as the times are, risk so important intelligence.

Next Wednesday, the 23d instant, we shall meet again according to adjournment. All that I can safely communicate to you shall be speedily transmitted. I am of opinion that the dissolution of the British Parliament, which we were acquainted with last week, together with some favourable letters received from England, will induce us to bear the inconvenience of living without Government until we have some further intelligence of what may be expected from England. It will require, however, a very masterly policy to keep the Province for any considerable time longer in its present state. The Town of Boston is by far the most moderate part of the Province; they are silent and inflexible. They hope for relief, but they have found from experience that they can bear to suffer more than their oppressors or themselves thought possible. They feel the injuries they receive; they are the frequent subject of conversation; but they take an honest pride in being singled out by a tyrannical Administration as the most determined enemies to arbitrary power; they know that their merits, not their crimes, have made them the objects of Ministerial vengeance. We endeavour to live as peaceably as possible with the Soldiery, but disputes and quarrels often arise between the Troops and the inhabitants.

General Gage has made very few new manœuvres since you left us. He has indeed rendered the entrenchments at the entrance of the Town as formidable as he possibly could. I have frequently been sent to him on Committees, and have several times had private conversations with him. I have thought him a man of honest, upright principles, and one desirous of accommodating the difference between Great Britain and her Colonies in a just and honourable way. He did not appear to be desirous of continuing the quarrel in order to make himself necessary, which is too often the case with persons employed in publick affairs; but a copy of a letter, via Philadelphia, said to be written from him to Lord North, gives a very different cast to his character. His answer to the Provincial Congress, which was certainly ill-judged, I suppose was the work of some of that malicious group of harpies whose disappointments make them desirous to urge the Governour to drive every thing to extremes; but in this letter (if it be genuine) he seems to court the office of a destroyer of the liberties, and murderer of the people of this Province, But you have doubtless read the paper, and thought with indignation on its contents.

I wish to know of you how affairs stand in Great Britain, and what was the principal motive of the dissolution of Parliament. If the late Acts of Parliament are not to be repealed, the wisest step for both countries is fairly to separate, and not spend their blood and treasure in destroying each other. It is barely possible that Britain may depopulate North America, but I trust in God she never can conquer the inhabitants. And if the cruel experiment is made, I am sure, whatever fortunes may attend America, that Britain will curse the wretch, who, to stop the mouths of her ravenous pack of dependents, bartered away the wealth and glory of her Empire.

I have not time to say more at present than to assure you that from this time you may expect to hear from me, news or no news, by every vessel, and that my earnest wish is that your abilities and integrity may be of eminent service to your country. I am, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

JOSEPH WARREN.

To Josiah Quincy, Junior.

MARYLAND CONVENTION.

At a Provincial Meeting of Deputies, chosen by several of the Counties in Maryland, held at the City of Annapolls, November the 21st, 1774, and continued by adjournment to Friday, the 25th day of the same month, were present fifty-seven Deputies.

MATTHEW TILGHMAN, Chairman.
JOHN DUCKETT, Clerk.

The Delegates appointed to represent this Province at the late Continental Congress, laid the Proceedings of the Congress before this meeting, which being read and considered, were unanimously approved of; and thereupon it is

Resolved, That every member of this meeting will, and every person in the Province ought, strictly and inviolably to observe and carry into execution the Association agreed on by the said Continental Congress.

It is recommended by this meeting that during the present time of publick calamity, Balls be discontinued.

Several Counties not being fully represented, from the want of sufficient notice of the time of this meeting,

Resolved, That this meeting will adjourn to Thursday, the 8th day of December next; and that a letter be wrote to those Counties earnestly to request them to send their Deputies to attend punctually on that day, as matters of very great importance to this Province will be then taken into consideration. The meeting adjourned to Thursday, the 8th day of December next.

JOHN DUCKETT, Clerk.

ELIZABETH CITY COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

A respectable number of the Freeholders of Elizabeth City County, pursuant to notice given by advertisements, met at the Court House of the said County, on Tuesday, November 22, 1774, to elect a Committee for the purposes mentioned in the Association entered into by the American Continental Congress; after previously determining that the election should be by ballot, that the Committee should be chosen for the Town of Hampton and County jointly, they proceeded to the election, the same being conducted under the inspection of several worthy members, and the following persons were chosen: William Roscow Wilson Carle; Henry King, John Tabb, Worlich Westwood, Roe Cowper, William Armistead, Joseph Selden, James Wallace, Cary Selden, Jacob Wray, George Wray, John Cary, and Miles King.

They then elected William Roscow Wilson Curle, Esq., Chairman, and Mr. Robert Bright, Clerk.

From the Minutes,

ROBERT BRIGHT, Clerk.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER RECEIVED IN LONDON FROM AN OFFICER IN THE ARMY, DATED BOSTON, NOVEMBER 22, 1774.

According to my promise I write to you of my arrival. The Troops are just put into quarters. The workmen at Boston were so mulish that the General was obliged to send to Nova Scotia for Carpenters and Bricklayers to fit up Barracks for our accommodation. The country is very plentiful, and all sorts of provisions cheaper than in London, though much risen from such a number of people being got together. The inhabitants of this Colony retain the religions and civil principles brought over by their forefathers in the reign of Charles the First, and are at least a hundred years behindhand with the People of England in every refinement. With the most austere show of devotion, they are void of every principle of Religion or common honesty, and reckoned the most arrant cheats and hypocrites upon the whole Continent of America. The women are very handsome, but, like old mother Eve, very frail; our camp has been as well supplied in that way since we have been on Boston Common, as if our tents were pitched on Blackheath. As to what you hear of their taking arms to resist the force of England, it is mere bullying, and will go no farther than words; whenever it comes to blows, he that can run fastest will think himself best off: believe me, any two Regiments here ought to be decimated if they did not beat, in the field, the whole force of the Massachusetts Province; for though they are numerous, they are but a mere mob, without order or discipline, and very awkward at handling their Arms. If you have ever seen *Colonel D  marching his Regiment from Ludgate Hill to the Artillery Ground, you have an epitome of the discipline of an American Army. We expect to pass the Winter very quietly. The saints here begin to relish much the money we spend among them, and I believe, notwithstanding all their noise, would be very sorry to part with us.

New-York, Tuesday, November 22, 1774.

The election of a Committee of Sixty Persons for the puposes mentioned in the Association entered into by the Congress having this day come on, pursuant to advertisements in the publick newspapers, a respectable number of the Freeholders and Freemen of this City assembled at the City Hall, where the election was conducted under the inspection of several of the Vestrymen; and the following persons were chosen without a dissenting voice, viz:

Isaac Low,	Henry Remsen,	Jacob Van Voorhees,
Philip Livingston,	Peter T. Curtenius,	Jeremiah Platt,
James Duane,	Abraham Brasher,	William Ustick,
John Alsop,	Abraham P. Lott,	Comfort Sands,
John Jay,	Abraham Duryee,	Robert Benson,
P. V. B. Livingston,	Joseph Bull,	William W. Gilbert,
Isaac Sears,	Francis Lewis,	John Berrien,
David Johnson,	John Lasher,	Gabriel H. Ludlow,
Charles Nicoll,	John Roome,	Nicholas Roosevelt,
Alex. M'Dougall,	Joseph Totten,	Edward Flemming,
Thomas Randall,	Thomas Ivers,	Lawrence Embree,
Leonard Lispenard,	Hercules Mulligan,	Samuel Jones,
Edward Laight,	John Anthony,	John De Lancey,
William Walton,	Francis Basset,	Frederick Jay,
John Broome,	Victor Bicker,	William W. Ludlow,
Joseph Hatlett,	John White,	John B. Moore,
Charles Shaw,	Theophilus Anthony,	George Januwa,
Nicholas Hoffman,	William Goforth,	Rodolphus Ritzema,
Abraham Walton,	William Denning,	Lindley Murray,
Peter Van Schaack,	Isaac Roosevelt,	Lancaster Burling.

Address of the Magistrates of FREDERICK County, MARYLAND, to the Honourable MATTHEW TILGHMAN, THOMAS JOHNSON, ROBERT GOLDSBOROUGH, WILLIAM PACA, and SAMUEL CHASE, Esquires.

We the subscribers, Magistrates of Frederick County, sensible of the disinterested services you have rendered your country on many occasions, but particularly as Deputies from this Province to the Grand Continental Congress, beg leave to return you our sincere acknowledgments. The whole of the proceedings of that important Assembly are so replete with loyalty to the King; with tenderness to the interest of our fellow-subjects in Great Britain; and above all, with reverential regard to the rights and liberties of America, that they cannot fail to endear you to every American, and your memory to their latest posterity.

THOMAS CRESAP,	UPTON SHEREDINE,
JOSEPH WOOD,	JOHN STULL,
DAVID LYNN,	WILLIAM DEACONS, Jun.,
ANDREW HUGH,	WILLIAM BEATTY,
WILLIAM LUCKETT,	EDWARD BURGESS,
THOMAS PRICE,	THOMAS WARREN,
THOMAS WOOTTON,	EZEKIEL COX.

Address of the Grand Jury of FREDERICK County, MARYLAND, to the Honourable MATTHEW TILGHMAN, THOMAS JOHNSON, ROBERT GOLDSBOROUGH, WILLIAM PACA, and SAMUEL CHASE, Esquires:

We, the Grand Inquest for Frederick County, deeply impressed with a sense of the regard you have on all occasions, but more particularly at the late American Congress, manifested for the interests, the rights and liberties of your country, deem it incumbent on us in this manner to testify our warmest esteem and gratitude. Permit us, gentlemen, to observe, that Councils tempered with such filial loyalty to the Sovereign, such fraternal delicacy for the sufferings of our friends in Great Britain, and, at the same, with such unshaken zeal for the preservation of the inestimable privileges derived from our admirable Constitution, cannot fail to give weight and influence to the cause, and must moderate and relax the minds of our most poignant enemies.

Signed per order, HENRY GAITHER, Foreman.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LIEUTENANT GOVERNOUR BULL TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH, DATED CHARLESTOWN, SOUTH CAROLINA, NOVEMBER 23, 1774.

Without giving your Lordship the trouble of another letter upon the result of the late Congress at Philadel- phia, which doubtless hath long since reached your Lordship's hands, I beg leave only to add, that the disposition of this Province, in their political discontents, remain the same; that the people of the Province are, in the beginning of next January, again to choose Deputies to repair to the Philadelphia Congress by the 10th of May; and that I have farther prorogued the General Assembly to the 24th day of January, before which time we expect to receive some accounts of the measures that shall be adopted by the new Parliament relative to American affairs.

WARWICK COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting held the 23d day of November, 1774, at the Court House of Warwick County, to choose a Committee to carry the late Continental Association into execution, the Freeholders proceeded by ballot, and chose the following gentlemen as a Committee for this County, viz: Colonel William Harwood, Major William Langhorne, E. Harwood, Thomas Haynes, Richard Cary, Hinde Russell, Benjamin Wills, John Jones, William Digges, William Dudley, Francis Leigh, and Joseph Massenburgh.

Colonel William Harwood appointed Chairman to the Committee, and Robert Lucas, Clerk.

MASSACHUSETTS PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

Wednesday, November 23, 1774, A. M.

The Congress met according to adjournment, and then adjourned to half past two o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

The Congress being apprehensive that the Honourable Walter Spooner, Esq., had not received the Resolve passed by them, inviting the Members of his Majesty's Constitutional Council to attend the Congress on this day, resolved that he be again wrote to, desiring his attendance here immediately, and that a messenger be despatched therewith without delay.

Resolved, That the gentlemen who were Members of the Continental, and are of this Provincial Congress, be joined to the Committee on the State of the Province.

Resolved, That John Adams, Esq., be desired to favour this Congress with his presence, as soon as may be.

Resolved, That Robert Treat Paine, Esq., be desired to attend this Congress, as soon as possible.

Then the Congress adjourned till to-morrow morning, tea o'clock.

Thursday, November 24, 1774, A. M.

Resolved, That the Chairman of the Committee from this Province, who were Members of the Continental Congress, be desired to report the Proceedings of said Congress.

Ordered, That Captain Gardner, Colonel Prescott, and Doctor Holten, be a Committee to wait on the Reverend Doctor Appleton, and desire that he would officiate as Chaplain to this Congress, during their Session in this Town.

The Committee waited upon the Reverend Doctor Appleton accordingly, and reported that they had delivered the Message, and that the Doctor would officiate as Chaplain, agreeably to the desire of the Congress.

The Chairman of the Committee appointed by this Province to meet in Continental Congress, reported that they had attended to the service; that the Congress had taken into consideration the State of the Colonies, and that he had a Journal of their whole Proceedings, which he would lay on the table.

Resolved, That the doings of the Continental Congress be now read, which were read accordingly.

Resolved, That the state of Rights, state of Grievances, and the Association, as stated by the Continental Congress, be committed. The same was accordingly committed to the Honourable Major Hawley, Honourable Mr. Dexter, Doctor Warren, Colonel Lee, Mr. Gerry, Colonel Warren, and Doctor Church, who are to consider thereof and report.

Adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

The Petition from the Officers of the Minute-Men, in the Northwest part of the County of Worcester, was read and committed to the Committee on the State of the Province.

Ordered, That the Committee appointed to sit in the recess to prepare a Plan for the Defence and Safety of the Government, be directed to sit forthwith.

Ordered, That the Committee appointed to publish the names of the Mandamus Counsellors, and others, now in the Town of Boston, be directed to sit forthwith and prepare a report.

Adjourned till to-morrow morning, ten o'clock.

Friday, November 25, 1774, A. M.

Ordered, That Doctor Holten, Colonel Foster, and Colonel Roberson, be a Committee to inquire what number of the Constitutional Counsellors are now in Town.

Resolved, That the Members from the Town of Worcester apply to Colonel Chandler and receive from him the Bayonets he has in his hands and is now ready to deliver; and inquire what sum or sums of money has been paid to him by the Treasurer, for the purpose of procuring Bayonets; how many were procured by him, and to whom they were delivered, and the state of his Account relative to the money by him received for the purpose aforesaid.

Ordered, That a copy of this Resolve be given to the Members aforesaid.

Resolved, That Doctor Holten, Doctor Foster, Colonel Roberson, Captain Baldwin, and Mr. Cushing, be a Committee to wait on such gentlemen of his Majesty's Constitutional Council of this Province, who now are in Town at the request of this Congress, and acquaint them that this Congress respectfully acknowledge their cheerful attendance, but will not be ready to offer any matters for their advice, until a quorum of that Honourable Board shall appear, and which is soon expected; and that in the mean time a seat is provided for them in this House, if they shall see cause to be present.

Resolved, That it be a rule of this Congress at present, that they sit in the forepart of the day, and that they adjourn over the afternoon, in order to give time for the Committees to sit and perfect the business with which they are severally charged.

Ordered, That Colonel Thomas, Captain Gardner, and Mr. Watson, be a Committee to inquire whether a more convenient place than that in which the Congress now sits, can be procured for them to meet in.

Resolved, That every Member of this Congress be enjoined to give their constant attendance during the session thereof; and in case any should be under the necessity of absence, that they signify the same to the Congress, in order to their obtaining leave to withdraw.

Adjourned till ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Saturday, November 26, 1774, A. M.

The Committee appointed to wait on the Members of his Majesty's Council now in Town, reported that they had attended that service; had seen the Honourable Mr. Cushing and the Honourable Mr. Seaver, and had delivered to them the Message with which they were charged; they being the only Members in Town.

Ordered, That the same Committee wait on the other gentlemen of his Majesty's Council, invited by this Congress to attend here, as they come into Town, and inform them of the Resolve of this Congress.

Ordered, That Captain Heath, Mr. Adams, Colonel Doolittle, Colonel Pomeroy, and Honourable Mr. Dexter, be a Committee to devise some means of keeping up a correspondence between this Province, Montreal, and Quebec, and of gaining very frequent intelligence from thence of their movements.

The Committee appointed yesterday to see if some more convenient place could be procured for the Congress, than that in which they now sit, reported that the new Chapel can be had, and that it is the most convenient place that they can obtain.

Ordered, That this matter now subside.

Ordered, That Mr. Sullivan, Honourable Major Hawley, and the Honourable Mr. Cushing, be a Committee to draw the form of an Order with respect to the Treasurer's giving Bonds, and report.

Ordered, That Mr. Wheeler, Mr. Adams, Honourable Mr. Cushing, and Doctor Church, be added to the Committee appointed to publish the names of the Mandamus Counsellors, and others, now in Boston.

Adjourned till Monday morning, ten o'clock.

Monday, November 28, 1774, A. M.

Ordered, That Mr. Palmer, Mr. Cushing, Colonel Gerish, Mr. Bigelow, Mr. Fuller, Mr. Picketing, and Colonel Pomeroy, be a Committee to take into consideration the state of the Manufactures, and how they may be improved in this Province.

Adjourned till ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Tuesday, November 29, 1774, A. M.

Ordered, That Colonel Henshaw, Mr. Palmer, Mr. Gorham, Mr. Lothrop, and Mr. Pigeon, be a Committee to make as just an estimate as may be of the loss and damage of every kind occasioned to the Province by the operation of the Boston Port Bill and the Act for altering the Civil Government, from their commencement to this time.

Ordered, That Doctor Foster, Mr. Gorham, and Colonel Orne, be a Committee to state the amount of the sums which have been extorted from us since the year 1763, by the operation of certain Acts of the British Parliament.

Resolved, That a messenger be despatched to the Town of Salem, in order to gain what intelligence can be had by the last vessels from London, and that the messenger bring with him the Essex Paper to this Congress; and that Mr. Bigelow be desired to take upon him the above service.

Resolved, That Mr. Devens be desired to go to Boston and inquire what advice came by the last vessels from London.

Resolved, That when this Congress shall adjourn, that it be adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

Mr. Devens reported that, in obedience to the order of the Congress, he had been to the Town of Boston; that the Letters from London by the last ships had not come to hand; that Doctor Church was in Boston, and would bring them to the Congress as soon as they should arrive.

Resolved, That to-morrow, at eleven o'clock, the Congress will take into consideration the expediency of appointing Members to attend a Continental Congress, to be held at Philadelphia, agreeably to the recommendation of the last Continental Congress.

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Wednesday, November 30, 1774, A. M.

The Order of the Day was moved for.

The expediency of appointing Members to attend a Continental Congress, was considered: Thereupon, Resolved, unanimously, as the opinion of this body, that Members be appointed to attend a Continental Congress, proposed to be held at Philadelphia, on the tenth day of May next, agreeably to the recommendation of the late Continental Congress.

Resolved, That five Members be appointed.

Resolved, That to-morrow, at three o'clock in the afternoon, be assigned to come to the choice of Delegates to attend the Continental Congress, proposed to be held at Philadelphia, on the 10th day of May next.

Ordered, That the Honourable Mr. Winthrop, Mr. Sullivan, and Doctor Foster, bring in a Resolve expressive of the Thanks of this body to the other Colonies, for their generous Donations to the inhabitants of the Town of Boston, now labouring under the oppression of certain Acts of the British Parliament.

Adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

Resolved, That the Letters from Doctor Franklin to Mr. Cushing, which have been now read, be committed to the Provincial Committee of Correspondence.

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Thursday, December 1, 1774, A. M.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve expressing the Thanks of this body to the other Colonies, for their generous Donations to the inhabitants of the Town of Boston, reported. The Report was recommitted for amendments.

the same Committee reported a Brief to be circulated through the several Towns, to promote Donations to the Towns of Boston and Charlestown; also recommitted for amendments.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration the state of Rights, the state of Grievances, and the Association, as stated by the Continental Congress, reported. The Report was then taken into consideration, and the further consideration thereof referred to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

The Congress resumed the consideration of the Report of the Committee, agreeably to their Resolve in the forenoon; after some debate thereon, it was ordered to be recommitted for an amendment.

The Resolve expressing the Thanks of this body to the other Colonies, for their Donations to the Town of Boston, &c., as amended, was read and accepted, and is as followeth:

Whereas, by the rigorous operation of the Boston Port Bill, the Metropolis of this Province, and the neighbouring Town of Charlestown, have been brought into the most distressful state, many of the inhabitants being deprived of the means of procuring their subsistence, and reduced to the cruel alternative of quitting their habitations, or of perishing in them by famine, if they had not been supported by the free and generous contributions of our sister Colonies, even front the remotest part of this Continent.

Resolved, That the grateful acknowledgments of this Congress be returned to the several Colonies, for having so deeply interested themselves in behalf of said Towns, under their present sufferings in the common cause; and that the Congress consider these Donations, not merely as unexampled acts of benevolence to this Province in general, which has also greatly suffered, and of charity to those Towns in particular, but as convincing proofs of the firm attachment of all the Colonies to the glorious cause of American Liberty, and of their fixed determination to support them in the noble stand they are now making for the liberties of themselves and of all America.

The Committee appointed to prepare a Brief, reported; their Draught amended. Ordered, To be recommitted for a revision, and for such further amendments as they shall think proper.

Ordered, That Mr. Devens apply to the Secretary for a list of Counsellors appointed by mandamus; and in case he should be refused such list, he is desired to take with him a Notary Publick, and in his presence again desire the same and tender the Secretary his fee.

Adjourned till to-morrow morning, ten o'clock.

Friday, December 2, 1774, A. M.

The Doorkeeper was directed to call in the Members, and to call none out till the further order of this Congress.

The Committee on the State of the Province, reported. The Report was taken into consideration.

Ordered, That the further consideration thereof be referred till four o'clock this afternoon, to which time this Congress stands adjourned.

Afternoon.

The Order of the Day moved for.

Ordered, That Doctor Holten, Captain Cushing, and Doctor Church, be a Committee to count and sort the votes for five Members to be chosen to represent this Province at an American Congress, to be held at Philadelphia, at or before the tenth day of May next.

The Congress then proceeded to bring in their votes for five gentlemen to be delegated for the purpose aforesaid. The Committee having counted and sorted the same, reported that the Honourable John Hancock, Honourable Thomas Cushing, Esquires, Mr. Samuel Adams, John Adams, and Robert Treat Paine, Esquires, were chosen.

The consideration of the Report of the Committee made in the forenoon, resumed - some time spent thereon, then ordered that the further consideration thereof be referred till to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

Ordered, That the vote which passed yesterday expressing the Thanks of this body to the other Colonies for their Donations made to the Towns of Boston and Charlestown, be published in all the Boston Newspapers; and that it be attested by the President.

Resolved, That the Committee appointed to publish the names of the Mandamus Counsellors who have been sworn and have not resigned, be desired to send a messenger to Mr. Hall, Printer, in Salem, and inquire of him whether he had a list of the Counsellors appointed by mandamus, which he received from the Secretary's Office; and if he hath a list so received, to desire him to favour the Congress therewith.

The Report of the Committee appointed to take into consideration the state of Rights, the state of Grievances, and the Association, as stated by the Continental Congress, being amended, was read, and a consideration thereof went into.

Ordered, That the further consideration thereof be referred till to-morrow morning, ten o'clock.

Adjourned till nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Saturday, December 3, 1774, A. M.

The Congress then went into the consideration of the Report of the Committee on the state of the Province, agreeably to their order of yesterday. After a long debate thereon, it was ordered to lie on the table, and that the Committee have leave to sit again.

Adjourned till Monday next at ten o'clock, A. M.

Monday, December 5, 1774, A. M.

Ordered, That Doctor Winthrop, Mr. Sullivan, Mr. Pickering, Mr. Bridge, and Mr. Cheever, be a Committee to prepare an Address to the Clergy of this Province, desiring them to exhort their people to carry into execution the Resolves of the Continental Congress.

Adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon,

The Congress resumed the consideration of the Report of the Committee appointed to take into consideration the state of Rights, state of Grievances, and the Association, as stated by the Continental Congress, and it was accepted, and is as followeth:

Resolved, That the Proceedings of the American Continental Congress, held at Philadelphia on the fifth of September last, and reported by the Honourable Delegates from this Colony, have, with the deliberation due their high importance, been considered by us; and the American Bill of Rights therein contained, appears to be formed with the greatest ability and judgment, to be founded on the immutable laws of nature and reason, the principles of the English Constitution, and respective Charters and Constitutions of the Colonies, and to be worthy of their most vigorous support, as essentially necessary to liberty. Likewise the ruinous and iniquitous measures, which, in violation of their Rights, at present convulse and threaten destruction to America, and appear to be clearly pointed out, and judicious plans adopted for defeating them.

Resolved, That the most grateful acknowledgments are due to the truly Honourable and Patriotick Members of the Continental Congress, for their wise and able exertions in the cause of American Liberty; and this Congress, in their own names, and in behalf of this Colony, do hereby, with the utmost sincerity, express the same.

Resolved, That the Honourable John Hancock, and Honourable Thomas Cushing, Esqrs., Mr. Samuel Adams, John Adams, and Robert Treat Paine, Esqrs., or any three of them, be and they hereby are appointed and authorized to represent this Colony on the tenth of May next, or sooner, if necessary, at the American Congress to be held at Philadelphia, with full power with the Delegates from the other American Colonies, to concert, direct, and order such further measures as shall to them appear to be best calculated for the recovery and establishment of American Rights and Liberties, and for restoring harmony between Great Britain and the Colonies.

And whereas, it is of the utmost importance that the salutary Association of the Continental Congress be effectually executed, and the plans of foes to America defeated; who, aided by tyrannical power, intend to import Goods, Wares, and Merchandise prohibited by the Association, which may clandestinely be vended as Goods imported before the first of December, instant, by assistance of such Merchants and Traders as to this intent shall basely prostitute themselves; and it will be extremely difficult to distinguish between Goods imported before the said first of December, and such as after said day shall, in violation of the Association, be imported and secretly dispersed throughout the Colony. And whereas, it is expressly recommended by the Continental Congress "to the Provincial Conventions, and to the Committees in the respective Colonies, to establish such further Regulations as they may think proper, for carrying into execution the Association;"

Resolved, That from and after the tenth day of October next, it will be indispensably necessary, that all Goods, Wares, or Merchandise, directly or indirectly imported from Great Britain or Ireland; Molasses, Syrups, Paneles, Coffee, or Pimento, from the British Plantations, or from Dominica; Wines from Madeira or the Western Islands, and foreign Indigo, should cease to be sold or purchased in this Colony, notwithstanding they shall have been imported before the first of December aforesaid, unless the Acts and parts of Acts of Parliament, (particularly enumerated in a paragraph of the American Congress' Association, subsequent to the fourteenth Article,) shall be then repealed. And it is hereby strongly recommended to the inhabitants of the Towns and Districts in this Colony, that from and after the said tenth of October, they cease to sell or purchase, and prevent from being exposed to sale within their respective limits, any Goods, Wares, or Merchandise, &c., above enumerated, which shall at any time have been imported into America, whether before or after the first of December aforesaid, unless said Acts of Parliament shall then be repealed. And it is likewise strongly recommended to the Committee of Inspection, (which ought immediately to be chosen, agreeably to the said Association, by each Town and District in the Colony not having already appointed such Committees,) that they exert themselves in causing the Association, as thereby directed, to be fully executed; and that after the said tenth day of October, (unless the Acts of Parliament aforesaid are repealed,) they apply to all the Merchants and Traders in their respective Towns and Districts, and take a full Inventory of all Goods, Wares, and Merchandise aforesaid in their possession, whether they shall have been imported before or after the first of December aforesaid, requiring them to offer no more for sale, until said Acts of Parliament shall be repealed. And if any Merchants, Traders, or others, shall refuse to have an Inventory taken, or shall offer for sale after the said tenth of October, any such Goods, Wares, or Merchandise, it is expressly recommended to the Committees aforesaid, that they take the Goods into their possession, to be stored at the risk of the proper owners, until the repeal of the Acts aforesaid, and publish the names of such refractory Merchants, Traders, or Purchasers, that they may meet with the merits of enemies to their country. And the Towns and Districts throughout the Province are also advised that they by no means fail rigorously to assist and support their Committees in discharging this as well as other duties of their offices, and to cause this Resolution to be executed by every measure which they shall think necessary.

Resolved, That John Adams, Esquire, be joined to the Committee on the State of the Province.

Resolved, That the above Report made by the Committee appointed to take into consideration the state of Rights, &c., as reported by the Continental Congress, be published in all the Newspapers in the Province, and that it be signed by the President and attested by the Secretary; and also, that copies thereof be sent to all the Towns and Districts in the Province.

Resolved, That the vote relating to a Brief be reconsidered, and that it be in order to be revised.

Adjourned till to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

Tuesday, December 6, 1774, A. M.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration the state of the Manufactures in this Province, reported; the Report was recommitted for some additions.

The Committee appointed to devise means of keeping up a Correspondence between this Province, Montreal and Quebec, and of gaining frequent intelligence from thence their movements; reported, that a Committee be appointed to correspond with the Inhabitants of Canada. Accordingly the Hon. Major Hawley, Colonel Pomeroy, Mr. Browne, Mr. Samuel Adams, Doctor Warren, Honourable Mr. Hancock, and Doctor Church, were appointed a Committee for that purpose.

The Committee appointed to prepare a Brief to be circulated through the several Towns in this Province, to promote Donations for the persons suffering in the Towns of Boston and Charlestown, under the operation of certain Acts of the British Parliament, having amended the same, reported; the Report was read and accepted, and is as followeth:

The operation of the cruel and iniquitous Boston Port Bill, that instrument of Ministerial vengeance having reduced our once happy Capital and the neighbouring Town of Charlestown, from affluence and ease to extreme distress; many of their inhabitants being deprived of even the means of procuring the necessaries of life; from all which they have most nobly refused to purchase an exemption by surrendering the Rights of Americans; and although the charitable Donations from the other Colonies and several Towns in this Province, have in a good measure relieved their immediate necessities, while their approbation has animated them to persevere in patient suffering for the publick good, yet as the severity of Winter is now approaching, which must add greatly to their misery; and there has been no general collection for them in this Colony, we hold ourselves obliged, in justice, to contribute to their support; while they, under such a weight of oppression, are supporting our Rights and Privileges.

It is therefore Resolved, That it be recommended to our constituents, the inhabitants of the other Towns, Districts, and Parishes, within this Province, that they further contribute liberally to alleviate the burden of those persons, who are the more immediate objects of Ministerial resentment, and are suffering in the common cause of their country; seriously considering how much the liberty, and consequently the happiness, of ourselves and posterity depend, under God, on the firmness and resolution of those worthy patriots.

And it is Ordered, That Doctor Foster, Mr. Devens, and Mr. Cheever, be a Committee to transmit printed copies of the above Resolve to the Ministers of the Gospel in the several Towns, Districts, and Parishes, in this Province, who are desired to read the same to their several Congregations, in order that their contributions of such necessaries of life as they can spare, may be forwarded as soon as possible.

The Committee appointed to prepare an Address to the Clergy, having amended the same, again reported; the Report was read and accepted, and ordered that copies thereof be sent to all the Ministers of the Gospel in the Province; and it is as followeth:

REVEREND SIRS: When we contemplate the friendship and assistance our ancestors, the first settlers of this Province, (while overwhelmed with distress) received from the pious Pastors of the Churches of Christ, who, to enjoy the rights of conscience, fled with them into this land, then a savage wilderness, we find ourselves filled with the most grateful sensations. And we cannot but acknowledge the goodness of Heaven in constantly supplying us with Preachers of the Gospel, whose concern has been the temporal and spiritual happiness of this people.

In a day like this, when all the friends of Civil and Religious Liberty are extending themselves to deliver this country from its present calamities, we cannot but place great hopes in an order of men who have ever distinguished themselves in their country's cause; and do therefore recommend to the Ministers of the Gospel in the several Towns and other places in this Colony, that they assist us in avoiding that dreadful slavery with which we are now threatened, by advising the people of their several Congregations, as they wish their prosperity, to abide by, and strictly adhere to, the Resolutions of the Continental Congress, as the most peaceable and probable method of preventing confusion and bloodshed, and of restoring that harmony between Great Britain and these Colonies, on which we wish might be established, not only the Rights and Liberties of America, but the opulence and lasting happiness of the whole British Empire.

Resolved, That the foregoing Address be presented to all the Ministers of the Gospel in the Province.

Adjourned to three o'clock, P. M.

Afternoon.

Resolved, That the names of the following persons be published repeatedly, they having been appointed Counsellors of this Province by Mandamus, and have not published a renunciation of their Commission, viz: Thomas Fletcher, Esquire, Foster Hutchinson, Harrison Gray, William Browne, James Bouteneau, Joshua Loring, William Pepperell, John Erving, Jun., Peter Oliver, Richard Lechmere, Josiah Edson, Nathaniel Ray Thomas, Timothy Ruggles, John Murray, and Daniel Leonard, Esquires.

Adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Wednesday, December 7, 1774, A. M.

Ordered, That Captain Barrett, Mr. Bridge, and Major Fuller, be a Committee to collect the several expenses that have accrued to the Congress in this and the former session thereof, and they are directed to sit forthwith.

Ordered, That Mr. Sullivan, Doctor Holten, Mr. Palmer, Colonel Lee, and the Honourable Colonel Ward, be a Committee to take into consideration and determine what recompense the Delegates, who from this Province attended the Continental Congress at Philadelphia, in September last, shall be allowed for their services and expenses.

Ordered, That Colonel Orne, Honourable Mr. Cashington, and Honourable Major Hawley, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve, directing the Honourable James Russell, Esquire, Impost Officer, to pay the Moneys now in his hands to Henry Gardner, Esquire, the Committee are directed to sit immediately.

Ordered, That John Adams, Esquire, Mr. Samuel Adams, and Colonel Danielson, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve, relative to taking the number of inhabitants, and the quantity of exports and imports of Merchandise and of the Manufactures of all kinds in this Colony; and the Committee was directed to sit immediately. The Committee having attended to that service, reported as followeth, viz:

Resolved, That a Committee be appointed, consisting of one gentleman from each County, and one from each maritime Town of this Colony, to prepare from the best authentick evidence which can be procured, a true state of the number of the inhabitants, and of the quantities of exports and Imports of Goods, Wares, and Merchandise, and of the Manufactures of all kinds, within the Colony, to be used by our Delegates in the Continental Congress, to be held at Philadelphia, on or before the 10th day of May next, as they shall think proper. And the members of this Committee for each County be nominated by the Members of this Congress for said County, and the member for each maritime Town be nominated by the Representatives of such Town.

Ordered, That the several Counties be ready to report their nominations at three o'clock this afternoon.

Resolved, That Mr. Sullivan be desired to forward to the Honourable Jedediah Prebble, Esquire, a Resolve of this Congress appointing him a General Officer.

Adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

The several Counties and maritime Towns nominated their members for the Committee according to the Resolve in the forenoon, who were accepted by the Congress, and are as followeth, viz:

County of SUFFOLK, Mr. Palmer; BOSTON, Doctor Warren; ESSEX, Colonel Gerrish; LYNN, Capt. Mansfield; MARBLEHEAD, Colonel Orne; SALEM, Honourable Mr. Derby; BEVERLY, Captain Batchelder; MANCHESTER, Mr. Woodbury; GLOUCESTER, Captain Coffin; IPSWICH, Captain Farley; NEWBURYPORT, Captain Greenleaf; HAVERHILL, Samuel White, Esquire; DANVERS, Doctor Holten; MIDDLESEX, Col. Prescott; CHARLESTOWN, Mr. Gorham; MEDFORD, Mr. Hall; HAMPSHIRE, Honourable Major Hawley; PLYMOUTH, Doctor Perkins; Town of PLYMOUTH, Mr. Lothrop; KINGSTON, Colonel Thomas; DUXBURY, Mr. Partridge; SCITUATE, Nathan Cushing, Esquire; BARNSTABLE, Daniel Davis, Esquire; SANDWICH, Captain Nye; EASTHAM, Mr. Holbrook; BRISTOL, Doctor Cobb; DARTMOUTH, Benjamin Aiken, Esquire; FREETOWN, Mr. Durfee; YORK, Mr. Sullivan; KITTERY, Charles Chauncy, Esquire.

Thursday, December 8, 1774, A. M.

As the happiness of particular families arises in a great degree, from their being more or less dependent upon others; and as the less occasion they have for any article belonging to others, the more independent, and consequently the happier they are; so the happiness of every political body of men upon earth is to be estimated, in a great measure, upon their greater or less dependence upon any other political bodies; and from hence arises a forcible argument, why every state ought to regulate their internal policy in such a manner as to furnish themselves, within their own body, with every necessary article for subsistence and defence, otherwise their political existence will depend upon others who may take advantage of such weakness and reduce them to the lowest state of vassalage and slavery. For preventing so great an evil, more to be dreaded than death itself, it must be the wisdom of this Colony at all times, more especially at this time, when the hand of power is lashing us with the scorpions of despotism, to encourage Agriculture, Manufactures, and Economy, so as to render this State as independent of every other State as the nature of our country will admit; from the consideration thereof, and trusting that the virtue of the People of this Colony is such that the following Resolutions of this Congress, which must be productive of the greatest good, will by them be effectually carried into execution, and it is therefore Resolved:

1st. That we do recommend to the people the improvement of their breed of Sheep, and the greatest possible increase of the same; and also the preferable use of our own Woollen Manufactures; that the Manufacturers ask only reasonable prices for their Goods; and especially a very careful sorting of the Wool, so that it may be manufactured to the greatest advantage, and as much as may be into the best Goods.

2d. We do also recommend to the people the raising of Hemp and Flax; and as large quantities of Flaxseed, more than may be wanted for sowing, may be produced, we would also farther recommend the manufacturing the same into Oil.

3d. We do likewise recommend the making of Nails, which we apprehend must meet with the strongest encouragement from the publick, and be of lasting benefit both to the manufacturer and the publick.

4th. The making of Steel, and the preferable use of the same, we do also recommend to the inhabitants of this Colony.

5th. We do in the like manner recommend the making of Tin Plates, as an article well worth the attention of this people.

6th. As Fire Arms have been manufactured in several parts of this Colony, we do recommend the use of such in preference to any imported; and we do recommend the making of Gun-Locks, and Furniture, and other Locks, with other articles in the Iron way.

7th. We do also earnestly recommend the making of Saltpetre, as an article of vast importance, to be encouraged as may be directed hereafter.

8th. That Gun Powder is also an article of such importance, that every man among us who loves his country, must wish the establishment of Manufactures for that purpose, and as there are the ruins of several Powder Mills, and sundry persons among us who are acquainted with that business, we do heartily recommend its encouragement by repairing one or more of said Mills, or erecting others, and renewing said business as soon as possible.

9th. That as several Paper Mills are now usefully employed, we do likewise recommend a preferable use of our own Manufactures in this way; and a careful saving and collecting of Rags, &c. And, also, that the manufacturers give a generous price for such Rags, &c.

10th. That it will be the interest as well as the duty of this body, or of such as may succeed us, to make such effectual provision for the further manufacturing of the several sorts of Glass, as that the same may be carried on to the mutual benefit of the undertaker and the publick, and firmly established in this Colony.

11th. Whereas Buttons, of excellent qualities, and of various sorts, are manufactured among us, we do earnestly recommend the general use of the same, so that the Manufactories may be extended to the advantage of the people and the manufacturers.

12th. And whereas Salt is an article of vast consumption within this Colony, and in its fisheries, we do heartily recommend the making the same in the several ways wherein it is made in several parts of Europe, especially in the method used in that part of France where they make Bay Salt.

13th. We do likewise recommend an encouragement of horn Smiths in all their various branches, as what will be of publick utility.

14th. We do also recommend the establishment of one or more Manufactories for making Wool-combers Combs, as an article necessary in our Woollen Manufactures.

15th. We do in like manner heartily recommend the preferable use of the Stockings and other Hosiery worn among ourselves, so as to enlarge the Manufactories thereof, in such manner as to encourage the manufacturers and serve the country.

16th. As Madder is an article of great importance in the Diet's business, and which may be easily raised and cured among ourselves, we do therefore earnestly recommend the raising and curing the same.

17th. In order the more effectually to carry these Resolutions into effect, we do earnestly recommend that a Society or Societies be established for the purposes of introducing and establishing such Arts and Manufactures as may be useful to this people, and are not yet introduced, and the more effectually establishing such as we already have among us.

18th. We do recommend to the inhabitants of this Province to make use of our own Manufactures, and those of our sister Colonies in preference to all other Manufactures.

Afternoon.

The Order of the Day was moved for.

Resolved, That Doctor Church, Mr. Wheeler, and Doctor Holten, be a Committee to count and sort the votes for two General Officers, and that the Congress vote for the Officers separately.

The Congress then proceeded to bring in their votes for a General Officer, the Committee having counted and sorted the same, reported that Colonel Thomas was chosen.

The Congress then proceeded to bring in their votes for one other General Officer; the Committee having counted and sorted the same, reported that Colonel William Heath was chosen.

Congress then adjourned till to-morrow morning, ten o'clock.

Friday, December 9, 1774, A. M.

The Committee appointed to inquire into the sufficiency of the bondsmen procured by the Receiver General, reported that they had attended to that service, and that the gentlemen he had engaged as his security were amply sufficient for the sum mentioned.

Ordered, That Mr. Sullivan, Mr. Picketing, and Mr. Sayer, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve relating to an Address from the Baptists to this Congress.

Ordered, That the Report of the Committee, relative to the Publick Moneys, now in the hands of the Constables and others, which was ordered to lie on the table, be now taken up; which was taken up accordingly and passed, and is as followeth, viz:

Whereas this Congress at their session in October last, taking into consideration the alarming state of this Colony, were upon the most mature deliberation fully convinced, that to provide against the danger to which it was then exposed by a Standing Army illegally posted in Boston, and from time to time reinforced for the purposes of subverting our ancient Constitution and the liberties of all North America, it was indispensably necessary that a considerable sum of money should be immediately laid out for the just defence of this people; and whereas by a Resolve of the Congress, bearing date the 28th of said October, and published in the Newspapers, it was among other things earnestly recommended to the several Towns and Districts that they would cause to be paid into the hands of Henry Gardner, Esq., all the Province Money due from them respectively, to supply the said pressing exigencies of the Colony; and whereas the danger that then threatened the Province still continues and is daily increasing:

It is Resolved, And hereby most earnestly recommended to all the inhabitants of the Towns and Districts aforesaid, as they regard their own safety and the preservation of their inestimable rights and liberties, that they cause the Moneys aforesaid to be paid forthwith to the said Henry Gardner, Esquire, who hath given Bonds with sufficient sureties, to the satisfaction of this Congress, and that they cause their respective proportion of the Tax granted by the General Court in June last, and all other the Province Moneys due from them respectively, to be supplied in some way that shall be more expeditious than the usual mode of collecting the Taxes, in order to prevent any delay in providing against the imminent dangers above mentioned. And the Members of the Congress are hereby desired to exert their utmost industry for having this Resolve speedily and punctually complied with; and the Sheriffs and Deputy Sheriffs of the several Counties to pay the Province Moneys in their respective hands as has been already recommended.

Ordered, That Colonel Orne, Mr. Pickering, and Colonel Cushing, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve purporting the sense of this Congress of the Continental Congress' Association, as now voted, relative to Goods, Wares, and Merchandise, landed in England and Ireland, as well as those which are manufactured in England and Ireland; who reported as followeth, which was read and accepted, and ordered to be sent to the Committee at Marblehead, and published in the Newspapers:

Resolved, That it is the clear opinion of this Congress that the first article in the Association of the Continental Congress extends to all Goods, Wares, and Merchandise, of the growth, production, or manufacture, of any part of Europe, or any other part of the world imported from Great Britain or Ireland, in case they have been entered and cleared in any part of either of those Kingdoms, as fully as to Goods, Wares, and Merchandise, of the growth, production and manufacture of Great Britain or Ireland, and that the said first article ought to be so construed by all concerned, and in that universal sense carried strictly into execution.

Ordered, That Colonel Heath, Colonel Gerrish, Colonel Gardner, Captain Fuller, Colonel Thomas, Colonel Orne, and Colonel Barnes, be a Committee to take into consideration a plan of Military Exercise, proposed by Captain Timothy Pickering.

Ordered, That the Petition of the Officers in the Northwesterly part of the County of Worcester, be committed to the same Committee, and report.

Afternoon.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve, relative to the Petition of the Reverend Mr. Backus, in behalf of the Baptists, reported; which was read and accepted, and the Secretary directed to send him a copy of the Resolve, which is as followeth, viz:

On reading the Memorial of the Reverend Isaac Backus, Agent to the Baptist Churches in this Government, Resolved, That the establishment of Civil and Religious Liberty, to each denomination in the Province, is the sincere wish of this Congress; but being by no means vested with power of Civil Government, whereby they can redress the grievances of any person whatsoever, they therefore recommend to the Baptist Churches, that, when a General Assembly shall be convened in this Colony, they lay the real grievances of said Churches before the same, when and where their Petition will most certainly meet with all that attention due to the Memorial of a denomination of Christians so well disposed to the publick weal of their country.

Ordered, That Mr. Stickney, Colonel Gardner, Colonel Pomeroy, Colonel Thayer, and Mr. Wheeler, be a Committee to wait on the Reverend Doctor Appleton, and return him the Thanks of this Congress for his services as Chaplain during this session.

Ordered, That Major Fuller, Captain Brown, and Mr. Pigeon, be a Committee to wait on the Proprietors of the Meeting House and return them the Thanks of the Congress for the use thereof.

The Congress then adjourned for half an hour.

Being met upon the adjournment, Mr. President brought into Congress a Letter from the Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Hardwick, with a number of Papers enclosed, which were read; the Congress then ordered that Mr. Sullivan, Mr. Pickering, Colonel Gardner, Colonel Mendal, and Colonel Danielson, be a Committee to take the same into consideration and report in the morning.

Adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Saturday, December 10, 1774, A. M.

The Committee to take into consideration the Letter and Papers enclosed received from the Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Hardwick, reported; which was read and accepted, and ordered to be published in the publick Papers, and also the Papers on which the said Report is founded. The Report is as followeth, viz:

Whereas, it appears to this Congress that one or more members of the lately appointed unconstitutional Council in this Province, now residing in Boston, has sent to the Town of Hardwick a paper purporting to be an Association to be entered into by those persons who falsely assume the name of friends to Government; calculated to counteract the salutary designs of the Continental and Provincial Congresses, to deceive the people into agreements contrary to the welfare of this country, and tending in its consequences to hinder an amicable accommodation with our mother country, - the sole end of those Congresses and the ardent wish of every friend to America. It is therefore recommended by this Congress to the several Committees of Correspondence in this Colony, that they give notice to the Provincial Congress, that shall meet in this Province on the first day of February next, and the earliest notice to the publick, of all such combinations, and of the persons signing the same, if any should be enticed thereto, that their names may be published to the world, their persons treated with that neglect, and their memories transmitted to posterity with that ignominy which such unnatural conduct must deserve.

The Committee on the State of the Province reported an Address to the Inhabitants of Massachusetts Bay; the Report was considered by paragraphs, and so passed, and was ordered to be printed in all the Boston Newspapers, and also in handbills, and a copy thereof sent to all the Towns and Districts in the Province, and is as followeth, viz:

To the Freeholders and other Inhabitants of the Towns and Districts of MASSACHUSETTS BAY.

FRIENDS AND BRETHREN: At a time when the good people of this Colony were deprived of their laws, and the administration of justice, civil and criminal; when the cruel oppressions brought on their capital had stagnated almost all their Commerce; when a Standing Army was illegally posted among us for the express purpose of enforcing submission to a system of tyranny; and when the General Court was with the same design prohibited to sit; we were chosen and empowered by you to assemble and consult upon measures necessary for our common safety and defence.

With much anxiety for the common welfare we have attended this service, and upon the coolest deliberation have adopted the measures recommended to you.

We have still confidence in the wisdom, justice, and goodness of our Sovereign, as well as the integrity, humanity and good sense of the Nation; and if we had a reasonable expectation that the truth of facts would be made known in England, we should entertain the most pleasing hopes that the measures concerted by the Colonies jointly and severally, would procure a full redress of our grievances; but we are constrained in justice to you, to ourselves, and posterity, to say, that the incessant and unrelenting malice of our enemies has been so successful as to fill the Court and Kingdom of Great Britain with falsehoods and calumnies concerning us, and excite the most bitter and groundless prejudices against us; that the sudden dissolution of Parliament, and the hasty summons for a new election, gives us reason to apprehend that a majority of the House of Commons will be again elected under the influence of an arbitrary Ministry; and that the general tenor of our intelligence from Great Britain, with the frequent reinforcements of the Army and Navy at Boston, excites the strongest jealousy that the system of Colony administration, so unfriendly to the Protestant Religion, and destructive of American Liberty, is still to be pursued and attempted with force to be carried into execution.

You are placed by Providence in a post of honour, because it is the post of danger. And while struggling for the noblest objects, the liberties of your country, the happiness of posterity, and rights of human nature, the eyes not only of North America and the whole British Empire, but of all Europe, are upon you. Let us be therefore altogether solicitous, that no disorderly behaviour, nothing unbecoming our characters as Americans, as Citizens, and Christians, be justly chargeable to us.

Whoever with a small degree of attention contemplates the Commerce between Great Britain and America, will be convinced that a total stoppage thereof, will soon produce in Great Britain such dangerous effects, as cannot fail to convince the Ministry, Parliament, and People, that it is their interest and duty to grant us relief. Whoever considers the number of brave men inhabiting North America, will know that a general attention to military discipline must so establish their rights and liberties, as, under God, to render it impossible for an arbitrary Ministry of Britain to destroy them. These are facts which our enemies are apprized of, and if they will not be influenced by principles of justice, to alter their cruel measures towards America, these ought to lead them thereto. They however hope to effect by stratagem what they may not obtain by power, and are using arts, by the assistance of base scribes, who undoubtedly receive their bribes, and by many other means, to raise doubts and divisions throughout the Colonies.

To defeat their wicked designs, we think it necessary for each Town to be particularly careful, strictly to execute the plans of the Continental and Provincial Congresses; and while it censures its own individuals, counteracting those plans, that it be not deceived or diverted from its duty by rumors, should any take place, to the prejudice of other communities. Your Provincial Congresses we have reason to hope will hold up the Towns, if any should be so lost as not to act their parts, and none can doubt that the Continental Congress will rectify errors should any take place in any Colony through the subtlety of our enemies. Surely no arguments can be necessary to excite you to the most strict adherence to the American Association, since the minutest deviation in one Colony, especially in this, will probably be misrepresented in the others, to discourage their general zeal and perseverance, which however we assure ourselves cannot be effected.

While the British Ministry are suffered with a high hand to tyrannize over America, no part of it we presume can be negligent in guarding against the ravages threatened by the Standing Army now in Boston; these Troops will undoubtedly be employed in attempts to defeat the Association, which our enemies cannot but fear will eventually defeat them; and so sanguinary are those our enemies, as we have reason to think so thirsty for the blood of this innocent people, who are only contending for their rights, that we should be guilty of the most unpardonable neglect should we not apprise you of your danger, which appears to us imminently great, and ought attentively to be guarded against. The improvement of the Militia in general in the Art Military has been therefore thought necessary, and strongly recommended by Congress. We now think that particular care should be taken by the Towns and Districts in this Colony, that each of the Minute-Men, not already provided therewith, should be immediately equipped with an effective Fire Arm, Bayonet, Pouch, Knapsack, thirty rounds of Cartridges and Balls, and that they be disciplined three times a week, and oftener, as opportunity may offer. To encourage these our worthy countrymen to obtain the skill of complete soldiers, we recommend it to the Towns and Districts forthwith to pay their own Minute-Men a reasonable consideration for their services. And in case of a general muster, their further services must be recommended by the Province. An attention to discipline the Militia in general is however by no means to be neglected.

With the utmost cheerfulness we assure you of our determination to stand or fall with the liberties of America; and while we humbly implore the Sovereign Disposer of all things, to whose divine providence the rights of his creatures cannot be indifferent, to correct the errors, and alter the measures of an infatuated Ministry, we cannot doubt of his support even in the extreme difficulties which we all may have to encounter. May all means devised for our safety by the General Congress of America, and Assemblies or Conventions of the Colonies, be resolutely executed, and happily succeed; and may this injured People be reinstated in the full exercise of their rights without the evils and devastations of a civil war.

Ordered, That the Members of the Town of Boston, with the Secretary, be a Committee to revise the doings of this Congress, and cause such parts thereof, as they think fit should be published, to be printed in pamphlet, and a copy thereof sent to every Town and District in this Province.

The Report of the Committee on the State of the Province, relative to assuming Civil Government, taken up, and ordered further to lie on the table.

Ordered, That the Members be enjoined to attend in the afternoon.

Adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

The Committee appointed to collect the several Expenses which have accrued to the Congress in this and a former session thereof, reported; which Report was read and accepted, and the Receiver General ordered to pay and discharge the several demands therein mentioned.

Ordered, That the Secretary be directed to furnish the Committee of Safety with a number of attested copies of their appointment to that trust.

Resolved, That a gentleman be appointed in each County, to apply to the Field Officers of the Regiments within the same, for the List of the names of the Field Officers of each Regiment, the number of other Officers, and the number of Men therein, as well the Minute-Men as the common Militia, and return the same unto Mr. Abraham Watson, of Cambridge.

Accordingly the following gentlemen were appointed: For the County of SUFFOLK, Colonel Heath; ESSEX, Captain Farley; MIDDLESEX, Colonel Smith; HAMPSHIRE, Colonel Pomeroy; PLYMOUTH, Colonel Warren; BARNSTABLE, Daniel Davis, Esquire; BRISTOL, Major Keith; YORK, Mr. Sullivan; WORCESTER, Captain Bigelow; CUMBERLAND, Mr. March; BERKSHIRE, Doctor Whiting; LINCOLN, Captain Thompson; DUKES County, Joseph Mayhew, Esquire.

The Committee on the State of the Province reported: which was read and accepted; and Ordered, That printed copies be sent to the several Committees of Correspondence, and where there is no such Committee, to the Selectmen of each Town and District in the Province; and that the same order be observed relative to the Address to the inhabitants of Massachusetts Bay, and that the Members of the Town of Boston, and the Secretary disperse the same. And is as followeth, viz:

Inasmuch as many states have been taught by fatal experience that powers delegated by the People for long periods have been abused to the endangering the publick rights and liberties, and this Congress having just reason to suppose that their constituents, the good People of this Province, when they appointed their present Delegates, were not apprehensive that the business necessary to be done would require their attendance for any long time,

Resolved, That the adjournment of this Congress on the twenty-ninth day of October last, was ordered and made from a due consideration of the present exigencies of the publick affairs, and the evident necessity of farther deliberation thereon. And whereas for the reason first mentioned, it is not expedient that there should be a farther adjournment of this Congress; therefore Resolved, That after the business necessary to be immediately despatched shall be finished, the Congress be dissolved.

And this Congress being deeply impressed with a sense of the increasing danger which threatens the Rights and Liberties of the People of this Province with total ruin; our adversaries being still indefatigable in their attempts to carry into execution their deep laid plans for that wicked purpose: And considering the indispensable necessity that an Assembly of the Province should be very frequently sitting to consult and devise means for their common safety; therefore Resolved, That it be, and it is hereby earnestly recommended to the several Towns and Districts in this Province, that they each of them do forthwith elect and depute as many Members as to them shall seem necessary and expedient, to represent them in a Provincial Congress, to be held at Cambridge, on the first day of February next ensuing; to be chosen by such only as are qualified by law to vote for Representative in the General Assembly, and be continued by adjournment, as they shall see cause, until the Tuesday next preceding the last Wednesday of May next, and no longer; to consult, deliberate and resolve upon such farther measures as, under God, shall be effectual to save this People from impending ruin, and to secure those inestimable liberties derived to us from our ancestors, and which it is our duty to preserve for posterity.

And considering the great uncertainty of the present times, and that unexpected important events may take place, from whence it may absolutely be necessary the Delegates who may be elected as above proposed should meet sooner than the day before mentioned, it is recommended to the several Towns and Districts, that they instruct and authorize their said Delegates, to assemble at Cambridge aforesaid, or any other place, upon notice given them of the necessity thereof, by the Delegates that may be chosen by the Towns of Charlestown, Cambridge, Brookline, Roxbury and Dorchester, or the majority of them, in such Nay as they shall judge proper.

And it is further recommended to the Delegates to be elected, that they conform themselves to such instructions.

Ordered, That the further consideration of the Report of the Committee appointed to take into consideration what allowance should be made the Delegates who attend the Continental Congress from this Province, be referred to the sitting of the next Provincial Congress.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration a plan of Military Exercise, proposed by Captain Pickering, and also the Petition of the Officers of the Northwest part of the County of Worcester, reported; the Report was read and accepted.

Ordered, That the expense of transmitting the Address to the Canadians be paid by this Government.

The business necessary to be immediately transacted, being finished, and the Congress having returned their Thanks to the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., for his constant attendance and faithful services as President during their session, dissolved the same, to convene again the first day of February next, conformably to the preceding Resolve.

Chesterfield Court House, Virginia, November 25, 1774.

Proper notice having been given, requesting the Freeholders of the County to meet here on this day, in order to choose a Committee for the said County, a great number assembled and made choice of the following gentlemen, viz: Archibald Cary, Benjamin Watkins, Bernard Markham, Robert Goode, Francis Goode, Daniel M'Callum, Thomas Randolph, Robert Donald, James Donald, Robert Kennon, George Robinson, John Archer, Abraham Sally, Joseph Bass, Benjamin Branch, Thomas Bolling, Neil Buchanan, Thomas Worsham, Field Trent, Alexander Trent, John Bott.

A majority of the Committee being present, appointed Archibald Cary, Esquire, their Chairman.

The Committee then ordered that notice should be given in the publick Papers, requesting that any matters relating to the Association, and which came before the said Committee, might be directed to Archibald Cary, Esq., or, in his absence, to Mr. Thomas Randolph.

Ordered, That the Chairman, or, in his absence, Mr. Thomas Randolph, do appoint a time and place for the Committee to convene themselves, as occasion may require.

Ordered, That Jerman Baker be wrote to by Mr. Chairman, requesting the favour of him to act as Clerk to the said Committee, and then the Committee adjourned.

ARCHIBALD CARY. Chairman.

JAMES CITY COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE,

At a General Meeting of the Freeholders of James City County, convened on Friday, the 25th of November, at the house of Mr. Isham Allen, in order to elect a Committee pursuant to a Resolution of the American Continental Congress: -

The Association entered into by the Congress, being publicly read, the freeholders and other inhabitants of the County, that they might testify to the world their concurrence and hearty approbation of the measures adopted by that respectable body, very cordially acceded thereto, and did bind and oblige themselves, by the sacred ties of virtue, honour, and love to their country, strictly and inviolably to observe and keep the same in every particular.

The better to secure a due observance of the Association, the freeholders then proceeded to the choice of a Committee, and elected into that office the following gentlemen, viz: Robert Carter Nicholas, Esq., Mr. William Norvill, Colonel Philip Johnson, Major Dudley Richardson, Mr. William Spratley, Colonel Richard Taliaferro, Mr. John Cooper, Colonel Nathaniel Burwell, Mr. Lewis Burwell, Jun., Mr. Champion Travis, Mr. Joseph Eggleston, Major Thurston James, Mr. John Stringer, Captain Charles Barham, Captain Richardson Henley, Mr. Thomas Cowles, Captain John Walker, Mr. Hudson Allen, Mr. Cary Wilkinson, Mr. Edward Harris, Mr. John Harris, Mr. William Barret, Mr. John Warburton, Mr. Sylvanus Prince, Mr. Robert Higginson, Mr. William Haukin, Captain John Lightfoot, and Mr. Thomas Doncastle.

Robert Carter Nicholas, Esq., was unanimously chosen Chairman, and Mr. John Nicholas, Jun, Clerk of the Committee.

It was agreed that the Resolutions of the General Congress should be resorted to on every occasion of difficulty, and that those Resolutions ought to be considered by the Committee and the whole country, as the sole rule of their conduct, in all matters respecting their present political engagements.

Published by order of the General Meeting,

JOHN NICHOLAS, Jun., Clerk Com. J. C. C.

Baltimore, November 28, 1774.

The Committee for the upper part of Frederick County, Maryland, having met at Elizabethtown, on Saturday, the 26th of November, which was the day appointed for the delivery of John Parks's chest of Tea, in consequence of his agreement published in the Maryland Journal, of the 16th ultimo:

After a demand was made of the same, Mr. Parks offered a chest of Tea, found on a certain Andrew Gibson's Plantation, Cumberland County, Pennsylvania, by the Committee for that place, which Tea he declared was the same he promised to deliver.

The Committee are sorry to say that they have great reason to believe, and indeed with almost a certainty, that the said chest of Tea was in Cumberland County at the time Parks said upon oath it was at Christian Bridge.

After mature deliberation, the Committee were of opinion that John Parks should go with his hat off, and lighted torches in his hands, and set fire to the Tea: which he accordingly did, and the same was consumed to ashes, amidst the acclamations of a numerous body of people. The Committee were also of opinion, that no further intercourse should be had with the said Parks. Every friend to liberty is requested to pay due attention to the same.

Voted, The Thanks of this Committee to that of Cumberland County, for their prudent and spirited behaviour upon the occasion, Signed by order of the Committee,

JOHN STULL, President.

To the Freeholders of the County of ESSEX, in the Province of NEW-JERSEY, qualified to vote for Representatives in the Legislature:

GENTLEMEN: The zeal you have hitherto manifested in support of the constitutional liberties of your country will unquestionably prompt you to carry into execution, with firmness and unanimity, the wise and prudent Resolutions lately entered into by the Delegates of this Continent, in General Congress. In the eleventh Article of the Association, formed in behalf of themselves and their constituents, it was agreed "That a Committee be appointed in "every County, City, and Town, by those who are qualified to vote for Representatives in the Legislature, whose "business it shall be to observe the conduct of all persons "touching the said Association." We, your Committee of Correspondence, cannot in the least your ready and immediate compliance with the Article; for, as the salutary effects to arise from this Association, must, under God, depend upon the fidelity of individuals in carrying it precisely into execution; so, should any inhabitant of this Colony be found so lost to a sense of publick virtue, as to violate the same in any instance, such person, pursuant to the said Article, may, by your Committee% be held up to "publick notice, as unfriendly to the liberties of his country, and all dealings with him or her be thenceforward broken off. We have therefore thought fit to recommend to you, that for the more extensive observation of the conduct of individuals, Committees be chosen for each of the three Precincts into which the County is divided, viz: Elizabethtown, Newark, and Achquakanung; and we do hereby give notice to and request the Freeholders of the respective Precincts, to convene for that purpose, as follows; for the Borough of Elizabeth, at the Court House, in Elizabethtown, on Tuesday, the sixth day of December next, at two o'clock, P. M.; for Newark, at the Court House, in Newark, on Wednesday, the seventh day of December; and for Achquakanung, on Monday, the twelfth day of December, at the Bridge, opposite the house of Timothy Day. And we do also recommend to you, that ten at least of the most reputable inhabitants for Achquakanung, fifteen for Newark, and twenty for Elizabethtown, be elected for the above purpose.

As Delegates for the several Colonies are again to be appointed, to meet at Philadelphia, on the tenth day of May next. it will be farther expedient that the inhabitants make choice era new Committee of Correspondence, with power to instruct the Representatives for this County, when convened in General Assembly, to join in the appointment of Delegates for thee Colony to meet in the said Congress. But if the said General Assembly shall not appoint Delegates for that purpose, by the first day of April next, then the said Committee of Correspondence do meet with the several County Committees of this Colony, and appoint the said Delegates at such time and place as shall be agreed upon by the said Committees.

Committee Chamber, Philadelphia. November 30, 1774.

TO THE PUBLICK.

Whereas the Congress, among other Resolves for the preservation of American Liberty, did, on behalf of themselves and the inhabitants of the several Colonies they represented, firmly agree and associate to "use their utmost "endeavours to improve the breed of Sheep, and increase "their number to the greatest extent, and to that end to "kill them as sparingly as may be, especially those of the "most profitable kind, the Committee for the City and Liberties of Philadelphia having taken into consideration the said Resolve, do most earnestly recommend to the inhabitants, as the best method of carrying the same into execution, neither to purchase for themselves or others, nor to. use in their families or elsewhere, any Ewe Mutton, or Lamb, from and after the first day of January next, until the first day of May following; and from and after the said first day of May, not to purchase or use any Ewe Lamb until the first day of October following; and to discourage from henceforth the killing and sale of Ewe Mutton and Lamb, as far as they possibly can.

They do likewise most earnestly recommend to all Butchers, and others concerned in bringing Meat to the Markets in this City and Suburbs, not to kill any Ewe Mutton or Lamb, on any pretence whatsoever, from the said first day of January until the first day of May following; nor any Ewe Lamb whatever, from the said first day of May until the first day of October following. And in order the more effectually to discourage the destruction of Sheep, the respective County Committees are hereby particularly requested henceforth to use their utmost influence with the Farmers and others through the country to prevent the sale of any Ewe Mutton or Lamb to the Butchers, as well as their bringing any to Market themselves, from this day until the said first day of May.

Several of the City Butchers having at this time a stock of Sheep on hand, induces the Committee to fix upon the first day of January, that in the mean time they may dispose of them; but as to the country Butchers and Farmers it is expected they will neither kill or sell any Ewe Mutton or Lamb, or bring any to Market from this day until the said first day of May; or kill or sell any Ewe Lamb after the first day of May until the first day of October following.

The Committee having been informed that a few persons have unguardedly raised the prices of sundry articles of trade, think it highly necessary to recommend to the publick a due observation of the ninth Article of the Association of the Congress, viz: "That such as are venders of "Goods or Merchandise will not take advantage of the "scarcity of Goods that may be occasioned by this Association, but will sell the same at the rates we have been "respectively accustomed to do for twelve months last past. "And if any vender of Goods or Merchandise shall sell "any such Goods on higher terms, or shall in any manner "or by any device whatsoever, violate or depart from this "Agreement, no person ought, nor will any of us deal with "any such person, or his or her factor or agent, at any "time thereafter, for any commodity whatever."

By order of the Committee,

JOHN BENEZET, Assistant Secretary.

At a Meeting of the Committees of the several Townships in the County of Philadelphia, agreeable to advertisement, it was Resolved, That the Committees for each Township be continued, to act as a Township Committee.

And the more effectually to carry the Association Agreement of the Continental Congress into execution, it was

Philadelphia, November 30, 1774.

TO THE COMMITTEES APPOINTED TO SEE THE MEASURES OF THE CONGRESS EXECUTED.

GENTLEMEN: As you are appointed by the several Colonies to see the measures of the Congress effectually executed, and to detect and expose every enemy to our cause, I would humbly submit to your wisdom and consideration the following queries:

1st. Whether, upon a serious and candid perusal of the pamphlet, entitled "A friendly Address to all Reasonable Americans," &c., printed at New-York, you think that any person can believe that the author, in writing and publishing said Address, intended to serve the Colonies?

2d. Whether every one, both friend and foe to our cause, must not consider it as an attempt to divide and distract the Colonies, and thereby aid the Ministry in their diabolical design of enslaving us?

3d. Whether this abuse of the people of New England, for their fortitude and perseverance, ought not to be resented by every friend to our liberties?

4th. Whether the manner in which he has treated the Grand Continental Congress, does not gall immediately under your notice?

5th. Whether the person who publicly avows opposition to their measures, and so warmly calls upon the people to refuse obedience to them, is not as wicked and dangerous an enemy as any Merchant who should import Goods contrary to their Resolves?

6th. Whether it does not, therefore, appear to be part of your duty to use every proper method of discovering the author, and publishing his name in the several newspapers on the Continent, as an enemy to America?

7th. Whether your neglecting this measure will not be an encouragement to abler pens to make like attempts, to the detriment of our cause?

PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY (MARYLAND) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting, in Upper Marlborough, of a great number of respectable Freeholders and others of Prince George's County, qualified to vote for Representatives, John Rogers, Esquire, was chosen Moderator, and the following persons were nominated and appointed a Committee to carry into execution, within the said County, the Association of the American Continental Congress, to wit: Richard Duckett, Junior, Thomas Gantt, Senior, Colonel Joshua Beall, William Deakins, Senior, Abraham Boyd, Walter Bowie, Jonathan Slater, Wm. Berry, Bazil Waring, the Third, Thomas Williams, Walter Williams, Thomas Sprigs, Junior, George Lee, John Addison, Enoch Magruder, John Brown, Patrick Beall, John Low, Ignatius Wheeler, Lake Marbury, Nathaniel Newton, Josias Beall, James Hawkins, William Lyles, Junior, Hezekiah Wheeler,

* TO THE PUBLICK. - My name having appeared in the publick papers as one of a Committee to carry into execution some late conclusions, which was without my privacy or consent, and has occasioned a great deal of uneasiness to my mind, and as, upon serious and deliberate consideration, I have not been free to attend on that occasion, nor do not purpose to be any ways active therein, I think it right to give this publick notice.

And it was resolved that any seven of them have power to act.

It was further resolved that the following persons be a Committee of Correspondence for the same County, to wit: Doctor Richard Brook, John Rogers, Esquire, Captain William Bowie, David Crauford, John Cooke, Esquire, John Contee, Addison Murdock, John Hepburn, Esquire, Robert Tyler, Josias Beall, Osborn Sprigs, Richard Duckett, Junior, Matthew Eversfield, and Captain Joshua Beall.

And it was also resolved, that the following persons, to wit: Doctor Richard Brooke, Josias Beall, Robert Tyler, John Rogers, Esquire, Joshua Beall, William Bowie, Addison Murdock, Walter Bowie, Thomas Gantt, Junior, George Lee, Osborn Sprigs, Edward Sprigs, and David Crauford, be a Committee to attend at any Provincial Convention to be held at Annapolis; and that the said Committee have authority to vote in the said Convention for Delegates to attend at a Congress to be held at Anna-Tolls; and that the said Committee have authority to vote in said Convention for Delegates to attend at a Congress to be held at Philadelphia, on the tenth of May next, and enter into all such resolutions which the said Provincial Convention may judge necessary and expedient.

And ordered that the foregoing proceedings be published in the Maryland Gazette. Signed per order,
HUGH LYON, Clerk.

At a Meeting of the Freeholders of Elizabethtown, in Essex County, in the Province of New-Jersey, on Tuesday, the first day of December, 1774,

STEPHEN CRANE, Esquire, in the Chair:

The Committee of Correspondence for the County of Essex having produced the Association lately entered into by the Delegates of the American Colonies, met in General Congress, the same was read to, and then unanimously approved and adopted by the whole Assembly; who were pleased at the same time to signify their thanks to the Delegates of this Colony for their faithful services.

It was then proposed, that, pursuant to the eleventh Article of the said Association, a large Committee should be now chosen for the purposes therein mentioned, which was also agreed to, and the following persons were accordingly appointed, viz: Jonathan Hampton, Matthias Williamson, Elias Dayton, Isaac Woodruff, William Barnett, Wm. Herriman, Oliver Spencer, George Ross, Edward Thomas, Cornelius Hetfield, John Blanchard, Ephraim Tyrrel, Abraham Clarke, Robert Ogden, Junior, Jeremiah Smith, Richard Townley, Junior, Samuel Shotwell, David Miller, Thomas Woodruff, John Clawson, Jonathan Dayton, Ephraim Marsh, Recompence Stanbury, Jedediah Swan, William Parsons, Samuel Potter, William Bert, Jonathan Williams, Christopher Marsh, Isaac Wynants, Daniel Halsey.

After which the Committee of Correspondence informed the Assembly that, having executed the services for which they had been particularly appointed, they had thought proper to dissolve themselves, in order that the inhabitants of the respective Precincts of the County might have the opportunity of a new choice. Whereupon Stephen Crane, John De Hart, William Livingston, William P. Smith, Elias Boudinot, and John Chetwood, Esquires, being of the late Committee, were unanimously re-elected for the Borough of Elizabeth, and at the same time authorized to instruct the Representatives of this County, when convened in General Assembly, to join in the appointment of Delegates for this Colony, to meet in the next General Congress, at Philadelphia. But if the said Assembly should not appoint Delegates for that purpose, by the first day of April next, then the said Committee of Correspondence to meet with the several County Committees of this Colony, and appoint the said Delegates at such time and place as shall be agreed upon by the said Committees.

The above business being finished, the Assembly unanimously

Voted, That two certain Pamphlets lately published, the one entitled A Friendly Address, &c., and the other under the signature of A Farmer, as containing many notorious falsehoods, evidently calculated to sow the seeds of disunion among the good people of America; grossly misrepresenting the principles of the present opposition to Parliamentary Taxations; vilifying the late Congress; and intended to facilitate the scheme of the British Ministry for enslaving the Colonies, be publickly burnt, in detestation and abhorrence of such infamous publications.

And the same were accordingly committed to the flames, before the Court House, with the universal approbation of a numerous concourse of people.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM GOVERNOUR WENTWORTH TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH, DATED NEW-HAMPSHIRE,
DECEMBER 2, 1774.

The forming a Continental Congress was so universally adopted by the other Colonies, that it was impossible to prevent this Province from joining therein, and accepting the measures recommended, which are received implicitly. So great is the present delusion, that most people receive them as matters of obedience, not of considerate examination, whereon they may exercise their own judgment. Accordingly, on their first publication, the acting part of the Committee, mentioned in my despatch, No. 69, forbid an exportation of fifty Sheep, the adventure of a Shipmaster, bound to the West Indies, and caused him, at some loss, to dispose of his Sheep, and unlade the provision made for them.

This day the Provincial Committee nominated at Exeter, by the electors of the Delegates to the Congress, have published their mandate, herewith enclosed, for a general submission to the Resolves of the Congress, signed by their Chairman, who was Speaker in the late General Assembly.

It is much to be wished the Colonies had pursued the mode of representation your Lordship is pleased to mention. At present I apprehend the respective Assemblies will embrace the first hour of their meeting formally to recognise all the proceedings of the Congress; and if they should superadd, it will not probably be less violent than the example, which will be their foundation.

ARTHUR ST. CLAIR TO GOVERNOUR PENN.

Ligonier, December 4, 1774.

SIR: The war betwixt the Virginians and Indians is at last over. I promised myself the pleasure of giving your Honour the earliest account of its issue, but I have not yet been able to get at a true state of the Treaty of Peace. A peace however is certainly made with the Shawanese. One condition of which is the return of all property and prisoners taken from the white people, and for the performance they have given six hostages. The Mingoes, that live on the Scioto, did not appear to treat, and a party was sent to destroy their Towns, which was effected, and there are twelve of them now prisoners in Fort Pitt. It is probable from these circumstances we shall have no more trouble with them, and things have come to a much better end than there was any reason to have expected. But our troubles here are not yet over. The Magistrates appointed by Lord Dunmore in this country seem determined to enforce the jurisdiction of Virginia, and have begun with arresting one of your Honour's Officers

The 12th of November, Mr. Conolly sent a warrant for Mr. Scott to appear before him, or the next Justice, to answer for a number of offences committed by him under a pretended authority from Pennsylvania. The warrant Mr. Scott did not choose to pay any regard to, and the same evening a number of armed men came to his house to take him by force to Fort Burd where he found Lord Dunmore, Mr. Campbell, and Mr. Penticost, ready to sit in judgment upon him; much passed among them, but the event was, that he was obliged to enter into recognizance with two sureties, to appear at the next Court to be held at Pittsburgh, for the County of Augusta, on the 20th day of December, if the Court should happen to be held there that day, or at any further day when the Court should be held there, to answer for his having acted as a Magistrate for Pennsylvania, contrary to Lord Dunmore's Proclamation, or be committed to jail. He chose the recognizance, the circumstance of his family and health rendering the other very inconvenient. There is no doubt the recognizance is in itself a mere nullity, but after what has been done already, 'tis hard to say what may not be attempted, and 'tis very certain the people Lord Dunmore has clothed with authority pay little regard to the rules of law or the dictates of reason. It would be exceedingly satisfactory if your Honour would please to give us directions for our conduct, and this case of Mr. Scott requires it particularly. I have wrote to Mr. Wilson, of Carlisle, for his advice, fearing it would be impossible to know your mind in proper time, and for the necessary legal steps. I believe he may be depended upon, but is very doubtful if his answer can arrive before the time they have appointed for their Court. At any rate we must endeavour to prevent a trial till your Honour can have an opportunity of writing, if it should be by removing the indictment to Williamsburg.

I account it a fortunate circumstance that they began with Mr. Scott who, with a great deal of firmness, possesses a good share of natural understanding. In the course of an examination which continued near two hours, he told Lord Dunmore that he had only one short answer to all his questions, which might save his Lordship a good deal of trouble, "that he had acted under commission from your Honour, and in obedience to your Proclamation." His Lordship was pleased to reply, that you had no right to give any such commission, or authority to issue such Proclamation. Mr. Scott told him that was a matter of which he was not a proper judge, and would abide by the consequences.

I am sorry to be obliged to give your Honour so much trouble on so very disagreeable a subject, but I hope the time is not far distant when it will be put to an end,

And am, sir, your Honour's most obedient and most humble servant,

AR. ST. CLAIR.

Williamsburg, Va., December 5, 1774.

Yesterday, in the afternoon, his Excellency the Governour arrived at the Palace in this City from his expedition against the Indians, who have been humbled into a necessity of soliciting peace themselves, and have delivered hostages for the due observance of the terms, which cannot fail of giving general satisfaction, as they confine the Indians to limits that entirely remove the grounds of future quarrel between them and the people of Virginia, and lay a foundation for a fair and extensive Indian trade, which, if properly followed, must produce the most beneficial effects to this country.

We hear that four of the principal Shawanese warriors are expected here in a few days, and that twelve headmen and warriors of the Delaware and other tribes are left at Fort Dunmore as hostages. The Indians have delivered up all the white prisoners in their Towns, with the horses and other plunder they took from the inhabitants, and even offered to give up their own horses. They have agreed to abandon the lands on this side of the Ohio, (which river is to be the boundary between them and the white people,) and never more take up the hatchet against the English. Thus, in little more than the space of five months, an end is put to a war which portended much trouble and mischief to the inhabitants on the Frontiers, owing to the zeal and good conduct of the Officers and Commanders who went out in their country's defence, and the bravery and perseverance of all the Troops. Our tributes of praise are justly due to the gallant men that fell, whose deaths are a publick loss, and irreparably so to their distressed families and friends; but their names will be handed down to posterity with honour. The Army was broke up, and many of them had arrived at their respective homes.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM REDSTONE, DATED OCTOBER, 1774.

It will be improper to investigate the cause of the Indian war which broke out in the Spring, before I give you a sketch of the history of the Expedition which his Excellency Lord Dunmore has carried on successfully against the Shawanese, one of the richest, proudest, and bravest of the Indian Nations.

In order to do this, it is necessary to look back as far as the year 1764, when Colonel Bouquet made peace with that Nation. The Shawanese never complied with the terms of that peace; they did not deliver up the white prisoners; there was no lasting impression made upon them by a stroke from the Troops employed against them that campaign; and they barely acquiesced in some articles of the treaty by command of the Six Nations. The Red Hawk, a Shawanese Chief, insulted Colonel Bouquet with impunity; and an Indian killed the Colonel's footman the day after the peace was made. This murder not being taken notice of, gave rise to several daring outrages committed immediately after.

In the year following, several murders were committed by the Indians on New River; and soon after, several men employed in the service of Warton and Company, were killed on their passage to Illinois, and the goods belonging to the Company carried off. Some time after this outrage, a number of men employed to kill meat for the garrison of Fort Chartres, were killed, and their rifles, blankets, &c., carried to the Indian Towns. These repeated hostilities and outrages being committed with impunity, made the Indians bold and daring. Although it was not the Shawanese alone that committed all these hostilities, yet, letting one Nation pass with impunity, when mischief is done, inspires the rest of the Tribes with courage; so that the officers commanding his Majesty's Troops on the Ohio, at that time, not having power or spirit to punish the Indians, nor address to reclaim them, mischief became familiar to them; they were sure to kill and plunder whenever it was in their power, and indeed they panted for an opportunity.

It is probable you will see Lord Danmore's speech to some Chiefs of the Six Nations, who waited on his Lordship to plead in favour of the Shawanese. In this speech his Lordship mentions the particular murders and outrages committed by them every year successively since they pretended to make peace with Colonel Bouquet. The most recent murders committed by the Indians before the white people began to retaliate, were that of Captain Russell's son, three more white men, and two of his negroes, on the 15th of October, 1773; that of a Dutch family on the Kenhawa, in June of the same year, and of one Richard, in July following, and that of Mr. Hog and three white men, on the Great Kenhawa, early in April, 1774. Things being in this situation, a message was sent to the Shawanese, inviting them to a Conference, in order to bury the tomahawk and brighten the chain of friendship. They fired upon the messengers, and it was with difficulty they escaped with their lives. Immediately on their return, letters were wrote by some gentlemen at Fort Pitt, and dispersed among the inhabitants on the Ohio, assuring them that a war with the Shawanese was unavoidable, and desiring them to be on their guard, as it was uncertain where the Indians would strike first. In the mean time, two men, Of the names of Greathouse and Baker, sold some rum near the mouth of Yellow Creek, and with them some Indians got drunk, and were killed. Lord Dunmore has ordered that the manner of their being killed be inquired into. Many officers and other adventurers who were down the Ohio, in order to explore the country and have lands surveyed, upon receiving the above intelligence, and seeing the letters from the gentlemen at Fort Pitt, thought proper to return. Captain Michael Cresap was one of these gentlemen. On their return up the River, they fell in with a party of Indians, and being apprehensive that the Indians were preparing to attack them, as appeared by their manœuvres, the white people being the smallest number, thought it was advisable to have the advantage of the first fire, whereupon they engaged; and after exchanging a few shot, killed two or three of the Indians and dispersed the rest; hostilities being then commenced on both sides, the matter became serious.

FROM THE CAMP, ON POINT PLEASANT, AT THE MOUTH OF THE GREAT KENHAWA, OCTOBER 17, 1774.

For the satisfaction of the publick, in this letter they have a true state of the battle fought at this place, on the 10th instant.

On Monday morning, about half an hour before sunrise, two of Captain Russell's Company discovered a large party of Indians about a mile from Camp, one of which men was shot down by the Indians, the other made his escape and brought in the intelligence. In two or three minutes after, two of Captain Shelvey's came in and confirmed the account. Colonel Andrew Lewis being informed thereof, immediately ordered out Colonel Charles Lewis to take the command of one hundred and fifty of the Augusta Troops, and with him went Captain Dickinson, Captain Harrison, Captain Wilson, Captain John Lewis, of Augusta, and Captain Lockridge, which made the first Division. Colonel Fleming was also ordered to take the command of one hundred and fifty more of the Botetourt, Bedford, and Fineastle Troops, viz: Captain Thomas Burford, from Bedford, Captain Love, of Botetourt, Captain Shelvey and Captain Russell, of Fincastle, which made the second Division. Colonel Charles Lewis's Division marched to the right, some distance from the Ohio; and Colonel Fleming, with his Division, on the bank of the Ohio, to the left. Colonel Charles Lewis's Division had not marched quite half a mile from Camp, when, about sun-rise, an attack was made on the front of his Division, in a most vigorous manner, by united tribes of Indians, Shawanese, Delawares, Mingoes, Tawas, and of several other Nations, in number not less than eight hundred, and by many thought to be a thousand. In this heavy attack, Colonel Charles Lewis received a wound, which in a few hours caused his death, and several of his men fell on the spot. In fact, the Augusta Division was forced to give way to the heavy fire of the enemy. In about a second of a minute after the attack on Colonel Lewis's Division, the enemy engaged the front of Colonel Fleming's Division, on the Ohio, and in a short time the Colonel received two balls through his left arm, and one through his breast; and after animating the officers and soldiers in a most calm manner, to the pursuit of victory, retired to the Camp. The loss from the field was sensibly felt by the officers in particular; but the Augusta Troops being sliortly reinforced from the Camp by Colonel Field, with his Company, together with Captain M'Dowell, Captain Matthews, and Captain Stewart, from Augusta, Captain John Lewis, Captain Paulin, Captain Arbuckle, and Captain M'Clenachan, from Botetourt, the enemy, no longer able to maintain their ground, was forced to give way till they were in a line with the Troops, Colonel Fleming being left in action on the bank of the Ohio. In this precipitate retreat, Colonel Field was killed. During this time, which was till after twelve o'clock, the action continued extremely hot. The close under-wood, many steep banks and logs, greatly favoured their retreat; and the bravest of their men made the best use of them, whilst others were throwing their dead into the Ohio, and carrying off their wounded. After twelve, the action in a small degree abated, but continued, except at short intervals, sharp enough till after one o'clock. Their long retreat gave them a most advantageous spot of ground, from whence it appeared to the officers so difficult to dislodge them, that it was thought most advisable to stand, as the line was then formed, which was about a mile and a quarter in length, and had sustained till then a constant and equal weight of the action, from wing to wing. It was till about half an hour of sunset they continued firing on us scattering shots, which we returned to their disadvantage. At length night coming on, they found a safe retreat.

They had not the satisfaction of carrying off any of our men's scalps, save one or two stragglers, whom they killed before the engagement. Many of their dead they scalped, rather than we should have them; but our Troops scalped upwards of twenty of their men that were first killed. It is beyond doubt their loss in number far exceeds ours, which is considerable.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM STAUNTON, IN VIRGINIA, DATED NOVEMBER 4, 1774.

On the tenth of October, our Army being encamped in the Fork of the Great Kenhawa, two men went out early to hunt, but were fired upon by a number of Indians, when one of them was killed; the other made his escape, and brought the intelligence to the Camp. Colonel Lewis immediately ordered out three hundred men, who, after marching about three quarters of a mile before sun-rise, were attacked by a number (supposed to be from eight hundred to one thousand,) of desperate savages. They soon made our men retreat about one quarter of a mile, when a reinforcement coming up, they continued fighting till noon, and were never above twenty yards apart, often within six, and sometimes close together tomahawking one another. The Indians then began to fall back, but continued fighting at a distance till night came on and parted them. Such a battle with Indians, it is imagined, was never heard of before. We had upwards of fifty men killed, and ninety wounded. Amongst the slain were many brave men, both officers and privates; and a Magistrate of this place, Mr. Frog, a very worthy gentleman, was also killed. So eager were the Indians for his scalp, that one man shot three of them over him, endeavouring by turns to scalp him. The number of Indians killed cannot be ascertained, as they were continually carrying them off and throwing them into the River; but from the tracks of blood, the number must have been great. Our men got upwards of twenty scalps, eighty blankets, about forty guns, and a great many tomahawks; and intended in a few days to go over the River to meet the Governour, twenty or twenty-five miles from their Towns. The Indians the Governour lately concluded a peace with, it is assured, were in this battle. We suppose they have had the other struggle before this time, and are very impatient to know the issue.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER LATE UNDER THE COMMAND OF LORD DUNMORE, AGAINST THE INDIANS, DATED AT FORT AUGUSTA, NOVEMBER 21, 1774.

I returned from the Shawanese expedition to my own house, on the 11th instant, an account of which is as follows:

I left home with my Company the 25th of August, and arrived at the Levels of Greenbrier, (which was the place of general rendezvous,) on the first of September, and against the fifth, we had about eleven hundred men assembled; but the Fincastle men were not yet arrived. However, Colonel Charles Lewis, with the Augusta men, which were about six hundred, marched from that place the 8th of September, and arrived at the mouth of Elk River, (which empties into New River, about sixty miles from the mouth of New River,) the 21st of the same month, where we encamped, and got to making canoes to carry our flour down New River.

Colonel Andrew Lewis, with the Botetourt Troops, joined us at Elk, on the 23d or 24th. We made twenty-seven canoes, and, on the first of October, crossed Elk, loaded our canoes, and fell down into New River; and next day being very wet, we encamped on the other side of the mouth of Elk. The following day we proceeded down New River, and arrived at the mouth of it on the sixth of October. In all this march we were never disturbed by the enemy. Our pack-horse men said they saw Indians at times; and at Elk the Indians viewed us and stole some of our horses.

On our arrival at the mouth of New River, or Great Kenhawa, we sent out spies to search if Indians were in those parts, but they could not discover any. Our men went a hunting every day; and on Monday, the tenth of October, by break of day, a number of our men went out as before, two of whom were fired on by the Indians, about a mile and a half from the Camp; one was killed, the other came into the Camp, with the alarm that he had discovered about thirty Indians, and that his companion was killed; on which the drum beat to arms. Our men started up from their tents, (numbers being in bed, for the sun was not yet up.) Orders were immediately given, that one hundred and fifty men from each line should go in quest of the enemy; on which, Colonel Charles Lewis, with one hundred and fifty of the Augusta Troops, and Colonel Fleming, with one hundred and fifty Botetourt Troops, marched out; the men of each line were ordered to form their own ground, in a few minutes three guns went off within about one hundred and twenty poles of the Camp, which was immediately followed by several hundreds; on which two hundred men were ordered out, who, on their approach, found our men giving way before the enemy; but that reinforcement turned the matter.

The battle continued. Several Companies were again ordered out, among whom I was ordered out with fifty men to a certain place, to prevent the Indians getting round our Camp. I, with my men, run about half a mile, and came to some of our men by a hill; the Indians had retreated. We then pursued them from tree to tree, till rising a small ridge, they had placed themselves behind logs, fired on us, killed three men near me, and wounded ten or twelve more. We pushed up farther, there made a stand, which the whole line from the Ohio to us did at the same time. This happened about one o'clock. There we remained watching the Indians, and they us, till near night, now and then firing as opportunity offered, on both sides. The Indians, at the approach of night, skipped off and left us the field; but carried away all their wounded, and many of their slain. However, we got twenty-one of them dead on the ground; and we afterwards heard they had two hundred and thirty-three killed and wounded; but I cannot say that is true. We had forty men killed that night, and ninety-six wounded, twenty odd of whom are since dead. *

On the 17th, we crossed the river to go to the Towns, and marched on with about eleven hundred men, leaving three hundred at the Camp to take care of the wounded and provisions; (for know that the Fincastle Troops, three hundred in number, joined us the night after the battle;) but, on the 24th, we were stopped by express from the Governour, informing us that he had made peace.

Williamsburg, December 5, 1774.

To his Excellency the Right Honourable JOHN, Earl of DUNMORE, his Majesty's Lieutenant and Governour-

* List of the Killed and Wounded Virginians. - KILLED. - Colonel Charles Lewis, Major John Field, Captains John Murray, Robert M'Clenachan, Samuel Wilson, James Ward, Lieutenant Hugh Allen, Ensigns Candiff and Baker; Privates, 44.

WOUNDED - Captains W. Fleming, (since dead,) J. Dickenson, Thomas Blueford, John Stidman, Lieutenants Goodman, Robeson, Lard, Vanners; Privates, 79.

Boston, February 20, 1775. - On reading the account of the battle between the brave Virginians and their savage neighbours, it brought to my mind the keen resentments and mortifying reflections that must naturally kindle in the breasts of an experienced General, brave officers, and intrepid soldiers, to remember that the professed design of Britain, in maintaining Standing Armies in America, was the protection of the Colonies, and yet known at the very moment, the noble Virginians were bleeding, dying, and winning the laurels of victory, they were confined and basking in their tents, to execute one of the most inglorious designs that ever disgraced the name of a British Soldier, viz: enslaving a free Province that has supported itself more than one hundred and fifty years, against her savage foes. These resentments and reflections must still increase, when they feel and know the irresistible conviction this proceeding will give to every honest man in Britain or America, of these two facts: First. That the real design of keeping a Standing Army in America, was not protecting but enslaving the Colonies. The second thing thus demonstrated, is, that the Colonies do not need or desire protection from the Standing Armies, but are able and willing to defend themselves, and therefore they must view their stay in America as useless and burthensome. In this situation it is natural for Americans to imagine the honest, generous souls of the gentlemen of the Army will kindle to such a degree, when their inglorious and base employment is compared with that of the virtuous Virginians, gaining the art of war and glory of victory, that they would rather resign their commissions or lives, than suffer the eternal disgrace of having their names handed down to posterity, with these facts to sully some future page in British or American story. Can we expect less from these generous spirits, than that they let their corrupt employers know the just indignation they feel at this abuse and disgrace that is, and will be fixed eternally on their names, as the dupes of tyranny?

General of the Colony and Dominion of VIRGINIA, and Vice Admiral of the same.

The humble Address of the City of WILLIAMSBURG.

MY LORD: We his Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, and Common Council, of the City of Williamsburg, in Common Hall assembled, beg leave to embrace the earliest opportunity of congratulating your Lordship on the conclusion of a dangerous and fatiguing service in which you have lately been engaged, and on your return to this City.

It is with pleasure we hear your Lordship has been able to defeat the designs of a cruel and insidious enemy, and at the same time that your Lordship has escaped those dangers to which your person must have been frequently exposed.

Permit us also, upon this occasion, to express our congratulations on the addition to your family by the birth of a daughter; and to assure you that we wish to your Lordship every degree of felicity, and that we shall contribute towards its attainment, as far as lies in our power, during your residence among us.

To which his Excellency was pleased to return the following Answer:

GENTLEMEN: I am obliged to you for this Address. The fatigue and danger of the service which I undertook, out of commiseration for the deplorable state which, in particular, the back inhabitants were in, and to manifest my solicitude for the safety of the country in general, which his Majesty has committed to my care, has been amply rewarded by the satisfaction I feel in having been able to put an effectual stop to a bloody war.

I thank you for the notice you are pleased to take of the event which has happened in my family; and, I doubt not that, as I have hitherto experienced the marks of your civility, you will continue in the same friendly disposition toward me.

May it please your Excellency:

We his Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the President and Professors of William and Mary College, moved by an impulse of unfeigned joy, cannot help congratulating your Excellency on such a series of agreeable events, as the success of your enterprise against the Indians, the addition to your family by the birth of a daughter, and your safe as well as glorious return to the capital of this Dominion.

May the great fatigues and dangers which you so readily and cheerfully undergo in the service of your Government, be ever crowned with victory! May you ever find the publick benefits thence arising attended with domestick blessings! And, may you always feel the enlivening pleasure of reading in the countenances around you, wherever you turn your eyes, such expressions of affection as can be derived only from applauding and grateful hearts!

To which his Excellency was pleased to return the following Answer:

GENTLEMEN: I cannot but receive every instance of the attention of a learned and respectable body, such as yours, with a great degree of satisfaction; but the affectionate and very obliging terms in which you are pleased to express your good wishes towards me, on this occasion, demand my cordial thanks, and will ever be impressed on my mind.

To the Right Honourable JOHN, Earl of DUNMORE, his Majestys Lieutenant and Governour-General of the Colony and Dominion of VIRGINIA, and Vice Admiral of the same.

MY LORD: We his Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, and Common Council of the Borough of Norfolk, in Common Hall assembled, impressed with a deep and grateful sense of the important services rendered to this Colony by your Excellency's seasonable and vigorous exertion in the late expedition against a deceitful and treacherous enemy, conducted under your auspices to so fortunate an issue, beg leave, by this testimony of our general respect, to congratulate your Excellency on the happy eveht, and on your safe arrival at the capital.

While we applaud your Lordship's moderation in giving peace to a merciless foe, we cannot but exult in the happiness of our fellow-subjects on the Frontiers, who, by your unremitted zeal and spirited conduct, have acquired the blessings of ease, security, and domestick enjoyment.

As we sincerely participate in every circumstance of your publick glory, neither can we be insensible of your private happiness in the birth of a daughter, and the recovery of Lady Dunmore, on which joyful occasion we beg leave also to add our most cordial congratulations; and we devoutly wish that, to the pleasing remembrance of having faithfully discharged your important trust of Government, you may have superadded the approbation of your Royal Master, the grateful returns of an happy people, and the honour of these distinctions reflected on a numerous and flourishing family.

His Lordship's Answer.

The Address of the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, and Common Council of the Borough of Norfolk, expressive of their duty and loyalty to the King, cannot but be extremely acceptable to me.

His Majesty, in his tender solicitude for the safety of his subjects, so lately exposed to the calamities of an Indian war, having signified his full approbation of the measures which I at first adopted for their relief, and as the issue of that event, the only circumstance of it of which he could not yet be informed, will entirely remove the paternal anxiety which he suffered on the occasion, I already enjoy, and have good reason to expect the continuance of one part of that high recompense which the gentlemen of the Borough of Norfolk have so kindly wished me, and the applause which they are pleased to bestow upon me greatly contributes towards another part, which is my ardent ambition to merit.

The notice which they take of my private concerns is obliging, as their approbation of my publick conduct is honourable to me, and both demand my most cordial thanks.

Williamsburg, Va., February 4, 1775.

The following is said to be a Message from Captain Logan, an Indian Warriour, to Governour Dunmore, after the battle in which Colonel Charles Lewis was slain, delivered at the Treaty:

"I appeal to any white man to say that he ever entered Logan's cabin but I gave him meat; that he ever came naked but I clothed him. In the course of the last war Logan remained in his cabin, an advocate for peace. I had such an affection for the white people that I was pointed at by the rest of my Nation. I should have even lived with them had it not been for Colonel Cresap, who last year cut off, in cold blood, all the relations of Logan, not sparing women and children. There runs not a drop of my blood in the veins of any human creature. This called upon me for revenge; I have sought it I have killed many, and fully glutted my revenge. I am glad that there is a prospect of peace, on account of the Nation; but I beg you will not entertain a thought that any thing I have said proceeds from fear! Logan disdains the thought! He will not turn on his heel to save his life! Who is there to mourn for Logan? No one. *

New-York, February 16, 1775. - Extract of a letter from Virginia: "I make no doubt but the following specimen of Indian eloquence and mistaken valour will please you; but you must make allowances for the unskilfulness of the Interpreter:

The Speech of LOGAN, a SHAWANESE Chief, to Lord DUNMORE.

"I appeal to any white man to say, if ever he entered Logan's cabin hungry and I gave him not meat; if ever he came cold or naked and I gave him not clothing. During the course of the last long and bloody war Logan remained in his tent, an advocate for peace; nay, such was my love for the whites, that those of my own country pointed at me as they passed by, and said, "Logan is the friend of white men." I had even thought to live with you, but for the injuries of one man. Colonel Cresap, the last Spring, in cool blood and unprovoked, cut off all the relations of Logan, not sparing even my women and children. There runs not a drop of my blood in the veins of any human creature. This called on me for revenge. I have sought it - I have killed many - I have fully glutted my vengeance. For my country I rejoice at the beams of peace; but do not harbour the thought that mine is the joy of fear. Logan never felt fear. He will not turn on his heel to save his life. Who is there to mourn for Logan? Not one."

RICHMOND COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE,

December 5, 1774.

The Freeholders convening on this day, to elect a new Committee for the said County, according to the recommendation of the late Continental Congress, for the carrying into execution the American Association, proceeded to make choice of twenty-eight gentlemen convenient in their situation to inspect the attention paid to the Association through the whole County; who, forming themselves into a meeting, chose Colonel Landon Carter, Chairman, and requested the favour of Mr. Leroy Peachey, to act as Clerk: At which meeting it was then resolved that the Committee should sit on the next Court day, if nothing required an earlier attendance; at which time the Freeholders were likewise desired to attend, in order to appoint Deputies to repair to a Colony Congress of Delegates to choose Deputies to attend a Continental Congress, to be held in Philadelphia, on the tenth day of May next, agreeable to the recommendation of the last Congress, if America, should not, before that day, be redressed in her grievances, and restored to her just rights and liberties.

January 2, 1775.

At a meeting of the Freeholders this day, for the above purpose, the following Instruction and Appointment was voted and directed to Robert Wormeley Carter, and Francis Lightfoot Lee, Esquires, their Representatives in Assembly:

To ROBERT WORMELEY CARTER, and FRANCIS LIGHT-FOOT LEE, Esquires:

GENTLEMEN: From a persuasion that the Assembly is to meet in February next, and that the recommendation of the Continental Congress to the several Colonies, for appointing Delegates to form another Continental Congress on the tenth day of May next, may be duly complied with, we your constituents desire of you, as our Representatives in Assembly, to promote the same with your utmost abilities; but if, by any means, it should happen that the Assembly shall be dissolved, either constitutionally or by prerogative, we do, in that case, constitute and appoint you, our late elected Representatives, to meet in Colony Congress, for the purpose of appointing Delegates as aforesaid. We hope we need not inform you, gentlemen, that we cannot but look upon ourselves as induced to publish this our instruction and appointment, from a full conviction of the present alarming crisis to American Rights; and as the united wisdom of North America, on such an occasion is certainly necessary to be obtained, we cannot but desire that no unforeseen casualty may prevent this Colony from being represented in such a Congress, on whose deliberations the liberties of America do so eminently depend. Therefore, we cannot suppress our wishes that these important considerations may prevail with our countrymen in the other Counties to provide against any possible disappointment in a delegation as aforesaid by every similar precaution. And farther, gentlemen, we recommend it to you to give the sincere thanks of this County to the worthy Delegates who attended the late Continental Congress, for their prudent and spirited conduct in support of the freedom and liberties of America.

We are, gentlemen, you obliged constituents.

On the same day the Chairman communicated to the gentlemen of the Committee then met, that, in order to get fully informed of a report that a monopolizing or engrossing of Goods was carrying on, to the prejudice of the poorer sort of people, he had considered it as an object within the sphere of Association, and taken upon himself to write to the two gentlemen who kept the Stores in the County, in which the said engrossing or monopolizing was suggested to be in agitation; because such a practice could not be the intention of associating, nor indeed a thing to be suspected of any patriotick Associator, where certainly every one ought to be heartily inclined to bear an equal proportion of every difficulty, and, in consequence, that could or might attend associating against commerce of any kind, without taking any advantage, with at best, but a mere unsocial calidity; and that he had obtained letters from the gentlemen keeping those Stores, which he believed, on examination, would be found entirely convincing that there was not the least foundation for so scandalous a report. Upon which the Committee directed the reporter to be called in, before whom the letters were read, and, as an incontestable truth, the whole turned out a mere groundless fallacy; therefore it was directed to be published, in order to discourage and stifle such ungenerous, as well as unjust accusations against any individual of a community so sacredly engaged to preserve its liberties.

LEROY PEACHEY, Clerk.

NEW-CASTLE COUNTY (DELAWARE) COMMITTEE.

December 5, 1774.

The Committee chosen in the several Hundreds of this County, on the 28th of last month, in pursuance of notice for that purpose given, this day assembled at the Court House, in the Town of New-Castle, and unanimously chose

JOHN M'KINLEY, Esquire, Chairman and DAVID THOMPSON, Clerk.

On motion, by order, the Association entered into by the Continental Congress, at the City of Philadelphia, on the fifth day of September last, was read, and the Committee taking the same into consideration,

Resolved, That this Committee highly approve the said Association, and earnestly recommend to their constituents a strict and due observance thereof.

Resolved, unanimously, That the Thanks of this Committee be given to the gentlemen wire represented this Government as Deputies in the said Continental Congress, for their faithful discharge of that important trust.

Resolved, unanimously, That, to increase the number of Sheep, the Committee will use their utmost endeavours to prevent the killing of any Ewe Mutton or Lamb, from this day until the first day of May next; and any Ewe Lamb from the first day of May next till the first day of October next; and this Committee do particularly recommend to their constituents a full and faithful compliance with the eighth, ninth, and thirteenth Articles of the said Association.

Then the Committee adjourned till Wednesday, the 21st instant, at ten o'clock.

Wednesday, December 21, A. M.

The Committee met according to adjournment.

Resolved, unanimously, That pursuant to an intimation given by the said Continental Congress, as well as from a full persuasion that a well regulated Militia, composed of the gentlemen, freeholders, and other freemen, is the natural strength and stable security of a free Government; therefore it is recommended by this Committee to such of the inhabitants of this County as are from sixteen to fifty years of age, that they assemble themselves on the second Tuesday in January next, at such places as shall be appointed by the Committees of their respective Hundreds, and then and there associate and enroll themselves into Companies of not less than fifty, nor more than seventy-five men, according as the several Districts will admit, and choose a Captain, two Lieutenants, an Ensign, four Sergeants, two Corporals, and one Drummer, for each Company; and use their utmost endeavours to make themselves masters of the military exercise. That each man be provided with a well fixed Firelock and Bayonet, half a pound of Powder, two pounds of Lead, and a Cartouch-Box or Powder-Horn, and Bag for Ball, and be in readiness to act on any emergency.

Resolved, unanimously, That the Committees of the respective Hundreds do divide the same into suitable Districts, as they severally will admit thereof.

Resolved, unanimously, That contributions from this County, for supplying the necessities and alleviating the distresses of our brethren in Boston ought to be continued in such manner and so long as their occasions may require; and that it is the duty of the Committee of Correspondence of the said County to collect and transmit the same as soon as possible.

Extract from the minutes of the Committee,
DAVID THOMPSON Clerk.

Reading, Berks County, Pa., December 5, 1774.

Pursuant to advertisements dispersed through the County, a respectable number of the Inhabitants met this day at the Court House, in this Town, and proceeded, by ballot, to the election of a Committee, as recommended by the Congress, when the following gentlemen were duly chosen: Edward Biddle, Christopher Schults, Doctor Jonathan Potts; William Reefer, Balsar Gear, Michael Bright; John Patton, Mark Bird, John Jones, John Old, Sebastian Levan, George Nagel, Christopher Witman, Jacob Shoemaker, and James Lewis.

ASSEMBLY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Monday, December 5, 1774.

Mr. Speaker, with fifteen Members, met, pursuant to adjournment; and, a quorum not appearing, they adjourned from day to day.

Thursday, December 8, 1774. - A quorum met.

Ordered, That Mr. Parker and Mr. Pearson wait on the Governour, and acquaint him that a House being met, pursuant to their adjournment, they are ready to receive any business he may be pleased to lay before them.

The Members appointed to wait on the Governour with the Message of the House, reported they had delivered the same, according to order, and that his Honour was pleased to say he had no business at present to lay before them, but if any should occur during their sitting, he would communicate it by a Message.

The Members deputed, in behalf of this Province, to attend the General Congress, held at the City of Philadelphia, in September and October last, presented to the Chair a printed Journal of the Resolutions and Proceedings of the said Congress, together with a Report, in writing, which latter was read by order, and follows in these words, viz:

"We, the Committee appointed on the part of this Province, by the late and present House of Representatives, to attend the Congress of Deputies from the several Colonies, beg leave to report the performance of that service, as contained in a Journal of the Congress, herewith delivered, which we humbly submit to the consideration of the House.

" EDWARD BIDDLE, CHARLES HUMPHREYS,

" JOHN DICKINSON, JOHN MORTON.

"THOMAS MIFFLIN,

"Philadelphia, December 8, 1774."

Ordered, That the reading and consideration of the Journal of the Proceedings of the General Congress be referred till to-morrow.

Friday, December 9, 1774. - The House proceeded in the consideration of the Resolutions of the Congress, and, after some debate, ordered that the further consideration thereof be referred till to-morrow morning.

Saturday, December 10, 1774. - The House, agreeable to the order of yesterday, taking into consideration the Report of the Committee appointed to attend the General Congress, and the Papers therein referred to,

*Resolved, unanimously,  That this House approve the Proceedings and Resolves of the Congress, and do most seriously recommend to the good people of this Province, a strict attention to, and an inviolable observation of the several matters and things contained in the Journal of the Congress.

Upon motion,

Ordered, That the foregoing Resolution be immediately made publick.

Tuesday, December 15, 1774. - Upon motion,

Resolved, N. C. D., That the Honourable Edward Biddle, Speaker, John Dickinson, Thomas Mifflin, Joseph Galloway, Charles Humphreys, John Morton, and George Ross, Esquires, be, and they are hereby appointed Deputies, on the part of this Province, to attend the General Continental Congress, proposed to be held at the City of Philadelphia, on the tenth day of May next; and that they, or any four of them, do meet the said Congress accordingly, unless the present grievances of the American Colonies shall, before that time, be redressed.

* Mr. Galloway was not present when this Resolution was adopted. He did not appear in the House before the thirteenth of the month, when he was qualified, and took his seat.

Samuel Rhoads, Esquire, one of the Deputies for this Province at the late Congress, being now Mayor of the City of Philadelphia, is omitted in the above appointment, it appearing to the House that he could not attend the service.

Ordered, That Mr. Charles Thomson, Mr. Brown, Mr. Chapman, Mr. Pearson, Mr. John Jacobs, Mr. Wayne, Mr. Ewing, Mr. Allen, and Mr. Edmonds, be a Committee to prepare and bring in draughts of Instructions for the Deputies to the ensuing Congress; and of a Circular Letter to the Speakers of the several Colony Assemblies, informing them of the proceedings of this House, on the Report of their Delegates at the late Congress.

The House then taking into consideration the service of the Delegates for this Province, at their late Congress, Resolved, That the said Delegates be allowed each twenty shillings per diem, for their attendance on that duty.

Post-Meridian. - The Committee appointed to prepare and bring in draughts of Instructions for the Deputies to the ensuing Congress, and of a Circular Letter to the Speakers of the several Colony Assemblies, reported Essays for those purposes, which were read, by order, and referred to further consideration.

Tuesday, December 20, 1774. - The Governour, by Mr. Secretary, sent down a written Message to the House, which was read, by order, and is as follows, viz:

"GENTLEMEN: I am informed by the Barrack Master that the apartments of the Barracks, in the Northern Liberties, and the necessary furniture and utensils are extremely out of order, and in great need of repair. I must therefore recommend this matter as worthy of your immediate consideration.

JOHN PENN.

"December 20, 1774."

Thursday, December 22, 1774. - The House resumed the consideration of their Instructions to the Deputies appointed to attend, on the part of this Province, at the next General Congress, and having spent some time therein, referred the same to further consideration.

The House resumed the consideration of the Governour's Message, and after some debate, Ordered, That Mr. Mifflin, Mr. Chapman, Mr. Pearson, Mr. Morton, and Mr. Ross, be a Committee to prepare and bring in a draught of an Answer to the said Message.

Friday, December 23, 1774. - The Committee appointed to bring in an Answer to the Governour's Message, reported a draught for that purpose, which was read, agreed to by the House, and ordered to be transcribed,

The Answer of the House to the Governour's Message being transcribed, according to order, was signed by the Speaker, and is as follows, viz:

"May it please your Honour:

"The House have considered your Message of the 20th instant, and beg leave to inform you that they do not think it expedient at this time to repair the Barracks in the Northern Liberties, or to provide furniture or utensils for the same.

"Signed by order of the House,

"EDWARD BIDDLE, Speaker.

"December 23, 1774

Saturday, December 24, 1774. - The House proceeded to consider the draught of Instructions to the Deputies of this Province, appointed to attend the next General Congress, and having spent some time therein,

Resolved, That the said Instructions be referred to the consideration of the House at their next meeting.

Ordered, That Mr. Wayne and Mr. William Thompson wait on the Governour and acquaint him that the House will be glad to know his result on the Bills before him, as they incline to adjourn this afternoon, to Monday, the 30th of February next, if his Honour has no objection thereto.

The Members appointed to wait on the Governour with the Message of the House, reported they had delivered the same accordingly, and that his Honour was pleased to say he had no objection to the adjournment proposed by the House, and would immediately return to them the Bills before him.

The Governour having given his assent to the Bills, by enacting them into Laws, the House adjourned to Monday, the 20th day of February next, at four o'clock, P. M.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LONDON, TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK, DATED DECEMBER 6, 1774.

Enclosed you have a paper which contains the Lords' Protests against the Address to the King's Speech, which you will no doubt receive by the Packet. It is very unusual to have any division, though there is commonly a debate on such addresses, and still more unusual for such division to be followed with a Protest. Yesterday there were strong debates, and a division in the House of Commons, on their Address, in answer to the Speech, which latter, viz: the division, is uncommon on such an occasion. The Courtiers carried their point by a considerable majority, but these steps show plainly that there is a determined resolution among the Patriots here to resist the wicked Ministerial measures against America; indeed, your cause gathers strength in this Kingdom every day, for now it is plain, beyond a doubt, that the measures taken against America are intended, finally, to subvert the liberties of this country; and I make not the least question, but the sword being once drawn against you, will produce something very like a civil war in this country in less than twelve months.

The people at present do not feel, and therefore are quiet, nor can you, (when our luxury, riches, and dissipation are considered) in reason, expect they should, while you are ministering to their pleasure by such plentiful remittances.

This day there was a report current, that the Congress of the States of America had adjourned, having fixed on stopping all imports into America from Great Britain, the first of this month, and all exports from America to Great Britain after the first of January. From curiosity I strolled upon 'Change, and for the first time saw concern and deep distress in the face of every American Merchant; they seemed to think that it was absolutely necessary to apply to Parliament and Administration to relax and settle the American business on the old footing, as it was at the end of the last war, and then things would go on as they should do; this convinced me of the truth of what many have said before, that the Merchants will never stir till they feel, and every one knows that the Manufacturers will never take the lead of the Merchants.

If this report of the exports being stopped the first of January next should prove true, and you add to it a determination of not paying any British debts till your rights are fully restored, I am sure in less than three months you will have as strong a mercantile combination in your favour as there was in the time of the Stamp Act. Artful, designing, and wicked men, who never had, in truth, an honest or virtuous feeling in their lives, will pretend to exclaim against such a conduct as dishonest, but ask any of these drivellers this question: Had any of you, in your hand, a stick belonging to another man, whom you knew, if he could get it into his own, was determined to break your head with it, would you, on the stick's being demanded by the right owner, give it up to him?

Indeed, I am convinced the Merchants here will not assist you till their remittances are stopped; but I am afraid of your Town, for it is currently said here, and with much confidence, that a good deal of publick money has been put in the hands of a Mr. , one of the, and some of your other great men, in order to buy their influence in favour of the Ministerial measures, in order to secure the Province of New-York on the side of our wicked rulers, and thereby cut off the communication of the other Colonies with the New England Provinces; but should these great men prove traitors to their country, I hope the yeomanry at large, in your Province, set too great a value on your inestimable rights and liberties to let any great men cheat you out of them.

ESSEX COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE,

At a Meeting of the Freeholders of the County of Essex, at the Court House, in Tappahannock, on Tuesday, the 6th of December, 1774, for the purpose of choosing a Committee to see that the Association is duly kept, agreeable to the Resolutions of the Continental Congress, John Upshaw, gentleman, was unanimously elected Chairman, and William Young, Clerk. After which the following gentlemen were elected: William Roane, James Edmondson, John Upshaw, Thomas Boulware, John Lee, Meriwether Smith, Thomas Roane, Robert Beverly, Muscoe Garnett, William Young, John Henshaw, William Smith, Augustine Moore, John Beale, Henry Garnett, Robert Rennolds, John Brockenbrough, Thos. Sthreshly, Thomas Waring, and Archibald Ritchie.

WILLIAM YOUNG, Clerk.

ISLE OF WIGHT COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

The following gentlemen are appointed the Committee for the County of Isle of Wight: John S. Wills, Josiah Parker, B. Goodwin, Richard Hardy, the Reverend ttenry J. Burgess, John Day, Arthur Smith, Thomas Pierce, John Mallory, Goodrich Wilson, Tristram Norworthy, Jun., John Lawrence, William Davis, Nathaniel Burwell, and Timothy Tynes.

PRINCESS ANNE COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Freeholders of Princess Anne County, convened on Tuesday, the 6th of December, 1774, at the house of Mr. Bagwell Moore, in order to elect a Committee, agreeable to the Resolve of the American Continental Congress:

The Association entered into by the Congress being publicly read, the Freeholders and other inhabitants of the County then present, with the greatest alacrity, did avow their approbation of the measures adopted by that honourable body, binding themselves, by the sacred ties of honour, virtue, and love to their country, strictly to observe and keep the same inviolable in every particular.

They then proceeded to a due election, when the following gentlemen were chosen, viz: Anthony Lawson, Esq., Mr. William Robinson, Major Christopher Wright, Captain James Kempe, Captain William Nimmo, Mr. Anthony Walke, Junior, Mr. John Hancock, Mr. Thomas Reynolds Walker, Captain Edward Cannon, Mr. William Keeling, Junior, Mr. Joel Cornick, Junior, Mr. George Jamison, Sen., Captain Erasmus Haynes, Captain Dennis Dawley, Captain James Henley, Captain John Ackiss, Captain Frederick Boush, Captain Jacob Hunter, Captain William Hancock, Mr. William Woodhouse, Mr. Thomas Brock, Mr. Cason Moore, Mr. Thomas Old, Senior, and Mr. James Tooley.

And on the 20th of said month, being the time appointed for a meeting of the above mentioned Committee, they, after balloting for a Chairman, declared Anthony Lawson, Esquire, duly elected, and chose Thomas Abbot, Clerk of the Committee.

Committee Chamber, Philadelphia, December 6, 1774.

The Committee taking into consideration the tenth Article of the Association of the General Congress, do unanimously resolve, that the said article requires the opening of all packages of Goods imported after the first day of December, and before the first day of February, but at the same time, the Committee intending that the sale of such Goods shall be conducted with as little inconvenience as is consistent with the said Association,

Resolved, That though all bales and packages delivered to the Committee for sale must be opened, yet the Goods shall be sold in lots or parcels; and that such sales shall be made by the City Vendue Master, under the direction of the Committee.

Resolved, That in disposing of Goods in lots or parcels, no lot shall be made of less value upon the sterling invoice than three pounds, nor of any greater than fifteen pounds, except in the former case, where an entire package is of less value than three pounds, and in the latter, where the value of any single piece shall exceed fifteen pounds.

Resolved, That Salt and Coal imported from Great Britain or Ireland, may be sold at publick vendue by the cargo, or smaller quantity, at the election of the owner or consignee, under the direction of the Committee, and that a freight of nine pence per bushel shall be allowed on all kinds of Salt imported as aforesaid; and a freight of twelve pence per bushel on all Coal imported as aforesaid.

Resolved, That it is expected all importers of Goods, after the first of December, do apply to the Committee of the District where the vessel so importing has arrived, and make their election of sending back, storing, or selling all such Goods, for which purpose the said Committee will attend at the Coffee House every day, from ten till one o'clock.

The Committee also recommend to all importers of Goods a perusal of, and attention to, the eleventh Article of the General Congress, viz: "That a Committee be chosen 'in every County, City, and Town, by those who are 'qualified to vote for Representatives in the Legislature, 'whose business it shall be attentively to observe the conduct of all persons touching this Association; and when 'it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of a majority of any such Committee, that any person within the 'limits of their appointment has violated this Association, 'that such majority do forthwith cause the truth of the 'case to be published in the Gazette, to the end that all 'such foes to the rights of British America may be publickly known, and universally condemned as the enemies 'of American Liberty; and thenceforth we respectively 'will break off all dealings with him or her.

By order of the Committee,

JACOB RUSH, pro tern. Secretary.

THE DEPUTY GOVERNOUR OF PENNSYLVANIA TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

Philadelphia, December 6, 1774.

MY LORD: Since my last letter, dated the 4th of November, no publick occurrence has happened within my Government, except that, in pursuance of the recommendation of the Congress, the inhabitants of the City and County of Philadelphia, and some other Counties of this Province, have appointed Committees to observe the conduct of all persons within their respective Districts, touching the Association entered into by the Congress, and to see that the same be not violated.

Whenever any thing material occurs I shall take care to communicate the same to your Lordship by the first opportunity.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, &c.,

JOHN PENN.

JAMAICA (NEW-YORK) TOWN

At a Town Meeting of the Freeholders and Inhabitants of Jamaica, in Queen's County, held in the Court House, on Tuesday, the 6th of December, 1774:

Resolved, 1. That by principle and interest we have been always heartily attached to the Royal House of Hanover, as the guardians of the civil and religious liberties of the whole British Empire; and that we esteem it our duty to render true and faithful allegiance to George the Third, King of Great Britain, as our only rightful Sovereign; and to support and maintain the just dependence of the Colonies upon the Crown of Great Britain, under the enjoyment of our constitutional rights and privileges.

Resolved, 2. That it is our undoubted right to be taxed only by our own consent, given by ourselves or our Representatives; and that all Acts made by the British Parliament, imposing taxes on the Colonies, are unjust, unconstitutional, and a manifest infringement of our dearest and most invaluable privileges.

Resolved, 3. That we have esteemed it our greatest civil happiness and glory, to have been born subjects to the Crown, and members of society under the most excellent Constitution of Great Britain; that we regard ourselves as one people with our mother country, connected together by the strongest ties of affection, duty, interest, and religion; and that we lament as the greatest misfortune which as members of civil society could befall us, the unhappy disputes and divisions that have of late years subsisted between us; and that we heartily wish mutual love, harmony, confidence, and tranquillity may be restored, and established upon a solid and permanent foundation; and that we will join our most vigorous and unremitting endeavours to accomplish so great and so important a purpose.

Resolved, 4. That we highly approve of, and will, as much as possible, endeavour to comply with the seasonable and excellent advice given by the worthy Delegates of New-York to the Committee of Mechanics there, "to 'cultivate and cherish a spirit of unanimity and benevolence, and promote internal tranquillity." And that we will most heartily join with our brethren of the other Colonies, and our fellow-townsmen and inhabitants of this Province, in every prudent measure for the publick good.

Resolved, 5. That we heartily sympathize with our brethren of Boston and the Massachusetts Bay, under their present unexampled sufferings, and that we regard the Acts of Parliament under which they now groan, as cruel, unjust, unconstitutional, and oppressive in the highest degree, levelled not only at them in particular, but at the liberties of the other Colonies, and the British Empire in general; and that therefore, we think our aforesaid brethren, as sufferers in the common cause, are entitled to the encouragement, compassion, and charitable assistance of all the friends of liberty and foes of oppression, both in England and America.

Resolved, 6. That we do most gratefully acknowledge the difficult and important services rendered to their country by the late General Congress, held at Philadelphia, and that we do highly approve of the measures by them concerted for the publick good of their constituents, and that we will use all prudent and constitutional endeavours to carry those measures into execution.

Resolved, 7. That we do appoint for our Committee of Correspondence and Observation, the following gentlemen, viz: Reverend Abraham Kettletas, Doctor John Innes, Captain Joseph French, Captain Richard Betts, Captain Ephraim Barley, Mr. Elias Barley, Mr. Waters Smith, Mr. Joseph Robinson, and Mr. William Ludlam.

Resolved, 8. That this Committee do, in our names, present an Address of sincere and hearty thanks to the worthy Delegates of this Province for their cheerful acceptance and faithful discharge of the arduous and important trust committed to them by their countrymen.

Resolved, 9. That this meeting have as heartily approved of, and have always been as ready to promote, every prudent and constitutional measure for the redress of grievances, and for the preservation of those invaluable liberties which have been infringed by the British Ministry and Parliament, as any of their brethren, and that it is not their fault that they were not sooner convened for this important purpose, and that they do highly resent and heartily disapprove of the conduct of the Supervisor, and any other particular, by whose backwardness, ignorance, negligence, or remissness, this meeting has been so long delayed.

Pursuant to the eleventh Article of the Association entered into by the late Continental Congress, held at Philadelphia, at a meeting of the Freeholders of the Township of Newark, in the County of Essex, at the Court House, on Wednesday, the 7th of December, 1774,

JOSEPH BRIGGS, Jun., Esq., in the Chair:

After a proper introduction to the business of the day, the following persons were unanimously chosen as a Committee of Observation for the Town aforesaid, viz: Joseph Allen, Esq., Garrabrant Garrabrant, Esquire, Caleb Camp, Bethuel Pierson, John Range, Solomon Davis, Doctor Matthias Pierson, Samuel Pennington, Joseph Hedden, Jun., Daniel Cundict, John Earle, John Spear, Moses Farrand, David Cundict, Esq., John Peck, Joseph Lyon, Thomas Cadmus, Jun., Abraham Lyon, James Wheeler, Ichabod Harrison, Jonathan Sayer, Robert Johnston, Robert Veil, Junior.

At a meeting of a majority of the above Committee, held in Newark, January 5th, 1775, Caleb Camp, Chairman, Robert Johnston, Clerk:

Voted, That the Thanks of this Committee be presented to the Honourable Delegates for this Province, merebers of the Continental Congress held at Philadelphia in September last, for the faithful discharge of the important trust reposed in them:

TO THE DELEGATES FOR NEW-JERSEY, IN THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

GENTLEMEN: While we feel an inviolable attachment to the person of the King, and the present reigning family, it is with the highest esteem of, and gratitude to you, the particular Delegates for this Province (in conjunction with the whole of that venerable body) that we view the many wise and prudent measures by you adopted to support, and hand down to posterity inviolate, those valuable and important privileges, both civil and sacred, so highly prized by our ancestors.

And 'tis with the greatest resentment that we so often behold your virtuous and patriotick endeavours wickedly traduced and made the subject of ridicule and slander by those Sons of Belial, whose attachedness to their master, will prompt them to commit violence to their own judgments, and even feed their wickedness with the very blood of their country. But you sirs, may be assured, that such authors (when known as their criminal production) shall ever be treated by us with the utmost contempt, as they merit.

And as a further mark of acquiescence in the Association, and demonstration of our sincerity, we think it our duty for ourselves, and we will with the utmost of our influence, recommend to our constituents, as the only probable means of securing our liberties, that the said Association be punctually adhered to, and strictly put in execution.

That the blessings of Heaven, may succeed all our endeavours to vanquish our enemies, and effectually secure the liberties of British America, and finally establish a happy, constitutional, and lasting union between Great Britain and her Colonies, is the sincere wish of, gentlemen, your much obliged and very humble servants.

By order of the Committee,

CALEB CAMP, Chairman.

As the present critical situation of our Nation, and especially of British America, make it highly necessary, that every publick exhibition from the press should be stripped of all false disguises, and fairly hold up to view the only alternative, viz: a tame submission to a tyrannical Ministry, and its consequence, abject slavery; or, a brave, manly and constitutional resistance, as the only like-means of obtaining and enjoying liberty; Therefore the Committee of Observation, for the Township of Newark, beg leave to publish the following Queries and Resolves:

Query 1. Whether a Press, which weekly throws out pamphlets and other publick pieces, replete with the most bitter invectives, scandalous and criminal reflections upon that reputable body, the Continental Congress, and their constituents; and all, with a manifest design to blind the eyes of the less judicious; sow the seeds of faction and discord, and thus gratify the perfidious authors by prejudicing the honest, unthinking, against their real interest; whether such a press is not inimical to the country, where it is, and does not forfeit its support?

Query 2. Whether such a Printer, and the authors of such pieces, when known, are not, according to the strict sense of the Grand Congress, those very persons who by them are considered such enemies to their country that every true friend of liberty ought to avoid them.

Query 3. Whether a Printer in New-York in the space of three or four years, by the profits of his press, and a moderate per cent. on Keyser's Pills, with a few other insignificant perquisites, can from a low ebb of fortune, if not bankruptcy, acquire such independence, that he dare publicly, with an air of supercilious haughtiness, proclaim himself independent of the country, and that he could live without their custom.

Query 4. Whether such a man is not a Ministerial hireling, who is endeavouring to sacrifice his country to his own private interest.

And whereas, it is too evident to this Committee, that the above character is exactly fitted to J. Rivington: therefore, Resolved,

That this Committee will henceforth take no more of his papers, pamphlets, or any other publick performance of his press; neither will we deal with him in any other way: And we would heartily recommend, that our constituents may take this matter into serious consideration; and as far as it shall carry conviction to them, treat him with a correspondent conduct.

By order of the Committee,

CALEB CAMP, Chairman.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LIEUTENANT GOVERNOUR COLDEN TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH, DATED NEW-YORK, DECEMBER 7, 1774.

Notwithstanding the business which at this time agitates America, is such, that we continually expect some event of great importance, what has occurred in this Province since my letter to your Lordship of the 2d of November, has not been very material.

The first thing done here in consequence of the Resolutions of the Congress, was the dissolution of the Committee of fifty one, in order to choose a new Committee to carry the measures of the Congress into effect; a day was appointed by advertisement, for choosing sixty persons to form this new Committee.

About thirty or forty citizens appeared at the election, and chose the sixty persons who had been previously named by the former Committee. I can no otherwise, my Lord, account for the very small number of people who appeared on this occasion, than by supposing that the measures of the Congress are generally disrelished.

The Non-Importation Association affects the smugglers as well as the fair traders. No Tea is to be imported from any part of the world after the first day of this month.

The smugglers expect large quantities of Dutch Tea, and insist that it shall be exempted from the effect of the Association; others declare, that the fair traders shall not be the only sufferers. It is a dispute which I think may very probably defeat the Association. Several vessels are daily expected here with Goods from England, and I am told ten or twelve at Philadelphia. It is however shocking to reflect, my Lord, that smuggling is such a business among us, as to be publicly espoused by numbers, and more strenuously advocated than the legal trade.

In the present Committee of this place there are several gentlemen of property, and who are esteemed to favour moderate and conciliatory measures. I was surprized to find such men joining with the Committee, whose design is to execute the plan of the Congress. I have at length discovered that they act with a view to protect the city from the ravages of the mob. For this purpose, they say, they are obliged at present to support the measures of the Congress; that if they did not, the most dangerous men among us would take the lead; and, under pretence of executing the dictates of the Congress, would immediately throw the city into the most perilous situation; that however considerable the numbers may be who disapprove of violent riotous measures, yet the spirit of mobbing is so much abroad, it is in the power of a few people at any time to raise a mob; and that the gentlemen and men of property will not turn out to suppress them.

I fear, my Lord, there is too much truth in this representation. It is a dreadful situation; if we are not rescued from it by the wisdom and firmness of Parliament, the Colonies must soon fall into distraction, and every calamity annexed to a total annihilation of Government.

The Assembly of this Province stand prorogued to the tenth day of January, and, by the advice of the Council, summonses are issued for them to meet on that day.

Many people think there is a probability that they will go upon conciliatory measures, and propose something that may be countenanced by Administration. The event is uncertain, but on such occasions I think every thing is to be tried that may possibly avert the calamity which hangs over this country. I do not apprehend there is any danger that the Assembly will make matters worse than they are.

Several pieces have been published here exposing the extravagant and dangerous proceedings of Congress, and advising the people to rely on the Assembly, that they will take the most reasonable and constitutional means of restoring peace and harmony between Great Britain and this Province.

CAROLINE COUNTY, (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Freeholders of the County of Caroline, assembled at the Court House, on Thursday, the 8th day of December, 1774, for the purpose of choosing a Committee to see that the Association is duly kept, agreeable to the Resolutions of the Continental Congress, the following persons were elected: Edmund Pendleton, James Taylor, Walker Taliaferro, William Nelson, James Upshaw, William Woodford, Anthony Thornton, George Baylor, Thomas Lomax, Richard Johnson, John Tennent, George Taylor, John Minor, Thomas Loury, John Armistead, John Jones, George Guy, Benjamin Hubbard, Samuel Haws, and Edmund Pendleton, Junior, gentlemen.
Edmund Pendleton, Esquire, was unanimously elected Chairman of the Committee, and Samuel Haws, Junior, appointed Clerk.

MARYLAND CONVENTION.

At a meeting of the Deputies appointed by the several Counties of the Province of Maryland, at the City of Annapolis, by adjournment, on the 8th day of December, 1774, and continued till the 12th day of the same month, were present eighty-five Members, viz:

For St. Mary's County , 4	For Cecil , - - 2
Charles , - - - 3	Kent , - - - 2
Calvert , - - - 5	Queen Anne's , - - 4
Prince George's , - 8	Caroline , - - - 4
Frederick , - - - 8	Talbot , - - - 1
Anne Arundel &)	Dorchester , - - - 5
Annapolis City ,) 10	Somerset , - - - 1
Baltimore County , 8	Worcester , - - - 5
Harford , - - - 9

Mr. JOHN HALL, in the Chair, and
Mr. JOHN DUCKETT, Clerk.

The Proceedings of the Continental Congress were read, considered, and unanimously approved.
Resolved, That every Member of this Convention will, and every person in the Province ought, strictly and inviolably observe and carry into execution the Association agreed on by the said Continental Congress.
On motion,
Resolved unanimously, That the Thanks of this Convention be given, by the Chairman, to the gentlemen who represented this Province as Deputies in the late Continental Congress, for their faithful discharge of that important trust: And the same was done accordingly.
To increase our flocks of Sheep, and thereby promote the Woollen Manufacture in this Province,
Resolved, That no person ought to kill any Lamb, dropped before the first day of May, yearly, or other Sheep, after the first day of January next, under four years of age.
To increase the manufacture of Linen and Cotton,
Resolved, That every Planter and Farmer ought to raise as much Flax, Hemp, and Cotton, as he conveniently can; and the cultivation thereof is particularly recommended to such inhabitants of this Province, whose lands are best adapted to that purpose; and Resolved, that no Flaxseed, of the growth of the present year, ought to be purchased for exportation, after the 12th day of this month.

It being represented to this Convention that many Merchants and Traders of this Province, from a scarcity of cash to make their remittances, and other causes, had sold their Goods, within twelve month next, before the twentieth day of October last, at, and sometimes even below, the prime cost; and that, in many different parts of this Province, Merchants had vended their Goods at a very different advance on the prime cost, and it appearing to this Convention to be unjust to compel such Merchants to sell their Goods at prime cost, and that one general rule, allowing a reasonable profit to the Trader, and preventing him from taking advantage of the scarcity of Goods which may be occasioned by the Non-importation, would give great satisfaction to the Merchants and People of this Province,
Resolved unanimously, That no Merchant ought to sell his Goods, at wholesale, for more than 112 one-half per cent, - at retail, for cash, for more than 130 per cent, - on credit, for more than 150 per cent, - advance on the prime cost; and that no Merchant or other person, ought to engross any Goods, Wares, or Merchandise whatsoever; and in case any question should arise, respecting the prime cost of Goods, every Merchant or Factor possessing or owning such Goods, ought to ascertain the same on oath if requested to do it by the Committee.

As a further regulation to enforce an observance of the late Continental Association, Resolved unanimously, That in all cases where breaches of the Continental Association, or the Resolves of this Convention, shall happen and be declared such by any Committee of a County, no Gentleman of the Law ought to bring or prosecute any suit whatever for such offender; and if any Factor shall commit any breach of the said Association or Resolves, that no Gentleman of the Law ought to bring or prosecute any suit for any debt due to the store of which the said Factor has the management, after notice as aforesaid.
Resolved, That it is earnestly recommended by this Convention to the people of this Province, that the determinations of the several County Committees be observed and acquiesced in; that no persons except members of the Committees undertake to meddle with or determine any question respecting the construction of the Association entered into by the Continental Congress; and that peace and good order be inviolably maintained throughout this Province.
Resolved unanimously, That if the late Acts of Parliament relative to the Massachusetts Bay, shall be attempted to be carried into execution by force in that Colony; or if the assumed power of Parliament to tax the Colonies, shall be attempted to be carried into execution by force, in that or any other Colony, that in such case this Province will support such Colony to the utmost of their power.
Resolved unanimously, That a well-regulated Militia, composed of the gentlemen, freeholders, and other freemen, is the natural strength and only stable security of a free Government; and that such Militia will relieve our mother country from any expense in our protection and defence; will obviate the pretence of a necessity for taxing us on that account, and render it unnecessary to keep any Standing Army, (ever dangerous to liberty,) in this Province; and therefore it is recommended to such of the said inhabitants of this Province as are from sixteen to fifty years of age, to form themselves into Companies of sixty-eight men; to choose a Captain, two Lieutenants, an Ensign, four Sergeants, four Corporals, and one Drummer, for each Company, and use their utmost endeavours to make themselves masters of the military exercise; that each man be provided with a good Firelock, and Bayonet fitted thereon, half a pound of Powder, two pounds of Lead, and a Cartouch-Box or Powder-Horn, and Bag for Ball, and be in readiness to act on any emergency.
Resolved unanimously, That it is recommended to the Committee of each County to raise by subscription, or in such other voluntary manner as they may think proper, and will be most agreeable to their respective Counties, such sums of money as, with any moneys already raised, will amount to the following sums in the respective Counties, to wit: In-

St. Mary's County , £600 0	Worcester , - £533 0
Charles , - - 800 0	Somerset , - - 533 0
Calvert , 366 0	Dorchester , 480 0
Prince George's , - 833 0	Caroline , - - - 358 0
AnneArundel , - 866 0	Talbot , 400 0
Frederick , - - 1,333 0	Queen Anne's , - 533 0
Baltimore , - 933 0	Kent , - - 566 0
Harford , - - 466 0	Cecil , 400 0
£ 10,000 0

And that the Committees of the respective Counties lay out the same in the purchase of Arms and Ammunition for the use of such County, to be secured and kept in proper and convenient places, under the direction of the said Committees.
Resolved unanimously, That it will be necessary that a Provincial Meeting of Deputies, chosen by the several Counties of this Province, should be held in the City of Annapolis, on Monday, the 24th day of April next, unless American grievances be redressed before that time; and therefore we recommend that the several Counties of this Province choose Deputies as soon as conveniently may be, to attend such meeting; and the Committee of Correspondence for this Province are empowered to call a meeting of the said Deputies before the said 24th day of April, if they shall esteem it necessary.

Resolved unanimously, That contributions from the several Counties of this Province, for supplying the necessities and alleviating the distresses of our brethren at Boston, ought to be continued in such manner and so long as their occasions may require; and that it is the duty of the Committees of each County to collect and transmit the same as soon as possible.

Resolved unanimously, That the Honourable Matthew Tilghman and John Hall, Samuel Chase, Thomas Johnson, Junior, Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, Charles Carroll, Barrister, and William Paca, Esquires, or any three or more of them, be a Committee of Correspondence for this Province.

Resolved unanimously, That the Honourable Matthew Tilghman and Thomas Johnson, Junior, Robert Goldsborough, William Paca, Samuel Chase, John Hall, and Thomas Stone, Esquires, or any three or more of them, be Delegates to represent this Province in the next Continental Congress; and that they or any three or more of them, have full and ample power to consent and agree to all measures which such Congress shall deem necessary and effectual to obtain a redress of American grievances; and this Province bind themselves to execute, to the utmost of their power, all Resolutions which the said Congress may adopt; and further, if the said Congress shall think necessary to adjourn, we do authorize our said Delegates to represent and act for this Province in any one Congress to be held by virtue of such adjournment.

Resolved unanimously, That it is recommended to the several Colonies and Provinces, to enter into such or the like Resolutions, for mutual defence and protection, as are entered into by this Province.

As our opposition to the settled plan of the British Administration to enslave America, will be strengthened by an union of all ranks of men in this Province, we do most earnestly recommend that all former differences about Religion or Politicks, and all private animosities and quarrels of every kind, from henceforth cease and be forever buried in oblivion; and we entreat, we conjure every man, by his duty to God, his country, and his posterity, cordially to unite in defence of our common Rights and Liberties.

Ordered, That copies of these Resolutions be transmitted by the Committee of Correspondence for this Province, to the Committees of Correspondence of the several Colonies, and be also published in the Maryland Gazette.

By order, JOHN DUCKETT, Clerk.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM SAVANNAH, GA., TO A GENTLEMAN IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED DECEMBER 9, 1774.

Yesterday the inhabitants of Savannah met and chose Deputies to meet in Provincial Congress; the Deputies of the several Parishes and Districts of this Province to be chosen before the eighteenth of next month, on which day they meet; and there is not the least doubt they will adopt every measure recommended by the Congress, and firmly enter into the Association. You may be assured they will on that day also elect Deputies to meet the Continental or General Congress, to be held in Philadelphia on or about the 10th day of May next. The spirit of opposition has subsided, and most of the Protesters against the former Resolves came to the poll and voted for Delegates. Two of our back Parishes which made the most noise, are now come over to us; as the Carolina trade was ready to be stopped, it immediately lessened the value of Indian corn one-third.

When you consider our local situation, and the circumstances of having as many place-men and publick officers with their connections, as the largest and most populous Government on the Continent, and those with independent salaries from Government; add to that the Indian war with which the Province was threatened, which is now settled, was a strong argument with many why the opposition to Government should not be made by us, as we had just applied home for Troops: that difficulty being removed, there is not the least doubt but Georgia will appear among the foremost in support of civil and religious liberty. I have taken the liberty to give you a hint of what you may depend we shall do (you being one of the Committee.) I will take it as a particular favour if you will interest yourself in behalf of the Province, and do all in your power to let the Brig return, not that I am one farthing interested in her any ways, but that the many virtuous among us will be sufferers, and the Province lie under a reproach, which, when experienced, may be a means to frustrate their good intentions.

There is large donations of Rice for the sufferers in Boston, and had we the means of sending it to them, with very little trouble much more would be collected and sent. Few have subscribed less than ten tierces of Rice. If no opportunity offers soon directly to Boston, it will be sent to your Committee to be disposed of for them.

PRINCE WILLIAM COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE,

In consequence of the eleventh Resolution of the Continental Congress, the Freeholders of the County of Prince William, being convened at the house of William Reno, on Monday, the 9th day of December, 1774, proceeded to elect the following gentlemen as a Committee for the said County: Thomas Blackburn, Foushee Tebbs, Cuthbert Bullitt, Henry Lee, William Alexander, Jesse Ewell, Cuthbert Harrison, Thomas Attwell, William Grayson, Lynaugh Helm, Henry Peyton, John Hooe, William Brent, Hugh Brent, John M'Millian, James Triplett, William Carr, Andrew Leitch, Howson Hove, James Ewell, John Brett, John Peyton, James Gwatkin, Richard Graham, and William Tebbs.

At a meeting of the Committee held at the house of Thomas Young, in the Town of Dumfries, on Wednesday, the 21st day of the same month, Foushee Tebbs, Esquire, in the Chair, Mr. Evan Williams, Clerk:

Resolved, That the Thanks of this Committee are due to the Deputies of this Colony, for their wise, firm, and patriotic conduct in the late Continental Congress.

Resolved, That whenever there appears to this Committee cause to suspect that any Merchant or Trader of this County has violated the Association of the Continental Congress, by raising the price of his Goods, that such Merchant or Trader be called upon to show his day-books and invoices, to clear up such suspicion; and that in case of refusal he be deemed guilty of the charge, and subject to the penalties in such case provided.

Resolved, As the opinion of this Committee, that no person or persons whatsoever, in this County, ought to make use of East India Tea, until American grievances are redressed.

Resolved, That all publick Balls and Entertainments be discountenanced in this County from this time, as contrary to the sentiments of the Continental Congress.

Resolved, That no person in this County ought to purchase for exportation any Flaxseed of the growth of the present year.

Resolved, That no person in this County ought to purchase more Goods in one year than he has been accustomed to do in the same space of time, that the poor, or those who have not a command of cash, may not be distressed by wealthy designing men.

By order, EVAN WILLIAMS, Clerk.

THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH TO THE GOVERNOURS OF THE SEVERAL COLONIES.

SIR: Enclosed I send you, by his Majesty's commands, printed copies of his Majesty's most gracious Speech to his Parliament, and of the Address and Answer thereto, which were passed in both Houses by a very great majority.

The declaration which his Majesty has been most graciously pleased to make, of his firm and steadfast resolution to withstand every attempt to weaken or impair the authority of the Supreme Legislature over all his Majesty's Dominions; the resolution of both Houses, to support those great constitutional principles by which his Majesty's conduct hath been governed, and their entire approbation of the steps his Majesty has taken for carrying into execution the Laws passed in the last session, will, I trust, have the effect to remove those false impressions which have been made upon the minds of his Majesty's subjects in America, and put an end to those expectations of support in their unwarrantable pretensions, which have been held forth by artful and designing men. I am, sir, your most obedient, &c.,

DARTMOUTH.

Governour of * * * * *

EARL OF DARTMOUTH TO LIEUTENANT GOVERNOUR COLDEN.

Whitehall, December 10, 1774.

SIR: I have received your letters, Nos. 6 and 7, and have laid them before the King, together with the Petition and Affidavit enclosed in the first of them relative to the lawless and violent proceedings of such of the inhabitants of the Township of Bennington as claim lands in that Township under grants from New-Hampshire.

The circumstances attending those disturbances are very alarming; and if it be true that those parts of the Province are now an asylum for fugitives from every other part of America, it is certainly become an object that deserves the fullest attention. I cannot, however, be of opinion that the assistance of the King's Troops ought to be called for until every other effort has been tried and found insufficient. Whenever this matter comes to that issue, it will certainly be the duty of the King's servants to advise his Majesty to strengthen the hands of Government, by an application of the military force; but I do not see at present sufficient ground for the adoption of such a measure; and I am not without hopes, that when the present very alarming situation of the King's affairs in North America, from other causes, will leave our hands more at liberty, some means may be found to accommodate these disputes without the risk of bloodshed. I trust it will not be long before we shall find sufficient leisure for such a consideration; and his Majesty's subjects who have claims in that part of the country, under grants from New-York, may rest assured that their pretensions will meet with every countenance and support that can be shown, consistent with justice; for I can with truth say, that the conduct of that Province in general, and more especially in the present moment, has been such as justly entitles its well disposed and peaceable inhabitants to his Majesty's particular favour and indulgence; and I have the satisfaction to assure you that their conduct is seen in a very favourable light; and the wishes they have in general, that all violence might be avoided, and the sovereign authority of the Supreme Legislature might be supported, are graciously considered by the King as evidences of their respect and affection for his Majesty, and of the just sense they entertain of the rights of the British Empire. I am, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

DARTMOUTH.

Lieutenant Governour Colden.

Queen's County, Newtown, December 10, 1774.

The election of a Committee of seventeen persons, for the purposes mentioned in the Association entered into by the Continental Congress, and for corresponding with the other Committees of this Province, having this day came on, pursuant to advertisements of the Supervisors of said Town, a great number of the most respectable Freeholders assembled at the Town House, and the following persons were unanimously chosen, viz: Jacob Blackwell, Daniel Rapalje and Richard Alsop, Esquires, Messrs. Philip Edfall, Thomas Lawrance, Samuel Moore, Jonathan Lawrance, William Furman, William Howard, Daniel Lawrance, Jeromes Remsen, Samuel Riker, John Alburtis, Abraham Brinckerhoff, Jonnithan Coe, Samuel Morrell, and James Way.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LONDON, TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK, DATED DECEMBER 10, 1774.

SIR: The ground of contest between Great Britain and her Colonies, seems to be changed. You have lately taken in a larger scope of argument, and your leaders sally forth resolved to demolish every instance of Parliamentary jurisdiction. Thus, you now deny what you formerly asserted was a necessary authority in Parliament - the superintendence and regulation of the trade of the whole British Empire. Internal Taxes were formerly the only objects of clamours; but now external Impositions are in the same predicament. In short, every species of Legislation exercised by Great Britain, is equally liable to objection in point of right; and your warm partisans have only a little too soon exposed those conclusions, which intelligent men long ago perceived to be concealed under their principles. The sum total of those claims is Independence on Great Britain; for a subordination, without your being subject to the Legislative authority of England, is a doctrine rather unintelligible.

As an American, I wish my country every blessing of freedom; but I think we can expect more happiness by an union with England, and subordination to the Supreme Legislature, than by any fancied schemes of Independent States. The superintendence and mediation of Great Britain seems to be necessary to balance and decide the different interests of the several Plantations and Colonies, and to direct, command, and govern the operations and powers of each, for the benefit and defence of all. Protected by her Navy and Armies, we shall rise with fresh vigour and strength, and see her free and well-balanced Constitution gradually communicated to us. In a state of separation, on the contrary, ages may pass and rivers of blood be shed, before any regular form of Government could be adopted and fixed on a firm basis. The history of all Nations confirms these observations, which have dropped from my pen, before I was aware that I had plunged myself headlong into politicks - edge tools which a man who intends to make the free climes of America his country, must, I find from your newspapers, be cautious of meddling with. There is something extremely absurd in some men's eternally declaiming on freedom of thought, and the unalienable rights of Englishmen, when they will not permit an opponent to open his mouth on the subjects in dispute, without danger of being presented with a coat of tar and feathers.

Kind moderate measures been pursued by you; had you first done justice yourselves before you complained of injustice in others; had you petitioned instead of threatened; stated your rights with precision, instead of holding up loose claims founded on I know not what fluctuating ground of Natural Rights; had you discussed these matters in your legal Assemblies, instead of leaving them to the decision of a body which the Constitution is ignorant of, and whose decrees cannot be acted on, and may be contradicted with impunity, had a line of conduct like this been pursued, I have reason to assure you that, your petitions would have been attended to, and the present disputes terminated by a liberal and firm Constitution, preserving a necessary supremacy to Parliament, and securing you in those liberties which your Charters are totally silent on, or absolutely preclude you from.

What now will be the consequence, I cannot determine. Firmness and temper will be preserved on this side; and acts of severity will be, with the utmost reluctance, forced from the Ministry. They consider your interests as their own, and therefore will be averse from every thing that may injure you. They would gladly forgive, if they could see any marks of contrition in the disobedient. But the dignity of Government will never permit a Parliament, which the most powerful States of Europe would dread to insult, to make advances towards a reconciliation with you, while you command it by threats and menaces. Violence commenced with Boston, and the first step to a reconciliation, in justice, ought to be a satisfaction to the honour of Great Britain, and a redress to the injury done to its Merchants.

Your Patriots, by contending for too much, will probably lose all. In the warmth of their zeal, and under the delusion which they have been hurried into by the encouragement of their pretended friends in this country, they have unveiled pretensions and designs which must be fatal to them. They have convinced the world, by their new claims, that the smallest part of the foundation of Parliamentary jurisdiction cannot be impaired, without demolishing the whole superstructure.

The author of the "Summary" seems to have laboured to convince the People of England, that nothing but Independence will satisfy America. The "Pennsylvania Farmer," by the late instructions, which hold up a claim to an exemption from Acts of Parliament, has ruined the cause, and drawn on himself the just charge of contradicting his own principles.

I perceive by the American Papers, that no artifice has been left untried to deceive you by representations of the hostile designs of Government, and heated recommendations of violent measures on your part. These should be set in their true light. They proceed from a faction here, who labour incessantly to distress Administration, in order to succeed to the places of their defeated rivals. With what little success they have laboured, you will gather from the King's Speech and the Answers of both Houses. Never was there a more contemptible opposition.

Had the injury done to the East India Company been redressed, and dutiful petitions presented by the several Provincial Assemblies, a pacification would have ensued, and the unhappy disputes here been terminated, in a manner advantageous to both countries. But the dignity of Government will never permit it to make the first advances; especially while the Colonies discover a spirit of defiance and disaffection.

The pretences of a design in Administration to injure the Colonies, is absurd. If America suffers, Great Britain must suffer with it. A just subordination on the part of the Colonies is necessary for the common happiness. The superintending and mediatorial power of one Supreme Legislature, is necessary to direct the operations of the grand state machine to mutual advantage. Had Administration entertained tyrannical schemes, they certainly would have rather chosen to draw supplies from America by Royal requisition, in the disposal of which they would be unaccountable, than by a mode in which it will be appropriated by Parliament.

KING AND QUEEN COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE,

At a Meeting of the Freeholders of the County of King and Queen, assembled at the Court House, on Monday, the 12th day of December, 1774, for the purpose of choosing a Committee to see that the Association is duly kept, agreeable to the Resolutions of the Continental Congress, the following persons were elected, viz: Thomas Coleman, George Lyne, Gregory Baylor, Richard Tunstall, Jun., Robert Hill, Gregory Smith, Tunstall Banks, Anderson Scott, William Richards, William Todd, Henry Todd, John Bagby, George Brooke, Henry Lumpkin, Richard Tunstall, Benjamin Pendleton, John Collier, Thomas Row, Stephen Field, William Lyne, Joseph Temple, John Lyne, Richard Anderson, and Matthew Anderson, gentlemen.

And at a meeting of a majority of the said Committee, on Monday, the 9th of January, 1775, Richard Tunstall, Esquire, was unanimously elected Chairman of the Committee, and, in case of his absence, George Brooke, Esq., was appointed to act for the time, and John Tunstall appointed Clerk.

Ordered, That the Clerk of this Committee transmit to the publick Printer a list of the Committee chosen for the said County, to be advertised in the Virginia Gazette.

JOHN TUNSTALL, Clerk.

HENRICO COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Committee for Henrico County, Virginia, on Monday, the 12th day of December, 1774, Resolved unanimously, That the Reverend Miles Selden be appointed Chairman to this Committee.

Resolved, That upon application of any three members of this Committee to the Chairman, he is authorized to call a general meeting thereof.

Resolved unanimously, That the Resolutions of the General Congress should be resorted to on every occasion, and that they ought to be considered by the Committee as the sole rule of their conduct, respecting their present political engagements.

Resolved, That Richard Adams, Samuel Du Val, Richard Randolph, Turner Southall, Joshua Storrs, James Buchanan, Isaac Younghusband, John Hales, and Samuel

Price, or any three of them, be appointed a Corresponding Committee, on behalf of this County, whose business it shall be, upon every occasion when necessary, to inform the respective Committees of the several Counties within this Colony of any breach or violation of the General Association by any person whatsoever.

Resolved unanimously, That, for the more effectual carrying into execution the Association of the General Congress, and obtaining a speedy redress of American grievances, we will, as an immediate step thereto, enter into a subscription for the encouragement of all kinds of husbandry and manufactures within this Country.

By order of the Committee,

JOHN BECKLEY, Clerk.

DANBURY (CONNECTICUT) TOWN MEETING,

At a legal Meeting of the Inhabitants of the Town of Danbury, in Connecticut, December 12, 1774,

Captain THOMAS STEVENS, Moderator:

The Town took into consideration the present alarming situation of the American Colonies, from several late unconstitutional and oppressive Acts of the British Parliament, and feeling deeply impressed with a sense of our common danger, we should have earlier manifested our sense of the natural and constitutional rights we are, or ought to be possessed of, and of the wanton infringements made upon them by the oppressive plan of policy now prosecuting by the British Ministry, were it not that we thought there was the greatest propriety in waiting till they were stated by a General Congress; lest, by every Town's attempting particularly to state them, there might be a disagreement in their claims, which might occasion disunion among our selves, and give cause of triumph to our enemies. But our rights, and the infringements of them, having been particularly stated by the late American Congress in their Resolutions or Bill of Rights, which, from the best knowledge and information we are able to obtain, we apprehend to be accurately and judiciously done: We do therefore,

1. Declare our full concurrence with said Resolutions, as truly stating the rights and privileges we mean to defend; and the oppressive infringements we mean to oppose to the extent of those abilities which God and nature has furnished us with.

2. We do heartily approve of the Association containing a Non-Importation, Non-Exportation, and Non-Consumption Agreement, entered into by the General Congress, as the most salutary, wise, and probable measure for obtaining redress of the grievances we labour under, and will use our utmost endeavours to render the same effectual, by a full compliance therewith ourselves, and by treating with deserved neglect any one who shall dare, in opposition to the voice of America, by counteracting this Agreement, to seek his own emolument, to the endangering the liberties of his country. And that such as break through this Agreement, and refuse to be reclaimed by gentler means, may be held up to publick view as objects to be shunned and avoided by every friend to liberty and lover of his country, we have appointed the following gentlemen a Committee for the purpose specified in the eleventh Article of said Association, viz: Doctor John Wood, Thaddeus Benedict, and Daniel Taylor, Esquires, Lieutenant Noble Benedict, Colonel Joseph Platt Cook, Captain Silas Hamilton, Samuel Taylor, Esq., Messrs. Andrew Comstock, James Siely, Daniel Benedict, and Richard Shute, Captain Thomas Stevens, and Mr. Joseph Bebee.

3. We think it expedient there should be a meeting of Deputies from the several Towns in the County of Fairfield, to choose a County Committee, agreeable to the advice of the Congress, and to agree upon measures to be taken with any Town in the County (if any such there should be) who should refuse to concur with the Association agreed upon by the General Congress; and we desire the Committee of the County Town to notify the several Towns in the County of the time and place for said meeting.

4. It is with singular pleasure we notice the second Article of the Association, in which it is agreed to import no more Negro Slaves, as we cannot but think it a palpable absurdity so loudly to complain of attempts to en-slave us, while we are actually enslaving others; and that we have great reason to apprehend the enslaving the Africans is one of the crying sins of our land, for which Heaven is now chastising us. We notice, also, with pleasure, the late Act of our General Assembly, imposing a fine of one hundred Pounds on any one who shall import a Negro Slave into this Colony. We could also wish that something further might be done for the relief of such as are now in a state of slavery in the Colonies, and such as may hereafter be born of parents in that unhappy condition.

5. As we look upon the Town of Boston to be suffering in the common cause of American liberty, we would manifest our hearty sympathy with them, in their present calamitous state, and readiness to administer to the relief of their suffering poor, according to our abilities; and do accordingly recommend to the several inhabitants of this Town to contribute liberally of money or provisions. For this purpose we have appointed Captain Daniel Stair, Messrs. John M'Lean, Zadock Benedict, and Andrew Comstock, a Committee to receive such donations, and transmit the same to the Committee appointed to receive them in the Town of Boston. Our being so late in contributing to their relief hath not arisen from our having been unconcerned spectators of their distressed situation; but hearing of the laudable zeal of others we were ready to conclude there was a sufficient present supply, and that our donations would be more needed and more acceptable in some future time.

Voted by a large majority,

MAJOR TAYLOR, Town Clerk.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN BOSTON TO HIS FRIEND IN NEW-YORK, DATED DECEMBER 15, 1774.

Two ships of the line, viz: the Asia and Boyne, are arrived here, and the Somerset is now firing guns in the Offing.

The day before yesterday it was moved in Provincial Congress that Arms be immediately taken up against the King's Troops; but one of the Members got up and told them such a move was infamous, when, at the same time, the Members knew that neither Connecticut nor any of the Southern Colonies meant to oppose his Majesty's Arms; on which account the Congress immediately dissolved, and a new one is to be chosen, to meet the tenth of next month.

At Plymouth they are now beating up for Volunteers to attack the Troops; the parties sent for a Parson to pray for them, who refused to comply; but he was obliged to attend on being sent for a second time, on penalty of being shot.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM CAPTAIN WALLACE TO VICE ADMIRAL GRAVES, DATED ON BOARD HIS MAJESTY'S SHIP, ROSE, AT NEW-PORT, RHODE-ISLAND, DECEMBER 15, 1774.

Yesterday I arrived in this Port, with his Majesty's ship under my command, from New-London, on a cruise, of which I had the honour to acquaint you the 8th instant. Since my absence from this place I find the inhabitants (they say here of Providence) have seized upon the King's Cannon that was upon Fort Island, consisting of six 24-pounders, eighteen 18-pounders, fourteen 6-pounders, and six 4-pounders, (the latter they say formerly belonged to a Province Sloop they had here,) and conveyed them to Providence. A procedure so extraordinary caused me to wait upon the Governour to inquire of him, for your information, why such a step had been taken? He very frankly told me they had done it to prevent their falling into the hands of the King, or any of his servants, and that they meant to make use of them to defend themselves against any power that shall offer to molest them. I then mentioned, if, in the course of carrying on the King's service here, I should ask assistance, whether I might expect any from him, or any others in the Government? He answered, as to himself he had no power, and in respect to any other part of the Government, I should meet with nothing but opposition and difficulty. So much from Governour Wanton. Then I endeavoured to get the best information, of what they were at, from other quarters, and enclosed I send it to you; among some of their votes you will find they intend to procure Powder and Ball, and Military Stores of all kinds, whenever they can get them.

SIR JAMES WRIGHT, BART, TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH.
Savannah, in Georgia, December 13, 1774.

MY LORD: I think it my duty to acquaint your Lordship that since the Carolina Deputies have returned from the Continental Congress, as they call it, every means possible have been used to raise a flame again in this Province. Those people, it is said, solemnly undertook that this Province should accede to the Resolves of that Congress, and we have been in hot water ever since; and I suppose the Sons of Liberty here, stimulated by the Carolinians, will take upon them to pass Resolves in the name of the whole Province. I shall endeavour as much as possible to prevent it, but the sanction given to rebellion by the Resolves and Proceedings of that Congress has greatly encouraged the spirit of political enthusiasm which many were possessed of before, and raised it to such a height of phrenzy, that God knows what the consequences may be, or what man, or whose property may escape their resentment. The only consolation I have, my Lord, is, that things cannot continue long in this state, and must come to a point soon; indeed, I hope some determination is come to already, or will before the Parliament rises for the holidays. I have, &c., J. WRIGHT.

ARTHUR LEE TO RICHARD H. LEE.

London, December 13, 1774.

MY DEAR BROTHER: The proceedings at the Congress are yet unknown to us, but our last accounts from you signify that the Non-Export will not take place till the present crop is shipped. It is unfortunate that you did not adopt that measure immediately upon the receipt of the late Acts, because the operation of it would have been felt by this time, and would, in all probability, have enforced the repeal of them this session. But now, by that dangerous delay, the present Parliament will be involved like the old one, and the pier of wounded dignity will still impede a retraction. The Merchants too, being in possession of one year's crop, will be enabled to pay the tradesmen, &c., and subsist themselves under a suspension of trade for at least a year, so as to prevent any clamour, and give the Ministry that time to try what fraud and force can do to divest you of your liberties. Thus, by an ill-judged tenderness, towards men who have neither the feelings of humanity or justice for us, but on the contrary would joyfully minister to our oppression, we have strengthened the hands of our enemies, and subjected ourselves to additional hazards and hardships. However, instead of idly lamenting over what is irretrievable, let us consider what should be our conduct in the present situation. If the people flatter themselves that the threat will be sufficient, and that they will not be put to the trial, under that dangerous deception they will again plant Tobacco, and be equally unprepared to stand the contest. The utmost attention should therefore be employed to convince them that it is serious, that nothing but a hearty struggle will preserve their civil and religious liberties. In order to be prepared, they should double their quantity of Corn and Grain, not that they can export it, but that they may enjoy the blessing of plenty to mitigate other hardships, and keep the country in good humour; they should plant great quantities of Cotton, and desist immediately from the use of Mutton and Lamb, which will furnish them against next winter with Wool and Cotton enough to clothe the whole Colony. With provisions cheap and plenty, and warm clothing, you may surely bid defiance to this country. Every thing that will yield Spirit, as Persimmons, Grapes, &c., should be gathered and distilled; Rye and Barley should be cultivated for that purpose. My reason for this is that it will be the plan to cut of all communication between the Colonies, from whence the usual supply of Spirits being prevented, the common Planters, to whom they are absolutely necessary, may be induced to murmur if not resist those measures of opposition, which our Scotch friends will take care to whisper them are the cause of their distress. As a great deal depends upon the hearty concurrence of the body of the people, provision should be made against every thing that may obstruct it. The Ministerial language now is, not for force; however, I would not trust them, but prepare against that too by arming and exercising the Militia.

The plan at present is to pass two Acts, one for taking the fishery from New England, and encouraging the Canadians, the other to make all Associations, touching trade, treasonable. Additional supplies will be granted, and it will be left to the King and his Ministry to add military force, which I verily believe they will do. You have the whole of their plan before you, and I hope you will not remit of the utmost activity to defeat it. The not planting any Tobacco will be a decisive measure to convince them here that you are in earnest. Such conviction will be of great use. You may depend upon it that the Merchants here will never move in your behalf till you alarm their fears so much, or touch their interests so strongly, as to make the cause their own. My anxiety about the publick absorbs every idea of private concerns. Colonel Phil. remits me nothing, and the additional expences of my being called to the bar in April next, will distress me extremely. My love to Mrs. Lee and every body else. Adieu,

ARTHUR LEE.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK, DATED NEWPORT, RHODE-ISLAND, DECEMBER 14, 1774.

The people here have, I think, openly declared themselves against, Government, and in such a manner as surely must be pronounced rebellion. Is it possible that a people without Arms, Ammunition, Money, or Navy, should dare to brave a Nation dreaded and respected by all the Powers an earth? What black ingratitude to the parent state, who has nourished, protected, and supported them in their infancy. What can these things indicate but a civil war? Horrid reflection! and such as freezes the blood of every humane heart.

There has been a most extraordinary movement here a few days ago. The publick authority of the Colony have dismantled the King's Fort, and moved all the Cannon and Stores to Providence, in order, as it is said, to assist the Bostonians against the King's Troops.

Underneath is a list of the Cannon:

Six 24-pounders, eighteen 18-pounders, given by the late King to the Fort; fourteen 6-pounders, six 4-pounders, belonging to the Colony,

God send us better times. Yours, &c.

GOVERNOUR WENTWORTH TO GOVERNOUR GAGE.

Portsmouth, New-Hampshire, December 14, 1774.

SIR: I have the honour to receive your Excellency's letter of the 9th instant, with the letter from the Secretary of State, which were both delivered to me on Monday evening last by Mr. Whiting.

It is with the utmost concern I am called upon by my duty to the King, to communicate to your Excellency a most unhappy affair perpetrated here this day.

Yesterday in the afternoon, Paul Revere arrived in this Town, express from a Committee in Boston to another Committee in this Town, and delivered his despatch to Mr. Samuel Cutts, a Merchant of this Town, who immediately convened the Committee, of which he is one, and as I learn, laid it before them. This day, about noon, before any suspicions could be had of their intentions, about four hundred men were collected together, and immediately proceeded to his Majesty's Castle, William and Mary, at the entrance of this Harbour, and forcibly took possession thereof, notwithstanding the best defence that could be made by Captain Cochran, (whose conduct has been extremely laudable, as your Excellency will see by the enclosed letter from him,) and by violence, carried off upwards of one hundred barrels of Powder, belonging to the King, deposited in the Castle. I am informed that expresses have been circulated through the neighbouring Towns, to collect a number of people to-morrow, or as soon as possible, to carry away all the Cannon and Arms belonging to the Castle, which they will undoubtedly effect, unless some assistance should arrive from Boston in time to prevent it. This event too plainly proves the imbecility of this Government to carry into execution his Majesty's Order in Council, for seizing and detaining Arms and Ammunition imported into this Province, without some strong Ships-of-War in this Harbour: neither is this Province or Custom House Treasury in any degree safe, if it should come into the mind of the popular leaders to seize upon them.

The principal persons who took lead in this enormity are well known. Upon the best information I can obtain, this mischief originates from the publishing the Secretary of State's letter, and the King's Order in Council, at Rhode-Island, prohibiting the exportation of Military Stores from Great Britain, and the proceedings in that Colony in consequence of it, which have been published here by the forementioned Mr. Revere, and the despatch brought, before which all was perfectly quiet and peaceable here.

I am, &c., J. WENTWORTH
To the Honourable Governour Gage.

CAPTAIN COCHRAN, COMMANDER OF FORT WILLIAM AND MARY, IN NEW HAMPSHIRE, TO GOVERNOUR WENTWORTH, DATED DECEMBER 14, 1774.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: I received your Excellency's favour of yesterday, and in obedience thereto kept a strict watch all night, and added two men to my usual number, being all I could get. Nothing material occurred till this day, one o'clock, when I was informed there was a number of people coming to take possession of the Fort, upon which, having only five effective men with me, I prepared to make the best defence I could, and pointed some Guns to those places where I expected they would enter. About three o'clock the Fort was besieged on all sides by upwards of four hundred men. I told them on their peril not to enter; they replied they would; I immediately ordered three four-pounders to be fired on them, and then the small arms, and before we could be ready to fire again, we were stormed on all quarters, and they immediately secured both me and my men, and kept us prisoners about one hour and a half, during which time they broke open the Powder House, and took all the Powder away except one barrel, and having put it into boats and sent it off, they released me from my confinement. To which can only add, that I did all in my power to defend the Fort, but all my efforts could not avail against so great a number. I am your Excellency's, &c.

JOHN COCHRAN.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM GOVERNOUR WENTWORTH TO GOVERNOUR GAGE, DATED PORTSMOUTH, NEW-HAMPSHIRE, DECEMBER 16, 1774.

On Wednesday last, after twelve o'clock, an insurrection suddenly took place in this Town, and immediately proceeded to his Majesty's Castle, attacked, overpowered, wounded and confined the Captain, and thence took away all the King's Powder. Yesterday numbers more assembled, and last night brought off many Cannons, &c., and about sixty Muskets. This day the Town is full of armed men, who refuse to disperse, but appear determined to complete the dismantling the Fortress entirely. Hitherto the people abstain from private or personal injuries; how long they will be so prevailed on, it is impossible to say. I must sincerely lament the present distractions, which seem to have burst forth by means of a letter from William Cooper, to Samuel Cutts, delivered here on Tuesday last, P. M., by Paul Revere. I have not time to add further on this melancholy subject.

P. S. The populace threaten to abuse Colonel Fenton, because he has to them declared the folly of their conduct, and that he will do his duty as a Justice in executing the laws. They will never prevail on him to retract, if all the men in the Province attack him. If I had two hundred such men, the Castle and all therein would yet have been safe. At this moment the heavy Cannon are not carried off, but how soon they may be, I cannot say.

EXTRACTS OF LETTERS TO GENTLEMEN IN NEW-YORK.

Portsmouth, New-Hampshire, December 16, 1774.

We have been in confusion here for two days, on account of an express from Boston, informing that two Regiments were coming to take possession of our Fort; by beat of drum, two hundred men immediately assembled, and went to the Castle, in two Gondolas, who on their way were joined by one hundred and fifty more, and demanded the surrender of the Fort, which Captain Cochran refused, and fired three Guns, but no lives were lost; upon which they immediately scaled the walls, disarmed the Captain and his men, took possession of ninety-seven barrels of Powder, put it on board the Gondolas, brought it up to Town, and went off with it some distance in the country. Yesterday the Town was full of men from the country, who marched in in form; chose a Committee to wait on the Governour, who assured them he knew of no such design as sending Troops, Ships, &c. This morning I hear there is a thousand or fifteen hundred men on their march to Town. The Governour and Council sat yesterday on the affair, and are now meeting again. The men who came down, are those of the best property and note in the Province.

Portsmouth, N. H. December 17, 1774.

On Wednesday last a drum and a fife paraded the streets of Portsmouth, accompanied by several Committee-men and the Sons of Liberty, publicly avowing their intention of taking possession of Fort William and Mary, which was garrisoned by six invalids. After a great number of people had collected together, they embarked on board scows, boats &c., entered the Fort, seized the Gunpowder, fired off the Guns, and carried the Powder up to Exeter; a Town fifteen miles distant. The quantity was about two hundred to two hundred and twenty barrels; the day after, while the Governour and Council were assembled in the Council Chamber, between two and three hundred persons came from Durham, and the adjoining Towns, headed by Major Sullivan, one of the Delegates of the Congress, they drew up before the Council Chamber, and demanded an answer to the following question: Whether there were any Ships or Troops expected here, or if the Governour had wrote for any? They were answered that his Excellency knew of no forces coming hither, and that none had been sent for; upon which they retired to the Taverns, and about ten or eleven o'clock at night, a large party repaired to the Fort, and it is said they carried away all the small arms. This morning about sixty horsemen accoutred, came into Town, and gave out that seven hundred more were on their march to Portsmouth, from Exeter, Greenland, New-Market, &c., and would be in that Town by eleven o'clock; their intentions, it is suspected, is to dismantle the Fort, and throw the Cannon, consisting of a fine train of 42-pounders, into the sea.

To the Right Honourable JOHN, Earl of DUNMORE, his Majesty's Lieutenant and Governour-General of the Colony and Dominion of VIRGINIA, and Vice Admiral of the same:

MY LORD: We, his Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Council of Virginia, with the most heartfelt joy and unfeigned pleasure, beg leave to offer our congratulations to your Lordship on your safe return, after the fatigues and dangers of a troublesome expedition:

Your Lordship's vigorous opposition to the incursions and ravages of an Indian enemy, hath effectually prevented the desolation of a growing back country, and the horrors of human carnage. The scene of war was remote from us; our properties and estates were not immediately exposed to the miseries consequent thereon; but though not equally interested, we sensibly participate in the blessings that are derived to our fellow-subjects in that quarter of the Colony, from the prospect of a permanent peace. The lenity you exercised towards the Indians, when they expected the cruelty of the victor, hath attached them to you from principle; and unless the intrigues of Traders, or the insidious arts of the enemies to this Government, should again foment differences, we flatter ourselves the present tranquillity will not speedily be interrupted. You have taught them a lesson which the savage breast was a stranger to - that clemency and mercy are not incompatible with power; and that havock and bloodshed are not the inseparable concomitants of success and victory.

Permit us, my Lord, to express our lively satisfaction at the addition to your family, by the birth of a daughter, and to assure you it is greatly heightened by the promising hopes that your Lady's recovery will be unattended with danger. We should be wanting in respect to her Ladyship, to omit any opportunity of testifying our esteem for her; an esteem that her exemplary piety and true dignity of conduct will ever command.

To which his Excellency was pleased to return the following Answer:

GENTLEMEN: I am in the most sensible manner obliged to you for this Address. The motives which induced me to exert my efforts to relieve the back country from the calamity under which it lately laboured, would have been disappointed of one of their principal ends, if it had not met your approbation; and this very honourable testimony which you are now pleased to give me of it, conveys the highest gratification to me.

The cordiality of your expressions on the occasion of the addition to my family, and the distinguishing mark of the notice which you so kindly take of Lady Dunmore, attach me to you by the strongest ties of gratitude and the warmest affection.

NORTHAMPTON (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

On Tuesday, the 13th of December, 1774, the Freeholders of Northampton met at the Court House, and chose the following gentlemen a Committee to see the Association faithfully executed and observed, as directed by the late Continental Congress: John Bowdoin, the Reverend Samuel Smith M'Croskey, John Harmanson, Griffin Stith, Nathaniel L. Savage, Michael Christian, Thomas Dalby, Henry Guy, the Reverend Isaac Avery, John Wilkins, John Kendall, John Respass, Patrick Harmanson, William Roland, Littleton Savage, George Savage, John Burton, Jerobabel Downing, William Harmanson, Adiel Milby, Thomas Fisher, John Blair, William Simpkins, and John Stratton.

Previous to the business of the day the two following Letters were read: the first from this County, to the Committee of Donations at Boston, with a donation of Corn; the second in answer thereto, from the said Committee.

Then it was Resolved, That the Association should be considered as the sole role of the Committee's conduct on every emergency; and that every measure which should be adopted for the due observance thereof, should be conformable to the rules thereby prescribed,

Afterwards, the Committee having chosen John Bowdoin, Chairman, adjourned till Saturday following, When the business is to be resumed; and measures more fully adopted for the strictest observance of the Association:

Northampton, Virginia, August 30, 1774.

GENTLEMEN: The people of this County, compassionating the distressed poor in your Town, have shipped you One thousand bushels of Indian Corn to be distributed by you among such families as you shall think most in want of it. The Corn is now sent by the bearer, Captain Nathaniel Brown, whose bill of lading for the same you will receive enclosed, the freight of which will be paid him here, upon his producing your receipt for the Corn. The people in this place most sincerely sympathize with their brethren in Boston, in their present distress, and will at all times cheerfully join in every measure proposed for their relief. Such considerable collections are making in this Colony, that we hope the poor will not suffer for want of provisions; and we rely on the firmness of your people, in adhering to the glorious cause in which they are engaged, till it may please Providence to restore them to the possession of their just rights, and establish the liberties of all America on the most permanent foundation.

We are, most sincerely, gentlemen, your affectionate brethren, and countrymen,

The People of NORTHAMPTON.

TO the Committee of Donations at Boston.

Boston, September 30, 1774.

GENTLEMEN: The Committee appointed to receive and distribute the Donations of our brethren in this and the neighbouring Colonies, received your favours on the 30th of August, by Captain Nathaniel Brown, with about one thousand bushels of Indian Corn, as a present from our worthy brethren in Northampton, Virginia, to the poor of this Town, suffering by the cruel blockade of our Harbour.

This Committee, in behalf of the Town, return their most sincere thanks to the gentlemen in Northampton, who have so generously contributed to this timely Donation. Every fresh supply from our friends encourages all ranks of people firmly to support the cause for which we are struggling; and had not a spirit of patriotism, generosity, and goodness, appeared in a most extraordinary manner throughout the American Colonies, this Town, it is to be feared, must have fallen a sacrifice to arbitrary power, and submitted to the most humiliating concessions. But we have the pleasure to inform you, that the patriots and defenders of American Rights in this place, are as firm and zealous as ever, though surrounded on every hand by Soldiers and military preparations; the Harbour filled with ships of war; the chief Fortress, Castle William, out of our hands; Soldiers encamped in sundry places; the Neck, the only entrance into the Town, doubly fortified by advance Batteries, and a Regiment encamped on both sides of the road, to prevent the aid of our neighbours, who, upon a late alarm, showed the utmost readiness to encounter every danger for our relief and defence. We are daily alarmed with hostile appearances. It is now said they intend to erect five Batteries, and to picket the Town at the Westerly side, to prevent the landing of our friends from the country; but we are determined to hear all, rather than in the least instance to acknowledge the right of Parliament to mutilate our Charter or form of Government, and tax us at their pleasure. we observe in your letter, that considerable collections are making in your Colony for our poor; in confidence of this our Labourers and Mechanicks have universally declined assisting the Army in carrying on their works, though tempted with large rewards; not that they desire to be maintained in idleness, for they are ready for any employment the Committee can find them. For particulars in this respect, we refer you to the Committee's publication last week.

Conscious that our cause is just, we trust in the Supreme Ruler of the Universe, that he will in due time restore us to the possession of all our rights, and establish the liberties of all America on solid and lasting foundations.

We are, with the greatest esteem, gentlemen, your friends and fellow-countrymen,

DAVID JEFFRIES,

Per order of the Committee of Donations.

To Messrs. John Harmanson, Littleton Savage, and John Kendall.

P. S. You have doubtless heard that all our Powder in the Charlestown Magazine, about three hundred barrels, have been seized and removed, and the Magazine in this Town, belonging to the Province, taken possession of by the Soldiery, and all private Powder prohibited; all Cannon and Shot they can lay hold on secured; but, we trust, the neighbouring Colonies have a full supply, in case of need, which God forbid.

Northampton, December 17, 1774.

This day the Committee met, and appointed Mr. John Bowdoin President.

Resolved, That the County be divided into seven Districts, and that three or more members of the Committee be appointed to present the Association to the inhabitants each District, and carefully observe the conduct of all persons therein touching the Association, and make report thereof to this Committee.

Resolved, That no publick censure be passed upon any person in this County accused of a breach of the Association, or any matter or thing done with a view to defeat or contravene the same, unless at least thirteen members of this Committee consent to such publick censure, in manner as directed by the General Congress.

Northampton, January 11, 1775.

The Committee having, at a former meeting, recommended it to the inhabitants of this County to deliver their Tea to Colonel Littleton Savage, to be by him kept at the risk of the proprietors, until the General Association shall be dissolved, this day Colonel Savage reported to the Committee that he had received four hundred and sixteen pounds of Tea, to be stored agreeable to direction of the Committee. Some gentlemen also brought their Tea to the Court House, and desired it might be publicly burnt, in which reasonable request they were instantly gratified.

The Committee being very desirous to comply with the eighth Article of the General Association, in promoting and encouraging Arts and Manufactures, do hereby offer a premium of forty Pounds sterling, to be paid by the Chairman of the Committee, to the maker of Wool Cards who shall first settle in this Colony, and who shall, in any time within eighteen months from this date, make in this Colony, or cause to be therein made under his direction, one thousand pair of good Wool Cards, such as usually cost fifteen Pence, sterling, a pair in Great Britain; which the Committee oblige themselves to purchase and pay ready money for, at the rate of two Shillings, sterling, a pair; and it is expected that the person entitled to such premium shall furnish them at that price, - the quality and price that such Wool Cards usually cost in Great Britain; to be submitted to Merchants who have been accustomed to import them from thence.

The Committee also offer a premium of forty Pounds, sterling, to be paid by the Chairman of the Committee, to the first person who shall settle in this Colony, to carry on the making of Gunpowder, and who shall, in eighteen months from this date, make or cause to be made, from materials originally collected in any part of the Continent of North America, five thousand pounds weight of good merchantable Gunpowder.

The Committee are afraid the premiums now offered are too inconsiderable to induce any person to attempt the above branches of business; but they flatter themselves some other Counties may join them in encouraging such useful Arts; in which case it is hoped the Committees of such Counties will correspond with this Committee upon the subject, that the whole premium offered may appear at once in the papers abroad, in which it is proposed to have it published. By order of the Committee,

JOHN BOWDOIN, Chairman.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM THE HONOURABLE GOVERNOUR GAGE TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH, DATED BOSTON, DECEMBER 15, 1774.

The Scarborough arrived with your Lordship's Despatch of the 17th of October, No. 11, on the 3d instant, and Admiral Graves has consented to land all the supernumerary Marines, which, by report, may amount to above four hundred men, as soon as all arrive; and quarters are prepared, that Major Pitcairne, who commands those Marines, may have a better opportunity to form and discipline them than if they remained on board their ships, where they are crowded.

Your Lordship's idea of disarming certain Provinces, would doubtless be consistent with prudence and safety; but it neither is or has been practicable, with out having recourse to force, and being master of the country.

Nothing has been untried, that could tend to hurt and terrify the Mandamus Counsellors to resign, who have withstood all threats against their persons and properties; but they are still obliged to take shelter with the Troops; and I have judged what your Lordship remarks, that in such a state the taking any step by their advice, would add no weight to the authority of Government, but rather be an argument for disobedience; for that reason, I have avoided the assembling of them in Council as much as possible. I am to acknowledge the receipt of the Royal Mandamus, for the admission of the gentlemen therein nominated into the Council. All the former Counsellors stand firm, and deserve the greatest encouragement.

I will not pretend to foresee to what degree they mean to extend the claims of this country. The Congress has sent their conditions, on which they will condescend at present to keep up any commercial connection with the mother country; but I judged from the movements of the people here, that they had designs to carry matters further without delaying them, and to pursue measures which other Provinces would not adopt. I have taken notice in former letters of expresses going frequently from this Provincial Congress to Philadelphia; of the Committees forbidding people to work for the Troops, or to supply them with materials and necessaries for their quarters; committing insults, and destroying bricks and straw coming from the country. All these proceedings appeared to be carried on systematically, and to have some concealed design, which could be no other than to oblige the Troops to force their quarters upon the inhabitants, or show their resentment in some shape, that might afford a pretence to cry out against military oppression, to alarm the Continent, and obtain assistance from the Congress; and as there was a suspicion of their project, precautions were taken to defeat it.

I have no doubt that the aim of the hot leaders here has been to have a body of Troops in pay, and under their direction, and to persuade the other Colonies to contribute towards the expense; but not succeeding in that attempt, that they have next tried in this Provincial Congress to usurp the Government entirely, as the surest means to procure both money and Troops by their own authority. This is pretty apparent from some of their Resolves, as well as from what has fallen from some of the Members of the Congress; but they have not yet been able to bring the majority into their schemes; and I don't find that their new Treasurer has had any money paid into his hands.

I transmit your Lordship the publications of this Congress, since my last, and you will see that it is now dissolved, and that another is to be chosen in February, when the Chiefs will probably try to get members more inclined to serve their ends. Their violence terrified many of their party, who have given assistance to preserve peace and quiet, by which people have had time to cool and hearken more to reason; but I don't infer that they are more inclined to receive the new Laws, or that a little matter would not raise them again. But people who have been maltreated for their attachment to Government, have recovered themselves during the calm, and in several places have associated for their mutual defence. I have been given to hope great good effects from these associations, which I have taken pains to promote, though I confess that respect the associators will be composed only of former protesters and addressers, who have stood forth for a time, but overwhelmed by superiour numbers, have been forced to recant.

Moderation has been proscribed from this country, and their correspondents appear to have advised them against conciliatory measures, but to fly to extremities.

I enclose your Lordship a printed extract of a letter, the contents of which was spread abroad before the publication, and is said publicly to have been written by a gentleman remarkable for his correspondence with this country. More of the same tenor have been written, particularly one in September, it is said, by the same person, to the late Speaker, wherein, I am told, he extols their wisdom in procuring a General Congress, and disappointing the views of Administration to divide the Colonies, and recommends union and the most vigorous proceedings, as the surest means to overcome the mother country.

From the difficulty to procure materials, which few would venture to supply, although the Barrack-master General exerted himself remarkably, there was no possibility to get all the Troops in quarters so soon as we wished; and the Regiments from Quebec were obliged to stay in the transports till about ten days ago, when the whole was under cover.

The Asia and the Boyne are arrived, the first two days alter the Scarborough, and we are waiting impatiently for news of the Somerset.

P. S. Since finishing my letter, I have received some votes that the Assembly of Rhode-Island has passed, of which I enclose a Copy, together with a copy of an Act passed by the said Assembly, published in the Newport Mercury. It is said that they certainly mean here to try to usurp the Government at the next meeting of this Congress; and, it is added, to resume their first Charter.

CAROLINE COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting, of the Committee for Caroline County, December 16, 1774, James Taylor, James Upshaw, William Woodford, John Tennant, Thomas Lomax, Benjamin Hubbard, and Edmund Pendleton, Junior, gentlemen, or any three of them, were appointed a Committee to inspect the books of the Merchants at Port Royal and Con-way's Warehouse, to see that they have respectively dealt with their customers upon the same terms as they had done for a year preceding the Association, and to make report of their proceedings to this Committee.

Walker Taliaferro, Anthony Thornton, John Armistead, John Jones, and Samuel Haws, gentlemen, or any three of them, were appointed a Committee to inspect the books of Patrick Kennon, Merchant, for the same purpose; and William Nelson, George Baylor, Richard Johnston, John Miner, and George Guy, gentlemen, or any three of them, were appointed a Committee to inspect the books of Samuel Hargrove, Merchant, for the same purpose.

Afterwards, at a meeting of the County Committee, December 26, from the Reports of the several Sub-Committees, it appeared "that Edward Dixon, James Bowie, Junior, and Samuel Hargrove, Merchants, had shown their books to the Committee, who were satisfied that they had, in their dealings, conformed to the Association; but that James Miller, Andrew Leckie, James Dunlop, William Dixon, John Wallace, and Patrick Kennon, Merchants, had refused to suffer their books to be viewed, even their day-books, with which the Sub-Committee would have been satisfied." And all the said last mentioned Merchants, except Mr. Kennon, having notice of this meeting, and not appearing to offer or send any excuse or reasons for their refusal, the same is ordered to be published; and as, from such conduct, a suspicion arises that they have transgressed the Association, in selling Goods at a higher price than they had been accustomed to do for a year next preceding, it is recommended to the people of this County, as they would avoid being considered as enemies to American Liberty, not to have any dealings with those Merchants, until they shall give the satisfaction required.

Ordered. That Mr. Kennon have notice to appear before this Committee, on the second Friday in January, to answer his refusal. SAMUEL HAWS, Clerk.

YORK COUNTY (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE.

Agreeable to notice given to the Freeholders and Inhabitants of York County, entitled to vote for Members of Assembly, a respectable number of them met at the Court House, in York, December 16, 1774:

James Dickson, Philip Rothrock, John Hay, Michael Hahn, and Richard Bott, were appointed Judges of the Election.

Whereupon, the Electors proceeded to vote by ballot, and the following persons were duly chosen as a Committee for that County: James Ewing, Michael Swope, James Smith, Thomas Hartley, Henry Slegle, Joseph Donaldson, George Eichelberger, George Irwin, John Hay, Archibald M'Clean, David Grier, David Kennedy, Thomas Fisher, John Kean, John Houston, George Kientz, Simon Coppenheffer, Joseph Jefferies, Robert M'Corley, Michael Hahn, Baltzer Spengler, Daniel Mefferly, Nicholas Bittenger, Michael Smyser, Thomas Weems, Henry Miller, Leonard Hutton, Benjamin Davis, Jacob Dahtel, Frederick Fischel, James Dickson, William M'Clellan, of Cumberland Township, William Cathcart, Patrick Scott, Michad Dautel, Michael Bard, Casper Reinecker, Henry Liebhard, John Maxwell, George Oge, John O. Blenes, William M'Clellan, of Warrenton Township, Philip Albright, James Dill, Henry Banta, Senior, William Kilmery, William Chesnee, Francis Holton, Peter Reel, and Andrew Finley; any ten of whom, with their President or Vice President, (if their attendance can be had,) to do business, except in such case in which other regulations may be made.

This Committee is chosen in such a manner, that there is at least one of that body in each Township of the County, so that the inhabitants of the several Districts will have the earliest intelligence of any material transactions, or may be assembled upon important business on the shortest notice,

On the day following the election, the Committee met at the same place, when they elected James Smith, President, Thomas Hartley, Vice President, John Hay, Treasurer, and George Lewis Lefler, Clerk of the Committee.

They formed Rules to direct them in the course of their proceedings, entered into measures for the raising a Fund to defray the expense of communicating intelligence, and gave instructions for the forwarding the subscriptions for the poor at Boston. They then adjourned to Thursday, the 29th day of December, instant, at the Court House, in York.

Extract from the proceedings of the said Election and Committee.

GEO. LEWIS LEFLER, Clerk of the Com.

CHARLES CITY COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Freeholders of the County of Charles City, held at the Court House of the said County, on Saturday, December 17, 1774, for the purpose of choosing a Committee to see that the Association entered into by the General Congress, for preserving the liberties of America, be duly put in execution within this County:

Resolved, That the said Committee do consist of the following persons, viz: Benjamin Harrison, Wm. Acrill, Francis Eppes, William Edloe, the Reverend James Ogilvie, William Green Munford, William Rickman, Thomas Holt, Philip Parr Edmondson, Benjamin Harrison, Jun., William Gregory, Samuel Harwood, David Minge, John Edloe, George Minge, John Tyler, Freeman Walker, Francis Dancy, William Christian, James Bray Johnson, Peter Royster, Henry Southall, Benjamin Dancy, James Eppes, John Brown, Stith Hardyman, Wm. Edloe, Jun., Henry Armistead, William Royall, and Edward Stubblefield; and that they, or the majority of them, do meet from time to time, and act and do what to them shall seem proper for the purposes aforesaid.

Resolved Unanimously, That Benjamin Harrison, Esq., be chosen Chairman of the said Committee, and in case of sickness or absence, that the next gentleman upon the foregoing list, who shall be present, shall be Chairman for the time.

Resolved unanimously, That Patrick Murdock be chosen Clerk of the said Committee.

Resolved, That when any gentleman of the Committee shall be informed, or have reason to suspect, that any thing has been done in this County contrary to the Association, he shall forthwith summon three at least of his brethren most convenient to the place, who, together with himself, shall examine into the matter and make immediate report to the Chairman, in order that the same, if it appears to be well founded, may be laid before the Committee.

Extract from the Minutes,

PATRICK MURDOCK, Clerk.

PROVIDENCE (RHODE ISLAND) COMMITTEE.

At a Town Meeting held at Providence, Rhode Island, on the 17th day of December, A. D. 1774, by adjournment and warrant,

NICHOLAS BROWN, Esquire, Moderator:

Voted, That the following persons, to wit: Wm. Earle, Nicholas Cooke, Esquire, Benjamin Man, Zephaniah Andrews, Arthur Tat her, Junior, Ambrose Page, Nicholas Power, George Corlis, Paul Allen, David Lawrence, Joseph Russell, Job Sweeting, Jos. Bucklin, Jonathan Arnold, Barnard Eddy, Aaron Mason, Joseph Brown, Nathaniel Wheaton, together with the present Committee of Correspondence of this Town, be and are hereby appointed a Committee of Inspection to see that the Association entered into by the General Continental Congress be strictly adhered to by all persons within this Town, agreeable to the eleventh Article of said Association; and that any seven of them make a quorum, who are to meet monthly, to wit: on the third Wednesday of every month, at the Council Chamber, at five of the clock, P. M.; and that the Town Sergeant duly attend said Committee; and that all the Proceedings of said Committee be lodged on file in the Town Clerk's Office.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER RECEIVED IN LONDON, FROM AN OFFICER AT BUSTON, DATED DECEMBER 17, 1774.

About three weeks ago we received accounts of the dissolution of Parliament. The Americans allege that this was a trick of the Ministry, to hinder the people from getting a free and uninfluenced House of Commons. Since the Scarborough arrived, it is known that the Ministry are determined to pursue rigorous measures. The Americans, in most of the Colonies, have redoubled their diligence, and are preparing for war with the greatest alacrity. In this Province they have established what they call Minute-Men; that is, a body of men ready to turn out and take the field at a minute's warning. Notwithstanding the hard duty the Troops undergo, they are in good spirits, and well affected to the cause of Great Britain; The desertions looked very serious at first; but they are now stopped, and we have lost only about one hundred and ten men. It is believed, from certain circumstances, that General Gage means to strike some stroke of importance soon, which the Americans are little aware of.

ARTHUR ST. CLAIR TO GOVERNOUR PENN.

Hanna's Town, December 18, 1774.

SIR: Being this far on my way to Pittsburgh, I found this morning a Constable from Virginia here, who had made two men prisoners, by virtue of a warrant from Major Smallman. The offence they had been guilty of, it seems, was assisting the Constable in executing a judicial warrant. Mr. Hanna had committed the Constable, which I could not help approving of; but as there is some danger of his being rescued by force, I have advised the sending him to Bedford, or at least that the Sheriff should remove him to some other place privately.

The Court, it is said, will certainly be here at Pittsburgh on the 20th. I am personally threatened, but I promised Mr. Scott to be there at that time, to give him some countenance at least, if I cannot give him assistance at his trial. I had the honour to give you an account of his arrest a short time ago.

Your Honour will judge from these circumstances, what a shocking situation we are in; to add to the distress of which the Militia are plundering the people in the neighbourhood of Pittsburgh, of the very substance for their families.

I met with this opportunity of writing accidentally, and would not let it slip, as I thought it of consequence that you should be early acquainted with what is passing.

I have the honour to be, sir, your Honour's most obedient and most humble servant,

AR. ST. CLAIR.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LIEUTENANT GOVERNOUR BULL TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH, DATED CHARLESTOWN, DECEMBER 19, 1774.

Nothing new has occurred in this Province, relative to the American discontents; nor do I expect any before the meeting in next January, of the Deputies from the several Parishes, for the choosing Delegates to assist at the General Congress at Philadelphia, in May next, when something may, perhaps, be produced, either from some bold dissident or daring demagogue, with which I shall not fail to acquaint your Lordship, if any thing is of consequence enough to deserve your Lordship's notice.

PHILADELPHIA COMMITTEE.

Committee Chamber, December 19, 1774.

Aa Association of the Butchers of this City, &c., was delivered in at the Chair, and read.

Ordered, That the same be printed, as an instance of the spirited determination of all orders among us to do their Utmost towards carrying into execution the Resolves of the Continental Congress.

Philadelphia, December 5, 1774.

We whose names are underwritten, Butchers in the City and Suburbs of Philadelphia, being fully convinced that every thing we hold dear depends on the faithful execution of the Resolves of the Congress; and being desirous of supporting them as far as lies in our power, and of contributing our utmost endeavours in the present important struggle; and being glad of having an opportunity to show our zeal and attachment to the liberties of our country, we hope on this and every other occasion, when our greatest temporal blessings are in danger of being torn from us, to be able, in order to preserve them, cheerfully to sacrifice every informant consideration of private interest or convenience. The recommendation of the Committee appearing to us the best method of carrying into execution the Resolves of the Congress for improving the breed of Sheep, and increasing their number, we do solemnly agree and pledge ourselves to the publick, that we will not hereafter purchase any Ewe Mutton or Lamb, until the first day of May next; nor any Ewe Lamb from the said first day of May until the first day of October following; nor will we after the first day of January, kill any Ewe Mutton or Lamb, on any account or pretence whatever, until the first day of May following; nor any Ewe Lamb whatever, from the said first day of May until the first of October following; and will at any time in future, during our struggle for our rights and liberties, be ready to comply with such further regulations as the Committee may think necessary for the preservation of the stock of Sheep, as witness our hands.

Signed by Sixty-six.

JOHN BENEZET,

FAIRFAX COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE^a

At a Meeting of the Committee for Fairfax County, Va., in the Town of Alexandria, on Monday, the 19th day of December, 1774, Messrs. Fitzgerald and Peers informed the Committee that the Ship Hope, Thomas Ash, master, had arrived in this Colony since the first instant, from Belfast, with sundry packages of Irish Linen, amounting as per invoice and bills of parcels produced, with freight, commission, and insurance, to eleven hundred and one Pounds, four Shillings and eight Pence, sterling, their property, and requesting that the same should be sold, agreeable to the tenth Article in the Continental Association.

Ordered, That the said Goods be sold by the package to the highest bidder, for ready sterling money, on Saturday next, at three o'clock in the afternoon, under the direction of John Carlyle, William Ramsay, George Gilpin, John Dalton, and William Hartshorne, or any three of them; that they, or any three of them, reimburse and pay to the said Messrs. Fitzgerald and Peers, out of the sale thereof, the first cost and charges as aforesaid; and if any profit shall arise from such sale, that they retain the same in their hands, for relieving and employing such of the poor inhabitants of the Town of Boston, as are sufferers by the Boston Port Bill, subject to the direction of the Committee for the said County of Fairfax.

ROBERT H. HARRISON, Clerk.

GLOUCESTER COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE

At a Meeting of the Committee of Observation for the County of Gloucester, Virginia, on the 19th day of December, 1774, Samuel Harrison, Robert Friend Price, John Hinchman, John Cooper, Joseph Ellis, Isaac Mickle, John Sparks, Joseph Cooper, Joseph Low, Peter Cheeseman, Doctor Benjamin Vanlier, Joseph Huge, and Marmaduke Cooper, were unanimously chosen as a Committee of Correspondence for said County, who have appointed Robert Friend Price, John Hinchman, John Cooper, John Sparks, Joseph Ellis, and Joseph Huge, as a Committee to meet the Committees of the other Counties, at such time and place as shall be hereafter agreed on; and that three or more of said Committee shall attend for choosing Delegates to serve in the Continental Congress, at Philadelphia on the 10th day of May next. By order of the Committee, JOSEPH HUGG, Cleric.

Elizabethtown, New-Jersey, December 19, 1774.

The Committee of Observation for the free Borough and Town of Elizabeth, taking into consideration that James Rivington, Printer of one of the New-York Gazettes, having published many pieces, in his paper, and divers pamphlets, inimical to the liberties of America; by which we have reason to suspect that he is a vile Ministerial hireling, employed to disunite the Colonies, and calumniate all their measures entered into for the publick good; in order therefore, to discountenance the attempts of every person unfriendly to American liberty,

Resolved unanimously, By this Committee, that they will take no more of said Rivington's Gazettes, nor send any advertisements to be inserted therein, or have any further dealings or commerce with him: And that we will recommend it to our constituents to observe the same conduct towards said Rivington, or any other Printer who shall publish or print any pieces or pamphlets tending to break the happy union now subsisting throughout the American Colonies. By order of the Committee,

JONATHAN HAMPTON, Chairman.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LONDON, TO A GENTLEMAN OF NEW-YORK, DATED DECEMBER 20, 1774.

The persons whose names I sent you, were certainly on the list of those who were supposed to be men of influence among you, and that have been, or were intended to be tempted by bribes, places, and pensions, or emoluments of some kind or other, either at present or in expectancy, to betray your interests and side with the Ministry in establishing an arbitrary Government in America. I have good reason to believe, that all those men I mentioned to you, and more whom I intend to mention in my next, have been or will be applied to, either immediately, or by the agency of others. It will give me great pleasure to bear that the virtue of your countrymen is proof against the temptations contrived to destroy it. If the Ministry succeed in establishing the right of taxation, they will at their pleasure multiply places of profit, to be raised out of your properties, to support their dependents, in being your task-masters, and riveting upon you the chains of slavery. I earnestly warn you to be extremely watchful of the men among yourselves, who may have power to do you mischief. These are the men that will be tempted to betray you. Contractors and Agents for military stores, provisions, and several other articles which the Ministry have in contemplation, will be powerfully tempted, by very lucrative employments, to promote their designs; but hold fast you integrity, and all will be well.

Your conduct has gained your immortal honour. The wisdom, moderation, and firmness of your Continental Congress, are the admiration of the greatest and best men in England, and in all the world; and the terrour of the Ministry and all their emissaries and adherents: the earthquake at Lisbon did not occasion more confusion than this has among them. You have only to persevere, and you will preserve your own liberties and England's too.

CHESTER COUNTY (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE,

In pursuance of publick notice given, a very respectable number of Inhabitants of the County of Chester, met at the Court House, in the Borough of Chester, on the 20th of December 1774, and chose the following Committee to carry into execution the Association of the late Continental Congress, viz: Anthony Wayne, Francis Johnston, Richard Riley, Evan Evans, and James Moore, Esquires, Hugh Lloyd, Thomas Hockley, David Cowpland, John Hart, Sketchley Morton, Samuel Fairlamb, Isaac Eyre, John Crosby, Nicholas Deal, Jesse Bonsall, Aaron Oakford, Benjamin Brannon, John Talbot, Joseph Brown, Samuel Prince. John Crawford, John Taylor, Lewis Gronow, Edward Humphreys, Henry Lawrance, Richard Thomas, William Montgomery, Persefor Frazer, Thomas Taylor, John Foulke, Robert Mendenhall, Joseph Penuel, George Pierce, Nicholas Fairlamb, Samuel Timbell, Charles Dilworth, John Hannum. George Hoops, Joel Bealy, John Gilleland, Joseph Bishop, Junior, John Keilin, Edward Jones, William Lewis, Patrick Anderson, Joshua Evans, Thomas Evans, John Hartman, Doctor Bramon Van Leer, William Evans, Joseph Cowan, Thomas Haslep, Paterson Bell, Doctor Jonathan Morris, Andrew Mitchell, Thomas Buffington, James Bennett, Joseph Musgrave, William Miller, Richard Floer, Walter Finney, James Simpson, David Whaney, James Evans, Thomas Bishop, William Edwards, Jonathan Vernon, Junior, Lewis Davis, Senior, Joseph Gibbons, Junior, and Thomas Evans.

Which Committee are to be and continue from this time until one month after the rising of the next Continental Congress, with full power to transact such business, and enter into such associations, as to them shall appear expedient;

After the above Committee was chosen, they proceeded to appoint a Chairman and Secretary, when Anthony Wayne, Esq., was elected Chairman, and Francis Johnston, Esq., Secretary; the following Resolves were passed unanimously:

1st. That any twelve or more of the said Committee, meeting upon due notice, be empowered to enter into and transact all such business as shall come under their consideration, provided that the majority agreeing shall not be less than twelve.

2d. That the present unhappy situation of publick affairs in general, and of this Province in particular, render it highly necessary a Provincial Congress should be held as soon as possible, for which purpose twelve persons shall be appointed out of the said Committee, as Delegates to attend the said Convention, at such time and place as shall be generally agreed on.

The Committee then adjourned till Monday, the 9th of January, 1775, to meet at the house of David Cowpland, in the Borough of Chester, at ten O'clock A. M., at which time and place it is expected that each member will give due attendance. By order of the Committee.

FRANCIS JOHNSTON, Secretary.

Salem, December 20, 1774.

Our brethren of New-Hampshire and Rhode-Island, have signalized themselves in a manner that does them the greatest honour. And it is with pleasure we can add, that the Colony of Connecticut merits our highest regards for their present assiduity and vigilance in disciplining their Militia, which consists of near thirty Regiments. Indeed the whole UNITED COLONIES are extremely active and zealous in the common cause, all nobly exerting themselves for carrying into execution the measures agreed upon by the late Continental Congress - excepting a few disappointed factious Tories, some of whom are employed, most infamously employed, in vilifying the most virtuous and amiable characters in America, and particularly in traducing the worthy Members of the late Continental Congress.

FROM A GENTLEMAN IN BOSTON, TO MR. RIVINGTON, IN NEW-YORK.

Boston, December 20, 1774.

As nothing can have a greater tendency to promote and encourage a general obedience to the laws of any state, than a strict and regular observation of them by the Legislators themselves, so it is natural to suppose that no method would prove more effectual to put in practice the Proceedings of the Continental Congress, than an exemplary adherence to them by the gentlemen who composed that august body, and from whom those Resolutions, &c., originated. How far their examples will promote this end, and how strictly and conscientiously some of their Members abide by their own Resolutions, will appear evident from the following Resolves, passed in Congress, which may serve as a text, or a motto, to the narrative that follows it:

"In Congress, OCTOBER 11th, 1774. - As the Congress 'have given General Gage an assurance of the peaceable disposition of the people of Boston, &c., Resolved 'unanimously, That they be advised still to conduct 'themselves peaceably towards his Excellency General 'Gage, and his Majesty's Troops now in Boston, as far 'as can possibly be consistent with their immediate safety 'and the security of the Town, avoiding and discountenancing every violation of his Majesty's property, or any 'result to his Troops; and that they peaceably and firmly 'persevere in the line they are now conducting themselves, on the defensive."

On Monday, the 12th instant, our worthy citizen, Mr. Paul Revere, was sent express from only two or three of the Committee of Correspondence at Boston, as I am credibly informed, (of whom no number under seven are empowered to act,) to a like Committee at Portsmouth, New-Hampshire, informing them, as 'tis said, "That orders had been sent to the Governours of these Provinces, to deliver up their several Fortifications or Castles, 'to General Gage, and that a number of Troops had, the 'preceding day, embarked on board the transports, with 'a design to proceed and take possession of said Castles;

"that in consequence thereof the House of Assembly of 'Rhode-Island had caused their Fort to be dismantled 'and the Guns, Ammunition, &c., to be removed to Providence."

Upon receiving this intelligence, the Committee at Portsmouth was called together, to advise what was to be, done in so alarming a crisis; but not having a full meeting, nor able to determine upon any measures proper to be taken, they concluded to defer the matter, till the next day, when a fuller meeting of said Committee was expected, but two or three warm zealous members, having the good of their country more at heart than the others, and thinking any further deliberations on so important an affair unnecessary, gave out their orders early the next morning for the drums to be beat to raise Volunteers to go and take the King's Fort. With difficulty a number of men were persuaded to convene, who proceeded to the Fort, which is situated at New-Castle, an Island about two miles from the Town, and being there joined by a number of the inhabitants of said New-Castle, amounted to near four hundred men; they invested the Fort, and being refused admittance by the Commander of it, who had only five men with him, and who discharged several gums at them, scaled the walls, and soon overpowered and pinioned the Commander; they then struck the King's colours, with three cheers, broke open the Powder House, and carried off one hundred and three barrels of Powder, leaving only one behind.

Previous to this expresses had been sent out to alarm the country; accordingly a large body of men marched the next day from Durham, headed by two Generals; Major Sullivan, one of the worthy Delegates, who represented that Province in the Continental Congress, and the Parson of the Parish, who having been long accustomed to apply himself more to the cure of the bodies than the souls of his parishioners, had forgotten that the weapons of his warfare ought to be spiritual, and not carnal, and therefore marched down to supply himself with the latter, from the King's Fort, and assisted in robbing him of his warlike stores. After being drawn up on the parade, they chose a Committee, consisting of those persons who had been most active in the riot of the preceding day, with Major Sullivan and some others, to wait on the Governour, and know of him whether any of the King's Ships or Troops were expected. The Governour, after expressing to them his great concern for the consequences of taking the Powder from the Fort, of which they pretended to disapprove and to be ignorant of, assured them that he knew of neither Troops or Ships coming into the Province, and ordered the Major, as a Magistrate, to go and disperse the people. When the Committee returned to the body, and reported what the Governour had told them, they voted that it was satisfactory, and that they would return home. But, by the eloquent harangue of their Demosthenes, they were first prevailed upon to vote that they took part with, and approved of, the measures of those who had taken the Powder. Matters appeared then to subside, and it was thought every man had peaceably returned to his own home, instead of this Major Sullivan, with about seventy of his clients, concealed themselves till the evening, and then went to the Fort, and brought off in Gondolas all the small arms, with fifteen 4-pounders, and one 9-pounder, and a quantity of twelve and four and twenty pound shot, which they conveyed to Durham, &c. The day following, being Friday, another body of men from Exeter, headed by Colonel Folsom, the other Delegate to the Continental Congress, marched into Portsmouth, and paraded about the Town, and having passed several votes expressive of their approbation of the measures that had been pursued by the bodies the two preceding days, in robbing the Fort of the Guns, Powder, &c., retired home in the evening without further mischief.

Thus, by this false alarm, was a great part of that Province, which though staunch in the cause of liberty, before in a state of peace and good order, kept for three days in the greatest confusion, and the good people of it persuaded, by a few flaming demagogues, to commit a most outrageous overt act of treason and rebellion.

No history, I believe will furnish us with an instance of a King's Fort being taken and his colours struck by his own subjects in a time of peace, and without any cause or provocation. Is such conduct as this in the Delegates of that Province consistent with their professed loyalty to the King, or their own solemn resolutions in Congress? Can it be expected that the inhabitants of these Colonies will be prevailed upon to abide by the Resolves of that body, when its own Members are the first to break through and violate them? How cautious ought Committees of Correspondence, as well as others, to be in raising and propagating such false reports, at a time when the people are so extremely credulous, and their minds so apt to be alarmed, and take fire upon the most trivial matters. Some of the Committee at Boston, appear by their conduct to have no other aim than to endeavour to bring the other Towns and Provinces into the same state with that of Boston and the Massachusetts, and seem desirous of having their distresses alleviated by obliging other Towns to partake with them.

HALIFAX COUNTY (NORTH CAROLINA) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Committee for the said County on the 21st of December, 1774, Present: Wm. Jones, Chairman, Nicholas Long, John Bradford, James Hagun, Benjamin M'Culloch, Joseph John Williams, William Alston, Egbert Haywood, David Summer, Samuel Welden, and Thomas Haynes.

It being represented to the Committee that Mr. Andrew Miller, Merchant in Halifax Town, has refused to sign the Association, Ordered, That Mr. Egbert Haywood and Mr. Thomas Haynes, wait on him, and desire his attendance before this Committee.

Upon which he attended accordingly, refused to sign, and gave the following reasons, to wit:

"For that I am largely indebted, and have effects in my hands belonging to persons residing in Great Britain, which debts and effects I cannot remit, for, by next September, after which I should be bound by this Association not to export any merchandise or commodity whatever to that country, without certain laws are repealed, which I think would be unjust, as it may be out of the power of my creditors or friends to procure the repeal of any law, however willing they may be to exert their interest for that purpose; and as I think it unjust to withhold from any person (even in a country at war with this) the property which might belong to him in my hands, I must therefore object to signing that part of the Association respecting a Non-Exportation to Britain, and shall continue to do so while I have any property in my hands belonging to people of that country."

Since, therefore, there is nothing peculiar or satisfactory in his reasons, but that, on the contrary, they indicate an intention to export (if he can) after the first day of September next,

Resolved unanimously, To shew our disapprobation of his conduct, and to encourage such Merchants who have signed the Association, that we will not, from this day, purchase any Goods, Wares, or Merchandises of any kind whatever, from said Andrew Miller, or any person acting for, or in partnership with him; and that we will have no commerce or dealings with him, after paying our just debts and fulfilling the contracts already entered into for commodities of this year's produce; and we also recommend it to the people of this County in particular, and to all who wish well to their country, to adopt the same measure.

Signed by order of the Committee,

A. DAVIS, Clerk.

Prince George's County, Maryland, December 21, 1774.

At a Meeting of the Committee for said County, at Upper Marlborough, to consider of a method to raise the sum of eight hundred and thirty-three Pounds, according to the Resolutions entered into at Annapolis, by the Provincial Congress, it was agreed to raise the said sum by subscription in classes; the first class not less than five Pounds, the second class three Pounds, the third class two Pounds, the fourth class one Pound, the fifth class from ten Shillings to two Shillings and six Pence; and a very liberal subscription was immediately made by the Committee and others present. Copies of the plan are making out for the same purpose through the country, and no doubt is made of the whole sum being very readily raised.

A general meeting of the County is earnestly requested on important affairs, (that could not be entered on at this meeting,) at Upper Marlborough, on Monday, the sixteenth day of January, if the weather proves favourable, if otherwise, on the next fair day.

It appears to this Committee that ten Companies may be enrolled in this county, viz: At Upper Marlborough, and its neighbourhood, one Company; at Queen Anne, and its neighbourhood, two Companies; at Bladensburg, and its neighbourhood, two Companies; at Broad Creek, and its neighbourhood, one Company; at Piscataway, and its neighbourhood, two Companies; at Magruder's Landing, and its neighbourhood, one Company; at Nottingham, and its neighbourhood, one Company.

The Committee for Upper Marlborough intend to meet at that place on Monday, the ninth day of January next, if fair, if otherwise, the next fair day, and it is recommended to all the inhabitants to meet at their respective Towns, or convenient places on the same day, to form themselves into Companies, and choose their Officers according to the Resolutions entered into at Annapolis, on the eighth of this instant. By order,

HUGH LYON, Clerk.

ORANGE COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE,

At a Meeting of the Freeholders of the County of Orange, Virginia, on Thursday, the 22d day of December, 1774,

The following gentlemen were elected a Committee for the said County, viz: Jaines Madison, James Taylor, Wm. Bell, Thos. Barbour, Zachariah Burnley, Rowland Thomas, William Moore, John Scott, James Walker, William Pannill, Francis Moore, James Madison, Jun., Lawrence Taliaferro, Thomas Bell, and Vivian Daniel.

And at a meeting of the said Committee at the Court House, on Monday, the 2d day of January, 1775, James Madison, Esquire, was elected Chairman, and Francis Taylor, Clerk of the said Committee.

Published by order of the Committee,

FRANCIS TAYLOR, Clerk.

PHILADELPHIA COMMITTEE.

Committee Chamber, December 22, 1774.

Ordered, That the Committee of Correspondence do transmit to the Committees of the several Counties in this Province a copy of the Resolves passed this evening, with a letter; and the letter being prepared and read, was approved, and is as follows, viz:

To the Committee of Inspection for the County of *****.

Philadelphia, December 22, 1774.

GENTLEMEN: By order of the Committee of the City and Liberties of Philadelphia, we have the pleasure to transmit you the following Resolves, passed this day with great unanimity, viz:

"Resolved, That this Committee think it absolutely necessary that the Committees of the Counties of this Province, or such Deputies as they may appoint for this purpose, be requested to meet together in Provincial Convention as soon as convenient.

"That it be recommended to the County Committees to meet in said Convention on Monday, the 23d day of January next, in the City of Philadelphia."

From a view of the present situation of publick affairs, the Committee have been induced to propose this Convention, that the sense of the Province may be obtained, and that the measures to be taken thereupon may be the result of the united wisdom of the Colony.

The obvious necessity of giving an immediate consideration to many matters of the greatest importance to the general welfare, will, we hope, sufficiently apologize to you for naming so early a day as the 23d day of January. We are, gentlemen, respectfully, your very humble servants,

The Committee of Correspondence.

From the Minutes of the Committee of the City and Liberties of Philadelphia,

J.B. SMITH, Secretary.

Boston, December 22, 1774.

TO THE PRINTERS OF THE BOSTON NEWSPAPERS

As Messrs. Edes and Gill, in their paper of Monday, the 12th instant, were pleased to acquaint the publick, "that the Association sent by Brigadier Ruggles, &c., to "the Town of Hardwick, &c., together with his son's "certificate thereof, and the Resolves of the Provincial "Congress thereon, must be referred till their next," I was so credulous as to expect then to have seen their next paper adorned with the form of an Association, which would have done honour to it, and, if attended to and complied with by the good people of the Province, might have put it in the power of any one very easily to have distinguished such loyal subjects to the King, as dare to assert their rights to freedom, in all respects consistent with the laws of the land, from such rebellious ones, under the pretext of being friends to liberty, are frequently committing the most enormous outrages upon the persons and properties of such of his Majesty's peaceable subjects, who, for want of knowing who to call upon (in these distracted times) for assistance, fall into the hands of a banditti, whose cruelties surpass those of savages; but finding my mistake, now take the liberty to send copies to your several offices to be published in your next papers, that so the publick may be made more acquainted therewith than at present, and be induced to associate for the above purposes; and as many of the people, for some time past, have been arming themselves, it may not be amiss to inform them that their numbers will not appear so large in the field as was imagined, before it was known that independency was the object in contemplation; since which many have associated in different parts of the Province to preserve their freedom and support Government; and as it may become necessary in a very short time to give convincing proofs of our attachment to Government, we shall be much wanting to ourselves if we longer trample upon that patience which has already endured to long-suffering, and may, if this opportunity be neglected, have a tendency to ripen many for destruction who have not been guilty of an overt act of rebellion, which would be an event diametrically opposite to the humane and benevolent intention of him whose abused patience cannot endure for ever, and who hath already, by his prudent conduct, evinced the most tender regard for a deluded people.

the. RUGGLES.

THE ASSOCIATION.

We, the subscribers, being fully sensible of the blessings of good Government, on the one hand, and convinced, on the other hand, of the evils and calamities attending on tyranny in all shapes, whether exercised by one or many, and having of late seen, with great grief and concern, the distressing efforts of a dissolution of all Government, whereby our lives, liberties, and properties are rendered precarious, and no longer under the protection of the law; and apprehending it to be our indispensable duty to use all lawful means in our power for the defence of our persons and property against all riotous and lawless violence, and to recover and secure the advantages which we are entitled to from the good and wholesome laws of the Government, do hereby associate and mutually covenant and engage to and with each other as follows, namely:

1st. That we will, upon all occasions, with our lives and fortunes, stand by and assist each other in the defence of his life, liberty, and property, whenever the same shall be attacked or endangered by any bodies of men, riotously assembled, upon any pretence, or under any authority not warranted by the laws of the land.

2d. That we will, upon all occasions, mutually support each other in the free exercise and enjoyment of our undoubted right to liberty, in eating, drinking, buying, selling, communing, and acting what, with whom, and as we please, consistent with the laws of God and the King.

3d. That we will not acknowledge or submit to the pretended authority of any Congress, Committees of Correspondence, or any other unconstitutional assemblies of men; but will, at the risk of our lives, if need be, oppose the forcible exercise of all such authority."

4thly. That we will, to the utmost of our power, promote, encourage, and when called to it, enforce obedience to the rightful authority of our most gracious Sovereign, King George the Third, and of his laws.

5thly. That when the person or property of any of us shall be invaded or threatened by any Committees, mobs, or unlawful assemblies, the others of us will, upon notice received, forthwith repair, properly armed, to the person on whom, or the place where such invasion or threatening shall be, and will, to the utmost of our power, defend such person and his property, and, if need be, will oppose and repel force with force.

6thly. That if any one of us shall unjustly and unlawfully be injured, in this person or property, by any such assemblies as before mentioned, the others of us will unitedly demand, and, if in our power, compel the offenders, if known, to make full reparation and satisfaction for such injury; and if all our means of security fail, we will have recourse to the natural law of retaliation.

In witness of all which we hereto subscribe our names this  day of *****.

ARTHUR LEE TO R. H. LEE.

London, December 22, 1774.

MY DEAR BROTHER. The proceedings of the Congress meet with universal approbation here, and have operated like an electric shock upon the Ministry and their dependants. They begin to reprobate their own measures, and each to exonerate himself from the charge of having advised them. The King consented to receive the Petition of the Congress, and Lord Dartmouth told us it was found to be decent and respectful. I expect we shall receive his Majesty's answer time enough to send with this.

The Merchants have advertised for a meeting, and every thing seems to promise a speedy accommodation. The terms of that must depend on you. Your demands must be made with great moderation, and should not, nay, I think, cannot be receded from one iota. Depend upon it, the same firmness and unanimity which have compelled a conciliatory disposition, will enforce a full redress. Be therefore firm, and fear not. The excess of my anxiety for our ultimate success, and the termination of these unhappy disturbances, makes me sometimes apprehensive that these specious appearances Will make you remiss in your preparations for a different conduct; that you will forget that he who sheathes the sword before the peace is concluded, exposes himself to a shameful defeat. But, trusting to your wisdom, I hope you will treat them as appearances only, which firmness, vigilance, and unanimity alone, on your part, can realize.

December 24th. - Lord Dartmouth this day informed us that his Majesty received your Petition very graciously, and, for its importance, would lay it before his Houses of Parliament when they met.

I communicate to you the following copy of a letter from Lord Chatham, because I think it must give you infinite satisfaction; at the same time I must entreat you not to let it get into the Press, as it would be a breach of honour in me: - "I have not words to express the infinite satisfaction which I feel since Congress has conducted this most "arduous and delicate business with such manly wisdom "and calm resolution as do the highest honour to their "deliberations. Very few are the things contained in "their Resolves that I could wish to be otherwise. Upon "the whole, I think it must be evident to every unprejudiced man in England, who feels for the rights of mankind, that America, under all her oppressions and provocations, holds out to us the most fair and just opening for "restoring harmony and affectionate intercourse as heretofore. I hope that the minds of men are more than "beginning to open on this great subject, so little understood, and that it will be found impossible for freemen in "England to see three millions of Englishmen slaves in "America."

Such praise from the character of the age ought to inspire you with confidence, if any thing can add to the conscious dignity of freemen, and make you resolve to maintain your demands with immoveable firmness.

December 26th. - I was yesterday in the country with Lord Chatham, to show him the Petition of the Congress: He approves of it exceedingly. His words were, "The "whole of your countrymen's conduct has manifested such wisdom, moderation, and manliness of character as would have done honour to Greece and Rome, in their best days." Laudari a laudato viro should make us cautious that we support the character, by a manly perseverance in those measures which have secured it. His opinion is that a solemn settlement of the question, by a renunciation of the right to tax, on one part, and an acknowledgment of supremacy on the other, might be made. My object is to unite the heads of opposition upon one uniform large ground, which, with the present popularity of our cause, will, I think, enforce a complete abolition of these pernicious measures.

I have this moment learnt that the resolution of the Court is to repeal all the Acts, except the Declaratory and Admiralty Act; that Lords North and Dartmouth are to give place to Lords Gower and Hillsborough, who are to commence their administration with these conciliatory measures. The inconsistency of this plan is no objection to the probability of it, for these men have long been disciplined to turn, and turn, and turn again. But you may learn from it that there is little cordiality in the relief to be given, and that we are to hold a jealous eye over the measures of men whose minds are actuated against us by the bitterest rancour and revenge. You will consider this intelligence as of doubtful nature, and let no hasty gleam of hope go forth which may tend to make men remiss in their exertions, or relax in the terms they demand. Farewell; your affectionate brother,

ARTHUR LEE.

To Colonel Richard H. Lee.

WILLIAMSBURG (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE,

JOHN POWELL, Clerk.

ST. MARY'S COUNTY (MARYLAND) COMMITTEES.

On public notice being given for the Gentlemen, Freeholders, and others, of St. Mary's County, to meet at the Court House, in Leonard Town, on Friday, the 23d day of December, met, agreeable to said notification, a considerable number of the most respectable inhabitants; when, it being proposed that, for the more orderly and effectually carrying on the present business, it would be necessary to make choice of a Chairman, as also to appoint a Clerk to officiate for the day, Mr. Jeremiah Jordan was thereupon unanimously elected to the Chair, and Timothy Bowes appointed Clerk to the said meeting.

JORDAN in the Chair,

Mr. TIMOTHY BOWES, Clerk.

Several of the Proceedings of the Continental Congress being read, as well as the late Resolves of the Provincial Convention; which were unanimously approved of. The Chairman, addressing himself to those assembled, informed them that the intent and design of the present Convention, among many other things, was principally to make choice of a General Committee for the County, a Committee of Correspondence, as also a Committee to meet, if necessary, the Provincial Convention, to be held at Annapolis, on Monday, the 24th day of April next, in order to carry into execution the Association agreed on by the Continental Congress, as well as the Resolves of the late Provincial Convention; upon which the following gentlemen were chosen as a General Committee for the County, to wit:

Mr. Cornelius Barber, Major Zachariah Bond, Mr. William Thomas, Mr. William Hamersley, Mr. John Llewellyn, Mr. James Eden, Mr. Gerard Bond, Mr. John Shanks, Jun., Mr. John Eden, Jun., Mr. Wilfred Neale, Mr. William Bond, Mr. Meveril Lock, Mr. Richard Bond, Doctor John Ireland, Mr. Cyrus Vowles, Mr. Athanasius Ford, Colonel Abraham Barnes, Doctor Henry Reeder, Mr. John Barnes, Mr. Richard Barnes, Mr. Timothy Bowes, Mr. William Williams, Mr. John Fenwick, Mr. John Greenwell, of Ignatius, Mr. John Black, Mr. John De Butts, Mr. William Taylor, Mr. Vernon Hebb, Mr. William Watts, Mr. George Guyther, Mr. Ignatius Combs, Mr. John M'Lean, Mr. John M'Call, Mr. Massey Leigh, Mr. George Cook, Mr. James Adderton, Mr. Robert Armstrong, Mr. Bennett Briscoe, Mr. Richard Clark, Mr. Edward Fenwick, Mr. Thomas Griffin, Mr. William Jenkins, Junior, Mr. Nicholas Sewall, Mr. Nicholas L. Sewall, Mr. William Cavenough, Mr. Jenifer Taylor, Mr. Ignatius Taylor, Mr. Robert Watts, Mr. Henry Carroll, Mr. Hugh Hopewell, Mr. Hugh Hopewell, Jun., Mr. John Abell, younger, Mr. Samuel Jenifer, Mr. John Abell, Senior, Mr. Edward Abell, Junior, Mr. Peter Urquhart, Mr. John H. Read, Mr. Thomas Forrest, Senior, Mr. Ignatius Fenwick, (Coles,) Mr. John Smith, (Patuxent,) Mr. Enoch Fenwick, Mr. John Reeder, Jun., Mr. Thomas A. Reeder, Mr. William Killgour, Mr. John H. Brome, Mr. William Brace, Mr. Henry Tulman, Mr. Henry G. Sothoron, Mr. Robert Hammitt, Mr. Herbert Blackston, Mr. John A. Thomas, Mr. Jeremiah Jordan, Mr. William Bayard, Mr. Joseph Williams, Mr. Samuel Abell, Senior, Mr. Samuel Abell, Junior.

A General Committee for the County elected, the next step taken was making choice of a Committee of Correspondence, when the following gentlemen were chosen, with power for, any three or more of them to act as occasion should require, to wit: Colonel Abraham Barnes, Mr. Richard Barnes, Mr. Timothy Bowes, Mr. Athanasius Ford, Doctor Henry Reeder, Mr. John De Butts, Mr. Jeremiah Jordan, Mr. John A. Thomas, and Mr. John Black.

This business completed, a Committee was chosen to meet the Provincial Committee, to be held at Annapolis, on Monday, the 24th day of April next, if necessary, when the following gentlemen were elected for that purpose, to wit: Mr. Jeremiah Jordan, Mr. Richard Barnes, Mr. John Reeder, Junior, Mr. John Barnes, Mr. John A. Thomas, Mr. John De Butts, Mr. Henry G. Sothoron.

TIMOTHY BOWES, Clerk.

At a Meeting of the Committee for Anne Arundel County and City of Annapolis, on Friday, the 23d day of December, 1774, were present thirty-two members:

Mr. JOHN HALL, Chairman.

The Proceedings of the Deputies of the several Counties of this Province, at their late Convention, were read, considered, and approved; and thereupon it is -

Resolved, That every member of this Committee will, and every inhabitant of this County ought, strictly and inviolably to observe and carry into execution the Association agreed on by the Continental Congress; and also the several Resolves of the said Convention.

Resolved, That it appears to this Committee, that the most expeditious and reasonable way to raise the eight hundred and sixty-six Pounds recommended by the late Provincial Convention to be raised in this County, for the purchase of Arms and Ammunition for the use of this County, will be by subscription, in which they have the firmest confidence regard will be had to the circumstances and ability of the subscribers; and therefore that subscription papers be immediately opened, payable to Messrs. Charles Wallace and John Davidson, or their order, containing three columns or classes, one for subscribers of ten Pounds and upwards, one for subscribers of five Pounds and upwards, and one for subscribers of less sums; and that those subscription papers be offered for signing at publick places, as soon as may be, and afterwards offered personally to people of fortune, who may not have subscribed; that sums of twenty Shillings or under, be paid down at the time of subscription; and that a memorandum be taken of the names of those (if any such) who are requested and refuse to contribute.

Resolved, That Messrs. Charles Wallace, John Davidson, Thomas Harwood, Jun., John Dorsey, and Stephen Steward, or any two or more of them, be and they are hereby empowered to contract for the purchase of Gunpowder, to the amount of five hundred Pounds, common money, on the credit of this Committee.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that a meeting of this County be called on Monday, the 16th day of January next, to choose Deputies to attend on behalf of this County, at the next Provincial Convention, and to confirm the late or choose a new Committee of Observation and Correspondence for this County and City.

Ordered, That these proceedings be published in the Maryland Gazette.

JOHN DUCKETT, Clerk Com.

BY THE COMMITTEE FOR ANNE ARUNDEL COUNTY AND CITY OF ANNAPOLIS, DECEMBER 24, 1774.

A Letter from the Committee of Philadelphia, with one from Thomas Charles Williams to that, and another to this Committee, were read and considered; and thereupon it is

Resolved, That the Concessions of the said Thomas Charles Williams, contained in his said Letters, are not precise or full, and therefore not satisfactory.

Resolved, That upon an acknowledgment being made in writing, by the said Thomas Charles Williams, and inserted in the Maryland Gazette that, after he had knowledge of the Resolutions of this County and City, and after the Merchants of this Province had declined to import Tea, he, with design to avail himself of an advantage from an expected scarcity of that article, imported Tea into this Province; and that he thereby, as far as such example would influence, supported the assumed power of Parliament to tax America, and endangered the rights and liberties of America; that he is sincerely sorry for his offence; that he will not commit the least infringement of the Continental Association, or any Resolution of this Province, but will contribute his assistance to the support of the American Opposition, it is the opinion of this Committee that no further proceedings ought to be had against him.

JOHN DUCKETT, Clerk Com.

Test, a true copy,

THOMAS FRENCH, Junior,
JOHN PURVIANCE.

I, the above named Thomas Charles Williams, do hereby certify, that the above Resolve is published at my desire; and as a proof of my acquiescence therein, I do hereby give my assent to the several engagements therein required of me. Witness my hand, this second day of January, 1775.

THOMAS C. WILLIAMS.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM THE EARL OF DUNMORE TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH, DATED WILLIAMSBURG, DECEMBER 24, 1774.

My necessary absence on the occasion of the Indian disturbances, will, I hope, account and excuse me for my not having acknowledged your Lordship's several letters in due time and order, and for not having regularly communicated accounts of the publick affairs of the Colony, to which some of them refer; and I wish I were now so fortunate as to have it in my power to make a representation of their appearing with a more favourable aspect, than when I last wrote upon those important concerns.

The Associations first in part entered into, recommended by the people of this Colony, and adopted by what is called the Continental Congress, are now enforcing throughout this country with the greatest rigour. A Committee has been chosen in every County, whose business it is to carry the Association of the Congress into execution, which Committee assumes an authority to inspect the books, invoices, and all other secrets of the trade and correspondence of Merchants; to watch the conduct of every inhabitant, without distinction, and to send for all such as come under their suspicion into their presence; to interrogate them respecting all matters which, at their pleasure, they think fit objects of their inquiry; and to stigmatize, as they term it, such as they find transgressing what they are now hardy enough to call the Laws of the Congress, which stigmatizing is no other than inviting the vengeance of an outrageous and lawless mob to be exercised upon the unhappy victims. Every County, besides, is now arming a Company of men, whom they call an Independent Company, for the avowed purpose of protecting their Committees, and to be employed against Government, if occasion require. The Committee of one County has proceeded so far as to swear the men of their Independent Company, to execute all orders which shall be given them from the Committee of their County.

As to the power of Government, which your Lordship, in your letter of November 11, directs should be exerted to counteract the dangerous measures pursuing here, I can assure your Lordship that it is entirely disregarded, if not wholly overturned. There is not a Justice of the Peace in Virginia that acts, except as a Committee-man. The abolishing the Courts of Justice was the first step taken, in which the men of fortune and pre-eminence joined equally with the lowest and meanest. The General Court of Judicature of the Colony is much in the same predicament; for though there are at least a majority of his Majesty's Council, who, with myself, are the Judges of that Court, that would steadily perform their duty, yet the Lawyers have absolutely refused to attend, nor indeed would the people allow them to attend, or evidences to appear. The reason commonly assigned for this proceeding, is the want of a Fee Bill, which expired at the last session of Assembly; and it is a popular argument here, that no power but the Legislature can establish Fees; and the Fee Bill not having been renewed, it is attributed to the dissolution. But the true cause of so many persons joining in so opprobrious a measure, was to engage their English Creditors, who are numerous, to join in the clamours of this country; and not a few to avoid paying the debts in which many of the principal people here are much involved.

With regard to the encouraging of those, as your Lordship likewise exhorts me, who appeared, in principle, averse to these proceedings, I hope your Lordship will do me the justice to believe I have left no means in my power unessayed to draw all the assistance possible from them to his Majesty's Government; but I presume your Lordship will not think it very extraordinary, that my persuasions should have been unavailing, against the terrors, which, on the other hand, are held out by the Committee.

Independent Companies, &c., so universally supported, who have set themselves up superiour to all other authority, under the auspices of their Congress, the Laws of which they talk of in a style of respect, and treat with marks of reverence, which they never bestowed on their legal Government, or the Laws proceeding from it. I can assure your Lordship, that I have discovered no instance where the interposition of Government, in the feeble state to which it is reduced, could serve any other purpose than to suffer the disgrace of a disappointment, and thereby afford matter of great exultation to its enemies, and increase their influence over the minds of the people.

But, my Lord, every step which has been taken by these infatuated people, must inevitably defeat its own purpose. Their Non-Importation, Non-Exportation, &c., cannot fail in a short time to produce a scarcity, which will ruin thousands of families. The people, indeed, of fortune, may supply themselves and their negroes for two or three years, but the middling and poorer sort, who live from hand to mouth, have not the means of doing so; and the produce of their lands will not purchase those necessities, (without which themselves and negroes must starve,) of the Merchants who may have goods to dispose of; because the Merchants are prevented from turning such produce to any account. As to manufacturing for themselves the people of Virginia are very far from being naturally industrious; and it is not by taking away the principal, if not the only encouragement industry, that it can be excited; nor is it in times of anarchy and confusion, that the foundation of such improvements can be laid. The lower class of people, too, will discover that they have been duped by the richer sort, who, for their part, elude the whole effects of the Association by which their poor neighbours perish. What, then, is to deter those from taking the shortest mode of supplying themselves? and unrestrained as they are by laws, from taking whatever they want wherever they can find it?

The arbitrary proceedings of these Committees, likewise, cannot fail of producing quarrels and dissensions, which will raise partisans of Government; and I am firmly persuaded that the Colony, even by their own acts and deeds, must be brought to see the necessity of depending on its mother country, and of embracing its authority.

KING'S DISTRICT (NEW-YORK) RESOLUTIONS.

At a Meeting held in King's District, Albany County, New-York, on the 24th day of December, 1774, publicly warned by the Clerk of the District, and requested by a number of the principal Inhabitants:

Present, five of the King's Justices of the County of Albany, and a great number of the principal people belonging to said District.

Whereas, it appears to this meeting that some individuals in the Northeast part of this District, have associated with divers people of a neighbouring District, and combined together to hinder and obstruct Courts of Justice in the said County of Albany. This meeting, deeply impressed with a just abhorrence of these daring insults upon Government, and being fully sensible of the blessings resulting from a due obedience to the laws, as well as convinced of the calamities and evils attending a suppression, or even a suspension of the administration of justice, have therefore unanimously come into the following Resolutions:

First. That as our gracious Sovereign King George the Third, is lawful and rightful King of Great Britain, and all other Dominions thereunto belonging, and as such, by the Constitution, has a right to establish Courts, and is supposed to be present in all his Courts; therefore, we will, to the utmost of our power, and at the risk of our lives, discountenance and suppress every Meeting, Association, or Combination, which may have a tendency in the least to molest, disturb, or in anywise obstruct the due administration of justice in this Province.

Second. That we will, as much as we possibly can, in our different capacities, encourage, promote, and enforce a strict obedience to the aforesaid authority.

Third. Inasmuch as that life, liberty, and property, and the bands of society, are secured and protected by the laws, we do, for the further security of these blessings, mutually covenant, agree, and engage, that if any obstruction, hindrance, or molestation, is given to any Officer or Minister of Justice, in the due execution of his office, we will, separately and collectively, as occasions may require, aid and assist in the executive part of the law, so that all offenders may be brought to justice.

Signed by order of the meeting.

ABRAHAM HOLMES, Clerk for King's District.

TO THE INHABITANTS OF BRITISH AMERICA.

FRIENDS AND COUNTRYMEN: At a time when Ministerial Tyrants threaten a People with the total loss of their liberties, supineness and inattention on their part will render that ruin which their enemies have designed for them, unavoidable. A striking instance of this we have in the history of the Carthaginians. That brave people, notwithstanding they had surrendered up three hundred hostages to the Romans, upon a promise of being restored to their former liberties, found themselves instantly invaded by the Roman Army. Roused by this unexpected procedure, they sent Deputies to know the occasion of this extraordinary manœuvre. They were told that they must deliver up all their Arms to the Romans, and then they should peaceably enjoy their liberties. Upon their compliance with this requisition, Marius, one of the Roman Consuls, thus addressed them: "We are well pleased with these first instances of your obedience, and therefore cannot help congratulating you upon them. I have but one thing more to require of you in the name of the Roman people; I will therefore, without further preamble, plainly declare to you an order, on which the safety of your Republick, the preservation of your Goods, your Lives, and Liberties, depend. Rome requires that you abandon your City, which we are commanded to level with the ground. You may build yourselves another where you please, provided it be ten miles from the sea, and without walls or fortifications. A little courage and resolution will get the better of the affection which attaches us to old habitations, and is founded more in habit than in reason." The consternation of the Carthaginian Deputies, at hearing this horrid, treacherous speech, is not to be expressed. Some swooned away, others burst forth into cries and lamentations. Nor were even the Roman Soldiers who were present, unmoved at the affecting scene. "These sudden fits," said the base inhuman Consul, "will wear off by degrees. Time and necessity teaches the most unfortunate to bear their calamities with patience. The Carthaginians, when they recover their senses, will choose to obey."

Although the Carthaginians, after this, made a noble and manly resistance, yet the surrender of their Arms proved the destruction of that City, which had so often contended with Rome for the empire of the world.

Equally inexcusable with the Carthaginians, will the Americans be, if they suffer the tyrants who are endeavouring to enslave them, to possess themselves of all their Forts, Castles, Arms, Ammunition, and warlike Stores. What reason can be given by them for such cowardly and pusillanimous conduct? Perhaps it may be said that "there yet remains some gleam of hope, that the British Ministry may do us justice, bestow to us our liberties, and repeal those oppressive Acts which now hang over America." And was this even probable, it would hardly justify such a conduct. But what foundation have we for such a hope? If this be the intention of the Ministry, is a formidable Fleet and numerous Army necessary to bring it about? Could they not have given up their plan for enslaving America, without seizing all the strong holds on the Continent? upon all the Arms and Ammunition; and without soliciting and finally obtaining an order to prohibit the importation of warlike Stores into the Colonies? Does this speak the language of peace and reconciliation? or does it rather speak that of war, tumult, and desolation? And shall we, like the Carthaginians, peaceably surrender our Arms to our enemies, in hopes of obtaining in return the liberties we have so long contended for?

Be not deceived, my countrymen. Should the Ministry ever prevail upon you to make that base and infamous surrender, they will then tell you, in the language of the haughty and inhuman Marius, what those liberties are which they will in future suffer you to enjoy; and endeavour to persuade you, that when you have recovered your senses, you will choose to obey. Is it possible that any person among us thinks of making a submission to the several powers which now claim a right to rule over us? If so, let him take a view of the situation he and his American brethren must then be in. We all acknowledge our submission to the authority of our Provincial Legislature, in the same manner as the people in Great Britain acknowledge the power of Parliament over them; because the Assemblies here and Parliament there, are composed in part of persons elected by the people, and who are liable, for any misconduct, to be excluded by them from ever acting again as their Representatives; and where the people have this constitutional check upon their rulers, slavery can never be introduced. "But," says the famous Mr. Locke, "whenever a power exists in a state over which the people have no control, the people are completely enslaved." If this be the case, what shall we say to the claim of Parliament to legislate for us in all cases whatsoever? to the mandates of a Minister of State which so often have superseded the laws of the Colony Legislatures, although assented to by his Majesty? or to the late Order of the King and Council, prohibiting the importation of warlike Stores into the Colonies? And who, by the same colour of right, may, whenever they please, prohibit the importation of any or even every other article. These are undoubtedly such powers as we have no check upon or control over; powers similar to those which have spread tyranny and oppression over three quarters of the globe; and if we tamely submit to their authority, will soon accomplish that slavery which they have long been endeavouring to bring upon America.

I am far from wishing hostilities to commence on the part of America; but still hope that no person will, at this important crisis, be unprepared to act in his own defence, should he, by necessity, be driven thereto. And I must here beg leave to recommend to the consideration of the people on this Continent, whether, when we are by an arbitrary decree prohibited the having Arms and Ammunition by importation, we have not, by the law of self-preservation, a right to seize upon those within our power, in order to defend the liberties which God and nature have given to us; especially at this time, when several of the Colonies are involved in a dangerous war with the Indians, and must, if this inhuman order has the designed effect, fall a prey to those savage barbarians who have so often deluged this land in blood.

A WATCHMAN.

New-Hampshire, December 24, 1774.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK, DATED LONDON, DECEMBER 24, 1774.

I was very much obliged to you for your last favour, the contents of which I thought proper to communicate to the publick. The firm and spirited, I may say magnanimous, proceedings of the Congress, have had the desired effect. The Ministry are absolutely humbled; they talk of their measures having had a different effect from what they expected, and Lord Mansfield begins to insinuate they did not originate from him. We shall soon have a publick disavowal of them from him. The fact is, they begin to feel that their places will be hazarded by persevering, and they have no hesitation in sacrificing the dignity of Parliament to their continuance in office, which they pretended they could not give up, to the peace of America, and the prosperity of Great Britain.

The Merchants are in motion, and have advertised for a meeting; the Ministerial tools are the most forward, as if they wanted to make a merit of necessity. Among these, Mauduit and Molleson, the most devoted instruments of Hutchinson and Wedderburne, are active. The latter wrote a letter to  desiring he might attend the delivery of the Petition, to bear his testimony against the measures it complains of, as if he was become a convert by inspiration, and in the heat of his new zeal would adopt the Petition without knowing its contents. They want to take a lead in the measures they cannot prevent, in order to recommend themselves both to America and the Ministry; to the former, by an apparent zeal for their interests; to the latter, by betraying the counsels in which they are permitted to share.

A continuance of that firmness and unanimity which have thus disposed them to give us redress, will secure the attainment of it; and as we know it is not voluntary on their part, we must not remit, in the least till the ultimate ratification. For, like true cowards, they would take courage upon the least appearance of remission on our part. I have no doubt but they will endeavour to divide, by proposing a partial redress, or, as they will insidiously call it, meeting half way. But as you have drawn the line with great moderation, I trust you will not give up an iota of what you have stipulated; for indeed I do not see what can be yielded with safety. All your demands are essential to liberty, and therefore must be religiously adhered to. Your wisdom will inform you that favourable as appearances are at present, they are but appearances, which unremitting firmness on your part can alone realize and conduct to a happy issue. I hope I shall not again have the misfortune to lament the retracted honour and violated faith of my countrymen, I do not mean it as any reproach to New-York, to say they will be tempted; but while I hope they will do themselves the honour of rejecting it with honest indignation, I beg you will keep a watchful eye over them, because, as the late Lord Clive very feelingly observed, there are sometimes offers made which flesh and blood cannot resist.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN OF PHILADELPHIA.

DATED DECEMBER 24, 1774.

The late Proclamation forbidding the exportation of Gunpowder and Fire-arms to America seemed intended to take away from the Colonies the power of defending themselves by force. I think it my duty to inform you that the said Proclamation will be rendered ineffectual by a manufactory of Gunpowder, which has lately been set on foot in this Province, the materials of which may be procured in great perfection, and at an easier rate than they can be imported from Great Britain, among ourselves. There are, moreover, Gunsmiths enough in this Province to make one hundred thousand stand of Arms in one year, at twenty-eight Shillings sterling a piece, if they should be wanted. It may not be amiss to make this intelligence as publick as possible, that our rulers may see the impossibility of enforcing the late Acts of Parliament by Arms. Such is the wonderful martial spirit which is enkindled among us, that we begin to think the whole force of Great Britain could not subdue us. We trust no less to the natural advantages of our country than to our numbers and military preparations, in the confidence and security of which we boast. The four New England Colonies, together with Virginia and Maryland, are completely armed and disciplined, the Province of Pennsylvania will follow their example; in a few weeks our Militia will amount to no less than sixty thousand men.

Nothing but a total repeal of the Acts of Parliament of which we complain can prevent a civil war in America. Our opposition has now risen to desperation. It would be as easy to allay a storm in the ocean by a single word, as to subdue the free spirit of the Americans without a total redress of their grievances. May a spirit of wisdom descend at last upon our Ministry, and rescue the British Empire from destruction. We tremble at the thoughts of a separation from Great Britain. All our glory and happiness have been derived from you, but we are in danger of being shipwrecked upon your rocks. To avoid these, we are willing to be tossed, without a compass or guide, for a while upon an ocean of blood.

Wishing you success in your disinterested labours to promote the happiness of this country, I am, sir, with much esteem for your firmness, your most obedient servant.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN OF PHILADELPHIA, TO A MEMBER OF THE BRITISH PARLIAMENT,
DATED DECEMBER 26, 1774.

In a letter which I wrote to you a few nights ago, I mentioned that the manufactories of Gunpowder and Fire-arms which were setting on foot in this country, would defeat the designs of the Ministry in forbidding the exportation of these articles from Great Britain. The only design of this letter is to rectify some mistakes which have been transmitted to England respecting the conduct of General Lee, who is now in America.

The Ministry have been made to believe that the military preparations in the Colonies have been recommended and taught entirely by that officer. Nothing can be farther from the fact; the Americans were determined to seal their love of liberty with their blood long before they heard of the name of General Lee.

The people of Massachusetts Bay were armed and disciplined before General Lee visited them, and the Congress agreed to recommend the study of the Military Exercises to the Colonies without hearing a word on the Subject from the General. It is a falsehood that the General has offered to head our Troops. He has too much knowledge of the world not to perceive that men who fight for all they hold dear to them, will prefer men born among them for Commanders, to the most experienced foreign Officers. Moreover, the Colonies are not so wrapped up in General Lee's military accomplishments as to give him the preference to Colonel Putnam and Colonel Washington; men whose military talents and achievements have placed them at the head of American heroes. There are several hundred thousand Americans who would face any danger with these illustrious heroes to head them. It is but just to General Lee's merit to acknowledge that he has, upon all occasions, exposed the folly and madness of the present Administration, and has shewn the most tender regard to the liberties of this country, but in this he has acted the part of an Englishman. What is England without America? Her Liberty and Commerce, which are her two capital pillars, are both supported by this country. There Cannot be a greater error than to suppose that the present commotions in America are owing to the arts of demagogues; every man thinks and acts for himself in a country where there is an equal distribution of property and knowledge. It is to no purpose to attempt to destroy the opposition to the omnipotence of Parliament by taking off our Hancocks, Adamses, and Dickinsons. Ten thousand Patriots of the same stamp stand ready to fill their places. Would to Heaven our rulers would consider these things in time; one more rash and unjust action on your side the water may divide us beyond the possibility of an union. For God's sake try to rouse up the ancient spirit of the Nation: we love you; we honour you as brethren and fellow-subjects; we have shared in your dangers and glories; only grant us the liberty you enjoy, and we shall always remain one people. Let the bond of our union be in the Crown of Great Britain.

I am, sir, yours, &c.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN LONDON, TO HIS CORRESPONDENT IN VIRGINIA, DATED DECEMBER 26, 1774.

It is with great pleasure I inform you that the firmness, unanimity, and moderation of the proceedings in America have tutored the tide so much in our favour here, that the Ministry seem much inclined to repeal the Acts of which we complain. The Petition of the Congress, after two Councils held upon it, was received; and the answer was, that his Majesty received it very graciously, and, from its importance, would lay it before his two Houses of Parliament, as soon as they met. They are adjourned for the holidays.

Lord Chatham commends both the Petition and the rest of the proceedings of the Congress in the highest terms. He thinks an authentick renunciation of the right to tax America on the part of the Parliament, and a recognition of their supreme power on our part, should accompany the repeal, as a solid foundation for future confidence and affection. It is certain that the least appearance of remission or disunion on the part of America will encourage the Ministry to do what they most ardently wish, namely, to leave the business so unsettled that they may revive the dispute in some other form, to the infinite distress, if not total destruction of America. It becomes the Americans, then, by persevering in the measures which have already operated so happily, to fix their rights upon so solid a foundation as to shield them from doubt or invasion hereafter.

The demands of the Congress are so moderate, and so essential, that, in my judgment, not an iota of them can with safety be retracted; and it is the opinion of our wisest friends here that unanimity and firmness will be irresistible.

You have acted suaviter in modo, fortiter in re: Continue that, and be assured of success.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN LONDON, TO HIS CORRESPONDENT IN WILLIAMSBURG, VIRGINIA, DATED DECEMBER 26, 1774.

The unanimity, firmness, and moderation of the Resolutions of the General Congress, and the universal approbation both these and their Addresses meet with here, has roused the Merchants, and disconcerted the Ministers. As yet, however, they appear unresolved; unwilling to retract, and unable to proceed. In my opinion, however, the Closet power that rules this unhappy country will not permit them to retreat without violence. It is therefore my duty to say, that nothing but a continuance of that union and firmness which have happily shaken their resolution, will effectually change their conduct, and give us redress.

Lord North's late language in the House of Commons is humble to a degree, but he is a very treacherous man; and the political wisdom of the present times being to dupe and deceive, by personal falsehood, it becomes us to be upon our guard. Three of the gentlemen appointed by the Congress to deliver their Petition, presented it through the hands of the Secretary of State, and were answered, that his Majesty received it very graciously, and, from its importance, he would lay it before his two Houses of Parliament as soon as they met. They are adjourned till the 24th of February.

The buzz of the Court is, that Lord North and Lord Dartmouth will give place to the Lords Gower and Hillsborough, and all the Acts complained of will be repealed, except the Admiralty Acts and the Declaratory Act. The opinion, however, of all our friends is, that firmness and unanimity on your part, in demanding a full redress, and a solemn ratification of your rights, cannot be resisted.

As the King has declared his intention to lay the Petition before the Parliament we have thought that an immediate obedience to the orders of the Congress, for publishing their Petition, might be construed by our enemies into disrespect to the King, and factious views, which it has been their constant endeavour to fix upon us. It is therefore determined to defer the publication till it is laid before Parliament. The effect of the Addresses upon men's minds needs no addition at present, but may want reanimation at a future day, which the Petition is well calculated to effect.

ARTHUR LEE TO RICHARD H. LEE.

London, December 26, 1774.

MY DEAR BROTHER: It is with great pleasure I inform you that the Proceedings of the General Congress, and the vigorous preparations for effectual resistance, have rendered our cause so popular, and so intimidated Administration, that they seem determined to give us redress. The King received the Congress Petition very graciously, and is to lay it before his two Houses of Parliament as soon as the adjournment for the holidays is over. It is whispered from Court that Lord Gower and Lord Hillsborough will be put into the places of Lord North and Lord Dartmouth, and that all the Acts will be repealed, except those for establishing Admiralty, &c., Courts, and declaring the right. Should this be true you will see with what ill will this partial relief is given, and that they are determined to continue our apprehensions, by advancing our worst enemies, and preserving those Acts as the seeds of contention. But you will certainly be of opinion, with all our friends here, that nothing but a full and solemnly ratified redress ought to satisfy us, and that the same resolution, unanimity, and firmness which have extorted a part, will compel the whole. I have waited on Lord Chatham with the Petition, on which, and on all the proceedings of the Congress, he bestows the highest commendation. He is clearly for a full, solemn, authentick settlement of the dispute upon the conditions proposed by the Congress, and will assuredly support it with all his abilities. I think I shall get the heads of opposition to unite with him, as I find them much disposed to it. This junction, with the voice of the people here, and the firmness of America, will, I trust, compel our oppressors to absolute submission. My love to Mrs. Lee, and respects at Mount Airy. Adieu.

To Richard H. Lee.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER RECEIVED IN EDINBURGH, FROM AN OFFICER IN THE ARMY, DATED BOSTON, DECEMBER 26, 1774.

In my last of the 9th instant, I acquainted you of the associations forming in several Towns in the country by the friends of Government, whom the factious party are pleased to call Tories, and themselves Whigs. I find by your letter, that it has been reported that we lose numbers, but I can assure you by the returns from the time of our arrival until the 24th instant, we have not lost two hundred men by all the casualties an Army is liable to; and many of those that did desert are returned to their colours, notwithstanding the temptation they had to be debauched, and some have suffered death by the sentence of a General Court Martial. However, desertion is now at an end; our Army is in high spirits, and, at present, this Town is pretty quiet. We get plenty of provisions, cheap and good in their kind; we only regret that necessity obliges us to enrich, by purchasing from a set of people we would wish to deprive of so great an advantage. Our parade is a very handsome one; three hundred and seventy men mount daily, and more are expected soon; a Field Officer's guard of one hundred and fifty men at the lines on the Neck; the Army is brigaded. The first Brigadier General, Earl Percy; Major of Brigade, Moncrieff; second Brigadier, Pigot; Major of Brigade Small; third Brigadier, Jones; Major of Brigade, Hutchinson. I send you enclosed your friend Ruggles's proposal of Association; it has already disconcerted those factious gentry that style themselves Whigs, though they are in reality Rebels. I am glad to tell you that the back settlements in general disapprove of the Non-importation Resolves. You were right in your opinion, Brigadier General Ruggles of the Massachusetts, Colonel Babcock of Rhode-Island, and Colonel Fitch of Connecticut, are staunch to Government; the first you know commanded, and was the senior officer in the Provincial service with us under Sir Jeffery Amherst, the other gentlemen are at the head of the Provincials. Most of their Officers that served last war are ready to serve under their old Colonels. I make no doubt things will wear a new face here, especially when your sentiments of the Ministry's firmness are authenticated. Was I to give you names of the different Provincial Field Officers, &c., that have offered their service, this letter would be swelled to a volume; you know them, and can answer for them. All your friends wish and expect to see you in the Spring.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM THE HONOURABLE GOVERNOUR GAGE, TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH, DATED BOSTON, DECEMBER 26, 1774.

I had the honour to write to your Lordship by the opportunity of Colonel Prescott, of the English Fusileers, who sailed out of this Harbour in a Transport on the 16th instant, since which time we have received accounts of an attack made by a number of people in New-Hampshire, on his Majesty's Fort William and Mary, in Piscataqua Harbour. There has been different reports concerning the transaction, but I transmit your Lordship copies and extracts of letters that I have received from Governour Wentworth upon the subject. A Frigate and Sloop-of-War are now in that Harbour, and we have received no accounts of further disturbance since they arrived.

This Congress we have heard had privately appointed a Commissary to provide Military Stores; and news is just come from Worcester, in this Province, that he or his Deputies are providing a stock of provisions at that place

PROVINCE OF NEW-HAMPSHIRE,

A PROCLAMATION. - By the Governour.

Whereas several bodies of men did, in the day time of the 14th, and in the night of the 15th of this instant, December, in the most daring and rebellious manner invest, attack, and forcibly enter into his Majesty's Castle William and Mary, in this Province, and overpowering and confining the Captain and Garrison, did, besides committing many treasonable insults and outrages, break open the Magazine of said Castle, and plunder it of above one hundred barrels of Gunpowder, with upwards of sixty stand of Small Arms, and did also force from the ramparts of said Castle, and carry off sixteen pieces of Cannon, and other Military Stores, in open hostility and direct oppugnation of his Majesty's Government, and in the most atrocious contempt of his Crown and dignity. I do, by advice and consent of his Majesty's Council, issue this Proclamation, ordering and requiring in his Majesty's name, all Magistrates and other officers, whether civil or military, as they regard their duty to the King, and the tenour of the oaths they have solemnly taken and subscribed, to exert themselves in detecting and securing in some of his Majesty's jails in this Province the said offenders, in order to their being brought to condign punishment. And from motives of duty to the King, and regard to the welfare of the good people of this Province, I do, in the most earnest and solemn manner, exhort and enjoin you, his Majesty's liege subjects of this Government, to beware of suffering yourselves to be seduced by the false arts or menaces of abandoned men, to abet, protect, or screen from justice any of the said high-handed offenders, or to withhold or secrete his Majesty's munition forcibly taken from his Castle; but that each and every of you will use your utmost endeavours to detect and discover the perpetrators of these crimes to the Civil Magistrate, and assist in securing and bringing them to justice, and in recovering the King's munition. This injunction it is my bounden duty to lay strictly upon you, and to require your obedience thereto, as you value individually your faith and allegiance to his Majesty, as you wish to preserve that reputation to the Province in general; and as you would avert the dreadful but most certain consequences of a contrary conduct to yourselves and posterity.

Given at the Council Chamber, in Portsmouth, the 26th day of December, in the fifteenth year of the reign of our Sovereign, Lord George the Third, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c., and in the year of our Lord Christ, 1774.

J. WENTWORTH.

By his Excellency's command, with advice of Council,
THEODORE ATKINSON, Secretary.
GOD save the King.

New-York, December 27, 1774.

As we thought it would be agreeable to our readers to know the particulars of what has passed in this City, since the seizure of Arms, &c., lately made in this Port, for want of cockets, we have been at pains to collect the following facts, which may be depended upon.

As soon as the seizure was made, the cases and three boxes were carried to the Custom House, and the barrel of Powder ordered to the Powder House. On the way, some people appeared and carried it off from the waiter, who had it in charge: this being reported at the Custom House, the Collector immediately went to the Coffee House, and informed the Merchants present of the rescue, which they highly disapproved of; proper stops were immediately taken; in a few hours the Powder was lodged in the Powder House. To prevent any further attempts in future that might disturb the City, the boxes and cases were sent on board the Man-of-War.

Some days after this removal of the Arms &c., the Collector received from the Post Office the following Letter:

MR. ELLIOT: Sir, A number of Fire-arms of British manufacture, legally imported, having been lately seized by your orders and conveyed on board the Man-of-War, by which arbitrary steps you have declared yourself an inveterate enemy to the liberties of North America; in this light we view you, and from you we shall demand these Arms whenever they are wanted, which is probable will be soon. You will therefore, if you have the least regard to the safety of yourself or your servants, who seized them, be careful to prevent their being sent away, as you may depend upon answering for a contrary conduct with a vengeance.

We thought that your former genteel conduct in your department, entitled you to this notice, otherwise we should have been silent till a proper opportunity had offered, in which we might have done our country justice, by wreaking our resentment on you in a private manner. Do not slight this admonition, or treat it as a vain menace, for we have most solemnly sworn to effect it sooner or later, and you know that our Nation are implacable. We would not have you to imagine that it is in the power of any set of men, either civil or military, to protect or shield you from our just revenge, which will be soon done; and in such manner as not to be known till it is fatally experienced by you.
From the Mohawks and River Indians.

The above was immediately copied and sent to the Coffee House, where it was posted up, together with the Collector's Answer, viz:

The Original, of which the above is a copy, Mr. Elliot this morning received from the Post Office: he is obliged to answer it in this publick manner, being entirely unacquainted with the author.

Mr. Elliot calls upon the person to appear, that can, in any instance, accuse him of having acted either arbitrarily or illegally in his office, that he may have an opportunity of answering him properly.

If the letter is wrote with a view to deter an officer from his duty, Mr. Elliot assures the writer, that as long as he has the honour to act as Collector of the Port of New-York, he will exert the same attention and firmness, that has for ten years past enabled him to give satisfaction to his superiours in office; and to live happily among the inhabitants of this City. ANDREW ELLIOT.

At the Coffee House the letter was by all disavowed, and greatly disapproved of; the Collector's manner of treating it, met with the highest approbation; notwithstanding which, that very night, the following printed Handbill was secretly conveyed into almost every house in Town:

TO THE INHABITANTS OF NEW-YORK.

My dear Friends and Fellow-Citizens:

At a time when Slavery is clanking her infernal chains, and Tyranny stands ready with goads and whips to enforce obedience to her despotick and cruel mandates; when Oppression, with gigantick strides is approaching your once happy retreats, and her tools and minions are eagerly gasping to seize the cup from the lip of Industry, will you supinely fold your arms, and calmly see your weapons of defence torn from you, by a band of ruffians? Ye, whose glorious and renowned ancestors, freely lavished their blood and treasure, to secure to you the full enjoyment of liberty, that greatest of temporal blessings; forbid it Heaven! Forbid it gratitude and honour! How long will ye patiently bear insult and wrong? Are ye so callous and dead to every sense of honour, as to disregard your reputation, and the taunts and scoffs of your fellow-subjects in the neighbouring Colonies? What is become of your former magnanimity and spirit, ye who dared to degrade the Governour of the Province, and exhibit his effigy, under the very muzzles of his Cannon? Are ye dwindled into such dastards and poltrons, as to suffer yourselves to be insulted, and robbed of your Arms, by a few petty Custom House Officers, with impunity? Methinks I hear you say it cannot, it must not be.

Rouse, then, my friends and countrymen! rouse, and play the men upon this occasion; convince the world that ye are still possessed of the same noble spirit, by which ye were actuated in former times, and that whoever injures ye shall not fail to feel the weight of your resentment; your country has been basely robbed by the Officers of the Customs, of a considerable number of Arms, which were legally exported from Great Britain, and imported here, in the Ship Lady Gage, and therefore not liable to a seizure, upon any pretence whatsoever, as they are actually the manufacture of England. Those Arms I am credibly informed, are now on board the Man-of-War, and are in a few days to be sent to General Gage, and of consequence are to be used for your destruction. Can ye bear such a thought? especially when ye have it in your power to prevent it; does not the bare idea of it harrow up your souls? In the name of Heaven, throw off your supineness; assemble together immediately, and go in a body to the Collector, insist upon the Arms being relanded, and that he must see them forthcoming, or abide the consequences; delays are dangerous; there is no time to be lost. It is not a season to be mealy-mouthed, or to mince matters; the times are precarious and perilous, and we do not know but that the Arms may be wanted to-morrow.

Stone people may endeavour to persuade you that it would be improper to call upon the Collector in such a way, on account of his former polite behaviour to the mercantile body, but this objection has not the least weight in it, as he has shown himself inimical to the liberties of America, and has therefore cancelled every obligation.

PLAIN ENGLISH.

Early next morning a number of the principal Merchants assembled, waited on the Collector of the Custom House, and assured him of their intention to support him in the legal execution of his duty.

They then accompanied him to the Coffee House, where he was met by numbers of the inhabitants of all ranks (among whom was a number of masters of Ships, with their men) who appeared, with readiness, to show how much they esteemed the Collector as a just and good officer.

Some gentlemen then called for the author of the letter or handbill to appear, or any other person, and accuse the Collector of having, in any instance, acted either arbitrarily or illegally; that the writing such letters, or disturbing officers in their duty, must be abhorred by all men that wish the support of Civil Government and good order; that in the present case it appeared the Collector had done nothing but his duty, and that it was therefore incumbent on the inhabitants to support him.

The justness of this proposal, and the inclination of the people present to adopt it, was instantly testified by three cheers. The Collector then stepped forward, politely thanked the audience for their kind attention on this occasion; assuring them that nothing could be more pleasing to him than this publick testimony of their approbation, both as a fellow-citizen and as an officer of Government; at the same time declaring his intention of steadily adhering to his former conduct.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty in Council: The humble Petition and Memorial of the Assembly of JAMAICA; Voted in Assembly the 28th of DECEMBER, 1774:

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Assembly of Jamaica, having taken into consideration the present critical state of the Colonies, humbly approach the Throne, to assure your Majesty of our most dutiful regard to your royal person and family, and our attachment to, and reliance on, our fellow-subjects in Great Britain, founded on the most solid and durable basis, the continued enjoyment of our personal rights, and the security of our properties.

That weak and feeble as this Colony is, from its very small number of white inhabitants, and its peculiar situation from the incumbrance of more than two hundred thousand slaves, it cannot be supposed that we now intend, or ever could have intended, resistance to Great Britain.

That this Colony has never, by riots, or other violent measures, opposed or permitted an act of resistance against any law imposed on us by Great Britain, though always truly sensible of our just rights, and of the pernicious consequences, both to the parent and infant state, with which some of them must be attended; always relying, with the most implicit confidence, on the justice and paternal tenderness of your Majesty, even to the most feeble and distant of your subjects, and depending that when your Majesty and your Parliament should have naturally considered and deliberated on the claims of Great Britain and her Colonies, every cause of dissatisfaction would be removed.

That justly alarmed with the approaching horrors of an unnatural contest between Great Britain and her Colonies, in which the most dreadful calamities to this Island, and the inevitable destruction of the small Sugar Colonies are involved; and excited by these apprehensions, as well as by our affection for our fellow-subjects, both in Great Britain and the Colonies, we implore your Majesty's favourable reception of this our humble Petition and Memorial, as well on behalf of ourselves and our constituents the good people of this Island, as on behalf of all other your Majesty's subjects, the Colonists of America; but especially those who labour at present under the heavy weight of your Majesty's displeasure, for whom we entreat to be admitted as humble suitors; that we may not, at so important a crisis, be wanting to contribute our sincere and well meant, however small, endeavours, to heal those disorders which may otherwise terminate in the destruction of the Empire.

That as we conceive it necessary for this purpose to enter into the different claims of Great Britain and her Colonies, we beg leave to place it in the royal mind as the first established principle of the Constitution, that the people of England have a right to partake, and do partake, of the legislation of their country, and that no laws can affect them but such as receive their assent, given by themselves or their Representatives; and it follows, therefore, that no one part of your Majesty's English subjects, either can or ever could legislate for any other part.

That the settlers of the first Colonies, but especially those of the elder Colonies of North America, as well as the conquerors of this Island, were a part of the English people, in every respect equal to them, and possessed of every right and privilege at the time of their emigration, which the people of England were possessed of, and irrefragably to that great right of consenting to the laws which should bind them, in all cases whatsoever: and who emigrating at first in small numbers, when they might have been oppressed; such rights and privileges were constantly guaranteed by the Crown to the emigrants and conquerors, to be held and enjoyed by them in the places to which they emigrated; and were confirmed by many repeated solemn engagements, made publick by proclamation, under the faith of which they did actually emigrate and conquer; that therefore the people of England had no rights, power, or privilege, to give to the emigrants, as these were, at the time of their emigration, possessed of all such rights equally with themselves.

That the Peers of England were possessed of very eminent and distinguished privileges in their own right as a branch of Legislation, a Court of Justice in the dernier resort for all appeals from the people, and in the first instance, for all causes instituted by the Representatives of the people; but that it does not appear that they ever considered themselves as acting in such capacities for the Colonies, the Peers having never to this day, heard or determined the causes of the Colonists in appeal, in which it ever was, and is their duty to serve the subjects within the Realm.

That from what has been said it appears that the emigrants could receive nothing from either the Peers or the people; the former being unable to communicate their privileges, and the latter on no more than an equal footing with themselves, but that with the King it was far otherwise; the royal prerogative, as now annexed to, and belonging to the Crown, being totally independent of the people, who cannot invade, add to, or diminish it, nor restrain or invalidate those legal grants which the prerogative hath a just right to give, and hath very liberally given for the encouragement of colonization; to some Colonies it granted almost all the royal powers of Government, which they hold and enjoy at this day; but to none of them did it grant less than to the first conquerors of this Island, in whose favour it is declared by a Royal Proclamation, "that they shall have the same privileges to all intents and purposes as the free born subjects of England."

That to the use of name or authority of the people of the parent state, to take away, or render ineffectual, the legal grants of the Crown to the Colonists, is delusive, and destroys that confidence which the people have ever had and ought to have of the most solemn royal grants in their favour, and renders unstable and insecure those very rights and privileges which prompted their emigration.

That your Colonists and your Petitioners having the most implicit confidence in the royal faith pledged to them in the most solemn manner, by your predecessors, rested satisfied with their different portions of the royal grants, and having been bred from their infancy to venerate the name of Parliament, a word still dear to the heart of every Briton, and considered as the palladium of liberty, and the great source from whence their own is derived, receive the several Acts of Parliament of England and Great Britain, for the regulation of the trade of the Colonies, as the salutary precautions of a prudent father for the prosperity of a wide extended family; and that in this light we received them, without a thought of questioning the right, the whole tenor of our conduct, will demonstrate, for above one hundred years.

That though we received these regulations of trade from our fellow-subjects of England and Great Britain, so advantageous to us as Colonists, as Englishmen and Britons, we did not thereby confer on them a power of legislating for us, far less than of destroying us and our children by divesting us of all rights and property.

That with reluctance we have been drawn from the prosecution of our internal affairs, to behold with amazement a plan, almost carried into execution, for enslaving the Colonies, founded, as we conceive, on a claim of Parliament to bind the Colonies in all cases whatsoever.

Your humble Petitioners have for several years, with deep and silent sorrow, lamented this unrestrained exercise of legislative power, still hoping from the interposition of the Sovereign, to avert that last and greatest of calamities, that of being reduced to an abject state of slavery, by having an arbitrary Government established in the Colonies, for the very attempting of which a Minister of your predecessor was impeached by a House of Commons,

With like sorrow do we find the Popish Religion established by-law, which by treaty was only to be tolerated.

That the most essential rights of the Colonists have been invaded, and their property given and granted to your Majesty by men not entitled to such a power.

That the murderer of the Colonists hath been encouraged by another Act, dissolving and annulling their Trials by Juries of the vicinage, and that Fleets and Armies have been sent to enforce those dreadful laws.

We therefore, in this desperate extremity, most humbly beg leave to approach the Throne, to declare to your Majesty that our fellow-subjects in Great Britain, and consequently their Representatives, the House of Commons, have not a right, as we trust we have shown, to legislate for the Colonies, and that your Petitioners find the Colonists are not, nor ought to be, bound by any other laws than such as they have themselves assented to, and are not disallowed by your Majesty.

Your Petitioners do therefore make this claim and demand from their Sovereign, as guarantee of their just rights, on the faith and confidence of which they have settled and continue to reside, in these distant parts of the Empire, that no laws shall be made and attempted to be forced upon them, injurious to their rights as Colonists, Englishmen, or Britons.

That your Petitioners fully sensible of the great advantages that have arisen from the regulations of trade in general, prior to the year 1760, as well to Great Britain and her Colonies, as to your Petitioners in particular, and being anxiously desirous of increasing the good effects of these laws, as well as to remove an obstacle which is new in our Government, and could not have existed once principles of our Constitution, as it hath arisen from colonization, we do declare, for ourselves and the good people of this Island, that we freely consent to the operation of all such Acts of the British Parliament, as are limited to the regulation of our external commerce only, and the sole object of which is the mutual advantage of Great Britain and her Colonies.

We, your Petitioners, do therefore beseech your Majesty that you will be pleased, as the common parent of your subjects, to become a mediator between your European and American subjects, and to consider the latter, however far removed from your royal presence, as equally entitled to your protection and the benefits of the English Constitution, the deprivation of which must dissolve that dependence on the parent state, which it is our glory to acknowledge, whilst enjoying those rights under her protection; but should this bond of union be ever destroyed, and the Colonists reduced to consider themselves as tributaries to Britain, they must cease to venerate her as an affectionate parent.

We beseech your Majesty to believe that it is our earnest prayer to Almighty Providence to preserve your Majesty in all happiness, prosperity, and honour, and that there never may be wanting one of your illustrious line to transmit the blessings of our excellent Constitution to the latest posterity, and to reign in the hearts of a loyal, grateful, and affectionate people. *

TO THE INHABITANTS OF NORTH AMERICA IN GENERAL, AND THOSE OF THE PROVINCE OF NEW-YORK, IN PARTICULAR.

FRIENDS AND FELLOW-SUBJECTS: At a time when the advocates for Ministerial measures are endeavouring by all the low artifices imaginable to promote their despotick views and interests; when the friends to freedom are calumniated and publicly abused by these mercenary wretches, it behoves the inhabitants of this Continent in general, and those of this Province in particular, to be on their guard against the poisonous and deadly productions of the men who are thus endeavouring to promote the wicked designs of the Ministry against us. It has been asserted by one of these writers, that "the Colonies are inclined to throw off their dependence upon Great Britain;" the assertion appears to me to be rather indefinite; if they mean that the Colonies are desirous to render themselves independent of the regal authority of Great Britain, I believe they will find but few who entertain such thoughts or designs. But the intentions of these men, my friends, are to stir up hatred and divisions among you; to set these Colonies at variance with each other, and by that means defeat the intent of the virtuous struggles which they are now making, in hopes that a change of affairs may conduce to their advantage. They are earnestly engaged to involve this once happy country, in distress and slavery, - among other things they endeavour to represent the proceedings of the Continental Congress in the most unfavourable light; and we are told by one of these sycophants, "that the Members of the Congress have either ignorantly misunderstood, carelessly neglected, or basely betrayed, the interest of all the Colonies." With respect to these charges against the Congress, I shall in the first place observe, that the Members of that Congress were chosen by you; and to suppose that you would act so unwisely as to delegate men for that great purpose who were not well acquainted with the subject in dispute; I say, to imagine this, would be such an insult to your understandings, and argue so little sense, that I am surprised to find it asserted, that the Members were ignorant of the grand dispute, or unacquainted with the means necessary for happily terminating it.

* The following calculation, taken from a list of the Poll Tax for the year 1767, may give the reader an idea of the importance of the Island of Jamaica to the Kingdom of Great Britain."

68,160 hogsheads, 729 tierces and barrels Sugar. 12,149 puncheons of Rum. 10,545 packages of Pimento. 1,947 packages of Cotton. 5,031 bags and casks of Ginger. 15,328 planks of Mahogany. 3,212 tons of Fustick and Logwood. 190,914 Negroes. 135,773 Cattle. 369 cattle, 235 Water, and 44 Wind, Mills. 647 Sugar Plantations.

To insinuate "that they have carelessly neglected the interest of all the Colonies," discovers not only a weakness of mind, but a depravity of heart. Why should they carelessly neglect your interest when it is blended with their own?

With respect to this charge, viz: that they have basely betrayed the interest of the Colonies, I shall only observe, that the supposition is evidently absurd, for the reasons above alleged. But I should be more particular in this part were it not for the regard I have to the merit of a person who has lately cleared up this matter in the most striking manner; he has given reasons sufficient to convince the reasonable part of the Americans that the Members of the Congress, so far from basely betraying the interest of their constituents, have adopted the wisest and best mode of proceeding. Nothing now remains to be done but to follow their directions, adhere firmly to their Association, and you will undoubtedly experience the happy consequences. It has been clearly proved that no better mode could have been fallen upon than that which the Congress have proposed and recommended. When, therefore, the advocates for slavery declaim against the proceedings of the Congress, they do it not from a consciousness of their being inefficacious, but solely with a view to lead you away from your duty at this time. You are in honour bound to abide by the determinations of the Congress, and I durst say, that the good sense for which the inhabitants of these Colonies are so remarkable, will teach them at this time to adopt and follow the same. Be not deceived, my friends, judge freely for yourselves, and remember that the greatest duty you can discharge to your country will be to follow the directions of that respectable body, which you chose to be the guardians of your liberty; let not artful and designing men lead you away from the paths of virtue; remember the eyes of all Europe are upon you, and if you hold out to the end you will experience deliverance from your present troubles. By conducting yourselves thus honourably, you will convince the Ministry and Parliament of Great Britain, that the wisest way for them to act will be to restore you to your former happy situation. But should you continue inflexible for a time, you may depend upon it, that the cries of the Nation at home will at last rouse them from their dream of arbitrary power.

New-York, December 28, 1774.

FAIRFIELD (CONNECTICUT) COMMITTEE.

At a legal Meeting of the Inhabitants of the Town of Fairfield, Connecticut, held by adjournment, on the 29th day of December, A. D. 1774:

EBENEZER SILLIMAN, Esquire, Moderator:

This meeting having duly considered the Agreement and Association entered into by the Continental Congress lately held at Philadelphia, do heartily approve thereof, and adopt the same; and take this opportunity to express their most grateful sense of the good services of the worthy Delegates from this Colony who attended said Congress; and pursuant to the eleventh Article of said Agreement and Association, make choice of the following gentlemen to be a Committee for the purposes therein mentioned, viz:

Gold S. Silliman, Jonathan Sturges, Job Bertram, Andrew Rowland, Samuel Squier, Jonathan Bulkley, Elijah Abel, Increase Bradley, Eliphalet Thorp, Aaron Jennings, Benjamin Lacey, Daniel Wilson, Azariah Odell, David Hubble, Zalmon Bradley, John Hubble, Thomas Cable, Joseph Hanford, Stephen Gorham, Thad. Burr, Jonathan Lewis, David Dimon John Wilson, Joseph Strong, Alvert Sherwood, Moses Kent, Samuel Wakeman, John Squier, Ichabod Wheeler, Ebenezer Bartram, Jonathan Dimon, Jabez Hill, George Burr, Hezekiah Hubble, Benjamin Wheeler, Joseph Hide, Jeremiah Sherwood, Daniel Andrews, Hezekiah Bradley, Joseph Bradley, Ephraim Lyon, John Alling.

Voted, That if any person or persons, shall directly or indirectly, with intent to dissuade, disunite, or otherwise prevent us from strictly complying with, and conforming to said Agreement and Association, publish, vend, or sell, or otherwise dispose of any books, pamphlets, * or publications in this Town, directly tending thereto, such person or persons shall be dealt with and exposed in the same way and manner as is prescribed in said eleventh Article, for such person or persons as violate said Agreement and Association.

Voted, That it is expedient a County Congress be held to advise and consult on the most effectual measures to carry the said Agreement and Association into execution.

Voted, That Colonel Gold Silleck Silliman, Jonathan Sturges, Andrew Rowland, Esquires, Mr. Job Bertram, and Thaddeus Burr, Esquire, be a Committee to attend the same, at such time and place as they shall appoint, agreeable to the other Towns in this County, who shall adopt said measure.

Voted, That said Colonel Gold S. Silliman, Jonathan Sturges, Andrew Rowland, Esquires, Mr. Job Bartram, and Thaddeus Burr, Esquire, be a Committee of Correspondence for this Town.

Ordered by this meeting, that a copy of the foregoing Votes be sent by the aforesaid Committee of Correspondence to one or more of the Printers, that they may be made publick.

NATHAN BULKLEY, Town Clerk.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM DEPUTY GOVERNOUR EDEN TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH, DATED ANNAPOLIS, MARYLAND; DECEMBER 30, 1774.

This Province has been tolerable quiet since I arrived; before that they had, in one or two instances been second, (I think) in violent measures, to Boston. The spirit of resistance against the Tea Act, or any mode of internal taxation, is as strong and universal here as ever. I firmly believe that they will undergo any hardships sooner than acknowledge a right in the British Parliament in that particular, and will persevere in their Non-Importation and Non-Exportation experiments in spite of every inconvenience that they must consequently be exposed to, and the total ruin of their trade.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM OYSTER BAY, NEW-YORK, TO MR. RIVINGTON.

You are desired to assure the publick that at a meeting for choosing a Committee for the Township of Oyster Bay, in Queen's County, on Long-Island, on Friday, the 30th day of December, 1774, about ninety of the Freeholders of said Township were assembled, in order to take into consideration the present unhappy disputes subsisting between our mother country and the Colonies,

This alludes to several Pamphlets and other publications in New-York, &c., tending to lessen the weight and authority of the Congress, and to disunite the Colonies, whose strength consists in their union, that they may be the more easily enslaved or destroyed. The inhabitants of Fairfield, therefore, show their abhorrence of these publications, and their opinion that the vending and distribution of them is licentiousness, an abuse of liberty, and injurious to the country.

when there appease such a number of friends to our happy regular established Government, under the Crown and Parliament of Great Britain, as to deem that meeting illegal, and that no business could with propriety be done; and the said meeting was adjourned till a future time, when it is hoped it will be so conducted as to convince the world his Majesty is not without friends who will support his Government in the Province of New-York, and particularly in that part thereof.

On the above occasion the Resolutions of the Congress were publicly read; after which Justice Hewlet exerted himself with that prudence and firmness becoming a Magistrate, by arguing the impropriety and illegality of such meetings, in so masterly a manner, as to have the necessary and desired effect of preventing any business being done till the legal day of calling a Town Meeting, which will be on the first Tuesday in April next.

Had all the Civil officers exerted themselves as this friend of liberty and good order has done, our unhappy disputes would doubtless have been in a fair way of terminating more to the advantage of this apparently distracted country.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO GOVERNOR TRUMBULL.

Windham, December 30, 1774.

HONoured SIR: It seems to be the universal opinion of all here, that a supply of Ammunition should be procured at the Colony's expense as soon as possible - the sooner the better, as it is apprehended that if the Admiral carries his present plan of orders into execution, of stationing a small Vessel in every Harbour, Creek, and Bay along shore, that it will by-and-bye be next to impossible to obtain such supply. I have mentioned to Colonel Parsons Mr. Shaw's being at Hartford, next Wednesday by noon, as possibly the Council may be glad to know from him in what manner, from where, &c., in his opinion, the supply may be best made.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL.

Governour Trumbull, Lebanon.

BOSTON TOWN MEETING.

At a Meeting of the Freeholders and other Inhabitants of the Town of Boston, at Faneuil Hall, on Friday, December 30, 1774,

Mr. SAMUEL ADAMS, in the Chair,

The Committee appointed to take under consideration a paper, signed "T. Gage, being an answer to a letter written to General Gage by the Honourable Peyton Randolph, Esquire, President of the late Continental Congress, reported as follows, viz:

"We would not, unless urged by the clearest necessity, have taken up the consideration of General Gage's letter to the Honourable Peyton Randolph, Esquire, late President of the Honourable Continental Congress, but we conceive that letter, though it appears to be addressed to a gentleman, in his private capacity, has a strong tendency to impress the whole Continent with sentiments very unfavourable to this afflicted Town. We shall not intentionally throw any disagreeable imputations upon the General, but shall endeavour only to defend ourselves against the injurious tendency of his letter.

"The General, contrary to the known sense of every man of common understanding, has been pleased to insinuate that the complaints of the Town of Boston were utterly groundless and unreasonable; and would have the Continent believe that not he, but the people of this Province, and especially the inhabitants of the Town of Boston, were the aggressors in all the difficulties which have arisen. We freely acknowledge that the arrival of a British Army, with a professed design of enforcing Acts of the British Parliament destructive of our liberties, gave a great and universal alarm, and it cannot appear strange that we should be considering of the measures necessary to preserve our just rights and privileges. We hoped, however, that peaceable and gentle methods would have effected our deliverance. We believed that his Excellency would have laid some proposals before the General Assembly, which he had summoned to meet at Salem; but after treating both the Council and House of Representatives in a manner which we shall not animadvert on, he was pleased to dissolve the Assembly. The people were then compelled to turn their thoughts and attention to other methods of preventing the impending destruction. And though thus distressed, his Excellency would gladly have prevented them from availing themselves of the council of each other in Town Meeting, and actually ordered the marching of a body of armed Soldiers to disperse the inhabitants of the Town of Salem, when peaceably assembled to consult upon the most important interests of themselves and their posterity. This was followed by the seizing of the Powder in their Magazine, at Cambridge, and the Cannon which had been sent to the first Regiment in Middlesex. The mounting a number of Field Pieces on an eminence in Boston Common; stationing Guards in various parts of the Town, and many other acts which could not leave any doubt in the minds of the people of the General's intention to employ military force against the Province, at length roused the people to think of defending themselves and their property by Arms, if nothing less could save them from violence and rapine. For the justification of the conduct of the people in that respect, we may safely appeal to the Continent, to the world, and to the supreme omniscient Governour of the Universe. All the transactions, from the first arrival of the Troops, will hereafter be critically and judiciously examined, and we trust the time will come when we shall have a fair and impartial hearing. We mean not now to give particular answers, except to such parts of the General's letter as seem to charge the Continental Congress with having misconceived the facts stated in their letter to him.

"First, his Excellency says, that from the letter, meaning the letter of the Honourable Continental Congress, 'people would be led to believe that works were raised against the Town of Boston; private property invaded; the Soldiers suffered to insult the inhabitants, and the communication between the Town and CoUntry shut up and molested,' How far his Excellency was governed by the consideration of what answer he should make when he gave this turn to the expressions of the Congress, need not be inquired into. To this charge his Excellency replies, 'there is not a single Gun pointed against the Town.' His Excellency did not advert to the number of Field Pieces which were, at the time that letter was written, and long before, pointed against the Town from the common, but if the assertion had been literally true, it would not in the least affect the point under consideration.

"Are not the works erected on the Neck, in reality, erected against the Town? Are they not designed to intimidate the inhabitants, and to lead them to think that they were altogether in the power of the Army? The Continental Congress plainly express the sense in which they mean to be understood by his Excellency: They say 'that the Fortifications erected within that Town,' (Boston) 'the frequent invasions of private property, and the repeated insults they (the inhabitants) receive from the Soldiery, have given them great reason to suspect a plan is formed very destructive to them, and tending to overthrow the liberties of America.' The General, therefore, has in no way answered the charge brought against him, but only, by varying the expression, attempted to elude it.

"The next assertion is, 'that no man's property has been seized or hurt, except the King's.' We need not enumerate all the instances of property seized; it is enough to say, that a number of Cannon, the property of a respectable Merchant of this Town, were seized and carried off by force.

"That Timber and Lumber has been violently taken from the owners; that rightful proprietors have been driven from their lands. - It is impossible for us to mention one-half of the instances in which property has been hurt; they are notorious to every inhabitant, and have been made known to the publick from time to time.

"His Excellency is pleased to say that 'no Troops have ever given less cause for complaint, and greater care was never taken to prevent it.' What care has been taken is not our part to determine; we are ready to admit the most candid opinion, but we beg leave to say, that the insults received from Officers and Soldiers have been, in many instances, such as were shocking to a spirited people, and of which humanity in some instances, decency in others, and in all, a generous disposition to avoid placing even those who have injured us in an odious light, prevent us from giving a particular account.

"The General declares that 'the communication between the Town and Country has been always free and 'unmolested, and is so still.' We shall only give the facts: Guards are fixed at every entrance into the Town; no person was allowed to cross the ferry to Charlestown after eight o'clock, in the evening, however urgent his business; passengers on the Neck stopped for hours by the Guard; their property injured or destroyed; one inhabitant stopped in his chaise, and his horse stabbed with a bayonet; others shamefully beaten, abused, and confined; and many other instances very alarming to our friends in the country, whose free ingress to the Town is essential to our subsistence.

"The General, perhaps, might not justify these enormities, but could he not have prevented them, by removing the cause of those frequent abuses? Be that as it may, could he, with justice, assert that 'the communication between the Town and Country has been always free and 'unmolested, and is so still?'

"We wish the General had given us some particular instances concerning 'the menaces of blood and slaughter,' which he intimates made it his duty to alarm and distress the people in the manner he has already done. We doubt not that we shall be able to answer his Excellency whenever he is pleased to descend to particulars; we can only say, at present, that we conceive his Excellency to have been very ill-advised in the measures he has pursued, and that we ardently wish for an opportunity to meet our accusers upon equal grounds."

The above Report having been duly considered, it was voted, nem. con., that the same be accepted, and that the Moderator of this meeting be desired to transmit a copy of the Report to the Honourable Peyton Randolph, Esquire, by the first Opportunity.

The following Vote, expressive of the gratitude of the Town, for the benevolent assistance received from the other Colonies, under our present calamities, and the kind recommendation of the late respectable Continental Congress, for future support, passed, nem. con.:

Whereas the Town of Boston has unfortunately become the most striking monument of Ministerial tyranny and barbarity, as is particularly exhibited in the sudden shutting up this Port, thereby cruelly depriving the inhabitants of this Metropolis of the means they have hitherto used to support their families; and whereas our brethren in the oilier Colonies, well knowing that we are suffering in the common cause of America, and of mankind, have, from a general, generous, and brotherly disposition, contributed largely towards our support in this time of our distress, without which many worthy and virtuous citizens must have been in imminent danger of perishing with cold and hunger; and whereas the Honourable Members of the Continental Congress have kindly recommended us to our sister Colonies as worthy of further support from them, while the iron hand of unremitted oppression lies heavy upon us; therefore,

Voted, That this Town, truly sensible of the generous assistance they have received from their sympathizing brethren, return them their warmest and most sincere thanks for the same, and pray that God, whose beneficence they so gloriously imitate, may bestow upon them the blessing he has promised to all those who feed the hungry and clothe the naked; and the thanks of this Town are accordingly hereby given to our benefactors aforementioned, and to the honourable the Members of the Congress for their benevolence towards us expressed as aforesaid; which support, if continued, cannot fail of animating us to remain steadfast in the defence of the rights of America.

The Town then made choice of the following gentlemen for their Delegates at the Provincial Congress to be held at the Town of Cambridge, on or before the first of February next, viz: The Honourable Thomas Cushing, Esq., Mr. Samuel Adams, the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., Doctor Joseph Warren, Doctor Benjamin Church, Mr. Oliver Wendell, Mr. John Pitts.

The meeting was then adjourned to the first Wednesday at eleven o'clock.

Attest: WILLIAM COOPER, Town Clerk.

THOMAS CUSHING TO J. QUINCY, JUN., LONDON.

Boston, December 30, 1774.

DEAR SIR: While at Philadelphia received your favours of the 20th and 25th of August last, and agreeably to your request, I spoke to divers gentlemen to favour you with letters and with intelligence; I should have written you from Philadelphia, but I was so engaged that I had not a moment's time; and as Mr. John Adams and Mr. Reed told me they should write you by the same conveyance that I wrote Doctor Franklin, I knew you would by them be favoured with the proceedings of the Congress and the necessary intelligence, and therefore that my writing would at that time be needless. Since I have returned home I have had nothing of importance to communicate.

The proceedings of the Continental Congress are universally approved, and will be sacredly adhered to. The inhabitants of Canada are much dissatisfied with the late Acts relative to that Province; and instead of aiding Administration in carrying the late Acts relative to this Province into execution, they will unite with the Continent in measures to obtain their repeal.

When you left the Province it was in a convulsed state; they had a complication of difficulties and distresses to encounter. Under these circumstances, it was necessary to have a Provincial Congress, to consult upon measures to save themselves from impending rain, and to preserve their inestimable liberty. They met in October last. If, in any of their proceedings, they have gone beyond the true line marked out by the Constitution, certainly people of candour and consideration will excuse it, and make all due allowance for a people in such an alarming, perplexed, and critical situation, and under the dreadful apprehension of having their dearest rights and liberties torn from them by the hand of violence. You are fully acquainted with our distressed situation; you doubtless have been furnished with the proceedings of the Provincial Congress, in October last; and as as you are capable, so, I doubt not, you will be disposed to make the most favourable representation of our conduct during this time of perplexity.

The Provincial Congress adjourned from October 29th to November 23d, when they met at Cambridge, and dissolved on the 10th instant. Their proceedings, or most of them, you have in the publick papers.

The late order of the King in Council, prohibiting the exportation of Powder, or any sort of Arms or Ammunition, from Great Britain, unless by special license, has alarmed the people in America; it forebodes the most vigorous exertions of martial force. They are therefore adopting the most effectual methods to defend themselves against any hostile invasion of the enemies to America. The people of Rhode-Island have used the precaution to remove the Powder, Cannon, and other Military Stores from the Fort at Newport, into the country. The people at Portsmouth, in New-Hampshire, have done the like by their Cannon and other Military Stores, at the Fort at New-Castle, at the entrance of their Harbour.

I remain, with strict truth, your friend and humble servant,
THOMAS CUSHING.

P. S. Pray let me hear from you how it is likely to fare with my dear country.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER RECEIVED IN NEW-YORK, FROM A MERCANTILE HOUSE IN YORKSHIRE, DATED DECEMBER 31, 1774.

We are much obliged to you for the Resolves of the Congress. Unless the Americans are absolutely determined to throw off all dependence on Great Britain, (which to us seems the case,) they cannot seriously expect the one third of what they require. They publish it as a deliberatory Bill of Rights, but addressed so generally, that Parliament cannot with propriety notice it; a vague pamphlet would ill become the serious attention of the great National Council. If they expect any notice to be paid to it, they should have deputed a certain number from the Congress to have attended the House of Commons with their petitions and requisitions. The thinking part of America can't surely be weak enough to suppose that, on the strength of their Address to the People of Great Britain, we must immediately erect the standard of rebellion too, and force Parliament to recede from every thing before they thought it requisite.

The Merchants in London have advertised a meeting on the 4th of January; but, as we are told, they are quite non-plussed how to act; they neither know what to petition for, nor what the Americans want. If their complaints be for the loss of trade, were we to judge of the briskness of it in other parts of England, by what we see and know of it from Leeds to Manechester, inclusive, they could not advance a greater falsity, than to say there is any want. At this place we can truly say there never was known a better at the season; we believe never so good, the Spring of the year 1771 only excepted. Both our and the American politicians err in the idea that our manufacturers cannot find a vent but on the other side the Atlantic. 'Tis true their sudden and uncertain demands now and then get our Goods above their intrinsick value; of course we lose our European trade; but when they get again into their regular channel, the European demands are renewed.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM THE DEPUTY GOVERNOUR OF PENNSYLVANIA TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUH, DATED PHILADELPHIA, DECEMBER 31, 1774.

I am to inform your Lordship, that since my last the Assembly of this Province have met agreeable to their adjournment, and have, to my great surprise, unanimously approved the transactions of the late Congress, and appointed Deputies to attend another, proposed to be held at this City, in May next, as you will perceive by the printed votes, which I enclose for your Lordship's fuller information.

There seems to be too general a disposition every where to adhere strictly to the Resolutions of the Congress; and the Committees for this City and the adjacent Districts have already taken upon them to regulate the disposition of all British Goods imported since the first of December. They are put up at publick auction in lots, and I am informed it is so managed that they are struck off to the owners at an advance of one per cent. above their first costs and charges, which, according to the recommendation of the Congress, is to be applied to the relief of the poor of Boston.

Annapolis, December 31, 1774.

In compliance with the recommendation of the Deputies of the several Counties of this Province, at their late Convention, to such of the gentlemen, freeholders, and other freemen of this Province, as are from sixteen to fifty years of age, to form themselves into Companies, and to choose their officers, on Saturday, the 17th instant, a number of the citizens met, formed themselves into two Companies, and chose their officers agreeable to the recommendation. The Companies are composed of all ranks of men in this City; gentlemen of the first fortunes are common soldiers. This example, it is not doubted, will be followed by every Town and County in this Province. It is said that there are a sufficient number of citizens to form another Company, which it is hoped will be immediately done.

And this day the inhabitants of Elk Ridge Hundred, in Anne Arundel County, met, formed themselves into a Company, and chose their proper officers, being of opinion that a well-regulated Militia will contribute to the preservation of American Liberty.

CHARLES COUNTY (MARYLAND) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Inhabitants of Charles County, at Port Tobacco Town, on the 2d day of January, Anno Domini 1775, in consequence of notice by the Committee,

Captain GEORGE DENT, Chairman,
JOHN GWIN, Clerk.

The Proceedings of the last Provincial Convention, held at the City of Annapolis, were read, considered, and unanimously approved.

Resolved unanimously, That Captain George Dent, Samuel Hanson, William Smalhwood, Josias Hawkins, Francis Ware, Joseph H. Harrison, Thomas Stone, Daniel Jenifer, Robert T. Hooe, John Dent, Samuel

Love, Thomas Hanson Marshall, and Phillp Richard Fendall, be, and are by this meeting appointed Deputies to represent this County in the next Provincial Convention to be held at the City of Annapolis, and that any three or more of them have power and authority to act for and bind this County.

Resolved, That a general subscription, to be managed and conducted by gentlemen in each Hundred of this County, will be the most agreeable and effectual method to collect what remains to be made up of the sum of money appointed to be raised in this County by the last Provincial Convention.

Resolved, therefore, That the following gentlemen do forthwith open subscriptions in the respective Hundreds for which they are appointed, to be offered to every free person in each Hundred, and subscriptions taken, viz:

PICCAWAXEN PARISH. - Mr. Samuel Love in the Lower Hundred, and Captain George Dent in the Upper Hundred.

PORT TOBACCO PARISH. - Mr. Josias Hawkins and Captain Francis Ware in the East Hundred, Mr. Samuel Hanson, Jun., in the Upper Hundred, Mr. Daniel Jenifer in Cedar-point Hundred, and Mr. Robert T. Hooe, in Port Tobacco Town.

DURHAM PARISH. - Captain Joseph H. Harrison in the Lower Hundred, and Mr. William Smallwood in the Upper Hundred.

KING GEORGE PARISH. - Captain John Dent for the part within this County.

TRINITY PARISH. - Mr. Belain Posey in the West Hundred, Doctor John Parnham in the East Hundred, Mr. Alexander M'Pherson in Bryantown Hundred, and Mr. Robert Young, in Benedict Hundred.

Resolved, That it is the duty of the said gentlemen to note, and return to the Committee of this County, a list of such persons (if any there be) who are able, and on application refuse to subscribe, that their names and refusal may be recorded in perpetual memory of their principles:

Resolved, That the said gentlemen do, as soon as possible, collect the subscriptions to them respectively made, and pay the same to Philip Richard Fendall, Esquire, Treasurer, to be applied by the Committee of this County to the purposes mentioned in the tenth Resolve of the last Provincial Convention.

Resolved, That the gentlemen appointed to take Subscriptions for the purpose aforesaid, do collect the subscriptions already made to the Town of Boston, and also do obtain such additional subscriptions for the relief of the brave sufferers in that distressed Town, as can be got, and that the whole may be made in readiness to be sent as soon as possible.

It is recommended by this meeting that the inhabitants of this County, in forming themselves into Companies, do confine themselves to their respective Hundreds as much as can with convenience be done.

The following gentlemen, to wit: Philip Richard Fendall, George Dent, Jun., Daniel Jenifer Adams, William Harrison, John Skelton, John Lancaster, James Neale, Walter Rye, Thomas Sims, Joshua Sannders, Henry Boarman, John Craig, Robert Gill, Jun., John Moran, and George Tubman, are, by this meeting, added to the Committee of Observation for this County.

Ordered, That these proceedings be published in the Maryland Gazette.
JOHN GWIN, Clerk.

MEETING OF WEST INDIA MERCHANTS, LONDON.

London Tavern, Bishopsgate Street, January 3, 1775.

At a General Meeting of the West India Merchants, the Chairman produced a Letter which he received, signed by several gentlemen of the West India Islands, of which the following is a copy:

London, January 1, 1775

SIR: The very alarming situation in which the West India Islands are placed by the late American proceedings, induces us to apply to you, as Chairman of the Society of West India Merchants, to request that they will not come to any resolution, as a separate body, at their next meeting, but that they will join with us in calling a General Meeting of the whole body of Planters, and West India Merchants, to deliberate on the steps necessary to be taken by us jointly on the present important crisis.

John Fennant,	B. Edwards,	Flo. Vassell,
Charles Spooner,	Montague James,	John Ellis,
Thomas Storer,	Samuel Torr. James,	J. Kennion,
Pecke Fuller,	Nathaniel Phillips,	Neil Malcolm,
Samuel Vaughan,	John Davis,	Philip Gibbs,
George Chandler,	Charles Fuller,	Thomas Walker,
Michael McNemara,	Rose Fuller,	William Gunthorpe.
John Trent,

To Beeston Long, Esquire, Chairman of the Society of West India Merchants, at the London Tavern.

In consequence of which it was Resolved, That this Society do very cheerfully concur in opinion with the gentlemen Planters, that we ought not to come to any resolution, as a separate body, at this meeting; and do also readily join in calling a General Meeting of the whole body of Planters and West India Merchants.

And having been informed that the 15th of the present month is a day recommended by the subscribers to the above letter as proper for such meeting, it is further Resolved, That immediate notice be given in the publick papers, that such General Meeting be called and held on the day aforesaid, at the hour of twelve, at the London Tavern, in Bishopsgate Street, then and there to deliberate on the measures necessary to be taken for the preservation of the general interest of the West India Islands in the present important crisis.

JAMES ALLEN, Secretary.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LONDON, TO A MERCHANT IN NEW-YORK, DATED JANUARY 3, 1775.

We shall not give you or any other person with whom we have formerly had connection in New-York, or other parts of North America, cause to censure us, by sending over books, or other things, until you have again a general and free authority to import Goods as heretofore.

We hope your just ground of complaint will speedily be removed. Lord North, who is at the head of Administration, is in great tribulation, owing, in a great measure, to the well-timed, sensible, and spirited pamphlet of extracts from the votes and proceedings of the American Continental Congress. These proceedings, we hope, will have the desired effect; they are reprinted in this place, and are circulating in every part of the Kingdom. The two Houses of Parliament have adjourned for the holidays, and will not assemble again till the 21st instant. The principal business the House of Commons will proceed upon will be the North American Grievances; and by the next Packet you will certainly know whether the Acts passed last sessions, and others made some years back, with all or a part of them, be repealed. The Merchants, particularly trading to North America, meet together this week, with a view to petition his Majesty that he would recommend it to his Ministers to be early on the affairs of America, and grant the prayer of the petition, by rescinding the Acts. The Petition from the General Congress to the King was presented to him by Lord Dartmouth, last week; his Majesty has ordered it to be laid before his Parliament.

MIDDLESEX COUNTY (NEW-JERSEY) RESOLUTIONS.

According to a notice of the 20th of December, sundry of the Freeholders of Middlesex County assembled at the Court House in New-Brunswick, on the 3d day of January, 1775, but finding their number insufficient to pursue the business recommended by the Continental Congress:

It was agreed that every City, Township, and District should have a meeting by themselves, and choose Committees of Observation and Inspection; and when chosen, meet at New-Brunswick, the 16th day of this instant, and, by majority of votes, choose a Committee of Correspondence for the County, to have existence for a limited time.

Accordingly the several Districts in the County have had meetings; and have chosen Committees of Observation, as follows, to wit:

For WOODBIDGE. - Ebenezer Foster, Henry Freeman, Nathaniel Heard, Reuben Potter, William Smith, Jeremiah Manning, Matthias Baker, Charles Jackson, Samuel Force, John Pain, James Manning, John Heard, Daniel

Moores, John Ross, Ellis Barren, William Cutter, Reuben Evans, James Randolph, Timothy Bloomfield, John Noe, and John Conway.

For PISCATAWAY. - John Gilman, Henry Sutton, John Langstaff, William Manning, Benjamin Manning, Jacob Martin, Charles Suydam, Jeremiah Field, Daniel Bray, Jacob Fitsworth, Micajah Dunn, Melancthon Freeman, and John Dunn.

For SOUTH AMBOY. - Stephen Pangburn, John Layd, Luke Schenck, Matthew Rice, William Vance, and Joseph Potter.

For NEW-BRUNSWICK. - Azariah Dunham, J. Schureman, John Dennis, John Lyle, Jun., Abraham Schuyler, George Hame, Jacobus Van Hays, John Slight, John Voorhees, Barent Stryker, William Williamson, Peter Farmer, Ferdinand Schureman, Abraham Bucklew, and Jonathan Roeff.

For SOUTH BRUNSWICK. - Davod Williamson, William Sender, Isaac Van Dyck, John Wetherill, Jun., Abraham Terheune, Jacob Van Dyck, and Charles Barclay.

For WINDSOR. James Hebron, Samuel Minor, Jonathan Combs, Andrew Davison, Isaac Rogers, Ezekiel Smith, and Jonathan Baldwin.

By a Meeting of the General Committee of Observation and Inspection for the County of Middlesex, in the Province of New-Jersey, chosen in pursuance of the eleventh Article of the Association of the late continental Congress, and assembled at New-Brunswick, in the said County, on Monday, the 16th day of January, 1775:

AZARIAH DUNHAM, Esquire, in the Chair.

1. Resolved, That this Committee have been duly empowered and authorized by the Freeholders and Freemen of the County of Middlesex, to meet this day at New-Brunswick, and, in their names, to transact all such publick business as the Committee, or a majority of them, think of importance to the general interest of the County.

2. Resolved, That we heartily and entirely approve of the Proceedings of the late Continental Congress, as published in their Journal, entitled "Journal of the Proceedings of the Congress, held at Philadelphia, September fifth, "1774;" and that we esteem ourselves bound by the ties of virtue, honour, and the love of our country, to contribute all in our power towards carrying into practice the measures which they have recommended.

3. Resolved, That we look upon ourselves as under particular obligations of gratitude to the worthy and publick spirited gentlemen who composed the late Congress, for the knowledge with which they have pointed out and defined our rights: the firmness with which they have asserted them, and the wisdom with which they have devised the most likely and peaceable means of recovering, establishing, and perpetuating them.

4. Resolved, That James Neilson, William Oak, Azariah Dunham, John Wetherill; Jonathan Combs, Stephen Pangburn, and Ebenezer Foster, Esquires, Messrs. Wm. Smith, Matthias Baker, Jacob Fitsworth, John Dunn, David Williamson, Jonathan Baldwin, and Jacob Schenck, be and they are by this Committee appointed a Committee of Correspondence for the County of Middlesex, and that they do, as soon as possible, by their humble petition, address the General Assembly now sitting at Perth Amboy, to nominate Deputies from this Province to the General Congress, to be held at Philadelphia in May next; and provided the Assembly do not undertake such nomination, that they then meet and join with the other Committees of Correspondence appointed by the several Counties in the Province, at a proper time and place, and elect Deputies for the service aforesaid; and that this Committee be and continue the Committee of Correspondence for the County of Middlesex, till the rising of the next General Congress, and no longer.

5. Resolved, That we think it our duty publickly to declare our contempt and detestation of those insidious scribblers, who, with the vilest views, enlist themselves in the cause of the Ministry, and by the vilest means endeavour to effect a disunion among the good - people of the Colonies, that they may become a prey to the oppression against which they are so laudably and unanimously struggling; who skulk behind prostituted printing presses, and labour to calculate their pestilent compositions through the land, under the show of friendship and a regard to the publick good; who, with the most unexampled effrontery against the sense of every man of the least information and impartiality, will persist in retailing the rotten, exploded, and ten thousand times confuted doctrines of a passive acquiescence in the measures of Government, however dis-tempered and tyrannical.

6. Resolved, That we will preserve on this trying occasion a resolute spirit, directed by loyalty to our King, prudence, temper, and dispassion, testifying that, as our cause is clearly just, we mean to support it by just exertions, and not by misrule and outrage.

Signed by order and on behalf of the meeting, by JOHN DENNIS, Clerk.

THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH TO THE GOVERNOURS OF THE SEVERAL COLONIES.

Whitehall, January 4, 1775.

SIR: Certain persons styling themselves Delegates of several of his Majesty's Colonies in America, having presumed, without his Majesty's authority or consent, to assemble together at Philadelphia, in the months of September and October; and having thought fit, among other unwarrantable proceedings, to resolve that it will be necessary that another Congress should be held at the same place, on the tenth of May next, unless redress for certain pretended grievances be obtained before that time, and to recommend that all the Colonies in North America should choose Deputies to attend such Congress, I am commanded by the King to signify to you his Majesty's pleasure, that you do use your utmost endeavours to prevent any such appointment of Deputies within the Province under your government, and that you do exhort all persons to desist from such an unjustifiable proceeding, which cannot but be highly displeasing to the King. I am, sir, your most humble servant,
DARTMOUTH.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LONDON, TO A GENTLEMAN
IN NEW-YORK, DATED JANUARY 4, 1775.

The reasons why I hope the unhappy differences between Great Britain and the Colonies will soon subside, are these following, viz: that the deliberations of that celebrated body of gentlemen who constituted the General Congress, are held in the highest esteem by every sensible man in this Metropolis; and our great patriot, Lord Chatham, has declared that he wants words to express the great satisfaction he received in reading them, and that he does not think there are fifty-two men besides in the universe, that could have done what those gentlemen did, and that they must have been divinely inspired in their glorious work.

The Petition of the Congress to the King was received graciously, but referred to the deliberations of Parliament, which meet the 19th instant. The Ministry keep their intentions close, but it is said are inclined to relax a little and to accommodate matters.

The Merchants and Traders to North America met this day, and unanimously chose a Committee of twenty-three persons to frame a petition to the House of Commons, which avoiding political discussions, is to be confined to a representation of commercial grievances. the people here are a good deal divided in opinion on this important question; many of them do not understand it, and others, pretending the necessity of a sovereign power being lodged somewhere in every state, indulge themselves in declaiming with all the virulence of party against America, which wants not, however, able supporters. The Press teems with publications on both sides, though the advocates for American Liberty have, in my opinion, greatly and manifestly the advantage. The manufacturing Counties begin already to discover symptoms of distress.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LONDON, TO A GENTLEMAN
IN VIRGINIA, DATED JANUARY 4, 1775.

I now apprise you that the Merchants and Manufacturers in Glasgow and its neighbourhood are driven to the greatest distress, from the amazing quantity of Goods already manufactured for the Virginia and other American markets, which now lay a dead weight on hand, as they dare not export them.

In Manchester, it is said, they are fully employed by persons who intend shipping them to Ireland, and thence smuggle them into the Continent. I give you this intelligence, that you may apprise all America of this cursed machination; for as sure as it is known to this tyrannical Administration, that British Goods are any how admitted, they will never repeal the cursed Acts; whereas, an inflexible adherence to the Resolutions of the Congress, will eventually work their we and our relief.

A very large body of Merchants had a meeting this day to consider what is best to be done on the present alarming crisis. That Ministerial puppet, Anthony Bacon, advised them against petitioning till after the Parliament met, and strove all he could to divide the meeting, but he was opposed and silenced. The result is, that a Committee is appointed to draw up a petition, setting forth the inevitable destruction of the petitioners, and of this Nation in general, if some measures are not speedily adopted to regain the Commerce of the Colonies, which is in a great degree lost, and will soon be totally so to this Kingdom.

I am just now credibly informed, that above fifty of the principal West India Planters in this City, had a meeting this day, to prepare a state of their impending ruin, to be laid before all Planters, Money-lenders, and Merchants, interested in the welfare of the Islands, which state is afterwards to be formed into a remonstrance to his Majesty. They now plainly see that the Resolutions of the Congress will be maintained in every particular, and therefore they mean to acquaint his Majesty that the West India trade will soon be lost to Britain, and every Planter, Money-lender, and Merchant, concerned in the Islands, will meet inevitable bankruptcy, unless the Acts complained of are repealed.

I tell you that if America supports her patriotism on the ground established by the Congress, she will soon remove this world-wasting Ministry, and forever establish liberty in its full perfection throughout North America.

King's Arms Tavern, Cornhill, January 4, 1775.

At a Meeting of the Merchants and others, concerned in the American Commerce, held here this day,

THOMAS LANE, Esquire, was called to the Chair.

It was unanimously Resolved, that it is the opinion of this meeting, that the alarming state of the Trade to Norih America makes it expedient to petition Parliament for redress.

It was also Resolved, That a Committee be appointed to prepare a Petition to the House of Commons, and lay the same before a general meeting, to be held at this place this day se'nnight.

It was also Resolved, That the Committee consist of the following gentlemen:

For NEW ENGLAND. - Mr. Lane, Mr. Champion, and Mr. Bromfield.

For NEW-YORK. - Mr. Pigou, Mr. Blackburn, and Mr. Sergeant.

For PENNSYLVANIA. - Mr. Barclay, Mr. Mildred, and Mr. Neate.

For MARYLAND. - Mr. Hanbury, Mr. Molleson, and Mr. Campbell.

For VIRGINIA. - Mr. Norton, Mr. Gist, and Mr. Athawe.

For NORTH CAROLINA. - Mr. Bridgen, Mr. Clark, and Mr. Wooldridge.

For SOUTH CAROLINA. - Mr. Greenwood, Mr. Nutt, and Mr. Rolleston.

To the above gentlemen were added Mr. Lee and Mr. Baker.

It was also Resolved, That the Committee be desired to entitle the Petition - "A Petition of the Merchants, Traders, and others, concerned in the North American Commerce."

It was also Resolved, That the Minutes of this meeting be inserted in the publick morning and evening Papers, signed by the Chairman.

It was also Resolved, That this meeting be adjourned to Wednesday next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, at this house, then to receive the Report of the Committee.

THOMAS LANE, Chairman.

A Speech intended to have been spoken at the Meeting of the NORTH AMERICAN Merchants, at the King's Arms Tavern, JANUARY 4, 1775.

The great and important business you are here convened upon, cannot, I presume, be conducted well in so large a body as I see here met at present; therefore, I suppose you will appoint a Committee; and lest I should not be present when you have determined on those who are to Compose it, I beg leave to recommend to those gentlemen all that coolness and deliberation which the importance of the object demands, and to bear always in mind that every resolution which irritates, disserves any cause, as violence destroys it; witness the late violent measures at Boston, respecting the Tea. The whole world condemned the outrage, in consequence of which Parliament passed an Act to block up the Port of Boston; and lest that should not be sufficient to inflame the neighbouring Colonies, the same power takes away the Charter, mutilates the whole form of Government of Massachusetts Bay, and, to complete all, presents our new Canadian subjects, purely to oblige them, with a code of Laws as near to those of Francc as could possibly be framed.

You see, then, gentlemen, how violence produces violence; notwithstanding which, it is hardly to be believed that three or four hundred people should consent to such measures; but it so happened. Now, Gentlemen, I will speak a few words on the subject of your meeting.

If you had petitioned Parliament last Spring against those ruinous Acts which then passed, I should now have been against any petition; nor indeed is it clear to me that it is at this time expedient; but as so many respectable gentlemen think it ought to be done, I entirely acquiesce, in expectation that a new Parliament, which I am told is composed of wise men, honest men, and of men who are open to conviction, which I think there is not a gentleman present will or can say of the last. I say, gentlemen, if you had then petitioned against those ruinous Acts, you ought now to leave the authors of them to get out of the pit they had dug for themselves, as well as they could; but as, by your silence, if you did not aid them, you did not warn them of the danger, you ought now, as good Christians, to lend Administration your hand to get out of that dismal hole into which the rashness of the last Parliament has precipitated it. On this principle I am for an humble petition, as an excuse for their undoing that which no wise Administration would have ventured to propose, much less to have carried it to so ruinous a length. I say, gentlemen, as an excuse; for if I am informed right, that is all Administration wants. But I beg, gentlemen, that neither in your petition nor advice, if asked by men of power, that you require less than a repeal of all the Acts passed last year respecting America, as well as the remains of that impolitick one passed in 1767, which laid a duty of three pence per pound on Tea. This being done, I will venture to engage, and so will every one present who is fully acquainted with the disposition of the Colonists, that peace and good order will soon be re-established, and that love and brotherly affection restored, which subsisted at the conclusion of the late war between the mother country and the Colonies, besides our having any reasonable pecuniary assistance their power, which this Kingdom shall require or stand in need of from them.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LONDON, DATED JANUARY 6, 1775.

A circumstantial account of the proceedings of the American Merchants assembled on Wednesday, at the King's Arms Tavern: Thomas Lane, Esq., being placed in the Chair, Mr. Barclay first opened the debate. He went fully into the nature of the meeting, which was to consider of some proper methods for stemming those evils that threatened no less than the destruction of the whole Empire, by the present unhappy disputes between this country and North America. As this was a subject of the greatest magnitude and importance to the trade of this country, he hoped it would be treated with great temper and circumspection, and that consequently it should be only taken up merely on a commercial ground, leaving the political to those who should best know how to discuss it. He then produced the two following written propositions, which were severally read and seconded: "That it is the opinion of this meeting, that the alarming state of the trade to North America makes it expedient to petition Parliament for redress. That a Committee be appointed to prepare a Petition to the House of Commons, and lay the same before a general meeting to be held at this place this day se'nnight."

Mr. Bacon, Member for Aylesbury, rose after Mr. Barclay, and after joining with him in thinking the present question of the greatest importance to this country, yet thought the mode of petitioning rather premature. There was, he said, a Petition from America already presented to the King, and the King had given his answer it should be laid before the Parliament. Now, says he, let us wait till we hear how this Petition is received, before we go upon one, the prayer of which might be different from the other.

Mr. Barclay answered him, by saying that the least protraction might be dangerous; and that if they waited for the fate of one Petition, the Parliament, by that time, might take some measures which might defeat, in a great measure, the purpose of petitioning at all; that besides, so large a body as the North American Merchants of London, should not sit idle spectators in so great a struggle as the present; that their not exerting themselves before, was made a handle of last session by the Minister; and that their present union and assistance must necessarily strengthen the grounds of an amicable accommodation.

Mr. Samuel Vaughan acquainted the assembly, that having had the honour of attending a meeting of the West India Merchants and Planters, on the night before, at London Tavern, upon the same subject as the present, he would declare to them their Resolutions. He then read a letter from the Merchants, Traders, &c., in the West India business, residing at Bristol, requesting to join themselves to the London meeting of Merchants, &c., and that, upon this letter being read at the last night's meeting, they had resolved to accept of the association, and likewise resolved to have a general meeting at the London Tavern, on the 18th instant, for that purpose.

Mr. Hayley read a letter from the Council of Commerce at Liverpool, requesting to know what steps the London American Merchants intended to take. He likewise said he had letters from Manchester, Leeds, and other places, to the same purport. These letters urged for the immediate necessity of coming to some determination. Mr. Barclay corroborated this by leading a letter from Leeds, giving a most pitiable account of the miseries and distresses of the Manufacturers in that Town, on account of the Non-Importation Article.

After several other gentlemen had spoken successively to the business of the meeting, in which they all essentially agreed, (though two warned them of petitioning in favour of those who had resisted the authority of Parliament,) the motions were severally put by the Chairman. and carried unanimously. The Committee were then appointed to consist of twenty-three, and the names given in accordingly, at the proportion of three to a Province, and two over, nine of whom were to constitute a Committee. A short debate then ensued, on including the Tradesmen and others concerned in American Commerce, in the prayer of the Petition, which was finally agreed to. It was unanimously agreed that these Resolutions should be inserted in all the Newspapers.

The above meeting consisted of between three and four hundred of the most respectable Merchants and Traders concerned in the American business, and was conducted throughout with much spirit, good sense, and moderation.

It is supposed the Petition of the American Merchants will be followed by others from Bristol, Liverpool, Manchester, Leeds, Birmingham, and by the other manufacturing Towns in England.

TO THE PRINTER OF THE LONDON EVENING POST.

Leeds, January 9, 1775.

Observing that in the narrative printed in your Paper dated the 5th instant, of the proceedings of the American Merchants, assembled at the King's Arms Tavern, it is said that Mr. Barclay read a letter from Leeds, giving a most pitiful account of the miseries and distresses of the Manufacturer in that "Town, on account of the Non-Importation Article;" we, whose names are hereunto subscribed, inhabitants of the Town of Leeds, being convinced that no publick letter of such import has been sent from hence, and happy in knowing that such account is a misrepresentation of the situation of the Manufacturers of this place, are unwilling that the opinion or allegation communicated by any private person to his correspondent, should be imposed upon the publick as the general sense of the Town; and call upon you to disclose what authority you had for saying that Mr. Barclay did read such a letter; or that if you had such authority, then that Mr. Barclay would set forth so much of the contents of his letter as relates to this affair, with the name of the person who subscribed it, and desire that this may be printed in your Newspaper.

Cheapside, (London,) January 16, 1775.

The Printer of the London Evening Post is desired to insert the following, being that part of a letter from Leeds which was read, on the fourth instant, at the meeting of the North American Merchants, at the King's Arms Tavern, viz:

"Leeds, December 28, 1774.

"The unhappy differences betwixt Great Britain and America throws the Merchants in this country into great inconveniences; and the Manufacturers into great distress: there are now a great many Cloth Dressers in this Town out of employ, and a much greater number of Cloth Makers, such as Carders, Spinners and Weavers, in the country adjacent. The poor's rate, at Dewsbury is already got up to eight Shillings in the Pound; and at Batley, Heckmondwick, and the other Towns thereabouts, the poor's rate are nearly as much; and it is my firm belief that if the Trade to America is shut up until this time twelve months, all the rents of the lands and houses in the above Townships will not be sufficient to support the poor alone. I wish our Rulers, who are at the head of affairs, could spare a day to visit a few of the poor cottagers, and see for themselves the manner in which they live, their poor diet, their wan looks, their ragged clothing, their starved children, it might be a better guide for them, in the ordering of affairs, than their always being in London, and seeing nothing but affluence and plenty; but as this, I fear, is not likely to be the case, and as this country now feels the bad effects of the stop to America, if any thing can be done to obtain redress, it is a pity but it was done. If the Merchants of London petition Parliament for a repeal of those Acts that are the cause of the difference, the Merchants and Manufacturers of this country will be glad to join in a petition to the like import, provided the Merchants in London should think it necessary; for the people at this distance cannot so well judge what is expedient as you that are upon the spot. I therefore could wish we had the direction of the Merchants, in London, what to do; for, if there is the least prospect of doing good, our endeavours should not be wanting."

I have wrote to the author of the above, desiring that he will avow the contents to the Mayor and the rest of the gentlemen who signed the letter from Leeds, dated the 9th of January, 1775.

DAVID BARCLAY.

Leeds, January 21, 1775.

The Mayor, and other gentlemen of this Town, having thought proper to call upon the author of a private letter, which was read, on the 4th instant, at the meeting of the American Merchants, and others, at the King's Arms Tavern, in London, please to inform them that I wrote the letter, and that the contents thereof related only to such Merchants in Leeds as trade to North America, and to the Manufacturers of Goods for that trade, who reside in this Town and parts adjacent; and I thought it was explicit enough for my correspondent, if not for the publick, for whom it was not intended.

I am conscious, to myself, that I never designed to disguise the truth; and, until my opponents do bring the proofs of some new sources of trade being opened to this country, I must, and do insist, that whatever number of hands were usually employed for the North American Trade, these hands, be they more or less, remain at this moment, by the stagnation of the North American Trade, wholly unemployed, or only sharing in the labour and wages of those who were usually employed for the European Trade; and whatever was the number of labourers employed for the American Trade over and above the number necessary for the European Trade, the sufferings of the poor must be estimated according to that number. That the want of employment, and that great distress prevail amongst the poor labouring Manufacturers, in consequence of the Non-Importation Agreement, the enclosed certificates, taken on the spot, incontestibly prove; that a great number of Clothworkers, in this Town, are now out of employment; and that many more do not earn half the wages sufficient to support their families, I do still aver, and have a list of such now in my possession, which may be seen by any one here who doubts the truth of it.

Those who are acquainted with Parish Rates must know that they are laid at certain seasons only; so that when I informed my correspondent that the poor's rate at Dewsbury was got up to eight Shillings in the Pound, my design was not to intimate that this was solely to be attributed to the stop of the Trade to America, that being but of a short standing; but in order to give him an idea of the numerous poor at that place, and also what might be apprehended from the same cause, if continued. I have been at Dewsbury, this week, and there I was told that the next half year's assessment for the poor would be five Shillings in the Pound; now, as there is no material alteration in the prices of provisions, not any unusual sickness amongst them, the advance from about four Shillings the half year to five Shillings the half year, may, I think, Be fairly attributed to the want of trade to America.

In that part of my letter where I said it Was my belief, that if the Trade should be shut up till that time twelve months, all the rents of the lands and houses in the Townships there specified, would be insufficient to maintain their respective poor, my zeal for the cause may seem to have carried me beyond the bounds of probability; and I own, that upon further reflection, I think so in some degree myself, though the bounds of probability in this ease must vary greatly in the opinions of different men, according as they are more or less sensible of the vast Consequence of the American Trade to those Townships; and I hope the freedom of expression allowed in private letters, will clear me of any wilful design to impose upon the publick in this point.

There are not in any part of the King's Dominions that I am acquainted with, more dutiful and loyal subjects than the Master Manufacturers in the West Riding, of the County of York. They have good natural abilities; they can tell to others their own feelings, and the obvious causes of them; and for frugality and industry, they are perfect patterns; and though the enclosed testimonies of their sufferings, as related in my private letter of the 28th ultimo, are signed but by hundreds of these very useful members of the community, yet, did the occasion require it, the like testimonies, if I may be allowed to judge, would soon, very soon, be signed by thousands.

Some may object, and say, the season for shipping Woollens to America, does not come on until four or five months hence; granted; but this is the season when the Master Manufacturer used heretofore to be preparing his Warp and Woof for the goods proper for that trade; it is also the time when the moneyed Merchant and Ware-houseman used heretofore to be laying in their stocks of goods against the shipping season came on; by which the labouring poor had employment within doors in the severest season of the year.

SAMUEL ELAM.

"These are to certify all whom it may concern, that from the total stagnation of the Trade to North America, great numbers of the labouring poor of this place are out of employ, and a great number that are but part employed; by which the distresses of the labouring poor are very much increased amongst us. And we, the underwritten

Master Manufacturers of Woollen Cloths, already feel great inconveniences for want of that branch of Trade as usual. Witness our hands, Jannary, 1775.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM MANCHESTER, TO A MERCHANT IN LONDON, DATED JANUARY, 1775.

I can in no better way describe to you what is likely to be the state of this country, than by sending you the following copy of a letter, which was received this week from New-York, by a principal Merchant here. Letters of the like import have been received by all the rest of our American Merchants-and need no comment on them. The pernicious consequences are self-evident. Into what deep distress must thousands of innocent families now sink; families that have hitherto comfortably maintained themselves by preparing Goods for America. Our Ministers, instead of sending Soldiers to besiege, and be besieged, at Boston, had now better send for them back, to quell any riot and tumults that may happen in the Manufacturing Counties, and prevent the hungry poor from plundering their neighbours' houses. By one means or another, the people will have food; and if the Government deprives them of the legal method of procuring it, where is the wonder if they help themselves by other means?

New-York, October 29, 1774.

SIR: Having desired you to ship our second order so soon as was convenient after executing the first, may probably have occasioned, you to suppose that three or four months would be time enough; this is therefore to request, that if the said Goods are not laden, (or, if they are, and you can get them out of the vessel again,) you will please absolutely to decline shipping them at all, under any circumstances whatever, as they cannot possibly be received here. Should they have been manufactured on purpose for us, and ready for exportation before this reaches you, we will allow every thing that is just and reasonable for your loss and disappointment. Being with great esteem and regard, your most assured friends, and very humble servants."

CHARLES CITY COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.
At a Meeting of the Committee for the County of Charles City, Virginia, at the Court House of said County, on Wednesday, the 4th January, 1775, the Committee being informed by Amos and James Ladd, that they have lately imported Goods from Great Britain to the amount of £114. 3s. 3d. current money, and also a crate of Glass Ware, the invoice of which they have not yet received; and having delivered up the same to the Committee, and made their election that the same should be sold, according to the Association, Ordered, That William Green Munford, William Gregory, Peter Royster, Thomas Holt, and James Eppes gentlemen, or any three of them, do forthwith sell the said Goods, having first advertised the time of sale in the public Papers, in small parcels, not exceeding £10 each, for ready money, and apply the same according to the direction of the Association.

John Ladd having also informed the Committee that he hath lately imported Goods from Great Britain to the amount of £5. 0s. 2d. sterling, and Andrew Crew, that he hath also imported Goods in like manner, to the amount of £0. 13s. 9d. sterling, and having severally delivered up the same to the Committee, and made their election that they should be sold, Ordered, That the same gentlemen, as in the foregoing order, do sell the same, and dispose of the money as in manner aforesaid.

By order of the Committee.
PATRICK MURDOCK, Clerk.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LIEUTENANT GOVERNOUR COLDEN, TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH, DATED NEW-YORK, JANUARY 4, 1775.

MY LORD: The measures pursued, as well by the Southern as Eastern Provinces, put the moderate and peaceable disposition which prevails among the majority of the people of this Province, daily to the trial. Enthusiasm is ever contagious; and when propagated by every artifice, becomes almost irresistible. The Assembly of this Province, as I formerly informed your Lordship, are to meet next Tuesday. If I find that there will not be a majority for prudent measures, I shall incline to prorogue them for a short time, that the plan of the new Parliament may be known here, before the Assembly do any thing. On the other hand, there is room to fear, that if the Assembly do not meet, an attempt will be made to convene a Provincial Congress, in imitation of our neighbours, which may be of worse consequence. I propose to take the advice of his Majesty's Council to-morrow upon the interesting and important situation of affairs. When all depends upon the humour of the populace, one can only, my Lord, form very uncertain conjectures of future measures. I can only say, with certainty, that there is still a good majority of the most respectable people in this place who promote peace, and discountenance violence.

BARNSTABLE (MASSACHUSETTS) TOWN MEETING.

At a Town Meeting, duly notified, to be held at Barnstable, on the fourth day of January, 1775; pursuant to a warrant granted for that purpose, by Joseph Otis, and Daniel Davis, Esqrs., being the major part of the Selectmen of said Town, to act on the several matters and things hereafter mentioned, there being a very full assemblage of qualified voters; Edward Bacon, Esq., was chosen Moderator by a great majority.

The Town then proceeded to the business, in said warrant specified, and voted on the several articles therein, as follows, viz:

1st Question, Whether the Town will give the Assessors any directions respecting their making the Province Rates, for the present year, and returning a certificate to Harrison Gray, Esquire? Passed in the affirmative; but that the Constables should suspend collecting any monies in consequence of said assessment, until further orders of said Town.

2d Question, Whether the Town would order any sum of money to be paid to Henry Gardner, of Stow, as Receiver General of this Province? Passed in the negative, by a great majority.

3d Question, Whether the Town will order the late Constables, who have any monies in their hands collected, or to be collected, on the late Provincial Rate Lists, to pay the same to Henry Gardner, Esq.? Passed in the negative.

4th Question, Whether the Town will come into any method to purchase a number of Small Arms for the use of the Town? Passed in the negative.

5th Question, Whether they will order any new supply of Ammunition for said Town's use? Passed in the negative.

6th Question, Whether the Town will take any method to encourage Minute-Men, agreeable to the recommendation of the Provincial Congress? Passed in the negative.

7th Question, Whether the Town will choose a Committee of Inspection to see the Association of the Continental Congress carried into execution? Voted that a Committee be appointed for said purpose, so far as it relates to Imports and Exports only.

8th Question, Whether the Town does approve of the Resolves of the County Congress? Voted the same to be referred to the March meeting.

The last Question is said warrant, Whether the Town will choose one or more persons to attend a Provincial Congress, recommended to be held at Cambridge, in February next, and to give them instructions, &c., passed in the negative, by a very great majority.

The Moderator then declared the business of the day to be over.

Fifth Day of the first Month, (January,) 1775.

The Quakers of Pennsylvania, much alarmed at the present distracted proceedings of the Colonies, in the opposition making to the authority of the Parliament of Great Britain, foresee the most fatal consequences both to themselves and the parent country, have thought it necessary to address their brethren in the adjacent Provinces, and have published the following Epistle, declaring their disapprobation of the measures prosecuting for obtaining redress, and earnestly requesting all of their communion to avoid joining in such measures as are totally inconsistent with their religious principles.

An Epistle from the Meeting for Sufferings, held in PHILADELPHIA, for PENNSYLVANIA and NEW-JERSEY, fifth day of the first Month, 1775.

To our Friends and Brethren in these and the adjacent Provinces:

DEAR FRIENDS: During the troubles and commotions which have prevailed, and still continue in this once peaceful land, much seasonable and weighty advice hath been frequently communicated, and particularly by our late yearly meeting, exhorting Friends in every part of their conduct, to act agreeable to the peaceable principles and testimony we profess; which we fervently desire may be duly attended to, and put in practice; yet as some publick Resolves have been lately entered into, with the concurrence and approbation of some members of our religious society, the nature and tendency of which are evidently contrary to our religious principles, our minds have been deeply affected with affliction and sorrow, and we have in much affection and brotherly love, been engaged to use our endeavours to convince these our brethren of their deviation; in the discharge of which duty, so far as we have proceeded, we have had the evidence of peace.

And, dear friends, we are now constrained in the renewings of true love, to entreat and exhort all, with humility and reverence, to bear in mind that our real welfare and preservations on the foundation of our religious fellowship and communion, depends on one faithfully adhering to the doctrines and precepts of our Lord Jesus Christ, who expressly declared, "my Kingdom is not of this world. If "my Kingdom were of this world then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews; "but now is my Kingdom not from hence,"- John xviii. 36, which ever since we were a people, we have publickly professed should be religiously observed by us as the rule of our conduct.

As divers members of our religious society, some of them without their consent or knowledge, have been lately nominated to attend on and engage in some publick affairs, which they cannot undertake, without deviating from these our religious principles, we therefore earnestly beseech and advise them, and all others, to consider the end and purpose of every measure to which they are desired to become parties, and with great circumspection and care to guard against joining in any for the asserting and maintaining our rights and liberties, which on mature deliberation, appear not to be dictated by that "wisdom which is from "above; which is pure, peaceable, gentle, and full of "mercy and good fruits." - James iii. 16.

"Every instance of conduct, inconsistent with our Christian profession, tends to violate the testimony we ought "to maintain of the sufficiency of that divine principle of "light and grace, by a steady attention to which, our "ancestors were led, in times of great commotion and difficulty, to an humble, patient waiting for that relief and "liberty, which, after a time of deep suffering, was granted them."

And as they were often engaged with Christian fortitude and freedom to remonstrate to those who were in power, whenever under sufferings, they could safely do it, without fear of being reproached for any part of their conduct having ministered just occasion of offence; or for having ever been concerned in any kind of conspiracies or combinations against the Government under which they lived.

"Should any now so far deviate from their example, and "the practice of faithful Friends at all times since, as manifest a disposition to contend for liberty by any methods or "agreements, contrary to the peaceable spirit and temper "of the Gospel, which ever breathes peace on earth, and "good will to all men," as it is the duty, we desire it may be the care of Friends in every meeting where there are any such, speedily to treat with them, agreeable to our Christian discipline, and endeavour to convince them of their error; in which labour, let all be done in true charity and brotherly love, and the effect will be happy to those who receive it in the same spirit. This religious care, steadily maintained, will certainly testify the sincerity of our desires to "guard against being drawn into measures, "which may minister occasion to any to represent us as a "people departing from the principles we profess; and "will likewise excite such who have been so incautious as "to enter into engagements, the terms and tendency of "which they had not duly considered, to avoid doing any "thing inconsistent with our principles;" and constantly to remember, that to fear God, honour the King, and do good to all men, is our indispensable duty.

And dear Friends in a degree of that divine love which unites in Christian communion and fellowship, we tenderly salute you, desiring that we may more diligently press after, and seek for an establishment on that rock against which the gates of hell shall never prevail, that we may be supported steadfast, when storms and tempests, which for the trial of our faith, and the more thoroughly purging us from those things which are of defiling nature, are permitted; for the Lord, whom we desire to serve, tenderly regards his depending children, and all his chastisements are in mercy directed to redeem and preserve them from evil.

Signed in, and on behalf of, said Meeting, by JOHN PEMBERTON, Clerk.

TO MESSRS. S. CRANE, JOHN DE HART, WILLIAM LIVINGSTON, W. P. SMITH, ELIAS BOUDINOT, AND JO. RIGGS, JUN., &c:

GENTLEMEN: Your notice to the Freeholders of Essex, of the 28th of November, was conveyed to me by Holt's Paper of the 1st of December, and as your motive for convening us is declared to be in conformity to the wise and prudent Resolves of the Congress, of which I had before heard, I determined to read their Resolves with the greatest attention, and therefore sent Tom with my best horse, who soon brought me the extracts of the Proceedings of the Congress; I eagerly sat down to read them, but, alas! how was I disappointed; instead of wise and prudent, I found nothing but rude, insolent, and absurd Resolves, calculated to answer no end but to stir up strife, and increase confusion among us, and to unite every spirited Briton against us. Even Burke and Barre, if they have the least regard for national honour, must be roused by the humiliating terms this Congress make as a preliminary to Great Britain. When I voted for you, gentlemen, last Summer, and a Congress was appointed, and Deputies sent, I hoped to hear that something had been done to secure our liberties, and make up the breach with the mother country; but by this Congress the liberty we had is taken from us, and the breach widened. Pray, gentlemen, how can you ask us, nay, confidently tell us, that we will "unquestionably carry into execution, &c., the wise "and prudent Resolutions entered into by the Delegates "of this Continent in General Congress?" Did I think them wise and prudent, or believed that you can think them so, I would unquestionably support them; but when this Congress, instead of healing differences, create confusion; when, under the pretence of limiting the power of the King, Lords, and Commons, they create a power unknown to our Constitution, a mere Inquisition, what do they make of us? Do you and they apprehend us to be fools, and that we are implicitly to be led as you direct? We know what it is to be governed by Acts of Parliament, and never thought ill of them until we were alarmed into other sentiments; and although we may wish, and will take all lawful ways to get those restrained, repealed, or amended, that affect our liberty, yet we never can submit, nor I hope will any of us approve of men "whose business it shall be to observe the conduct of all persons touching this Association;" nor do I think that you will find many so "lost to a sense of publick virtue," and a regard for his neighbours, as to obey you or any set of men clothed with the dangerous power to "hold up to publick "notice, as unfriendly to the liberties of his country, and "thenceforward to break off all dealings with" any man that you, or a majority of you, shall think fit to post in the publick Papers as an enemy to his country. To such an inquisition I never will subscribe, and, by Heaven, I had rather submit to Acts of Parliament implicitly, nay, to the will of a King, than to the caprice of Committee-men; in the two first cases I shall fare with my neighbours, and shall be allowed to speak at least; in the last, I shall not dare to think or act, but I shall be in danger of being held up as an enemy to my country, and tarring and feathering is the least I am to expect. - I am to be a slave. I will then be a slave to a King and a Parliament. I never will have it said that I voted for, or consented to, my own Executioners, inquisition, Observemen, Committee-men, or what you please to call yourselves, or your successors in office. Let me ask you seriously, and particularly five of you who are lawyers, how can you so barefacedly ask us to do this thing, when you know it is an open violation of our Constitution, and that the powers Committee-men will acquire by the Congress Resolve, are unlimited not to be defined, for they are to make such regulations as they shall think proper to enforce the Association, so they will have it in their power to rule and proscribe as they please. How can you say that you cannot in the least doubt "our ready and immediate compliance with this Article," and blasphemously tell us that "the salutary effects to arise from this Association, must, "under God, depend upon the fidelity of individuals," when you know the Almighty cannot approve of it, he is a God of order and mercy, and in this Association there is neither order nor mercy; you know it can have no other end than to clothe you and your succeeding Committee-men with absolute power, and so far from relieving us, that the measure will make us worse than slaves to you Committee-men; and for this you "depend upon the fidelity of individuals."

While I live, I will not bow my head to such servitude; I will oppose the measures of a King and his Parliament whenever they are dangerous to my liberty; but I will never give my voice for measures by which the Constitution of my country is thus wantonly to be altered, and by which men are to be clothed with power to revenge themselves upon their neighbours, without control, and the poor victim of their mad zeal, malice, or wrath, is to be exposed to infamy and disgrace, unheard, without the form of a trial, and against the laws of his country.

Reflect, Committee-men, for a moment on the tendency of this Resolve; in the powers it invests you with; shudder at the consequences; use not these powers, nay, not sparingly, as we are to kill our Sheep. Let not the prospect of unlimited power turn your heads, but amidst your zeal for liberty, and desire to prevent tyranny, alter not the Constitution of your country, and usurp not powers you will not allow to, nay, such as the King and Parliament dare not attempt.

I have thought proper thus to deliver my sentiments, and should have done it in the first Paper succeeding your notice, and before the intended meeting, had not my distance from a Printer prevented; but, that the Freeholders of the Province, and of this County in particular, may consider of the dangerous step you have advised them to take, and in time may drop the absurd and destructive measure of Committee-men and Delegates, and constitutionally, by their Representatives, ask redress of such real grievances as they labour under, I have published my resolves, which, by-the-bye, are equally, if not more constitutional, rational, wise, and prudent, than either the Resolutions of the Congress, or your notification; and I sincerely wish that my fellow-freeholders would look before they leap; without the first, I am sure the last will endanger their necks, &c.

A FREEHOLDER OF ESSEX.

TO "Z." OF NEW-JERSEY.

When a person departs from principles he has heretofore, on a similar occasion, openly avowed, it makes people suspect that there is some secret motive to influence him. I would just beg leave to ask you why this sudden change in your politicks?

In the time of the memorable Stamp Act, you was one of the foremost to espouse the cause of your country; you was not that sycophant to men in power; not that enemy to meetings of the people to consult for the preservation of their rights and liberties, that you now are; for then you attended one with the rest of your profession, at which you held forth, and denied the omnipotence of the British Parliament; neither were the names of Delegate or Congress ungrateful to your ear. At the time above alluded to, you attended a Convention of the Representatives of your Colony, at a publick house, for the express purpose of appointing Delegates to meet in Congress; and even went so far (if I am not misinformed) as to act as their Clerk. But now the case is altered; meetings of the people, and appointments of Committees, in your opinion, are illegal; Delegates and Congresses are unconstitutional, and the resolves and proceedings of the best and wisest men in America, entered into upon the noblest principles, the good of their country, are not to be regarded or adhered to. But, on the other hand, Acts of Parliament, or rather Edicts of the British Ministry, for blocking up the Port of Boston; for robbing the people of Massachusetts Bay of their Charter, (which is, and ought to be as sacred as Magna Charta;) depriving those people of the Trial by Jury, the palladium of British liberty; and for carrying them to Great Britain to be tried for offences committed in America, (an Act made to shelter villains from the hands of justice;) and the Act for introducing Popery and French Laws in America, meet with your warmest patronage and support; and I make no doubt that if the Ministry and British Parliament should, in their great wisdom, take it in their heads to pass an Act for abolishing Christianity, and introducing the Alkoran and Mahometan religion into America, it would likewise partake of your approbation; for, as it is a proverb among the Turks, that one Renegade is worse than ten Turks, so it has always been one among the Christians, that one Apostate is worse than ten Infidels.

In your last performance, inserted in Rivington's Paper of the first of last month, addressed to the people of New-Jersey,* you endeavour to set the proceedings of the Congress in a ridiculous light. You say, "that chosen on one "side, they seem to have had nothing else in view than to "please their electors, and forward confusion among us." What you mean by chosen on one side, I cannot divine; but if you mean that a few placemen did not give their votes for them, or that the inhabitants of your great City did not attend any of the meetings for choosing Committee is, though nine-tenths of them approve of what was done, and of the opposition to the Acts of Parliament; I say if either of these be your meaning, I readily agree that they were chosen on one side. But at the same time you know, and must confess, that never men were chosen with more honour to themselves than the Congress were, or executed the great trust reposed in them by their constituents with more wisdom, spirit, and integrity. And it has been matter of surprise to me, as well as to others, that you, in your all sufficiency, have not issued your mandate to convene together all placemen and pensioners, the only friends of Government, (as you style yourselves,) when you might form a Monarchical Congress, in opposition to the Grand Continental Republican Congress; then you could in the plainest language, represent to your masters, the Ministry and Parliament of Great Britain, that you were a set of the cleverest, the worthiest, the loyalist, and the honestest fellows in America; that the rest of your fellow-subjects in America were a parcel of Republican Traitors; that their grievances were ideal, and had no existence but in their own clamours. Then you might form a system by which the present differences might be solved: but what sort of a system it would be, I leave your "friends and countrymen, the people of New-Jersey," to judge; for my part, I am afraid it would be a system of slavery.

In the next place, you seem to be apprehensive that the people of Great Britain will receive the appeal to them with disgust, because (as you say) the Congress have overlooked their Legislature with sovereign contempt, and ask, whether that people will not take offence at the indignity so manifestly shown them? I answer you, they will not. They will receive it with that conscious dignity becoming freemen, appealed to by a brave and spirited people, tenacious of their just rights and liberties; and who are oppressed by the machinations of a wicked and abandoned Ministry, aided by a corrupt and venal part of their Legislature.

I shall pass over the rest of your performance unnoticed, as every person possessed of the least discernment can see your drift, and that it is a piece of mere declamation, manifestly intended to create jealousies, and divide the people in the Colonies; who, I am sure, have more understanding and integrity than to be led away by the idle fears and apprehensions of any anonymous Ministerial writer, especially when opposed to the united wisdom of the Grand Continental Congress.

But before I conclude, I shall just beg leave to ask how, in the name of wonder, you came to let the following sentence drop from your pen? - "All changes in Government, my brethren, are dangerous to the people." There I agree with you; it is what the people of America are now guarding against, and the cause in which the brave Bostonians are now suffering. Those eleven words have overthrown all you have already written, or hereafter shall write on the disputes between the Colonies and the mother country; but truth, though involuntary, will come out, and I shall not hereafter look upon you to be that enemy to the liberties of your country that you have affected to seem; but rather as an opposer of the tyrannical measures of the British Ministry.

As the Congress, in all their proceedings, have done what they ought to have done; and you, in all yours, have done what you ought not to have done, let me entreat you, as a friend, and as you regard your reputation, and the approbation of your American brethren, to reform and turn from your evil ways; for, believe me, you will not, for your doughty performances, be Closeted by your Sovereign, nor be made a Privy Counsellor; you will neither be made a Knight of the Garter, a Knight Baronet, nor a Knight of the Bath; neither will you be made even one of the poor Knights of Windsor; you will not receive the thanks of the House of Lords or Commons; nor, if I had my will, should you get (what you are seeking after and expect) either place or pension. Y.

Elizabethtown, January 5, 1775.

COMMITTEE OF CORRESPONDENCE OF ALBANY, NEW-YORK, TO THE PUBLICK.

At a time when union in sentiment and conduct is essential to the salvation of this Continent, the attempts that are daily made by the tools of Administration to divide us, must give pain to every real friend to America. No sooner were the measures adopted by the Continental Congress for our relief fully known, but every Court sycophant, able to hold a pen or indite a sentence, was employed to misrepresent and censure their conduct, and deceive the publick; for this purpose Lord North's Press in this City has, for several months, groaned with productions filled with calumnies, misrepresentations and falsehoods; and the Newspapers of two of our Printers have been stuffed with pieces tending to hold up this Province as opposed to the measures recommended by the Congress. It is the duty of every man who has a regard to the honour and interest of this country, to prevent the publick from being imposed upon by those artful and interested wretches, who have long since devoted themselves to the service of a venal Minister, and stand ready to surrender every thing we hold dear as Englishmen for a post or pension. Influenced by this motive alone, I am led to expose the misrepresentations contained in an extract of a letter, (said to be) from Albany, and published in Mr. Gaine's Gazette of the 6th instant. Who, upon reading that extract, would not conclude that a division had arisen in the Committee of Correspondence for the County of Albany, and that the approbation of the proceedings of the Continental Congress was carried only by a majority of one voice? This would be the conclusion of every man that could read English; and yet the very reverse of this would appear had the writer related the whole truth, and this I hope clearly to evince.

The Committee of Correspondence, referred to in that extract, met on Wednesday, the 4th of January last. At a former meeting they had fully approved of the proceedings of the Congress, but the weather being extremely bad, there was not a full meeting; it was therefore proposed to resume the matter at this meeting, and to give instructions to the Representatives of the County on this important subject. Several gentlemen of the Committee opposed instructing the Representatives, as altogether unnecessary, their sentiments being well known, (though they all agreed in the propriety of adopting the proceedings of the Congress) yet, as others of the Committee differed in opinion as to the necessity of instructing the Members, the question was put whether instructions should be given or not, which was carried in the affirmative by a majority of three or four. The proposed instructions were then read, amended, and unanimously agreed to; and so united was the whole Committee in sentiment as to the necessity of adopting the measures of the Congress, that when they were at a loss to know the principles which induced our Delegates to consent to the exportation of Rice from South Carolina, it was agreed by all present to write to them, and the following letter was immediately written, unanimously agreed to, and sent:

Albany, January 5, 1775,

GENTLEMEN: At a meeting of this Committee on the 10th ultimo, I had the pleasure to inform you by letter that the Committee approved of, and adopted, the proceedings of the Continental Congress. The Committee at this meeting are so well aware of the necessity of unanimity in every constituent part of that Congress, that rather than give the British Ministry the satisfaction of learning that a single County in any Province had not adopted their measures, that they readily confirm what was done at a former meeting. They think it, however, indispensably their duty to beg of you, gentlemen, to inform them on what principles you agreed to the exportation of Rice from South Carolina, as they cannot form the least probable guess why a discrimination should be allowed in favour of either of the Provinces in the article of exportation.

I am, with great respect, gentlemen, your obliged humble servant. By order of the Committee.

JACOB LANSING, Jun., Chairman.

To Isaac Low, John Alsop, Philip Livingston, John Jay, and James Duane, Esquires.

COMMITTEE OF NEWPORT, RHODE-ISLAND; TO THE PHILADELPHIA COMMITTEE.

Newport, January 5, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Being informed that it is reported at New-York and at other parts of the Continent, that the inhabitants of this Town are fitting out vessels and determined to carry on their trade in violation of the Continental Association; and as the propagators of this infamous falsehood can have no other intention than to weaken the bands of union between the Colonies, we think it our duty to acquaint you, that several vessels designed for the coast of Africa, which could not be got ready by the first of December, have been actually laid up; that several parcels of Sheep purchased for exportation have been stopped; and that so far as we can learn, the Association hath been strictly adhered to by the Merchants in this Colony, who declare their intention to abide by it. Indeed the absolute necessity of an union in common measures for the common safety, is so obvious, that we can assure you that the trade of Rhode-Island will be carried on with a punctual regard to the Association.

"We pray an early communication of any intelligence you may receive of importance to the Colonies, and are, with great esteem, gentlemen, your most humble servants,
The Committee of Correspondence.

To the Committee of Correspondence for Philadelphia.

Charlestown, South Carolina, January 6, 1775.

Letters from West Florida inform us, that, in the beginning of November last, the Mortar, a Chief of the Creek Indians, with upwards of eighty Warriours, in ten canoes, went from the Upper Creek Town down the Alabama River to Tansa, and from thence proceeded to Mr. Strother's Plantation, opposite to Mobile, where were about thirty Choctaw Indians, who called to them and then fired into their canoes. The Creeks immediately landed, but one of them was accidentally shot by his own piece in getting out of the canoe; the other Warriours mounted the bluff, and the Choctaws took shelter in Mr. Strother's house, which being built of logs, was musket-proof. Mr. Strother, his wife and children, escaped only with what clothes they had on. The house was soon after burnt to the ground; but the besieged had undermined the foundation and got into the kitchen, which being likewise burnt, they retreated to a little garden adjoining, which was enclosed with pickets, and there they defended themselves until six more of the Creeks were killed, and as many wounded. The Mortar then told his people that this was not the proper method of attack; for as they were numerous enough to eat the Choctaws up, they ought to break in upon them at all events. After desiring them to follow him, he ran up to the fence, though he had then a fresh wound in his thigh, and pulled down two of the pickets with his own hands, when he was shot through the body. His people having carried him off, retired, and allowed the Choctaws to escape during the night, after a siege which had lasted near three days. Four of the Choctaws were killed, and two wounded, one of them very slightly. The Mortar being asked if he did not think his life in danger from his wounds, replied, that if any Choctaw bullet could have killed him he would have been dead long ago. Three of the ten canoes returned immediately with the Mortar and the rest of the wounded; the other seven, with Tipoc, a Head-man, and second in command, proceeded to Mobile Point, where he expected to meet a very considerable body from the Lower Creek Towns; but the large batteaux being damaged, he went up Mobile River to a place called Hay's Bluff, where two more of the party were killed by the Choctaws; and it is believed that all that were left then returned home.

About the middle of November, the other party, consisting of upwards of an hundred and sixty Warriours from the Lower Creek Towns, went to the Westward as far as Beloxi, or Presque Isle, and destroyed the cattle wherever they went; Mr. Kreba alone lost thirty head; they took only the tongues and tallow of most of them. They made no secret, that if the Mortar had not been so unfortunate, they were all to have gone to New-Orleans; to have got a French officer there; to have given their Peace Talk to the Choctaws, and to have sent French Traders by that route to their country. They even hoped he could persuade the French King to send as many Troops as, joined with them and the Choctaws, would drive both English and Spaniards out of the country.

It is said that, notwithstanding the late bloody action, the Creeks have sent a peace Talk to the Choctaws, telling them they came not intentionally against them.

The Houmas, a small Tribe of Indians on the Eastern side of the Mississippi, have lately sold their Village to a person at New-Orleans, named Conway, and three leagues front on the River, which has been approved off by the Spanish Governour. They are to go to the Western side of the Mississippi.

We are assured that it is an undoubted fact, that a party of the Creek Indians go every year to the Havana. They go over in some of the fishing vessels, and return with their presents in one sent on purpose by the Governour of the Havana. About a dozen of them went over last summer, but the people who carried them did not know their names. A gentleman who was on that coast, advised the fishermen never to carry any more of them; but they said the Indians every year came on board and obliged them to carry them over.

ULSTER COUNTY (NEW-YORK) MEETING.

At a Meeting of a great number of the most respectable Freeholders of the Towns of Kingston, Hurley, Marbletown, Rochester, and New-Paley, in the Town of Hurley, in Ulster County, New-York, on Friday, the 6th day of January, 1775, a Committee: of six being chosen, viz: Colonel Johannes Hardenbergh, Captain John Elmendorph, Adrian Wynkoop, Matthew Cantine, Johannes G. Hardenbergh, and Jacob Hasbrouck, Jun., Esquires, of whom Colonel Johannes Hardenbergh was chosen Chairman:

Resolved, first, That it is the opinion of this meeting that we most heartily approve of the Association, and acquiesce in all the other measures entered into by the late General Congress, and we will use every means in our power to render them effectual; and that it be recommended to the several Towns and Precincts within this County, to choose Committees to see the same faithfully observed and carried into execution.

A certain Pamphlet, entitled "Free Thoughts on the Resolves of the Congress, &c.," under the signature of A. W. Farmer, dated November 16, 1774, being then produced and publicly read, it was Resolved, secondly, That it is replete with falsehoods, artfully calculated to impose upon the illiterate and unthinking; to frustrate the Resolves of the Congress, and to destroy that union so necessary for the preservation of our constitutional liberty; therefore,

Resolved, thirdly, That the said Pamphlet, in detestation and abhorrence of such infamous publications, be now burnt; and that the Authors, Publishers, and Circulators of such performances, be henceforth deemed the enemies of their country.

Resolved, fourthly, That the Chairrnan transmit copies of the above Resolves to the Committees of Correspondence for the several Towns and Precincts within this County.

Which Resolves being read and unanimously approved, the above Pamphlet was burnt accordingly.

Ordered, likewise, that the Resolves be printed.

COMMITTEE OF BOSTON TO THE COMMITTEE OF PHILADELPHIA.

Boston, January 6, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I am directed by the Committee of the Town of Boston, appointed to receive and distribute the Donations that are made for the relief of the poor of this Town, to acknowledge the receipt of your favours of the 28th of November; and to return their unfeigned thanks to the inhabitants of the City and Liberties of Philadelphia, for the generous Donations they have made and transmitted by Captains Church and Allen, consisting of four hundred and six barrels of Flour, and one hundred and five barrels of Ship-stuff, which you may rely upon it will be applied by the Committee to the benevolent purpose for which you designed it.

Our situation is truly distressing. Families that have lived in the greatest affluence, are now reduced to the most disagreeable circumstances; but through God's goodness the hearts of our brethren have been opened for our relief; they have enabled us to bear up under oppression, to the astonishment of our enemies; and we trust we shall be enabled still to remain firm, and never to desert the glorious cause of our country,

I remain, with great truth, your friend and humble servant,

THOMAS CUSHING

To the Committee of Correspondence for Philadelphia.

THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH TO LIEUTENANT GOVERNOUR COLDEN.

Whitehall, January 7, 1775.

SIR: Since my letter to you of the 10th of December, I have received two from you, the one dated the 2d of November, enclosing the Proceedings of the General Congress, the other of the 7th of December, enclosing a Plan of Union between Great Britain and the Colonies, proposed by Mr. Galloway in that Congress.

The affairs of America are now come to a crisis, and as the consideration will be taken up by both Houses of Parliament, immediately after the holidays, it cannot but be the wish of every candid and unprejudiced person; that the proceedings of the General Congress had been of such a valour and complexion as to have invited accommodation, without provoking the vengeance of the mother country.

The idea of union upon some general constitutional plan, is certainly very just, and I have no doubt of its being yet attainable through some channel of mutual consideration and discussion.

Enclosed I send you the copy of a Memorial of Colonel Ord, whose long and faithful services in America render him an object of publick attention; and I am commanded by the King to signify to you his Majesty's pleasure, that he be allowed the five thousand acres for which he obtained a mandamus, upon the tract to which he refers in his Memorial.

With this letter you will receive a package enclosing to General Carleton the King's commission and instructions, and other documents for the Government; and as it is of great consequence that he should receive these instruments as early as possible, I am commanded by the King to signify to you his Majesty's pleasure, that you do engage some trusty person to carry the despatch to Quebec, by the way of the Lakes; and that you do draw a bill upon Mr. Pownall, for whatever reasonable expense shall be incurred in that service. I am, sir, your most obedient humble servant,

DARTMOUTH.

Lieutenant Governour Colden.

MEMORIAL OF COLONEL THOMAS ORD.

To the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations; the Memorial of Colonel THOMAS ORD, of the Royal Regiment of Artillery, humbly sheweth:

That your Memorialist, in consideration of long and faithful services in the West Indies, North America, and elsewhere, obtained, in the year 1765, a mandamus for five thousand acres of Land, in the Province of New-York, but has not been able, on account of the unreasonable claims and pretensions to Lands in that Province, to obtain a location there;

That your Memorialist is now informed that there is a certain tract of Land vacant and vested in the Crown, bounded as follows, viz: West upon the East bounds of the Patent of Kinderhook; North upon the South bounds of the Manor of Rensselaer Wyck; East upon the line between the Province of Massachusetts Bay and New-York, and South upon the North bounds of the late confirmation of Colonel John Van Rensselaer. The Land is also described in a Plan, as bounded by an Act of the General Assembly of the Province of New-York, and the lines of the several patents thereunto adjoining.

And your Memorialist therefore humbly requests the favour of your Lordships' interposition with the King, that his Majesty may be graciously pleased to grant an order for locating the said mandamus upon that tract.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LONDON, TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK, DATED JANUARY 7, 1775.

This is the important crisis which will determine the fate of America. The Petition to the King has been presented, and is thought a moderate one; but the new claims stated in the Bill of Rights, and the points foreign to the one immediately in question, insisted on, will much injure the cause. the bold Resolves of your Congress have pushed matters to an extremity, and render complete decision of the dispute inevitable. Whether America shall be independent of or subordinate to Parliament, is now the question. I wish the prospect was clearer of an amicable-settlement. The leaders of Government were heartily disposed to fall in with any proposals of accommodation which might have secured your liberties and preserved the sovereignty in the British Legislature, which is essential to the welfare of the Empire; but hot men among you have extended your claims so far as to make it impossible for Parliament to comply, without relinquishing every shadow of its authority. The Merchants have met on the subject. They are to petition Parliament for redress; but are neither to find fault with the late measures, nor to propose any mode for your relief, but to submit it entirely to Parliament. This intelligence is from two respectable Merchants, who are of the Committee.

What particular measures will be adopted by Parliament on its ensuing meeting, no one can precisely determine; but this may be depended on, that there will be no relaxation with respect to Boston.

The strongest hope which we have left, is, that the Assembly of New-York will firmly and dutifully state their grievances, unembarrassed with points foreign to the subject, and free from an undistinguishing approbation of the measures of others. Such a petition will assuredly be honourably received, and in all probability open the way for a lasting accommodation of the present differences. How little do they seem sensible of the uncertainty and miseries of a civil war, who would plunge headlong into violence rather than sacrifice a punctilio!

WOODBIDGE (NEW-JERSEY) COMMITTEE,

At a General Meeting of the Inhabitants of the Township of Woodbridge, in the County of Middlesex, in New-Jersey, on Saturday, the 7th day of January, 1775:

Captain REUBEN POTTER being chosen Moderator,

The Association entered into and recommended by the late General Congress at Philadelphia, being read and approved of, it was,

1st. Resolved unanimously, That the said Association be adopted by this Town, and carried into execution.

2d. Resolved unanimously, That a Committee of Observation, consisting of twenty-one members, be appointed by those "qualified to vote for Representatives in the Legislature." Accordingly, the following persons were chosen without a dissenting voice, viz: Ebenezer Foster, Henry Freeman, Nathaniel Heard, and Reuben Potter, Esquires, Messrs. William Smith, Jeremiah Manning, Matthias Baker, Charles Jackson. Samuel Force, John Pain, James Manning, John Heard, Daniel Moores, John Ross, Ellis Barron, William Cutter, Reuben Evans, James Randolph, Timothy Bloomfield, John Noe, and John Conway, to see the said Association be punctually observed and carried into execution; that any nine or more of them be authorized to act for the purpose specified in the eleventh Article of said Association.

3d. Resolved unanimously, That it is the desire of the people now met, that the said Committee do execute the trust reposed in them with firmness and fidelity, and in every respect follow the directions of the Association, as much as if it was a law of this Province; and they be upon oath for the conscientious discharge of their duty.

The Committee of this Town appointed to meet the Committees of the other Townships in County Committee and Provincial Congress, in July last, desiring to be dismissed, it was,

4th. Resolved unanimously, That they be thanked for the faithful discharge of the trust reposed in them, and dismissed agreeable to their request.

5th. Resolved unanimously, That a Committee of this Town be chosen to meet the Committees of the other Townships in this County, to choose a Committee of Correspondence, agreeable to the directions of the said Association; accordingly, Ebenezer Foster, Esquire, Messrs.

William Smith, and Matthias Baker, were chosen; and are hereby instructed, that in case the Assembly of New-Jersey do not appoint Delegates to meet the Continental Congress in May next, they meet the Committees from the other Counties of this Province, in Provincial Congress, and choose them.

JOHN ROSS, Clerk.

At a Meeting of the above Committee of Observation for the Township of Woodbridge, the 10th day of January, 1775, pursuant to advertisement; present, sixteen members:

Ordered, That Ebenezer Foster, Esquire, Messrs. Jere-miah Manning, Matthias Baker, Ellis Barron, and John Conway, wait on Messrs. Joseph Shotwell and Sons, Merchants, immediately, and ask them if they are disposed to comply with the Association of the late Continental Congress, respecting the importation of Goods, it being represented that said Shotwell's have imported sundry Goods since the first day of December last.

The Deputies aforesaid returned and reported to the body that they had waited on Messrs. Shotwell's, according to appointment, who assured them "that all Goods imported by their house since the first of December, remained unopened as they came to hand;" but observed, "that -" as said Goods were imported into and entered at New-York, and had been under the inspection of the Committee for said City, they did not come under the inspection of this Committee, and requested the favourable construction of this body, and the inhabitants in general, "respecting their conduct and answer." The Committee, in consequence of said report, allow that the answer of Messrs. Shotwell's is satisfactory; and are of opinion that any Goods or Merchandise imported into the City of New-York, which may even escape the notice of their Committee, are not subject to our inspection.

This Committee earnestly recommend to all Merchants and Retailers in this Township, to adhere strictly to the ninth Article of the Association respecting the said of Goods.

And we do further recommend to all the inhabitants of this Township, a strict compliance with the eighth Article of the Association, respecting Frugality, Economy, find Industry, and the prohibition of all kinds of Gaming.

This Committee also taking into consideration the many pieces and pamphlets published by James Rivington, tending to frustrate and defame the proceedings of the late Continental Congress, and disunite the Colonies, are of opinion that he is a person inimical to the liberties of this country, and as such ought to be discountenanced; we therefore do cordially recommend to all our constituents to drop his Paper and have no further dealings with him.

Voted, That these Proceedings be published in Messrs. Holt's and Gaine's Papers.

Signed by order of the Committee,

REUBEN POTTER, Chairman.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LONDON, DATED JANUARY 9, 1775.

Every reasonable expectation of the Colonists will be complied with, but no claims for exemption from Parliamentary jurisdiction can deserve that title. Such an exemption would be a dissolution of the British Empire. The outrages of the Bostonians will not pass with impunity, if vigour and firmness in Great Britain can effect it.

If New-York would be handed down to posterity as the truest friend to America, let its Legislature assert and exercise those powers which have been wrested from it by the Congress; and petition, with decency and moderation, to Parliament, and their desires will be fully gratified.

EXTRACTS FROM A LETTER WRITTEN BY A LONDON MERCHANT TO HIS FRIEND IN VIRGINIA, DTD JANUARY 9, 1775

No address or signature is requisite to this, as it is purely political, and you know the writer. Your eulogium for wisdom, ability, and amiable publick principles are resounded here from every part of America, since your shining in Congress. This you may be sure is most grateful to me, who love you so much, and have an Hampdean ardour for liberty.

The publick Papers will inform you of the proceedings of the London Merchants and Traders, which it is supposed will be followed by Bristol, Liverpool, Glasgow, Birmingham, Leeds, Manchester, &c., as the leading men in those Towns had before wrote, painting in strong terms the distress of Commerce and the poor Manufacturers, on the very slight beginning of stopping your importations; from this you may easily guess what will be the case when your exports are stopped. The Ministers being totally confounded at the unanimity of America, are at a stand; this, together with the clamours from Liverpool, &c., has occasioned the proceedings in London; but do not from thence conclude that any tiring effectual will be done this session of Parliament. The King, your inveterate enemy, has ordered the Ministers to persevere in the old plan, which, from principle, they wish to do, if they find it practicable; but this they will not find in twelve months time, if America perseveres in the plan adopted by the Congress. You may rely on it that I have the very best authority for assuring you that there is no disposition in the Cabinet to give America any redress; but, on the contrary, it is absolutely determined by the secret ruling power to distress you as much as possible. There is one comfort; this Ruler is the veriest coward human nature can know; and when the spirit appears, that must show itself in the House of Commons when the several Petitions are delivered, fear will take place, and may produce a repeal of some of the last Massachusetts Acts. This is the utmost that can be expected this session, which for a time may quiet people here, in expectation of the Congress, in May, receding from your Association. But should the May Congress continue firmly united as that in September was, and persevere in the plan of stopping your imports and exports till all your grievances are redressed, by the next session of Parliament one half of the Kingdom, for want of bread, will be at Westminster to fight your battles, in which every West Indian must join or starve.

The advice I am going to give, you must allow, will be more particularly injurious to myself than to almost any man in North America; but my ardent love of liberty will ever prevail over selfish considerations. Should your grievances, as stated in the Association, be not fully redressed before the meeting of Congress in May, (of which there is not the least glimmering of hope at present,) by all means confirm your Non-Importation and Non-Exportation, and adopt such farther measures as by that time you will find necessary. In the mean while, to make the measure as little injurious as possible to America, employ every nerve to prepare, within yourselves, necessary clothing and imple-ments for Manufactures, of the useful kind, instead of raising raw materials to purchase the Manufactures of this country. No effort should be left untried to get a sufficiency of Arms and Ammunition, for it is more than probable you may have occasion for them; therefore it is absolutely necessary, through all America, to pay great attention to training the Militia. Thus acting and thus provided, I will pawn my life on every thing being properly settled next Winter.

The plan of despotism is too deeply settled to give up the contest without full redress; especially as America is infinitely better able to contend now, than she will be ten or twenty years hence, if the Quebec Bill remains. Had your exports as well as imports stopped last December, your grievances must have been completely settled this Winter; as it is, by your own determinations, the business is spun out so long, I hope you have firmness to persevere, and will, by every possible means, provide against the last extremity. You must not rely on any man, or body of men here, therefore you yourselves must work out your own salvation, which you are fully able to do if you have but virtue enough; and if you have not *****.

This country is, in comparison of what it was, weak to an extreme, with profligacy, debauchery, and luxury. - The highest and lowest orders of men are as abandoned to every vice as the Romans were in the age of the Cæsars. In the middling class there is yet a great deal of true sterling independency; among them your friends were always very numerous, and among the others, necessity will very soon make you many more. Lords Temple, Chatham, (who are now perfectly united) Camden, Shelburne, and the amiable Bishop of Asaph, are the only real friends you have among the great. I speak of the two first from my own personal knowledge, and of the others from report, their publick conduct and writings. The Rockinghams, with Burke, their political pilot, still obstinately persevere in the right of Parliament to Tax America, and therefore cannot be your friends; places, &c., being their object. They will nevertheless support you against the present Ministry, to distress and overturn them if they can. The proceedings of Congress are universally admired, and the compositions compared to those of the Patriots in the reign of Charles the First. I have mentioned my own private capital objection respecting your delay of Non-Exportation, by which I understand remittances of every kind; and I beg leave to caution against any strictures on the Roman Catholick Religion, as it will be much more advantageous for you to conciliate to you the Canadians, than to exasperate or rouse the people here; let us alone to do that. When your Assembly meets, surely your Government will be severely reprehended for not immediately issuing writs on the last dissolution; for the iniquitous Indian War he has so wickedly kindled, which has already cost the lives of so many brave Virginians, and will cost so much money, if you are simple enough to pay for his madness; and for his contemptuous treatment in not meeting the Assembly, &c. These are grounds amply sufficient for a strong remonstrance to the Throne, for his removal.

I have just received your letter of September 20, from Philadelphia, through the London Post Office, which is the only one since that from Rousby Hall. This convinces me several of your letters must have miscarried. So very few of the Merchants here are in the least friendly to you, that it seems to me an essential political principle for every independent American to put his business only into the hands of such men whom they are certain, in times like these, will boldly stand forth and openly support your rights whenever they may be injured. 'Tis very hard, indeed, if every Colony cannot find honest and trusty natives sufficient to send here that can do their business.

EPSOM (NEW-HAMPSHIRE) RESOLVES.

At a legal Meeting of the Inhabitants of the Town of Epsom, held on Monday, the 9th day of January, 1775, Deputies were chosen to meet at Exeter, on the 25th instant, agreeable to the letter sent to said Town for that purpose.

Whereas the Grand Continental Congress has recommended a Non-Importation and a Non-Consumption of Goods to be the most effectual method to ease our deplorable situation; and as we view the Scotch Merchants and Traders, in general, to be no friends to our country, and are altogether for self-interest and lucrative gain; and to accomplish their designs have filled the country with Hawkers, Pedlars, and Petty-Chapmen, with their Lawns, Cambricks, Ribbons, &c., tempting women, girls, and boys with their unnecessary fineries, which is a moth to our country, and a damage to all honest Merchants and Traders that are true friends to our country, and that deal upon honour; - and to prevent all such diabolical proceedings for the future,

Resolved, That no Pedlars, Hawkers, or Petty-Chapmen shall be tolerated, for the future, to sell or dispose of any Goods, of whatever name or nature soever, in said Town, upon no less penalty than receiving a new suit, agreeable to the modern mode, and a forfeiture of their Goods.

A Committee of Inspection was then chosen to see that the above Resoive is carefully executed.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM EXETER, IN NEW-HAMPSHIRE, DATED JANUARY 2, 1775.

At a legal Meeting of the Inhabitants of this Town, held here last Monday, among other things it was voted unanimously to adopt the Association of the Continental Congress, and a numerous Committee was chosen to see the same was duly observed and strictly adhered to.

At the same meeting five Deputies were appointed to assist at the Convention to meet here the 25th instant, for the choice of Delegates to represent this Province at the Continental Congress proposed to be held at Philadelphia, in May next; and the said Deputies were empowered to join with the other Deputies of the Convention in choosing a Committee of their body to proportion the sum to be allowed such Delegates, among the several Towns and Parishes in this Government.

It was also voted not to suffer any Hawkers, Pedlars, or Petty-Chapmen to sell, or expose to sale, among us any Goods, Wares, or Merchandise. It is the opinion of many, that if this vote, with the law of the Province, should prove ineffectual to prevent the intrusion of such persons, an experiment ought to be made of Tar and Feathers.

MORRIS COUNTY (NEW-JERSEY) MEETING.

At a Meeting of the Freeholders of the County of Morris, at Morristown, on Monday, the 9th day of January, 1775, WILLIAM WINDS, Esquire, Chairman.

The Committee of Correspondence, for the County of Morris, having produced and read the Association of the Continental Congress, the same was deliberately considered by the whole assembly, and by them unanimously approved as a wise, prudent, and constitutional mode of opposition to the late several tyrannical and oppressive Acts of the British Parliament. Whereupon they unanimously determined strictly to abide by the same, and gratefully expressed their acknowledgments and hearty thanks to the Delegates of this Colony for their great attention to the rights and liberties of their constituents, and for the faithful discharge of the important trust reposed in them.

The assembly then unanimously agreed that the inhabitants of each several Township in the County should meet at their respective places of holding Town Meetings, on Monday, the 23d day of January instant, at one o'clock in the afternoon, then and there respectively to choose (by those who are qualified to vote for Representatives in the Legislature) a Committee of Observation, pursuant to, and for the purposes expressed in the eleventh Article of the said Association. After which the Committee of Correspondence declared to the assembly that they had thought proper to dissolve themselves, in order that their constituents might have an opportunity of a new choice, and that they were dissolved accordingly: Whereupon Jacob Ford, William Winds, and Jonathan Stiles. Esquires, Messrs. Jacob Drake, Peter Dickerson, and Ellis Cook, together with Samuel Tuthill, Doctor William Hart, and Abraham Ogden, Esquires, were elected; and at the same time authorized to instruct the Representatives of this County, when convened in General Assembly, to join in the appointment of Delegates for this Colony, to meet in General Congress, at Philadelphia; but if the said Assembly should not appoint Delegates for that purpose by the first day of April next, then the said Committee of Correspondence to meet with the several County Committees of this Colony, and appoint the said Delegates, at such time and place as shall be agreed upon by the said Committees.

The assembly afterwards taking into consideration the conduct of James Rivington, Printer in New-York, in publishing two certain Pamphlets; the one entitled "A Friendly Address," &c., &c.; the other, under the signature of "A. W. Farmer," and several others; all containing many, falsehoods, wickedly calculated to divide the Colonies - to deceive the ignorant, and to cause a base submission to the unconstitutional measures of the British Parliament for enslaving the Colonies, do unanimously resolve, that they esteem the said James Rivington an enemy to his country; and therefore that they will, for the future, refrain from taking his Newspapers, and from all further commerce with him; and that, by all lawful means in their power, they will discourage the circulation of his Papers in this County.

LETTER FROM BOSTON TO THE COMMITTEE APPOINTED IN NEW-YORK TO RECEIVE AND TRANSMIT DONATIONS FOR THE RELIEF OF THE SUFFERERS IN THAT TOWN.

Boston, January 9, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The Committee appointed by the inhabitants of this Town to receive and distribute the donations of our friends, for the benefit of the sufferers by the Boston

Port Bill. acknowledge your several letters of the 7th and 17th of December last, enclosing invoices of Flour, &c, amounting with charges, to one thousand and sixty-two Pounds, nine Shillings, and six Pence, which agreeable to y^our kind wishes, are come safe to hand.

I am directed by the Committee to request that you would assure our benefactors, the worthy citizens of New-York, of their warmest gratitude for the very seasonable relief they have afforded their brethren in this place, by such generous donations, in this most difficult time of the year: While we acknowledge the superintendency of Divine Providence, we feel our obligations to the sister Colonies. — By their liberality they have greatly chagrined the common enemies of America, who flattered themselves with hopes, that, before this day they should have starved us into a compliance with the insolent demands of despotick power. — But the people, relieved by your charitable contributions, bear the indignity with becoming patience and fortitude. They are not insensible of the injuries done them, as men as well as free American subjects; but they restrain their just resentment, from a due regard to the common cause.

The Committee beg the favour of you, gentlemen, to return their thanks to our worthy brethren of Marbletown, for the valuable donation received from them.

I am, with due acknowledgments for the care you have taken in transmitting these donations, in the name of the Committee, gentlemen, your affectionate friend and humble servant, &c.

SAMUEL ADAMS, Chairman.

MEETING OF AMERICAN MERCHANTS, LONDON.

King's Arms Tavern, Cornhill, January 11, 1775.

At a very numerous Meeting of Merchants, Traders, and others, concerned in the American Commerce, agreeable to adjournment, THOMAS LANE, Esq., in the Chair.

The Committee informed the meeting, that they had prepared the Petition proposed at their last meeting.

Moved, That the said Petition be read. It was read accordingly.

Resolved unanimously, That the Petition now presented and read, is approved of by this meeting

Resolved unanimously, That the above mentioned Petition be fairly engrossed, under the inspection of the same Committee that prepared it, with the addition of Mr. Strettell, Mr. Watson, Mr. Hunter, for the Province of Quebec; and that the said Committee be desired to attend the signing and presenting of the same to the House of Commons, and to prepare and digest such evidence as may be necessary for proving the allegations of the said Petition and for supporting the same.

Resolved unanimously, That the Committee be desired to call another meeting of the Merchants, Traders, and others, concerned in the American Commerce, (as soon as they know the fate of the Petition in the House of Commons) in order that the publick may be properly informed thereof.

Resolved unanimously, That the minutes of this meeting be fairly transcribed, and inserted in the publick morning and evening Papers, signed by the Chairman.

THOMAS LANE, Chairman.

A circumstantial account of the Proceedings of the NORTH AMERICAN Merchants, held at the King's Arms Tavern, CORNHILL, LONDON, on Wednesday, Jan 11, 1775

There was a very numerous and respectable meeting of the Merchants, &c., trading to North America, consisting of between four and five hundred, for the purpose of the Committee (appointed at the last meeting) reporting the particulars of a Petition to be presented to Parliament in the present alarming situation of American affairs.

The business of the meeting was opened about eleven o'clock, by the reading of the Petition, the substance of which was as follows:

"First, stating to the House, the several particulars of "the extensive trade carried on between this country and "America, as it respected the barter of commodities, the "balance of cash, as well as the negotiation of exchange in "several parts of Europe; it next stated how this very "extensive trade was hurt by the several Revenue Bills "affecting North America, passed since the repeal of the "Stamp Act, to the year 1773; it then concluded by praying redress in these particulars, as well as in the operation of all other Acts which may affect the general trade "carried on between this country and North America." The whole was couched in decent, manly terms; and in point of style, good sense and precision, shewed the Committee appointed for drawing it up every way equal to the great trust delegated to them.

As soon as the Petition was read, Mr. Haley made the following motion: "That the Petition entitled &c., &c., now read, be approved of." This opened a very long, yet an able and candid debate.

Mr. Watson said he had no objection to the Petition then as it went; on the contrary he highly approved of it, yet he was for adding a clause where the late Quebec Bill should be particularly expressed, and where the very great constitutional, as well as commercial evils, resulting from that Bill should be marked out; that he saw no reason Why so extensive a Province as Canada, the trade whereof was so very material to the interest of this country, should be left out of so great a question as the present; he therefore proposed a clause after, "the operation of all other Acts," particularly specifying the late Quebec Bill.

Mr. Baker answered Mr. Watson, by first calling the recollection of the gentlemen present to the general wish thrown out last meeting, of the Committee's avoiding every thing that was political in the Petition; he said that they had, in consequence, been very guarded in this particular, but however, to be as extensive as they could with prudence, they had still left an opening, by the words, "the operation of all other Acts," for Counsel at the bar of the House to plead any inconveniences arising from the Quebec or other Acts; the Boston Port and Massachusetts Bay Bills were omitted for the same purpose, yet were by no means precluded, if the Committee should afterwards think proper to instruct their Counsel so, from being remonstrated against, either in part or in the whole.

Mr. Sargeant supported Mr. Baker, in a very eloquent and forcible manner and shewed, by fresh implications, that the words in the Petition, "as in the operation of all other Acts," were fully competent to any clauses that could be added either in favour of Quebec or Boston.

Mr. Nutt acquainted the meeting, that probably he could reconcile this difference of opinion, by informing them, on almost positive grounds, that the King, by a clause in the Quebec Bill, empowering him to allow at his pleasure, of the trial by Juries, and the use of the Habeas Corpus Act, had either sent out, or was preparing to send out, an order for their continuing in full force, and that as the Quebec Bill was not to take place till the first of May next, the ill effect of that Bill in these two particulars would never operate; this being the case, he imagined it would be found less necessary to insist on adding the clause respecting Quebec. Several other gentlemen for these and other reasons, were for having no additions made to the Petition.

Mr. Watson replied to them, and urged with greater confidence, the necessity of particularizing Quebec. He said, though our present gracious Sovereign might feel for his Canadian subjects in allowing them the use of Juries and the Habeas Corpus Act, this Nation might one day or other have a Sovereign of a different way of thinking; he was therefore not for leaving things on such uncertain ground as the will of a Prince, but for having them established with more certainty and precision.

Mr. Sharp and some others agreed with Mr. Watson, particularly the former, who said, among other things, "that "Canada was universally looked upon as a cudgel, in the "hands of Government, against the rest of the Americans."

Mr. Creighton more than once attempted to meet the differences of the assembly, by complimenting, in high terms, the draught, purport, and extent of the Petition; and then expressing his wish, that three Canadian Merchants should be added to the Committee, for the purpose of instructing Counsel touching those points, which Mr. Watson and his friends so much insisted on, by which they might bring about, equally as well, the effects they so much desired.

Desired.

This debate continued several hours, in which Mr. Watson, and Mr. Baker, were principals, on different sides, at the close of it the question was put, and carried unanimously.

After this a motion was made by Mr. Watson, for entering into a Resolution, independent of the Petition, expressing the opinion of the meeting as to the evil consequences of the Quebec Bill. This, though in fact agreed to by almost every body, yet as they thought proper, for reasons already given, not to insert them in the Petition, it was urged by the majority present that such a Resolution would rather be out of place. Mr. Watson, after awhile, seeing the sense of the company lean this way, withdrew his motion.

On Wednesday, the 11th day of January, 1775, the Deputies from every Parish and District in the Province of South Carolina, met at the Exchange, in Charlestown, agreeably to the Resolutions of Election, When They unanimously chose Colonel Charles Pinckney, to be their President,

And Peter Timothy, a Member, to be their Secretary.

They then adjourned to the Chamber of the Commons House of Assembly, in the west end of the State House; When the Proceedings of the Continental Congress were laid before them.

Ordered, That the American Bill of Rights, as declared by the Continental Congress, be taken into immediate consideration.

And after some debate, it was Resolved, That this Congress do approve the Declaration of American Rights, as framed by the Continental Congress.

Ordered, That the Association formed by the late Continental Congress, be taken into immediate consideration.

The Association was then read, and, after long debate, it was Resolved, That this Congress do approve the American Association. *

Ordered, That the Resolutions of the late Continental Congress, on the 10th of September last, and the first, second, fourth, and sixth Resolutions of the said Congress, on the 14th of October last, be taken into immediate consideration.

Resolved, That this Congress do approve the above Resolutions of the Continental Congress.

Ordered, That the President do return the most cordial and grateful thanks of this Congress to each of the late Delegates from this Colony to the late Continental Congress, for their able and faithful discharge, in the said Congress, of the high trust reposed in them by their country. And the same was done accordingly.

Resolved, That the unfeigned thanks of every American are justly due to the worthy and patriotick Members of the

* Our Delegates from Congress being present, the proceedings of that body at Philadelphia were taken into consideration, and many questions were proposed to them relative to various parts of the proceedings, to which answers and explanations were given by them. One of the most important of these was, why, at a time when a number of gentlemen were sent to Congress from all parts of America, for the express purpose of considering and stating the American grievances, and for devising the proper means of redressing them; why did they limit their researches to the year 1763, and not trace back, as could easily have been done, the many aggressions which had been committed by Great Britain upon her infant Colonies, in the jealousies, monopolies, and prohibitions, with which she was so prodigal towards them, for the express purpose of depressing their population, confining their trade, and crippling their attempts at even the most domestic and necessary manufactures? To this it was answered, that our Delegates were willing to have stated all the grievances, as were the greater part of the other Delegates; but the people of Virginia would not retrospect farther back than 1763, being limited in their powers. And, although they did not avow the reason, yet it was privately declared, it had been agreed upon at home, not to go beyond that year; as thereby the greater odium would be thrown upon the reign of George the Third, which was so fatal to the peace of America. The Delegates farther answered, it was then pressed in Congress, that the other Colonies should in this measure act independently of Virginia; but Maryland and North Carolina represented, that as their exports were similar to those of Virginia, so they could not with any advantage to the common cause act independently of her; for their own commodities would be carried to the Virginian Ports, which would run away with all their trade. And that in this manner was the measure of stating all the grievances defeated.

The Articles of Association determined upon by Congress, and recommended to the Provincial Conventions and Congresses to be carried into execution, now came on to be considered, and the four last words of the fourth article of that instrument, ("except Rice to Europe,") gave room for long and a violent debate. This exception had created an alarming disunion throughout the whole Colony, in consequence of which, the Representatives had met with jealous feelings on the subject; as by that article of the Association, it was contracted, that after the 10th day of September, 1775, America "will not directly or indirectly export any merchandise or commodity whatsoever to Great Britain, Ireland, or the West Indies, except Rice to Europe." This exception had given so general a disgust, that the whole interior of the Province considered their interests as sacrificed to the emolument of the Rice Planters, and accordingly a motion was made and seconded, "that the Delegates to be elected, use their utmost endeavours at the ensuing Congress at Philadelphia, to cause those words to be expunged."

Mr. Gadsden then rose, and explained to the Congress what had taken place in the Continental Congress during the passage of the obnoxious exception. He said he thought it was his duty to declare, he had not any hand in causing those words to stand in the instrument of Association, that they had well nigh occasioned a division in Congress. And so ill was a proposition of that nature received, that it had occasioned a cessation from business for several days, in order to give our Deputies time to recollect themselves. That when the Association was completing, and the Members of Congress were signing that instrument, all our Deputies but himself withdrew. That he would have been glad of the honour of signing his name alone; and for doing so, would have trusted to the generosity of his constituents. That he had offered to do so, and that Carolina was on the point of being excluded the Association, when our Deputies being again summoned by the Secretary, they returned into Congress, yielding up the article of Indigo; and that Congress, only for the sake of preserving the union of America, allowed the article Rice to be added to the Association. That this, however, was illy received by the other Colonies, who had thence become jealous of the Rice Colonies; and therefore, it was his opinion, that for the common good, as well as our own honour, we ought to remove this as soon as possible, by having the words "except Rice to Europe" struck out of the Fourth article of the Association.

Mr. John Rutledge now undertook his own defence and that of his three associates. He said that at an early period, he and the other Delegates from this Colony had warmly pressed a Non-Importation, and total Non-Exportation. That, as a Non-Exportation to Great Britain and Ireland, was to withhold from thence the advantages their people might acquire from a receipt of American commodities, so the end would be more surely effected by retaining those commodities altogether in America. Such measures, however, could not be effected; the Northern Colonies resolving to remit to England as usual, to pay their debts by the circuitous mode of their Flour and Fish trade to the rest of Europe. In short, the commodities they usually sent to the mother country were but trifling, and their real trade would be but little affected by the Association. For instance, Philadelphia carried on a trade of export to the amount of seven hundred thousand Pounds Sterling, whereas, scarce fifty thousand Pounds, value of it late Continental Congress, held at Philadelphia, for their wise and spirited exertions in behalf of American Liberty and the Representatives of this Colony, now met in Provincial Congress, do hereby, in behalf of themselves, and in the names of their constituents, unanimously express their sense of the great services rendered them by those important proceedings.

Ordered, That the Reverend Mr. Turquand, a Member, be desired to celebrate divine service in Provincial Congress.

Resolved, That the President do return the thanks of the Congress to the Reverend Mr. Turquand, Rector of St. Matthews Parish, for his devout and pious performance of divine service before the Congress. And the same was done accordingly.

Resolved, That it be recommended by this Congress to the inhabitants of this Colony, that they give a preference went to the market of the mother country. That, as it was evident those Colonies were less intent to annoy the mother country in the article of trade, than to preserve their own trade; so he thought it was but justice to his constituents, to preserve to them their trade as entire as possible. That, as the Northern trade would be but little affected by the Association, he saw no reason why ours should be almost ruined; for nearly all our Indigo, and two-thirds of our Rice, went to the ports of the mother country. That, if we must bear burdens in the cause of America, they ought to be as equally laid as possible. Upon the whole, he said the affair seemed rather like a commercial scheme among the Flour Colonies, to find a better vent for their Flour through the British Channel, by preventing, if possible, any Rice from being sent to those markets; and that, for his part, he could never consent to our becoming dupes to the people of the North, or in the least to yield to their unreasonable expectations. That, as by the Association, the Rice Planters preserved their property, so it had been the idea of the Delegates at the Congress, that they should make compensation to the Indigo Planters, who could not send their crops to the mother country. Such a plan was just and practicable, and it ought to be the subject of our debate, rather than expunging the means of exporting a great part of our annual crop, and therewith, supplying ourselves with those necessities we might require.

The subject thus increased by this now matter of compensation brought into view, the debate became more general, and several members took parts in the same. Among the principal of these were, John Rutledge, Thomas Lynch, William Henry Drayton, Edward Rutledge, and Mr. Lynch, Jun., on one side; on the other, the principal speakers were, Christopher Gadsden, Rawlind Lowndes, and the Reverend Mr. Tennent.

By these latter gentlemen, it was contended the compensation scheme was impracticable. That if it were to operate in favour of the Indigo, Planter, it should afford in justice also relief to the Hemp Grower, the Lumber Cutter, the Corn Planter, the Makers of Pork and Butter, &c., for why should this benefit be confined to the Indigo Maker, in exclusion of other classes of citizens, whose commodities were their means of support, and would equally, nay, more, be unsaleable by the Association? That, as we were all one people, we should all suffer alike; and then, all would struggle through difficulties which might arise. That union among ourselves was a sine qua non, and this odious distinction had cruelly convulsed the Colony. Besides which, our Northern brethren beheld us with a jealous eye, and we ought to induce them to look upon us more favourably; for, if blood were to be spilt in the American cause, theirs would be first shed, while ours would be running only in the usual channels.

In reply, it was contended by the Delegates, and the first named gentlemen, that a compensation was very practicable, and therefore ought to be proceeded in; and particularly so, as it would render any opposition to the Association unnecessary. That we ought not by any measure, to express a public dislike of any thing the late Congress had done, as such conduct would be bad policy; on the contrary, we ought to evince the utmost confidence in their determination, as contributing to the general apparent union; and at this time, such an appearance alone, was of the utmost importance.

In this manner, the whole day was expended; when, at sunset, a Committee was appointed to form a plan of compensation, and to report it on the next morning.

The Committee met in an hour, and sat until twelve o'clock at night; and the next morning, at eleven o'clock, they brought in their Report, the Provincial Congress having impatiently waited two hours for them. The first part of the Report contained the famous Resolve relating to debt, by which the Committees of the several Parishes and Districts became Judges and Juries, and upon application, were to give permission for the bringing, or proceeding on, suits, where the debtors refused to renew their obligations, or to give reasonable security, or where they were justly suspected of intentions to leave the Province, or to defraud their creditors, or where there should appear to the majority of such Committee, any other reasonable cause for granting such permission; that the Congress would indemnify the Committees in so doing; and that no summons should be issued by any Magistrate, in small and mean causes, without the like consent. This part of the Report was immediately agreed to; but all the other parts were so intricate, and so little satisfactory, that they were rejected; and the Congress resumed the debate on the four words.

This debate was now carried on without any cessation, until dark. Great heats prevailed, and the members were on the point of falling into downright uproar and confusion. At length, all parties being wearied out, the question was put by candle-light, and by mere accident, at the desire of one among the Indigo party, it was put in a manner that lost it: for, instead of voting as usual, by acclamation, to save time, and mistakes in counting, each man's name was called, and he declared himself yea, or nay, which was minuted down. By this mode, some were overawed, either by their diffidence, circumstances, or connexions; and to the surprise of the nays, they themselves carried the point, by a majority of twelve voices - eighty-seven to seventy-five. - Drayton.

to their own Flour and other Manufactures; and that such articles be sold at reasonable rates.

Resolved, That it is the unanimous opinion of this Congress, that no action for any Debt shall be commenced in the Court of Common Pleas of this Colony, nor any such action pending there, which was commenced since last September Return, be proceeded in without the consent of the Committee of the Parish or District, in which the defendant resides, until it shall be otherwise determined in Provincial Congress. That the said Committees, respectively, or a majority of such of them as shall meet, (provided they are not less than three, in the country Parishes and Districts,) do, upon application, give permission for the bringing or proceeding on such suits, in the following cases: - that is to say, where the debtors refused to renew their obligations, or to give reasonable security, or are justly suspected of intentions to leave the Province, or to defraud their creditors, or where there shall appear to the majority of such Committees, as aforesaid, any other reasonable cause for the granting such permission; which Committees shall meet and sit on the first and third Saturdays in every month, at twelve o'clock, at noon, or oftener if it shall be found necessary, for the purpose of hearing and determining on such applications. That seizures and sales upon mortgages shall be considered on the same footing as actions for debts. That it be recommended to the Committees for each Parish and District, that they use their best endeavours to prevent any debtors from removing their effects out of the Colony, without the knowledge and consent of their creditors. That the Congress will indemnify the Committees for so doing. And that no summons shall be issued by any Magistrate, in small and mean causes, without the like consent.

Resolved, That any eleven members of the Charlestown Committee shall be a sufficient number to receive and determine upon applications relative to the issuing of writs and process, and proceeding on suits and mortgages, in the Parishes of St. Philip and St. Michael.

Resolved, That the following gentlemen be the Committees for the several Districts and Parishes hereinafter mentioned, for effectually carrying into execution the Continental Association, and for receiving and determining upon applications relative to law processes as aforesaid.

Resolved, That a strict conformity to the requisition of this Congress, be recommended to the Gentlemen of the Law, and all other persons, in regard to the issuing of writs and process, and proceeding on suits and mortgages.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Congress that after the 10th day of September next, compensation shall be made by those who raise articles which may be then exported to those who cannot raise such articles for the losses which they may sustain by not exporting the commodities which they raise.

Resolved, That if the exportation of Rice should be continued after the 10th day of September next, one third of the Rice made in this Colony shall, as it is brought to Charlestown, Beaufort, and Georgetown, be deposited in the hands of the Committees hereinafter appointed, at each of those places, respectively, and sold by such Committees.

Resolved, That the said Committees receive such of the following commodities as shall be brought to them, the same being the produce of this Colony, merchantable, and not more in quantity or value than one-third of the commodities of each kind raised for sale in one season, by the owner of them, (Butter excepted,) viz: Indigo; Copper, of the best sort, at thirty Shillings per pound, and other kinds in proportion to that value; Hemp, at eight Pounds per hundred weight, exclusive of the bounty; Corn, at twelve Shillings and six Pence per bushel; Flour, of the best sort, at four Pounds ten Shillings, and of the second sort, at four Pounds per hundred weight; Lumber, inch pine boards, per thousand feet, at twenty Pounds in Charlestown, and fifteen Pounds in Beaufort and Georgetown, and other plank and scantling in proportion; Pork, at thirteen Pounds per barrel; Butter, at three Shillings per pound. * And that in case the price of Rice should be higher or lower than fifty-five Shillings per hundred weight, when the said commodities are deposited with such Committee, the price of such commodities shall be raised or lowered from the above rate, in proportion to such rise or fall of the price of Rice

Resolved, That the said Committees shall pay for the said commodities in the order they are brought to them, according to the foregoing rates; either in money arising from the sale of Rice, as it shall be delivered to them, if such Rice shall be sold and the money received, or in Rice, if the owner of such commodities chooses to take it, or in certificates setting forth the quantity and value of the commodities which the Committee have received, and to whom they belonged; and that such person, or the person holding such certificate, may receive the said sum in his turn, as money shall be received for Rice brought to the Committee, which certificates shall pass and be received as money.

Resolved, That the persons making Indigo shall produce to the Committee of the Parish or District, in which it shall have been made, on oath, samples of it, according to its different qualities.

Resolved, That the person bringing any of the said commodities to the said Committees in Charlestown, Beaufort, and Georgetown, shall at the same time produce a certificate from the Committee of the Parish or District where such commodities shall have been made or raised, (which certificate, such Committee being satisfied of the truth thereof, on oath of the party, shall give) specifying that the commodities so brought, are only one-third according to the quantity and quality of the commodity of that kind, raised in this Colony in one season, for sale by the owner requiring such certificate.

Resolved, That the commodities, brought to the said Committees, shall be at the risk of the persons bringing them down, until they shall be sold or exchanged as aforesaid. And that the Rice Planter, on delivering a third of his Rice, as it shall be brought to market to the Committee, shall have his proportion of such commodities as aforesaid, in the order they shall have been brought down, delivered to him, or disposed of as he shall think proper.

Resolved, That the Committees settle their accounts of this business in November, 1776, and pay to the Rice Planters the balance of money (if any) belonging to them, which shall be in the hands of the said Committees. And in case the Rice so delivered shall not be sufficient to sink the said certificates, the same shall be made good out of the next crop of Rice.

Resolved, That persons making any other commodities than those above enumerated, which cannot be exported, shall be put upon a footing, in point of compensation for their losses by a non-exportation, with the makers of the commodities above specified.

Resolved, That the following gentlemen be Committees, to exchange Rice for other commodities after the 10th day of September next, if the non-exportation of Rice should be continued after that day, viz:

For CHARLESTOWN. - Christopher Gadsden, Isaac Hu-

* This was the Paper currency of the Province, and was depreciated to seven for one of Specie.

Resolved, That in case of a General Exportation or Non-Importation, these Resolutions respecting compensation shall cease.

Resolved, That it be recommended to the inhabitants of this Colony, to raise Cotton, Hemp, Flour, Wool, Barley, and Hops.

Resolved, That after the first day of March next, no Lambs or Sheep be killed for sale.

Resolved, That stores in Charlestown, Beaufort, and Georgetown, be taken, and Storekeepers employed to buy all the Wool that may be brought to them; at three Shillings per pound for unwashed, and five Shillings for clean Wool; that it be sold out at the same rates, to any person who shall undertake to manufacture it: and that such Storekeepers receive, and expose to sale, for the benefit of the persons bringing them down, all Linen, Woollen, and Cotton manufactures of this Colony.

Resolved, That the present Representation of this Colony shall continue until the next general meeting of the inhabitants, under the title of the Provincial Congress. That it shall be adjourned from time to time by the President. That it be summoned to convene for the despatch of business, upon any emergency, by a vote of the Charlestown General Committee, at which Committee, every Member of this Congress who may happen to be in Town, shall attend, and shall be considered as a Member.

Resolved, That any forty-nine Members of the Provincial Congress, be a sufficient number to proceed on business.

Resolved, That any twenty-one Members of the Charlestown Committee, assembled, be a sufficient number to proceed upon business.

Resolved, That when vacancies shall happen in any Parish or District, by the death, removal, or refusal to act as a Member of the present Congress, or the above-mentioned Committees, the same shall be filled up by the inhabitants of such Parishes or Districts respectively.

Resolved, That it be strongly recommended to the Parochial and District Committees, to use their utmost endeavours to obtain liberal donations for the relief of the suffering people in the Town of Boston and Colony of Massachusetts Bay. And that all such donations as may be collected from time to time, be transmitted to the General Committee in Charlestown.

Resolved, That the Hon. Henry Middleton, Esquire, Thomas Lynch, Christopher Gadsden, John Rutledge, and Edward Rutledge, Esqrs., or any three of them, be, and they are hereby, appointed and authorized to represent this Colony on the 10th day of May next, or sooner, if necessary, at the American Congress, to be held at Philadelphia, or elsewhere, with full power to concert, agree upon, direct and order such further measures as in the opinion of the said Deputies, and the Delegates of the other American Colonies to be assembled, shall appear to be necessary, for the recovery and establishment of American Rights and Liberties, and for restoring harmony between Great Britain and her Colonies.

Resolved, That this Congress will pay the expenses of the said Deputies, in going to, attending at, and returning from the said American Congress.

Resolved, That a Committee be appointed to prepare a proper Address to his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour, touching the sitting of the General Assembly:

The Committee reported the Address to the Lieutenant-Governour, which having been amended, is as follows:

To the Honourable WILLIAM BULL, Esquire, Lieutenant-Governour and Commander-in-Chief in and over his Majesty's Colony of SOUTH CAROLINA.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: We his Majesty's faithful and loyal subjects, the Representatives of all the good people in this Colony, now met in Provincial Congress, think ourselves indispensably obliged to address your Honour, for redress of a grievance, which threatens destruction to the Constitution, and ruin to the inhabitants of this country: we mean the long and still continued disuse of General Assemblies, contrary, not only to every principle of free Government, but directly against a law of this Province.

To enumerate all the unhappy consequences which must follow a denial of the right of the People, to appear, frequently, by their Representatives in General Assembly, must be unnecessary, Your Honour, who has as a private person enjoyed the blessing of freedom and good Government amongst us, can want no information on that head.

Taxes continuing to be raised and paid, and laws to be executed, against the sense of the people, are but a part of our grievances.

Mortifying as these considerations are, the causes are more so; being, according to our best information, no other than a refusal of the House of Assembly to obey Ministerial mandates, contrary to their consciences, and subversive of the rights of their constituents; and his Majesty's Council, composed chiefly of place-men, paying an implicit and servile obedience to unconstitutional instructions. Such acts tend immediately to a total abolition of Assemblies; for, if freedom of debate, and a constitutional independence be denied to them, they cannot possibly be useful; probably they will become dangerous.

We forbear to trouble your Honour with reasons in support of the request which we now as of right make, in behalf of all the good subjects of his Majesty in this Colony, that the holding and sitting of the General Assembly be no longer delayed, but that it be permitted to sit for the despatch of publick business as formerly.

We pray your Honour to be assured, that by this our humble Address, we do not intend to question his Majesty's prerogative of calling, proroguing, and dissolving the General Assembly, but only to request that this power be exercised for the good of the people.

By order of the Provincial Congress.

CHARLES PINCKNEY, President.

In PROVINCIAL CONGRESS, Charlestown, January 17, 1775.

The Address having been presented by the Congress, his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour was pleased to return the following Answer:

GENTLEMEN: I know no legal Representative of the good people of this Province, but the Commons House of Assembly, chosen according to the Election Act, and met in General Assembly. As gentlemen of respectable characters and property in this Province, I acquaint you, that the General Assembly stands prorogued to the 24th instant. I have always endeavoured to make the law of the land my rule of government in the administration of publick affairs, and I shall not omit observing it in meeting the General Assembly according to the prorogation; with whom I shall, under the guidance of my duty to the King, and zeal for the service of the Province, do every thing in my power, that can contribute to the publick welfare.

WILLIAM BULL.

Charlestown, January 17, 1775.

Resolved, That it be recommended by this Congress, to all the inhabitants of this Colony, that they be diligently attentive in learning the use of Arms; and that their officers be requested to train and exercise them at least once a fortnight.

Resolved, That it be recommended to the inhabitants of this Colony, to set apart Friday, the 17th February next, as a day of fasting, humiliation and prayer, before Almighty God, devoutly to petition him to inspire the King with true wisdom, to defend the people of North America in their just title to freedom, and to avert from them the impending calamities of civil war.

Resolved, That the several Ministers of the Gospel throughout the Colony be requested to prepare and deliver suitable discourses upon this solemn occasion.

Resolved, That every Member of the present Congress who may be in Town, do meet at the Commons House of Assembly, and proceed from thence in a body, to attend divine service in St. Philip's Church: and that the President do request of the Rev. Mr. Robert Smith, that he will prepare, and preach on that day, a Sermon suitable to the importance of the occasion.

Resolved, That the President do accept of the most hearty thanks of this Congress, for the unwearied attendance he has given on the service of it, and for the very satisfactory conduct which he has pursued during the course of its important transactions.

Resolved, That the thanks of this Congress be returned to the Member who performed the duty of Secretary, for his faithful and diligent attention to that service.

The Congress then adjourned until it shall be summoned to convene by the Charlestown General Committee.

COUNCIL OF NEW-JERSEY.

Proceedings of his Majesty's Council for the Province of New-Jersey, at a Session of the General Assembly of the said Province, begun and holden at the City of Perth Amboy, on Wednesday, the eleventh day of January, in the fifteenth year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord King George the Third, Anno Domini 1775.

Friday, January 13, 1775.

The House met: Present, David Ogden, James Parker, Esquires, the Chief Justice, Daniel Coxe, John Lawrence, and Francis Hopkinson, Esquires.

His Excellency came into the Council Chamber, and having, by the Deputy Secretary, commanded the attendance of the House of Assembly, the Speaker with the House attended, when his Excellency was pleased to make a Speech to both Houses. After which the Speaker, with the House of Assembly, withdrew.

Wednesday, January 18, 1775.

The House met: Present, David Ogden, Esquire, the Earl of Stirling, John Stevens, James Parker, Esquires; the Chief Justice, Richard Stockton, Daniel Coxe, John Lawrence, and Francis Hopkinson, Esquires.

His Excellency's Speech to both Houses, at the opening of this session, being read;

Ordered, That Mr. Parker, Mr. Stockton, and Mr. Hopkinson, be a Committee to prepare and bring in a draught of an Address to his Excellency, in answer to the said Speech.

Tuesday, January 24, 1775.

The House met: Present, David Ogden, John Stevens, James Parker, Esquires, the Chief Justice, Richard Stockton, Daniel Coxe, John Lawrence, and Francis Hopkinson, Esquires.

Mr. Parker, from the Committee to whom it was referred to prepare and bring in a draught of an Address to his Excellency, in answer to his Speech at the opening of the session, reported that the said Committee had prepared the draught of an Address, which he was ready to report when the House would be pleased to receive the same.

Ordered, That the said Report be made immediately.

Mr. Parker then read the said draught in his place, and delivered it in at the table.

And the said draught having been again read, and some amendments made thereto,

Ordered, That the said Address be engrossed.

Wednesday, January 25, 1775

The House met: Present, Peter Kemble, David Ogden, Esquires, the Earl of Stirling, John Stevens; James Parker, Esquires, the Chief Justice, Richard Stockton, Daniel Coxe, John Lawrence, and Francis Hopkinson, Esquires.

The engrossed Address to his Excellency being read and compared, was approved by the House.

Ordered, That the Speaker do sign the same.

Ordered, That Mr. Coxe and Mr. Hopkinson wait upon his Excellency, and request to know when he will be pleased to receive the Address of the House.

Mr. Coxe reported that Mr. Hopkinson and himself had obeyed the order of the House, and that his Excellency was pleased to say the House should hear from him.

Thursday, January 26, 1775.

The House met: Present, Peter Kemble, David Ogden, Esquires, the Earl of Stirling, John Stevens, James Parker, the Chief Justice, Daniel Coxe, John Lawrence, and Francis Hopkinson, Esquires.

His Excellency came into the Council Chamber, and having signified that he was ready to receive the Address of this House, the House attended, and by their Speaker presented the following Address, viz:

To his Excellency WILLIAM FRANKLIN, Esquire, Captain-General, Governonr and Commander-in-Chief in and over his Majesty's Province of NEW-JERSEY, and Territories thereon depending in AMERICA, Chancellor and Vice-Admiral in the same, &c.

The humble Address of his Majesty's Council of the said Province:

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: We his Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Council of the Province of New-Jersey, beg leave to return your Excellency our thanks for your Speech at the opening of this session, and to express our obligations for having given us so early an opportunity of transacting the publick business; and that you have been pleased therein to consult our convenience.

We agree with your Excellency that it would argue not only a great want of duty to his Majesty, but of regard to the good people of this Province, were we, on this occasion, to pass over in silence the present alarming transactions which are so much the object of publick attention; and therefore beg leave to assure you, that, feeling ourselves strongly influenced by zealous attachment to the interests of Great Britain and her Colonies, and deeply impressed with a sense of the important connection they have with each other, we shall, with all sincere loyalty to our most gracious Sovereign, and all due regard to the true welfare of the inhabitants of this Province, endeavour to prevent mischiefs which the present situation of affairs seems to threaten; and by our zeal for the authority of Government on the one hand, and for the constitutional rights of the people on the other, aim at restoring that health of the political body, which every good subject must earnestly desire.

Your Excellency may be assured that we will exert our utmost influence, both in our publick and private capacities, to restore that harmony between the parent state and his Majesty's American Dominions, which is so essential to the happiness and prosperity of the whole Empire; and earnestly looking for that happy event, we will endeavour to preserve peace and good order among the people, and a dutiful submission to the laws.

To which is Excellency was pleased to reply in the words following, viz:

GENTLEMEN: I heartily thank you for this Address. Your sentiments concerning the present alarming transactions; your expressions of zealous attachment to the interests of Great Britain and her Colonies; your promises to exert your utmost influence to restore harmony between them, and to preserve peace, good order, and a dutiful submission to the laws, are such as evince your loyalty to the most gracious of Sovereigns, and your regard for the true welfare of the people. Their constitutional rights will ever be found best supported by a strict obedience to the laws and authority of Government. Whenever that barrier is broken down, anarchy and confusion, with all their attendant evils, will most assuredly enter and destroy all the blessings of civil society.

Friday, February 10, 1775, 4 o'clock, P. M.

The House met: Present, Peter Kemble, Esquire, the Earl of Stirling, John Stevens, Esquire, the Chief Justice, Richard Stockton, Stephen Skinner, and Daniel Coxe, Esquires.

Mr. Coxe in his place acquainted the House that he had received information that James Murdock, of the City of Perth Amboy, Surgeon, had presumed to send a challenge to one of the Members of this House, sitting as the General Assembly of this Colony, and moved the House that the said Member be called upon to produce the Letter containing the said challenge;

Whereupon, by order of the House, the said Letter was produced, and is in the words following, viz:

MY LORD: It is needless to repeat your Lordship's behaviour last night. Mr. Murdock now desires of your Lordship time and place to have the satisfaction of a gentleman. I am your Lordship's most obedient servant,

JAS. MURDOCK.

Friday Morning

Superscribed "This to Lord Stirling."

Resolved unanimously, That the said Letter is a most audacious insult to Lord Stirling; and that sending the same to him during the sitting of the General Assembly of this Colony, is a daring contempt of the authority, and a manifest violation of the rights and privileges of this House.

Ordered, therefore, That the Speaker do issue his Warrant, directed to the Sergeant-at-Arms, commanding him to apprehend and bring the said James Murdock forthwith before the House, to answer for the said contempt.

The House being informed that James Murdock was attending at the door in custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms, Ordered, That he be brought in.

And on his appearance before the House, and the said Letter being shown to him, he acknowledged that he wrote and sent the same as directed, and that he meant it as a challenge; but said he had done it in the heat of passion; that he was sensible he had done exceedingly wrong, and was sorry for his indiscretion; and that he was ready to make such farther acknowledgments as the House should be pleased to direct.

Ordered, That the Sergeant-at-Arms withdraw with the said James Murdock, and that he remain in his custody till farther orders.

Saturday, February 11, 1775.

The House met: Present, Peter Kemble, Esquire, the Earl of Stirling, John Stevens, Esquire, the Chief Justice, Richard Stockton, Stephen Skinner, and Daniel Coxe, Esquires.

The House resumed the consideration of the Insult and Breach of Privilege committed by James Murdock.

Resolved, That the said Murdock be brought up before this House by the Sergeant-at-Arms; and that he receive such reprimand and admonition from the Speaker, as the nature of his offence requires; and that he be also commanded to make such submission and acknowledgment of his offence, as may be satisfactory as well to the House as to Lord Stirling.

Whereupon, the said James Murdock was accordingly brought before the House, in custody of the Sergeant-at-Arms, and being reprimanded and admonished, did declare his unfeigned sorrow for the insult by him offered to the House, thanked the House for their lenity toward him, and with the fullest acknowledgments of his submission to the House, implored their pardon and forgiveness, as well for the publick insult offered to them, as for the affront to Lord Stirling.

Whereupon, he was ordered to be discharged from custody, on paying the accustomed Fees to the Sergeant-at-Arms.

Monday, February 13, 1775.

The House met: Present, the Earl of Stirling, John Stevens, Esquire, the Chief Justice, Stephen Skinner, and Daniel Coxe, Esquires.

A Message from the House of Assembly, by Mr. Fisher and Mr. Eldridge, informing this House that the House of Assembly have no farther business before this House, and that the House have no objection to such application being made for a dismissal.

To which the Speaker answered that there was no further business before this House, and that the House have no objection to such application being made for a dismissal.

Afternoon.

The House met: Present, the Earl of Stirling, John Stevens, Esquire, the Chief Justice, Stephen Skinner, and Daniel Coxe, Esquires.

The Speaker, with the House of Assembly, came into the Council Chamber, when the Deputy Secretary read to both Houses his Majesty's Proclamation, proroguing the General Assembly to Tuesday, the fourteenth day of March next, then to meet at the City of Burlington.

ASSEMBLY OF NEW-JERSEY.

Perth Amboy, Wednesday, January 11, 1775.

Pursuant to his Excellency's several prorogations of the General Assembly from time to time till this day, the House met, and, for want of a sufficient number of Members to proceed upon business, adjourned till to-morrow morning, ten o'clock.

Tuesday, January 12, 1775.

The House met.

Ordered, That Mr. Kinsey and Mr. Combs do wait on his Excellency and acquaint him that a sufficient number of Members to proceed upon business are now met, and are ready to receive any thing he may please to lay before them.

Mr. Kinsey reported that Mr. Combs and himself waited on the Governour, pursuant to the order of the House, who was pleased to say the House should hear from him.

Friday, January 13, 1775.

Mr. Kinsey laid before the House a duplicate of his Majesty's allowance of the Act entitled "An Act for establishing the Boundary or Partition Line between the Colonies of New-York and Nova-Caesarea or New-Jersey, and for confirming the Titles and Possessions."

A Message from his Excellency, by Mr. Deputy Secretary Pettit:

MR. SPEAKER: His Excellency is in the Council Chamber, and requires the immediate attendance of this House. Whereupon,

Mr. Speaker left the Chair, and with the House went to wait upon his Excellency; and being returned, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and reported that the House had waited on his Excellency, who was pleased to make a Speech to the Council and House of Assembly, of which Mr. Speaker said he had, to prevent mistakes, obtained a copy, and the same, by order of the House, was read, and is as follows, viz:

Gentlemen of the Council and Gentlemen of the Assembly

Although not more than ten months have elapsed since your last meeting in General Assembly; yet, as there are several matters of importance which require the particular attention of the Legislature, I have thought it proper to give you as early an opportunity of transacting the public business, as was consistent with your conveniency.

Gentlemen of the Assembly:

The support of Government having been expired ever since the first of October, I must recommend that matter to your early consideration.

The Barrack-master's accounts for the expenditure of the money granted last year for the supply of the King's Troops, shall be laid before you as soon as they can be prepared.

Gentlemen of the Council and Gentlemen of the Assembly:

It would argue not only a great want of duty to his Majesty, but of regard to the good people of this Province, were I, on this occasion, to pass over in silence the late alarming transactions in this and the neighbouring Colonies, or not endeavour to prevail on you to exert yourselves in preventing those mischiefs to this country, which, without your timely interposition, will, in all probability, be the consequence.

It is not for me to decide on the particular merits of the dispute between Great Britain and her Colonies; nor do I mean to censure those who conceive themselves aggrieved, for aiming at a redress of their grievances; it is a duty they owe themselves, their country, and their posterity. All that I wish to guard you against, is the giving any countenance or encouragement to that destructive mode of proceeding which has been unhappily adopted in part by some of the inhabitants of this Colony; and has been carried so far in others, as totally to subvert their former Constitution. It has already struck at the authority of one of the branches of the Legislature, in a particular manner. And if you, gentlemen of the Assembly, should give your approbation to transactions of this nature, you will do as much as lies in your power to destroy that form of Government of which you are an important part, and which it is your duty, by all lawful means, to preserve. To you your constituents have entrusted a peculiar guardianship of their rights and privileges. You are their legal Representatives, and you cannot, without a manifest breach of your trust, suffer any body of men, in this or any of the other Provinces, to usurp and exercise any of the powers vested in you by the Constitution. It behoves you particularly, who must be constitutionally supposed to speak the sense of the people at large, to be extremely cautious in consenting to any act whereby you may engage them as parties in, and make them answerable for measures which may have a tendency to involve them in difficulties far greater than those they aim to avoid.

Besides, there is not, gentlemen, the least necessity, consequently there will not be the least excuse for your running any such risks on the present occasion. If you are really disposed to represent to the King any inconveniences you conceive yourselves to lie under, or to make any propositions on the present state of America, I can assure you from the best authority, that such representations or propositions will be properly attended to, and certainly have greater weight coming from each Colony in its separate capacity, than in a channel, of the propriety and legality of which there may be much doubt.

You have now pointed out to you, gentlemen, two roads, one evidently leading to peace, happiness, and a restoration of the public tranquillity, the other inevitably conducting you to anarchy, misery, and all the horrors of a civil war.

Your wisdom, your prudence, your regard for the true interests of the people, will be best known when you have shown to which road you give the preference. If to the former, you will probably afford satisfaction to the moderate, the sober, and the discreet part of your constituents. If to the latter, you will, perhaps, for a time, give pleasure to the warm, the rash, and the inconsiderate among them, who, I would willingly hope, violent as is the temper of the present times, are not even now the majority. But it may be well for you to remember, should any calamity hereafter befall them from your compliance with their inclinations, instead of pursuing as you ought, the dictates of your own judgment, that the consequences of their returning to a proper sense of their conduct, may prove deservedly fatal to yourselves.

I shall say no more at present on this disagreeable subject, but only to repeat an observation I made to a former Assembly, on a similar occasion. "Every breach of the "Constitution, whether it proceeds from the Crown or the "People, is in its effects equally destructive to the rights "of both." It is the duty, therefore, of those who are entrusted with Government, to be equally careful in guarding against encroachments from the one as the other. But it is, says one of the wisest of men, a most infallible symptom of the dangerous state of liberty, when the chief men of a free country show a greater regard to popularity than to their own judgment.

WM. FRANKLIN.

Council Chamber, January 13, 1775.

Ordered, That his Excellency's Speech be read a second time.

Saturday, January 14, 1775.

Ordered, That Mr. Wetherill, Mr. Crane, Mr. Fisher, Mr. Taylor, Mr. Ford, Mr. Kinsey, Mr. Price, Mr. Tucker, Mr. Sheppard, and Mr. Hand, be and they are hereby appointed a Committee of Grievances, and they or any three of them, may meet together at such times and places as they or any three of them shall think proper to appoint, either during the sitting of the Assembly, or at any other time, and make report of their proceedings to the House.

Monday, January 16, 1775.

His Excellency's Speech was read the second time, and committed to a Committee of the Whole House.

Ordered, That the Committee sit to-morrow morning.

Tuesday, January 17, 1775.

The House, according to order, resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House on his Excellency's Speech; and after some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Mr. Fisher, Chairman of the Committee, reported that the Committee had made some progress in the matters to them referred, and desired leave to sit again, to which the House agreed.

Friday, January 20, 1775.

The House again, according to order, resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House, on his Excellency's Speech; and after some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Mr. Fisher, Chairman of the Committee, reported that they had made some further progress in the matters to them referred, and had come to two Resolutions, which he was ready to report whenever the House would please to receive the same, and that the Committee desired leave to sit again.

Ordered, That the said Report be made immediately, and that the Committee have leave to sit again;

Whereupon, Mr. Fisher reported the Resolutions of the Committee, as follows:

1. Resolved, That an humble Address be presented to his Excellency, in answer to his Speech.

To which the House agreed.

2. Resolved, That the Government of this Colony be honourably supported from the first day of October, 1774, to the first day of October, 1775.

To which the House agreed.

Saturday, January 21, 1775.

The House again, according to order, resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House on his Excellency's Speech; and after some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Mr. Fisher, Chairman of the Committee, reported that they had made some further progress in the matters to them referred, and desired leave to sit again; to which the House agreed.

Monday, January 23, 1775.

The House again, according to order, resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House on his Excellency's Speech; and after some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Mr. Fisher, Chairman of the Committee, reported that they had made some further progress in the matters to them referred, and desired leave to sit again; to which the House agreed.

Ordered, That Mr. Wetherill, Mr. Kinsey, Mr. Fisher, Mr. Lawrence, and Mr. Crane, be a Committee to prepare and bring in the draught of an Address to his Excellency, in answer to his Speech.

Ordered, That Mr. Price, Mr. Tucker, Mr. Dey, Mr. Sheppard, Mr. Roy, Mr. Sykes, and Mr. Elmer, be a Committee to bring in a Bill for support of Government.

Tuesday, January 24, 1775.

Mr. Crane and Mr. Kinsey laid before the House the following Memorial, which was read, and is as follows, to wit:

To the Honourable the House of Representatives of the Colony of NEW-JERSEY, in General Assembly met:

GENTLEMEN: We the subscribers, having been appointed and requested by the Committees of the several Counties in this Colony, including a majority of the Members of your House, to represent the Colony of New-Jersey in the Continental Congress of Delegates from the other American Colonies, at Philadelphia, in September last, beg leave to report to the House that we attended the said Congress, and did every thing in our power to answer the intention of our appointment; and hope and trust that the Proceedings of the said Congress, which we now lay before you for your consideration, will receive your approbation, and have the desired effect in producing that peace, happiness, harmony, and confidence, between Great Britain and the Colonies, so ardently wished for by all good men.

We are, gentlemen, your most obedient servants,

JAMES KINSEY, WILLIAM LIVINGSTON,
STEPHEN CRANE, JOHN DE HART.

January 11, 1775.

Mr. Crane and Mr. Kinsey also laid before the House the Proceedings of the Continental Congress, held at Philadelphia, in September last, which were read. On the question, whether the House approve of the said Proceedings? It passed in the affirmative.

Resolved, That this House do unanimously approve of the Proceedings of the Congress; such as are of the people called Quakers, excepting only to such parts as seem to wear an appearance, or may have a tendency to force, (if any such there be,) as inconsistent with their religious principles.

Resolved unanimously, That James Kinsey, Stephen Crane, William Livingston, John De Hart, and Richard Smith, Esquires, or any three of them, be and they are hereby appointed to attend the Continental Congress of the Colonies, intended to be held at the City of Philadelphia, in May next, or at any other time and place; and that they report their proceedings to the next session of the General Assembly; instructing the said Delegates to propose and agree to every reasonable and constitutional measure for the accommodation of the unhappy differences at present subsisting between our mother country and the Colonies, which the House most ardently wish for.

The House also being informed, that at the Congress held at Philadelphia, the 6th of September last, a motion was made to give some of the Colonies a greater number of votes in the determination of questions to be agitated therein, than to others; and conceiving such motion to be of dangerous consequence, do also instruct their Delegates not to agree to a measure of that kind, unless it should be agreed at the same time that no vote to be taken on such principles, shall, in future, be obligatory on any Colonies whose Delegates do not consent thereto.

Ordered, That Mr. Speaker do transmit a copy of the foregoing Resolutions to the Speakers of the Assemblies of New-York and Pennsylvania.

Resolved unanimously, That the Thanks of this House be given to James Kinsey, Stephen Crane, William Livingston, John De Hart, and Richard Smith, Esquires, for their faithful and judicious discharge of the trust reposed in them at the late Continental Congress.

Wednesday, January 25, 1775.

The House again, according to order, resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House on his Excellency's Speech; and after some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Mr. Fisher, Chairman of the Committee, reported that they have gone through the matters to them referred, and had come to one more Resolution, which he was ready to report whenever the House would please to receive the same.

Ordered, That the Report be made immediately;

Whereupon, Mr. Fisher reported the Resolution of the Committee, as follows:

Resolved, That an humble Petition be presented to his most gracious Majesty, praying a redress of the Grievances under which this and the neighbouring Colonies now labour; to which the House agreed.

Ordered, That Mr. Wetherill, Mr. Fisher, Mr. Ford, Mr. Tucker, and Mr. Sheppard, be a Committee to prepare and bring in a Petition accordingly.

Friday, January 27, 1775.

Mr. Tucker, from the Committee appointed for that purpose, brought in a Bill, entitled "An Act for Support of "Government of his Majesty's Colony of New-Jersey," &c., which was read and ordered to a second reading.

Monday, January 30, 1775.

Mr. Wetherill, from the Committee appointed to prepare the draught of an Address to his Excellency, brought in a draught: which was read and ordered a second reading.

Tuesday, January 31, 1775.

A Message from his Excellency, by the Deputy Secretary, which was read, and is as follows:

GENTLEMEN: I send you the Barrack-master's Accounts of Expenses incurred for the repair of the Barracks and supply of the King's Troops, including furniture, bedding, &c., from June, 1773, to December, 1774, by which you will see in what manner the money has been expended, which I was authorized by law to draw out of the Treasury for that service. There is a balance remaining in my hands of about thirty-four Pounds, eight Shillings and six Pence, Proclamation Money.

As the House had some objections last session to the charge in Colonel Robertson's Account for Sheets furnished the King's Troops, I directed the Barrack-master not to pay that article of the Account, and to acquaint the Colonel with the occasion. I now lay before you a letter from the Colonel on that head, which appears to me to contain so many just reasons why the charge ought to be allowed by the Province, that I cannot but recommend it to your particular consideration.

January 30, 1775.

The Secretary also laid before the House the Accounts mentioned in the Message.

Ordered, That his Excellency's Message have a second reading.

The draught of an Address to his Excellency was read the second time.

Ordered, That the same be referred to a Committee of the Whole House;

Whereupon, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House on the Address to his Excellency; and after some time spent therein. Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Mr. Fisher, Chairman of the Committee, reported that the Committee had gone through the Address to his Excellency, and had made several amendments thereto, which he was ready to report whenever the House would please to receive the same.

Ordered, That the Report be made immediately.

Whereupon, Mr. Fisher reported the Address with several amendments; and the same being read, Ordered unanimously, That the said Address be engrossed.

Wednesday, February 1, 1775.

The engrossed Address to his Excellency was read and compared.

Ordered, That Mr. Speaker do sign the same.

Ordered, That Mr. Kilsey and Mr. Combs do wait on his Excellency, and desire to know when he will please to be waited on by the House with their Address.

Mr. Kinsey reported that Mr. Combs and himself walked on his Excellency with the Message of the House, who was pleased to say the House should hear from him.

Friday, February 3, 1775.

A Petition was presented from a number of Inhabitants of Nottingham, in the County of Burlington, praying the House will take some measures to settle the unhappy disputes between Great Britain and the Colonies, which was read and ordered a second reading.

On motion made, it is the opinion of, and this House do advise, that the present Committee of Correspondence may draw any part of the sum of one thousand Pounds, made subject to their order by an Act passed at the last session, not exceeding three hundred Pounds, to pay the expenses of the Delegates appointed by this House to attend the intended Congress, and that this House will allow thereof.

A Message from his Excellency, by Mr. Deputy Secretary Pettit:

MR. SPEAKER: His Excellency is in the Council Chamber, and ready to receive the Address of the House.

Whereupon, Mr. Speaker left the Chair, and with the House went to wait upon his Excellency; and being returned, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and reported that the House had waited on his Excellency with their Address, in these words, viz:

To his Excellency WILLIAM FRANKLIN, Esquire. Captain General, Governour, and Commander-in-Chief in and over the Colony of NEW-JERSEY, and Territories thereon depending, in AMERICA, Chancellor and Vice Admiral in the same, &c.

The Humble Address of the Representatives of said Colony, in General Assembly convened:

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: We his Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, the Representatives of the Colony of New-Jersey, in General Assembly convened, have taken into our consideration your Excellency's Speech at the opening of the present session.

We should have been glad that your Excellency's inclinations to have given us as early an opportunity of transacting the publick business, as was consistent with our "convenience," had determined in a manner more agreeable to your design, and more favourable to us, than it really has done on the present occasion. If the Petitions which we understand have been presented to you, had been granted, we should have had a meeting more convenient to us than the present, and that meeting, perhaps, would have prevented some of those "alarming transactions" which your Excellency's apprehension, of your duty leads you to inform us as having happened in this Colony. We thank you for your intention to oblige us; but that it may not be so entirely frustrated in future, permit us to inform you it would be much the most agreeable to us, that the meeting of the House to do publick business, should not be postponed to a time later than when the Bill for the support of Government expires.

We are sorry to hear that in your Excellency's opinion, there has been of late any "alarming transactions" in this and the neighbouring Colonies, our consent to or approbation of which, may lead the good people we represent into "anarchy, misery, and all the horrors of a civil war." It is true you are pleased to tell us that this destructive mode of proceeding has been adopted but "in part" by some of the inhabitants of this Colony. We assure you that we neither have nor do intend to give our approbation to measures destructive to the welfare of our constituents, and in which we shall be equally involved with them; their interests and our we look upon as inseparable. No arguments are necessary to prevail on us to endeavour to prevent such impending calamities; and if we should, at any time, mistake our duty so much, we hope your regard to the people will induce you to exert the prerogative, and thereby give them the choice of other Representatives, who may act with more prudence. The uncertainty, however, to what "alarming transactions in particular you refer, renders it sufficient for us to assure you only, that we profess ourselves to be the loyal subjects of the King, from whose goodness we hope to be relieved from the present unhappy situation; that we will do all in our power to preserve that excellent form of Government under which we at present live; and that we neither intend to usurp the rights of others, nor suffer any vested in us by the Constitution, to be wrested out of our hands by any person or persons whatsoever.

We sincerely lament the unhappy differences which at present subsist between Great Britain and her Colonies. We shall heartily rejoice to see the time when they shall subside, on principles consistent with the rights and interests of both, which we ardently hope is not far off; and though we cannot perceive how the separate Petition of one Colony is more likely to succeed than the united Petitions of all; yet, in order to show our desire to promote so good a purpose by every proper means, we shall make use of the mode pointed out by your Excellency, in hopes it will meet with that attention which you are pleased to assure us will be paid to the Representatives of the people.

We have already resolved to support his Majesty's Government; and we beg leave to assure your Excellency, that though we are warmly attached to that liberty which, as subjects of our august Monarch, we apprehend ourselves to be justly entitled to, and firmly resolved to preserve it by every constitutional means in our power; yet we shall, with pleasure, lay hold of every proper occasion to manifest that loyalty to his person, and regard to the Constitution, which, as subjects and freemen, can be reasonably expected from us.

By order of the House,
CORTLAND SKINNER, Speaker.

House of Assembly, February 1, 1775.

To which his Excellency was pleased to make the following Answer:

GENTLEMEN: Were I to give such an answer to your Address as the peculiar nature of it seems to require, I should be necessarily led into the explanation and discussion of several matters and transactions, which, from the regard I bear to you and the people of this Colony, I would far rather have buried in perpetual oblivion. It is, besides, in vain now to argue on the subject, as you have, with a most uncommon and unnecessary precipitation, given your entire approbation to that destructive mode of proceeding which I so earnestly warned you against.

Whether, after such a resolution, the Petition you mention can be reasonably expected to produce any good effect; and whether you or I have best consulted the true interests Of the people on this important occasion, I shall leave others to determine.

You may be assured, however, that the advice which I gave you was totally uninfluenced by any sinister motive whatever. It came from an heart sincerely devoted to my native country, whose welfare and happiness depend, as I conceive, upon a plan of conduct very different from what has been hitherto adopted.

Saturday, February 4, 1775.

The Bill for support of Government was read the second time; whereupon, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House on the said Bill for support of Government; and, after some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Mr. Crane, Chairman of the Committee, reported that the Committee had made some progress in the matters to them referred, and desired leave to sit again; to which the House agreed.

Monday, February 6, 1775.

The House again, according to order, resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House on the Bill for the support of Government; and after some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Mr. Crane, Chairman of the Committee, reported that the Committee had gone through the matters to them referred, and had come to several Resolutions, which he was ready to report whenever the House would please to receive the same;

Ordered, That the said Report be made immediately.

Whereupon Mr. Crane reported the Resolutions of the Committee, as follow, viz:

1. Resolved, That in and by the said Bill when passed into a law, there be paid to his Excellency William Franklin, Esq., Governour of this Colony, at the rate of twelve hundred: Poundsp^{er} annum, Proclamation Money, to commence the first day of October last.

And, on the question, whether the House agreed to the said sum or not?

It passed in the affirmative, as follows:

Yeas.		Nays.
Mr. Crane, Garritse, Fisher, Roy, Dey, Demarest, Ford, Winds, Kinsey,	Mr. Hewlings, Hinchman, Eldridge, Tucker, Mehelm, Sheppard, Elmer, Pettit.	Mr. Combs, Wetherill, Taylor, Lawrence o Sykes Hand
		Who voted for £1000

2. To David Ogden, Esquire, second Justice of the Supreme Court of this Colony, at the rate of one hundred and fifty Pounds per annum, money aforesaid.

And on the question, whether the House agrees thereto or not?

It passed in the affirmative, as follows:

Yeas.		Nays.

Ford,		Hand,

Ordered, That the Bill for support of Government, as reported and agreed to, be engrossed.

Tuesday, February 7, 1775.

On motion made,

It is ordered by the House, that the late Treasurer do appear before the House at ten o'clock to-morrow morning, In order that they may inquire of him concerning the deficiency reported due from him to the Province; and that a copy of this order be served on him immediately.

The House took into consideration his Excellency's Message, of the 30th day of January last, which was read, together|with Colonel Robertson's Letter, and his Account, &c., whereupon, after some debate,

Resolved, That this House will not allow the charge for Sheets, as charged in Colonel Robertson's Account,

Ordered, That Mr. Mehelm, and Mr. Hewlings, do wait on his Excellency and inform him that the House have taken his Message of 30th day of January last, relating to the charge made by Colonel Robertson, of three hundred and fifty-four Pounds, seven Shillings and six Pence, for Sheets furnished the King's Troops in this Colony, and the balance in his hands of thirty-four Pounds, eight Shillings and six Pence, into their consideration:

That the House beg leave to acquaint his Excellency, that they cannot allow of the charge so made, it being new, uncommon, and never allowed of by this Colony; and that the House request his Excellency will be pleased to pay the balance in his hands to the Eastern Treasurer.

Wednesday, February 8, 1775.

A Letter was presented to the House, from the Honourable Stephen Skinner, Esq., which by order of the House was read, and is as follows, viz:

MR. SPEAKER: The Message of the House, ordering the late Treasurer to attend this day at ten o'clock, to inquire of him the deficiency of the Treasury, I have received; but as I have the Honour to be one of his Majesty's Council, I can't possibly attend till such time as I have laid the order before the Council, which I shall immediately do upon their meeting.

As the order is to inquire concerning the deficiency of the Treasury, I can assure the House, had I been apprized of their wanting the publick money, I should have taken care that the whole should have been in the Treasury for their inspection; but as I have amply secured the Treasurer, I shall take care that he shall have the whole amount of the bond I have given him within the time appointed for cancelling the publick money.

I am with great respect, your's and the House's most humble servant,

STEPHEN SKINNER.

February 8, 1775,

The Petition from a number of Inhabitants of Nottingham, in the County of Burlington, praying the House will take some measures to settle the unhappy differences between Great Britain and the Colonies, was read the second time; on the question, Ordered, That the same be referred to the Committee appointed to prepare a Petition to his Majesty.

Thursday, February 9, 1775.

The House met.

It appearing to the House, from the Report of the Committees appointed to settle the Accounts of the Eastern Treasury, that there ought to be therein upwards of twenty thousand Pounds; and the House being informed by the Eastern Treasurer that there is therein upwards of fifteen thousand Pounds, great part of which is in Gold and Silver, and the Bills of Credit of this Colony; in order that the Colony may be secured from accidents, Mr. Kinsey moves that leave be given to bring in a Bill for that purpose, and that a Committee be appointed to consider of ways and means to effect it; and the previous question being put, whether the question be put on the said motion or not? It passed in the negative.

Yeas		Nay
Mr. Combs,	Mr. Lawrence,	Mr. Winds,
Wetherill,	Crane,	Hewlings,
Taylor,	Garritse,	Sykes,
Kinsey,	Fisher,	Hinchman,
Tucker,	Roy,	Hand,
Mehelm.	Dey,	Eldridge,
	Demarest,	Sheppard,
	Ford,	Pettit.

On motion, made by Mr. Tucker,

Resolved, nem. con., That there is a large deficiency in the Eastern Treasury of the moneys which either ought to be therein, or ought to have been cancelled and burned some time past; and that it is a manifest breach of duty for any Treasurer of this Colony to apply any such publick money to any private purposes whatsoever.

John Smyth, Esquire; desiring to attend the House, was called in, and informed the House that he had entered into a new Bond with securities, for the true and faithful execution of his office as Treasurer of the Eastern Division, and desired to have the sentiments of the House as to the sufficiency of his Securities, and that his former Bond may be cancelled;

Whereupon the said Bond was read; and on the question:

Resolved, nem. con., That, in the opinion of this House, his said securities are very sufficient, and that his former Bond may and ought to be cancelled.

The engrossed Bill, entitled An Act for support of Government of his Majesty's Colony of New-Jersey, to commence the 1st day of October, 1774, and to end the 1st day of October, 1775, and to discharge the Publick Debts and Contingent Charges thereof, was read and compared; on the question,

Resolved, That the same do pass.

Friday, February 10, 1775.

The House being informed that Doctor James Murdock did, this day, send a challenge to one of the Members of this House, which was delivered in the House, and an answer insolently demanded; the House taking the same into consideration,

Resolved unanimously, That the challenging a Member of this House is a contempt and breach of the privileges of this House:

Ordered, therefore, That Mr. Speaker do issue his Warrant to the Sergeant-at-Arms, immediately to take the said Doctor James Murdock, and bring him to the Bar of the House for the contempt aforesaid.

The Sergeant-at-Arms attended with Doctor James Murdock at the Bar-of-the House, who, being there examined, confessed his sending a challenge to a Member of this House; that he knew the gentleman to be a Member of the House, but did not apprehend it an insult to the House, and was extremely sorry for it, and declared his sorrow for writing the said letter, and his ignorance of the consequences, and hoped the favour of the House:

Whereupon, the Sergeant-at-Arms being ordered to withdraw with his prisoner, the House took the matter into consideration, and the Member injured moving that the said Doctor Murdock's acknowledgments might be accepted by the House; after some debate,

Ordered, That the said Doctor James Murdock do humbly ask pardon of this House, in general, and the Member in particular; that he be thereupon reprimanded by the Speaker, and that he then be discharged on payment of his Fees;

Whereupon the said Doctor Murdock did humbly ask pardon of the House, and the Member in particular; and being reprimanded by the Speaker, Ordered, That he be discharged on payment of his Fees.

Saturday, February 11, 1775.

Mr. Wetherill, from the Committee appointed to prepare a draught of a Petition to his Majesty, brought in a draught, which, by order of the House, was read and ordered a second reading.

The draught of the Petition to his Majesty was read the second time,

Ordered, That the same be committed to a Committee of the Whole House;

Whereupon the House accordingly resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House, on the Petition to his Majesty; and, after some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Mr. Fisher, Chairman of the Committee, reported that the Committee had made some progress in the matters to them referred, and desired leave to sit again; to which the House agreed.

Monday, February 13, 1775.

The House taking into consideration the state of the Debt due to this Colony from Lord Stirling, and it appearing that Mrs. Mary Verplank hath a mortgage upon the same Lands, prior to that given to the late Treasurer, Ordered, That Mr. Fisher, Mr. Crane, and Mr. Lawrence, or any two of them, do wait on Lord Stirling, and endeavour to procure security for the Debt due to the Colony.

The House again, according to order, resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House, on the Petition to his Majesty; and, after some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Mr. Fisher, Chairman of the Committee, reported that the Committee have gone through the said Petition, and made several amendments thereto, which he was ready to report whenever the House would please to receive the same.

Ordered, That the Report be made immediately:

Whereupon Mr. Fisher reported the said Petition and amendments, which, being read and agreed to by the House; on the question, Ordered, That the same be engrossed.

Mr. Fisher and Mr. Lawrence reported that they had waited on Lord Stirling, pursuant to the order of the House, who informed them that he could not give the Province other security, unless a general mortgage, but that in four or five months the matter should be settled.

Ordered, That Mr. Fisher and Mr. Eldridge do go to the Council and inquire whether they bare any business before them; if not, that this House proposes to apply to his Excellency for a dismissal.

Mr. Fisher reported that Mr. Eldridge and himself went to the Council, according to order, who said they had no business before them.

The engrossed Petition to his Majesty was read and compared, and is as follows:

To the King's most Excellent Majesty:

MOST GRACIOUS SOVEREIGN: We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Representatives of the Colony of New-Jersey, in General Assembly convened, beg leave to approach your royal presence to express our unfeigned attachment to your Majesty's person, family, and Government, and to return you our most humble thanks for your gracious assurance, signified to us by our Governour, that "the representations or propositions of your Colonies will be attended to."

Firmly persuaded of your Majesty's solicitude for the happiness of your subjects in the remotest parts of your Dominions, from the above gracious assurance, we cannot but encourage ourselves in the prospect of your royal interposition for our relief from the grievances under which your American subjects have been so long labouring.

We do, with the greatest sincerity, assure your Majesty that our complaints do not arise from a want of loyalty to your royal person, or a disposition to withdraw ourselves from a constitutional dependence on the British Crown; but from well grounded apprehensions that our rights and liberties are intimately affected by the late measures, in their consequences pernicious to the welfare and happiness both of Great Britain and your Majesty's Colonies.

The Grievances of which we complain are:

A Standing Army has been kept in these Colonies ever since the conclusion of the late war, without the consent of our Assemblies; and this Army, with a considerable Naval Armament, has been employed to enforce the collection of Taxes.

The authority of the Commander-in-Chief, and, under him, of the Brigadiers General, has in time peace, been rendered supreme in all the Civil Governments of America.

The Commander-in-Chief of all your Majesty's Forces in North America, has, in time of peace, been appointed Governour of a Colony.

The charges of usual Officers have been greatly increased, and new, expensive, and oppressive Offices have been multiplied.

The Judges of Admiralty and Vice Admiralty Courts are empowered to receive their salaries and fees from the effects condemned by themselves.

The Officers of the Customs are empowered to break open and enter houses without the authority of any Civil Magistrate, founded on legal information.

The Judges of Courts of Common Law have been made entirely dependent on one part of Legislature for their salaries, as well as for the duration of their commissions.

Counsellors, holding their commissions during pleasure, exercise Legislative authority.

The Agents of the People have been discountenanced, and Governours have been instructed to prevent the payment of their salaries.

Assemblies have been frequently and injuriously dissolved. and Commerce burdened with many useless and oppressive restrictions.

By several Acts of Parliament, made in the fourth, fifth, sixth, seventh, and eighth years of your Majesty's reign, Duties are imposed on us for the purpose of raising a Revenue; until the powers of Admiralty and Vice Admiralty Courts are extended beyond their ancient limits, whereby our property is taken from us without our consent; the Trial by Jury, in many civil cases, is abolished; enormous Forfeitures are incurred for slight offences; vexatious Informers are exempted from paying damages to which they are justly liable, and oppressive Security is required from owners, before they are allowed to defend their rights.

Both Houses of Parliament have resolved that the Colonists may be tried in England for offences alleged to have been committed in America, by virtue of a Statute passed in the thirty-fifth year of Henry the Eighth; and, in consequence thereof, attempts have been made to enforce that Statute.

A Statute was passed in the twelfth year of your Majesty's reign, directing that persons charged with committing any offence therein described, in any place out of the Realm, may be indicted and tried for the same in any Shire or County within the Realm, whereby inhabitants of these Colonies may, in sundry cases, by that Statute made capital, be deprived of a trial by their peers of the vicinage.

In the last session of Parliament an Act was passed for blocking up the Harbour of Boston; another empowering the Governour of Massachusetts Bay to send persons indicted for murder, in that Province, to another Colony, or even to Great Britain, for trial, whereby such offenders may escape legal punishment; a third, for altering the Chartered Constitution of Government in that Province; and a fourth, for extending the Limits of Quebec, abolishing the English and restoring the French Laws, whereby great numbers of British freemen are subject to the latter, and establishing an absolute Government and the Roman Catholick Religion throughout those vast regions that border on the Westerly and Northerly boundaries of the free Protestant English settlements; and a fifth, for the better providing suitable quarters for Officers and Soldiers in his Majesty's service in North America.

To a Sovereign, who "glories in the name of Briton," the bare recital of these Acts must, we presume, justify the loyal subjects who fly to the foot of his Throne, and implore his clemency for protection against them.

Although all the grievances above enumerated do not immediately affect the people of this Colony, yet as, in their consequences, they will be deeply involved, we cannot remain silent and unconcerned.

Should our properties be liable to the disposal of those of our fellow-subjects in whose elections we have no voice, we conceive it evident that we have no property but at their will and pleasure.

And should we be carried for trial to places where it is impossible for the accused to compel the appearance of his witnesses, innocence will be no security from punishment.

Nor is the jurisdiction lately given to the Courts of Admiralty, which deprive your Majesty's American subjects of Trial by Juries of the vicinage, less repugnant to the fundamental principles of the common law.

All which necessarily tend to reduce us to a state of servitude, from which our affection for the English Constitution, and duty to ourselves and our posterity, loudly call upon us to avert, by all lawful means in our power.

The Colony of New-Jersey, during the late glorious war, though not immediately affected, because, surrounded by your Majesty's other more extensive and opulent Colonies, complied with every royal requisition for aid, and cheerfully exerted itself, at a very considerable expense, whereby it incurred a heavy debt, under a great part of which it at present labours.

And as this Colony hath always, according to its ability, cordially defrayed the charge of the administration of justice, and the support of the Civil Government, your Majesty may be assured, that it will ever be ready, not only to defray the same charge, but also to contribute when constitutionally required, to every reasonable and necessary expense, for the defense, protection, and security of the whole British Empire.

We do solemnly, and with great truth, assure your Majesty that we have no thoughts injurious to the allegiance which, as subjects, we owe to you as our Sovereign; that we abhor the idea of setting ourselves up in a state of independency, and that we know of no such design in others.

We therefore most earnestly beseech your Majesty to interpose your royal authority for the redress of the above grievances, and to vouchsafe us a gracious answer to this our humble Petition.

That the Omnipotent Being, "by whom Kings reign and Princes decree justice, and who hath placed your Majesty on the throne of your ancestors, to which they were called by the suffrage of a free people, to protect them against Popery and arbitrary power, may bless you with every felicity, both temporal and eternal, and that the Colonies may vie with the most faithful of your subjects, in every dutiful and loyal attachment to your royal person, family, and Government, is, and always will be, the sincere and fervent prayer of your Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects the Representatives of the Colony of New-Jersey."

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY, February 13, 1775.

On the question, whether the Speaker do sign the same? It passed in the affirmative, as follows:

Yeas.			Nays
Mr. Combs,	Mr. Roy,	Mr. Hand,	Mr. Kinsey,
Wetherill,	Dey,	Eldridge,	Hewlings.
Taylor,	Demarest,	Tucker,
Lawrence,	Ford,	Mehelm,
Crane,	Winds,	Elmer,
Garritse,	Sykes,	Pettit
Fisher,	Hinchman,

Ordered, That the Speaker do sign the same.

Mr. Speaker dissenting from the Petition to the King, requested, as a favour, that his dissent might be entered in the Journals of the House; and on the question, whether the same be entered or not? It passed as follows:

Yeas.		Nays.
Mr. Lawrence,	Mr. Ford,	Mr. Combs,	Mr. Hinchman,
Garritse,	Kinsey,	Wetherill,	Hand,
Fisher,	Hewlings,	Taylor,	Eldridge,
Roy,	Mehelm,	Crane,	Tucker.
Dey,	Pettit.	Winds,	Elmer.
Demarest,		Sykes,

The votes being equal, Mr. Speaker gave his voice in the Affirmative.

Ordered, That the same be entered accordingly.

Ordered, That the Committee of Correspondence do transmit the said Petition to the Agent, by the first opportunity.

Mr. Deputy Secretary Pettit then, by Writ, prorogued the House to Tuesday, the fourteenth day of March next, then to meet at Burlington.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN CONNECTICUT, TO HIS FRIEND IN NEWPORT, RHODE-ISLAND, DATED JANUARY 11, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Your favour of the 21st ultimo, together with, that of the 5th instant, are now before me; the contents of which afford me singular pleasure, as they breathe that genuine spirit of patriotism and love for your country, which are characteristic of a soul ennobled with the most generous sentiments.

The Pamphlet, accompanying your last, obliges me greatly, and is here esteemed a most spirited performance. I have sent it to Norwich to be reprinted, and dispersed through the country, where I hope it will be of eminent service in exposing the futility of the bugbear representations of a few corrupt miscreants, who would sell their God, King, country and posterity, for a small pittance to excuse themselves from what they account the toil of honest industry. A dismally regulated state, indeed, when such worthless, idle, lazy, unprincipled villains are the sole candidates for places of profit and honour.

Our Assembly have formed a Militia Bill, whereby it is enacted that the whole Militia of the Colony shall train twelve times between the passing of the Bill and May next; and for their encouragement they are to receive six Pence per man each time. This is, indeed, doing something, but our Governour has been applied to, to call the General Assembly together to make some more effectual provision for the preservation of our liberties; but the Governour having called the Council. and taken their advice they thought proper to wait a little longer for fresher intelligence; meanwhile they have ordered a quantity of Powder and Lead to be provided at the expense of Government.

I view the time as near approaching when we must gird on our swords, and ride forth to meet our enemies; and I hope, in God that in such case we shall be so united as to insure success.

The united forces of America, animated with a love of liberty, and a just abhorrence of slavery, will surely be able to withstand all the Troops that England can spare, joined with as many auxiliaries as will choose to enlist in her service for the execution of so execrable a commission as the murder and plunder of a brave and honest people, contending only for rights guarantied to them by the most sacred Charters.

DARIEN (GEORGIA) RESOLUTIONS.

In the Darien Committee, Thursday, January 12, 1775.

When the most valuable privileges of a people are invaded, not only by open violence, but by every kind of fraud, sophistry, and cunning, it behoves every individual to be upon his guard, and every member of society, like beacons in a country surrounded by enemies, to give the alarm, not only when their liberties in general are attacked, but separately, least a precedent in one may affect the whole; and to enable the collective wisdom of such people to judge of its consequence, and how far their respective grievances concerns all, or should be opposed to preserve their necessary union. Every laudable attempt of this kind by the good people of this Colony, in a constitutional manner, hath been hitherto frustrated, by the influence and authority of men in office, and their numerous dependants, done in every other natural and just way, by the various arts they have put in practice. We, therefore, the Representatives of the extensive District of Darien, in the Colony of Georgia, being now assembled in Congress, by the authority and free choice of the inhabitants of the said District, now freed from their fetters, do Resolve,

1st. That the unparalleled moderation, the decent, but firm and manly conduct of the loyal and brave people of Boston and Massachusetts Bay, to preserve their liberty, deserves not only the applause and thanks of all America, but also, the imitation of all mankind. But, to avoid needless repetitions, we acquiesce and join in all the Resolutions passed by the Grand American Congress in Philadelphia last October. We thank them for their sage counsel and advice, and most heartily and cheerfully accede to the Association entered into by them, as the wisest and most moderate measure that could be adopted in our present circumstances to reconcile and firmly unite Great Britain and the Colonies, so indispensably necessary to each other, by the surest and best basis - mutual interest. But, as the wisest Councils upon earth are liable to the errors of humanity, and notwithstanding our reverence and partiality for that august Assembly, we beg leave to differ in opinion from them, in charging the unjust measures of the present and preceding Ministry, to a person qualified rather for a private than a publick station; and as the resentment of his countrymen, on a former occasion, was raised by the illiberal and unjust abuse of them, indiscriminately, for the faults of that man, we humbly presume the renewing it at this time, on so little foundation, at least impolitick; being confident that every Member of that late, wise, patriotick, and truly honourable Congress, from a principle of candour and justice, will rather commend than blame our honest and well meant freedom.

2d. That in shutting up the Land Offices, with the intention of raising our quit-rents, and setting up our Lands at publick sale, representations of the Crown tract have not been duly considered (and attended to) in all its consequences to this vast continent: That it is a principal part of the unjust system of politicks adopted by the present Ministry, to subject and enslave us, and evidently proceeds from an ungenerous jealousy of the Colonies to prevent as much as possible the population of America, and the relief of the poor and distressed in Britain and elsewhere for whom a kind Providence has opened a new world from their merciless oppressor, when the old is overrun with such monsters: That monopolizing our Lands into few hands, is forming and encouraging petty tyrants to lord it over us, or reside in any other part of the world in extravagance, luxury, and folly, by the fruit of our labour and industry - such oppressions, neither we nor our fathers were able to bear, and it drove us to the wilderness: And that all encouragement should be given to the poor of every Nation by every generous American.

3d. That Ministerial Mandates, under the name of Instructions, preventing the legal Representatives of the people to enact laws suiting their own respective situation and circumstances, are a general grievance, and more especially in this young Colony, where our internal police is not yet well settled; and as a proof of the intention of these restrictions, when time and opportunity offers, we point out particularly, amongst many others of like nature, the not suffering us to limit the term of our Assembly, or passing a quit-rent law, to ascertain and fix the most valuable part of our property.

4th. That an over proportion of Officers, for the number of inhabitants, and paying their salaries from Britain, so much cast up to us by Court parasites, and for which we are so often charged with ingratitude, are in truth real and great grievances, rendering them insolent, and regardless of their conduct, being independent of the people who should support them according to their usefulness and behaviour, and for whose benefit and conveniency alone they were originally intended. That besides these exorbitant salaries, which enables them all to act by Deputies, whilst they wallow in luxury themselves, their combining to raise their exorbitant and illegal fees and perquisites, by various arts upon the subject, to an alarming height, are more dangerous to our liberties than a regular Army; having the means of corruption so much in their power, the danger of which is imminently exemplified in the present unhappy state of our brethren and fellow-subjects in Britain, and even in the late conduct of this Colony. To prevent therefore as much as in us lies these direful effects, we do resolve never to choose any person in publick office, his Deputy, Deputy's Deputy, or any expectant, to represent us in Assembly, or any other publick place, in our election, hoping the example will be followed throughout this Colony, and all America.

5. To show the world that we are not influenced by any contracted or interested motives, but a general philanthropy for all mankind, of whatever climate, language, or complexion, we hereby declare our disapprobation and abhorrence of the unnatural practice of Slavery in America, (however the uncultivated state of our country, or other specious arguments may plead for it,) a practice founded in injustice and cruelty, and highly dangerous to our liberties, (as well as lives,) debasing part of our fellow-creatures below men, and corrupting the virtue and morals of the rest; and is laying the basis of that liberty we contend for (and which we pray the Almighty to continue to the latest posterity) upon a very wrong foundation. We therefore resolve, at all times to use our utmost endeavours for the manumission of our Slaves in this Colony, upon the most safe and equitable footing for the masters and themselves.

6th. That we do hereby choose Messrs.  to represent us for this District, in the Provincial Congress at Savannah, the 18th instant, or at any other time and place appointed hereafter for the space of one year from this day, and that a copy of these our Resolutions be given them as expressing the sense of this District of publick grievances, which will serve for their direction and instructions; and it is further our desire, that our said Deputies shall use their endeavours to send two Delegates from this Colony to the General Continental Congress, to be held at Philadelphia next May,

ASSOCIATION

Being persuaded that the salvation of the Rights and Liberties of America depend, under God, on the firm union of the inhabitants, in its vigorous prosecution of the measures necessary for its safety, and convinced of the necessity of preventing the anarchy and confusion which attend the dissolution of the powers of Government, we, the Freeman, Freeholders, and Inhabitants of the Province of Georgia, being greatly alarmed at the avowed design of the Ministry to raise a Revenue in America, and shocked by the bloody scene now acting in the Massachusetts Bay, do, in the most solemn manner, resolve never to become slaves, and do associate under all the ties of religion, honour, and love of Country, to adopt and endeavor to carry into execution, whatever may be recommended by the Continental Congress, or resolved upon by our Provincial Convention, that shall be appointed for the purpose of preserving our Constitution, and opposing the execution of the several arbitrary and oppressive Acts of the British Parliament, until a reconciliation between Great Britain and America, on constitutional principles, which we most ardently desire can be obtained; and that we will in all things follow the advice of our General Committee, to be appointed, respecting the purposes aforesaid, the preservation of peace and good order, and the safety of individuals and private property.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas by a Proclamation under my hand, and the Great Seal of this Province, dated at Savannah, on the twenty-second day of April last past, setting forth the several Murders which had been committed by sundry Creek Indians on divers of his Majesty's subjects in this Province, and also setting forth that by and with the advice of his Majesty's Honourable Council, I had thought it necessary to demand satisfaction of the Creek Nation for the several Murders committed by some of their people as in the said Proclamation is particularly mentioned, and also setting forth that, with the advice aforesaid, I had thought it expedient that all Trade and Intercourse with all or any part of the Creek Indians, within this Province, should immediately cease, and be totally stopped until satisfaction should be given by the said Indians for the Murders aforesaid. And whereas, a great number of Kings, Warriours, and Chiefs of the said Creek Indians, have lately come to Savannah, and declared themselves to be fully authorized and empowered by the whole Nation of Upper and Lower Creek Indians, to negotiate and settle all matters relative to the aforesaid Murders, and to solicit a renewal of peace, friendship, and commerce. And whereas, a Congress hath been held by me, and the Honourable John Stewart, Esquire, his Majesty's Superintendent, and his Majesty's Honourable Council for this Province, with the said Indian Chiefs. And whereas, the said Indians have entirely submitted to the demand of satisfaction made as aforesaid. And whereas, by a Treaty of Peace, Friendship, and Commerce, made in his Majesty's name, and signed by me, and all the parties aforesaid, on the twentieth day of this instant, all differences and disputes with the said Indians are thereby fully and wholly adjusted and agreed upon, and a full and firm peace settled with them. I have, therefore, with the advice of his Majesty's Council aforesaid, thought fit to issue this, my Proclamation, notifying the same to all his Majesty's subjects, and that the trade with the said Indians will be opened again, and that all persons who are disposed to trade with the said Indians, and qualified to take out Licenses, may apply for the same, and which will be granted on such terms and conditions as have been stipulated and agreed upon with the said Indians, and as may be judged will be most conducive to preserve peace and good order between and amongst his Majesty's subjects in this Province, and the said Creek Indians. And I do hereby, in his Majesty's name, strictly charge and command all his Majesty's liege subjects, that they do not on any pretence whatever, attempt to settle or trespass upon any lands belonging to the said Indians; also, that they do not presume to go over or beyond the several Indian boundary lines with stock of Cattle, or to hunt upon the same. And I do hereby, also, in his Majesty's name, strictly charge and command all persons whomsoever, not to molest, assault, or insult any Indian or Indians whatsoever, who may happen to be, or come down into the settlements, or elsewhere, and to pay due obedience to this Proclamation, as they will answer the contrary at their peril.

Given under my hand, and the Great Seal of his Majesty's said Province, in the Council Chamber, at Savannah, the twenty-fourth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-four, and in the fourteenth year of his Majesty King George the Third.

JAS. WRIGHT.

By his Excellency's command,
THOS. MOODIE, Deputy Secretary.
GOD save the King.

CHARLOTTE COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of Freeholders at the Court House in the County of Charlotte, on Friday, the 13th of January last, a Committee of the following persons were elected, for the purposes recommended in the eleventh Article of the Continental Association, viz: Paul Carrington, Thomas Read, Isaac Read, James Speed, John Brent, Thomas Spencer, Joel Watkins, M'Ness Good, William Hubbard, John White, Sion Spencer, Thomas Bedford, Thomas Carter, William Morton, and Joseph Morton.

Paul Carrington, Esquire, was unanimously elected Chairman. The Committee then proceeded to the choice of a Clerk.

On the 6th day of February, at another meeting of the Committee, held at the Court House aforesaid, it was Resolved, that this Committee do testify their sincere approbation of the Association Agreement entered into by the Congress, in exercising unwearied diligence in attempts for its true maintenance and inviolate preservation within their County; and that their unfeigned thanks are due to the worthy Members that composed the late Continental Meeting, for their zeal and steady attention to the interests and happiness of British America. It was Resolved, that Committees, deputed by the County Committee, do examine the Day-Books, Invoices, &c., of the several Merchants, or Storekeepers, within this County; that their report might discriminate the worthy Merchants, and quiet the minds of the people from future suspicions; that Mr. Thomas Read, Mr. Isaac Read, Mr. Speed, Mr. Thomas Spencer, Mr. Watkins, Mr. Good, Mr. Sion Spencer, Mr. Bedford, and Mr. William Morton, be a Committee to inspect the Store Books of Accounts, and Invoices, kept by Mr. Christopher M'Connico, as factor for Alexander Speirs and Company; that Mr. Isaac Read, Mr. Speed, Mr. Brent, Mr. Watkins, Mr. Hubbard, Mr. White, Mr. Carter, and Mr. William Morton, be a Committee to inspect the Store Books of Accounts, and Invoices, kept by Mr. William Barksdale, as factor for Field and Call; and that Mr. Thomas Read, Mr. Good, Mr. Sion Spencer, and Mr. Thomas Bedford, do examine the Store Books of Accounts, and Invoices, belonging to Mr. Matthew Marable, at his Store, in this County.

At a further meeting of the Committee at the Court House aforesaid, on the 14th of said month, Mr. Thomas Read reported, that, in pursuance of their order for inspecting the Books of Mr. Christopher M'Connico, they had, on the 8th of the month, waited on Mr. M'Connico at his House, for the liberty of carrying the said order into execution, but were refused any view of the said Books, Mr. M'Connico offering for excuse, that he had not the consent of his employers for subjecting his Books to such inspection. The Committee are of opinion, that such refusal from an Associator, (Mr. M'Connico appearing to be one,) is refusing to comply with the dictates of the Association Agreement, and induces a suspicion of his having taken advantage in the sale of Goods, contrary to the sense of the tenth Article; therefore, they have determined that Christopher M'Connico has so far violated and departed from the true spirit and meaning of the Association, that they will immediately break off all correspondence with him, until he shall give full and ample satisfaction to the said Resolution of this Committee, for examining his Books, &c. And they recommend it to the publick, and particularly to his customers, and the people of this County, to withdraw all dealings with the said M'Connico, agreeable to the Resolution of this Committee, except that necessary intercourse that may arise in the adjustment of their accounts, and payment of their debts; and this Committee earnestly hope, that such of his customers as are in arrear on his Books, will make good their respective balances by a punctual discharge thereof.

Mr. Isaac Read, from the Committee for inspecting the Store Books, &c., of Mr. William Barksdale, reported that, on their application, Mr. Barksdale produced his Books, and had given them all the assistance and information in the course of their examination that they required; and are of opinion that Mr. Barksdale has not taken advantage of the present scarcity of Goods, by advancing on sales, and, as far as their inquiry extended, appears to have sold his Goods on lower terms than in the preceding year.

The Committee for inspecting Mr. Marrable's Books, &c., were disappointed in their attendance by bad weather. It is Resolved, that they do prosecute the former order of this Committee for examining Mr. Marrable's Books, and make report thereon at the next County Meeting, &c. Mr. Speed is added to the Committee for inspecting Mr. Marrable's Store Books, &c.

PAUL CARRINGTON, Chairman.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM HARTFORD, IN CONNECTICUT, TO A GENTLEMAN OF NEW-YORK, DATED JANUARY 13, 1775.

The Governour of our Colony called his Council in this Town on the 4th instant; their deliberations are kept very secret; but, we are told, they have ordered three hundred barrels of Gunpowder, and Lead in proportion, to be purchased at the publick expense. The Militia in the whole Colony is mustered every week; in most Towns, they have a Deserter from his Majesty's Forces, by way of Drill-Sergeant. Nothing but a spirit of Independence would suffer matters to be carried to such extremities, as make all prudent inhabitants fear that our parchment Governments will soon totter.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM BRISTOL, ENGLAND, TO NEW-YORK, DATED JANUARY 15, 1775.

I am obliged to you for your communication of the Proceedings of Congress, which are highly approved of by all your friends. But if a Non-Exportation had been resolved upon the 1st of March, instead of September, I think it would have had a greater effect in alarming the Nation, and hastened your relief, and shown the importance of the Colonies, which would have been justified by the severe measures employed against them; but, no doubt they have wise and just reasons which we are not acquainted with, for protracting it. London has given the lead and example of petitioning. We have got one, which I signed yesterday, which I believe will be signed by your friends and foes, as their interest and feelings are affected. I have just received advice of Birmingham having voted one, which is to be prepared next Tuesday; and I believe they will be general through the Kingdom, which will be constructed not in a political, but commercial view. It is not known yet what plan the Ministry will adopt; but as Lord North has given out that no more Troops will be sent to Boston, it is not intended to enforce it vi et armis, but by withdrawing the Troops and blocking up your Harbours, which would be aiding your measures. It is my private opinion that they will be obliged to repeal the obnoxious Acts this present session, provided you remain firm, and they see no prospect of breaking the union of the Colonies. I believe they are as much afraid for their Troops as you are of them; and that those Marines sent per the three Men-of-War, were only sent to strengthen General Gage, and to act upon the defensive. The Parliament will meet in a few days, when we shall be able to form some judgment of their intentions; for which purpose I intend going up to London.

ANNE ARUNDEL COUNTY (MARYLAND) MEETING.

At a full Meeting of the Inhabitants of Anne Arundel County, including the citizens of Annapolis, on Monday, the 16th day of January, 1775,

CHARLES CARROLL, Esq., Barrister, Chairman,
Mr. ISAAC M'HARD, Clerk,

The Association agreed on by the American Continental Congress, and the Proceedings of the Deputies of the several Counties of this Province, at their late Provincial Convention, were read and approved; and thereupon it is Resolved,

1st. That this County will strictly and inviolably observe and carry into execution the said Association, and the several Resolves of the late Provincial Convention.

3d. That the said Committee of Observation have full power to represent and act for this County, until the second Tuesday in October next, to carry into execution within this County, the said Association, and the several Resolves of the late Provincial Convention, without favour or partiality; that the said Committee, or a majority of any fifty, or greater number of the members thereof, have power and authority to nominate and appoint, by way of ballot, thirteen of the said Committee, and any seven or more of that number, Deputies to represent this County in any Provincial Convention that may be held before the second Tuesday in October next, with ample power to such Deputies to consent and agree, on behalf of this County, to all measures which such Provincial Convention may deem necessary and effectual to obtain a redress of American Grievances; and in case any of the said Deputies shall not attend, or die, or refuse to act, from time to time, to nominate, by ballot, one other of the said Committee in the place of such Deputy who shall not attend, or die, or refuse to act; and the said Committee, or a majority of any fifty, or greater number of the members thereof, are also empowered to nominate, by ballot, seven of the said Committee; and any three, or more, of that number, a Committee of Correspondence for this County; and in case any of the said Committee of Correspondence shall not attend, or die, or refuse to act, to appoint by ballot, one other of the said Committee, in the room of such person who shall not attend, or die, or refuse to act; and such Committee of Correspondence, or any five of them, are authorized to call a meeting of this County as often as they may think necessary.

4th. That every inhabitant of this County, who, on personal application by any one of the aforesaid Committee of Observation: or by any person appointed by them, shall refuse to contribute, before the 1st day of February next, to the purchase of Arms and Ammunition, for the use of this County, is, and ought to be, esteemed an enemy to America; and that the name of every person who shall refuse to contribute, on such application, be published by the said Committee in the Maryland Gazette.*

Ordered, That these Proceedings be published in the Maryland Gazette. ISAAC M'HARD, Clerk.

PRINCE GEORGE'S COUNTY (MARYLAND) MEETING.

At a Meeting of a number of the Freeholders and other Inhabitants of Prince George's County, held on Monday, the 16th day of January, in Upper Marlborough, for the purpose of choosing a Committee of Inspection, &c.,

JOHN ROGERS, Esquire, was chosen Chairman.

The Proceedings of the Convention, held at Annapolis in December last, were read, and unanimously approved.

The Committee of Inspection, chosen here at the meeting in November last, was continued, and the following persons added thereto, viz: Colonel Joseph Sire, Thomas Contee, Benjamin Hall, son of Francis, Richard Bennet Hall, Clement Hill, Clement Hill, Junior, Thomas Sire

TO THE PRINTERS OF THE MARYLAND GAZETTE.

Be pleased to give a place to the following Queries, and oblige a friend to liberty and moderation.

1st. Whether an assembly of two hundred, or at most two hundred and fifty persons, exclusive of the citizens, can, with propriety, be called a full meeting of the inhabitants of Anne Arundel County?

2d. Whether, after a power is delegated to a chosen few, to act on the behalf of the whole, any persons not empowered have a right to determine questions of the first importance, contrary to the sentiments of a majority or such chosen Committee.

3d. Whether the fourth Resolve was tumultuously entered into in the night, after many of the country gentlemen had left Town, and the citizens also had in general retired?

4th. Whether it be not probable, and even certain, that a majority of the Committee, as well as of the inhabitants of the County who were in Town, and citizens, would have waited to have prevented the measure, had they apprehended any such Resolve would have been moved for?

5th. Whether such procedure be warranted by any thing published by the Continental Congress?

6th. Whether, in fine, the publication of the Proceedings of last Monday, as it now stands, be by the order of, and with proper authority from the Committee? - ANNAPOLIS, January 19, 1775.

TO THE PRINTERS OF THE MARYLAND GAZETTE.

As the Resolves in the last Handbill are to be published in the Gazette, relative to the Proceedings on Monday last, an impartial spectator begs you will submit the following Queries to the consideration of your readers:

Can it be reasonably asserted that the meeting on that day was a full meeting of the inhabitants of this County?

At the time the polling commenced respecting the fourth Resolve, were not a great majority of the country gentlemen gone out of Town, not expecting any transaction of that nature; were there many inhabitants of the City present; and is it not reasonable to believe, that if the meeting of the County and City had been really numerous, the question relative to the publication of Non-Subscribers would have been rejected as a violent and improper proceeding?

When all America appears unanimous in opposing the principle of Parliamentary Taxation, is it just, is it equitable, to proscribe many respectable characters, zealous in the general cause, yet dissenting from the plan of redress recommended, and enforced by particular people?

Can it with truth be asserted that the fourth Resolve was entered into, with the approbation and concurrence of the Committee, when it is notoriously evident, that a very considerable number of those gentlemen entirely disapprove the same, as a violent, hasty, and improper mode of conduct?

Is it consistent with liberty - the distinguishing characteristic of British subjects - to condemn, with a partial fury, those who dissent from any popular opinion; can it consist with freedom, to point them out as victims of vengeance, to the hazard of the publick peace, the distress of worthy families, and the destruction of private property?

When the most perfect union and harmony ought to subsist through out every rank of men here, is it wise, is it politick, to ferment and create divisions among ourselves? ought we to exert an arbitrary authority, arbitrary in the highest degree, by compelling each other, under the severest penalties, to adopt the same violent extremes, and to run before every other Province in the fantick career of military opposition? A little reflection, I am confident, will convince my countrymen that we are strangely precipitate in our conduct. Let us act with firmness, yet with a just and becoming respect to our mother country. While we object to proceedings that we deem oppressive and unconstitutional, let us not burst through the barriers of law; let us not, in the warmth of mistaken zeal, commit violences greater than those of which we complain, and thereby lose those friends and adherents, who can only be secured by a steady and uniform deportment; let not mean suspicions and violent principles take root among us; so shall success crown our present efforts, enmity shall be buried in oblivion, peace shall be re-established on a permanent foundation, and amity, eternal amity, shall flourish between Great Britain and her Colonies. - ANNAPOLIS, January 19, 1775.

The Committee of Correspondence, chosen last November, was also continued, and the following gentlemen added thereto, viz: Thomas Sire Lee, Joseph Sim, Thos. Contee, Stephen Hill, Clement Hill, Senior, Thomas Gautt, Jun., Ignatius Digges, and Benjamin Hall, son of Francis.

The following gentlemen were chosen to attend the next Provincial Meeting at Annapolis, viz: Doctor Richard Brooke, Josias Beall, Robert Tyler, John Rogers, William Bowie, Walter Bowie, George Lee, Thomas Gantt, Junior, Colonel Joshua Beall, Osborn Sprigg, David Crawford, Colonel Joseph Sire, Thomas Contee, Benjamin Hall, son of Francis, Luke Marbury, Stephen West, John Contee, and Thomas Sim Lee, and it was resolved that any five or more of them have power to act.

The following gentlemen, viz: Addison Murdock, and Edward Sprigg, chosen to attend the last Provincial Meeting, were discontinued at their own request, the state of their health not permitting them to attend.

It was recommended to the gentlemen of the Committee of Inspection for this County, to use their utmost diligence to procure subscriptions, to collect the same as soon as possible, and pay the money into the hands of Messrs. John Rogers, David Crawford, and Edward Spring, of the Committee of Correspondence, and resolved, that the said Committee, or a majority of them, of which the above gentlemen shall be a part, have authority to lay out the said money in the purchase of Arms and Ammunition, according to a Resolution of the last Provincial Convention, and that fair Accounts of the expenditure shall be kept, and ready to be laid before the General Committee when required,

Ordered, That a sufficient number of subscription papers be printed, and forwarded to the several Committee-men appointed for the said County, in order to forward the said subscriptions; and that the Committee of Correspondence take care to procure the said papers, and pay for the same out of the subscription money.

Ordered, That the Proceedings of this day be published in the Maryland Gazette.

BALTIMORE COUNTY (MARYLAND) MEETING.

At a Meeting of the Inhabitants of Baltimore County, qualified to vote for Representatives, at the Court House, in Baltimore Town, on Monday, the 16th day of January, 1775,

Captain CHARLES RIDGELY, Chairman,
JEREMIAH TOWNLEY CHASE, Clerk:

The Proceedings of the late Provincial Convention were read, considered, and unanimously approved.

Resolved unanimously, That every member of this meeting will, and every person residing in this County ought, strictly and inviolably to observe and execute the Resolutions and Recommendations of the late Provincial Convention.

Unanimously resolved, That Captain Charles Ridgely, Thos. Cockey Dye, Walter Tolley, Jun., Charles Ridgely, son of John, Robert Alexander, Samuel Purviance, Benjamin Nicholson, Darby Lux, Jeremiah Townley Chase, George Ristea, Thomas Harrison, John Moale, Andrew Buchanan, William Lux, and Samuel Worthington, be Delegates to represent this County in the next Provincial Convention; and that they, or any of them that shall attend, have full and ample power to consent and agree to all measures that the said Provincial Convention may deem necessary and expedient to obtain a redress of American Grievances.

Resolved, That the following gentlemen be added to the Committee of Observation appointed on the 12th of November last:

HUNDREDS.

PATAPSCO, LOWER. - Charles Rogers, John Gorsuch, William M'Cubbin, and William Williamson.

PATAPSCO, UPPER. - James Croxall, John Elliott, and Edward Norwood.

BACK RIVER, UPPER. - John Cockey, Edward Talbot, Joshua Stevenson, Edward Cockey, and Ezekiel Towson.

MIDDLE RIVER, UPPER. - Benjamin Rogers, Robert Cummings, Benjamin Buck, Joshua Hall, Gist Vaughan, and Benjamin Merryman.

BACK RIVER, LOWER. - George Matthews, and John Buck.

MIDDLE RIVER, LOWER. - Moses Galloway, George Goldsmith Presbury, Abraham Britton, and Nicholas Britton.

SOLDIER'S DELIGHT. - Thos. Cradock, Charles Walker, Samuel Owings, Junior, Christopher Randall, Junior, and Benjamin Wells.

MIDDLESEX. - Jacob Myers, Richard Cromwell, and Thomas Rutter.

DELAWARE. - Christopher Owings, Benjamin Lawrence, and Nicholas Dorsey, Junior.

NORTH. - John Hall, and Stephen Gill, Junior.

PIPE CREEK. - John Showers, and George Everhart.

GUNPOWDER, UPPER. - Samuel Young, Jesse Bussey, Thomas Gassaway Howard, James Bosley, William Cromwell, and Zaccheus Barrett Onion.

MINE RUN. - Edward Stansbury, John Stevenson, Daniel Shaw, William Slade, Junior, Joseph Sutton, and John Steward.

BALTIMORE TOWN. - James Sterret, Charles Ridgely, William Goodwin, Doctor Charles Wiesenthall, and Thomas Ewing.

Resolved, That subscriptions be opened in each Hundred, under the direction of the Committee, and that the same be paid into the hands of a Treasurer to be appointed by the contributors in each Hundred, and be laid out agreeable to the Resolve of the Provincial Convention.

Resolved, That the name of every person who shall, upon personal application made to him, by the Committee, or any person under their appointment, refuse or decline to subscribe or contribute for the purchase of Arms and Ammunition, be taken down, and laid before the Committee at the next meeting after such refusal, together with the reasons of such refusal.

Resolved, That the forming of the inhabitants of this County into Companies, and their using their utmost endeavours to make themselves masters of the Military Exercise, and their resisting, with force, every illegal attempt upon their liberty and property, is not repugnant to the oaths of allegiance.

Resolved unanimously, That subscriptions be opened in each Hundred, in this County, under the direction of the Committee of the respective Hundreds, for raising contributions to supply the necessities and alleviate the distresses of our oppressed brethren of Boston.

Resolved, That William Goodwin, Richard Moale, William Buchanan, and William Lux be, and are hereby, empowered to purchase three thousand pounds of Powder, and twelve thousand pounds of Lead, on the credit of the subscriptions for the use of this County.

Resolved, That the Committee meet at the Court House, on Wednesday, the 8th of February next, to produce their several subscriptions.

Ordered, That these Proceedings be published in the Maryland Gazette, the Baltimore Journal, and in handbills, to be circulated through the County.

Signed per order, J.T. CHASE, Clerk.

Newtown, Bucks County, Penn., January 16, 1775.

A large majority of the Committee chosen in said County, on the 15th of December last, in pursuance of notice for that purpose given, this day assembled in said Town, and unanimously chose

JOSEPH HART, Esquire, Chairman, and JOHN CHAPMAN, Clerk.

The Committee then taking into consideration the measures recommended by the Continental Congress, for the redress of American Grievances, entered into the following Resolves, unanimously:

1st. That we highly approve of the pacifick measures recommended by the Continental Congress, for the redress of American Grievances, and do hereby render our unfeigned thanks to the worthy gentlemen who composed that august assembly, for the faithful discharge of the trust reposed in them.

2d. That we hold ourselves bound, in justice to ourselves, our posterity, our King, and our country, strictly to observe and keep the Association of said Congress, especially as it is recommended to us by the united voice of our Representatives in Assembly, and, as a Committee, will use our utmost endeavours to have it carried into execution.

3d. That we hold it as our bounden duty, both as Christians and as countrymen, to contribute towards the relief and support of the poor inhabitants of the Town of Boston, now suffering in the general cause of all the Colonies; and we do hereby recommend the raising a sum of money for that purpose, to every inhabitant or taxable in this County, as soon as possible.

The Committee then taking into consideration a late Resolve of the Committee of the City of Philadelphia, setting forth an absolute necessity that the Committees of the Counties of this Province, or their Deputies, be requested to meet together in Provincial Convention, on the 23d day of January, instant, cannot conceive, from any information we have had, the necessity of such Provincial Convention, or that any good effects can be produced thereby, towards carrying into execution the Association so clearly pointed out to us by the Continental Congress.

Voted, That Joseph Hart, John Wilkinson, Henry Wynkoop, Joseph Watson, and John Chapman, or any three of them, be a Committee of Correspondence, and that Henry Wynkoop be Treasurer, to receive such charitable donations as may be collected, in pursuance of the 1st Resolve of this Committee.

JOHN CHAPMAN, Clerk.

TO THE FARMERS OF BERKS COUNTY.

Reading, January 16, 1775.

The Committee of the County of Berks, having considered the Association of the Butchers of this Town, not to kill any Sheep whatsoever till the first day of May next, take the liberty earnestly to recommend to the inhabitants of this County, not to sell any Sheep whatsoever to any Butcher from Philadelphia, or elsewhere, till the first day of May. The preserving of Wool being an object of the greatest consequence, the Committee flatter themselves that the Farmers will cheerfully observe this recommendation: and as the Committee will meet in Reading, on Tuesday, the 14th day of February next, if any inhabitants have any objections to make to the measure, hereby recommended, such inhabitants are requested to attend the Committee to make their objection, that the same may be maturely considered.

Any person having Wool, which he cannot dispose of in the country, may bring it to the house of Mr. Mark Bird, in Reading, who will give fourteen Pence per pound for any quantity. By order of the Committee,

JONATHAN POTTS, Secretary.

SOCIETY OF THE SUPPORTERS OF THE BILL OF RIGHTS.

London Tavern, January 17, 1775.

At a Meeting of the Supporters of the Bill of Rights, held this day, the Right Honourable the Lord Mayor of the City of London in the Chair, it was Resolved unanimously, That the liberties, franchises, and chartered rights of our fellow-subjects in America, are so nearly connected with those of Great Britain, that the subversion of either must prove equally fatal to both.

Resolved unanimously, That it be earnestly recommended to such members of this society, who have seats in Parliament, to exert themselves in bringing to the justice of their country the advisers of measures for establishing arbitrary Government over our affectionate fellow-subjects in America, by Taxing them without their consent; refusing them a fair Trial by Jury; establishing Popery, and taking from them the right of the Habeas Corpus Act; and to obtain for that much injured people a full redress of grievances. By order of the Society,

JOHN WILKES, Chairman.

FAIRFAX COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

Extracts from the Proceedings of the Committee of Fairfax County, on the 17th of January, 1775.

GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esquire, Chairman,ROBERT H. HARRISON, Clerk:

Resolved, That the defenceless state of this County renders it indispensably necessary that a quantity of Ammunition should be immediately provided; and as the same will be for the common benefit, protection, and defence of the inhabitants thereof, it is but just and reasonable that the expenses incurred in procuring the same should be defrayed by a general and equal contribution. It is therefore recommended that the sum of three Shillings per poll, for the purpose aforesaid, be paid by, and for every tithable person in this County, to the Sheriff, or such other Collector as may be appointed, who is to render the same to this Committee, with a list of the names of such persons as shall refuse to pay the same, if any such there be.

Resolved, That this Committee do concur in opinion with the Provincial Committee of the Province of Maryland, that a well regulated Militia, composed of gentlemen freeholders, and other freemen, is the natural strength and only stable security of a free Government, and that such Militia will relieve our mother country from any expense in our protection and defence, will obviate the pretence of a necessity for taxing us on that account, and render it unnecessary to keep Standing Armies among us - ever dangerous to liberty; and therefore it is recommended to such of the inhabitants of this County as are from sixteen to fifty years of age, to form themselves into Companies of sixty-eight men; to choose a Captain, two Lieutenants, an Ensign, four Sergeants, four Corporals, and one Drummer, for each Company; that they provide themselves with good Firelocks, and use their utmost endeavours to make themselves masters of the Military Exercise, published by order of his Majesty in 1764, and recommended by the Provincial Congress of the Massachusetts Bay, on the 29th of October last.

FAIRFAX COUNTY, (VIRGINIA) ASSOCIATION.

Threatened with the destruction of our ancient Laws and Liberty, and the loss of all that is dear to British subjects and freemen, justly alarmed with the prospect of impending ruin, - firmly determined at the hazard of our lives, to transmit to our children and posterity those sacred rights to which ourselves were born; and thoroughly convinced that a well regulated Militia, composed of the gentlemen, freeholders, and other freeman, is the natural strength, and only safe and stable security of a free Government, and that such Militia will relieve our mother country from any expense in our protection and defence, will obviate the pretence of a necessity for taxing us on that account, and render it unnecessary to keep any Standing Army (ever dangerous to liberty) in this Colony, we the subscribers, inhabitants of Fairfax County, have freely and voluntarily agreed, and hereby do agree and solemnly promise, to enroll and embody ourselves into a Militia for this County, intended to consist of all the able-bodied freemen from eighteen to fifty years of age, under Officers of their own choice, and for that purpose to form ourselves into distinct Companies of sixty-eight men each; and so soon as the said Companies or any of them in convenient neighbourhoods and Districts are completed, to choose from among our friends and acquaintance, upon whose justice, humanity and bravery, we can rely, a Captain, two Lieutenants, an Ensign, and four Sergeants, for each Company; every Captain respectively to appoint four Corporals and a Drummer for his Company, which election of Officers is to be annual in any Company, if the majority of the Company think fit; and whenever a sufficient number of Companies shall be made up, all the said Companies are to be formed into a Regiment, under the command of a Colonel, Lieutenant Colonel, and Major, to be chosen by the Captains, Lieutenants, and Ensigns of the said Companies; which election of Field Officers is to be annual also, if the majority of the Officers think fit. And such of us as have, or can procure Rifle-Guns, and understand the use of them, will be ready to form a Company of Marksmen or Light-Infantry for the said Regiment, choosing our own Officers as aforesaid, and distinguishing our dress, when we are upon duty, from that of the other Companies, by painted hunting-shirts and Indian boots, or caps, as shall be found most convenient; which regulation and establishment is to be preserved and continued until a regular and proper Militia Law for the defence of the country, shall be enacted by the Legislature of this Colony. And we do each of us for ourselves respectively, promise and engage to keep a good Firelock, in proper order, and to furnish ourselves as soon as possible with, and always keep by us, one pound of Gunpowder, four pounds of Lead, one dozen Gun-Flints, and a pair of Bullet-Moulds, with a Cartouch-Box, or Powder-Horn, and Bag for Balls. That we will use our best endeavours to perfect ourselves in the Military Exercise and Discipline, and therefore will pay due obedience to our Officers, and regularly attend such private and general musters as they shall appoint. And that we will always hold ourselves in readiness, in case of necessity, hostile invasion, or real danger, to defend and preserve to the utmost of our power, our religion, the laws of our country, and the just rights and privileges of our fellow-subjects, our posterity, and ourselves, upon the principles of the English Constitution.

BALTIMORE COUNTY (MARYLAND) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Committee of Observation appointed for Baltimore County, at the Court House, in Baltimore Town, on Tuesday, the 17th day of January, 1775, were present:

Information being made to the Committee by Mr. Benjamin Nicholson, that the Reverend Mr. William Edmiston, had publicly asserted, "that all persons who "mustered were guilty of treason; and that such of them "as had taken the oath of allegiance, and took up Arms, "were guilty of perjury," and that the said William Edmiston had "approved publicly of the Quebec Bill,"

The Committee were of opinion, that such declarations have a tendency to defeat the measures recommended for the preservation of America and her Liberties, and that it is their duty to take notice of persons guilty of such offences; whereupon,

Resolved unanimously, That this Committee will meet at two o'clock P. M., and that the Reverend Mr. Edmiston have notice to attend.

A copy of the charge was made out by the Clerk, and enclosed to Mr. Edmiston, with notice to attend.

Tuesday, two o'clock, P. M.

The Committee met according to adjournment; present the same members as were this morning.

The Reverend Mr. Edmiston attended, agreeable to the notice given him, and requesting an indulgence of two hours, to prepare his answer, the same was unanimously granted.

The Reverend Mr. Edmiston appeared, and delivered to the Chairman, his answer in writing, as follows:

"After maturely considering the charges exhibited against me before the Committee, I observe in answer to them, that as mankind frequently differ in sentiment, and as no questions are agitated with greater warmth and intemperate zeal than those in politicks, so expressions are often used, and sentiments hastily adopted, at such times, which in the cool moments of reflection, men would omit or disavow. That I spoke the words mentioned in the charge, is true - that they were spoken in warmth, is equally certain. With respect to that part of the charge containing an accusation of perjury and treason upon those who had taken the oaths to the Government, I would beg leave to explain myself. What I meant had a reference to the political opinions which prevail, and was founded conditionally; that is, they who do not apprehend a departure on the side of Government from fundamental express stipulations, could not, consistently with their oaths, arm or prepare for war: but I did not, and do not mean to charge any person with perjury or treason, who really thinks that his rights are or may be so far invaded as to justify resistance.

"As my political sentiments are different from what most people think at this time, concerning these matters, particularly as they are disagreeable to the gentlemen of the County, and may, contrary to my intention, have the unhappy tendency of spreading confusion among the inhabitants of my Parish, I solemnly promise to avoid giving any just cause of offence, by propagating hereafter any opinion opposite to the decisions of the Continental Congress, or Provincial Convention, and upon the most serious reflection, I disapprove of the Quebec Bill, as it establishes the Roman Catholick Religion in the Province of Quebec, abolishes the equitable system of English Laws, and erects a tyranny there, to the great danger (from so total a dissimilarity of Religion, Law, and Government,) of the neighbouring British Colonies, by the assistance of whose blood and treasure the said country was conquered.

"I tenderly love my country; I wish for her prosperity, and devoutly pray that the present contest may terminate to her advantage, and I sincerely hope that brotherly love will bury in oblivion all animosity between me and my parishioners, with whom to live in harmony and peace is my warmest wish.

WILLIAM EDMISTON.

"January 17. 1775."

The above being read and considered was accepted, and ordered to be published.

MEETING OF WEST INDIA MERCHANTS, LONDON.

Agreeable to previous invitation, an exceedingly numerous meeting of West India Merchants and Planters, on the 18th of January, 1775, assembled at the London Tavern, "to deliberate on the measures necessary to be pursued on "this very important crisis." About one o'clock, Beetson Long, Esquire, took the Chair,

When Mr. Rose Fuller opened the business by calling the attention of the meeting to what he was about to propose. He stated with conciseness, yet with extreme judgment and precision, the alarming situation into which the present plan of measures respecting America was likely to plunge this country; and from a desire of averting those evils which it so materially concerned the West India Merchants and Planters to prevent, he evinced the absolute necessity of "petitioning Parliament as the only probable means of warding off impending ruin."

Having thus pleaded for a Petition as the ground-work of every subsequent proceeding, Mr. Fuller declared, that before he preferred his motion, he would lay open the whole of his intentions, which were, "first, to move for a "Petition; and if that motion passed, then to explain to "the meeting the objects to which such Petition should be "confined, as well as the particular Facts it should set forth."

After some trifling altercation, Mr. Fuller's motion, both for a Petition and the articles to which, in his opinion, the framers should confine themselves, were called for and attended to.

The motion for a Petition was conceived nearly in the following words: -

"That it is the opinion of this meeting, a Petition "should be presented to Parliament, representing the "alarming state of affairs in the West India Islands, and "setting forth the apprehensions of the Petitioners, on "account of certain Resolutions entered into by the American Congress, held at Philadelphia, on the 5th of "September, 1774; and praying interposition."

Mr. Fuller grounded the necessity of a Petition of this kind on the two Resolves of the Congress, whereby they firmly covenant, in behalf of the whole Continent of America, "not to have any commercial dealings, either in the "way of Export, or Import, with the West India Islands, "unless certain obnoxious Acts, passed by the English "Legislature, shall be repealed."

The articles to which Mr. Fuller wished the framers of the Petition to confine themselves were, first,

"That an investment of stock, the property of various "Merchants, to a very large amount, was now placed in "the West India Islands, and that, by the circuitous operation of events, the returns arising from this stock would "be considerably lessened, and the stock itself would be "diminished in value, provided that the stoppage of commercial intercourse between the West India Islands and "America, threatened by the Resolves of the Congress, "should take effect."

A second article, which Mr. Fuller wished the framers of the Petition to state fully, was, "the amount of debt "due from the Planters and others in the West India "Islands to those Merchants in England with whom they "carried on a reciprocal communication."

Mr. Fuller's motion having been seconded by Sir Philip Gibbes, and ably supported by Mr. Walker, Agent for Barbadoes, a very warm and interesting debate ensued. The foremost in opposing it was Mr. Willet, of St. Kitts, who stated his objections to petitioning substantially thus:

Before a Petition for the removal of an evil was agreed on, it should be determined whether the evil actually existed or not; a Petition for redress implies a state of suffering. Had the West India Merchants yet experienced the smallest inconvenience from any Resolves, passed by the Congress? Mr. Willet ventured to answer for them, "that they had not." Were the West India Islands yet in a suffering state? So far from it, that they had now sufficient, and to spare of every article supplied by the North American Colonies; and, if they should hereafter stand in need, they might be easily supplied from Quebec, and various other places willing and able to supply them. As therefore no inconveniences had as yet arisen from the Resolutions of the Congress, the West India Merchants should at least delay their Petition until inconveniences were experienced, which, in the opinion of Mr. Willet, would never be the case, as he did not apprehend that the Resolves of the Congress would be long adhered to.

In support of this conjecture, Mr. Willet begged leave to produce a letter, dated the 7th December, from Mr. Galway, a young man at New-York, a near relation of Sir Ralph Payne, who, Mr. Willet observed, was so closely connected with Mr. De Lancey, that the sentiments contained in the letter might be supposed exactly consonant with those Mr. De Lancey held.

The purport of this letter was, "that the Resolutions of "the Congress were never meant to be observed; that "the Delegates themselves were so ashamed of them, "that they were only studying ways and means to elude "them; that the moderate party at New-York laughed at "these Resolutions, and the most flaming zealots despised "themselves for passing them; that as, on the occasion of "the Stamp Act, there had been similar confederacies "formed, which a defection soon put an end to, there "could be no doubt but that a similar defection would "soon demonstrate how little was to be apprehended from "the Resolutions of a Congress; that four or five Provinces to the writer's certain knowledge were preparing to "violate these Resolutions."

The writer concludes by hoping, "that the West India Merchants will not be duped by specious appearances, "as they must be fools indeed to be alarmed at what "a Congress like that held at Philadelphia can propose; and that, as the West India Islands are at present overstocked with Staves, and every article they "want, nothing is to be feared from a scarcity on their "account."

Mr. Willet having read this letter, a gentleman begged to know "how long the writer had been at New-York, when he wrote the letter?" Mr. Willet replied "five days." - It was observed, "that he must be a young man "of surprising abilities, to penetrate so intimately into the "minds of the people in so short a time; and he must "have a tolerable share of confidence to answer for four "or five Provinces, when he had himself been in one of "them only five days."

Mr. Willet accounted for this by saying, though Mr. Galway had wrote the letter, yet the sentiments might be supposed more properly to be those of Mr. De Lancey.

Here a gentleman addressed the Chair, by observing that he was a native of New-York, and connected with some of the first people in that Province; that Mr. De Lancey was a mere creature of Government, connected with the Governour, who had attempted to enforce the Stamp Act, which Governour was a subservient minion to the Duke of Grafton.

The gentleman acknowledged that on a former Association a defection had happened, but that very defection, he contended, was brought about by the machinations of Mr. De Lancey. Considering, therefore, the political principles, the conduct, the views, and connections of Mr. De Lancey, his opinions were to be examined with cautions distrust; his letters were to be read with grains of allowance.

Mr. Edwards, of Jamaica, next observed, that there was one part of the letter which totally misrepresented the real matter of fact; for, so far were the West India Islands from being "overstocked" with Staves, and other articles, that, to his certain knowledge, they lately called for a supply.

Several other gentlemen testified the same; and letters were offered to be produced of as late a date, all written in a very different style, all declaring, that there was every reason to believe that the Resolutions of the Congress would be strictly adhered to, the measures of resistance increased, not diminished, unless the obnoxious Acts were speedily repealed.

The result of this debate (to which the letter of an inexperienced youth gave rise,) was, "that the letters of "particular persons deserved no greater respect than the "sentiments of any individual present; that it was injudicious to produce them, the sole point for discussion being, "whether the motion for a Petition should be read?"

This question being vehemently called for, the motion was read from the Chair, when Mr. Edwards, with great force of reasoning, evinced the absolute necessity, not only of petitioning, but of petitioning without a moment's loss of time.

In answer to Mr. Willet, he ventured to affirm, that the West India Merchants were now actually suffering on account of the American measures; that the low price of Sugars was occasioned chiefly by those measures; that it was not merely in the article of Lumber the West India Islands would suffer, but in various other instances. It had been said, that "Quebec could supply Staves." Mr. Edwards denied the fact, and demonstrated the extreme folly of expecting Staves and other necessities from Canada and the Floridas, at least in sufficient quantity, as well from the inadequate population at the extremities of the Continent, as from the difficulty at certain times of the year of the navigation from Canada. He gave reasons equally forcible against a notion which he said some people entertained of being supplied with the article of Staves from Ham-burgh, or Norway; but, he said, putting supplies of all kinds out of the question, the produce of America was not more necessary to the support of the West Indies, than her markets were for the sale of a considerable part of their Rum and Sugar. America, says he, purchases annually from our Sugar Islands, (Jamaica included,) twenty thousand hogsheads of Sugar, and twenty-five thousand puncheons of Rum, besides all our Molasses not used in distillation. She exports annually from Great Britain, upwards of ten thousand hogsheads of refined Sugar, which creates a farther consumption of thirty thousand hogsheads of raw or Mascovado Sugar. By the Resolutions of the Congress, this last great consumption is already suspended; and will any man say that the planting interest is not thereby immediately affected? Should the great export from the Islands be stopped also, and the whole brought to a glutted market, the consequence to every Planter will be absolute ruin. It may be said indeed, that Sugar will be so much the cheaper in England; but this argument is fallacious and foolish. No man will raise commodities which he cannot sell. Who but a madman will continue a losing adventure? It is the same in England, in regard to Corn: Stop the exportation, you create a famine.

This gentleman then proceeded to demonstrate that Great Britain, as a commercial Nation, must participate deeply in whatever affects the Sugar Islands. He said the whole of the West India Colonies must be considered as British property, or national stock. He proved that the whole of this stock amounted to the enormous sum of sixty millions Sterling, the particulars of which he enumerated, and he appealed to Mr. Walker, Agent for Barbadoes, for the accuracy of the estimate; which that gentleman confirmed, and declared he produced the same amount by a different mode of calculation. The whole profits and produce of this great capital, Mr. Edwards averred, centred in, and tended to, the increase of the Navigation, Commerce, Manufactures, and Revenues of Great Britain. "Should, therefore," he said, "any interruption happen in "the general system of the commerce and cultivation of "these Islands; should the vast national stock thus employed, become unprofitable and precarious, will not "Great Britain, with a debt of one hundred and forty "millions, be sensibly affected? Sir, it will shake her Empire to its base. Her African trade will be lost, and the "many other great branches of her commerce, with her "Colonies, which, during the last war, rendered her sole "arbitress of the fate of Europe, will be dried up and exhausted forever." He concluded by observing, that no opposition to this motion could arise, but from interested motives, or from a mistaken notion, that Government would be offended at our proceedings, which he said was a most absurd idea; for that no personal reflections against people in power, nor any questions of mere political disquisition, had been once introduced; and he added that, admitting, however, that the West India Islands had not yet experienced any inconvenience from the American measures, were we to await until ruin had overtaken us before we applied for relief? Were we to feel nothing for those Planters whom the American Resolves would reduce to beggary? Nothing for the trade, prosperity, or Constitution of our country? If there were any West India Merchants whom contract, pensions, or the smiles of Government allured to approve measures baneful in their operations, destructive in their effects, they ought to be marked out, that the honest Planter might in future know the men in whom he ought not to confide.

Mr. Atkinson next spoke against the motion, on the ground, that as the Petition was only meant to recommend to the consideration of Parliament, what Parliament would certainly consider of themselves, it was a futile measure.

This argument Mr. Edwards refuted in a masterly manner. "The gentleman," says he "lays it down as a fact, "that Parliament mean to consider this business; if they "mean to consider it at all, they must intend to take it up "on the largest scale possible; to do this, every information they can possibly procure is necessary for their assistance, and therefore, as we mean only to afford them "every information in our power, the very reason the gentleman urges for our not petitioning, is the very reason "why we ought to petition. Nor can the Ministry be displeased, for their welfare, as well as ours, is at stake; if "this country is ruined, (and ruined it must be, unless a reconciliation with America takes place,) the Ministry who "projected the Acts must be ruined also."

Mr. Fuller added this pertinent observation: that as the Petition would be supported by evidence, it would be absurd not to petition before Parliament took the matter into consideration; for that would be to let the House of Commons consider a business first, and produce the evidence afterwards; a method of proceeding hitherto unprecedented.

Mr. Fuller concluded by observing, that although some of the Members of the Lower House might be, yet he would be bound to say, the majority of them were not apprised of the magnitude of the American business as a national concern; the Petition, therefore, from the West India Merchants, would furnish them with information on that head, which they much wanted.

The question being now called for, the Chairman was about to put it, when a gentleman started an objection to the word "Congress." He said that, as a meeting under that description had not yet been recognised by Parliament, it might be construed as taking a part in the political disputes to adopt the term. It was therefore proposed to vary the language of the motion thus: "Two Resolves passed by a Meeting held at Philadelphia, called a Congress."

Mr. Alderman Turner very properly objected, that the words "called" a "Congress," were certainly of the reflective kind, and might be supposed to contain an oblique censure on the Americans for giving the name of "Congress" to the meeting of their Delegates. The Alderman observed, that equal care should be taken not to offend either the Americans or the Government.

Mr. Fuller yielded, and to avoid the possibility of offence, both the words "Congress" and "called" were struck out of the motion, and it stood simply thus: "A Meeting held at Philadelphia."

Thus put, the motion for a Petition was carried by a majority of about two hundred to seven.

This point being settled, Mr. Fuller proceeded in the next place to move for the instructions to be given to the Committee that might be appointed to prepare the Petition. Accordingly, he offered a second Resolution, which being first read throughout, and the question afterwards put on each paragraph, was, after receiving many amendments, and considerable additions, finally agreed to, (with one division only, on the last paragraph,) and is as follows:

"Resolved, That the said Petition do set forth, that the "Petitioners are exceedingly alarmed at an Agreement and "Association entered into by a Meeting held at the City of "Philadelphia, in North America, the 5th of September, "1774, whereby the Members thereof have agreed and "associated for themselves and the inhabitants of the several Colonies lying between Nova-Scotia and Georgia, "that from and after the 1st day of December, 1774, they "will not import into British America any Molasses, "Syrups, Paneles, Coffee, or Pimento, from the British "Plantations; and that, after the 10th day of September, "1775, if the Acts of the British Parliament therein mentioned, are not repealed, they will not, directly or indirectly, export any Merchandise, or commodity whatsoever, to the West Indies."

"To represent, that the British property, or stock vested in the West India Islands, amounts to upwards of "thirty millions Sterling. * That a further property of "many millions is employed in the commerce created by "the said Islands; a commerce comprehending Africa, "the East Indies, and Europe. That the whole produce "and profits of these capitals ultimately centre in Great Britain, and add to the national wealth, while the navigation necessary for the support of this commerce through "all its various branches, establishes a strength which wealth "can neither purchase nor balance.

"That the Sugar Plantations in the West Indies are "subject to a greater variety of contingencies than many "other species of property, from their necessary dependence on external support; and that, therefore, should "any interruption happen in the general system of their "commerce, the great national stock thus employed must "become unprofitable and precarious.

"That the profits arising from the present state of the "sail Islands, and that are likely to arise from their future "improvement: in a great measure depend on a free and "mutual intercourse between them and the several Provinces of North America, from whence they are furnished with provisions of all kinds, and other supplies absolutely necessary for the support and maintenance of their "Plantations. And that the scarcity in Great Britain, "and the inadequate population of the Provinces at the "extremities of America, forbid them to hope for any material addition to the feeble imports of such supplies from "other places.

"That, if the first part of the said Agreement and Association for a Non-Importation hath taken place, and "shall be continued, the same will be highly detrimental to "the Sugar Colonies; and if the second part of the said "Agreement and Association for a Non-Exportation shall "be carried into execution, (which the Petitioners are apprehensive will be the case, unless some measures are "immediately fallen upon to restore the harmony that subsisted a few years ago between this Kingdom and America, which was of infinite advantage to both,) the smallest "Islands, which are supplied with most of their subsistence, both for themselves and Slaves, from thence, will "be reduced to great distress; and the Trade between all "the said Colonies and this Kingdom, will of course be obstructed, to the ruin of most of the Planters, and to the "great prejudice of the Merchants, not only by the said "obstruction, but also by the delay of payment of the "principal and interest of the immense debt due from the "former to the latter.

"And, referring to the salutary effects of that system of "policy which formerly subsisted between Great Britain "and her Colonies, humbly to pray that the House "would take the premises into consideration, and adopt "such measures as to their wisdom shall seem adequate to "quiet the minds of their fellow-subjects in America, and "prevent the evils with which the Planters and Merchants "are now threatened, and restore that confidence and affection between the mother country and North America, on "which the general happiness of this Empire depends; and "that the Petitioners may be heard by themselves or Counsel in support of their Petition, &c."

Savannah, Georgia, January 18, 1775.

This day the General Assembly of this Province met here, when his Excellency Sir James Wright, Baronet, Governour-in-Chief, &c., was pleased to deliver the following Speech to both Houses, viz:

Honourable Gentlemen, Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the Commons House of Assembly:

This being the first opportunity that has offered in General Assembly, I must not omit acquainting you, that in consequence of the Petition of both Houses, his Majesty was graciously pleased to direct, that if this Province should be engaged in an actual Indian war, we should have every proper succour and protection; and I was ordered to apply to the Commander-in-chief of his Majesty's Forces in America for that purpose, who had received directions thereupon.

The alarming situation of American affairs at this juncture, makes it highly necessary for me to say something to you on the subject; and it is with the utmost concern that I see by every account of all the Colonies to the Northward of us, as far as Nova-Scotia, in a general ferment, and some of them in such a state as makes me shudder when I think of the consequences which it is most probable will soon befall them. The unhappy disputes with the mother country are now become of the most serious nature, and I am much afraid the very extraordinary and violent measures adopted and pursued, will not only prevent a reconciliation, but may involve all America in the most dreadful calamities.

Gentlemen, I think myself very happy in having it in my power to say that this Province is hitherto clear, and I much hope by your prudent conduct will remain so. Be not led away by the voices and opinions of men of over-heated ideas; consider coolly and sensibly of the terrible consequences which may attend adopting resolutions and measures expressly contrary to law, and hostile to the mother country, especially at so late a season, when we may almost daily expect to hear the determination of Great

* It was first stated at sixty millions, but it being observed that by inserting a less sum than could really be proved in evidence, it would give an air of moderation and caution to the Petition, it was altered as above.

Britain on the matters in dispute, and therefore I conceive can answer no purpose but that of throwing the Province into confusion; and I tremble at the apprehension of what may be the resolution and declaration of the new Parliament relative to the conduct of the people in some parts of America.

You may be advocates for liberty, so am I, but in a constitutional and legal way. You, gentlemen, are Legislators, and let me entreat you to take care how you give a sanction to trample on Law and Government; and be assured it is an indisputable truth, that where there is no law there can be no liberty. It is the due course of law and support of Government which only can insure to you the enjoyment of your lives, your liberty, and your estates; and do not catch at the shadow and lose the substance. I exhort you not to suffer yourselves to be drawn in to involve this Province in the distresses of those who may have offended; we are in a very different situation, and on a very different footing from the other Colonies. Do not consider me as speaking to you merely as the King's Governour of this Province. As such, gentlemen, it is certainly my duty to support his Majesty's just right and authority, and to preserve peace and good order within my Government, and to contribute as much as possible towards the prosperity and happiness of the Province and people. Believe me when I tell you I am at this time actuated by further motives than a show only of discharging my duty as the King's Governour. I have lived amongst and presided over you upwards of fourteen years, and have other feelings. I have a real and affectionate regard for the people, and it grieves me to think that a Province which I have been so long in, and which I have seen nurtured by the Crown, at a vast expense to the mother country, and grow up from mere infancy - from next to nothing, to a considerable degree of maturity and opulence, should, by the imprudence and rashness of some inconsiderate people, be plunged into a state of distress and ruin. We have been most happy in, I hope, avoiding Scylla, and let me in the strongest terms conjure you to steer clear of Charybdis.

It is a most melancholy and disagreeable subject, and therefore I shall avoid making any observations on the Resolutions adopted by the other Colonies; but hope that, through your prudence and regard for the welfare and happiness of this Province, of yourselves, and your posterity, none will be entered into here. The strongest reasons operate against it, and as they must occur to every considerate person, I shall not mention any.

Gentlemen of the Assembly:

The very dangerous and critical situation of our affairs with the Creek Indians last Spring, prevented your going on the necessary business of the Province at that time. I therefore hope and depend that, agreeable to your Address to me of the 12th of March, 1774, you will now take the several matters formerly recommended to you into consideration, and proceed thereupon with that serious attention they require, and to which I shall only add, that in order to preserve and continue to us peace and quietness with the Indians, it seems absolutely necessary that a law should be framed to regulate some matters relative to the Indian trade and transactions in the Indian country, to prevent encroachments and trespasses on the lands and hunting grounds of the Indians, and other irregularities and abuses being committed by hunters and other disorderly people, both within and without the settlements, and therefore most earnestly recommend a revival of a Bill relative to Indian affairs, which was before the House of Assembly in the year 1769, in which I am persuaded you will find some clauses that may be most useful and salutary to the Province.

I have ordered the Treasurer to lay all the Publick Accounts before-you, and will very soon send you an estimate of the usual and necessary supplies since the last Tax.

JAMES WRIGHT.

IN THE UPPER HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY, JANUARY 18, 1775.

A Message to the Commons House of Assembly.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen:

This House having taken into serious consideration those matters mentioned by his Excellency in his Speech to both Houses, respecting the present alarming state of the unhappy disputes between Great Britain and the Colonies; and conceiving the subject to be of the highest importance to the welfare and safety of both, is therefore desirous of having a free conference with your House thereon, in hopes of being able to fix on such a plan of conduct as may reasonably be expected will prove conducive to the obtaining the great point which every true friend to America hath or ought to have only in view, to wit: that of securing to its inhabitants, on a clear, solid, and permanent footing, all the rights and privileges to which, as British subjects, they are entitled, on the principles of the Constitution.

For however warmly this House may and doth condemn the violent and ill-judged measures pursued by some of the other Provinces, which they conceive have an evident tendency to widen the breach between Great Britain and the Colonies, and may involve all America in a scene of the utmost distress and misery; yet it is the sincere wish of this House, as far as in their power, to see every obstacle removed which may interrupt a cordial and lasting union with the mother country, or obstruct or prevent his Majesty's American subjects from enjoying all the constitutional rights of British subjects, and will therefore cheerfully join in pursuing such measures as will at once testify loyalty to our most gracious Sovereign, a firm attachment to the British Constitution, and a warm and proper regard to the rights and liberties of America.

On Friday, the 20th of January, the following Addresses were presented to his Excellency, viz:

To his Excellency Sir JAMES WRIGHT, Baronet, Captain-General, Governour and Commander-in-Chief in and over his Majesty's Province of GEORGIA, Chancellor and Vice Admiral of the same.

The humble Address of the Upper House of Assembly. May it please your Excellency:

We his Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Council of Georgia, in General Assembly met, beg leave to return your Excellency our most cordial thanks, for your truly affectionate Speech to both Houses of Assembly, at the opening of this session.

We receive with pleasure and gratitude the information you have been pleased to give us of the favourable reception the Petitions from both Houses met with from our most gracious Sovereign, and that his Majesty had been pleased to order Troops for our protection, in case we had been unhappily engaged in an Indian war.

After having had the experience of your Excellency's prudent and equitable administration for upwards of fourteen years, we can have no doubt of your real and friendly concern for the true interests of this Province. The language of your Excellency's Speech, upon a subject of the highest importance to the people of Georgia, is so truly paternal, that every unprejudiced person must be convinced of its being dictated by a heart warm with love and affection for the people over whom you preside; and we hope it will meet with that return of gratitude and attention, which the affectionate spirit it breathes and the great importance of the subject merit.

It is with the deepest concern we see the alarming lengths to which the present unhappy disputes between the mother country and the Colonies are carried; lengths that threaten a dissolution of all good order and Government, and of that union on which the happiness and prosperity of both countries ultimately depend.

But whilst we lament these unhappy divisions, and disapprove of all violent and intemperate measures, and at the same time declare it to be our pride and glory to be constitutionally connected with Great Britain, by the closest and most endearing ties, and that we dread nothing more than a dissolution of those ties; yet, anxious for the present welfare of our country, and the interests of our posterity, our ardent wish is, that his Majesty's American subjects may enjoy all the rights and privileges of British subjects, as fully and effectually, in all respects, as the inhabitants of Great Britain do; and to that end, it now appears highly necessary that the constitutional rights of his American subjects may be clearly defined and firmly established, that so they may hold those inestimable blessings on such a footing as will unite the mother country and the Colonies by a reciprocation of benefits, and on terms consistent with the spirit of the Constitution, and the honour, dignity, and safety of the whole Empire. And we wish and hope to see a matter of such importance taken up in a constitutional way by both Houses of Assembly, not in the least doubting but that if such prudent and temperate measures are adopted by the Legislatures of the other Provinces, we shall see them crowned with that success which may remove the unhappy divisions now subsisting, and bind us to our mother country by the ties of interest, love, and gratitude, and establish the prosperity, power, and grandeur of the British Empire on foundations which may last till time shall be no more. Nor can we doubt of success, when we reflect that we are blessed with a King who glories in being the equal father of all his people; and therefore can and do submit our cause, with full confidence, to his royal wisdom and paternal goodness. Neither will we suppose that a British Parliament, that great and august body, who have so often generously asserted and defended the liberties of other Nations, will disregard the equitable claims of their fellow-subjects.

We entirely agree with your Excellency in opinion, that where there is no law there can be no true liberty, and that it is the due and regular course of law and support of Government which can alone insure to us and our posterity the enjoyment of our lives, liberty, and property.

We will cheerfully concur in the several matters recommended by your Excellency; and give them that serious attention which the utility of them requires.

By order of the House,

N. JONES.

His Excellency's Answer.

Honourable Gentlemen:

The loyalty and affection expressed towards his Majesty in this Address, gives me the greatest satisfaction, as it likewise does to see that your sentiments on the very important matters mentioned, in many respects coincide with my own; and happy would it have been for America, had the several Legislatures proceeded in the manner you propose.

I return you my best thanks, gentlemen, for your kind opinion of my regard for, and wishes to serve this Province.

JAMES WRIGHT.

To his Excellency, Sir JAMES WRIGHT, Baronet, Captain General and Governour-in-Chief of his Majesty's Province of GEORGIA, Chancellor and Vice Admiral of the same

The Address of the Commons House of Assembly.

May it please your Excellency:

We his Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Commons of Georgia, in General Assembly met, return your Excellency our thanks for your Speech to both Houses on the opening of this session.

We are greatly obliged to his Majesty for his gracious intentions; but allow us, sir, to observe, that we apprehended the Province was actually involved in a war when we submitted our Petition for assistance; and whilst we Congress our real obligations to your Excellency for your conduct, assiduity, and perseverance, and render you our warmest acknowledgments for putting a happy end to that war, we cannot but with horror reflect on the dreadful crisis to which this Province must have been reduced, had we experienced no other resource than those dilatory succours which Administration meant conditionally to afford us.

We cannot be less affected by, and concerned for, the present alarming situation of our affairs between Great Britain and America, than your Excellency; we must be equally insensible not to feel our numerous grievances, and not to wish them redressed; it is that alone which every good American contends for; it is the enjoyment of our constitutional rights and liberties that softens every care of life, and renders existence itself supportable. At the same time, in all our proceedings, we shall studiously avoid every measure that shall not appear to us at once strictly consonant with our duty to his Majesty, and the interest, liberty, and welfare of our constituents. We shall, on all occasions, exert ourselves to accomplish every assurance we have already made, or may make to your Excellency, and will not fail to take into consideration the Bill which you are pleased to point out and recommend.

When the Publick Accounts and Estimates are laid before us, we will give them proper attention.

By order of the House,

WILLIAM YOUNG, Speaker.

His Excellency's Answer.

Mr. Speaker and Gentlemen of the Commons House of Assembly:

I am sorry that I must beg leave to differ with you in opinion with respect to the state we were in when your Petition to his Majesty was given to me, and which I immediately transmitted. It is true several people had been murdered by some Indians, but I conceive that could by no means be called being actually involved in a war with that Nation. They were murders committed by a small party only of the Creek Indians, without the concurrence or even the privy of the Nation, and disavowed by them as soon as they knew of it; and I apprehend something farther was necessary, before we could be said to be engaged or involved in an actual war with the Indians, and every account I received from them after that time, was favourable, and showed rather a pacifick than an hostile disposition, and which accounts I always transmitted to his Majesty's Secretary of State, as it was my duty to do.

It gives me great pleasure to observe my conduct approved of by the Representatives of the people, and for which I thank you. I have every inducement to serve the Province, and to promote the welfare and happiness of the people, and which I shall continue to do to the utmost of my power; and, on the other hand, I cannot doubt but you will also approve of my endeavours to discharge my duty to the Crown with honour and integrity. And let me assure you, gentlemen, that no man can more wish his Majesty's American subjects the full and perfect enjoyment of their constitutional rights and liberties than I do.

JAMES WRIGHT.

House of Assembly, Georgia, January, 1775.

The House taking under consideration that the Parliament of Great Britain claim a power of right to bind the People of America, by Statute, in all cases whatsoever, and who have, in some Acts, expressly imposed Taxes on the Americans, under various pretences, but in fact, for the purpose of raising a Revenue; hath established a Board of Commissioners, with unconstitutional powers, and extended the jurisdiction of the Courts of Admiralty, not only for collecting the Duties imposed by the said Acts, but for the trial of causes merely arising within the body of a County. And whereas Standing Armies have been, and now are, kept in America, in time of profound peace; and being resolved, in Parliament, that by force of a Statute, made in the thirty-fifth year of the reign of Henry the Eighth, Colonists may be transported to England and tried there upon accusations for treasons and misprisions, or concealments of treason committed in the Colonies; and by a late Statute such trials have been directed in cases therein mentioned. And whereas, also, Assemblies have been frequently dissolved, contrary to the rights of the People, when they attempted to deliberate on Grievances; therefore this House doth, as Englishmen, their ancestors, in like cases have usually done for assisting and vindicating their Rights and Liberties, Declare,

First, That the inhabitants of the English Colonies of North America, by the immutable laws of nature, the principles of the English Constitution, and the several Charters or compacts, have the following Rights:

Secondly, That they are entitled to life, liberty, and property, and they have never ceded to any sovereign power whatever a right to dispose of either without their consent.

Thirdly, That our ancestors, who first settled these Colonies, were, at the time of their emigration from the mother country, entitled to all the rights, liberties, and immunities of free and natural-born subjects within the Realm of England.

Fourthly, That, by such emigration, they by no means forfeited, surrendered, or lost any of these rights, but that they were, and their descendants now are, entitled to the exercise and enjoyment of all such of them as their local and other circumstances enable them to exercise and enjoy.

Fifthly, That the foundation of English liberty, and of all free Government, is a right in the people to participate in the Legislative Council; and as the English Colonists are not represented, and, from their local and other circumstances, cannot properly be represented in the British Parliament, they are entitled to a free and exclusive power of Legislation, in their several Provincial Legislatures, where their right of representation can alone be preserved, in all cases of Taxation and Internal Polity, subject only to the negative of their Sovereigns, in such manner as has been heretofore used and accustomed; but from the necessity of the case, and a regard to the mutual interest of both countries, we cheerfully consent to the operation of such Acts of the British Parliament as are, bona fide, restrained to the regulation of our external commerce, for the purpose of securing the commercial advantages of the whole Empire to the mother country, and the commercial benefits of its respective members, excluding every idea of Taxation, internal or external, for raising a Revenue on the subjects in America, without their consent.

Sixthly, That the respective Colonies are entitled to the Common Law of England, and more especially to the great and inestimable privilege of being tried by their peers of the vicinage, according to the course of that law.

Seventhly, That they are entitled to the benefit of such of the English Statutes as existed at the time of their Colonization, and which they have by experience respectively found to be applicable to their several local and other circumstances.

Eighthly, That his Majesty's Colonies are likewise entitled to all the immunities and privileges granted and confirmed to them by Royal Charters, or secured by their several codes of Provincial Laws.

Ninthly, That they have a right peaceably to assemble and consider of their Grievances, and petition the King; and that all Prosecutions, Prohibitory Proclamations, and Commitments for the same are illegal.

Tenthly, That the keeping a Standing Army in these Colonies in times of peace, without the consent of the Legislature of that Colony in which such Army is kept, is against law.

Eleventhly, And as it is indispensably necessary to good Government, and rendered essential by the English Constitution, that the constituent branches of the Legislature be independent of each other,

Resolved, That the exercise of Legislative power in any Colony, by a Council appointed, during pleasure, by the Crown, may prove dangerous and destructive to the freedom of American Legislation.

All and each of which the Commons of Georgia, in General Assembly met, do claim, demand, and insist on as their indubitable Rights and Liberties, which cannot be legally taken from them, altered, or abridged by any power whatsoever, without their consent.

And whereas there are many infringements and violations of the foregoing Rights, which, from an ardent desire that harmony and mutual intercourse of affection and interest may be restored, we pass over for the present, and proceed to state such Acts and measures as have been adopted since the close of the last war, which demonstrate a system formed to enslave America.

Resolved, That the following Acts of Parliament are infringements and violations of the rights of the Colonists, and that the repeal of them is essentially necessary in order to restore harmony between Great Britain and the American Colonies, viz: The several Acts of 4 George the Third, chapter 15 and chapter 34; 5 George the Third, chapter 25; 6 George the Third, chapter 52; 7 George the Third, chapter 41 and chapter 46; 8 George the Third, chapter 22, which impose Duties for the purposes of raising a Revenue in America; extend the powers of the Admiralty Courts beyond their ancient limits; deprive the American subjects of Trial by Jury; authorize the Judges' certificate to indemnify the prosecutor from damages that he might otherwise be liable to; requiring oppressive security from a claimant of Ships and Goods seized before he shall be allowed to defend his property, and are subversive of American Rights.

Also 12 George the Third, chapter 24, entitled "An Act "for the better securing his Majesty's Dock-Yards, Maga"zines, Ships, Ammunition, and Stores," which declares a new offence in America, and deprives the American subjects of a constitutional Trial by Jury of the vicinage, by authorizing the trial of any person charged with committing any offence, described in the said Act, out of the Realm, to be indicted and tried for the same in any Shire or County within the Realm.

Also the three Acts, passed in the last session of Parliament, for the stopping the Port and blocking up the Harbour of Boston; for altering the Charter and Government of Massachusetts Bay; and that which is entitled "An Act for the better administration of Justice," &c.

Also the Act, passed in the same session, for establishing the Roman Catholick Religion in the Province of Quebec; abolishing the equitable system of English Laws, and erecting a tyranny there, to the great danger, from so total a dissimilarity of Religion, Law, and Government, to the neighbouring British Colonies, by the assistance of whose blood and treasure the said country was conquered from France.

Also the Act, passed in the same session, for the better providing suitable Quarters for Officers and Soldiers in his Majesty's service in North America.

Also, that the keeping a Standing Army in several of these Colonies in time of peace, without the consent of the Legislature of that Colony in which such Army is kept, is against law.

Resolved, That this House do present their most grateful acknowledgments to those truly noble, honourable, and patriotic advocates of civil and religious liberty, who have so generously and powerfully, though unsuccessfully, espoused and defended the cause of America, both in and out of Parliament.

Resolved, That the thanks of this House be given to the Members of the late Continental Congress for their wise and able exertions in the cause of American Liberty.

Resolved, That  be Deputies to represent this Province in the intended American Continental Congress, proposed to be held at the City of Philadelphia, on the 10th of May next, or any other place or time as may hereafter be agreed on by the said Congress, Ordered, That Mr. Speaker do transmit a copy of the above Resolves to the Honourable Peyton Randolph, Esq., President of the said Congress. *

Association entered into by forty-five of the Deputies assembled in Provincial Congress, at SAVANNAH, in GEORGIA, on the 18th of JANUARY, 1775, and by them subscribed on the 23d, when they chose NOBLE WIMBERLY JONES, ARCHIBALD BULLOCK, and JOHN HOUSTON, Esquires, Delegates to represent that Colony in the Continental Congress, to be held in MAY next.

Whereas a Non-Importation, Non-Consumption, and Non-Exportation Agreement, faithfully adhered to, will probably prove the most speedy, effectual, and peaceable measure to obtain redress of American Grievances: We do, therefore, for ourselves and our constituents, firmly agree and associate, under the sacred ties of virtue, honour, and love of our country, as follows:

First. That we will not receive into this Province any Goods, Wares, or Merchandises that shall be stripped from Great Britain or Ireland, after the 15th day of March next; or from any other place any such Goods, Wares, or Merchandises as shall be shipped from those Kingdoms after that time, except such as come under the rules and directions of the ninth Article herein mentioned; and except such Goods, Wares, or Merchandises as are absolutely necessary for carrying on the Indian trade, subject, nevertheless, to the control of the Continental Congress, intended to be held at Philadelphia, on the 10th day of May next. Nor will we from this day import or purchase any Tea from any part of the world, nor import any Molasses, Syrups, Paneles, Coffee, or Pimento, from the British Plantations, or from Dominica, nor Wines from Madeira or the Western Islands, nor foreign Indigo.

Second. That we will neither import or purchase any Slaves imported from Africa, or elsewhere, after the 15th day of March next.

* See Letter from Noble Wimberly Jones, Archibald Bullock, and John Houston, to the President of the Continental Congress, dated Savannah, April 6, 1775.

Third. That we will not export any Merchandise, or commodity whatsoever, to Great Britain or Ireland, or to the West Indies, after the first day of December next, except Rice to Europe.

Fourth. Such as are Merchants, and use the British and Irish trade, will give orders, as soon as possible, to their factors, agents, and correspondents in Great Britain and Ireland, not to ship any Goods to them on any pretence whatsoever, as they cannot be received in Georgia; and if any Merchants, residing in Great Britain or Ireland, shall, directly or indirectly, ship any Goods, Wares, or Merchandises for this Province, in order to break such Non-Importation Agreement, or in any manner contravene the same, on such unworthy conduct being well attested, it ought to be made publick; and on the same being so done, we will not, from thenceforth, have any commercial connection with such Merchant.

Fifth. That such as are owners of Vessels will give positive orders to their Captains or Masters not to receive on board their Vessels any Goods prohibited by the said Non-Importation Agreement, on pain of immediate dismissal from their service.

Sixth. We will use our utmost endeavours to improve the breed of Sheep, and increase their number to the greatest extent, and to that end will kill them as sparingly as may be, especially those of the most profitable kind; nor will we export any to the West Indies, or elsewhere; and those of us who are, or may become overstocked with, or can conveniently spare any Sheep, will dispose of them to our neighbours, especially to the poorer sort, on moderate terms.

Seventh. That we will, in our several stations, encourage frugality, economy, and industry, and promote Agriculture, Arts, and the Manufactures of America, especially that of Wool; and will discountenance and discourage every species of extravagance and dissipation, especially Horse-Racing, and all kinds of gaming, Cock-Fighting, exhibitions of Shew, plays, and other expensive diversions and entertainments; and on the death of any relation or friend, none of us, or our families, will go into any further mourning dress than a Black Crape or Ribbon on the arm or hat, for gentlemen; and a Black Ribbon and Necklace, for ladies; and we will discontinue the giving of Scarfs and Gloves at Funerals.

Eighth. That such as are venders of Goods or Merchandise, will not take advantage of the scarcity of Goods that may be occasioned by this Association, but will sell the same at the rates they have been accustomed to do for twelve months last past; and if any vender of Goods or Merchandise shall sell any Goods on higher terms, or shall, in any manner, or by any device whatsoever, violate or depart from this. Agreement, no person ought, nor will any of us, deal with any such person, or his or her factor or agent, at any time thereafter, for any commodity whatever.

Ninth. in case any Merchant, Trader, or other person, shall receive any Goods or Merchandises which shall be shipped after the 15th day of March, and before the 15th day of May next, the same ought, forthwith, at the election of the owner, to be either re-shipped or delivered to the Committee of the Town, Parish, or District wherein they shall be imported, to be stored at the risk of the importer, until the Non-Importation Agreement shall cease, or be sold, under the direction of the Committee aforesaid; and in the last mentioned case, the owner or owners of such Goods shall be reimbursed, out of the sales, the first costs and charges; the profit, if any, to be applied towards relieving such poor inhabitants of the Town of Boston as are immediate sufferers by the Port Bill; and a particular account of all Goods so returned, stored, or sold, to be inserted in the publick Papers: and if any Goods or Merchandises shall be shipped after the said 15th day of May next, the same ought, forthwith, to be sent back again, without breaking any of the packages thereof.

Tenth. That a Committee be chosen in every Parish, Town, and District, by those who contribute towards the general tax, whose business it shall be attentively to observe the conduct of all persons touching this Association; and when it shall be made to appear to the satisfaction of a majority of any such Committee, that any person, within the limits of their appointment, has violated this Association, that such majority do forthwith cause the truth of the case to be published in the Gazette, to the end that all such foes to the rights of British America may be publickly known, and universally condemned as the energies of American Liberty, and thenceforth we will respectively break off all dealings with him or her.

Eleventh. That the Committee of Correspondence do frequently inspect the entries of the Custom House, and inform the Committees of the other Provinces, from time to time, of the true state thereof, and of every other material circumstance that may occur relative to this Association.

Twelfth. That all Manufactures of this Province be sold at reasonable prices, so that no undue advantages be taken of a future scarcity of Goods.

And we do solemnly bind ourselves, and our constituents, under the ties aforesaid, to adhere to this Association, until American Grievances are redressed.

The foregoing Association being determined upon by the Congress, was ordered to be subscribed by the several Members thereof; and, thereupon, we have hereunto set our respective names accordingly.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM GEORGIA TO A GENTLEMAN
IN NEW-YORK, DATED FEBRUARY 18, 1775.

Our Assembly met on the 18th of January, to which time it had been prorogued. The first day of the session, a Petition, signed by upwards of eighty principal people, was presented to the Commons House, condemning the measures pursued by the Northern Provinces, and praying they would take up the business in a temperate manner, and address the King, &c. Soon after, another Petition was presented to the same effect, signed by one hundred and eighty, from St. George's Parish, both which were read and laid on the table, but no farther notice taken of them.

The day of the Assembly's meeting, the Council sent the lower House a Message, desiring a conference with them on the present state of American affairs, and expressing their readiness to join them in constitutional measures for effecting a reconciliation with the mother country, on terms consistent with the dignity and safety of the whole British Empire, and the rights and liberties of America, to which no answer was sent for many days; at last the Commons House met in conference; the result was, they declined joining in the measures proposed.

Some time after a motion was made in the Commons House, to take into consideration some Papers and Letters received by the Speaker from some of the Northern Provinces, which was agreed to, and an early day appointed for it, but an adjournment till May put a stop to their proceedings.

Some months before the House met, a set of men, who had assumed to themselves the name of a Committee for the Parish of Christ Church, in which the Town of Savannah is included, issued their mandate for a Provincial Meeting of Delegates, to meet also on the 18th of January.

Accordingly, a number of people met, but how little were they to be considered in such a light, even supposing their election to have been a regular and legal one, I leave you to judge, for five Parishes out of twelve sent none at all, and in that of St. Andrew's, containing at least eight hundred men fit to bear arms, the Delegates were chosen by thirty-six only; also in St. Paul's Parish, which contains at least an equal number, there were no more than eighty that voted for sending Delegates, and I believe the same number voted only in Christ Church Parish. They continued to sit for eight or ten days, but as they have not printed or made publick their resolutions, it is not certainly known what they were, and I hope for the honour of the Province ever will remain so,

It is under consideration to augment the Army at large; but an augmentation to the Regiments in America is actually determined upon.

ST. JOHN'S PARISH, GEORGIA.

On Thursday evening, the 23d February, 1775, Joseph Wood, Esq., Mr. Daniel Roberts, and Mr. Samuel Stevens, three members of the Committee for the Parish of St. John, in Georgia, arrived in Charlestown, South Carolina, deputed to wait on the General Committee there, with the following Letter and account of the Proceedings of the patriotick Inhabitants of the said Parish, in the present critical situation of American affairs, viz:

At a Meeting held in the Parish of St. John and Province of Georgia, on the 9th of February, 1775:

A Letter from this Committee to the Committee of Correspondence in Charlestown, South Carolina, was agreed on and written.

It was then moved and agreed that some person or persons of this Committee do wait on the Committee in Charlestown with the said Letter.

Accordingly, Messrs. Daniel Roberts and Samuel Stevens, and Joseph Wood, Esquire, were appointed and authorized to present the same, and transact such matters relative thereto as shall seem prudent and necessary.

Taken from the Minutes by order of the Chairman, and certified by BENJAMIN BAKER, Clerk.

GENTLEMEN: We, the Committee of the Parish of St. John, take the earliest opportunity to lay before you the several steps taken by this Parish, to conform, as near as possible, to the Resolutions entered into by the other Provinces, and the measures now adopted for carrying into execution the Continental Association. As it was particularly recommended to us, we readily embraced those measures,* by subscribing an Agreement to accede to the General Association, on condition "that Trade and Commerce might be continued to us with the other Provinces," and we should immediately have sent it to you for your approbation, but were delayed by a summons to attend a Provincial Congress at Savannah, the 18th of January last, for the purpose, as we understood, of a General Association with the other Provinces, and for choosing Delegates to attend at the next Continental Congress, to be held at Philadelphia, in May next. We met at that time and place, and acquainted the Committees of the other Parishes then assembled, that the inhabitants of this Parish had acceded to the General Association on the above mentioned conditions, and earnestly recommended the same to them. They did enter into an Association, (a copy of which we transmit to you) but so different in our opinions from the Continental Association, that it appears to be a contravention of it, and exposes them to the censure of the fourteenth clause of the General Association.

First. They have extended the time limited for Exportations, beyond what is allowed by the Continental Congress, and thereby indulged a liberty of Exportations, to the prejudice of the other Provinces.

Secondly. For that, in their limited time of Importations, they have, contrary to the Continental Association, extended it in general to the 15th of March next, for Goods to be shipped in England, and for the Indian trade to a still greater latitude, under the cloak of which we have reason to believe may be introduced a large importation, equally adapted to the Whites as to the Indians; and, on the whole, such as we could not, consistent with our own Association, possibly join in.

Had they acceded fully to the General Association, even at so late a time as our Provincial Congress, we should have had no occasion to trouble you with this address; but, as they did not, we now apply to you to admit us, the subscribers of this Parish, to an alliance with you, requesting that you will allow trade and commerce to be continued to us, exclusive (if you think proper) of this Province in general; the same to be continued and conducted under such regulations and restrictions as shall be consistent with the Continental Association, and which, on our parts, we engage with all possible care to keep inviolate.

Our being a Parish of a non-associated Province, cannot, we presume, prevent our joining the other Provinces, as the restriction mentioned in the fourteenth clause of the General Association, must, as we apprehend, be considered as a general rule only, and respects this Province, considered in a mixed or promiscuous sense; but, as we of this Parish are a body detached from the rest, by our Resolutions and Association, * and sufficiently distinct by local situation, large enough for particular notice, and have been treated as such by a particular Address from the late Continental Congress; adjoining a sea-port, and in that respect capable of conforming to the General Association, (if connected with you,) with the same fidelity as a distant Parish of your own Province, therefore we must be considered as comprehended within the spirit and equitable meaning of the Continental Association; and we are assured you will not condemn the innocent with the guilty, especially when a due separation is made between them. We now wait your answer, and shall be glad of your advice.
On the first of December last

Signed by order of the Committee,

LYMAN HALL, Chairman.

Midway, February 9, 1775.

To the Committee of Correspondence in Charlestown, South Carolina.

Extracts from the Minutes of the Proceedings of the Committee of the Parish of ST. JOHN, met at SAVANNAH, the 18th day of JANUARY, 1775.

Wednesday, January 18, 1775. - The Committee met, and Doctor Lyman Hall took the Chair.

The following Message was sent to the Committees of the several Parishes in Congress sitting:

GENTLEMEN: The Committee of the Parish of St. John, present the Committees of the other Parishes with a copy of the Letter received by them from the late Continental Congress, and, agreeably to the advice therein contained, the inhabitants of the Parish of St. John have acceded to the General Association entered into and recommended by the said Continental Congress. They hope you will adopt the same measures.

Thursday, January 19, 1775. The Committee sat until six o'clock in the afternoon, in expectation that the Committees of the several Parishes in Congress sitting, would return an answer to the Message delivered to them yesterday, which not being received, the Committee adjourned.

Friday, January 20, 1775. - Another Message was sent to the Committees of the several Parishes in Congress met, in the following terms:

GENTLEMEN: On the first day of your meeting we presented you with a Message, acquainting you that the inhabitants of the Parish of St. John had acceded to the General Association entered into, and particularly recommended to them by the late Continental Congress. We have patiently waited your answer, and wish to impute your silence rather to inattention than design. We now assure you, that if you think proper to enter fully into the measures of the late Continental Congress, we will heartily join you in every thing that may tend to embrace them.

The Committees of the several Parishes met in Congress, sent the following Answer thereto:

GENTLEMEN: In answer to your Message of this morning, we beg leave to inform you of three determinations, from which, this Congress, we hope, will never recede.

First. That we shall be glad to have the Province upon this occasion, as fully represented as possible; and will therefore cheerfully receive the Delegates of St. John's Parish, as a part of us.

Secondly. That we apprehend every Delegate here, is accountable to his constituents and his own conscience, for the opinion he gives at this time; and therefore, ought not to let any other man, or set of men, judge for him, Thirdly. That we trust no Member amongst us has any other object in view than the publick good.

Saturday, January 21, 1775. - The Committee met, and came to the following Resolutions:

Resolved, That the Committees of the several Parishes in Congress now sitting, are not or cannot be called a Provincial Congress, as the greater number of the Parishes in this Province are not represented therein; they therefore are not bound by the proceedings of the said Committees, although they may arrogate to themselves such a power.

Resolved, That as the Committees of the several Parishes in Congress now sitting, have not fully approved of and adopted the measures entered into and recommended by the late Continental Congress, this Committee cannot join them without violating the General Association, which they have already acceded to, and betraying the trust reposed in them by their constituents.

And then the Committee adjourned sine die.

the above Extracts taken from the original Minutes, by JOSEPH WOOD, Secretary.

IN GENERAL COMMITTEE,
Charlestown, South Carolina, February 8, 1775,

Inasmuch as the Colony of Georgia hath not acceded to the Continental Association entered into by the General Congress at Philadelphia, on the 20th of October last; therefore, and in conformity to the Resolutions of the said General Congress,

Resolved, That we will, from henceforth, have no Trade, Commerce, Dealings, or Intercourse, with the said Colony of Georgia; but will hold them as unworthy of the rights of freemen, and as inimical to the liberties of their country: provided that this Resolution shall not be construed to extend to the inhabitants of this Colony now having Plantations in Georgia, so as to prevent them from bringing their Crops into this Colony; or to such persons resident in this Colony as now have debts due to them in Georgia, so as to prevent them from receiving payment of such debts there, in money, or in the commodities of that Colony, they having such commodities shipped from thence to Europe.

Ordered, That copies of the above Resolution be transmitted to all the Northern Colonies.

February 16, 1775.

Resolved, That the persons residing in this Colony, who hold Plantations in Georgia, may, under the inspection of the Committee of Observation, send necessaries from hence for the use of those Plantations, without the same being deemed a violation of the Resolution of this Committee, of the 8th instant, respecting the Colony of Georgia.

February 24, 1775.

A Letter and sundry other Papers, from the Parish of St. John's, in Georgia, (as above) was read, and maturely considered. But the Committee being determined, in all cases, to adhere literally, as far as possible, to every Article of the Continental Association, could do no more in the present, than enter into the following Resolution, viz:

Resolved, That the Chairman be desired to write a proper Letter to the Committee of the Parish of St. John, in Georgia, assuring them of the high sense we have of their arduous struggles in favour of the common cause of America, and that we sincerely lament their present unhappy situation; but that, as the said Parish, being a part of the Colony of Georgia, in our opinion, falls under the fourteenth Article of the General Association, so we apprehend that it is not in our power to give them the relief they desire; and we can only recommend that they will persevere in their laudable exertions, and lay a state of their case before the ensuing Continental Congress, making no doubt that it will by them be properly considered.

Ordered, That the Secretary do furnish the Deputies from St. John's with copies of all the Proceedings of this Committee, relative to the Colony of Georgia.

HUNTERDON COUNTY (NEW-JERSEY) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the several Township Committees, in the County of Hunterdon, and Province of New-Jersey, held at John Ringo's, the 18th day of January, 1775: Present, sixty members.

JOHN HART, Esquire, Chairman.

The Committee taking into consideration the Proceedings of the late Continental Congress, highly approve thereof, and the Association entered into do recommend and will abide by, and thank the Delegates for their firm and steady conduct.

The Committee then taking into their consideration the method of choosing Delegates for this Province, to attend at Philadelphia, the 10th day of May next, or sooner, if necessary, in Continental Congress, agreed to adopt the measure pursued by the several County Committees of this Province, the 21st day of July last, and do recommend that the several County Committees meet at Trenton, on Wednesday, the 29th day of March next, unless some other time and place should be agreed on by a majority of the Counties in this Province, to choose Delegates for the purpose aforesaid, and we do hereby appoint Samuel Tucker, John Mehelm, John Hart, Daniel Hunt, Jasper Smith, Charles Coxe, Richard Stevens, Samuel Johnson, Esquires, Messrs. Thomas Jones, and Thomas Stout, a County Committee for the purpose aforesaid, who, or any three of them, are also appointed a Committee of Correspondence, and a majority of the whole Committee to have power to call Committees of the several Townships together, at such times and places as they may judge necessary.

This Committee to continue till the Proceedings of the next Continental Congress be published, or a new Committee chosen.

SAMUEL CORWINE, Clerk.

DUTCHESS COUNTY (NEW-YORK) ASSOCIATION.

We, the subscribers, being desirous to convince mankind that we are firmly attached to our most happy Constitution, and are disposed to support and maintain peace and good order under his Majesty's Government, do therefore declare, that our Sovereign Lord King George the Third, is the only Sovereign to whom British America can, or ought to owe and bear true and faithful allegiance, and that there is no legal power or authority therein but what is only derived from them; that our Representatives, in General Assembly convened, are the only guardians of our Rights and Liberties; that without them no laws here can be made to bind us, and that they only are the channel through which our grievances can properly be represented for redress; and that, to support their right and authority, we do hereby associate and mutually covenant and engage to and with each other as follows, namely:

First. That we will upon all occasions stand by and assist each other in the defence of his life, liberty, and property, whenever the same shall be attacked or endangered by any bodies of men riotously assembled, upon any pretence, or under any authority whatsoever, not warranted by the laws of the land.

Second. That we will upon all occasions mutually support each other in the free exercise and enjoyment of our undoubted right to liberty in eating, drinking, buying, selling, communing, and acting what, with whom, and as we please, consistent with the laws of God, and the laws of the land, notwithstanding the Association entered into by the Continental Congress to the contrary.

Lastly, That we will endeavour to promote, encourage, and, when called upon, enforce obedience to the rightful authority of our most gracious Sovereign King George the Third, and the laws which can, do, or may constitutionally extend to, or in the British Colonies in America.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands, this eighteenth day of January, in the fifteenth year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord George the Third, by the grace of God of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, &c., and in the year of our Lord Christ one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five,

Signed by a number of Inhabitants of DUTCHESS County.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM MONTREAL, DATED JANUARY 18, 1775.

The French translations of the Address to the inhabitants of this country, which were ordered by the Congress to be sent here, are not yet come to hand; but there has been a translation made at Quebec, and manuscript copies of it handed about among the French Bourgeois, (our Printer dares not publish any thing of that nature,) but they have been so little accustomed to speak or think on subjects of that kind, and are so much afraid of giving the smallest offence to Government, that they will avoid taking any part in the matter. The Noblesse enter very sanguinely into the scheme of raising Troops, but the Priests, we are well assured, disapprove of it. The greatest part of the Noblesse reside in this District, and upwards of fifty of them are now gone down to Quebec, to pay their respects to the Governour, and attend a Ball, usually given by Government on the Queen's birth-night. They expect to come back with commissions in their pockets, but our Governour has not yet received his instructions. Wheat, owing to the great orders last year, is extravagantly high, nothing less than three Shillings, nine Pence, (equal to five Shillings, and three Pence, Pennsylvania currency, for our bushel.) We would be glad to know whether the Resolve of the Congress will be adhered to, in dropping connection with us, unless we come into their measures. In this case we must order shipping from England. We have never exported more than ten thousand bushels of Flaxseed in a year; the small quantity exported is owing to the low price, being often at two Shillings, and two Shillings and six Pence. This year it has been as high as five Shillings and six Pence, and if, before Spring, the people are assured of a good price, there will be one hundred thousand bushels raised in the Province, or even more.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK, DATED SHREWSBURY, NEW-JERSEY, JANUARY 18, 1775.

In consequence of an anonymous advertisement fixed up at this place, giving notice to the Freeholders and others, to meet on Tuesday, the 17th instant, in order to choose a Committee of Inspection, &c., &c, between thirty and forty of the most respectable Freeholders accordingly met; and after a few debates on the business of the day, which were carried on with great decency and moderation, it was generally agreed (there being not above four or five dissentient voices,) that an appointment of a Committee was not only useless, but they were apprehensive would prove a means of disturbing that peace and quietness which had hitherto subsisted in the Township, and which they were extremely desirous, and would continue to use their utmost endeavours to preserve, and to guard themselves against running upon that rock, on which, with much concern, they behold others, through an inattentive rashness, daily splitting.

FINCASTLE COUNTY (VIRGINIA) MEETING.

In obedience to the Resolves of the Continental Congress, a Meeting of the Freeholders of Fineastle County, in Virginia, was held on the 20th day of January, 1775, who, after approving of the Association framed by that august body in behalf of all the Colonies, and subscribing thereto, proceeded to the election of a Committee; to see the same carried punctually into execution, when the following gentlemen were nominated: the Reverend Charles Cummings, Colonel William Preston, Colonel William Christian, Captain Stephen Trigg, Major Arthur Campbell, Major William Inglis, Captain Walter Crockett, Captain John Montgomery, Captain James M'Gavock, Captain William Campbell, Captain Thomas Madison, Captain Daniel Smith, Captain William Russell, Captain Evan Shelby, and Lieutenant William Edmondson. After the election the Committee made choice of Colonel William Christian for their Chairman, and appointed Mr. David Campbell to be Clerk.

The following Address was then unanimously agreed to by the people of the County, and is as follows:

To the Honourable PEYTON RANDOLPH, Esquire, RICHARD HENRY LEE, GEORGE WASHINGTON, PATRICK HENRY, Junior, RICHARD BLAND, BENJAMIN HARRISON, and EDMUND PENDLETON, Esquires, the Delegates from this Colony who attended the Continental Congress held at PHILADELPHIA:

GENTLEMEN: Had it not been for our remote situation, and the Indian War which we were lately engaged in, to chastise those cruel and savage people for the many murders and depredations they have committed amongst us, now happily terminated under the auspices of our present worthy Governour, his Excellency the Right Honourable the Earl of Dunmore, we should before this time have made known to you our thankfulness for the very important services you have rendered to your country, in conjunction with the worthy Delegates from the other Provinces. Your noble efforts for reconciling the mother country and the Colonies, on rational and constitutional principles, and your pacifick, steady, and uniform conduct in that arduous work, entitle you to the esteem of all British America, and will immortalize you in the annals of your country. We heartily concur in your Resolutions, and shall, in every instance, strictly and invariably adhere thereto;

We assure you, gentlemen, and all our countrymen, that we are a people whose hearts overflow with love and duty to our lawful Sovereign George the Third, whose illustrious House for several successive reigns have been the guardians of the civil and religious rights and liberties of British subjects, as settled at the glorious Revolution; that we are willing to risk our lives in the service of his Majesty, for the support of the Protestant Religion, and the rights and liberties of his subjects, as they have been established by Compact, Law, and Ancient Charters. We are heartily grieved at the differences which now subsist between the parent state and the Colonies, and most ardently wish to see harmony restored on an equitable basis, and by the most lenient measures that can be devised by the heart of man. Many of us and our forefathers left our native land, considering it as a Kingdom subjected to inordinate power, and greatly abridged of its liberties; we crossed the Atlantic, and explored this then uncultivated wilderness, bordering on many nations of Savages, and surrounded by Mountains almost inaccessible to any but those very Savages, who have incessantly been committing barbarities and depredations on us since our first seating the country. These fatigues and dangers we patiently encountered, supported by the pleasing hope of enjoying those rights and liberties which had been granted to Virginians, and were denied us in our native country, and of transmitting them inviolate to our posterity; but even to these remote regions the hand of unlimited and unconstitutional power hath pursued us, to strip us of that liberty and property with which God, nature, and the rights of humanity have vested us. We are ready and willing to contribute all in our power for the support of his Majesty's Government, if applied to constitutionally, and when the grants are made by our own Representatives, but cannot think of submitting our liberty or property to the power of a venal British Parliament or to the will of a corrupt Ministry.

We by no means desire to shake off our duty or allegiance to our lawful Sovereign, but on the contrary, shall ever glory in being the loyal subjects of a Protestant Prince, descended from such illustrious progenitors, so long as we can enjoy the free exercise of our Religion as Protestants, and our Liberties and Properties as British subjects.

But if no pacifick measures shall be proposed or adopted by Great Britain, and our enemies will attempt to dragoon us out of those inestimable privileges, which we are entitled to as subjects, and to reduce us to a state of slavery, we declare that we are deliberately and resolutely determined never to surrender them to any power upon earth, but at the expense of our lives.

These are our real, though unpolished sentiments, of liberty and loyalty, and in them we are resolved to live and die.

We are, gentlemen, with the most perfect esteem and regard, your most obedient servants.

New-York, January 19, 1775.

ADDRESS FROM THE COMMITTEE OF CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TOWNSHIP OF JAMAICA, IN QUEEN'S COUNTY, LONG-ISLAND, PRESENTED TO THE DELEGATES WHO REPRESENTED THIS PROVINCE IN THE LATE GENERAL CONGRESS:

GENTLEMEN: We cheerfully embrace this opportunity of publicly acknowledging in behalf of ourselves, and our constituents, our most grateful sense of the arduous, faithful, and important services you have rendered your country, in the present most alarming conjunction of affairs.

Permit us to declare our hearty acquiescence in the prudent, just, and well concerted measures adopted by you at the last General Congress, held at Philadelphia, and to assure you, that we will exert our utmost endeavours to carry those measures into execution.

We ardently pray that the Supreme Disposer of events, who is the refuge of the distressed, and the assured friend of the benefactors of mankind, may signally reward and succeed your noble and generous designs and efforts, for the redress of our grievances, and the vindication of our injured rights and liberties.

We joyfully anticipate the pleasure of seeing your names, and the names of your worthy and respectable brethren of the Congress, enrolled in the annals of America, and transmitted to the latest generations, as the friends and deliverers of your country; of beholding your conduct and measures, applauded and adopted by every City, Town, and County, in the British Colonies, and of having your just and well merited praises resounded from one end of this extensive Continent to the other.

Gentlemen, with hearts penetrated with unutterable gratitude, and overflowing with benevolent wishes for every blessing on you and your posterity, we have the honour of being your affectionate countrymen, and much obliged humble servants. By order of the Committee.

ABRAHAM KETELTAS, Chairman.

To Philip Livingston, James Duane, John Jay, John Alsop, Isaac Low, Simon Boerum, Henry Wisner, and William Floyd, Esquires.

TO WHICH THEY RETURNED THE FOLLOWING ANSWER:

GENTLEMEN: In the present important contest for the rights and liberties of America, it gives us pleasure to find so respectable a number of the inhabitants of Queen's County publickly testifying their approbation of our conduct at the late Congress, and cheerfully disposed to co-operate with their countrymen in the defence of the common cause.

The pacifick mode of opposition prescribed by the Association, against the ruinous policy of a deceived and vindictive Ministry, although productive of temporary inconveniences, will, in all probability, terminate in the restoration of those inestimable privileges, which, as Englishmen, are our unalienable birth-right.

The power, the glory, and stability of the British Empire, (of which America composes so capital a branch,) depend on the connection and harmony of its several members, and therefore a cordial and permanent union with the parent state, founded off principles of constitutional liberty, cannot cease to be the object of our earnest solicitude, and the grand point in which the efforts of every wise and virtuous Patriot must ultimately centre. Directed by a motive so laudable and salutary, while, by faithfully adhering to the Association, we manifest a zealous attachment to the interest of our country, and an inflexible resolution to maintain our just rights with manly fortitude, let us, by studiously preserving the internal order and tranquillity of the Province, and discountenancing every act of outrage and licentiousness, convince our enemies, that, far from being intoxicated by giddy ambition, or inflamed by a restless spirit of faction, we hold nothing in greater abhorrence than the malignant charge that we aspire after domination and independence.

Permit us to add our most grateful acknowledgments for the obliging and affectionate sentiments expressed in your letter, and to assure you, that we shall esteem ourselves happy in every opportunity of contributing to your welfare and prosperity. We are, gentlemen, with the greatest esteem, your most obedient and obliged servants,

PHILIP LIVINGSTON, ISAAC LOW,
JAMES DUANE, JOHN JAY.
JOHN ALSOP,

To the Reverend Mr. Abraham Keteltas, Chairman, and the Gentlemen of the Committee for the Township of Jamaica.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN MASSACHUSETTS TO HIS FRIEND IN LONDON, DATED JANUARY 21, 1775.

You have no doubt long before this time heard the particulars of the General Congress, and that the Court and the Country have digested their thoughts upon them, if not adopted their consequent plans of conduct. God grant that the Nation and Parliament may think favourably of them, and grant the prayer of our Petition to the King. Britain and America are made to be friends; and it is the most unnatural, detestable quarrel between them, that ever happened in the world. Britons and Americans may write or say what they will, but this quarrel never will, and never can, be made up, but by restoring us to the state we were in, in 1763. It is as certain as that London or Boston exist, that no other plan or scheme of policy that ever can be invented, will keep the two countries together, but that which nature dictated, and which experience found useful for one hundred and fifty years. It is in vain, it is delirium, it is phrenzy, to think of dragooning three millions of English people out of their liberties, at the distance of three thousand miles. It is still more extravagantly wild for a Nation to think of doing it, when itself is sinking down into a bottomless gulf of debt, in order to make the conquered lift her out of it.

The Congress have drawn a line by the banks of the Ocean. They have claimed their own exclusive jurisdiction in all interior concerns, and in all cases of Taxation. They have left to Great Britain the exclusive sovereignty of the Ocean, and over their Trade. They have placed both upon constitutional principles; and if Britons are not content with all we have but our liberty, we say, as the Corporation of London said to the King, in 1770, - "we call God and men to witness, that as we do not owe our liberty to those nice and subtle distinctions which pensions and lucrative employments have invented, so neither will we be deprived of it by them; but as it was gained by the stern virtue of our ancestors, by the virtue of their descendants it shall be preserved."

The Congress consisted of the Representatives of twelve Colonies. Three millions of free white people were there represented. Many of the Members were gentlemen of ample fortunes and eminent abilities. Neither corruption nor intrigue had any share, I believe, in their elections to this service, and in their proceedings you may see the sense, the temper, and principles of America, and which she will support and defend even by force of arms, if no other means will do.

The state of this Province is a great curiosity. I wish the pen of some able historian may transmit it to posterity. Four hundred thousand people are in a state of nature, and yet as still and peaceable at present as ever they were when Government was in full vigour. We have neither Legislators, nor Magistrates, nor Executive Officers. We have no officers but Military ones. Of these we have a multitude, chosen by the people, and exercising them with more authority and spirit than ever any did who had commissions from a Governour.

The Town of Boston is a spectacle worthy of the attention of a Deity; suffering amazing distress, yet determined to endure as much as human nature can, rather than betray America and posterity. General Gage's Army is sickly, and extremely addicted to desertion. What would they be if things were brought to extremities? Do you think such an Army would march through our woods and thickets, and Country Villages, to cut the throats of honest people contending for liberty?

The neighbouring Colonies of New-Hampshire, Rhode-Island, and Connecticut, are arming and training themselves with great spirit; and if they must be driven to the last appeal, devoutly praying for the protection of Heaven.

There is a spirit prevailing here such as I never saw before. I remember the conquest of Louisburg, in 1745; I remember the spirit here when the Duke D'Anville's Squadron was upon this Coast, when forty thousand men marched down to Boston, and were mustered and numbered upon the Common, complete in Arms, from this Province only in three weeks; but I remember nothing like what I have seen these six months past.

CHARLES COUNTY (MARYLAND) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Committee of Charles County, at Mrs. Anne Halkerston's in Port Tobacco Town, on Saturday, the 21st day of January, 1775:

Captain GEORGE DENT, Chairman, and JOHN GWINN, Clerk.

Moved and seconded, That the sense of this Committee be taken, whether any Directions shall be given to the Attorneys of this County, to prevent their bringing Suits at Law, further than is done by the last Provincial Convention; whereupon, the sense of this Committee was taken, and it was Resolved, by a great majority, That no further restraint should be laid upon the bringing Suits at Law in this County, than is done by the last Provincial Convention.

By his Excellency the Right Honourable JOHN, Earl of DUNMORE, his Majesty's Lieutenant and Governour-General of the Colony and Dominion of VIRGINIA, and Vice Admiral of the same:

A PROCLAMATION.

VIRGINIA, to wit:

Whereas, by the blessing of God, and the prudence and resolution of the officers and men employed in the expedition against the Indians, the disturbances which had occasioned such distress and devastation in the back settlements in this Colony, have happily been put an end to; and the Shawanese, from whose incursions the most dreadful effects were felt, to remove all ground of future quarrel, have agreed not to hunt on this side the Ohio, and have solemnly promised not to molest any passengers on that River; but, on the contrary, to give them every assistance and protection; and have consented to receive and to follow all such regulations of their trade as shall hereafter be dictated to them, which may be productive of infinite benefit to the trading people of Virginia; and in return, I have engaged for the people of this Colony, that they will treat the said Shawanese Indians with every possible indulgence, and every mark of friendliness, and when their occasions oblige them to pass through any part of this Dominion, that they shall be protected from all injury.

And whereas, I have received authentick accounts that the Cherokee Nation of Indians have put to death the persons of their Tribe who had been concerned in the murder of young Russell, and others in company with him, which remarkable instance of their good faith and strict regard to justice, as it cannot but evince the sincere desire they entertain of living in peace and good agreement with us, so I hope will dispose all the people of this Colony to acts of beneficence towards, and a friendly intercourse with, all this part of their fellow-creatures.

I have therefore thought fit, with the advice of his Majesty's Council, to issue this Proclamation, hereby requiring all persons in this Government strictly to refrain from committing any violence upon, or doing any injury to, Indians of whatsoever Tribe or Nation, and from every encroachment upon their territory, which may give them cause of complaint; and I do direct and command all Magistrates and other Officers to be aiding and assisting in preserving the peace now established, by immediately apprehending all violators of it, and by protecting the Indians by every means in their power.

Given under my hand and the seal of the Colony, at Williamsburg, this 23d day of January, in the fifteenth year of his Majesty's reign.

DUNMORE

GOD save the King.

County of NORTHUMBERLAND. - Wm. Plunkett, Esq., and Casper Weitsell, Esquire.

The Chairman of the Philadelphia Committee opened the Convention, by explaining the motives which induced said Committee to propose the holding this Convention.

Joseph Read, Esquire, was chosen President of this Convention.

Messrs. Jonathan B. Smith, John Benezet, and Francis Johnson, Esquire, were chosen Secretaries.

On motion,

Resolved unanimously, That the Committee of the City of Philadelphia, and each County Committee, shall have one vote in determining every question that may come before this Convention.

Resolved unanimously, That this Convention most heartily approve of the conduct and proceedings of the Continental Congress; that we will faithfully endeavour to carry into execution the measures of the Association entered into and recommended by them; and that the Members of that very respectable body merit our warmest thanks, by their great and disinterested labours for the preservation of the rights and liberties of the British Colonies.

On motion,

Resolved unanimously, That it be and it is hereby recommended to the several Members of this Convention, to promote and encourage Instructions or Advice from their several Counties, to their Representatives in General Assembly, to procure a law prohibiting the future Importation of Slaves into this Province.

Resolved unanimously, That in case the Trade of the City and Liberties of Philadelphia shall be suspended, in consequence of the present struggle, it is the opinion of this Convention that the several Counties should, and that the Members of this Convention will, exert themselves to afford all the necessary relief and assistance to the inhabitants of the said City and Liberties, who will be more immediately affected by such an event.

Resolved unanimously, That if any opposition shall be given to any of the Committees of this Province, in carrying the Association of the Continental Congress into execution, the Committees of the other Counties, in order to preserve the said Association inviolate, will give all the weight and assistance in their power to the Committee who shall meet with such opposition.

Resolved unanimously, That it is the most earnest wish and desire of this Convention to see harmony restored between Great Britain and the Colonies; that we will exert our utmost endeavours for the attainment of that most de-

* TO THE PUBLICK. - I think it necessary to say, that the late Convention held at Philadelphia, undeservedly inserted my name in the County Committee list. As I left said Convention before the second Resolve was ended, I think it my duty to recall my name from the said list, as I cannot comply with every resolve made in my absence, and do not intend to meet them again sirable object; that it is the opinion of this body that the commercial opposition pointed out by the Continental Congress, if faithfully adhered to, will be the means of rescuing this unhappy country from the evils meditated against it. But if the humble and loyal Petition of said Congress to his most gracious Majesty, should be disregarded, and the British Administration, instead of redressing our grievances, should determine, by force, to effect a submission to the late arbitrary Acts of the British Parliament; in such a situation, we hold it our indispensable duty to resist such force, and at every hazard to defend the Rights and Liberties of America.

Whereas, it has been judged necessary, for the preservation of our just Rights and Liberties, to lay a restraint on our Importations; and as the freedom, happiness, and prosperity of a state greatly depend on providing within itself a supply of articles necessary for subsistence, clothing, and defence, a regard for our country, as well as common prudence, call upon us to encourage Agriculture, Manufactures, and Economy; therefore, this Convention do resolve as follows:

Resolved unanimously, That from and after the first clay of March next, no person or persons should use in his, her, or their families, unless in cases of necessity, and on no account sell to the Butchers, or kill for the market, any Sheep under four years old; and where there is a necessity for using any Mutton in their families, it is recommended to kill such as are the least profitable to keep.

Resolved unanimously, That we recommend the setting up of Woollen Manufactures in as many different branches as possible, especially Coating, Flannel, Blankets, Rugs, or Coverlids, Hosiery, and Coarse Cloths, both broad and narrow.

Resolved unanimously, That we recommend the raising and manufacturing of Madder, Woad, and such other Dye Stuffs as may be raised in this Province to advantage, and are absolutely necessary in the Woollen Manufactories.

Resolved unanimously, That each person having proper land should raise a quantity of Flax and Hemp, sufficient not only for the use of his own family, but also to spare to others on moderate terms; and that it be recommended to the Farmers to provide themselves early with a sufficient quantity of Seed, for the proposed increase of the above articles of Hemp and Flax.

Resolved unanimously, As Salt is a daily and almost indispensable necessary of life, and the making of it among ourselves must be esteemed a valuable acquisition, we therefore recommend the making of it in the manner used in England and other countries; and are of opinion it may be done with success in the interior parts of this Province, where there are Salt springs, as well as on the sea-coasts.

Resolved unanimously, That Saltpetre being an article of great use and consumption, we recommend the making of it, and are of farther opinion it may be done to great advantage.

Resolved unanimously. That the necessity we may be under for Gunpowder, especially in the Indian trade, induces us to recommend the manufacturing that article as largely as possible, by such persons who are or may be owners of Powder-Mills in this Province.

Resolved unanimously, That we recommend the manufacturing of Iron into Nails and Wire, and all other articles necessary for carrying on our Manufactures, evidently in general use, and which, of consequence, should our unhappy differences continue, will be in great demand.

Resolved unanimously, That we are of opinion the making of Steel ought to be largely prosecuted, as the demand for this article will be great.

Resolved unanimously, That we recommend the making of different kinds of Paper now in use among us, to the several Manufacturers; and as the success of this branch depends on a supply of old Linen and Woollen Rags, request the people of this Province, in their respective houses, may order the necessary steps to be taken for preserving these otherwise useless articles.

Resolved unanimously, That as the consumption of Glass is greater than the Glass-Houses now established among us can supply, we recommend the setting up other Glass-Houses, and are of opinion they would turn out to the advantage of the proprietors.

Resolved unanimously, That whereas Wool Combs and Cards have for some time been manufactured in some of the neighbouring Colonies, and are absolutely necessary for carrying on the Hosiery and Clothing business, we do recommend the establishing such a Manufactory in this Province.

Resolved unanimously, That we also recommend the manufacturing of Copper into Sheets, Bottoms, and Kettles.

Resolved unanimously, That we recommend the making of Tin Plates, as an article worthy the attention of the people of this Province.

Resolved unanimously, That as Printing Types are now made to a considerable degree of perfection by an ingenious Artist in Germantown, it is recommended to the Printers to use such Types in preference to any which may be hereafter imported.

Resolved unanimously, That we recommend the erecting a great number of Fulling-Mills, and Mills for breaking, swingling, and softening Hemp and Flax, and also the making of Grindstones in this country.

Resolved unanimously, That as the brewing of large quantities of Malt Liquors within this Province, would tend to render the consumption of Foreign Liquors less necessary, it is therefore recommended that proper attention be given to the cultivation of Barley; and that the several Brewers, both in City and Country, do encourage it by giving a reasonable and sufficient price for the same.

Resolved unanimously, That we recommend to all the inhabitants of this Province, and do promise for ourselves in particular, to use our own Manufactures, and those of the other Colonies, in preference to all others.

Resolved unanimously, That for the more speedily and effectually putting these Resolves in execution, we do earnestly recommend Societies may be established in different parts, and are of opinion that Premiums ought to be granted in the several Counties, to persons who may excel in the several branches of Manufactory; and we do further engage, that we, in our separate Committees, will promote them to the utmost of our power.

Resolved unanimously, That if any Manufacturer or Vender of Goods and Merchandises in this Province, shall take advantage of the necessities of his country, by selling his Goods or Merchandise at an unusual and extravagant profit, such person shall be considered as an enemy to his country, and be advertised as such by the Committees of the place where such offender dwells.

On motion,

Resolved unanimously, That the Committee of Correspondence for the City and Liberties of Philadelphia, be a Standing Committee of Correspondence for the several Counties here represented; and that if it should at any time hereafter appear to the Committee of the City and Liberties, that the situation of publick affairs render a Provincial Convention necessary, that the said Committee of Correspondence do give the earliest notice thereof to the Committees of the several Counties.

Ordered, That the Proceedings of this Convention be sent to the Press and printed in English and German, under the direction of the President and Messrs. Jonathan B. Smith and John Benezet.

TO THE PUBLICK.

Boston, January 20, 1775.

The Committee appointed by the Town of Boston to receive and distribute Donations for the charitable purpose of relieving and employing the sufferers by means of the Act of Parliament commonly called the Boston Port Bill, from a due regard to their own characters and that of the Town under whose appointment they act, as well as for the sake of the said sufferers, who depend upon the continued beneficence of their friends for necessary relief, think themselves obliged, in this publick manner, to contradict a slanderous report raised by evil-minded persons, spread in divers parts of this Province, and perhaps more extensively through the Continent.

The report is, that "each member of the Committee is "allowed six Shillings, as some say half a Guinea, for every "day's attendance, besides a commission upon all the Do"nations received, and other emoluments for their trouble." The Committee, therefore, thus openly declare that the above mentioned report is in every part of it groundless and false; and that they have hitherto attended and acted in their office, and still continue so to do, without any intention, hope, or desire, of receiving any other reward in this life but the pleasure which results from a consciousness of having done good. So satisfied are they of their own disinterested motives and conduct in this regard, that they can safely appeal to the Omniscient Being for their sincerity in this declaration.

And whereas, the Committee have this evening been informed by a letter from the country, of another report equally injurious, viz: that "the Committee have employed poor persons in working for themselves and gentlemen of fortune with whom they are particularly connected in their private concerns, and paid them out of the Donations received." The Committee do, with the same solemnity, declare the said report to be as false as it is scandalous.

They were early apprehensive that the enemies of truth and liberty would spare no pains to misrepresent their conduct and asperse their characters, and therefore, that they might have it in their power to vindicate themselves, they have constantly kept regular books, containing records of the whole of their proceedings, which books, as the Committee advertised the publick some months ago, are open for the inspection of such as are inclined to look into and examine them.

The Committee now challenge any person whatever to make it appear that there is a just foundation for such reports. Until this reasonable demand is complied with, they confide in the justice of the publick, that no credit will be given to reports so injurious to the Committee and to this oppressed and insulted people.

If the friends of truth will inform the Committee of any reports they may hear tending to defame the Committee, and by that means to discourage further Donations for the benevolent purpose of relieving the sufferers above mentioned, it will be acknowledged as a particular favour.

Signed by order of the Committee,

SAMUEL ADAMS, Chairman.

LETTER FROM CONNECTICUT TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK, DATED JANUARY 24, 1775.

Every body among us seems determined not to survive the loss of their civil and religious liberties. We have favourable sentiments of the justice and clemency of our Sovereign, but are preparing against the worst.

It is not pretended to vie with a sister Colony in the noble art of war, though you must allow one that has had long acquaintance with that service, to assure you that our Militia is become respectable. By fresh returns from various parts of the Government, we find that a park of forty pieces of Cannon may be formed in the Spring, should there be occasion, (which may God forbid,) and our Army will be pretty expert at most of the manœuvres; will have in the first Grand Division about ten thousand men, that need not blush to encounter an equal number of foreign Troops from any quarter of the globe. This and some neighbouring Towns are preparing a token of their sympathy for the distressed inhabitants of Boston, which will be sent to the Honourable Committee, who merit highly of their country.

FREDERICK COUNTY (MARYLAND) COMMITTEE,

At a Meeting of the Inhabitants of Frederick County, at the Court House, on Tuesday, the 24th of January, 1775:

JOHN HANSON, Esquire, Chairman,
ARCHIBALD BOYD, Clerk.

The Association and Resolves of the American Congress, and the Proceedings of the last Provincial Convention were read and unanimously approved:

G. Griffith, Henry Griffith, Junior, William Bayly, Junior, Samuel Wade Magruder, Nathaniel Offutt, Archibald Orme, Joseph Threlkeld, Walter Smith, Thomas Beall, of George, Richard Crabb, William Luckett, William Luckett, Junior, Greenbury Griffith, Samuel Griffith, John Hanson, Thomas Price, Thomas Bowles, Conrad Grosh, Thomas Schley, Jonathan Wilson, Francis Deakins, Casper Shaaff, Peter Hoffman, George Scott, Baker Johnson, Philip Thomas, Alexander C. Hanson, Archibald Boyd, Arthur Nelson, Andrew Scott, George Striker, Adam Fischer, Ludwick Weltner, Van Swearingen, William M. For FORT FREDERICK HUNDRED. - Ezekiel Cox.

The said gentlemen are instructed to apply personally, or by deputy, to every freeman in their respective Districts, and to Solicit a generous contribution. They are ordered to state accounts of the money received, and to pay it to the Committee of Correspondence, which is hereby appointed to meet at Fredericktown, the 23d day of March next; and they are further ordered to report to the said Committee the names of such persons (if any) who shall refuse to subscribe.

4th. That Messrs. Thomas Johns, William Deakins, Charles Beatty, George Murdock, John Stull, and John Swan, or any one of them, be empowered to contract, in behalf of the Committee of Correspondence, for any quantity of Powder and Lead, to be paid for on the said 23d day of March.

5th. In order that a Committee of Observation may be more conveniently chosen, and a more proper representation of the people may be had, the several Collectors, in each Hundred, are desired to give notice, to those qualified by their estates to vote for Representatives, of some time and place of meeting, in the Hundred, to elect members for a Committee, agreeably to the following regulation:

When the number of taxables exceeds not two hundred, the District shall elect one member; where it exceeds two hundred, and amounts not to more than four hundred, the District shall choose two members; where it exceeds four hundred, the District shall elect three members. The Collectors are ordered to return such Representatives to the Committee of Correspondence, on the said 23d day of March; the Committee, so chosen, shall then meet, and the authority of the present Committee of Observation be dissolved.

6th. Resolved, That Messrs. John Hanson, Charles Beatty, Upton Sheredine, Baker Johnson, Philip Thomas, Jacob Funk, Samuel Beall, Joseph Chapline, John Stull, James Smith, Henry Griffith, Thomas Sprigg Wootton, Richard Brooke, Willara Deakins, and Thomas Cramphin, or any five of them, shall represent this County at any Provincial Convention to be held at the City of Annapolis, before the second Tuesday of October next.

A Petition, from the people called Dunkers and Menesses, was read; they express a willingness freely to contribute their money in support of the common cause of America, but pray an exemption from the Military Exercise, on the score of their religious principles.

Resolved, That this Petition be referred to the consideration of the Committee to be chosen, agreeably to the fifth Resolve. In the mean time it is strictly enjoined that no violence be offered to the person or property of any one, but that all grounds of complaint be referred to the said Committee.

ARCH. BOYD, Clerk.

The Testimony of the people called QUAKERS, given forth by a Meeting of the Representatives of said people, in PENNSYLVANIA and NEW-JERSEY, held at PHILADELPHIA, the twenty-fourth day of the first month, 1775.

Having considered, with real sorrow, the unhappy contest between the Legislature of Great Britain and the People of these Colonies, and the animosities consequent thereon, we have, by repeated publick advices and private admonitions, used our endeavours to dissuade the members of our Religious Society from joining with the publick Resolutions, promoted and entered into by some of the people, which, as we apprehended, so we now find, have increased contention, and produced great discord and confusion.

The divine principle of grace and truth, which we profess, leads all who attend to its dictates to demean themselves as peaceable subjects, and to discountenance and avoid every measure tending to excite disaffection to the King, as Supreme Magistrate, or to the legal authority of his Government; to which purpose many of the late political writings and addresses to the people appearing to be calculated, we are led, by a sense of duty, to declare our entire disapprobation of them; their spirit and temper being not only contrary to the nature and precepts of the Gospel, but destructive of the peace and harmony of civil society, disqualifying men, in these times of difficulty, for the wise and judicious consideration and promoting of such measures as would be most effectual for reconciling differences, or obtaining the redress of grievances.

From our past experience of the clemency of the King, and his royal ancestors, we have grounds to hope and believe, that decent and respectful addresses, from those who are vested with legal authority, representing the prevailing dissatisfactions, and the cause of them, would avail towards obtaining relief; ascertaining and establishing the just rights of the people, and restoring the publick tranquillity; and we deeply lament that contrary modes of proceeding have been pursued, which have involved the Colonies in confusion; appear likely to produce violence and bloodshed, and threaten the subversion of the constitutional Government, and of that liberty of conscience, for the enjoyment of which our ancestors were induced to encounter the manifold dangers and difficulties of crossing the Seas, and of settling in the wilderness.

We are therefore melted, by a sincere concern for the peace and welfare of our country, publickly to declare against every usurpation of power and authority, in opposition to the Laws and Government, and against all Combinations, Insurrections, Conspiracies, and Illegal Assemblies; and as we are restrained from them by the conscientious discharge of our duty to Almighty God, "by whom Kings reign, and Princes decree justice," we hope, through his assistance and favour, to be enabled to maintain our testimony against any requisitions which may be made of us, inconsistent with our religious principles, and the fidelity we owe to the King and his Government, as by law established; earnestly desiring the restoration of that harmony and concord which have heretofore united the people of these Provinces, and been attended by the divine blessing on their labours.

Signed in, and on behalf of the said Meeting,
JAMES PEMBERTON, Clerk at this time.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN CONNECTICUT, TO HIS FRIEND IN NEW-YORK, DATED JANUARY 24, 1775.

Our Governour has lately called together his Council; nothing however, as yet, hath publicly transpired, saving that they have appointed a day of humiliation and prayer on account of the present alarming state of affairs between the mother country and Colonies. But I have it from good authority that letters have been received from our Agent at the Court of Great Britain, advising that Mr. Penn has cited him to answer before King and Council, in behalf of this Colony, for their encroachments on the Susquehannah Lands, and that the matter is now lying before the Board of Trade; and that he should shortly transmit to the Governour copies of Mr. Penn's Petition, &c., which, as soon as received, I am told our General Assembly will be convened. Some are ready to conjecture, why this intelligence is kept so very secret, may possibly be, lest the Western Members of our Assembly should be induced more generally to attend the session than they otherwise would do. I am likewise told that our Colony Stores of Ammunition are very deficient, and that by a law of this Colony, the Governour and Council are empowered at any time to supply the same, and that in consequence thereof, they have given orders for procuring a large quantity of Gunpowder, Lead, Flints, &c., and that a Vessel actually sailed a few days ago for Holland, in order to procure the same.

This cannot be supposed to be any infringement on the order of King and Council, which our Governour lately received from the Secretary of State, to prevent the importation of Arms, Ammunition, &c., as it is ordered by authority, it must be supposed to be for his Majesty's service only. However, when our Farmers come to pay the reckoning, I believe we shall hear a more particular story about these arcani imperii, for it is supposed that only the costs arising from our new Militia Act, will amount to near fifty thousand Pounds, besides the expenditure for Colony Stores, Powder, &c., and the sending and maintaining an Agent Extraordinary at the Court of Great Britain, together with other incidental charges arising on the trial of the Susquehannah affair; all which will amount to a pretty round sum.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM MARSHFIELD, TO A GENTLEMAN IN BOSTON, DATED JANUARY 24, 1775.

Two hundred of the principal inhabitants of this loyal Town, insulted and intimidated by the licentious spirit that unhappily has been prevalent amongst the lower ranks of people in the Massachusetts Government, having applied to the Governour for a detachment of his Majesty's Troops to assist in preserving the peace, and to check the insupportable insolence of the disaffected and turbulent, were happily relieved by the appearance of Captain Balfour's party, consisting of one hundred Soldiers, who were joyfully received by the Loyalists. Upon their arrival, the valour of the Minute-Men was called forth by Adams's crew; they were accordingly mustered, and to the unspeakable confusion of the enemies of our happy Constitution, no more than twelve persons presented themselves to bear Arms against the Lord's anointed. It was necessary that some apology should be made for the scanty appearance of their volunteers, and they coloured it over with a declaration that "had the party sent to Marshfield "consisted of half a dozen Battalions, it might have been "worth their attention to meet and engage them; but a "day would come when the courage of their Minute host "would be able to clear the country of all their enemies, "howsoever formidable in numbers." The King's Troops are very comfortably accommodated, and preserve the most exact discipline; and now every faithful subject to his King dare freely utter his thoughts, drink his Tea, and kill his Sheep as profusely as he pleases.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM BOSTON, TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK, DATED JANUARY 26, 1775.

About a week ago, one hundred and fifty of the principal inhabitants of the Town of Marshfield entered into General Ruggles's Association against the Liberty plan. When this was known at Plymouth, the faction there threatened to come down in a body and make them recant, or drive them off their farms; on this the Marshfield Associators sent an express to General Gage, to acquaint him with their situation and determination, and to beg his support. This was readily granted them, and a Captain, three Subalterns, and a hundred private men, were immediately detached on board two small Vessels to Marshfield, where they landed very quietly last Monday, and when the last accounts came away there was no appearance of the Plymouth Rebels.

The detachment carried with them three hundred stand of Arms for the use of the gentlemen of Marshfield; one hundred and fifty more having joined the first Associators, on advice of the Plymouth threatenings; the whole three hundred have solemnly engaged themselves to turn out in case of an attack.

That the Liberty Rebels in this Town might save their own credit, and that of their adherents in Plymouth, and that they might have something to say for not opposing the detachment, they, on the first hearing where the Soldiers were going, wisely sent off an express to their Plymouth confederates, begging them to desist from doing what they really had no mind to do; and now they are praising themselves for their peaceable disposition, which they always do when their outrages have raised any opposition against them, and are execrating the Government for wanting to massacre them.

Our only news in this Town is a trifling affray which happened between some Officers and the Town Watch, occasioned by the Watchmen abusing them. The quarrel, I hear, has been inquired into, and the Selectmen have turned off some of the Watchmen; notwithstanding which, the Watchmen, supported by some of the Rebels with money, have commenced an action of damages against the Officers, on purpose to harass them, and to raise a clamour against military insolence and oppression; and there is no doubt the Rebels will bring witnesses enough to swear any thing they are desired.

A gentleman who signed the Address to General Gage, who happened to be present, and who did all in his power to prevent mischief, was complained of, against next day, before a Justice of the Peace, by four affidavit mongers, for having encouraged the Officers. These villains have sworn that this gentleman repeatedly called to the Officers to run the Watchmen through, damned their blood, and hoped to see the street run with it. By this you will see our Rebels have resorted to their old deceitful plan of first quarrelling with the Troops, and then swearing the Troops were the aggressors. This is a fairer plan than their fighting, and more suitable to their genius, and is well calculated to inflame all their adherents at a distance, who will undoubtedly believe their string of affidavits.

NORTHUMBERLAND COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Committee of Northumberland County, on Wednesday, the 25th of January, 1775, present, Thomas Jones, Chairman, Peter Presley Thornton, Spencer M. Ball, David Boyd, John Cralle, Junior, Lindsay Opie, Pemberton Claughton, William Thomas, John Christopher, Charles Downing, Daniel Muse, and John Shearman Woodcock.

The Chairman acquainted the Committee, that an informarion had been made to him against William Lewis, of Cherry Point, for Gaming with one Anthony 'Kenley, of Baltimore, in the Province of Maryland, contrary to the eighth Article of the American Continental Association. The parties were called, and the witnesses sworn and examined; Lewis was present, and made his defence; M'Kenley failed to appear.

It appeared to the Committee, upon the evidence delivered, that the said Lewis had won from the said M'Kenley, a Silver Watch, two pair of Leather Breeches, and two men's fine Hats.

Resolved, That the said Lewis and M'Kenley are guilty of Gaming, and consequently have violated that part of the eighth Article of the American Continental Association.

Resolved, That the said Lewis and M'Kenley be advertised, agreeable to the eleventh Article of the aforesaid Association; and that the Clerk of this Committee forthwith transmit these Proceedings to one of the Printers in Williamsburg, to be printed in the Virginia Gazette.

JOHN S. WOODCOCK, Clerk.

PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL.

At a Council held at Philadelphia, on Wednesday, 25th January, 1775. present, the Honourable John Penn, Esq., Governour, William Logan, Andrew Allen, Benjamin Chew, Edward Shippen, Junior, and James Tilghman, Esquires.

The Governour laid before the Board two Papers delivered to him by Captain St. Clair, which were read, and are as follows, viz:

WESTMORELAND County, ss.

Before us, Robert Hanna and Arthur St. Clair, Esqs., two of his Majesty's Justices for Westmoreland County, personally appeared Samuel Whitesill, Keeper of the Jail of the said County, and being duly sworn, according to law, depose and saith, that, on this instant, 24th of December, a number of armed men came to the Jail of said County, and ordered him to open the prison doors, and turn out a certain William Thomas, then in his custody, on sundry executions; that he believes a certain William Christy, and Simon Girty, who seemed to be Officers from their dress, were at the head of their party. That he, this deponent, refused to deliver his prisoner, or open the door where he was confined; that they then talked of throwing down the house, when a certain Major Conolly came up, inquired who resisted the releasement of the prisoner, threatened to tie and carry off this deponent, ordered the party to fire their pieces against the house, and strip off the roof, on which he (this deponent) being afraid of ill consequences, both to his person and property, did open the door to allow the prisoner to speak to the party, and one of them rushed in, seized him, and dragged him out, and also turned out a certain William Dawson, who was likewise, in his custody on execution; and that it was Conolly himself who laid hands on Thomas, and dragged him out; and further saith not.

SAMUEL WHITESILL.

Sworn and subscribed, December 24, 1774, before us,

ROBERT HANNA,

ARTHUR ST. CLAIR.

Whereas, I am well informed that certain persons, by written instructions, directed to different people through this country, under the denomination of Collectors, are apparently authorized to break open doors, cupboards, &c., and to commit sundry acts of violence, in order to extort money from the inhabitants, under the appellation of Taxes. These are therefore to acquaint all his Majesty's subjects, that as there can be no authority legally vested in any persons for such acts at this juncture, that such attempts to abuse publick liberty are unwarrantable, and that all persons have an undoubted natural, as well as lawful, right to repel such violence, and all his Majesty's subjects are hereby required to apprehend any person whatever, who may attempt a seizure of their effects, in consequence of such imaginary authority, to be dealt with as the law directs.

Given under my hand at Fort Dunmore this 30th day of December, 1774.

JOHN CONOLLY.

Captain St. Clair appearing at the Board, and representing that William Crawford, Esquire, President of the Court in Westmoreland County, hath lately joined with the Government of Virginia, in opposing the jurisdiction of Pennsylvania, in that County, the Board advised the Governour to supersede him in his office as Justice of the Peace and Common Pleas. A Supersedeas was accordingly ordered to be issued.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM PHILADELPHIA, TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK, DATED JANUARY 25, 1775.

The addresses to Governour Colden arrived here Sunday night. They were published in Dunlap's Paper the next morning, (the day the Provincial Congress met.) This has had a great effect; such expressions of loyalty offend the ears of Republicans; some of the Counties (at least one) see no propriety in this Convention, and will not send Delegates to attend it; several others have sent Delegates merely to oppose the mustering a Militia; upon this our Committee agreed not to propose it, so that these miserable politicians will rack their brains to invent some plausible pretence for calling the Province together at a season of the year so inconvenient; their transactions will consist of pious Resolves to kill no Wethers, and to encourage the industrious Farmer to make his own coat, and a hearty approbation of the Confessional Proceedings will be artfully brought about. This, and a little inflammatory matter to keep sedition alive, now almost expiring, will take up their whole time.

I am not without hopes that a Petition will be sent to our Assembly, at their meeting next month, to rescind their approbation of the Proceedings of Congress. Nothing but a shameful fear of popular resentment ever could have extorted from them such a Resolve. Your Assembly is revered by all sensible men in this City, for their great prudence and undaunted resolution in first making a stand against lawless usurpers of power, and violators of liberty; from that period I date the fall of anarchy, and the commencement of good order.

A worthy gentleman of my acquaintance from Maryland, of moderate sentiments, though one of their late Provincial Congress, informs me the Marylanders are in general mad; they are the most ignorant people that live; a moderate man dare not speak his sentiments; a person for drinking Lord North's health, was thrown into a fire, and had near been killed. This is the genuine spirit of patriotism which those people breathe; but although this is the vulgar conduct, the more sensible part disclaim such violences; and this gentleman assures me, that if the King's Standard were erected there, a great part of the people would immediately repair to it from sentiment; the rest would soon follow through timidity. In Baltimore, the people muster frequently; but so fearful are these brave Soldiers of the inclement air, that they shoulder their muskets under a roof only. They have broke open the Court House, and by a fire-side, within walls that are "bomb-proof," they talk heroically and gallantly of what they can do; they have raised near the amount they resolved on in Congress; what they could not by entreaty, they did by threats. The famous General Lee is mustering near Annapolis, (or rather was mustering.) From his professions and boasted skill, he had one day several hundred under his tuition; but he behaved so insolently, and discovered such a passionate, overbearing disposition, that the second day he had only seventy, and the third day only fifteen; a glorious declension.

PROVINCE OF NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

At the Convention of Deputies, appointed by the several Towns in the Province aforesaid, held at Exeter, on the 25th day of January, 1775: present one hundred and forty-four Members.

Hon. JOHN WENTWORTH, Esquire, President.

Voted unanimously, That we heartily approve of the proceedings of the late Grand Continental Congress, respecting the just state of the Rights and Liberties of the British Colonies, and of the means recommended to restore, secure, and protect the same; and that we return our most unfeigned thanks to the late Members of that Congress in general, and to those of this Province in particular, for the faithful discharge of the important trust reposed in them.

Voted, That John Sullivan and John Langdon, Esqs., be Delegates to represent this Province in the Continental Congress, proposed to be held at Philadelphia, on the 10th day of May next; and that they, and each of them in the absence of the other, have full and ample power, in behalf of this Province, to consent and agree to all measures which said Congress shall deem necessary to obtain redress of American Grievances.

Voted, That two hundred and fifty Pounds, lawful money, be raised, for defraying the expenses of said Delegates.

Voted, That the Honourable John Wentworth, Esquire, Colonel Nathaniel Folsom, Honourable Mesheck Weare, Esquire, Colonel Josiah Bartlet, Colonel Christopher Toppan, Ebenezer Thompson, and William Whipple, Esquires, be a Committee in behalf of this Province, to call a Provincial Convention of Deputies, when they shall judge the exigencies of publick affairs require it; and that they, together with Samuel Cutts and John Pickering, Esquires, be a Committee of Correspondence for this Province.

Voted, The following Address:

TO THE INHABITANTS OF THE PROVINCE OF NEW-HAMPSHIRE.

BRETHREN: When we consider the unhappy condition to which you and your American brethren are reduced; when we reflect that for near ten months past you have been deprived of any share in your own Government, and of those advantages which flow to society from Legislative Assemblies; when we view the lowering clouds, charged with Ministerial vengeance, fast spreading over this extensive Continent, ready to burst on the heads of its inhabitants, and to involve the whole British Empire in one common ruin; at this alarming juncture, duty to Almighty God, to our country, ourselves, and posterity, loudly demands our most strenuous exertions to avoid the impending danger.

Such are the measures adopted by the British Ministry for enslaving you, and with such incessant vigilance has their plan been prosecuted, that Tyranny already begins to waive its banners in your borders, and to threaten these once happy regions with infamous and detestable slavery.

Shall we, knowing the value of freedom, and nursed in the arms of Liberty, make a base and ignominious surrender of our rights, thereby consigning succeeding generations to a condition of wretchedness, from which, perhaps, all human efforts will be insufficient to extricate them?

Duty to ourselves, and regard for our country, should induce us to defend our liberties, and to transmit the fair inheritance unimpaired to posterity.

Should our restless enemies drive us to arms in defence of every thing we hold dear, we should be reduced to a state, dreadful even in contemplation; for, should we prove victorious, the blood of our brethren shed in the unhappy contest, would cause the laurels to wither on our brows, and make the conquerors mourn with the vanquished. But should our enemies be successful, they will thereby rivet the chains of slavery upon us and our posterity.

Thus surrounded with dangers and distresses on every side, it behoves us to adopt and pursue such peaceable measures, as, under God, will be most likely to prevent those dreadful calamities with which we are threatened.

Fully sensible, that to point out, with any degree of certainty, the methods by which you may shun the threatening evils, would require more than human wisdom, we can only recommend such measures as appear to us most likely to answer that desirable end, and best calculated to restore to you that peace and harmony so ardently wished for by every good and honest American. We therefore earnestly recommend,

1st. That you discountenance and discourage all trespasses and injuries against individuals and their property, and all disorders of every kind; and that you cultivate and maintain peace and harmony among yourselves.

2d. That you yield due obedience to the Magistrates within this Government, and carefully endeavour to support the laws thereof.

3d. That you strictly adhere to the Association of the late Continental Congress, and deal with the violators of it in the manner therein recommended.

4th. That you endeavour particularly to enforce the laws of the Province against Hawkers, Pedlar, and Petty Chapmen.

5th. That you abstain from the use of East India Tea; whenever, or by whatever means it has or may be imported.

6th. That you encourage and support your several Committees of Correspondence and Inspection, in discharging the very important trust you have reposed in them.

7th. That in case any inhabitant of these Colonies should be seized, in order to be transported to Great Britain, or other parts beyond Seas, to be tried for offences supposed to be committed in America, you conduct yourselves agreeable to the advice of the late Continental Congress.

8th. That in your several stations you promote and encourage the Manufactures of this country, and endeavour, both by precept and example, to induce all under you, and with whom you are connected, to practice economy and industry, and to shun all kinds of extravagance.

9th. That the Officers of the several Regiments strictly comply with the laws of this Province for regulating the Militia; and as the Militia upon this Continent, if properly disciplined, would be able to do great service in its defence, should it ever be invaded by his Majesty's enemies, that you acquaint yourselves with the manual exercise, particularly that recommended and enjoined by the Captain General, the motions being natural, easy, and best calculated to qualify persons for real action; and also to improve themselves in those evolutions which are necessary for infantry in time of engagement.

10th. That, as your enemies are using every art to impoverish and distress you, in order to induce submission to their arbitrary mandates, you carefully shun those measures which may have a tendency to distress your brethren and fellow-sufferers, and avoid all unnecessary law suits, and endeavour to settle disputes between you in the most amicable and least expensive manner. That all debtors exert themselves in discharging their just debts, and all creditors exercise such lenity as their circumstances will admit of.

11th. That as the inhabitants of the Town of Boston, in the Province of the Massachusetts Bay, are now labouring under a load of Ministerial vengeance, laid upon them to enforce obedience to certain arbitrary and unconstitutional acts, which, if once submitted to, must involve all America in slavery and ruin; conscious that all these Colonies are largely indebted to the virtue and fortitude of those patriotick assertors of freedom, we heartily recommend a continuation of your contributions, for the relief of that oppressed people; and that you keep yourselves in constant readiness to support them in their just opposition, whenever necessity may require.

Lastly. We earnestly entreat you, at this time of tribulation and distress, when your enemies are urging you to despair, when every scene around is full of gloom and horror, that in imitation of your pious forefathers, with contrition of spirit, and penitence of heart, you implore the Divine Being, who alone is able to deliver you from your present unhappy and distressing situation, to espouse your righteous cause, secure your liberties, and fix them on a firm and lasting basis; and we fervently beseech him to restore to you, and your American brethren, that peace and tranquillity so ardently desired, and earnestly sought for, by every true friend to liberty and mankind. By order of the Convention.

J. WENTWORTH, President.

PITTSYLVANIA COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

The Freeholders of the County of Pittsylvania, being duly summoned, convened at the Court House of the said County, on Thursday, the 26th of January, 1775, and then proceeded to make choice of a Committee, agreeable to the direction of the General Congress, for enforcing and putting into execution the Association, when the following gentlemen were chosen members for the same, viz: Abraham Shelton, Robert Williams, Thomas Dilliard, William Todd, Abraham Penn, Peter Perkins, Benjamin Lankford, Thomas Terry, Arthur Hopkins, Hugh Challus, Charles L. Adams, James Walker, William Peters Martin, Daniel Shelton, Willam Ward, Edmund Taylor, Isaac Clements, Gabriel Shelton, Peter Wilson William Short, Henry Conway, John Payne, Sen., Joseph Roberts, William Witcher, Henry Williams, John Salmon, Reverend Lewis Gwillam, Richard Walden, Peter Saunders, John Wilson, and Crispen Shelton.

The Committee then proceeded to make choice of Robert Williams for their Chairman, and William Peters Martin their Clerk.

During the time of choosing the said Committee, the utmost good order and harmony was observed, and all the inhabitants of the County, then present (which was very numerous) seemed determined and resolute in defending their liberties and properties at the risk of their lives, and if required, to die by their fellow-sufferers (the Bostonians) whose cause they consider as their own; and it being mentioned in Committee, that their County had never contributed their proportionable part towards defraying the expenses of the Delegates, who attended on our behalf at the General Congress, that sum was immediately and cheerfully raised, and deposited in the hands of Peter Perkins and Benjamin Lankford, Esquires, the Representatives for the said County, to be transmitted by them, to whom it ought to have been paid; after which the Committee rose, and several loyal and patriotick toasts were drank, and the Company dispersed, well pleased with the behaviour of those people they had put their confidence in.

Ordered, That a copy of the above Proceedings be inserted in the Virginia Newspapers.

WILLIAM PETERS MARTIN, Clerk Committee.

PRECINCT OF SHAWANGUNK, IN THE COUNTY OF ULSTER,
NEW-YORK, JANUARY 26, 1775.

A certain Pamphlet entitled "Free Thoughts on the Resolves of the Congress," &c., under the signature of "A. W. Farmer," dated 16th of November, 1774, having been privately dispersed among several of the Freeholders and Inhabitants of the County of Ulster, a notification thereof was given by a publick advertisement, whereon a number of the most respectable Freeholders and Inhabitants of the Precinct of Shawangunk, in the County of Ulster, met at the house of George Smith, in said Precinct, and a Committee of five being chosen, viz: Johannes Jansen, Benjamin Smedes, Junior, Jacobus Bruyn, Johannes Hardenburg, Jun., and Lewis Gasherie, of whom Jacobus Bruyn, being chosen Chairman, when the Proceedings of the late Continental Congress were read, as also the aforesaid Pamphlet having been produced and read, it was unanimously Resolved, 1. That it is the opinion of this meeting, that they most heartily approve of the Association, and acquiesce in all the other measures entered into by the late General Continental Congress, and that they will use every means in their power to render them effectual.

Resolved, 2. That the said Pamphlet is replete with falsehoods artfully calculated to impose on the illiterate and unthinking, in order to frustrate the Resolves of the Congress, and to destroy that union so necessary for the preservation of our American constitutional Liberty; therefore,

Resolved, 3. That the said Pamphlet, in detestation and abhorrence of such infamous publications, be now publicly burnt, and that the authors, publishers, and circulators of such performances be henceforth deemed the enemies of their country.

Which Resolves being publicly read, and unanimously approved, the above Pamphlet was burnt accordingly.

Ordered likewise, That a copy of the Proceedings of this meeting be transmitted to the Committee of Correspondence for this County.

By order of the Committee,
JACOBUS BRUYN, Chairman.

TO THE PEOPLE OF AMERICA.

Boston, January 26, 1775,

MY WORTHY FRIENDS AND FELLOW-COUNTRYMEN: After making one or two previous observations, I shall endeavour to set before you what will probably be the consequences of your infatuated blindness, wishing and earnestly hoping by this or any other means, to see that social happiness, peace, and harmony, restored, which have reigned in this once happy land; - to see you convinced of your imprudent and rash behaviour, and returning to that obedience to the laws and authority of Great Britain, which alone can make you a free, wealthy, and happy people.

Mankind in general are too apt to indulge themselves in contemplating and forming Utopian schemes, and if they fail in the execution of them, to solace themselves with the reflection, that, "in great attempts, 'tis glorious even to fail." Nor is this a matter of wonder, as it gratifies an itch for superiority, and a thirst for applause, which are implanted by nature in every breast, in a greater or less degree. To what a pitch of infatuation then may we suppose these passions to be raised in those men who are unwilling to confine themselves within the bounds, or submit to the laws, prescribed by the Government to which they are subject; whose conduct has justly merited punishment and contempt, and who must inevitably sink into infamy and obscurity. When these men find it necessary by some bold step to retrieve their characters; set about a reformation of a Government already the envy of every other Nation, and are determined to accomplish their views, or perish in the attempt, we must at once be sensible, that not the united misery of all their fellow-men, nor the destruction of the peace and good order of the world, will ever deter them from their desperate undertaking; but, that rather than fall in their enterprise, they will exult to introduce anarchy and confusion into the state, and glory to riot upon the miseries of mankind in private life. Happy shah I think myself, and very fortunate esteem you, my friends and fellow-countrymen, if the consequences of their detestable conduct do not strictly justify this description of their wickedness and folly.

The independence which these leaders aim at, the means of obtaining it, and the necessary consequences which must result from it, are replete with the most distressing calamities, destructive mischiefs, and aggravated miseries, that ever were inflicted on mankind, and yetto these curses, horrid in idea, but which will prove much more dreadful in reality, you are tamely and quietly submitting; while it is yet in your power effectually to prevent them, and to save yourselves from ruin. Rouse, I beseech you, consider hut one moment, before it is too late (which it shortly will be) on what ground you stand; revolve in your minds the dangerous situation you are in; and by a seasonable attention to, and amendment Of your infatuated conduct, discharge that duty which you owe to God, your King, your country, to yourselves, and succeeding millions of your posterity yet unborn. You will pardon my warmth; I feel for your unfortunate and fatal security; fain would I snatch you from the surrounding flames; fain would I save you from the threatened destruction.

Let us now coolly consider what would be the consequences if you could obtain the darling object of your wishes, and erect an independent Republick; first premising the insurmountable obstacles and unforeseen difficulties, which must retard your progress, and finally frustrate your hopes. Your expectations of accomplishing this mad undertaking must at once appear to be groundless, when you consider that the Throne was never more secure in the hearts of a free and happy people; the Nation never more powerful in its resources, or more respected abroad; nor Administration more firmly established in the esteem and approbation of a great majority of the people (notwithstanding any artful suggestions to the contrary) than at this day. Little reason indeed can we then have to think that such a Nation will tamely admit the claims, and give way to the elamour of her rebellious Colonies, who depend upon her for their very existence, and have made such ungrateful returns for her parental care and protection of them. The British Nation, though humane and condescending to fault, yet when so highly provoked, and wantonly irritated, will not remain inactive, nor unsheath the sword in vain, but will severely correct and chastise our insolence: If she does not she will inevitably be rendered contemptible in the eyes of all Europe; there is not an Island in the West Indies, nor the most inferior Corporation in her Dominions, but will at once be setting up new claims, and wrest from her even the very appearance of authority. Add to this that the honour and justice of the Nation are very materially interested in the present disputes, and nothing short of an entire disavowal of any right or authority of Great Britain over her Colonies is now insisted upon. Can any man in his senses then suppose that she will make no opposition; that she will not make a point of reducing us to obedience, and establishing her authority over us, upon a sure and permanent foundation. If we may argue by analogy from smaller things to greater; if we may conclude from the experience of former ages and Nations; if we consult the dictates of human nature, she certainly will; and if she should, would it not be well for us to sit down and count the cost before we think of an opposition. Does not prudence, does not a regard for our safety, and every thing that we hold dear, demand the most serious consideration? Nothing less than rebellion is in question. Who can think of it without shuddering? who can rush into it without the most desperate madness? And when we reflect upon the little probability we have of success, the project appears ten times more senseless, unaccountable, and absurd; our folly a thousand times more glaring; and the danger infinitely more real and extensive. No single circumstance is in our favour, while every thing seems in a most extraordinary manner to conspire against us. We have no Officers capable of conducting an Army, and if by chance there should be any, they are men who will never sacrifice their honour, credit, character, reputation, and conscience, by engaging in open rebellion. No Soldiers disciplined for service; for let me assure you, that notwithstanding the parade and noise that has been made about learning the manual exercise, and the frequent trainings which you have had among you, these will never make you Soldiers fit for service; - these are but mere outside tinsel and ornamental show in comparison with the various manœuvres, evolutions, marchings, counter-marchings, advancing, retreating, breaking, rallying, and a thousand other circumstances, which (being unacquainted with military terms) I don't readily recollect, and of which you can have no idea. Most of you suppose, by all that can be collected, that the several Armies, should there ever be an engagement, will stand on the same ground, till a superiority of numbers and mere personal courage (which you vainly take for granted is on your side) shall decide the day in your favour against disciplined veterans; but be not too daring, from any misapprehensions of this kind; you will find yourselves at once astonished, confounded, and put to flight, by sudden and unexpected attacks from every quarter; at one time you will seem to have a handful of Troops to oppose; and the next minute they will appear almost innumerable, merely from their dexterous movements, and the different situations in which they will be placed. And should you be able to perfect yourselves even in this part of the discipline, your skill will rebound with ten-fold destruction upon your own heads; for by far the greater part, when matters shall be brought to such extremities, will declare on the loyal side, and extricate themselves from the guilt of rebellion, by the most vigorous efforts to suppress it. Add to this, that you neither have, nor can procure Camp Equipage, Military Stores, Arms, or Ammunition, except the trifling pittance already in our possession, (for nothing can be easier than to prevent the increase of your stock,) and how long do your infatuated zealots suppose that this can serve you? Perhaps they may endeavour to persuade you that Heaven will interpose and save you, by making your warlike stores inexhaustible, like the widow's cruise: this I firmly believe if their diminution depends upon your making use of them. But to be serious - God is a God of order, and not of confusion; he commands you to submit to your Rulers, and to be obedient to the higher powers for conscience sake, and therefore can never be supposed to favour Traitors and Rebels. So that if you should die in a state of actual rebellion, you will not only forfeit your worldly interest to your injured Sovereign, and entail misery, poverty, and infamy upon your posterity, but inevitably draw down the vengeance of the Almighty upon your guilty souls. But a terrible reverse of circumstances is presented to your view, if you turn your thoughts to those whom you will be obliged to oppose. They are commanded by a General, who, although respected, and amiable for his social virtues, for his prudence, humanity, long suffering, and clemency, of which you all cannot but be sensible, is nevertheless universally allowed to be a brave soldier, cool, intrepid, watchful, and resolute; perfectly acquainted with the military art; he will improve every advantage in his favour, and never expose himself by big imprudence or rashness. His exquisite sensibility and humane disposition will doubtless recoil at what his duty and interest oblige him to undertake; but those he will willingly sacrifice when his loyalty to his King, and his regard for the interest of both countries require it at his hands. How different also is the character of the Officers and Soldiers under his command from yours? Many of them have fought in defence of their country; many of them justly merit the character of true British veterans, for their honourable and successful services; many of them have been in battles which have reflected the highest honour upon themselves, and the most extensive reputation upon the British Arms; and all of them are skilled in military service and discipline; they are all firmly established in the most loyal principles, and entertain a just indignation at the unwarrantable and illegal practices which they daily see carried on under your direction and patronage; they are amply provided with all kinds of Military Stores, and can very readily at any time be recruited, should there be any necessity for it; they are engaged in a cause which their duty to God, their King, and country, require them to espouse, and will enable them to support. Here let me pause; - can any man upon this cursory, though true representation of facts, hesitate to determine at once to return to the allegiance from which he has revolted, and to make some atonement by his future loyal and dutiful behaviour for his past misconduct; or if he is not yet tainted with the infectious phrenzy of the times, to continue a faithful and true subject of the British Realm? He certainly cannot; the most powerful motives which can ever influence human counsels, urge him on one side, while nothing but what every good man must deprecate and abhor can stimulate him to a contrary conduct.

But I will now suppose that we have gained our wished for Independence, and admit for argument sake, (what is not supposed in fact) that Great Britain will relinquish her jurisdiction over us, disclaim all her authority, and give us up a prey to our own madness and folly; what mighty boon should we obtain? Let us consider the consequences; let us see in what manner it would probably affect us, abstracted from the influence it may have upon other States and Kingdoms in Europe. It will be necessary immediately to determine upon some form of Government; and here what intestine jars and jealousies must be the necessary consequence. Various as are the faces of mankind, so different are they in their opinions upon Civil Government, especially when every bold, ambitious man finds room for the exertion of his abilities; he will want no other motive to induce him to object to any plan proposed, than that any one has recommended it before him. Determined to be the leader of a party, his art and address will gain him followers, and you will soon have as many forms of Government contended for, as there are men who have ambition, resolution, and ability sufficient to conduct their cause. Necessity will then oblige you either to submit to a set of petty tyrants, who, unless divested of the passions and feelings which have uniformly actuated the conduct of all their predecessors, will at once be intoxicated with success, and rule you with a rod of iron, or to live in a state of perpetual war with your neighbours, and suffer all the calamities and misfortunes incident to anarchy, confusion, and bloodshed. Scenes of this kind we may naturally expect within the limits of a single Province. But when we extend our thoughts to the controversies which will arise between the several Colonies and Provinces, about the Seat of Government, each contending for its own Metropolis; the general form of Government to be established over the whole Continent; the choice of a Monarch; members of the Aristocracy, Oligarchy, or Democracy, as either of those modes shall be preferred, language fails me in the description of the universal carnage and desolation which must inevitably ensue. The most unfeeling breast must, on this occasion, be pierced with the most exquisite sensibility, and the very dumb creation burst with indignation at our astonishing folly, provoking madness, and unpardonable stupidity. But can any one suppose that the powerthl states of Europe would sit still and lose so valuable an opportunity of increasing their power and extending their Dominions? They certainly would not. What misery, then, will you bring upon yourselves, when two formidable Armies, irresistible by any force that you can raise, shall make your country the scene of war. The event must be, that you will be treated as slaves and vassals to the conquering Power; or, to make the most favourable supposition, if one of the states of Europe should invade you, to procure salvation from entire destruction, you will be obliged to make a sacrifice of infinitely greater privileges than any that you unreasonably suppose yourselves in danger of losing from the exercise of the authority of the parent state over you. In proportion to the value of the acquisition, they will enhance their security; and, to make sure of your subjection, will put it out of your power to resist their authority or oppose their tyrannical designs against you. You will then, in the language of the most humiliating penitence and sorrow, fly for protection to that power which you now so wantonly resist, and beg to shelter yourselves under her wing upon any conditions she shall see fit to impose. You will readily renounce every claim that you now set up, and trust to her wisdom and justice for your future protection and government. But it may then be too late to appease the wrath of a spirited, provoked, and angry Nation.

But let us shift the scene. It can never be supposed that Great Britain will thus lose so bright a jewel in her Crown; she will rather, like a kind parent, bring us to our senses by a timely correction and chastisement of our insolence. To this, nothing further will be requisite than to shut up all the Ports upon the Continent, and make prize of all vessels that shall be found in these Seas; and a small part of the British Navy will be able effectually to execute this plan. What would then be our situation? You will perhaps readily answer, that this must be done at the expense of the ruin of the Nation; that she will never survive the loss of our trade. But in this you are equally mistaken, as in all the other preposterous notions you entertain. A temporary inconvenience she might suffer, but would soon recover the loss. She may be supplied with most if not all the articles that this country produces from other parts, where she would find a sale for all the manufactures she can spare. By opening and encouraging a free trade with foreign countries, commerce might be turned into a channel equally beneficial to her, and she would, in a short time, outgrow any inconvenience that can be suffered from relinquishing her dealings with us. But, in the mean time, what must be our situation? Distressing, indeed, when deprived of those necessities which we should find it impossible to live without, and at the same time unable to procure them from any quarter. Moreover, a great proportion of the inhabitants upon the Continent, who obtain a livelihood by a maritime life, and the several trades and occupations which depend upon the encouragement of navigation, would at once be thrown out of bread and unable even to procure a sustenance, and would, by their numbers, and the encouragement which they would receive from others, equally sensible of the mischiefs you had brought upon them, finally compel you all to return to a sense of your true interest, and become dutiful and obedient children to the parent state. the probable truth of this we may easily collect from the necessity there is of the most generous and liberal contributions from our sister Colonies, to enable the suffering poor of the Town of Boston to support the poverty resulting from shutting up their Port. What a miserable plight, then, will they and all the others upon the Continent be in, should these unhappily be reduced to the same predicament? Self-preservation would force you all, my dear countrymen, to adopt any measures for your relief, and none would ever be effectual but a full submission to, and acknowledgment of, the supreme jurisdiction of the Parliament of Great Britain over the Colonies. You will perhaps say, that far different, probably, would be the consequences of shutting up all the Ports upon the Continent, from what I have suggested; you will rather insinuate that it would be attended with many circumstances which bear a much more favourable aspect; that the Colonies would at once declare a free trade with all the other states in the world; that, in consequence of it, ships would arrive from these states, which would be seized as prizes by the British ships; that this would irritate the several Governments to which they might belong, which would resent the injury; and that thus Great Britain would have all the Powers of Europe at once to oppose, and finally sink in the contest, or submit to the claims of the Colonies, and apply to them for assistance. A very formidable account indeed. Not to insist upon the absurdity of declaring a free trade with other states, when all your Ports are shut up, all vessels made prizes, and consequently all communication with any part of the world cut off, I would just reply, that no state in Europe will be quite so forward to incur the resentment of the British Nation; no state in this enlightened age, so regardless of the principles of justice, equity, and the Laws of Nations, as to interfere with the private concerns between Great Britain and her Colonies. And should any of them be so rash, Great Britain will find Powers enough who will remain so far true to her interest, as to oppose any attempts to injure her on such an account. But even admitting that all the states in the world should incline to take such a step, they must be blind not to see that it would be the most destructive, impolitical conduct, to attempt the ruin of the British Empire, which now preserves the balance between all the Powers upon earth, and which, should it be reduced, must finally bring on the downfall of half the Kingdoms in the world. Carnage, war, and bloodshed must ensue, till the wavering balance, after alternate preponderations, should, by these destructive calamities, once more be restored to its equilibrium, and Peace with her smiling train once more bless mankind with harmony and joy.

Thus, my dear countrymen, in whatever light we consider this truly Utopian project, the more attentively we view it, and the more thoroughly we scan it, the more impracticable, absurd, and ridiculous it appears. Let not, then, a conviction of the folly of your conduct suffer you any longer to remain in your error. Some men are so obstinate, that when once they have adopted a plan, they will never relinquish it, however sensible they may be of its pernicious tendency. But this character, I am persuaded, is not applicable to you all. Let then, I beseech you, your regard for your own welfare, your attachment to the interest of the community, your natural good sense and humanity, induce you but one moment to reflect upon your dangerous situation. Nothing but an immediate reformation of your past behaviour can save you from the impending evils with which you are threatened. It is an instance of the most laudable goodness of heart and greatness of soul, to acknowledge and reform any error which we have zealously embraced, when sensible of our deception and mistake. The experience of all ages may convince us that "to err is human." Let, then, an amendment of your conduct prove to you that "to forgive" is the "divine" attribute, which Britons ever rejoice to discover, and are most cordially willing to exercise towards their deluded, unhappy children in America. PHILEIRENE,

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM NEW-YORK, TO A GENTLEMAN IN ANNAPOLIS, DATED JANUARY 26, 1775.

I have the most perfect satisfaction in acquainting you that this day was made, in our Assembly, a motion for appointing a day for examining the Proceedings of the Continental Congress, and that it was thrown out of the House by a majority of one voice.

Of this event I heartily wish you joy, and that this example may be adopted by the Senators in your Province; but my fears almost preclude the hope of such good.

TO THE PUBLICK.

By the following Letters,* these facts appear unquestionable, viz: that the Committee of fifty-one first proposed a General Congress to the people of Boston; that the Committee have in the most explicit manner pledged their honour for the faithful observance of what should be determined on by the Congress. - And it is also unquestionable that the Committee nominated the Delegates for this City and County, who were after that publicly and unanimously elected. Their constituents are therefore bound by all the ties of honour, and the duty they owe to their posterity religiously to maintain the engagements entered into by the Delegates in their behalf. These Delegates received deputations from the Counties of Ulster, Albany, Dutchess, and West Chester; and, I am well informed, Colonel Philips was the Chairman of the respective Committees of his County, who authorized our Delegates to act for them, and that he was zealous for their appointment. The Counties of Orange, Suffolk, and Kings, sent other Delegates to the Congress. These eight Counties which were thus represented in the General Congress, are a great majority of the Colony, whether this is determined by Counties, inhabitants, wealth or the number of members they send to the General Assembly; it being evident their Representatives are twenty-three of thirty-one that constitute that body. Hence it appears how void of truth that assertion is of the shameless "Westchester Farmer," that "not a hundredth part of the people of this Province had any vote in sending the Delegates." This is a sample of his Pamphlets, which abound with barefaced falsehoods. It is a sure evidence of a bad cause when its advocates are drove to these vile arts to advance it. Of the six Counties unrepresented in the General Congress, four of them are new, thinly inhabited, and very remote from the capital; and the Farmers live so distant from each other that it would be difficult to convene them for the purpose of choosing Delegates; especially as the time when they were chosen in the other Counties, was the most valuable season for husbandry. The two old Counties may be ranked among the smallest of our Counties, the number of Freeholders in Richmond being under four hundred. From all this it appears the majority of Counties, inhabitants, and property, were represented in the Grand Continental Congress; and, therefore, there is no reason to doubt but the present Assembly will (after the laudable example of a former House, on a similar occasion) approve the acts of the late General Congress; especially if it be considered that the very Assembly now convened have given their thanks to our Merchants for a former restriction of our trade, intended to effect a repeal of the Tea Act, which still exists, besides many others since past, which threaten destruction to this Continent.

Extract of the Votes and Proceedings of the General Assembly of the Colony of NEW-YORK, JANUARY 26, 1775.

A motion made by Colonel TEN BROECK, in the words following, to wit:

"MR. SPEAKER: I move that this House take into consideration the Proceedings of the Continental Congress, held in the City of Philadelphia, in the months of September and October last." Then Colonel PHILIPS moved, "That the previous question be first put, whether the question upon Colonel TEN BROECK'S motion should be now put;" and debates arising upon the said motion, and the previous question being accordingly put, it was carried in the negative, in the manner following, to wit:

For the question being put on Colonel TEN BROECK'S motion:

Colonel WOODHULL, Colonel SCHUYLER, Colonel P. LIVINGSTON, Mr. CLINTON, Mr. VAN CORTLANDT, Mr. DE WITT, Captain SEAMAN, Colonel TEN BROECK, Mr. NICOLL, Mr. BOERUM.

Against the question being put on Colonel TEN BROECK'S motion:

Mr. Walton, Mr. De Lancey, Mr. Jauncey; members for the City of New-York, which first proposed a Congress, and was represented there.

Colonel Philips, Mr. Wilkins; members for the County and Borough of West Chester, which were represented in Congress.

Mr. Rapalje; member for Kings County, represented in Congress.

Mr. VAN KLEECK; member for Dutchess County, whose District was represented in Congress.

Colonel Seaman, Mr. Billop; members for Richmond County, containing less than four hundred freeholders, not represented in Congress.

Mr. Kissam; member for Queens County, not represented in Congress.

Mr. BRUSH; member for Cumberland County, not represented in Congress.

N. B. The Members' names in Italick were of the Assembly's Committee of Correspondence, who approved, in their Letters to the other Colonies, of a Congress. Mr. JAUNCEY was also a Member of the Committee of fifty-one, for the City of New-York; and was present when their Letter of the 23rd of May last, to the Committee of Boston was reported, and unanimously approved. And Colonel PHILIPS was Chairman of the Convention of the Committees of his County, who authorized the Delegates of New-York to act for them; and was zealous for their appointment: so that they must have had but little regard to their publick reputations, to vote against an inquiry into the Proceedings of the Congress. As to the vote, it can have no important influence on the cause of the Continent, if it be considered, that but two members, Representatives of one County, and one for each of two others unrepresented in Congress, were all the members of unrepresented Counties, against the inquiry. The Counties of the other seven members, on that side of the question, were represented in Congress, as above mentioned. And the inhabitants of such of them as are of any importance to the publick cause are determined to maintain the Association.

The Counties and Districts of the Members who voted for the inquiry, are warmly attached to the American cause: so that in this, as well as in every other point of view in which the sense of the Colony is considered, there are a great majority of it disposed to maintain the measures of the Congress.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM BALTIMORE TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK, DATED JANUARY 27, 1775.

The friends here to true liberty, are charmed with the late conduct of your respectable Council and Assembly. From their true patriotism, discernment, and moderation, we do presage the happiest consequences to our convulsed country. Unlike the Assembly of Philadelphia, (who have been really bullied into the most abject measures by the furious sons of the murderer of Servetus;) we hope they will nobly disdain to sacrifice, to prostitute their judgment, their honour, their country, at the furious shrine of popular error. With unfeigned pleasure have we also seen the Testimony of the people called Quakers; through every line it breathes the true spirit of Christianity, and from every sentence, pours the blessed balm of peace on the wounds of our mangled country. In the Philadelphia Papers, you will perceive that some persons in this Town have had the imbecility to approve of the frantick proceedings of certain men, who lately styled themselves Delegates to a Provincial Congress, (with the same truth and propriety, indeed, they might have called themselves Electors of the Holy Roman Empire,) and abandoned to every sense of decency, propriety, and loyalty, have also in their turn, haberdashed certain Resolves extremely curious. This Town is chiefly settled by Scotch-Irish, (in liberality of sentiment at least three centuries behind even the other British subjects in America;) and it is a melancholy truth, that such are, to a man, violently bent on supporting the good old cause, (that is the cause of fanaticism and sedition,) by taking Arms against the best Government (with all its imperfections,) on earth. You see, sir, they have ordered three thousand pounds of Powder, and twelve thousand pounds of Lead, to be immediately purchased. While I compassionate their delusion, I cannot forbear smiling at their insanity, and at their gasconades. They have assessed the immense sum of ten thousand Pounds currency, (by-the-bye, it is not yet raised, though they accept the humble sums of two Shillings and six Pence from subscribers,) to oppose an Empire, who, last war, for years, expended only the trifling sums of fifteen or twenty millions Sterling annually. I shall shortly transmit a state of the Army now forming in this Province, to be commanded by Orlando Furioso, and of that other forming in the lower Counties on Delaware, to be commanded by Midas M'Kinley, Esq., Priest and Prophet of that County. Meantime, I do most sincerely believe, that his Majesty's Troops, under the command of General Gage, are in no imminent danger from the said Armies.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM NEW-YORK TO A GENTLEMAN IN BOSTON, DATED JANUARY 27, 1775.

As the enemies of America are indefatigable in giving the highest colouring to every event that has the least appearance of disunion among the Colonies, it is the duty of her friends to counteract them. For this purpose, I enclose you the late vote of our Assembly, in order that you may be fully informed of that fact, and be thereby enabled to defeat their wicked machinations. The meaning of the Previous Question in our Assembly's Proceedings, is, that any motion or question proposed shall not be then put; or, in other words, that the sense of the House shall not be taken on any such motion or question. Hence, therefore, you will be able fully to understand the import of the determination of the House. The present Assembly has existed since 1769, and most of the Members who were against an inquiry into the measures of the Congress, as preparatory to the approbation of them, have long since forfeited the esteem of their constituents, and are therefore looking for favours from the Crown for themselves and families. Others of them were imposed on from mere ignorance, and some from fear; being frightened by designing men into an apprehension that the approving the doings of the Congress, as they contained the Suffolk Resolves, which some called treason, would involve them in the guilt of it. In short, sir, no virtuous or spirited act could be expected from a House, which had, by its votes, violated the right of Election, suspended the Habeas Corpus Act, deprived the subject of his right to a trial by a Jury, and provided support six years for Troops kept here for the express purpose of enslaving America; but although these miscreants are the legal Representatives of the people, yet I can assure you they are not their true Representatives, and therefore you have no cause to fear that this City will depart from the Association.

HANOVER (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Freeholders of the Precinct of Hanover, in Ulster County, at the house of Mr. Arthur Parks, on Friday, the 27th of January, 1775, a Committee of the following member's being chosen, viz: Charles Clinton, Alexander Trimble, Arthur Parks, Hendrick Smith, James Latta, William Jackson, and Jacob Newkirk; Charles Clinton was chosen Chairman, and the following Resolves were made:

1st. Resolved, That this meeting do unanimously approve of the Association, and gratefully rely on the wise and patriotick measures of the late Continental Congress, and that we will, to the utmost of our power, use every prudent measure to render them effectual, at the same time that we will earnestly recommend to the respective Towns and Precincts within this County, to choose Committees to act for their respective Districts, in conjunction with us.

A certain Pamphlet, entitled "Free Thoughts on the Resolves of the Congress," being then exhibited, and publicly read, it was 2dly. Resolved, That it contains a false but specious show of reasoning, contrived only to induce the ignorant and credulous to counteract the Resolves of the Congress, by discouraging that happy union that subsists among us for the preservation of our constitutional liberty.

3dly. Resolved, That the said Pamphlet, exemplary to all such guilty performances, be now publicly burnt, and that the authors and propagators of such performance be held in due contempt, as enemies to their country. It was burnt accordingly. Signed by order of the Committee.

CHARLES CLINTON, Chairman.

JAMAICA (NEW-YORK) DECLARATION.

Jamaica, January 27, 1775.

Whereas, a few people in the Town of Jamaica, in Queens County, on Long-Island, have taken upon themselves the name of a Committee, said to be chosen by a majority of the inhabitants of the said Township, we, the subscribers, freeholders and inhabitants of the said Township of Jamaica, do think it our duty to declare, that we never gave our consent towards choosing that Committee, or making any Resolves, as we utterly disapprove of all unlawful meetings, and all tyrannical proceedings whatsoever; and as we have always been, so it is our firm resolution to continue peaceable and faithful subjects to his present Majesty King George the Third, our most gracious Sovereign; and we do further declare, that we do not acknowledge any other Representatives but the General Assembly of this Province, by whose wisdom and interposition we hope to obtain the wished redress of our grievances in a constitutional way.

WORCESTER (MASSACHUSETTS) CONVENTION.

At a Convention of Committees for the County of Worcester, convened at the Court House in Worcester, January 27, 1775, the following Votes and Resolves passed, viz:

Voted, That a Committee of nine persons be chosen, to take into consideration the form of a Covenant for this County to adopt, and make report to this body.

They reported as follows:

Resolved, That it be recommended to the inhabitants of this County, that have not signed this or a similar Covenant, that they do it as soon as may be with conveniency.

We the subscribers, having seen the Association, &c., drawn up by the Grand Continental Congress, respecting the Non-Importation, Non-Consumption, and Non-Exportation of Goods, signed by our Delegates, and the Delegates of the other Colonies on the Continent, and also the addition thereto, made by the Delegates in Provincial Congress, dated Cambridge, December 5th, 1774, for carrying into execution the said Association, and having attentively considered the same, do heartily approve of said Association, and every part thereof, and in order to make the same Association, &c., our own personal act, do by these presents "associate, under the sacred ties of virtue, honour, and "love of our country," strictly to observe, and keep all and every article and clause in said Association, and addition contained, with respect to Importation, Exportation, and Consumption, according to the true intent, meaning, and letter thereof, and will duly inform and give notice of every evasion or contravention of said Agreement, as far as we are able. All and every of which clauses aforesaid, to remain firm and in force, until overruled by a Continental and Provincial body assembled.

Witness our hands, this 27th day of January, 1775.

The above was accepted by the Convention, and signed by the Members thereof.

Voted, That a Committee of seven take under consideration the conduct of several persons, who, by their behaviour, have evinced a disposition inimical to their country, and make report to this body, and is as follows:

Whereas, the Convention of Committees from the County of Worcester, did, on the 31st of August, 1774, resolve that it be recommended to such Innholders and Retailers in said County, who may be approbated by the Selectmen in their respective Towns, to continue and exercise their respective functions, provided they strictly adhere to the laws of this Province respecting Innholders and Retailers, and it was the sense of that Convention, that no person or persons ought to sell Spirituous Liquors in said County, but such as shall be approbated by the Selectmen of their respective Towns or Districts; and as complaint has been made to the Convention now sitting, that a number of persons in this County do practise the selling Strong Liquors, without the approbation as aforesaid, which is not only counteracting a Resolve of said Convention, but is against the law of the Province, is of dangerous consequence, and has a tendency to corrupt the morals of the people, &c. And for preventing the same, and promoting peace and good order, it is Resolved, That it be recommended to the Committees of Correspondence, Inspection, and Selectmen, in every Town and District in this County; carefully to inquire into such illegal practices and disorders, and not only discountenance, but discourage and put a final stop to such breaches of good order; but provided any person will not be reclaimed, he, or they, ought to be held up to publick view, and treated with not only neglect, but contempt, as enemies of all publick as well as private good, until they reform.

And whereas, Isaac Jones, of Weston, in the County of Middlesex, Innholder and Trader, has, by his conduct of late years, in various instances, manifested a disposition inimical to the rights and privileges of his countrymen; therefore,

Resolved, That it be earnestly recommended to all the inhabitants of this County, not to have any commercial connections with the said Isaac Jones, but shun his house and person, and treat him with that contempt he deserves; and should any person in this County be so lost to a sense of their duty, after this recommendation, as to have any commercial connections or dealings with the said Jones, we do advise the inhabitants of this County to treat such persons with the utmost neglect.

Whereas, the enemies of these United Colonies are indefatigable in their endeavours to create divisions among the inhabitants, and as there are several Printers on the Continent, that incessantly assist them in their endeavours, by publishing their scandalous performances in their several Newspapers; therefore,

Resolved, That it be recommended to the good people of this County not to take any more of the aforesaid Papers, but that they encourage those Printers who have invariably appeared friendly to this country.

It is strongly recommended by this body to the Committees of Inspection, in the several Towns in this County, that they be very assiduous in the discharge of the trust reposed in them, with respect to Trade, to see that all Traders keep strictly to the rules laid down by the Continental and Provincial Congresses, and also, that they make strict inquiry of every person that purchases Goods abroad, who they trade with, and when the Goods were imported. We also recommend to the inhabitants of this County, whenever they purchase Goods as above said, that they be very careful not to break Covenant, and that they take bills of parcels of every article, and lay the same before the Committee for their inspection, that no person may be imposed upon by those villains that are inimical to the cause of liberty.

Whereas, we are fully sensible that our enemies are assiduously endeavouring to provoke us to acts of violence, not only with those we esteem inimical to our liberties, who are natives of this Province, but also with General Gage and the King's Troops, endeavouring thereby, as we apprehend, to exceed the bounds of our patience, that they may have a pretence to represent us as the aggressors; therefore,

Resolved, That we are disposed to conduct ourselves friendly towards his Majesty's Troops, agreeable to the recommendation of the Continental Congress, so long as they behave peaceably towards us.

2. Resolved, That it be recommended to the inhabitants of this County, to be very careful in discountenancing and suppressing all acts of violence, except so much as is necessary to carry the Resolves of the Continental and Provincial Congresses into execution. And being fully convinced of the justness of our cause, we are determined firmly and religiously to support and maintain our rights, even to the loss of our lives and fortunes, before we will dastardly and impiously give up and submit to an arbitrary power.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A MERCHANT AT ANNAPO-LIS, IN MARYLAND, TO HIS FRIEND IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED JANUARY 28, 1775.

The measures of the late Continental Congress, have occasioned much warmth and discord in this country. A turbulent man, of no consideration, unless with the needy and desperate like himself, has found means, by frequent publications, tending to sedition and rebellion, to assemble the inhabitants in Anne Arundel County, and with haranguing, and urging the necessity of adopting every measure of the Association, and the other wild, impracticable views of the Congress, he fascinated a multitude of people here; but to the confusion of these enemies of the good old Constitution, his progress has been stopped by the spirited opposition of a writer who attacked him in several printed papers, under the signature of "A Citizen;" to this happy interposition, we owe the liberty of speaking and acting, assenting and dissenting, in all political business, as we were wont to do before this busy demagogue obtained an existence amongst us. In short, we have defeated him in an insolent plan of levying money upon his Majesty's faithful subjects, to raise a fund for the express purpose of purchasing Arms and Ammunition, to join the treasonable purpose projected by Adams and the Eastern Republicans, to carry on a formal rebellion in the Colonies. Be assured, there is too much loyalty, wisdom, and conduct in the principal people of Maryland, to suffer this Firebrand's projects to throw the Province into a state of further distraction, which he labours to effect, merely to secure in the scramble, something for himself. The eyes of our inhabitants are now opened to his crafty designs; blasted and withered, he will torment us no more, for he is chased to the ground. We have just got the piece entitled, "What Think ye of the Congress now?" It expresses the sentiments of all the true Loyalists, and will recover many here who have been misled by the loud unlettered Orators of the Republican tribe. The conduct of the New-York Assembly, in acting consistently with their own dignity, and daring to speak the true constitutional language, was received amongst us with the most fervent plaudits. We wish your Pennsylvanians had taken the lead in so glorious a cause. Oh! what a falling off was that of your Assembly, to approve of the measures which the majority of the Members of it, in their hearts, most sincerely condemned. In such a Government, a very different determination was expected; but Adams, with his crew, and the haughty Sultans of the South, juggled the whole conclave of the Delegates. Fie on't, Oh fie! We are impatient for the Speech from the Throne, and the temper of the new Parliament.

Philadelphia, January 30, 1775.

Answers of the Governour of his Majesty's Province of PENNSYLVANIA, in AMERICA, to the several heads of inquiry relative to the present state and condition of the said Province, transmitted by the Right Honourable the Earl of DARTMOUTH, in his Letter of the 5th of July, 1773.

1. What is the situation of the Province under your Government; the nature of the country, soil, and climate;

the Latitudes and Longitudes of the most considerable places in it; have those Latitudes and Longitudes been settled by good observations, or only by common computations; and from whence are the Longitudes computed?

Answer. The Province of Pennsylvania is situated on the River Delaware, in North America, lying (agreeable to the Royal Charter) from the beginning of the 40th to the beginning of the 43d degree of Latitude; and in Longitude computed West, from Greenwich, from 75 to 80 degrees. The nature of the country is various, being in many places much broken with hills, mountains, and barrens, but this is compensated by a proportionable number of fertile vallies and plains, watered by the noble Rivers the Delaware, the Susquehannah, part of the Alleghany or Ohio, and the numerous branches, streams, and springs that empty themselves into these three great Rivers. The soil, where good, (which is a large proportion of the whole) is well adapted to the raising Wheat and all other sorts of grain raised in England, besides some others, such as Indian Corn, &c., suitable to our more Southern Latitude. The climate is salubrious, differing little from European climates in the same Latitude, excepting in this, that the Winter colds are something more intense from the vast extent of country to the Northwestward; but the purity of the air during the cold season, which seldom lasts above two months, compensates for its keenness. The City of Philadelphia, situated near the conflux of Delaware and one of its chief branches, the Schuylkill, is the most considerable Town in the Province, or, indeed, in North America. The State House of this City lies in North Latitude 39° 56' 53"; its Longitude, from the Royal Observatory, at Greenwich, computed West 75° 8' 45"; or, in time, 5 hours and 35 seconds. This Latitude and Longitude were both fixed by accurate astronomical observations, at the Transit of Venus, 1769. Some of the County Towns are considerable places, as Lancaster and York, the chief Towns of the Counties that go by their names; Reading, the chief Town of Berks; and Carlisle, the chief Town of Cumberland. But their Latitudes and Longitudes are not yet fixed by any accurate observations.

Easton, the chief Town of Northampton County, situated at the conflux of the main branch of the Delaware, and the Lehigh Branch, lies in Latitude 40° 43' 10", and about the same Longitude as Philadelphia.

The conflux of the Popauchton, and Mohock Branches of the Delaware, lies in Latitude 41° 56' 30". And about eight miles higher than this, on the Mohock Branch, is fixed, by accurate astronomical observations, the beginning of the 43d degree of Latitude, through which the boundary line of New-York and Pennsylvania passes.

Sunbury, the County Town of Northumberland, situated at the conflux of the East and West Branches of the Susquehannah, lies in Latitude 40° 48' 7".

Wyoming, on the East Branch of the Susquehannah, (where some intruders, from Connecticut, have forcibly seated themselves, under pretence of extending their Colony to the South Sea,) is situated in Latitude 41° 14' 17".

Fort Pitt, at the conflux of the Ohio and Monongahela Rivers, lies in Latitude 40° 26' 22"; and its Longitude, West from Greenwich, 79° 59' 0". This has been accurately ascertained, and leaves Fort Pitt undoubtedly about six miles within our Western boundary, as that part of the Delaware, which lies in the Latitude of Fort Pitt, is three miles forty-seven chains East of Philadelphia.

The Light-House, on Cape Henlopen, at the entrance of Delaware Bay, is situated in Latitude 38° 47' 8"; its Longitude, West from Greenwich, 75° 5' 18".

2. What are the reputed boundaries; and are any parts thereof disputed; What parts, and by whom?

Answer. The boundaries of Pennsylvania, as described in the Royal Charter, by King Charles the Second, to William Penn, the first founder of the Province, are as follows: "All that tract or part of land in America, with the Islands therein contained, as the same is bounded on the East by Delaware River, from twelve miles distance Northward of New-Castle Town, unto the three and fortieth degree of Northern Latitude, if the said River doth extend so far Northward; but if the said River shall not extend so far Northward, then by the said River so far as it doth extend, and from the head of the said River the Eastern bounds are to be determined by "a meridian line to be drawn from the head of the said River unto the forty-third degree. The said land to extend, Westward, five degrees in Longitude, to be computed from the said Eastern bounds; and the said lands to be bounded on the North by the beginning of the three and fortieth degree of Northern Latitude, and on the South by a circle drawn at twelve miles distance from New-Castle Northward and Westward unto the beginning of the fortieth degree of Northern Latitude, and then by a straight line Westward to the limits of Longitude above mentioned."

There was a serious contention between the Proprietaries of Maryland and Pennsylvania concerning the boundaries and extent of their Provinces, from the time of the original grant of Pennsylvania, till the year 1732, when they entered into Articles of Agreement for the settlement and establishment of their boundaries, by which it was agreed that a due North line should be drawn from the tangent point of the twelve miles circle of New-Castle, so far only until it should come unto the same Latitude as fifteen English Statute miles due South of the most Southern part of the City of Philadelphia, and that a due East and West line should be run in manner following: To begin at the Northern point or end of the said due South and North line, and should from thence run due West across Susquehannah River to the utmost extent of the Province of Pennsylvania, which said East and West line was to be the lines of division between Maryland and Pennsylvania. And these lines are established as the boundaries between them by a Decree in Chancery, in England, after a long, tedious, and expensive suit, instituted in that Court by the Proprietaries of Pennsylvania against the Proprietary of Maryland, for a specifick performance of those Articles. In the year 1760 another Agreement was made between the Proprietaries of these two Provinces, reciting and ratifying the Agreement of 1732, and the Decree aforesaid, and this latter Agreement was also established by a Decree in Chancery. These lines have been run and marked by Commissioners on both sides, in consequence of the several Agreements and Decrees, and at the joint Petition of the Proprietaries of each Province, the Agreements and Decrees, and the execution of them, were ratified by his Majesty, in Council, on the 11th day of January, 1769, so that those divisional lines thus established, and the Charter bounds of Pennsylvania, so far as the Province of Maryland does not interfere, according to the Agreements and Decrees aforesaid, may be said, at this day, to be the reputed bounds of Pennsylvania, which, however, are considerably short of the intention of the original grant, which appears by the Minutes of Council at the time of the Grant, and from the expressions of the Grant itself, to have been an extent of three degrees of Latitude and five of Longitude, from which the Province of Maryland takes off about fifty miles in Latitude, in the full extent of Maryland, from East to West. A claim has lately been made by the Colony of Connecticut to a part of Pennsylvania, which they have not ascertained with any degree of precision, but allege they have a right to at least the whole forty-second degree of North Latitude, in breadth, to extend the whole Longitude of the Province of Pennsylvania. No other part of Pennsylvania is disputed, that I know of, except that Lord Dunmore, as Governour of Virginia, hath lately taken possession of Pittsburgh, and claims the country as far Eastward as the Laurel Hill, which, in many places, is at least fifty miles within the Charter bounds of Pennsylvania.

3. What is the size and extent of the Province; the number of acres supposed to be contained therein; what part thereof is cultivated and improved, and under what titles do the inhabitants hold their possession?

Answer. The extent of the Province is mentioned in the answer to the first question, viz: Three degrees of Latitude by five of Longitude, as it should be by Charter, which contains fifty-four thousand nine hundred and twelve square miles, or thirty-five millions one hundred and forty-three thousand six hundred and eighty acres. But the prior grant to Lord Baltimore having been determined to interfere with the grant to Mr. Penn, the Southern boundary of Pennsylvania, so far West as Maryland extends, has been settled in Chancery at fifteen miles South of Philadelphia, viz: in Latitude 39° 43' 42". By this settlement Pennsylvania loses eleven thousand sixteen square miles, or seven millions fifty thousand two hundred and forty acres, being something more than one-fifth of the whole grant; indeed, if the Southern boundary was to be continued quite through to the Western extremity of the Province in the aforesaid Latitude of $39^{\circ} 43' 42''$, one-fourth of the whole Royal Grant to Pennsylvania would be lost. But as Pennsylvania reaches about fifty-one miles West of Maryland, it is presumed that there at least the Province should run South to the fortieth degree, and then West to the end of five degrees from Delaware, after which the aforesaid quantity of seven millions fifty thousand two hundred and forty acres will be still deficient of what it was the gracious intention of Government to grant to William Penn, and it may be submitted to his Majesty's goodness, whether this deficiency ought not to be made good somewhere. It is not easy to ascertain what proportion of the Province is cultivated, but, on the whole, it is a much larger proportion than in any other Colony of the same age in North America, the country being, in general, very fully settled as far as the quality of the lands and purchase from the Indians will permit. The lands are held by the inhabitants under patents from the Proprietaries, and yearly quit-rents of various denominations, the highest one Penny per acre; a great part only a half Penny, and many of the old patents, under small acknowledgments in Corn or Wheat, &c.

4. What Rivers are there, and of what extent and convenience in point of Commerce?

Answer. The principal Rivers in this Province are only two, viz: the Delaware and Susquehannah, into which several smaller Rivers empty themselves, which may, with some expense, be made very useful for inland navigation. the small Rivers which communicate with the Delaware are the Brandywine, Schuylkill, Neshaming, and the Lehigh, commonly called the West Branch of Delaware. The only considerable River communicating with the Susquehannah, is the Juniata, which rises in the Alleghany, or Appalachian Mountains, and runs an Easterly course to its confluence with that River; and about forty miles higher, the Susquehannah divides itself into two large Branches, one of which takes its rise in the Western part of this Province, and the other in the Northwestern parts of New-York, and runs from thence through the Northern parts of this Province, in a general course nearly Southwest. There are also within the Western limits of this Province several Rivers which rise in the Appalachian Mountains and empty into the Ohio, and these are called the Alleghany, Kiskemenetas, Monongahela, and Yauhogany, which are navigable for small boats, and only useful for inland navigation. These Rivers, being generally shallow, and not having tide-water, are of no use in point of Commerce, except the Delaware, which is a fine deep River, the tide rising in it from five to seven feet, and is navigable for Ships of six hundred tons burthen, to the extent of about one hundred and forty miles from the Ocean.

5. What are the principal Harbours; how situated; of what extent; and what is the depth of water, and nature of anchorage in each?

Answer. This Province having but one outlet to the Sea, which is the River Delaware, there is properly but one Harbour, and that is the River itself; and may be said to be about forty miles in extent, viz: from what is called the Bite of New-Castle, to the North end of the City of Philadelphia; in which extent the depth of water in the channel, at low water, is from three to seven fathom. The bottom of the River being, in general, muddy and free from rocks, the anchorage is very safe and good.

6. What is the Constitution of the Government?

Answer. By the Royal Grant, made by King Charles the Second to William Penn, the Proprietaries for the time being are appointed Governours-in-Chief, but they have generally acted by the Deputy Governours, commissioned by them, and approved of by the Crown. By the Constitution there are only two branches of the Legislature, viz: the Governour, and the Representatives of the people, who are elected annually on the first day of October; but all laws passed by them are subject to the repeal of his Majesty in Council, within six months after they are presented to them. By the Proprietary Charter of Privileges, the Assembly sit on their own adjournments, but are liable at any time to be convened by the Governour's Writ, when the publick exigency requires it. The Governour has a Council, consisting when full of twelve members, which is only in the nature of a Privy Council, and has not a Legislative capacity. By Act of Assembly the President and Council, upon the death or absence of the Lieutenant Governour, have the exercise of all the powers of Government, except that of Legislation.

7. What is the Trade of the Province; the number of Shipping belonging thereto; their Tonnage; and the number of Sea-faring Men, with the respective increase or diminution within ten years past?

8. What quantity and sorts of British Manufactures do the inhabitants annually take from hence; what Goods and Commodities are exported from thence to Great Britain, and what is the annual amount at an average?

9. What Trade has the Province under your Government with any foreign Plantations, or any part of Europe, besides Great Britain; how is that Trade carried on; what commodities do the people under your Government send to, or receive from foreign Plantations, and what is the annual amount thereof at an average?

10. What is the natural produce of the country, staple Commodities and Manufactures, and what value thereof, in sterling money, may you annually export?

For a minute and precise answer to these last four heads of inquiry, I beg leave to refer to the copy of a Report made by the Deputy Collector of his Majesty's Customs, for the Port of Philadelphia, from the Custom-House. Books, herewith transmitted.

11. What methods are there used to prevent illegal Trade, and are the same effectual?

Answer. There is but one Port for the lading and unlading Goods within the Province of Pennsylvania, which is that of Philadelphia, where there is a regular Custom-House established, and a number of subordinate Officers, as Surveyors, Searchers, and Tidesmen, kept in pay, whose duty it is to prevent illicit trade. A Schooner, well manned, belonging to the Customs, is employed in cruizing up and down the River Delaware, to examine all vessels coming into, or going out of Port, and there generally is at least one armed vessel of his Majesty in the same service. The seizures made from time to time shew that these precautions do not effectually put a stop to the practice of smuggling; however, there can be no doubt but that they have a very considerable effect in checking the progress of that kind of trade.

12. What Mines are there?

Answer. There are no Mines in this Province except Iron Ore, though in two or three parts of it there have been found some appearances of Copper Mines, but the attempts hitherto made to discover any quantity of Ore have proved expensive and fruitless.

13. What is the number of Inhabitants, Whites and Blacks?

Answer. From the best information and estimate I have been able to procure, there are in the Province of Pennsylvania three hundred and two thousand souls, of whom three hundred thousand are Whites, and two thousand Blacks.

14. Are the Inhabitants increased or decreased within the last ten years; how much, and for what reasons?

Answer. There has been a great increase of inhabitants within the last ten years. This is evident from the numerous grants of lands and new settlements which have been made within that period; but it is impossible for me to say, with the least degree of certainty, how great that increase has been, as I have not been able to procure any materials on which I can form a judgment. The population is owing to the annual importation of German and Irish servants and passengers, and the natural increase of the inhabitants, who marry earlier, and more generally, here than is usual in Europe.

15. What is the number of the Militia, and under what regulations is it constituted?

Answer. No Militia has ever been established in this Government.

16. What Forts and places of defence are there within your Government, and in what condition?

Answer. Since the conclusion of the last war no Forts or places of defence have been kept up within this Government; but there is, at present, a stone Fortification, which was began about three years ago, at the expense of this Province, on an Island in the River Delaware, called Mud Island, about ten miles below the City of Philadelphia, intended for the security and protection of the City against Privateers and other small vessels of force, which might otherwise, in time of war, without any difficulty or interruption, pass up the River to the City, and plunder and destroy it in a few days; but this Fort is left unfinished for want of sufficient funds provided by the Assembly to complete it?

17. What number of Indians have you, and how are they inclined?

Answer. Before the late Indian war there were a number of Indians settled in several parts of the Province, but during that war and since they have withdrawn themselves beyond the Western and Northern limits of the Province.

18. What is the strength of the neighbouring Indians?

Answer. As there has been no intercourse between this Government and the neighbouring Indians since the general superintendency of Indian Affairs was committed to Sir William Johnson, I cannot well ascertain their number and strength.

19. What is the Revenue arising within your Government, and how is it appropriated and applied?

Answer. The present Revenue of the Government arises principally from two temporary Acts of Assembly; one, an Act for laying an Excise on Wine, Rum, Brandy, and other Spirits, the other an Act for emitting on Loan at five per cent. interest, Bills of Credit struck for that special purpose. The nett amount of this Revenue is about eight thousand Pounds sterling. The appropriation is made by the Governour and Assembly, and has been hitherto applied by them to the defraying the ordinary and extraordinary expenses of Government mentioned in the next question. This is exclusive of an annual sum of fifteen thousand Pounds sterling raised by Tax on the Real and Personal Estates of the inhabitants, for sinking and destroying the Bills of Credit issued at different times during the late war, and granted by way of supplies to his late and present Majesty. These Taxes were by Act of Assembly, till sufficient sums should be thereby raised for the above purpose, and will not cease for two years to come. Neither does the above state of the Revenue include a duty of Tonnage on Vessels, imposed by an Act of Assembly, amounting yearly to about the sum of one thousand Pounds sterling, which, by law, is appropriated towards the paving for, and maintenance of, a Light House, lately erected at the Capes of Delaware, and Buoys placed in the Bay and River; nor a duty of twenty Pounds per head laid on Negroes and Mulattoes, Slaves imported, which produces about the nett sum of fifty Pounds sterling, and is appropriated to the payment of the owners of such Slaves as are executed for capital offences, and the surplus, if any, to be disposed of by the Governour and Assembly.

20. What are the ordinary and extraordinary expenses of your Government?

Answer. The ordinary expenses of the Government of Pennsylvania, communibus annis, amount to about the sum of three thousand Pounds sterling. This is exclusive of the charges and expenses of each County yearly for paying the wages of their Representatives in Assembly, making and repairing of Roads, maintenance of their Poor, erecting and repairing of Court Houses and Prisons, building of Bridges, and other local purposes, all which are raised by Tax on the Real and Personal Estates of the inhabitants. The extraordinary expenses of Government consists in Presents and expenses to Indians who occasionally come on business, or pass and repass through this to the neighbouring Colonies, Messages to and Treaties with Indians, to settle differences which happen from time to time between them and our frontier inhabitants, furnishing bedding and other necessaries for his Majesty's Troops in the several Barracks, raising, paying, and victualling Rangers, to guard and protect our frontier inhabitants from Indian incursions and depredations, clearing Rivers and Creeks for inland navigation, making Provincial Roads, publick rewards for the discovering and apprehending Murderers and other capital offenders, and like publick purposes. As many of these expenses are in their nature contingent, no certain account can be given of the annual amount of them. They are defrayed as occasion requires, out of the surplus money arising from the Revenue, stated in answer to the 19th question.

21. What are the establishments, Civil and Military, within your Government, and by what authority do the Officers hold their places? What is the annual value of each office, Civil and Military, how are they respectively appointed, and who are the present possessors?

Answer. There are no Military establishments in Pennsylvania. The Civil establishments are as follows:

The Honourable James Hamilton, Esquire, Joseph Turner, Esquire, William Logan, Esquire, Richard Peters, Esquire, Benjamin Chew, Esquire, Thomas Cadwallader, Esquire, Richard Penn, Esquire, James Tilghman, Esquire, Andrew Allen, Esquire, Edward Shippin, Junior, Esquire, the Council, being in the nature of a Privy Council, having no Legislative power; appointed by the Governour, no Salary or Perquisites.

WALLKILL, (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of a great number of the most respectable Freeholders of the Precinct of the Wallkill, in the County of Ulster, January 30th, 1775, a Committee of five being chosen, viz: Abimael Young, James Wilkins, Hezekiah Gale, Moses Philips, and Henry Wisner, Jun.; of whom Abimael Young was chosen Chairman:

Resolved, 1. That it is the opinion of this meeting, that we most heartily approve of the Association, and acquiesce in all the other measures entered into by the General Congress; and that we will use all prudent measures in our power to render the same effectual.

A certain Pamphlet entitled "Free Thoughts on the Resolves of the Congress," &c., under the signature of "A. W. Farmer," dated November 16, being then produced and publicly read, it was,

Resolved, 2. That it is replete with falsehoods, artfully calculated to impose upon the illiterate and unthinking, to frustrate the Resolves of the Congress, and to destroy the union so necessary for the preservation of our constitutional liberty, therefore,

Resolved, 3. That the said Pamphlet, in abhorrence and detestation of such infamous publications, be now burnt, and that the authors, publishers, and circulators of such performances be henceforth deemed enemies to their country.

Which Resolves being unanimously approved, the above Pamphlet was burnt accordingly.

Ordered, That the Resolves be printed.

LETTER FROM LONDON TO h GENTLEMAN OF NEW-YORK,
DATED JANUARY 30, 1775.

From unquestionable authority I learn, that about a fortnight ago, despatches were sent from hence by a Sloop-of-War to General Gage, containing among other things, a Royal Proclamation, declaring the inhabitants of Massachusetts Bay, and some others in the different Colonies, actual Rebels; with a blank Commission to try and execute such of them as he can get hold of; - with this is sent a list of names, to be inserted in the Commission as he may judge expedient. I do not know them all, but Messrs. Samuel Adams, John Adams, Robert Treat Paine, and John Hancock, of Massachusetts Bay, John Dickinson of Philadelphia, Peyton Randolph of Virginia, and Henry Middleton of South Carolina, are particularly named, with many others. This black list, the General will no doubt keep to himself, and unfold it gradually, as he finds it convenient. Four Regiments from Ireland, one of them Light Dragoons, are under sailing orders for Boston, with several capital Ships-of-War from hence, and six Cutters, to obstruct the American trade, and prevent all European Goods from going there, particularly Arms and Ammunition, which makes it expedient without a moment's delay, to be provided with such things as you may want.

Last Friday night, the 27th instant, in a Privy Council, the American measures were all settled by the Ministry, part of them is to pass an Act of Parliament, inflicting pains and penalties on particular persons and Provinces in America, to countenance the infamous Proclamation and Commission already sent to General Gage; also it is determined to take away the Charters of Rhode-Island and Connecticut. I have not been able to learn the whole; though in general I am informed it is denouncing utter destruction to American Liberty. Depend upon all this to be fact.

RIDGEFIELD (CONNECTICUT) RESOLUTIONS.

Whereas, application hath been made to the Selectmen of the Town of Ridgefield, in Connecticut Colony, by several of the Inhabitants of said Town, to call a special Town Meeting, in order to take into consideration the Resolutions entered into by the Continental Congress; and the Inhabitants being accordingly met on the 30th day of January, 1775, NATHAN OLMSTEAD was chosen Moderator.

The meeting then proceeded to take into consideration the said Resolutions; and, after mature deliberation, the question was put, "whether this Town will adopt and conform to the Resolves contained in the Association of "the Continental Congress or not?"

Resolved in the negative (nine dissentients only.)

2d. Resolved, nem. con., That we do acknowledge his most sacred Majesty, King George the Third, to be our rightful Sovereign; and do hereby publicly avow our allegiance to him and his legal successors; and that we will, to the utmost of our power, support his throne and dignity against every combination in the universe.

3d. Resolved, nem. con., That we acknowledge that the three branches of Legislation, to wit: the King, the House of Lords, and the House of Commons, concurring and acting together, have a constitutional right of government over the whole and every part of the British Empire.

4th. Resolved, nem. con., That the Governour, Council, and Representatives of this Colony, being indulged with, and having an established right of legislation (though restricted) in and over this Colony, and do hereby acknowledge and avow their right of Government and legislation in and over this Colony, and are confident that they are the rightful and constitutional rulers, directors, and guardians of our persons, properties, rights, liberties, and privileges; and we desire no other political guides or guardians than said Assembly, and the Officers constitutionally appointed by them to keep the peace and order of the Colony, and to superintend the execution of the Colony Laws.

5th. Resolved, nem. con., That it would be dangerous and hurtful to the inhabitants of this Town to adopt said Congress's measures; and we hereby publicly disapprove of, and protest against said Congress, and the measures by them directed, as unconstitutional, as subversive of our real liberties, and as countenancing licentiousness.

6th. Resolved, nem. con., That the Town Clerk be desired to make out a true copy of the aforesaid Resolves, and transmit them to one or more of the Printers in New-York, that they may be published to the world.

STEPHEN SMITH, Town Clerk.

P. S. There were present in said meeting about two hundred voters; and the said Resolutions are entered on the Town Records.

Committee Chamber, New-York, January 30, 1775.

Whereas, by the first article of the Association of the late Continental Congress, held at Philadelphia, the fifth day of September, 1774, it is agreed that from and after the first day of December next, we will not import into British America from Great Britain or Ireland, any Goods, Wares, or Merchandise whatsoever, or from any other place any such Goods, Wares, or Merchandise, as shall have been exported from Great Britain or Ireland: and whereas, by the last clause of the tenth article of the said Association, it is further agreed, that if any Goods, Wares, or Merchandise shall be imported after the first day of February, 1775, the same ought forthwith to be sent back again, without breaking the packages thereof; and the sense of this Committee being taken, whether all Goods imported from Great Britain or Ireland, into this City and County, after the said first day of February, should not, according to the true intent and meaning of the clauses of the said first and tenth articles of the Association, be sent back in the same Vessel in which such Goods, Wares, or Merchandise, shall be imported,

Resolved unanimously in the affirmative.

By order of the Committee,

ISAAC LOW, Chairman.

A motion was made and seconded, that a Sub-Committee be appointed, to observe the conduct of all Vessels which may arrive after the first day of February next, having on board any Goods, Wares, or Merchandise, not allowed to be imported by the Association.

Resolved unanimously, That a Sub-Committee be appointed for the purpose above mentioned.

By order of the Committee,

ISAAC LOW, Chairman.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM NEW-YORK, TO A GENTLEMAN IN BOSTON, DATED JANUARY 30, 1775.

The enclosed will unriddle the joy that fills the breasts of all the friends to Government, decency, and good order. Since the glorious eleven, with Colonel Philips at their head, have carried the day, two more Members are come, both of which are of the right side, so that there is now no chance of the Assembly's aiding or abetting the Congress. The friends to Government plume themselves on this victory, and are now open-mouthed against the proceedings of Congress, and no one dares, among gentlemen, to support them. Worthy old Silver Locks, (Lieutenant Governor Colden) when he heard that the Assembly had acted right, cried out, "Lord, now lettest thou thy servant depart in peace."

WESTMORELAND COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Freeholders, after due notice, at Westmoreland Court House, on Tuesday, the 31st day of January, 1775, Richard Henry Lee and Richard Lee, Esquires, were unanimously chosen Delegates to represent this County in Colony Convention, at the Town of Richmond, in Henrico County, on the 20th day of March next.

After they were chosen, the following Instructions were publicly read to them by the desire of the people:

To Richard Henry Lee and Richard Lee, Esquires:

The Freeholders of Westmoreland County having often experienced your fidelity, abilities, and firm attachment to the cause of liberty, have now appointed you to represent them in a Colony Convention, proposed to be held at the Town of Richmond, on the 20th Of March next: and as we are convinced, from the maturest deliberation, that the safety and happiness of North America depend on the united wisdom of its Councils, we have no doubt you will comply, on your parts, with the recommendation of the late Continental Congress, to appoint Deputies from this Colony to meet in Philadelphia on the 10th day of May next, unless the redress of American Grievances be obtained before that time; and as it is our firm determination to stand or fall with the liberties of our country, we desire that you may consider the people of Westmoreland as ready and willing to join with their countrymen in the execution of such measures as may appear to the majority of their Deputies assembled at Richmond, wise and necessary to secure and perpetuate the ancient, just, and legal rights of this Colony and of British America.

At the same time and place the following gentlemen were chosen a Committee to see the Association faithfully observed in this County, according to the direction of the Continental Congress: the Reverend Mr. Thomas Smith, Phillip Smith, Richard Henry Lee, John Augustin Washington, John Turberville, Daniel M'Carty, William Pierce, Joseph Pierce, Thomas Chilton, William Bernard, Richard Parker, Beckwith Butler, Fleet Cox, Daniel Tebbs, George Steptoe, John Ashton, William Nelson, Richard Bucknor, Burdett Ashton, Benedict Middleton, George Turberville, John Middleton, William Bankhead, John Martin, Joseph Fox, John Ashton, Jun., Samuel Rust, William Berryman, James Davenport, Woffendel Kendel, Daniel Fitzhugh, Benjamin Weeks, Richard Lee, Thomas Fisher, and Edward Sanford.

JAMES DAVENPORT, Clerk.

FROM THE (LONDON) PUBLICK LEDGER.

TO LORD NORTH.

The Minister whose mind can remain in a quiescent state whilst surrounding calamities threaten ruin to his country, is beyond redemption lost to those virtuous feelings which should characterize our species.

There is a period when the people should resist, because the laws of nature and of God would justify resistance. There is also a crisis when a state of neutrality would be downright meanness; and not to be active would be the very worst of crimes. At a crisis of this kind, my Lord, we are now arrived. Without hyperbole, it may be pronounced that, on the measures pursued with respect to America, the welfare of Great Britain ultimately depends. All men, therefore, being interested in the event of those measures, every man should take a decided part by delivering an opinion on their rectitude or impropriety. Our political Sun seems setting in the West, and unless some leader of the people, aided by Providence, should, like another Joshua, arrest it in its swift declension, the cheering ray of national prosperity will be forever vanished from our Island.

Various have been the Parliamentary arguments; as various have been the opinions of Parliamentary leaders on American affairs; the question of Right hath agitated one, the question of Propriety another, class of disputants. But remarkable it is, my Lord, that, amidst the dissimilar exertations of judgment, nothing like a plan for adjusting the affairs of the Colonies hath been struck out. The present measures have deservedly undergone the severity of reprehension, though a system less exceptionable hath not hitherto been offered in their stead. It is to supply this defect that I have ventured to suggest a mode which, if adopted, will mutually reconcile Great Britain and the Colonies, re-invigorate American Commerce, and establish a lasting harmony on so permanent a basis that the authority of Parliament and the rights of the Colonists shall henceforth coalesce without conflicting struggles, and ever after, like righteousness and peace, shall salute each other with a kiss of perfect amity.

It is a concomitant inseparable from a projector, to do at even on the foulest excrescence of his brain. Not quite so partial, though by no means indifferent to my mental offspring: I give it to your Lordship with all the fond solicitude of a parent, and only request you to cherish it for the benefit of my country. Many a worse favoured foetus has been nurtured at St. James's; and, if common fame speaks true, some of the bantlings of which your Lordship is the reputed father, are infinitely more deformed than the foundling I now shall drop at your Ministerial portal.

To quit the figurative style and descend to the unenter-taining language of politicks; the one has more of the pleasing, the other of the useful.

In propounding a system of measures to be pursued with the Colonies, I shall wave all disputes about Charters. - The question now, as I conceive the matter, respects not a mere speculative theory, but a practical system. We are not searching after a fanciful compact, which, like a mathe-matical point, is a something undefinable. Abstract rea-soning, where immediate decision is necessary, is a mere waste of time, a display of faculties, wherein acuteness too often employs itself in confounding the order of nature and annihilating all distinctions between right and wrong.

As the difference between the mother country and her Colonies hath originated from an exercise of unconstitu-tional Taxations, so can it never be expected that those dif-ferences should subside until the cause of contention be effectually removed. The short and simple question, then, is this: What method can be adopted to remove the cause of contention, without subjugating the Americans on the one hand, or impairing the supreme authority of the Legis-lature, by an impolitick yielding, on the other? I do con-ceive, my Lord, that a representation is the only mean which can, in the nature of things, bring about so desirable an end; for here lies the mischief. It is a sacred truth in the law of English Jurisprudence, "that no man can be "taxed who is not either virtually or actually represent-"ed."Now, if there are some hundred thousands of British subjects who entertain an opinion "that they are "not either virtually or actually represented in the British "Parliament,"the very attempt to tax such, by doing vio-lence to their feelings, can occasion nothing but infinite distraction to the Empire. Nor will recourse to authority, as experience has proved, contribute aught to silence cla-mour or remove contention. The sword may conquer, but it cannot convince. To punish men for erroneous tenets, before you convince them that the opinions they maintain are of that cast - what is this but to assume the offices of Judge, Interpreter, and Executioner? - offices never ar-guably claimed by any society of men, the members of the Inquisition, and those of the late House of Commons, excepted.

From the unanimity with which the principle that Taxa-tion and Representation are inseparable, is adopted through-out America, I infer the absolute necessity of the latter, that the former:may take place. I conceive "that the "Americans, in common with other British subjects, "should be Taxed, and in order to their being Taxed, "they should be represented."Here then, my Lord, we meet the Colonists on their own ground; we concede to their principles; We allow the validity of their positions; and admitting thus much, I presume, with deference, that the following plan, if adopted, would answer every end that could be proposed by American Representation in the British Parliament:

PLAN OF AMERICAN REPRESENTATION.

Provinces.	Members.	Provinces.	Members.
Massachusetts Bay,	6	East & West Jerseys,	6
Pennsylvania,	- 6	New-Hampshire,	- 6
Virginia,	- 6	Nova Scotia,	- 6
New-York,	- 6	Georgia,	- 6
Canada,	6	East & West Florida,	4
Carolina, North & South,	6	The Island of Jamaica,	6
Maryland,	6	Barbadoes,	- - 6
Connecticut,	- 6	Rhode-Island,	- - 4

The number of Members thus proposed to represent the Provinces corresponding exactly with the number of the Members returned to Parliament for the several Counties in England and Wales, should be chosen from amongst them. It is presumed that, besides an actual Representa-tion of America, other constitutional benefits would, from this scheme, accrue to Great Britain. An additional weight would be thrown into the Representative scale of the Counties, which might more than equiponderate to the influence of the Boroughs.

The four Members for the City of London might repre-sent the following Islands:

Antigua, St. Christopher's, Bahama, Bermudas, Montserrat, Nevis, the Grenadas, Newfoundland and St. John's, Dominica, St. Vincent, Tobago.

Having sketched the outlines of the Plan of Represent-ation, I shall offer a few Propositions relative to the mode of Election; the procedure of Members on American busi-ness, the levying Taxations, and supporting Military Es-tablishments.

Proposition 1. The Americans throughout the several Provinces, to whom the right of Election was allowed, should ballot for such County Members as they wished to represent them.

2. Such County Members, on business appertaining to the Colonies, to have each a double vote, one as an Eng-lish, the other as an American Member.

3. Summonses for the attendance of American Members to be issued a certain number of days previous to the Par-liamentary discussion of any business relative to the Colo-nies.

4. Each American Province as well as Island, to sup-port their own Taxations.

5. To avoid as much as possible the infringement of Charter rights, the General Assemblies or Provincial Coun-cils shall assess the quota and point out the mode of col-lecting the Taxes. The mode so adjusted, and the assess-ment so made, to be transmitted within a specified time to the Colony Agents in London, who are forthwith to lay them before the Board of Trade for inspection and con-sideration, previous to their being carried into Parliament to be passed as laws.

6. That each American Province or Island, shall, as oc-casion requires, convey instructions to their Members; and the packets containing such instructions shall be free of postage.

7. That such Military and Civil Establishments as the British Parliament shall deem absolutely requisite for the interest and preservation of each Province, shall be sup-ported by the respective Provinces and Islands, at their own expense, preserving this necessary caution, that the number of Revenue Officers be always few, and the Mil-itary Establishment in time of peace small, to render the burthen of Taxation as light as possible.

8. Infant Colonies to be supported by Great Britain, until judged capable of bearing the weight of Taxation.

9. In case of an Indian war, the respective Provinces and Islands throughout America shall mutually assist each other with Men and Troops, according to certain stipula-tions agreed on by the Parliament of Great Britain.

10. The Taxation levied and Supplies granted by each Province, shall be expended solely in the service of the Province, and appropriated to no other use whatsoever, except in cases where Great Britain shall require the aid of Sea or Land Forces for a Military expedition; then such Forces shall be marched to the utmost boundaries of such Province; and from the time of quitting the Province, or the moment of embarkation, all subsequent charges, (those for pay and recruiting excepted,) shall be defrayed by Great Britain.

Besides some such articles as these for harmonizing the American Governments, it would still, my Lord, further contribute to establish a commercial connection between Great Britain and the Colonies, on a solid basis, if a new Tariff of Trade was adjusted, and various articles in the several Acts of Navigation were either superseded, differ-ently modified, or thoroughly amended. With your Lord-ship's permission, I will state certain Commercial Propo-sals, to which the Americans, if reasonable, cannot object, nor Great Britain, if wise, neglect to execute.

Commercial Propositions. 1. The Looms throughout America for the manufacture of Linen or Woollen Cloth, to be forthwith destroyed, and severe penalties to be levied on those convicted of erecting such Looms.

2. Foreign Cloth, Linen or Woollen, to be deemed contraband throughout America. The buyer, seller, or wearer, to incur heavy penalties.

3. Whatever Goods or Merchandise that can be manu-factured in any part of the United Kingdoms, being trans-ported to America from any foreign country, shall be deemed contraband throughout the Continent. Fines and con-fiscations, which shall go towards the supplies of the Province wherein the seizures are made, to be levied with rigidity.

4. To prevent, as much as possible, the illicit practice of Smuggling, the Province or Island detected in encouraging it, shall be liable to maintain, agreeable to a stipulation in the Tariff of Trade, whatever Military force or additional number of Revenue Officers the British Legislature shall think fit to announce.

5. Considerable premiums shall be assigned to such persons in the Provinces as rear and keep the best flocks of Spanish Sheep, whose wool shall be judged the nearest in quality to that of Spain.

6. A distribution of premiums and every national encouragement to be afforded for the growth of Indigo, for planting Vineyards of French, Spanish, and Portuguese Grapes, as well as those of the Archipelago; for planting and cultivating Mulberry Trees for the Silk Worms; for the growth of Hemp, Flax, and other commodities, which the climate of America is calculated to raise.

7. Premiums should be assigned for the erection of the best kind of Saw-mills, in those forests where Oak might be prepared for the use of the English Navy.

Ships built for the American trade should have a back freight from the Government, or the Merchants, that the price of timber might be as low as possible. The Saw-mills used near Ostend are universally allowed to be the best constructed.

8. As the foreign Hat trade is nearly annihilated in Great Britain, America, possessing the materials, might, with industry and encouragement, undermine almost every Nation of Europe in that branch of commerce. To accomplish this, the Colonists should be prohibited from exporting Furs, Beavers, &c., (unless to the United Kingdoms subject to the Crown of Great Britain.) In which case, by taking off the Drawback, the Americans might raise a manufacture that would more than amply compensate for the loss sustained in being deprived of their Looms.

9. The Duties on Rums should be considerably lessened, and that on Brandies considerably augmented.

I have now, my Lord, submitted to the inspection of my countrymen a "Plan for Regulating the American Affairs." That it is not thoroughly digested, I admit; that it is wholly undeserving of notice, I cannot be made to believe. You, no question, have superiour lights, whilst ordinary men have scarce a glimmering to guide them through the labyrinth of politicks; yet, my Lord, with all these lights, of what complexion are your measures? Is there any thing like system in your conduct, unless tyranny be deserving of the name? Where is that superiour skill; where that penetrating sagacity which takes in the whole of things, and from an intimate acquaintance with the vast machine of state, perceives when a single movement is out of order, and adjusts it with such precision as immediately to restore the corresponding harmony? Endowments of this kind are necessary in a Minister. Are they to be found in the catalogue of your Lordship's qualities? You are gifted, indeed, but then it is with arithmetick powers; and whilst we wonder at your elevation to the post of Prime Minister, we deplore that your expertness in the science of numbers should be lost to the community! You would keep a numerical register with exactness; you make dreadful blunders when reckoning on the virtue, the spirit, or abilities of the Colonists! They are above your strength to compute, your capacity to comprehend.

In the behalf, then, of Commerce and of Liberty; in behalf of the English Nation, let me conjure you to desist from measures destructive to the Empire; let the Americans be heard in their Provincial Assemblies; let them state their Grievances, and propose their conditions; and, as an earnest of future justice, let the Port of Boston be instantly opened until some system affording but a prospect of reconciliation can be devised. But, my Lord, on no account venture to push matters to extremity; the baneful influence of your measures is already felt in the miseries of the times; if those miseries continue, an insulted people may grow furious with exasperation; they may cast aside restraint and mindful only of their Saviour's admonition: "those who have no swords may part with their garments for the purchase;" the love of liberty shall animate them to wield; the arm of Omnipotence will successfully direct their points to the breasts of those who aim only at the establishment of despotism in Great Britain and her Colonies.

SAMUEL CLAY HARVEY.

King street, Soho.

THOMAS CUSHING TO ARTHUR LEE.

Boston, February, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I am obliged to you for your favour of the 6th of December last. I heartily rejoice to hear you are safely arrived in London; we are much obliged to you for travelling night and day from Rome, in order to do what service you can at so important a crisis. The people in America are not all dismayed at the King's Speech; they wish for peace, and for an amicable and equitable settlement of this unhappy controversy; but if their hopes should be called off by the intemperate and violent conduct of the mother country, after the conciliatory offers that have been made by the Continental Congress, by which they have reduced the dispute to mere matter of speculation, and Administration should determine to carry into execution the late Acts of Parliament, by a Military Force, the people of America, I am persuaded, will make the last appeal. They are determined life and liberty shall go together. You need not be concerned; firmness and unanimity prevail through all the Colonies; the Association of the Continental Congress is sacredly adhered to, and I have just been informed that the Merchants at New-York have obliged a Vessel that arrived there from Scotland, since the 1st of February, to return immediately without breaking bulk. Our people are prompt and forward in their military exercises. There never was, since we have been a people, such a military spirit prevailing as at present; but God forbid we should settle this dispute by Arms. May the great Governour of the Universe direct the Councils of the Nation, and lead them into such measures as may restore peace, harmony, and happiness to both countries. I had the pleasure of seeing your brother, Colonel Lee, at the Congress, at Philadelphia, and spending many an agreeable hour with him; he is a steady friend to his country, and an able defender of her rights. Pray let me hear from you by every opportunity, and advise me constantly of the designs of Administration relative to America. I am, with great truth, your sincere friend and humble servant,

THOMAS CUSHING.

Arthur Lee, Esquire, London.

P.S. The terms of accommodation between Great Britain and the Colonies, which you and I have joined in judgment in, and have heretofore thought reasonable, happen to be approved by all the leading men in America, as you will perceive by the Resolutions of the Continental Congress.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM ANNAPOLIS TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK, DATED FEBRUARY, 1775.

Oblige me by tendering my thanks to Mr. Rivington for the "Alarm," which I received as soon as it was possible, after its publication. Several copies were distributed among our leading Patriots, who were alarmed sufficiently. Johnson, by far the most shrewd and sagacious amongst them, declared that the political salvation of America depended on the present conduct of your Legislature; - and I think so too. Oh, my good friend, could it but be that they would break their chains and shew us the way, by only declaring aloud, what every man, in private, must think, that those Congressmen and their satellites, the Committee-men, are the truest, though absurdest tyrants that any country ever had cause to complain of; depend upon it, we should follow them in shoals. There warns but a head: the foolishness and maddest are tired of their projects; and were it not that their leaders, with horrid cunning, have rendered a retreat so difficult, I foresee thousands anxious for a defection; and yet, what are the difficulties that would attend a return to their duty and allegiance compared with the dismal, the unutterable distresses which must of necessity be the final portion of such unhappy men as shall blindly or wickedly persevere in their present line of conduct.

COLONEL ADAM STEPHEN TO R. H. LEE.

February 1, 1775.

MY DEAR COLONEL: A grateful remembrance of old friendship will, I hope, apologize for my troubling you so often without hearing the least whisper from you, since I came from the Shawanese expedition.

The important session of Assembly, big with matters of great moment, is now at hand. I wish that a firm and dispassionate conduct may shine through the whole, and all our passions may be soothed by agreeable accounts from the new Parliament. I must acknowledge my dread to hear from them. Several sensible men, lately from England, inform us the people there seem but little affected with our dispute; and that they, without thought or consideration, declare that America ought to be taxed.

In these troublesome times it is absolutely necessary that you pay the men employed in the late expedition; they have done honour to our country. The Indians are daily delivering up prisoners and horses, and do really stand in awe of us. Unless the men are paid off directly, their certificates will be sold for a fourth part of their value to Pedlars and Storekeepers, and the brave men who did the service, be nothing the better of their pay. Appoint Commissioners from below to settle the accounts; let no interested persons, or their connections, be concerned in the affair; send the Squire up again, Tom Marshall, and Frank Peyton, and as many more as you think proper. By this means the people will have justice done them, and, at the same time, many thousands will be saved to the country. The House must settle what pay they are to get per day, and from what time they are to be paid, as they were raised and detained some considerable time for want of Arms and Ammunition; this time was employed in disciplining them for the service; but, without the consideration and sanction of the House, the Commissioners may think it matter of altercation. With the greatest economy matters on this quarter were managed; but the expense of Fort Pitt must be kept apart by itself, as I am affraid the reverse of economy will appear there; it has no connection with the rest of the campaign. I would have you discharge that Garrison immediately; but, then, I desire you may keep my opinion to yourself. In renewing the Militia Law, let there be one hundred well appointed horse disciplined in every County; to be superieur in horse, commands the field, and no enemy can safely show himself out of sight of their camp; we are immediately apprised of the strength of their escorts, and of every motion they make, and can act accordingly. At the Courts Martial, let a majority present determine any matter; and during an attack, or in battle, let the men be subject to the Articles of War, with what alteration the House thinks proper. Until the men who want Fire-Arms can be provided, let them be furnished with Spears and Tomahawks; the iron of the Spear to be made in shape of a triangular bayonet, only broader at the shoulder, to go on the staff with a large socket, and thin plates of iron reaching up the staff about two feet to stiffen it, and guard it against any cutting instrument, the plates being part of the socket; the Spear of the men in front to be six inches larger than the Musket with fixed bayonet; those of the second rank eighteen inches longer than the Spears in front; and those in the third rank eighteen inehes longer than the second, that three Spears may reach the breast of the enemy at once, before our men could be touched with the first Bayonet.

This moment I am informed that the Assembly is prorogued till May, - confusion worse confounded; I wish, for the encouragement of the Soldiers, that you would meet, in Provincial Congress, and order an emission of Bills of Credit for their payment. I am sorry that, Lord Dunmore may depend on it, the Militia will never obey his orders again. If the country has a mind to secure useful men, it is absolutely necessary to contrive some method to pay the common men, if the Officers and Provisions should lie over; let us be firm, and the gates of hell cannot prevail against us. A handfull of men in Canada, six broken Regiments from France, withstood, for five years, all the force of British Fleets and Armies from home, and fifteen or twenty thousand Americans, every campaign. They gained several victories over us, and chance had a great hand in their reduction at last. What can we do, if united?

We only want a Navy to give law to the world, and we have it it in our power to get it. I am, dear sir, firmly yours,
ADAM STEPHEN.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN BOSTON TO HIS FRIEND IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED FEBRUARY 1, 1775.

The day appointed by the Provincial Congress for a Publick Thanksgiving, a number of persons in this Town showed their disapprobation thereto, by opening their Shops as usual, for which they were treated in an uncivil manner, and those persons were said to be Quakers. I therefore think it my duty, as an honest, impartial, and most unbiassed member of this community, and one who wishes nothing more ardently than a true, fair, and candid representation of facts might appear, to assure thee, and I can of my own certain knowledge assure thee, that it is a most malicious and injurious falsehood, and no doubt propagated by the base enemies of our invaluable constitutional rights and privileges, for the most vile and malevolent purposes; for I do well know, that the Friends in this Town did not open their Shops on said Thanksgiving Day; nor have I heard the least unfriendly or uncivil expression uttered by any of the inhabitants of this Town against them, as a people, for many years; but, on the contrary, I do most certainly know, that they are always, and on all occasions, treated with full as much (and I think more) Catholick tenderness, friendly and neighbourly kindness and affect on, than persons of any other sect or denomination amongst us.

Ridgefield, Connecticut, February 2, 1775.

Whereas, in a Meeting of the Town of Ridgefield, held on the 30th of January last, the question was put, whether the Town would adopt and conform to the Resolves contained in the Association of the Continental Congress, or not; which question was resolved in the negative. We, the subscribers, inhabitants of the society of Ridgbury, within the said Town, do hereby declare, that we were not on the negative side of the above question, and are very sorry that the Town did not adopt the abovesaid Association, as we think it of importance m the cause of American freedom that it should be faithfully observed, and do accordingly purpose to observe it ourselves, as far as we can, under our present circumstances, and stand ready to concur with the Town, if a majority could be obtained for that purpose in appointing a Committee of Observation.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LONDON TO A GENTLEMAN IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED FEBRUARY 4, 1775.

I am writing to as many of my friends as I can by this opportunity, as I do not know how soon the communication may be cut off by hostilities, to which, as I apprehend, we are hastening very fast; for our Ministry seem determined to risk their own heads, and the interest of the Nation, in pursuit of their infamous measures.

Your kind remembrance of November 4, seems to breathe that true spirit of liberty which I hope will be universal in America, and will be your only means of escape from the slavery that is preparing for you. As to us, we are lost to all the noble purposes of life, and have not virtue enough to save ourselves, much less to assist you; the immense power of the Crown in the disposition of the publick money, carries every thing before it like a torrent; and while that continues, the two Houses of Parliament are of no security to the people; they both speak the language of the Court, and they have been so long used to it, that they can speak no other.

You have many enemies in this Kingdom, and though they differ in their reasons for being so, yet they unite in the wicked purpose of distressing you. As for instance, the King is your enemy, as you are obstacles to a settled design of despotism; the Ministry second his views, that they may share in his power; the Parliament wants to establish their illegal authority over you, and are enemies in course; the Bishops want to rule you in matters of faith; the country gentlemen are mostly against you from their ignorance and avarice, childishly supposing that every penny that is laid on you will ease them in the same proportion; the Officers of the Army and Navy are wishing for plunder; but for what reasons a considerable part of the Merchants, Traders and Manufacturers, would wish you ill, is beyond my comprehension. I can only suggest two suppositions, and those very vague ones; it may be to curry favour with the Ministry for the sake of jobs, contracts, &c., or it may be from downright stupidity, in supposing the English Commons should have a superiority over their brethren in America; of this last class, it is difficult for me to paint the ingratitude; but I hope, ere long, the friends of freedom will be able to send over a list of their names by way of memento.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM PHILADELPHIA TO JAMES RIVINGTON, NEW YORK, DATED FEBRUARY 4, 1775,

Merely to give the enemies of our happy Constitution an opportunity of contradicting what was asserted in your paper, "that the Farmer had deserted the Committee," they thought nothing more was necessary to invalidate your testimony than to get him once amongst them in Provincial Congress; for this purpose, they exerted themselves and prevailed on him to attend, and insert his name; but how different was his conduct from heretofore; he formerly took the lead in every matter, and now he did not speak at all. You may assure your readers, that he has declared, "he was really alarmed at the Proceedings of our Committee." And though you was scandalously insulted in Bradford's Paper on that occasion, the publick will, before long, be convinced, that there was a solid foundation for the article you inserted, as far as related to his prudent resolution of withdrawing himself from their society. Your pamphlets continue daily to change the minds of people, and in spite of the arts of our fiery Republicans, associations are concerting to counteract the authority of unconstitutional Congresses and unwarrantable Committees of all sorts.

TO THE AMERICANS.

FRIENDS AND COUNTRYMEN: Much time and treasure have been spent to accommodate the contests between Britain and her Colonies; though the affair has been very serious, yet no one just or proper step has been taken to accomplish it. Every one who can see the length of his nose, must see the folly of all irritating measures; such ludicrous attempts have, and forever will, widen the breaches between Great Britain and her Colonies. The temperate, discreet Colonists, have been too indolent, whilst restless spirits, by ignis fatuus, led the inconsiderate into the deep gulfs of sedition, where they lost virtue, loyalty, and good manners.

The mode of accommodation, or opposition, call it which you please, adopted by the Congress, was borrowed from the seditious Bostonians, who formed the plan before the Congress had a being, and was vigorously opposed by the virtuous among themselves, by the name of a Solemn League and Covenant, which the seditious entered into in the manner, and enforced by the penalties, the Association is established by.

Had the Congress checked the seditions then; had they supported the loyalists, who had long bitterly complained; had they opposed the anarchy and tumultuous tyranny then prevalent; had they laid the Bostonians under firm obligations to do justice to the India Company, and to make decent acknowledgments to their Sovereign for their violence and insults; had this been the preamble to the Association, the Port might have been opened, the three-penny duties and petty complaints removed, their loyalty and our liberty secured.

Something like this would have laid a foundation to have built upon; the Congress might then have merited the praise of the Bostonians forever, and of the Colonies during good behaviour. This was the way to have entered into an accommodation; and it was so plain and obvious, that nothing but a peculiar enchantment could have led them from it. However, they joined the factious, and by that junction, the virtuous were, and are persecuted; all Government trampled upon; the King's Officers, Civil and Military, insulted, and his property invaded. They also wantonly adopted, "approved, recommended," the seditious Resolves of Suffolk County. This imprudent; ill-timed conduct, threw the Province into an irregular fit, out of which it is not likely to recover, confirmed the seditious, and gave too much countenance to sedition in the Colonies.

Now, seeing we can entertain no hopes of peace with our parent state, from the mediation of the Congress, let us consider the provision made for the peace of the Colonies. The Association, which with some is every thing, is calculated for the meridian of a Spanish Inquisition; it is subversive of, inconsistent with, the wholesome laws of our happy Constitution; it abrogates or suspends many of them essential to the peace and order of Government; it takes the Government out of the hands of the Governour, Council, and General Assembly; and the execution of the laws out of the hands of the Civil Magistrates and Juries. The Congress exercises the Legislative, the Committees the Executive Powers: the injustice and oppression of the one and the other are self-evident. But as it is of the Bostonian manufactory, a new edition, fitted to the necessities of his Majesty's most loyal subjects at home and abroad, will soon appear in both worlds with a pacifick, patriotick Address, agreeable to the old Catholick, generous principles of the Colony.

In the meantime, we must learn the humiliating doctrine of a blind implicit faith, and of passive obedience, and non-resistance; for a Committorial Court of Inquisition is introduced throughout the deluded Colonies; with all its horrid appendixes, our lives, liberties, and properties, are submitted to it. These Inquisitors and Spies are to inspect and watch the motions of the Colonists, and to enforce a due obedience to the rules of the Congress.

Their power is arbitrary and unlimited; they may judge by appearances, and condemn unseen and unheard; they are under no check, there is no appeal to another Court, they are not accountable to any power. Willing, or unwilling, we must be willing to obey the mandates of the Congress; we, though unwilling, must will all the profits of our late importations to the seditious Saints at Boston. The charitable Congress have given a title to them; the Committees, by and with the authority of lawless mobs, claim them; the very least these pious Saints can do for such unheard of favours, is, to stir up sedition, and pray for the continuance of such charitable donations.

But, as the power is tyrannous, so the punishment is horrible; they are authorized to proclaim his Majesty's best subjects foes to America; to pass an act of outlawry against them; to cast them out of all civil society; deprive them of the benefit of law and civil commerce! For the same reason, they might have proclaimed them traitors! foes to America! Why are the best subjects so wantonly abused? Are they foes to the King? No; but you want they should be. Are they foes to the laws of the Empire or Province? No, but the Association is. Are they foes to the interest of America? No; but their persecutors are. Why are the best men outlawed, who obey the laws of God, of nature, of the Province, and of the Empire. Where there is no law, there can be no transgression. How will the loyal Canadians relish your insidious, ensnaring addresses, when they hear of a tyranny that exceeds all they had ever heard of?

The Canadian Act, which occasioned so much canting on the one hand, and disloyal invectives on the other, has no such hostile appearance as this. This, however, reminds me of a remark, that the late Usurper's finger was heavier than the King, Lords, and Commons. He used these engines to cover and forward his rebellious pranks; and as he gained ground he built upon them, until at length he and his tools passed an edict that it was high treason against the Commonwealth for any person, in any case, to aid and assist the King, the Queen even not excepted! By these wicked, arbitrary engines, the Rebels were increased there as they have been here, and a pretext given to murder the best people in the Nation, and to seize their estates, the King not excepted!

Send back, we pray you, these insidious engines of persecution and cruelty from whence they came; for you have no reason, no right, no power to use them. How similar your ends and designs are to his, your next edition may with horror inform us. Fie, fie, Americans, fie! Are these proofs of your love and gratitude to your good King and happy country? Are these the effects of your feigned patriotism and liberty? You see who went before you with all your specious pretexts of patriotism and every thing else; and you know how they all ended. Review the tyranny, the horrors, and havock of those days, and how long they lasted, even until all things returned into the old channel again.

But it is time to think of terms of accommodation with our King and his Parliament; and who are proper persons to undertake this? The Congress have adopted such irritating measures as disqualify them for this pacifick office; and we pray that love and duty to their King and country, may induce them forever to decline that very great undertaking.

After the hostile combinations entered into by the Colonies, we can expect nothing of this nature from the Throne; for our King cannot dispense with the rebellion of the Bostonians, without submission and proper acknowledgments; he cannot repeal the Acts of Parliament in a lump; nor yet declare that they have not a lawful authority over us. If, then, we go on as we have begun, he must either attack us sword in hand; or, as he is averse to shed human blood, he may lawfully sell his Colonies to such as can and will govern them. We cannot exist without Government, and we are not in a capacity to unite among ourselves, nor to govern one another; and then, like the miserable Corsicans, we shall pay very dear for our past rebellion and ingratitude.

It is then our duty and interest to offer terms of reconciliation to our parent state; and they ought to be reasonable ones, such as may be made with safety on our side, and accepted with dignity on theirs. I can think of no example so worthy of our imitation as the prodigal son's. Let us then arise, and jointly, by and with the influence of our worthy Representatives, go and address our most gracious King and Parliament, saying, fathers, we have sinned against Heaven and before you, and we are not worthy to be called your loyal subjects. Such filial love, duty, and obedience, will assuredly meet with a kind and welcome reception, and be indulged with all that we can reasonably want here, or justly hope for hereafter.

Suffolk County, New-York, February 4; 1775.

LANCASTER COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

The Freeholders of Lancaster County being convened on the 6th of February, 1775, to re-elect a Committee to act as guardians of the said County, in carrying into execution the American Association, agreeable to the recommendation of the Continental Congress; and having made choice of the following persons: James Selden, Charles Carter, James Gordon, Thomas B. Griffin, Thaddeus M'Carty, Richard Mitchell, Burgess Ball, Nicholas Carrell, Henry Tapscot, John Taylor, John Chinn, John Ball, James Kirk, Hugh Brent, Edwin Conway, Rawleigh Downman, William Sydnor, Henry Lawson, John Fleet, William Montague, James Ball, Dale Carter, Peter Conway, Henry Towles, and Thomas Lawson, gentlemen, conveniently situated to superintend the notice paid to the said Association through the whole County, and having chosen James Ball, Esquire, Chairman, and requested the favour of Thomas B. Griffin to officiate as Secretary, it was then unanimously resolved to appoint Deputies to repair to the Colony Congress, in order to choose Delegates for the ensuing Continental Congress, to be held at Philadelphia, on the 10th day of May, and to join their hearty concurrence to the proceedings of the former, and to do whatever further may be judged necessary, in instructing the Delegates, &c., if before that time American Grievances are not redressed, and their rights and liberties amply restored. James Selden and Charles Carter, Esquires, Representatives, being unanimously appointed Deputies, were desired to be informed from their constituents, that from an assurance that the Assembly of this Colony will not meet before the time appointed for the Continental Congress; and that in order duly to comply with the requisitions of the last, they are requested to attend at Richmond Town, on the 20th day of March, to promote the purposes intended by such meeting, with their utmost abilities and attention; and should it so happen that our Assembly should be dissolved before such Convention, we do, in such vacation, nominate and constitute you to meet in such Colony Convention, at the time and place, and for the purposes above mentioned. The present critical situation of American Liberty, becoming every day more dangerous and alarming, induces us to make this appointment and give this instruction, that, as the united wisdom of British America is so eminently requisite to be fully known, we could wish this Colony would by no means be prevented from a representation in such intended Congress, on whose consultations the rights of this vast Continent depend; and we entreat you to return our best wishes to the worthy Delegates who attended the former Grand Congress, for their wise deliberations, and spirited, though pacifick conduct, in support of the freedom of millions they represented; and hope and expect that the blessings of this and generations yet unborn, will forever accompany their services and memory. By order of the Committee,

THOMAS B. GRIFFIN, Secretary.

New-York, February 6, 1775.

The following is an extract of a Letter from a gentleman in London, not less remarkable for the greatness of his abilities, and the extent of his political knowledge, than a most zealous attachment to the welfare of his country. His principles of Government, indeed, are not in the style of modern Sons of Liberty, who can see the interest of the Colonies placed in a state of separation from, and independence on, the mother country. His objects are more enlarged, and his patriotism derived from a purer fountain; for it is aimed at an union between both countries, upon the basis of freedom and mutual benefit.

"The inflammatory performances from this country, calculated to excite jealousies and animosity, have, I find, been but too successful among you. Nothing can be more false than the representations of hostile intentions against America, formed by the present Administration.

"They exercise even severities, which they consider necessary, with reluctance, and are too prudent Statesmen to be ignorant that if America suffers, Great Britain must suffer with it. They ardently wish to adopt a liberal and firm Constitution, which may preserve as well your rights as the just supremacy of Parliament - a supremacy which you once universally acknowledged. Nothing is wanting to this end but advances on the part of the Colonies, to a reconciliation and thorough settlement of the dispute. Both sides may have run into excesses; but it is certainly more becoming in America to pay a deference to its august mother, and by the first advances give her an opportunity of relieving her children with safety to her own dignity. A petition from the Assemblies will be attended with success, if their claims are accurately limited and defined, and represented with temper as well as firmness. Should it be rejected, you will have a fairer plea to the favour of moderate men in this country. Should it be received, you may probably preserve both countries from misery. Your indefinite claims have much injured your cause of late. It has been heretofore argued, that the doctrine of exemption from Parliamentary Taxation, rested on principles which reached to a denial of Parliamentary Legislation. The author of the Summary has avowed these consequences, and opened a wide field for future contention, as if resolved to convince Great Britain of the impossibility of satisfying America with any thing short of Independence. Great use has been made of his extravagant claims, by the Ministerial writers, and the arguments from them seem to be unanswerable. The Instructions also drawn up by the Committee of Philadelphia, in which a claim of exemption from the Acts of Regulation, &c., is held up, have been adduced as evidences of the danger of admitting the foundation of Parliamentary jurisdiction to be in the least impaired. The author, Mr. Dickinson, seems to have forgotten his own concession: 'that a power of regulating trade is undeniably in the British Parliament, and essential to the union between a mother country and her Colonies.'"

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN PHILADELPHIA, TO HIS CORRESPONDENT IN NEW-YORK, DATED FEBRUARY 6, 1775.

It is much to be lamented that your Province has not yet adopted the Proceedings of the Congress; but a faithful adherence to the Association will go far to remove the infamy which must certainly fall upon that Province, whose defection may tend to defeat the virtuous struggles in which we are engaged. We observe a number of publications in Rivington's Paper from your City, to which there is not the least spark of credit due. They dare not offer them to our Printers, because their notorious falsehood would ruin the credit of the Paper.

Newtown, Connecticut, February 6, 1775.

At a Meeting of the Freemen and Inhabitants of this Town, convened at the Town House, for the purpose of declaring their sentiments with regard to the great political controversy now in vogue, on the day and date above:

HENRY GLOVER, Esquire, being chosen Moderator, and Mr. WILLIAM BURWELL, Clerk.

The meeting then proceeded to give their opinions upon the following queries:

Query 1st. Whether we will adopt and conform to the Resolves contained in the Association of the Continental Congress?

Voted in the negative, except one single vote.

Query 2d. Whether we do acknowledge his most sacred Majesty King George the Third to be our rightful Sovereign, and do hereby publicly avow our allegiance to him and his legal successors; and whether we will, to the utmost of our power, support his throne and dignity against every combination in the universe?

Voted in the affirmative, nem. con.

Query 3d. Whether we do acknowledge that the three branches of Legislation, to wit: the King, Lords, and Commons, concurring and acting together, have a constitutional right of government over the whole and every part of the British Empire?

Voted in the affirmative, nem. con.

Query 4th. Whether the Governour and Council and General Assembly of this Colony, have and ought to have a subordinate Legislative power and authority in and over this Colony?

Voted in the affirmative, nem. con.

Query 5th. Whether it would not be dangerous and hurtful to the inhabitants of this Town, to adopt the said Congress's measures; and whether we do not hereby publicly disapprove of and protest against said Congress and the measures by them directed, as unconstitutional, subversive of our real liberties, and as tending to licentiousness?

Voted in the affirmative, nem. con.

WILLIAM BURWELL, Clerk.

The meeting was the fullest that ever was known in this Town House, there being one hundred and sixty-two freemen, qualified according to law, and seventy other inhabitants, which were numbered some time after voting, besides several who had departed before the numbering.

Danbury. Connecticut, February 6, 1775.

On the 29th day of November last, was held in Danbury, a Town Meeting, to know the minds of the Town, respecting the doings of the late Continental Congress, when the Town adopted said doings, appointed a Committee of Inspection, &c., which I have seen published in Mr. Holt's Paper. I could not then believe that if it had been a full meeting, the Town would have voted in the form as they then did; for there was but a thin meeting, and these who were friends to Government were fearful of discovering their sentiments, as the honour and credit of the Congress appeared to be great, in the adjoining Towns, and no one dared open his mouth against what they had done; but since then many have not been afraid of disputing the doings of that sacred body; which has emboldened many to shew their firm attachment to their gracious King and their present happy Constitution; so that, in a very full Town Meeting, held in this Town; this day, the following votes were passed.

At a Town Meeting, legally held in Danbury, February 6th, 1775,

Captain THOMAS STEPHENS, Moderator:

At the said meeting, the question was put, whether the Town of Danbury would do any thing respecting appointing a Committee to meet at a County Congress, to be held at Fairfield, on Tuesday, the 14th day of this instant, February; which question passed in the negative, one hundred and six, to eighty-six, to which sixty persons entered their protest in open meeting.

Also, the question, whether this meeting would disannul the vote passed in Danbury, the 29th day of November, 1774, appointing a Committee of Inspection; which passed in the affirmative. JOHN WOOD, Town Clerk.

HANDBILL DISTRIBUTED THROUGH BOSTON ON MONDAY, FEBRUARY 6, 1775.

Friends, Countrymen, and Citizens:

Have you read and weighed his Majesty's Speech? the Address of the Lords and Commons of Great Britain? I fear we have got into the wrong box! therefore let us not any longer be led by phrenzy, but seize upon and deliver up to justice (at once) those who have seduced us from our duty and happiness! or, depend upon it, they will leave us in the lurch! nay, I am assured, some of them (who had property) have already mortgaged all their substance for fear of confiscation, but that shall not save their necks, for I am one (of forty misled people) who will watch their motion, and not suffer them to escape the punishment due to the disturbers of our repose. Remember the fate of Wat Tyler; and think how vain it is for Jack, Sam, or Will, to war against Great Britain, now she is in earnest! It is greatly inferiour to the Giants waging war against Olympus? These had strength, but what have we? Our leaders are desperate bankrupts! Our country is without money, stores or necessities of war! without one place of refuge or defence! If we were called together, we should be a confused herd, without any disposition to obedience; without a General of ability to direct and guide us, and our numbers would be our destruction! Never did a people rebel with so little reason, therefore our conduct cannot be justified before God. Never did so weak a people dare to contend with so powerful a state; therefore it cannot be justified by prudence. It is all the consequence of the arts of crafty knaves, over weak minds and wild enthusiasts, who, if we continue to follow, will lead us to inevitable ruin.

Rouse, rouse, ye Massachusetians, while it be yet time! ask pardon of God, submit to our King and Parliament, whom we have wickedly and grievously offended. Eyes had we but saw not; neither have we heard with our ears. Let not our posterity curse us for having wantonly lost the estates that should have been theirs; or for entailing misery upon them, by implicitly adhering to the promises of a few desperadoes. Let us seize our seducers, make peace with our mother country, and save ourselves and children. Amen! A YEOMAN OF SUFFOLK COUNTY.

Boston, Sabbath Eve, February 5, 1775.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM BOSTON, TO A GENTLEMAN IN PHILADELPHIA, DATED FEBRUARY 6, 1775,

In my last I gave you some account of the state of politicks here. The Tories in this Town, and indeed every where, sensible what effects a Continental Union must produce towards the subversion of their infernal system of oppression, tyranny, and rapine, are mustering their whole force, and straining every nerve to contravene the salutary measures the people are prosecuting for their deliverance. Incapable of reasoning us out of our sentiments, they are now aiming, by intimidating, to divert us from the execution of the only plan that can rescue the Colonies from the jaws of political perdition. They are perpetually holding up to view all the terriffick consequences of treason and rebellion, wilfully mistaking, or stupidly imagining the inhabitants of this Province deeply involved in both; not considering that a state, the fundamentals of whose Constitution are subverted, which is indisputably the case with the Massachusetts, is reduced to a state of nature, and therefore cannot be guilty of crimes peculiar only to a regular constitutional form of Government. - But they bellow to the winds - their scheme is seen through, and they detested. So generally are the principles of liberty disseminated, and so deeply fixed, that nothing but Arms, that supreme lex of tyrants, will be able to suppress the generous ardour which now stimulates our countrymen to defend, at all hazards, the freedom handed down to them from their ancestors; nor will they be slaves without the most obstinate and bloody contest.

Our Provincial Congress met last week, but nothing has as yet transpired; they consist of one hundred and seventy-eight Members, and act with great unanimity.

The small-pox is lurking about in different parts of the Town; and it is apprehended will spread. A pestilential fever prevails in the Army, which is even more dreaded than the small-pox. How distressful is the state of Boston! Surrounded and insulted by numerous Fleet and Army; shut out from trade; and deprived of all the advantages of law process!

Committee Chamber, Norfolk, Virginia, February 7. 1775.

We the subscribers, ballotted for, and duly elected by the Freeholders and Freemen of the Borough of Norfolk, to act as a Committee of Observation, under the Continental Association, in obedience to the same, and in discharge of the trust reposed in us by our constituents, do find ourselves unhappily compelled to hold up for publick censure Doctor Alexander Gordon, of this Borough. Upon what facts the justice of our censure is founded will appear from the following detail: - On Monday, the 23d of January, Doctor Gordon informed this Committee, who were then sitting, that he had just imported in the Active, Captain Huntley, two crates, four hogsheads, one chest, one barrel, two casks, and one case of Medicines, of more than two hundred Pounds sterling value, and desired the opinion of this Committee, whether they might not be delivered up to him, agreeable to the exception in favour of Medicine, in the Provincial Association. This Committee informed him that our decisions were regulated by the directions of the Continental Association, which had superseded the Provincial one, inasmuch as it was subscribed and acceded to by the Delegates from this Colony; and that therefore, agreeable to the tenth article of our own Provincial Association, it was our duty to submit to this further restriction imposed by the Congress. It was also observed to the, that if a freedom from Provincial restrictions would exempt any from the Continental Regulations made in Congress, all Goods imported into most of the Northern Colonies might, for the same reason, be delivered up to the proprietors, as the importation of them was not subject to any Provincial restrictions. Instances were pointed out to him of Medicines being sold in this Town agreeable to the tenth article of the Continental Association that were ordered some time before our Provincial Convention, of the 1st of August; and indeed one gentleman of this Committee, to convince the Doctor how unjust any notions of partiality would be, mentioned his own case, as much harder than the Doctor's; for, as the gentleman observed, trusting that the Congress would make the same exception in favour of Medicine as the Convention had done, he had neglected to give his orders for his Medicines till some time in October, so that they probably would not arrive till after the 1st of February, but that yet he did not conceive a doubt with respect to the conduct he should observe on the occasion, and was satisfied they must go back. All arguments, however, availed nothing with the Doctor; but, upon a final declaration from this Committee, that we had no authority to dispense with the Association, but requested him to make his election what should be done with his Medicines, as directed by the tenth article of the Association, the Doctor, to the Surprise of this Committee, chose to have them stored. Pains were taken to convince him of the loss he himself might sustain by this election, and to point out to him the injury that might be done to the publick at large, by thus storing such a quantity of Medicines at a time when we have reason to apprehend a general scarcity.

FOURTH SERIES.

He was also informed, that where there did not appear in the importers any design to contravene the Provincial or Continental Associations, there had never been an instance in this place of the inhabitants bidding against the proprietors; that as he had the sanction of the Convention for the importation of Medicines, there could be no suspicion in this case of any such sinister motive in him; and that, were we to judge from the sale of the other Medicines imported under the like circumstances, in all probability he might purchase them in at the very trifling expense of only the vendue-master's charge. The Doctor however remained inflexible, and with much warmth insisted upon the immediate appointment of persons to receive the packages, and a store-house to put them in; as he said, "they might be landed in the rain, and damaged for want of "knowing where to carry them." Two gentlemen of this Committee were accordingly appointed in his hearing to receive them, and the store-house, which was a very safe one, was also mentioned to him. Thus matters rested till the 30th day of January, when the Sub-Committee appointed to receive and store the Medicines, reported, that having waited two or three days expecting to be sent for by Doctor Gordon for that purpose, and finding he did not pay any regard to the appointment of the Committee, one of them at length applied to him, to know where they were, and what he had done with them; to which the Doctor replied, "he had taken charge of them himself, "and as some of them were damaged, he had obtained an "order from the Mayor for a survey, and had broken open "the packages and examined the contents, and had stored "them in a store he had rented solely for that purpose, "where he should keep them till he should receive an "answer to a letter he had written on the subject to the "Honourable Peyton Randolph, Esquire, by which answer he said he would be governed." In consequence of this report, the Doctor was summoned to appear the next day before the Committee, which he did accordingly, and delivered in a writing, purporting to be a vindication of his conduct, which confirmed the truth of the report of the Sub-Committee, and desired we would not remove the Medicines from the store they then were in, before he should hear from Mr. Randolph. Willing to give him every indulgence, although the Committee were sensible of the impropriety of his application, or appeal as he called it, if it was intended to influence our deliberations, as we conceive the Association to be the only rule of our conduct, yet we granted his request, and put off the further hearing of the matter till the 6th of February; at which time one of this Committee, at the request of the Doctor, laid before us the letter from Mr. Randolph, which being read, and the Doctor's former defence re-considered, and the Committee being desirous that the Doctor should entitle himself to his insurance by selling the Medicines, it was agreed that he should be sent for to make a new election, if he thought proper. The Doctor, however, still adhering to his former opinion, with great warmth rejected all the mild proposals of this Committee, refused to make any election as required, and would neither deliver them up to be stored or sold, nor even show his invoice. For all which reasons we, the Committee for Norfolk Borough, think ourselves bound in obedience to the eleventh article of the Association, "to publish the truth of the case," and give it as our unanimous opinion that Doctor Alexander Gordon has violated the Continental Association.

WILLIAM DAVIS, Secretary.

ADDRESS PRESENTED TO GENERAL GAGE, FROM THE SELECTMEN OF SIX TOWNS, IN THE COUNTY OF PLYMOUTH, MASSACHUSETTS.

To his Excellency THOMAS GAGE, Esquire.

May it Please your Excellency:

We his Majesty's loyal subjects, Selectmen of the several Towns of Plymouth, Kingston, Duxbury, Pembroke, Hanover, and Scituate, deeply affected with a sense of the increasing dangers and calamities which menace one of the most promising countries upon earth with political exition, cannot but lament that while we are endeavouring to preserve peace and maintain the authority of the laws, at a period when the hands of government are relaxed, by violent infractions on the Charter of the Province, our enemies are practising every insidious stratagem to seduce the people into acts of violence and outrage.

We beg leave to address your Excellency on a subject which excites our apprehensions extremely; and in the representation of facts, we promise to pay that sacred regard to truth, which, had our adversaries observed, we flatter ourselves it would have precluded the necessity of our addressing your Excellency on this occasion.

We are informed from good authority that a number of people from Marshfield and Scituate, have made application to your Excellency, soliciting the aid of a detachment of his Majesty's Troops, for the security and protection of themselves and properties. That their fears and intimidation were entirely groundless; that no design or plan of molestation was formed against them, or existed, but in their own imaginations, their own declarations, and their actions, which have a more striking language, abundantly demonstrate. Several men of unquestionable veracity, residing in the Town of Marshfield, have solemnly called God to witness, before one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace, that they not only never heard of any intention to disturb the complainants, but repeatedly saw them, after they pretended to be under apprehensions of danger, attending to their private affairs without arms, and even after they had lodged their arms a few miles distant from their respective houses.

They frequently declared in conversation with the deponents, that they were not apprehensive of receiving any injury in their persons or properties; and one of them, who is a minor, (as many of them are) being persuaded to save his life by adjoining himself to the petitioners, but afterwards abandoning them by the request of his father, deposes in the like solemn manner, that he was under no intimidation himself, nor did he ever hear any of them say that he was. It appears as evident as if written with a sun-beam, from the general tenor of the testimony, (which we are willing to lay before your Excellency, if desired,) that their expressions of fear were a fallacious pretext, dictated by the inveterate enemies of our Constitution, to induce your Excellency to send Troops into the County, to augment the difficulties of our situation, already very distressing; and what confirms this truth, (if it need any confirmation,) is the assiduity and pains which we have taken to investigate it; we have industriously and impartially scrutinized into the cause of this alarm, and cannot find that it has the least foundation in reality.

All that we have in view in this Address, is to lay before your Excellency a true state of facts, and to remove that opprobrium which this movement of the military reflects on this country; and as a spirit of enmity and falsehood is prevalent in the country, and as every thing which comes from a gentleman of your Excellency's exalted station, naturally acquires great weight and importance, we earnestly entreat your Excellency to search into the grounds of every report previous to giving your assent to it.

Signed by a number of Selectmen.

Pembroke, February 7, 1775.

London, February 7. 1775.

At a respectable meeting, yesterday, of the Merchants, Traders, and others, concerned in the American Commerce, Mr. Lane took the Chair at one o'clock, and Mr. Baker informed the company, that, agreeable to their instructions at the last meeting, the second Petition had been presented to the House of Commons, and a motion made thereon to rescind the order of Monday, the 23d of January, which had referred the first Petition to the Committee; that, after a long debate, the House refused to receive the motion, and the Petition was ordered to lie on the table; that, under this circumstance, the Committee had no alternative but to be heard before that ineffectual Committee, or to waive appearing at the bar; and being of opinion the latter was the most manly conduct, they resolved to desire one of the Committee to deliver the following Declaration, which Mr. Wooldridge accordingly complied with, viz: "I am "directed by the Committee of Merchants, Traders, and "others, of the City of London, concerned in the Commerce "of America, to represent to this Honourable Committee, "that Merchants revealing at this bar the state of their affairs, is a measure which all the world wish to avoid, unless "upon such great occasions as the present, when the publick "weal is evidently at stake, when their duty as good subjects requires it of them; but when the mode of examination is such as totally precludes them from answering "the great publick object, (which in their opinion is clearly "the case at present,) they beg leave humbly to signify, "that they waive appearing before the Committee which "has been appointed, and that the Merchants are not under any apprehensions respecting their American debts, "unless the means of remittance should be cut off by measures that may be adopted in Great Britain."

That the Committee, trusting in the propriety of the measure, and it being, in point of time, not in their power to take the sense of a general meeting, they hoped for the general approbation, He added that their Petitions were not withdrawn, or placed in any more favourable situation than when they were presented. He made some judicious and pertinent remarks on Lord North's motion on Friday last, and observed that the Americans ought to expect something more than indulgence, as expressed in the motion, when they were contending only for their just rights and unalienable privileges.

The proceedings of the Committee being generally approved, a motion was made and seconded to return them thanks for their conduct therein, and to Mr. Wooldridge, for his firm and manly conduct at the bar.

Mr. Baker then intimated that it was the opinion of the Committee that a Petition should be presented to the House of Lords, and a motion was accordingly made, and unanimously agreed to, "that it is the opinion of this "meeting that, in the present alarming situation of American affairs, the Right Honourable the House of Lords "should be petitioned forthwith."

The draft of a Petition was then presented and read, the substance of which is, "first, stating the very great "consequence of the American Commerce to these Kingdoms, and how it had been injured by the operations of "Parliament; secondly, soliciting redress from them, as "the hereditary guardians of the Nation; and, lastly, praying the petitioners may be heard by counsel at the bar of "the House previous to their Lordships' having any Conference with the House of Commons on that subject."

This Petition, after being read three times, was unanimously approved of; it was ordered that it should be presented this day, as soon as the House of Lords should sit.

February 8, 1775.

There was a very respectable meeting of the Merchants, Traders, and others, concerned in American Commerce, at the King's Arms Tavern, Cornhill, yesterday evening, at five o'clock, agreeable to publick notice, "on very special affairs."

Mr. Lane took the Chair at half an hour after six o'clock, and then acquainted the meeting that the purpose of their being called together, was to report to them the progress and fate of their Petition to the House of Lords, for the further particulars of which he referred to Mr. Barclay, one of the Committee.

Mr. Barclay accordingly rose and stated the following particulars relative to the progress of the Petition since it had been agreed upon: On Tuesday, he said, it was given by the Committee to the Marquis of Rockingham, who promised to present it as soon as convenient, and further politely assured them he would otherwise give it all the assistance in his power. Accordingly, as soon as the Lords returned from the conference in the Painted Chamber to the House of Lords, his Lordship got up and was going to present the American along with the West Indian Petition, when Lord Dartmouth was adjudged by the House to be up before, consequently was heard first. Lord Dartmouth's motion being for the Lords "to agree with the Commons "in an Address to his Majesty to enforce due obedience, "&c., from the Americans," gave rise in a debate which lasted till between two and three o'clock in the morning, during which time Lord Rockingham read the prayer of the Petition, and frequently urged the necessity of their Lordships being informed in respect to the contents of it, previous to their deciding the present motion. He was, however, disregarded, and it was carried in favour of Lord Dartmouth's motion, 104 for it, against it 29. The Petition being by this majority in effect nullified, (the prayer of it being to beg the Lords would hear them at their bar by counsel, before they would agree with the Commons,) his Lordship moved for the Petition's lying on the table, as a memorial of their proceedings; and at the same time urged, in very manly and spirited terms, the unconstitutional proceedings of that House, in hurrying on so important a measure, and so warmly supported by so respectable a body as the Merchants trading to America, in such a sudden and surreptitious manner. Mr. Barclay likewise observed, that Lord Rockingham was warmly seconded by his Grace the Duke of Richmond, and Lord Camden; but that, notwithstanding such able solicitors, during the time of the reading of the Petition, most of the noble Lords were in clusters up and down the House, talking on indifferent matters.

Mr. Wooldridge supported this account given by Mr. Barclay, and observed on the fate of their Petition with great manliness, temper, and good sense.

These facts being stated to the general meeting, Mr. Sharpe moved "that the Thanks of the meeting be given to such of the Right Honourable and Honourable Members in both Houses, who supported their Petition." On this a trifling debate ensued, about its being in order, when at length it was agreed to, with the following amendment: "as well as to the Right Honourable the Earl of Chatham, for his polite message to the Committee."

Mr. Wooldridge then proposed that a Petition may be presented to the King; on which a long debate took place, rather about the mode of doing it than a positive objection to it.

Mr. Lee, in this debate, distinguished himself very much, by showing that though the Address was agreed on by both Lords and Commons, it was no Act of Parliament, but the advice of Parliament, which his Majesty's subjects at large had a right to give as well as they, and which may be done both as an act of duty and decency.

About nine o'clock, after the question had undergone a very able and spirited discussion, it was put, and carried unanimously. It was then agreed that the Committee should prepare a draught of the same by Wednesday next, to be then referred to a general meeting, after which they adjourned to that day,

THE MERCHANTS, TRADERS, AND MANUFACTURERS, OF BIRMINGHAM, CONCERNED IN THE TRADE TO AMERICA, TO MR. EDMUND BURKE.

Birmingham, February 8, 1775.

SIR: The Merchants and Manufacturers who have had a principal share of the American Trade from this Town and neighbourhood, beg your acceptance through our hands of their warmest acknowledgments for your liberal support of our Petition to the Honourable House of Commons, wherein are stated the evils we already feel, and the greater we have yet to apprehend, from a continued stagnation of so important a branch of our Commerce as that with North America.

At the same time we also unite in expressing our particular thanks for the motion you was pleased to make for an inquiry into the manner of both the late Petitions from the Town of Birmingham having been obtained, an inquiry which could scarcely have failed to give some useful intelligence, and to have fully justified our application to Parliament at so critical a juncture.

We cannot wonder, sir, that defamation should have made its appearance on such an occasion as this, which is the notorious evidence of a weak cause, and whose mischiefs, we are persuaded, will be as transient as its efforts have been intemperate.

We only take the liberty, therefore, of adding our sincere wishes, that you may long fill your distinguished place in the British Senate; and that your persevering endeavours to preserve the rights of the subject, to maintain the prosperity of our Commerce, and to secure the tranquillity of this extensive Empire, may meet with a success adequate to the patriotick zeal with which they are animated. Being, with the greatest regard, sir, your much obliged and most obedient servants,

WESTMORELAND COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting held for Westmoreland County, February 8, 1775,

Ordered, That every itinerant or casual Vender of Goods, who shall be found selling Goods in this County, be obliged to produce proof to the Committee, that the said Goods were imported into North America before the first day of February, 1775, according to the directions of the Continental Congress.

JAMES DAVENPORT, Clerk.

DOCTOR JOHN CONNOLLY TO COLONEL GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Winchester, Virginia, February 9, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I was this far determined to proceed to Williamsburg, to lay before his Excellency some matters which concerned the interest of this Government, and the frontiers in particular; but finding that my immediate return to Pittsburgh was indispensably necessary, I have despatched my servant express to my Lord, by whom I now write you.

As his Lordship, in the late Treaty with the Indians, acquainted them that he would, by a preparative message, let them know at what time it would suit him to meet the Chiefs in the Spring at Pittsburgh, to settle every minute matter; and the distracted affairs of Government will now (I fear) put it out of his power to attend personally, I have requested that his Excellency would let me know how I should deport myself towards the Indians, and in what manner I am to act with the prisoners, Mingoes, now in my custody, as they begin to think their Nation rather more severely dealt with than the Shauanese; and without some proper measures are pursued, these troublesome people may again disturb our settlements. If I have proper orders how to proceed, every thing may be extremely well adjusted, and I think much to the honour of Government.

I have desired my man to leave this letter in the office at Fredericksburg, to be conveyed to you as expeditiously as possible, and I hope I shall be favoured with an answer and your opinion by return express.

I have transmitted a copy of the Treaty to his Excellency, and should have sent you one also, only as I have desired the Journal of the expedition to be printed, including the whole, I deemed it unnecessary.

I am, dear sir, your most obedient servant,

JNO. CONNOLLY.

BRENTWOOD (NEW-HAMPSHIRE) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Committee of Correspondence in Brentwood, February 9, 1775,

Voted Doctor THOMAS PEABODY, Chairman,

Voted Mr. WILLIAM KEOUS, Clerk.

Voted, To abide by the advice of the Continental Congress, and to use our endeavours that others shall comply with the same.

Voted, That the thanks of this Committee be given to the Grand American Congress, and in particular to the truly patriotick Members of this Province.

Voted, That if any Pedlars, Hawkers, or Petty-Chapmen, shall offer for sale any sort of Merchandise whatsoever, that we will use the utmost of our endeavours that they be dealt with according to law; and if any person or persons shall trade with, or otherwise encourage such Pedlars, by entertaining them, such person or persons shall be deemed and treated as enemies to this country.

Voted, If any Merchant, Trader, or other person within our limits, shall take advantage of the present distressed circumstances of America, and by an avaricious thirst after gain, shall raise the price of any commodities whatever beyond their usual reasonable prices, or use their influence, by words or actions, to disconcert the measures advised to by the Grand Continental Congress, when made to appear to this Committee, or the major part of them, shall have their names published in the New-Hampshire Gazette, that they may be publickly known, and treated as enemies to this country. By order of the Committee,

THOMAS PEABODY, Chairman,
WILLIAM KEOUS, Clerk.

PORTSMOUTH (NEW-HAMPSHIRE) COMMITTEE.

The Committee for carrying the Association recommended by the Continental Congress, into execution, have taken under their serious consideration the practice of Gaming, more especially that at Cards and Billiards, which there is great reason to think still prevails in this Town; they therefore do earnestly recommend it to all those who furnish the accommodations for these purposes, to discontinue their unjustifiable proceedings at this time, when all the Colonies are involved in deep distress and danger; otherwise they may depend upon seeing their names in the publick Papers, as recommended in the Association.

The Committee do likewise recommend it to the Merchants and Traders in this Town, who are dealing in European Goods, that they do not take any advantage of the times, by raising the price of Goods, lest they be found violating the Grand American Association, and of course deemed and treated as inimical to the glorious cause, so zealously espoused by every true friend to the just rights of mankind.

H. WENTWORTH, Chairman.

Portsmouth, February 10, 1775.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LONDON TO A GENTLEMAN IN VIRGINIA, DATED FEBRUARY 10, 1775.

The die is now thrown: the two Houses of Parliament have declared the Massachusetts in rebellion, and the rest of the Provinces abetting them, which is tantamount to declaring them too Rebels. It becomes every American now to look firmly forward; submission and chains, or resistance and liberty; this is the alternative. If the former be most eligible, it cannot be too soon; we cannot too soon cover our shame and silence, and compose our minds to the inexorable yoke. If the latter, with its worst consequences, labour, endurance, and even death, should, to free minds, be preferable, it becomes you most seriously and deeply to consider of, and provide the means of seconding the glorious resolution.

To contend with a mighty state, with all its lifted terrors and united powers, and for a prize so precious, the world never saw a contest more important. The very contemplation of it elevates and nerves the mind. But let your means be wisely prepared, and well husbanded; they will grow every hour more strong. The powerful opposition in this country; its Commerce and Revenue shocked; its Taxes augmented; its Merchants alarmed, and its Manufacturers starving; France and Spain watching for a favourable moment to strike, if your people have calm courage enough for a protractive defensive war, with the hardships of an interdicted commerce with the rest of the world, their success is sure. There is nothing upon earth more sure than that one year's determined resistance must reduce this country to any terms. On the contrary, from the declarations which have been made in both Houses of Parliament, the consequences of submission will be the execution of all those who have stood forth for the people, and a confiscation of their estates; a general disarming law; taxes to reimburse Great Britain her expenses; the abridgment of all chartered rights; and the degradation of Assemblies, so as to prevent them from malting any stand for the people, while they are an instrument of their oppression, in carrying the edicts of Ministers into execution.

Were the non-export of Grain from America only now in force, this country would be in a state of famine and insurrection in six weeks. In my opinion one year's faithful adherence to that resolution must compel the King's Ministers to do justice. the utmost vigilance should be used to keep the Non-Export and Import Agreement inviolated.

Lord Mansfield, who is the author and instigator of taxing America, has declared in the House of Lords, that Parliament has also a right to tax Ireland. This you may depend upon.

Remember the danger of hesitation and inactivity on one side, while on the other the sword is drawn, and the scabbard thrown away.

The Petition from the General Congress was sent to the House, undistinguished, among a mass of other papers; and, as far as I can understand, not even read. For God's sake exert that vigour; fortitude, firmness, vigilance, and activity which the times call for, and to which we must owe the preservation of our inestimable rights.

It is current here, that orders are sent from hence to seize upon particular persons. A prudent caution, therefore, is necessary; for, in fact, we are in a state of warfare,

EXTRACT OF A SECOND LETTER FROM THE SAME GENTLEMAN.

You will see by Lord North's Address to his Majesty, agreed to by both Houses of Parliament, what a disposition there is here to do us justice. Generals Howe, Clinton, and Burgoyne, are appointed to go out, and with them six thousand Troops. You see, sir, that the question is now brought to the last issue, in which prudence and firmness must decide our fate. Be you prepared to prevent any attempt by force, or otherwise, to defeat your non-import and non-export plans from having their full effect on this country, and it is most certain that it cannot hold out one year. If the united wisdom of America, in Congress, should conclude her able to resist, by the commercial struggle longer than one year, her victory is certain.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LONDON, DATED FEBRUARY 10, 1775.

MY DEAR FRIEND: I have waited in great hopes I could find something to write to encourage you; but, to my great grief, worse and worse: it is impossible to describe the alarming situation of our affairs. While the debate was in Parliament I still had some small hopes, but this morning, at two o'clock, the death warrant was passed, and the Colonies declared Rebels. The Petitions and all attempts have failed. the efforts of Manchester, Rockingham, Richmond, and all the thirty-two Lords, could not prevent the fatal infatuation from taking place. An Address to the King has passed both Houses, to give the King power to call you Rebels, and to proceed against you on the late Acts, and direct to put them in force against the Congress, and to support the King against the Colonies, with their lives and fortunes. Nothing on earth can equal the consternation of all who have heard of it, and in their usual way now begin to see, when too late, the bad effects of their silence. The worthy Doctor Fothergill, Mr. Barclay, and Rachael Wilson have written to the King; but no answer, Two worthy women of the Friends have desired to speak to the King; but he will not see them. Oh! that the Lords would turn their hearts! But now you are to be left to your own prudence; your own wisdom will tell you no longer to depend on England to help you. I had twenty gentlemen this day called on me, and all say, pray write to your friends to declare those Rebels who will not fight for their country; for there is gone down to Sheerness seventy-eight thousand Guns and Bayonets, to be sent to America to be put into the hands of the Negroes, the Roman Catholics, and the Canadians; and all the wicked means on earth used to subdue the Colonies. I don't write this to alarm you, but you must not any longer be deceived. Orders have now gone out to take up Mr. Hancock, Adams, Williams, Otis, and six of the head men in Boston. I have now a copy of the proceedings before me. My heart aches for Mr. Hancock. Send off expresses immediately that they intend to seize his estate, and have his fine house for General  They have ordered five commanding officers, General Howe, General Burgoyne, General Clinton, General M'Kay, and General Drogheda, from Ireland, for the Dragoons, or Horse. A troop of Light Horse is now actually embarking, and will land before this comes to hand. - You'll see by the newspapers, and I know it to be so; I saw the Generals, and I know of sending the fifteen hundred chests of Arms, part of which are for New-York, and to be distributed among such of the inhabitants who are willing to take up Arms against you. A Proclamation is to be given out, that it is only the four Governments of New England; but depend upon it all the Colonies are to be treated in the same manner. General Burgoyne says that he will not let New-York know his intentions, but dance and sing with the ladies, and coax the inhabitants to submit by giving money and protection to those who will fight for the King against the country. Warn your people of their danger; put your Militia in good order; call the Delegates together, who will all be safe at Philadelphia. Act wisely, and if possible save Old England. Thirty-two Lords and Dukes, the richest and best men in the Kingdom, are your friends, and of opinion that America must save England.

Tell the Printers immediately to advertise for young men to go to Boston and bring Hancock and his brave men away; and if Gage refuses, seize him. Such a step as this will alarm England, and it is what they all wish you would do, and expect it. I pray you mind what I say: a Bill of Attainder is to be passed against them; the King is determined to make you submit; - the People are determined you shall not; the People are determined to break the Bank, and it will break before the first of April; so only hold out and exercise your men; watch your enemies, and all will be done for you. Let no head man be taken; take care of your Delegates; encourage your Committee to do their duty. It is hard for men to stand forward for their country, and then to be destroyed. For shame! Let it never be said in the House of Lords, that New-York will stand neuter. The shameless letters have disgraced the City; but as there are only a few rogues, you have not much to fear from them. Shame and cowardice will stop them, and the goodness of the cause make you act like men. Arm yourselves, and be ready at all times, for well I know that it will prevent bloodshed; but if you sit tamely and silent, you will not only be cut off, but despised by all good men. What a pleasure it is to see England roused. What a different temper has this week produced. Every day nothing is talked of but mobs; they say what I dare not write; guess what alterations since Captains Lawrence and Falconer sailed; indeed, the people are not the same. Since yesterday morning thousands from the country are coming up, and letters sent down to get Birmingham to rise and come up to stop the Address, but too late; and now you must trust to your own prudence and the God of your salvation to save you. With most tender love to all, and more particularly to those who are near and dear to you, remember me with affection. Great pain taken to find out who writes to America, and inform them of the proceedings of the Court. With the greatest confidence, I am your old faithful friend.

LETTER FROM LONDON TO A GENTLEMAN OF NEW-YORK.
London, February 10, 1775.

SIR: As it is too natural for us to believe what we wish, I fear my descriptions of the state of affairs relative to America have been hitherto exhibited to you in colours too tender. I must now acquaint you that all hopes of conciliation between England and her Colonies are entirely at an end; both the King and the Parliament have announced your destruction. Fleets and Armies are preparing with the utmost diligence for that purpose. Fifteen hundred chests of Arms have been shipped within these few days; enough, I am credibly informed, for seventy-eight thousand men. The Army that is destined against you will be commanded by Generals Howe, Burgoyne, and Clinton; the number of Troops they are to command is supposed to be fourteen thousand, so that it is supposed the surplus of the above quantity of Arms is designed for those among you who may be base enough to desert their country's cause; be then convinced you have now nothing to trust to but the God of Battles. In the mean time, let me assure you, that the people of Old England, I mean the Merchants and Manufacturers, and indeed the main body of the whole Nation, are most heartily with you. Besides the City of London, and others, the principal Corporations of England, you have also the wealthiest and most esteemed of our Nobility warmly in your Favour, no less than thirty-four in number.

After this, nothing need be said to urge you to a sense of your long and unmerited sufferings, and rouse your courage to a degree worthy the name of Americans, nobly fighting in defence of their wives, their children, their properties, their most sacred religion and liberty, the glorious birthright of man. For Heaven sake, then, suffer no delay, but to your tents; Oh! Israel, your appeal my dear sir, is now to God only. Let firmness and unanimity preside among you; lift up the standard of the Holy One, who led your fathers into that new world.

The near connection I have with the Court, and the great opinion I have of you, and the knowledge I have of those facts, is a good reason for this letter. Every day brings new troubles, and all possible care will be taken to deceive or frighten you; but fight like men, and I will warrant you to come off with victory. I refer you to Lord Chatham's Speech. In the House of Lords of yesterday, he has pledged himself to that House, that America comes off with victory; and the first drop of blood spilt in America, will seal the destruction of Old England, and that the Government will be transferred to New England; a glorious prophecy! The doors of both the Houses of Parliament are shut, for fear that the arguments in your favour should be sent to you.

By the best authority I send you this; we all look up to America for our future blessing. Take the privilege of the Post Office into your own hands before it be seized. Some horrid dark designs are in agitation against New-York. The Standard is set tip in many City Clubs. Your success is most ardently prayed for by all the good people in this Kingdom. Adieu.

Williamsburg, Virginia, February 10, 1775.

A private letter from the frontiers, gives an account that the Cornstalk, King of the Shawanese Nation, a few days ago arrived at the mouth of the Great Kenhawa, where Captain Russell is stationed, and delivered to him several of the old white prisoners, and a number of horses, agreeable to Lord Dunmore's desire. The Cornstalk informs that every thing at present is peaceable and quiet in the quarter he left; but that he would not undertake to say how long that pacifick disposition would last, as the Pennsylvanians have sent some of their traders there, who were endeavouring all they could to persuade them that Lord Dunmore's view in bringing the hostages to Williamsburg, was to deceive them, and that, whenever it was in his power to raise another Army, he would immediately take every advantage in order to cut them off. This kind of reasoning, however specious, had no material effect, it seems, as the Indians throughout the different Tribes entertain the highest opinion of his Lordship's conduct with respect to his late manœuvres on the frontiers.

This morning we received information from a gentleman at the Ohio, that the Mingo Indians have killed three of the Delawares, which gives much concern to the neighbouring white people. The Pennsylvanians, it appears, are greatly blamed, as they use every artifice in their power to create discontent and jealousy among the Indians. Our correspondent says they took one of our Constables, and immediately confined him in one of their Jails; upon which two Companies of the Virginians assembled, being determined to rescue him, which they did, together with some others which they served in the same manner, and also pulled down the Jail. The Mingoes, we are likewise informed, are very desirous to see Lord Danmore, in order fully to comply with his terms, and to make a lasting peace with him.

Bedford, Pennsylvania, February 10, 1775.

Publick notice is hereby given, that for the encouragement of Industry and Manufactures, and agreeable to the recommendation of the General Congress, and of the Provincial Convention, that a Premium of Five Pounds will be paid by the Committee of Correspondence for the County of Bedford, to the person who shall erect the first Fulling Mill in the said County.

Three Pounds to the person in the said County who shall make the finest and best piece of Linen Cloth.

Forty Shillings to the person who shall make the next best piece.

Twenty Shillings to the person who shall make the third best piece; each containing not less than twenty yards, of Flax of the growth of this country.

And Twenty Shillings to the Weaver, who shall weave the finest piece before the 1st of October next.

On behalf of the Committee.

ROBERT GALBRAITH.

Divers other articles are under consideration, for which premiums will be offered hereafter.

Address of the Grand Jury to his Majesty's Justices, assembled at the General Quarter Sessions of the Peace for the City and County of NEW-YORK, February 10, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: While in the faithful discharge of our duty as Grand Jurors, we hand this Honourable Court Indictments against several persons for breaches of the peace, and offences committed against the person of a reputed informer of contraband Goods.

After acknowledging his most gracious Majesty, George the Third, King of Great Britain, &c., as our only true and lawful Sovereign, and the British Constitution, as founded on the compact of its Kings with their subjects; the laws made in support of and agreeable to that Constitution, together with our oaths and the dictates of our consciences, the rules of our action.

We cannot pass by this opportunity of publicly joining the general voice of our country in bearing testimony against many oppressive Acts of Parliament passed in his present Majesty's reign, relative to his American Colonies, and which, at present, are the cause of so much trouble and uneasiness in the minds of his loyal American subjects.

Particularly against the power exercised by the Parliament, of taxing and making laws binding upon the American Colonies in all cases whatsoever; against those Acts which strike at the very foundation of British liberty, the Trial by Juries; such are those by which the powers of Admiralty and Vice Admiralty Courts are extended beyond their ancient limits; the Judges empowered to receive their Salaries and Fees from effects condemned by themselves; the Officers of his Majesty's Customs empowered to break open and enter Houses without the authority of any Civil Magistrate, founded on legal information; enormous forfeitures incurred for slight offences; vexatious informers exempted from paying damages to which they are justly liable; and oppressive security required from owners before they are allowed to defend their rights; by all which, the lives, liberty, and property of Americans are rendered insecure.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM CONNECTICUT TO MR. RIVINGTON, IN NEW-YORK, DATED FEBRUARY 10, 1775.

One day last week, a Presbyterian Minister not far distant from North-Haven, applied to a Lieutenant of the Militia to step into the market and give him the words of command, in order to his performing the manual exercise; the officer declined it, but being repeatedly pressed to a compliance, consented. The Minister declared he had practised the military exercise with an intention of going to Boston against the King's Troops, if there should be occasion for his service. Having taken post in the market, he shouldered, faced, marched, and performed all the motions with much exactness, to the great delight of a turbulent Hibernian, (who was about eighteen years ago sold in this part of the world,) and on all occasions, insults the name and Government of our most gracious Sovereign, and bids defiance to the laws. This Republican thanked the Divine for his fine performance, applauded his gallant resolution, and conducted him to enjoy a mug of flip at his own house; a gentleman passing by, whilst the puritan was exhibiting, a-la-militaire, asked him if he had quite forsaken his spiritual, for a Soldier's profession, on which the crowd menaced him with the discipline of tar and feathers, but the former secured himself by a precipitate retreat.

LETTER FROM A GENTLEMAN IN MASSACHUSETTS TO HIS FRIEND IN LONDON, DATED FEBRUARY 10, 1775.

The account you give of an overbearing influence in the House, and the want of feeling and spirit out of it, is of a very serious and melancholy kind; Americans are very sensible that such accounts are true, and expect to fall a sacrifice to the knavery in the Cabinet, and the folly out of it, unless preserved by their own virtue, their frugality, or valour, or both.

Shorter Parliaments; a more equitable representation; the abolition of taxes and the payment of the debt; the reduction of placemen and pensioners; the annihilation of bribery and corruption; the reformation of luxury, dissipation, and effeminacy; the disbanding the Army, are all necessary to restore your country to a free Government, and to a safe, honourable, and happy life. But is this practicable; is there a resource in human nature for hope of such a miraculous change? Is there one example of it in history, or experience? A Nation is easily corrupted, but not so easily reformed. The present reign may be that of Augustus, but upon my honour I expect twelve Cæsars will succeed it. What is to become of America if they should? Ought she not to think in time, and prepare for the worst?

I have a great curiosity to know how the proceedings of the Congress at Philadelphia are relished in London, at St. James's and St. Stephen's. I think it may be seen from them that America is not insensible of her danger, nor inattentive to the means of her safety.

I am also very anxious to know what the friends of liberty think of the hasty dissolution of Parliament; for my own part, I have ever thought this the most insidious and artful step of the present reign; it seems to betray more contempt of the people, at the same time that it betrays a dread of some remaining sense and integrity among them, than any thing else which has been done. You will allow, sir, that the broil with America is a very great national concern. At a time when America was assembled to concert measures relative to this great concern, a new Parliament is called of a sudden before the people could hear from America, as if the Minister disdained or dreaded that the Nation should have an opportunity to judge of the state of America, and choose or instruct their Representatives accordingly; as if the Minister scorned or feared that the people - the electors, should have opportunity to hear and converse together upon facts before they chose their Members.

The design of the Ministry seems to have been likewise to give the friends of liberty the go-by in England as well as in America; determined to pursue their system they would not suffer the friends of the Constitution to converse or correspond together before the day of election, lest the constituents should bind the candidates to act an honest part. It is not easy to convey to you, sir, an adequate idea of the state of this Province. It is now at last true that we have no Government - Legislative, Executive, or Judicial. The people, determined never to submit to the Act for destroying their Charter, so dearly purchased, preserved, and defended by the toil, treasure, and blood of their ancestors, are everywhere devoting themselves to Arms. Our Duke of Alva is shut up, with his Troops, and his forlorn Mandamus Counsellors, in Boston. What the Ministry will do is uncertain; all the British Fleet and Army cannot change men's opinions; they cannot make a Juror serve, nor a Representative. An attempt to cram a form of Government down the throats of a people, to impose a Constitution upon an united and determined people, by force, is not within the omnipotence of an English Parliament.

If they attempt a campaign like that of Kirk; if they send the sword and fire to ravage in this country, they will find in New England an hundred thousand descendants of the Puritans in the Charles's and James's days, who have not yet lost entirely the spirit of Englishmen under the English Commonwealth.

Our enemies give out that persons who have distinguished themselves here in opposition to the power of Parliament, will be arrested and sent to some County in England to be tried for treason; if this should be attempted it will produce a resistance and reprisals, and a flame through all America, such as eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither hath it entered into the head of the Minister or his minions to conceive.

I beg the continuance of your favours, and am, with the warmest wishes, for the safety of both countries.

HOLLIS (NEW-HAMPSHIRE) TOWN MEETING.

At a legal Meeting of the Inhabitants of the Town of Hollis, in the County of Hillsborough, in the Province of New-Hampshire, held on the 7th day of November, 1774, the following Resolves were unanimously passed, viz:

That we will at all times endeavour to defend our liberties and privileges, both civil and sacred, even at the risk of our lives and fortunes; and will not only disapprove of, but wholly despise all such persons as we have just and solid reason to think, even wish us in any measure deprived of the same.

That we do abhor, detest, and abominate all oppressive acts of persons in power, whether Magistrate or Officer, whereby the poor are distressed and unlawfully robbed of their properties in any manner whatever, and will always deem them not only inimical to individuals, but to the general good of mankind, and will always endeavour to treat them in such a manner as they justly deserve.

That we will at all times endeavour to assist the Civil Magistrate in the due execution of his office, in support of our laws, at the risk of our lives, and will always shew our dislike and disapprobation to all unlawful proceedings of unjust men, congregating together (as they pretend) to maintain their liberties, and very outrageously trample under foot the very law of liberty, and madly destroy that jewel which is so exceeding precious to our American land.

That all persons setting up themselves to adjudge and determine causes between party and party, only by the authority of a mobbish company of disorderly men, unlawfully assembled to commit riots and unlawful actions, are bold contumacious despisers of law, and their proceedings directly tend to the utter subversion of all regularity, good order, peace, and harmony among his Majesty's good subjects in this land.

SAMUEL CUMMINS, Town Clerk.

In Committee, Philadelphia, February, 1775.

Ordered, That the following Letter from Bedford County, in this Province, be published.

Bedford County, February 11, 1775.

SIR: We were yesterday favoured with your letter enclosing the Resolves of the Provincial Convention, and we have the pleasure to inform you that we not only unanimously and heartily accede to them ourselves, but (it being the time of the Appeal) we had the opportunity of communicating them to a large number of our constituents, who to a man signify their warm approbation of them. For our own parts we consider such prudent and patriotick Resolves (whatever may be the issue of our present unhappy dispute with the parent state) to be the most effectual means of promoting industry, economy, wealth, peace, freedom, and happiness amongst a loyal people, who, consistent with true loyalty are determined to hand down that liberty to their posterity which they have enjoyed at the expense of so much of the blood of their British forefathers.

It is with peculiar satisfaction, we assure you, that the people in this County show the greatest unanimity and even anxiety in complying, as far as in them lies, with the Resolves of the Congress and of the Convention. For that purpose we have subscribed a sum of money, and advertised through the County that certain premiums will be given to the persons who shall excel in such branches of Manufactures as we have recommended them to apply themselves to, being such as we, from our local and other circumstances, could hope to undertake with any prospect of success, and such as will be of most general use, and most conducive to promote the great end we all have in view.

It was impossible for us, by reason of our distance, to attend the Convention on such short notice as we had; but you will be informed by this time that the three first named of us were, amongst others, deputed for that purpose; and they, in the capacity of Deputies for this County as well as all of us in that of the Committee of Correspondence for the same, take this method to testify our thankful acceptance of every one of the Resolves of the Convention, and that we consider ourselves as much bound by them, to every intent and purpose, as if we had been present when they were entered into.

The Committee of Correspondence.

To Joseph Read, Esquire, President of the Provincial Congress of Pennsylvania.

Ulster County, New-York, February 11, 1775.

Since the issuing the Governour's Proclamation for calling the Assembly, the leaders of the Republican faction in this Province have exerted themselves in exciting their despicable tools in this County to a variety of the most flagitious acts of licentiousness and violence - to effect which a thousand falsehoods and misrepresentations have been artfully contrived and industriously circulated among the ignorant, credulous multitude; circular letters have been written to the zealous party men in the different Precincts, animating them to erect Liberty Poles, and choose Committees of Inspection for enforcing obedience to the Resolutions of the Congress; individuals have been threatened with tarring and feathering merely for reading and communicating to their well meaning neighbours such publications as tend to enlighten their uninformed mind on the present subjects of universal animadversion. These measures the lovers of peace, order, and Government beheld with the deepest concern, and for a long time combated with reason and expostulatory arguments, by which many have been convinced of their errors and reclaimed from their wild and frantick pursuits. The abettors of faction, enraged at the increasing defection of their followers, endeavoured to re-animate the declining violence of their party by fresh propagations of falsehoods and misrepresentations; and among many scandalous and seditious insinuations, industriously disseminated the treasonable and malignant doctrine that his Majesty, in passing the Quebec Act, had established the Romish Religion in America, and thereby broken his Coronation oath, whereby the people were discharged from their allegiance, and were justifiable in associating to make proper provision for their common safety. This daring attempt to alienate the affections of the people from their Sovereign, and to excite them to an open subversion of all lawful authority, the friends of Government viewed with indignation, and conceived it high time to bear publick testimony against; accordingly a very respectable number of his Majesty's loyal subjects met at the house of Mr. John Graham, at Shawangunk, and erected a Royal Standard, on a mast seventy-five feet high, with the following inscription on it:

"In testimony of our unshaken loyalty and incorruptible fidelity to the best of Kings; of our inviolable affection and attachment to our parent state, and the British Constitution; of our abhorrence of, and aversion to a Republican Government; of our detestation of all treasonable associations, unlawful combinations, seditious meetings, tumultuous assemblies, and execrable mobs; and of all measures that have a tendency to alienate the affections of the people from their rightful Sovereign, or lessen their regard for our most excellent Constitution: and to make known to all men that we are ready, when properly called upon, at the hazard of our lives and of every thing dear to us, to defend the King, support the Magistrates in the execution of the laws, and maintain the just rights and constitutional liberties of freeborn Englishmen, this Standard, by the name of the King's Standard, was erected by a number of his Majesty's loyal and faithful subjects, in Ulster County, on the 10th day of February, in the fifteenth year of the reign of our most excellent Sovereign George the Third, whom God long preserve."

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM KENT COUNTY ON DELAWARE.

With regard to political matters the people here begin to change their sentiments, concluding, in their more deliberate moments, that such violent measures as have been pursued will not heal, but, on the contrary, widen the breach; many who have kept their sentiments to themselves, begin to whisper their dislike of the proceedings gone into. I believe the Friendly Address, and other performances of the moderate stamp, have done much good in opening the blind eyes of many, and when people come to taste feelingly of the hardships which a suspension of trade will occasion, they will change sides; nay, I believe if the Khrg's Standard was now erected, nine out of ten would repair to it.

the people have not, till lately, considered the consequences of a civil war with so brave and powerful a Nation as that of Great Britain; the heat and rage of party had not given them leisure to reflect on the devastation and havoc it would occasion; and if our rashness should yet bring one on, quere, if such reflections as these would not arise with many? I have seen this land blessed with peace and plenty, under the happiest form of Government in the world; every branch of business flourishing; men secured in their liberty and property; a trade open to foreign parts of the world, which occasioned a ready sale for our produce. I have been in possession of a wife and many children, some of whom are numbered among the slain, and others far separated; I have lived in a happy, harmonious neighbourhood, where the violence of party and the appellations of Whig and Tory were unknown. Who could think that a three Penny duty on Tea could have occasioned all these difficulties, when on Ty a refusal to purchase the article would have kept us free.

Committee Chamber, Philadelphia, February 18, 1775.

The following Letter, in answer to one wrote by the Committee of Correspondence, to the Committee of Kent County, enclosing a Newspaper published by James Hum-Threys, Junior, dated February 12, was read and ordered to be published.

J.B. SMITH, Secretary.

Dover, Delaware, February 15, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We are this morning informed with yours of the 13th instant; informing us of the purport of a piece of intelligence published in the Pennsylvania Ledger of Saturday last, said to be, "an extract of a letter from Kent County, on Delaware," very injurious to the public spirit of the inhabitants of this County. We can assure you, from the knowledge we have of the sentiments of the inhabitants, that they have not in the least changed their opinions with respect to the important subject of dispute between the mother country and the British Colonies in America, and are well disposed to make a virtuous stand against tyranny and oppression, from whatever quarter they may threaten us, as the inhabitants of any other of these Colonies; and the extract is a base calumny, replete with falsehood, and only designed by the wicked insidious author to cause divisions, and excite mutual suspicions and distrust between the minds of Americans, weaken our hands, and prepare the way for an easy victory to the enemies of America.

We would, therefore, request that you - of your Committee to call upon the Printer of the above-Paper, to discover, if he can, the author of this piece of slander; and that this letter may be published in the Philadelphia Newspapers. -

We solicit, gentlemen, with the warmest acknowledgments to you for your vigilance and endeavours to guard and preserve the rights and privileges of America in general.

Signed by order of a full Committee of Kent County.
J. BARKER, Clerk.

To the Committee of Correspondence for the City and Liberties of Philadelphia.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM PHILADELPHIA, TO SIR, KINGTON, NEW-YORK, DATED FEBRUARY 16, 1775.

I find the people in general here much cooler than I expected, though there is a party more violent than I could have formed any idea of. The day after my arrival there were some high debates at the Coffee House; not being there at the beginning, I made some inquiry into the merits of this dispute: I found the Committee had been to demand of a Printer the name of the person who handed him some letter he had published: This letter gave great offence, not because it reflected upon any man or body of men, but because it contained some moderate sentiments. I thought this demand savoured a little of a Popish inquisition, and was still more surprised to find, that the persons who had usurped this novel right of demanding authors, were the Committee, who had been chosen guardians of our liberties, but had, instead of preserving them, introduced the worst species of tyranny, and the most dangerous kind of slavery that any country had ever experienced; however the matter was not so bad as was at first apprehended, for the Committee-men insisted with great warmth, that they did not demand, they only asked. This dispute would certainly have terminated in a general battle, but the Committee found a great majority against them; there was scarce one in five who justified them.

When the dispute ended, I went to dine with our friend  who you know was lately a high Whig; I informed him of what passed at the Coffee House; he was equally with me irritated at so flagrant an instance of despotism; I did not know the names of these Committee-men, but by the description I gave him, he knew them; he told me one of them, an avowed Republican, had lately met with some disappointments, that he could not much wonder at the part he took; another had acquired his fortune partly by an illicit trade last war, and partly by taking an advantage of a Resolve of the people here, not to deal with the Rhode-Islanders, after they had broke through the Non-Importation Agreement, by supplying them with Goods, when no other Merchant would do it; another was an illiterate Merchant; another too insignificant to notice, &c.

My friend observed that though he had heretofore been active in the measures of the Committee, yet their conduct now appeared to him so inconsistent and absurd, that he was determined never more to countenance them; he said he was well convinced they aimed at a general revolution, and were promoting every measure to overthrow our excellent Constitution; drunk with the power they had usurped, and elated with their own importance, they were determined on nothing so much as to increase discord and confusion. By these they had risen to power from these they derived their whole consequence; they know full well, if the present troubles should subside, they must again sink into their native obscurity; they are therefore willing to keep up the ball as long as possible, and nothing would give them more real concern than a speedy accommodation and reconciliation between the parent state and the Colonies; they have nothing to lose in a general havoc, but all to gain from a scramble. I have great satisfaction from various information in finding that almost all the violent sons of licentiousness are of a particular sect; there are some others weak, deluded and flattered.

I have been assured that there are many of this Committee who could not get credit for twenty Shillings, and on inquiring how it happened that the inhabitants should choose such men, I was told that not one-sixth of the people ever voted at all - that in the City and Suburbs there were not six hundred votes for the sixty Committee-men, so that you see each one had only to procure ten voters; a mighty easy way this of getting into power.

Another thing I was told, which I must inform you of, for I know you are a lover of the laws and good order, and that you are fond of collecting curious instances of this kind. It seems a large quantity of Goods had arrived after the first of December; the Committee resolved that these Goods must be opened, agreeable to the Resolves of the Congress. It was looked upon as very hard that those Goods, which had been ordered near a year ago (which was the case with some) should be thus opened and exposed to sale; it was represented to the Committee as an unreasonable hardship, and they were requested to revoke their decree, but they were obdurate, and would not comply; not because the request was unreasonable, but because they had resolved. Their resolves were unalterable, as the laws of the Medes and Persians. The Goods were accordingly opened and sold, and the Merchants obtained them without any inconvenience, by paying one per cent. to the vendue-master. The Merchants requested they might have the liberty to choose their own vendue-master; this liberty was denied them; they requested they might have the liberty to agree with the vendue-master, what commission he should have; this liberty too was denied them. The Merchants, convinced they had tyrants to deal with, even sold their Goods in the mode the Committee in their wisdom and justice had seen meet to order and direct, and none attempted to bid on them; but as soon as ever the Goods, belonging to individuals on the Committee were sold, and the favourites were released from their clutches, out pops a handbill by order of the Committee, signed by the Secretary, requesting the Shopkeepers and others to attend and purchase. At the call of the Committee, a number of their adherents appeared, and bought the Goods, by some of which they got five per cent. to carry on the rebellion at Boston. None but saints were to be spared; - if any of these had Goods none dared to bid - indeed none but the saints did bid, and they took care not to bid on one another.

I shall collect every thing in the political way, and take notice of every remarkable occurrence; and when I return shall lay before the publick every well attested circumstance.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM PHILADELPHIA TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK, DATED FEBRUARY 20, 1775.

We are astonished that your Sons of Liberty, and Committee suffer that base fellow Rivington to continue publishing his vile calumnies on every Province in America: I am sure was he in this place he would have been called on long ago to give up the authors of so much falsehood as is contained weekly in his Paper. We had an attempt of the same kind by a Printer in this place, who has just set up a Paper, and last week published an extract of a letter, said to be from Kent County, on Delaware, reflecting highly on the present measures adopted by the Congress, and asserting that nine-tenths of that County were opposed to them. Our Committee sent an express to the committee of that County immediately, and requested them to let us know their true state; - they, in answer, have given us the strongest assurances that the letter is a base calumny, and that the County are universally well affected to the American cause; - they further request we would call on the Printer, and demand the author of him; this we have done; the Printer has given us the name of the person who handed him the extract, and this evening we meet to call said person before us. The Tories among us are all confounded at our proceeding, and it is thought it will be found at last that the letter was fabricated by a junto in this Town. This is strongly suspected to be the case of many publications in Rivington's Paper, said to be extracts of letters from Maryland, Philadelphia, &c. - Such villains deserve not to live among us; and perhaps it will become necessary to make examples of some of them to deter others from the like practice.

London, February 13, 1775.

At a Court of Common Council, held at Guildhall, the Town Clerk acquainted the Court that he had waited on Lord Chatham at Hayes, agreeable to their order on Friday last, with the following Resolution:

"Resolved, That the Thanks of this Court be given to "the right Honourable the Earl of Chatham, for having "offered to the House of Lords a plan for conciliating the "differences which unfortunately subsist between the "mother country and the Colonies, also to all those "Noblemen who supported the same."

His Lordship was pleased to return the following Answer, which was ordered to be entered on the City Book:

"Lord Chatham desires the favour of Mr. Town Clerk, "to offer to my Lord Mayor, the Aldermen, and Commons, in Common Council assembled, his most respectful and grateful acknowledgments for the signal honour "they have been pleased to confer on the mere discharge "of his duty, in a moment of impending calamity. Under "deep impressions of former marks of favourable construction of his conduct, during the evil hour of a dangerous foreign war, he now deems himself too fortunate, "to find his efforts for preventing the ruin and horror of "a civil war approved, honoured and strengthened by the "great corporate body of the Kingdom."

At this Court the following Resolutions were adopted:

Resolved, That the present situation of our publick affairs, in consequence of the severe proceedings against the American Colonies, is so exceedingly alarming, that it is the duty of this Court to use every possible endeavour to prevent all further oppression, and to obtain relief to so numerous and valuable a part of our fellow-subjects.

Resolved, That as a Bill is proposed to be brought into Parliament to prohibit the New England Fishery, which, if complied with, may materially injure the commercial interests of this City, and of the Kingdom in general, the Lord Mayor be requested by this Court to convene the same to consider whether it may not be the duty of this Court to petition Parliament against the said proposed Bill, the principles of which, so far as they have hitherto been declared, appearing to be repugnant both to justice and the true interest of the British Empire.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM LONDON, DATED FEBRUARY 13, 1775.

The determination of the ensuing Congress will be final and decisive. They cannot have too many lights, nor too mature deliberation to guide them. The united wisdom of our country will best judge whether any relaxation can be made in their Petition of Rights; and whether they can afford to purchase such a confirmation as my Lord Chatham's Bill proposes, by a perpetual Revenue of three hundred thousand Pounds sterling, per annum; such is the sum which he expects. I am of opinion that nothing will move the King and his Ministers but absolute submission or a successful resistance. But an offer from you of such a contribution to the relief of this country from its debt, would disarm them of their only popular argument, and therefore arrest the fatal measures by which they mean to establish arbitrary Government over us. If it will be practicable, I think it would be eligible. Our forefathers purchased their undoubted rights in Magna Charta, by the gift of a sum of money to the King; and I think we need not blush to follow so great an example.

I do believe the Ministry do not wish any such proposition, because they do not desire an accommodation; but if we must draw the sword, let us do it with as much apparent reluctance and justice on our side as possible. This will be hanging a mill-stone around the enemy's neck, which must sooner or later draw them down to destruction.

It is not expected that you will resist, at least the Ministry affect to believe so, and they assure themselves of the defection of New-York. I think it my duty to inform you that there is a report here, and it comes through Ministerial channels, that Mr. Galloway is in correspondence with the Ministry; from this they pretend to derive information of what you have not thought proper to publish. Among other things, Lord Sandwich asserted in the House of Lords, that the Congress came to a Resolution to consider of a plan of submission and conciliation, and next day ordered the Resolution to be expunged. From this he argued your intention to throw off all dependency on this country; and that when your present demands were gratified, you would frame others, till you had annihilated the authority of Parliament. You will use this information touching Mr. Galloway with that delicacy which the suspicion of so dishonourable and wicked a conduct requires, at the same time guarding against the dangerous consequences of it to the publick cause, should it be true. If I can get any further intelligence concerning him you shall have it.

Whatever measures you resolve upon, will, I am satisfied, be well weighed, and measured by your ability to execute them; for it is on a belief that you cannot hold out under your Non-Import and Non-Export Agreement, and a total stop put to your commerce by the British Navy, that our enemies build all their hopes of reducing you to a speedy and entire submission. I am fully satisfied that one year's faithful observation of your Agreements, and sacrifice of your trade, will compel the justice you demand, and establish your rights forever. It is impossible for me to believe that resources can be wanting, or spirit to search for them, when the prize is so great and important.

War is determined on; you should be prepared to meet it with success, or submit at once and be slaves.

Elizabethtown, New-Jersey, February 13, 1775.

Whereas, the inhabitants of Staten Island have manifested an unfriendly disposition towards the liberties of America, and among other things have neglected to join in the General Association proposed by the Continental Congress, and entered into by most of the Townships in America, and in no instance have acceded thereto. The Committee of Observation for this Town, taking the same into consideration, are of opinion that the inhabitants of their District ought, and by the aforesaid Association are bound, to break off all trade, commerce, dealings, and intercourse whatsoever with the inhabitants of said Island, until they shall join in the General Association aforesaid; and do Resolve that all trade, commerce, dealings, and intercourse whatsoever be suspended accordingly, which suspension is hereby notified and recommended to the inhabitants of their District, to be by them universally observed and adopted.

G. Ross, Clerk.

YORK COUNTY (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Committee of York County, at Yorktown, in Pennsylvania, the 14th day of February, 1775: Present thirty-nine Members.

The Committee took into consideration the Proceedings of the late Provincial Convention, &c.

1. Resolved unanimously, That we heartily approve of the Proceedings of that Convention.

2. The Committee apprehending, that from the Non-Importation Agreement, and the present state of publick affairs, unless great care be taken, there would, in a short time, be a scarcity of Gunpowder, which is so necessary to our Indian trade and the hunters of this Province; therefore, Resolved, That we recommend it to the several members of this Committee, that they, in their respective Townships, with the assistance of the Township Committee-men, do discourage the consuming of that article but for the most useful purposes.

3. It being represented that sundry persons in this County had formed themselves into Military Associations, and that they would discontinue them if disagreeable to this Committee; Upon consideration of which, Resolved unanimously, That we by no means would discourage those proceedings; on the contrary, we are of opinion that such Associations, if conducted with prudence, moderation, and a strict regard to good order, under the direction of men of probity and understanding, would tend much to the security of this country against the attempts of our enemies.

4. Resolved unanimously, That we recommend to the inhabitants of this County, a strict adherence to the Association of the Continental Congress, and the Directions of our late Provincial Convention; and that in case any Township Committee should meet with obstruction in carrying the same into execution, that we will, and the rest of the County ought, to assist them.

5. Resolved unanimously, That the Township Committee-men in this County ought, as soon as possible, to collect the Flour and Grain subscribed for the poor of Boston, and convert the same into cash; and that they immediately pay such cash and all other moneys subscribed, into the hands of Messrs. John Donaldson and George Irwin, who, with the direction of any ten of the Committee, are to remit the same in Bills of Exchange to the Committee of Boston, for the poor of that place.

6. Resolved unanimously, That in case the Committee of Correspondence of this Province appointed at the last Convention, shall think proper, or if a majority of the County Committee shall consider it expedient that another Provincial Convention should be held, we do appoint James Ewing, Michael Swope, James Smith, Thomas Hartley, and Henry Slegle, Esquires, and George Irwin, George Eichelberger, David Kennedy, and John Houston, or any five or more of them, as the Deputies of this County to attend such Convention, and to agree to such matters and things as may be deemed necessary for the safety and welfare of this Province, or the common cause of American-Liberty.

Extracts from the Proceedings of the said Committee,
GEORGE LEWIS LEFLER. Clerk Com.

BURLINGTON (NEW-JERSEY) COMMITTEE.

At a General Meeting of the Freeholders and other Inhabitants of the City and County of Burlington, in New- Jersey, qualified to vote for Representatives in the Legislature, held at the Court House, on Tuesday, the 14th of February, 1775:

PETER TALLMAN, Esquire, in the Chair.

The Association entered into by the General American Congress, convened at Philadelphia on the 5th of September last, was read and approved.

Resolved, That in pursuance of the eleventh article of the said Association, a Committee of Observation for this City and County be now appointed, for the purposes in that Article mentioned; and the following persons were accordingly chosen, viz: James Sterling, Colin Campbell, William Smith, and Jonathan Hough, Esquires, John Coates, Thomas Fenimore, Thomas Reynolds, Esquire, Joseph Budd, Jonathan Middleton, Joseph Borden, Esq., John Wood, William Newbold, Isaac Pearson, Esq., Randle Mitchell, William Lewis, Peter Tallman, Esq., William Potts, John Black, Joseph Read, Esq., Pete/Shires, Thomas Budd, Jun., Charles Read, Esq., John Evans, Josiah Foster, Joseph Stokes, Esquire, John Cox, Abraham Hewlings, Baldwin Wake, Esquire, Samuel Newton, Jacob Perkins, John Leek, Eli Matthis, and William Pharo.

Resolved, That the said Committee shall be and continue for one year from this time, unless the measures of the next General Congress shall make an alteration necessary.

Signed by order of the meeting,

PETER TALLMAN, Chairman.

Wethersfield, Connecticut, February 14, 1775.

This evening two of the inhabitants of a place lately known and called by the name of RIDGEFIELD, put up at a publick house in this Town, and entering into conversation boldly justified the vote of said late Town of Ridgefield, in disapproving of the doings of the Continental Congress, and proceeded far in supporting Court Doctrines of passive obedience to Parliament, &c., which being taken notice of by a number of gentlemen present, they considered it in effect as a direct breach of the Association of the said Congress, and thereupon voted, that in their opinion it was proper that these persons should be returned the way from whence they came. under safe conduct, from Town to Town, to the said place lately known by the said name of RIDGEFIELD; and that all honest and true men to this country might know and avoid them, proper persons were appointed by the meeting instantly to attend them as far as Farmington on their return; and there to acquaint the inhabitants of their behaviour, and leave them to their further transportation, as is usual, and as by law is provided, in cases of strolling ideots, lunatics, &c. A letter was accordingly wrote to the gentlemen at Farmington. representing their unhappy and desperate situation, which was signed by the principal gentlemen present, and the unhappy men, properly escorted, set off at nine o'clock, amidst the hisses, groans, &c., of a respectable concourse of people - the populace following them out of Town, beating a dead march, &c. Not the least violence was offered, but the whole was conducted with the utmost regularity, and the company dispersed, fully resolved, that as no one of those principles is supposed now to be an inhabitant of this Town, it shall be their care and attention that no such shall be hereafter tolerated within it no not for a night.

FAIRFIELD COUNTY (CONNECTICUT) RESOLUTIONS.

At a Meeting of the Delegates from the several Towns in the County of Fairfield, (except Ridgefield and Newtown.) held at the County House, on the 14th day of February, A: D. 1775:

ROBERT FAIRCHILD, Esquire, in the Chair.

We are happy to find ourselves unanimous in concurring with our constituents in fully adopting and acceding to the Association and Agreement of the Continental Congress, and are determined to enforce a due observance of the same, according to its true spirit and intent; and take this opportunity to express our grateful sense of the good services of those worthy gentlemen who were members of that body.

The Counties of Hartford and New-Haven have given us the result of their deliberations, and we are ready to concur with their sentiments and proposals with respect to the mode of trying offenders, which is in the words following, viz:

First. To avoid every appearance of precipitation or partiality in our proceedings,

Resolved, That we will vigilantly discharge our duty as Committees of Observation, and will use our utmost influence to prevent any violation of the Association in our several Districts; but if any person, contrary to our hopes and wishes, shall be accused of any wilful, breach of said Association, in any particular, we do agree that the process against him shall be carried on in an open, candid, and deliberate manner, as follows, to wit: A summons or notice in writing, signed by one of the Committee of Observation for that Town, shall be served upon him, expressing the nature and circumstances of the matter laid to his charge, and inviting him, if he see cause, to appear before the Committee of Observation in that Town in which he resides, at a certain day and place, to exculpate himself, if he is able, which day shall be at least six days after service of such summons, at which day and place the Committee shall proceed to examine such charge; and the person accused, and his accuser, shall be openly, fairly, and fully heard, with their witnesses and other proofs; and upon such hearing, the Committee will proceed deliberately and coolly to determine the question, whether the person accused hath violated said Association or not. And in case any one or more of the Committee shall be an accuser or witness, he or they shall not in that case vote in condemning or acquitting the accused; nor shall any one be condemned but open the fullest, clearest, and most convincing proof; and any person found guilty of a wilful and deliberate violation of said Association, in the calm and regular manner aforesaid, may assuredly expect that we will hold him up to publick view as an enemy to the liberties of his country.

And we also approve of and adopt their rule of advance on European and East India Goods, to be observed by the Venders, which is in the following words, viz:

"Whereas, certain Venders of Goods think they shall "be excusable for advancing the prices of certain articles, if "they are obliged to give a higher price for them to the importer, than they did last year, Resolved, That although "the importer should violate the said Association, by raising "his prices, it can by no means exculpate those who deal "with him; and that no more certain and intelligible rule "can be fixed on this subject, (as the consumers are not, "and from their situation cannot be acquainted with the "original cost,) than the known and accustomed prices for "twelve months next before the sitting of said Congress."

And we join with them in recommending a particular attention to Agriculture, Arts, and Manufactures. We also recommend the improving the breed of Sheep, and increasing their number according to the method pointed out in the seventh article of the Association of the Continental Congress. And as the article of Flax is a very considerable part of the produce of this country, we wish to see the manufacture, of that article carried to greater perfection. But we shall for the present dismiss the subject of Manufactures, cheerfully committing it to the patronage of our wise and patriotick Assembly.

We are deeply affected to hear of the defection of two considerable Towns in this County, viz: Ridgefield and Newtown; the former having publickly protested against the Continental Association; and the major part of the Selectmen in the latter, not having virtue enough to give the people a fair opportunity in a constitutional way, to show their sentiments on the present alarming state of the times; but have made use of every artifice to prevent a union in support of their liberty. And here we cannot, consistent with the duty we owe our Honourable House of Representatives, pass over in silence a glaring instance of impudence and contempt cast on that body by one of the Selectmen of Newtown, who had the boldness to set up al vendue and sell for a pint of flip, one or more of the copies of the Addresses and Association, printed by order of the Honourable House of Representatives for the use of the several Towns, and to burn or suppress the rest. It is at the same time with real satisfaction we find some respectable gentlemen who heartily adopt the peaceable measures recommended by the Congress, and have given us satisfactory evidence of their temperate zeal in the cause; Therefore,

Resolved, As the opinion of this Congress, and it is accordingly strongly recommended to the inhabitants in each of the aforesaid Towns who are warmly attached to the rights of their country, that they, as soon as may be, notify a meeting of said inhabitants, and proceed to choose a Chairman and Clerk, and fully adopt the doings of the Continental Congress, and publish and transmit the same, with their names thereunto affixed; to the several Towns in this County. And it is also recommended to said inhabitants that they have their meetings at least once a month, and that they cordially receive all such as are sincerely willing to join them, and transmit their names to the Committees of Inspection for the several Towns in the County, that they may be known and treated by the other Towns in the County as friends and brethren in the common cause.

It is with reluctance that we proceed to pass sentence against these two Towns who have given such striking evidence of their spirit of opposition and enmity to every peaceable measure recommended and adopted by the good people of this County in general, and throughout this Colony; but our duty to this distressed County command us to distribute justice impartially to all offenders; and that these two Towns may be brought to a proper sense of their duty, we do how solemnly, in the name of virtue, honour, and love to our country, recommend it to all the good people of this County, and throughout this Colony, to withdraw and withhold all commerce, dealings, and connection from all the inhabitants of those two Towns, except as above excepted and provided for; and also except incases of absolute necessity, that they may feel the weight of the resentment of their country, which they are attempting to wound in its most tender part.

And we can with sincerity declare, that we recommend this proceeding for the good of our country, and not for the sake of distressing these misguided or obstinate people; and we are sincerely willing to receive them into favour when they return to their duty, and recommend to the Committees of Inspection in the several Towns in this County, to be vigilant in their duty, and take particular care that this sentence be carried into execution.

This Congress taking into consideration the conduct of the House of Representatives in the Province of New-York, in treating the Continental Association with neglect, and so cowardly avoiding the consideration of that important subject, are struck with surprise; but shall leave that respectable body to the animadversions of our own worthy House of Representatives; at the same time our hearts glow with joy and gratitude towards the worthy and respectable citizens of New-York, who have so gloriously exerted themselves, in a very critical season; when attempts were made to introduce Goods contrary to the Association.

And whereas the conduct of James Rivington, Printer in New-York, as a Printer, has been often animadverted upon, on account of the frequent publications from his Press that are most evidently calculated to injure the liberties and privileges of America, we are of opinion that those animadversions are made with the greatest Justice, and we therefore do recommend it to our constituents to guard against the misrepresentations and false colourings in those publications contained.

The above and foregoing passed in Congress, and ordered they be made publick.

ROBERT FAIRCHILD, Chairman.

The above and foregoing is a true copy examined,
ANDREW ROWLAND, Clerk of the Congress.

The Congress prepared and sent addresses to the Towns of Newtown and Ridgefield, on the subject of their defection, and invited them to adopt the Association of the Continental Congress.

RIDGEBURY LIBERTY-MEN.

Whereas the Delegates from all the Towns in this County (except two) met in Congress, at Fairfield, on the 14th day of February last, being deeply affected to hear of the defection of the Towns of Ridgefield and Newtown from the Association of the Continental Congress, yet finding some who heartily adopt the peaceable measures recommended by the Congress, did strongly recommend it to the inhabitants of each of the aforesaid Towns who are warmly attached to the rights of their country, to notify a meeting of said inhabitants, and proceed to choose a Chairman and Clerk, and fully adopt the doings of the Continental Congress, and publish and transmit the same, with their names thereunto affixed, to the several Towns in this County: We the subscribers, inhabitants of the Town of Ridgefield, being, in consequence of publick notification, assembled for the purposes aforesaid, at the Meeting-House in the Parish of Ridgebury, within the said Town, on the 20th of March, A. D. 1775, and having chosen Captain Jonah Foster our Chairman, and Mr. William Forrester our Clerk, do hereby declare,

First, That we approve of the Association of the late Continental Congress, and should rejoice to have an opportunity of adopting it fully in union with the Town as a body; and that, even under our present circumstances, we will pay all due regard to it, and observe the articles of it, as far we can, without involving ourselves in such peculiar difficulties as our brethren of other Towns are not exposed to, when the Town as a body adopt it.

Secondly, That we wholly disapprove and protest against every thing contained in the Resolves passed by this Town on the 30th day of January last which is contrary, or in anywise repugnant to the rights of the American Colonies, as stated by the late Continental Congress, or that is anywise calculated to cast an odium upon that reputable body, or to discountenance the measures by them adopted and recommended; and those of us who were active in passing said Resolves do sincerely retract whatever in them comes within the limits of the above disapprobation and protest.

Thirdly, In case it shall appear to our Chairman and Clerk to be necessary or expedient for us to meet again on any future day, we desire and authorize them to notify a meeting of us, the following Associators, and of all others within this Town who may be disposed to join with us, at such time and place as they shall think proper. And we further authorize them to admit, at any time, all such inhabitants of this Town as may be heartily disposed to join with us, to enter their names with us as subscribers to the foregoing declaration and protest. We also desire the Chairman and Clerk to meet for that purpose in a month, and as many others as may choose to attend with them, at such time and place as they shall appoint.

Fourthly, We gratefully acknowledge the respect shewn us by the worthy Delegates in the late County Congress at Fairfield, in taking notice of us under our present unhappy situation, and pointing out the method proper for us to take in order to be known and treated as brethren and friends in the common cause.

Fifthly, We desire the Clerk to make out true copies of the foregoing, and transmit the same, with our names thereunto affixed, to the several Towns in this County, or to their Committees of Inspection.

SAMUEL ADAMS TO ARTHUR LEE.

Cambridge, February 14, 1775.

MY DEAR SIR: A few days ago I received your letter of the 7th December, and was greatly pleased to find that you had returned from Rome at so critical a time. The sudden dissolution of the late Parliament is a measure which I expected would take place. I must needs allow that the Ministry have acted a politick part; for if they had suffered the election to be put off till the Spring, it might have cost some of them their heads. The new Parliament can with a very ill grace impeach them for their present conduct after having so explicitly avowed it. The thunder of the late Speech, and the servile answers, I view as designed to serve the purposes of saving some men from the block. I cannot conclude that Lord North is upon the retreat, though there seems to be some appearance of it. A deception of this kind would prove fatal to us. Our safety depends upon our being in readiness for the extreme event. Of this the people here are thoroughly sensible, and from the preparations they are making, I trust in God they will defend their liberties with dignity. If the Ministry have not abandoned themselves to folly and madness, the firm union of the Colonies must be an important objection. The claims of the Colonies are consistent * * * * * * * * * and necessary to their own existence as free subjects,-and they will never recede from them. The tools of power here are incessantly endeavouring to divide them, but in vain. I wish the King's Ministers would duly consider what appears to me a very momentous truth, that one regular attempt to subdue those in any other Colony, whatever may be the first issue of the attempt, will open a quarrel which will never be closed till what some of them affect to apprehend, and we sincerely deprecate, shall take effect. Is it not then high time that they should hearken, not to the clamours of passionate and interested men, but to the cool voice of impartial reason? No sensible Minister will think that millions of free subjects, strengthened by such an union, will submit to be slaver; no honest Minister would wish to see humanity thus disgraced.

My attendance on the Provincial Congress now sitting here will not admit of my enlarging at present.

I will write you again by the next opportunity, and till I have reason to suspect our adversaries have got some of my letters in their possession. I yet venture to subscribe, yours affectionately,

S. ADAMS.

Arthur Lee: Esquire, London.

HANOVER (NEW-JERSEY) COMMITTEE

At a Meeting of the Committee of Observation for the Township of Hanover, in the County of Morris, and Province of New-Jersey, on the 15th day of February, Anne Domini 1775, Present: Mattias Burnet, Chairman, Aaron Kitchel, Clerk; David Bruen. Captain Stephen Day, Stephen Munson, Benjamin Howel, and Captain James Kien.

The following Resolutions were unanimously entered into:

1st. Resolved unanimously, That they will discourage all unlawful, tumultuous, and disorderly meetings of the people within their Districts, and upon all occasions exert themselves to the utmost of their power, and oppose and prevent any violence offered to the person or property of any one.

2d. Resolved unanimraously, That they will take notice of all Horse-Racing, Cock-Fighting, and every kind of Gaming whatsoever, and cause the offenders to be prosecuted according to law; and discourage every species of extravagant entertainments and amusements whatsoever, agreeable to the eighth article of the Association of the Continental Congress.

3d. Resolved unanimously, That this Committee will after the first day of March next, esteem it a violation of the seventh article of the said Association if any person or persons should kill any Sheep until it is four years old, or sell any such Sheep to any person whom he or they may have cause to suspect will kill them, or carry them to market; and further, that they will esteem it a breach of said article if any inhabitant of this Township should sell any Sheep of any kind whatsoever, to any person dwelling out of this County, or to any person who they may have cause to suspect will carry them out of this County, without leave first obtained of this Committee.

4th. Resolved unanimously, That we do recommend to the inhabitants of this Township the cultivation of Flax and Hemp, to the greatest extent that their lands and circumstances will admit of.

5th. Resolved unanimously, That from-several Pamphlets and Publications printed by James Rivington, of New-York, Printer, we esteem him as an incendiary employed by a wicked Ministry to disunite and divide us; and therefore we will not, for ourselves, have any connection or dealings with him, and do recommend the same conduct towards him to every person of this Township; and we will discountenance any Post-Rider, Stage-Driver, or Carrier, who shall bring his Pamphlets or Papers into this County.

6th. Resolved unanimously, That if any Manufacturer of any article made for home consumption, or any Vender of Goods or Merchandises in this Township shall take advantage of the necessities of his country, by selling at an unusual price, such person shall be considered an enemy to his country; and do recommend it to the inhabitants of this Township to remember that after the 1st day of March next, no East India Tea is to be used in any case whatsoever.

7th. Resolved unanimously, That we will in all cases whatsoever, and at all events, use our utmost endeavours to comply with, and enforce every article of the Association of the General Continental Congress.

PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL

At a Council held at Philadelphia, on Thursday, 16th February, 1775: Present, the Honourable John Penn, Esquire, Governour, &c., William Logan, James Tilghman, Benjamin Chew, and Edward Shippen, Junior, Esquires.

The Governour acquainted the Board that _____ Waterhouse, Esquire, Inspector of his Majesty's Customs, had represented to him, that one of the Magistrates, and the Sheriff of the County of Chester, had refused their aid and assistance to the Custom House Officers of this Port, in preventing the rescue of a seizure lately made by them in the River Delaware, of the Schooner Isabella, John Ritchey, Master, with contraband Goods, from Dunkirk, and had requested his Honour would call those Civil Officers to an account for neglect of duty, and likewise issue a Proclamation on the occasion; and as a foundation for such complaint, Mr. Waterhouse had put into his Honour's hands, the copy of a Letter from Francis Welch, a Tide Surveyor for this Port to the Custom House Officers, which was laid before the Board, and follows in these words, viz:

Philaddphia, February 8, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: According to your orders, on Wednesday, the 1st instant, I proceeded down the River in the small boat, with four Boatmen, and one Tidesman; coming up with Gloucester Point, I went on board the Schooner Isabella, where I found one John Ritchey, who called himself the Mate of the vessel, with five more persons. I desired to know where he came from. He told me he came from Portsmouth, New England, and that he had nothing in but ballast. I desired that I might search his vessel. His answer was I should not, as the Captain was not on board. I then ordered the people to open the hatches and search the vessel; upon that he directly took out a pistol, and swore the first man that offered to open the hatches, he would blow him to Hell. About five o'clock the same day, one Matthew Strong, whom I found was a Pilot, desired that I would let our boat put him on shore. My answer was, that I should not let the boat go from alongside; they then hoisted out their own boat, and put him on shore, which was about three miles from Town. I then went down into the cabin with said Ritchey; he told me that the vessel and cargo belonged to Captain David Campbell; that he was sole owner, and what was on board was all he was worth in the world. I then desired him to tell me where they were from; he told me from Dunkirk, in France, and was loaded with Dry Goods. I then searched under the cabins, and found a parcel of Kegs, which he told me was Geneva, which I found afterwards was true, and likewise about thirty pounds of Tea, done up in bundles. I then asked him if there was any thing else in the cabin; he then showed me one trunk of Goods, which belonged to the Captain, and another that belonged to a passenger. I then sent Mr. Powel to you. About eight or nine o'clock in the evening, Captain Campbell, with the Pilot and two gentlemen from Town, came on board, and ordered the anchor up immediately, and said he was bound to St. Eustatia. Soon after the gentlemen went away. About an hour after there came another boat, with three more gentlemen unknown to me, desiring that I would not pursue the vessel, for it would ruin the Captain; they then presented me twenty-five Guineas, and said they would, give me more on shore. I told them that I would not accept of any money; but that I would do my duty as an Officer as long as it was in my power. They then went away; the vessel being under sail, going down the River. About two o'clock in the morning, on the second instant, I seized the vessel in the King's name. I then told the Pilot to take charge of her in the King's name, and if he carried her away, he must stand by the consequences, for she was the King's vessel. I then ordered one of our people to take the helm, and demanded of the Pilot to take her up to Town. Upon that, Captain Campbell said the King never paid for her. He then put a pistol to the Pilot's head, and swore by the eternal God, if he did not carry her down, and not run her ashore, he would put him to death. The next tide of ebb, we got down to Chester and came to anchor. I then went to shore, and Captain Campbell with me, to get something to eat, for he had nothing on board but bread; I then inquired if there was any Justice in that place; I was informed there was; I waited on Messrs. Francis Richardson and Henry Graham, the only two in the place, and demanded their assistance in behalf of the King. Mr. Richardson was sick, and Mr. Graham said he had no business to go on board any vessel. I then waited on Mr. Vernon, a Sheriff, who told me he would go and get more help and assist me. He went away, and I never saw him any more. I went on board again without any assistance; they then weighed anchor, and went down till they came to New-Castle, and then came to anchor again, as the tide would not serve them any further, which was about seven o'clock in the evening, [I went on shore with two of my people, and left two on board, and waited on Mr. Montgomery, the Collector, and Mr. Maurice, Comptroller, and acquainted them that I was Tide Surveyor of the Port of Philadelphia, and that I had seized a vessel from France, and they had taken her away from me, and was going to carry her off, and I desired them to give me some assistance; they answered they could not; for the Commissioners would not allow them any men. I told them I wanted only their presence, and I would save the vessel; the Collector said he would go if the Comptroller would. The Comptroller asked whether I wanted him to go? I told him I did. He then said he would not go. I then demanded of him in the King's name, and as an Officer of [he Customs, to assist me in holding this vessel. He went into his house and left me. Mr. Montgomery, the Collector, then said he could not go himself, but would get me a pair of pistols, which he did. I went on board again. As soon as they found I could not get help, they said it was all their own. They then weighed anchor, and carried us about five miles from the Cape, when Captain Ritchey ordered us into the boat, and that without delay, or he would put us to death. So we were obliged to get into the boat, and they cast us off, which was about one or two o'clock in the morning, although I begged them for God's sake to let us stay till daylight. After about three hours rowing, we got on shore, and was taken up the next day about three o'clock in the afternoon, by Captain Allen, and brought up to Town.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,
FRANCIS WELCH.

Copy of Register. - "Schooner Isabella, John Ritchey, "Master, thirty Tons, built at Boston, 1773, David Campbell, sole owner, dated London, October 6, 1774."

The Governour having thereupon desired the opinion and advice of the Board, the Council, on due consideration of the matter, gave it as their opinion, that the River Delaware not being included in the body of any County of this Province, the jurisdiction of the County of Chester does not extend into the River Delaware, and consequently, that the Magistrates and Sheriff of that County could not legally afford them any such assistance as was required of them, and that, therefore, it would be improper to call those Magistrates and Sheriff to account for any misbehaviour. And further, that as the vessel and her crew were gone to Sea, the issuing of any Proclamation upon this occasion would be useless and improper.

COMMITTEE OF CORRESPONDENCE OF PHILADELPHIA, TO THE COMMITTEE OF CORRESPONDENCE OF NEW-YORK.

Philadelphia, February 16, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We are directed by the Committee of the City and Liberties of Philadelphia, to acquaint you, they have lately, with concern, seen frequent publications from New-York, containing false representations, and holding out to the world ideas of dissensions here which do not exist. As publications of this kind are evidently intended to injure the cause in which this great Continent is embarked, by creating jealousies and distrusts among the Colonies, when mutual confidence is so essential to common safety, the Committee think they can in no instance better discharge the important trust committed to them, than by contradicting and exposing such pernicious and wicked designs.

For this purpose, we think it necessary to declare that the Committee have not met with the least impediment or obstruction in carrying into execution any one Resolution of the Continental Congress; but, on the contrary, a cheerful and ready acquiescence in their proceedings, has been manifested here by all ranks and orders of people.

We have the pleasure also to assure you, from the most extensive informations, that the inhabitants of Pennsylvania continue immoveably firm to the cause of liberty, and will, with inviolable faith, observe the rules of conduct prescribed to them by the Continental Congress; and infraction of which, they deprecate as the greatest evil, and consider as productive of their political ruin.

Under such favourable circumstances, the Committee are apprehensive of no association or combinations whatever, that can in the least disturb them in the regular and exact discharge of their duty, in which they shall persevere, trusting for their support in it to those just and liberal sentiments that possess the breasts of their countrymen.

We doubt not this state of things, founded upon the strictest truth, will have the good effect to silence any unjust and groundless reports which may have obtained credit in New-York, concerning our City and Province; reports propagated and encouraged only by a few persons, (and such, unfortunately for mankind, are to be found in every large community,) who, setting up their private interest in opposition to the general good, have a malignant pleasure in exciting discords and dissensions; by which alone, the Law and Constitution of this free, and once happy country, can be laid prostrate at the feet of our enemies.

We are, gentlemen, your friends and humble servants,

JOHN CADWALLADER,	THOMAS MIFFLIN,
THOMAS BARCLAY,	GEORGE CLYMER,
SAMUEL MEREDITH,	JONATHAN B. SMITH,
JAMES MEASE,	JOHN NIXON.
JOSEPH READ,

New-York, February 16, 1775.

On Thursday, the 2d instant, arrived here from Glasgow, the Ship James, Captain Watson, with a cargo of Coals and Dry Goods; but as she did not arrive within the time prescribed by the tenth article of the Association of the Continental Congress, a strict watch was constantly kept by some of the Sub-Committee, and a number of inhabitants, to prevent the landing of any Goods in a clandestine manner; and the Captain was requested to procure such necessaries as he might stand in need of, and immediately quit the Port. With this request he seemed rather unwilling to comply, and was encouraged to hope that his cargo would be landed, from the assurance of a number of Ministerial tools, who promised to support him, for which purpose they employed a few vagrants to go on board the Ship, (which then lay in the Harbour,) and bring the colours on shore, with a view of raising a posse to assist in landing the Goods; but the banditti that were collected for this purpose, were soon suppressed by the inhabitants, who are for supporting the Association, and who began to assemble in great numbers; upon which, the Captain conceiving the Ship to be in danger, he sent the Mate on shore, requesting assistance to get her under sail, as the Seamen refused to do their duty. This request being complied with, they immediately got her under way, and fell down about four miles below the City, where she remained (attended by a boat, with a Member of the Committee, and some of the Townsmen on board,) till last Thursday night, when she was brought into the Harbour again by an Officer, and a number of men belonging to his Majesty's Ship King-Fisher; which Ship it is supposed came down from Turtle's Bay expressly for the purpose of protecting her, and intimidating the inhabitants. As soon as it was known that the Ship was coming up again, the people were greatly exasperated; began to assemble together in great numbers, and immediately went to the Captain's lodgings, seized him, and after conducting him through many of the principal streets, attended by a prodigious concourse of people, he was, without suffering the least hurt or injury, put on board a boat, with some hands to row him, and sent off. His Ship then lying at anchor two miles below the town, he went on board the Man-of-War which lay in the Harbour, where his own Ship did not arrive till the next morning, when she came to anchor under the cannon of the King-Fisher. In this situation, matters remained till Saturday morning, when they began to unmoor the Ship, intending to get undersail, but were prevented by the Lieutenant of the Man-of-War, who hailed the Ship, and demanded if they had a clearance, and on being answered in the negative, he ordered them not to unmoor; this obstruction greatly exasperated a number of people that were collected together to see her get under sail, who went immediately in quest of the Captain of the King-Fisher, to know by what authority he detained the Ship, but they could not meet with him; he was, however, soon after waited upon by one of the gentlemen to whom she was addressed; and on being informed of the Lieutenant's conduct, and asked his reasons for detaining her, he replied that he had nothing to do with her, and immediately gave orders to the Lieutenant to let her pass; she accordingly got under sail the next morning about ten o'clock, accompanied by a boat, with two of the Committee, and a number of inhabitants on board, which boat (after taking out the Pilot,) left her at two o'clock, P. M., about a league to the Southward of Sandy Hook, with a fresh gale; and at half past four o'clock, P. M., she was out of sight. As every artifice has been used, and a variety of manœuvres put in practice, (by a set of Ministerial hirelings,) in order to get the cargo of the above mentioned Ship landed, it must give real pleasure to every lover of his country, to observe, that the good people of this City are determined to support the Association of the General Congress at all events,

ADAM STEPHEN TO RICHARD HENRY LEE.

February 17, 1775,

DEAR SIR: Since I had an opportunity of forwarding the enclosed,* I put it in my pocket, and thought I should never trouble you with it; but I cannot forbear communicating my sentiments upon so alarming an occasion. If, in the Colony Congress, the Members should resolve to acquaint the men employed in the last Expedition, that they would be paid as soon as the general commotions are settled, it would keep them in heart; and, indeed, it would be highly imprudent to disgust a body of such useful men at this important era; for, by what I can hear, it will come to the shedding of blood, unless Providence interferes in a very special manner. For my part, before I would submit my life, liberty, and property, to the arbitrary disposal of a corrupt, venal aristocracy, the wanton and effeminate tools of power, I would set myself down with a few friends, upon some rich and healthy spot, six hundred miles to the Westward, and there form a settlement; which, in a short time, would command attention and respect. I wish you happy; and have the honour to be, with respect, dear sir, your most obedient humble servant,

ADAM STEPHEN.

Colonel Richard Henry Lee, of Westmoreland.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM THE HONOURABLE GOVERNOUR GAGE TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH, DATED BOSTON, FEBRUARY 17, 1775.

I am honoured with your Lordship's despatch, of the 10th of December, No. 13; as also of your Lordship's Circular Letter, of the same date, enclosing copies of his Majesty's most gracious Speech to both Houses of Parliament, with the Addresses of the Lords and Commons thereupon.

* Letter of February 1, Folio 1203.

The firm resolution expressed in his Majesty's Speech, to maintain the authority of the Supreme Legislature over all parts of the Empire, and the assurances given by the new Parliament to support his Majesty's measures, in which the demagogues here flattered themselves to find abettors and defenders of their conduct, has cast a damp upon the faction; but they still entertain hopes that the Resolves of their Continental Congress will work in their favour.

Your Lordship will be told of the late instance of loyalty in the New-York Assembly, which has had very good effects, and we are told that they are changing their sentiments at Philadelphia. The fury into which people were thrown, and which spread like an infection from Town to Town, and from Province to Province, is hardly to be paralleled, where no oppression was actually felt; but they were stirred up by every means that art could invent. They were made to believe that their religion was in danger; their lands to be taxed; and that the Troops were sent to enforce the measures, and wantonly to massacre the inhabitants. People well disposed caught the popular fever, and when it raged at the highest, the Delegates were chosen for the Continental Congress; so that, as we are told, the greatest incendiaries in most Provinces were elected. It required temperate management and much pains to undeceive the people, who are more moderate in general, though numbers still hold their first prejudices.

If this Provincial Congress is not to be deemed a rebellious meeting, surely some of their Resolves are rebellious, though they affect not to order, but only to recommend measures to the people, which measures, I have learnt from the emissaries I have sent through the country, have not been regarded as to the raising of money, though they have been training men in several Townships, as they could get them in the humour to assemble. This new elected Congress met on the first instant, and I transmit your Lordship some of their Resolves. I am just informed that they have adjourned themselves.

Nothing can be attempted here till the reception that the Proceedings of their great Congress meets with in England, is known. The sending a detachment to Marshfield has had a good effect in that quarter of the country, and I hope will encourage other places where oppression is felt, to make applications of the same nature.

PLYMOUTH (NEW-HAMPSHIRE) TOWN MEETING.

At a Meeting of the Freeholders of the Town of Plymouth, in said County, on Friday, the 17th day of February, 1775:

Voted Mr. JOHN WILLOUGHBY, Moderator.

Voted, That the Honourable John Fenton, Esquire, represent this Town in General Assembly.

Voted, That the following Instructions be given to the Honourable John Fenton, Esquire, as our Representative, and that a copy of the same be forwarded by the Town Clerk to the Printer of the New-Hampshire Gazette, to be published.

To the Honourable JOHN FENTON, Esquire, Representative for the Town of PLYMOUTH, in the County of GRAFTON:

SIR: We the Freeholders of the Town of Plymouth, being highly impressed with the most favourable sentiments of you, from the many eminent services conferred on this County, and the Town of Plymouth in particular, since your first acquaintance with us, should think it needless, at any other time than this, to give you instructions respecting your conduct as our Representative in General Assembly. But when we reflect on the momentous affairs that are now pending between Great Britain and her Colonies, and the imminent danger that threatens them, (for we look upon the interest to be mutual,) we trust that you will not construe our instructing you to arise from any distrust or want of confidence, but from an anxious wish and hearty desire to see the strictest harmony once more established between our parent state and her Colonies, according to their Charter and other rights, as they have been practised from the first accession of the august House of Hanover, to the time of the Stamp Act. We therefore think it our duty to instruct you as our Representative,

First, That you will do every thing in your power to preserve the laws of the land inviolate, and by every legal means prevent a diminution of them in every respect whatever; for should the people either throw them aside, or in any manner disregard them, we apprehend that anarchy and confusion must quickly ensue.

Secondly, We recommend to you in the strongest terms, to discountenance every act of oppression, either as to the persons or properties of individuals, as we look upon such proceedings to be highly prejudicial to the common cause, and directly tending to fill the minds of the people with jealousies and distrusts, the bad effects of which must appear obvious to every man of common understanding.

Thirdly, We desire you will not on any account give up, or in any manner suffer a diminution of the rights and privileges we now enjoy, as we live under good and wholesome laws; and,

Fourthly, That you will do the utmost in your power to keep harmony in the House, that the publick affairs of the Province may be discussed with coolness and impartiality; much depending on such conduct at this time of our difficulties; also, that you will endeavour to have the House open, that those out of doors may be acquainted with the debates of their Member's, the practice of secrecy heretofore used, tending much to the disquiet of numbers of their constituents.

Portsmouth, New-Hampshire, February 17, 1775.

When the political body is thrown into such violent convulsions as threaten its dissolution, then should the advice and skill of the best state physicians be called in and exerted for its recovery, and the most lenient medicines applied to correct the corroding humours and remove every obstruction. But to write less metaphorically, it is too obvious to be denied that every Government in America is in a most disordered state, the cause of which is as obvious. I shall not, for that reason, take up time to explain it, but make such observations on such particular matters as regard the Province of New-Hampshire, of which I am an inhabitant.

Several occurrences have lately taken place, that will most assuredly render us obnoxious to his Majesty, who, with the present disposition of Parliament, may severely punish our precipitate measures; and although the actors therein were hurried into them through reports truly alarming, yet, as we find Administration is not disposed to examine the facts, but to involve the innocent and guilty in one general ruin, the most coercive measures will be used to call us back to our duty, and punish our indiscretion. By what ways and means we are to be censured, I am not able readily to suggest, but there is no doubt we shall soon know. I presume our trade will be distressed, and Troops quartered upon us to support the Civil Magistrate in the execution of such duties as he may be called upon to discharge. What will be the consequence of these means? It is not difficult to foresee anarchy and confusion must follow. How must the many industrious poor be supported, and from whence can supplies of provisions be procured? Our brethren in the country will withhold every necessary to induce us to leave the Town, the better thereby to show a resentment to the quartering of such Troops, by which the morals of our young men, already too much depraved, will be finally ruined, and the modesty of our women prostituted to the most indignant scenes of debauchery and lewdness. I could easily paint in lively colours the dreadful consequences of quartering Troops among us, but I shall forbear, from principles of good policy. It is enough to leave the judicious to think for themselves. The united wisdom of the Province was never wanted so much as at this day of American adversity. Our people are too inconsiderate and precipitate, being hurried by the violence of heated passions, they too often leave the subject in controversy, and wreak their vengeance for private injuries under the false pretext of the cause of liberty - a cause too glorious, too important, to be sullied by such evasive, unmanly principles. By some, complaints are made against the gentlemen of the law, if any such are really aggrieved by them, yet they are not to carve out for themselves the means of redress. These gentlemen are equally subjects of law as others, and may be silenced by the Court from the privileges of pleading; and that an end may be put to such complaints in future, it is to be wished the Judges, at their Circuit or Term Courts, would cause publick outcry to be made, that if any of the King's subjects are aggrieved by any of the bar, they shall have a fair hearing, and their proofs examined; and in case of malfeasance, the person shall be dismissed and disrobed with disgrace. This summary way of proceeding will totally discourage unjust practices in future. Others of the people complain of Taxation without Representation. I acknowledge there is too much reason for this complaint, upon which the whole American dispute with Britain is supported. Much may be said on this head; but as it is probable the people will soon be quieted on this matter, I shall waive it at present. There are many other complaints too trifling to be canvassed. But does not the King complain also, that we have dismantled his Fort, carried away his Ammunition; and who appears to redress him? Is it not our incumbent duty to do justice to him as well as ourselves? And here I leave the matter to be considered of by the Legislature, what ought to be done by us to be reinstated in that favourable view which we should ever wish to be seen by him, as the person to whom we have sworn, avowed, and openly professed the strictest allegiance. There is only a short time left us for consideration; as we are hurried into the late measures by distressing reports, we may be considered more favourably than if we had meditated and planned the attempt, and more easily forgiven, especially if we discover a contrition for the offence.

CUMBERLAND COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Committee held for Cumberland County, Virginia, on Saturday, the 18th of February, 1775; Present, George Carrington, Chairman, William Fleming, John Mayo, Littleberry Mosby, Joseph Carrington, Richard James, Carter H. Harrison, George Carrington, Junior, John Netherland, Robert Smith, Maurice Langhorne, Benjamin Wilson, Joseph Calland, Frederick Hatcher, Edward Carrington, John Woodson, the Reverend John H. Saunders, and Charles Woodson, Junior.

Resolved, That the members of the Committee now present, will give a premium of three Shillings per pound to the first person, or company of persons, who shall, within eight months from the date hereof, produce to the said Committee, or the Chairman thereof, fifty pounds weight of good Gunpowder, manufactured on America, on due proof that the same was made wholly of American materials.

Resolved, That whenever a suspicion shall arise of any Merchant in this County having infringed the Association of the late Continental Congress, the person or persons suspecting such infringement, do make information thereof to any three or more members of this Committee; and if, upon inquiry, they think the same well grounded, they shall forthwith inform the Chairman, and he call a meeting of the Committee to take it under consideration.

GEORGE CARRINGTON, Chairman.

At a Committee held for Cumberland County, on Friday, the 10th of March, 1775; Present, George Carrington, Chairman, William Fleming, John Mayo, Joseph Carrington, Littleberry Mosby, Carter H. Harrison, James Pleasants, George Carrington, Junior, William Smith, Robert Smith, Maurice Langhorne, Benjamin Wilson, Richard Eggleston, Frederick Hatcher, Edward Haskins, Edward Carrington, John Woodson, Henry Macon, and Charles Woodson, Junior.

Resolved, That the following Address of Thanks be presented to the Delegates who represented this Colony in the late Continental Congress:

To the Honourable PEYTON RANDOLPH, Esquire, RICHARD HENRY LEE, GEORGE WASHINGTON, PATRICK HENRY, Junior, RICHARD BLAND, BENJAMIN HARRISON, and EDMUND PENDLETON, Esquires.

GENTLEMEN: Permit us, in behalf of ourselves and of our constituents, to acknowledge our grateful sense of your faithful discharge of the trust reposed in you by the unbought suffrages of your countrymen, in the important setvices you have rendered them at the present alarming crisis of affairs.

We beg leave to declare our full approbation of, and hearty concurrence in; the prudent and pacifick measures adopted by the late Continental Congress, of which you formed so respectable a part, and to assure you that we will exert our utmost diligence and zeal to carry the same into effect. At the same time, when we reflect on the manner in which the schemes agitated against the Colonies for their destruction, have been conducted, we should be greatly wanting in our duty and prudence, did we not extend our views to the most unhappy events, and endeavour, as far as circumstances will permit, to prepare for every contingency.

With hearts deeply impressed with the pleasure of handing down to posterity your names, and those of your worthy brethren of the Congress, as the friends and guardians of your country; of beholding your wise measures applauded and adopted by every City, Town, and County, throughout British America, and overflowing with the warmest wishes for every blessing on you and your posterity, we beg leave to assure you that we shall be ready to risk our lives and fortunes in your defence, when any personal insult shall be offered you by the tools of an incensed and corrupt Administration, and that we are your affectionate countrymen, and much obliged bumble servants.

GEORGE CARRINGTON, Chairman.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM BOSTON, TO A GENTLEMAN OF NEW-YORK, DATED FEBRUARY 19, 1775.

The Republican leaders will, in the next Provincial Congress, once more try their efforts to levy a sum of money for raising, clothing, and paying an Army to take the field against the King's Troops in the ensuing Spring; the moneyed men are convinced that acts of rebellion will be punished with confiscation of their estates, and that is a penalty they do not feel bold enough to experience. The late Provincial Congress, distracted and divided by a variety of views and opinions, separated without doing any thing more than you see in their Resolves; the principal object of their meeting was to cajole the men of property, but no impression could be made on them; yet, as I have already intimated, another attempt is to be made to fill a Treasury to be under Henry Gardner's care, for the above purpose at their next meeting. Their dupes drop from them very fast, and it is expected the few demagogues will be soon left alone.

HANOVER (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Freeholders of Hanover County, after due notice, at the Court House, on Monday, the 20th of February, 1775, Mr. Bartlett Anderson being chosen Clerk of the said meeting, they proceeded to the choice of Delegates to represent them in the Colony Convention at the Town of Richmond, in Henrico County, the 20th of next month, when Patrick Henry, Jun., and John Syme, Esquires, were unanimously chosen; and on the 4th of March, at the place aforesaid, a fuller meeting of Freeholders appeared, when the following Resolves were voted:

Resolved, That the thanks of this meeting be given to our worthy Representatives for their faithful discharge of the trust reposed in them, at a Colony Convention held at Williamsburg in August last.

Resolved, That Colonel John Syme do present the thanks of this County, in the most respectful manner, to the honourable the Delegates that represented this Colony in the late Continental Congress, in Philadelphia, for the prudent, just, and well concerted measures adopted by the said Congress, and to assure them that we will exert our utmost endeavours to carry those measures into execution.

Resolved, That it is just and reasonable that the Delegates that attend Colony Conventions should be reimbursed their expenses, as well as the Delegates that attend the Continental Congress. We do therefore recommend to our Delegates that they use their influence to have the same taxed on the Colony by the Convention.

Resolved, That it would be unjust, as well as unnatural, to keep our countrymen that nobly fought and defended our country against a savage enemy, out of their pay; as we conceive that many of them must be in distressed circumstances, especially the families of those that were killed and wounded in the battle with the Indians; therefore we do most earnestly recommend that our Delegates exert their well known abilities in Convention to have some provision made for the payment of their wages, by a Poll Tax, or any other way that shall be thought expedient.

Resolved, That it be an instruction to our Delegates to consent to the imposition of any Tax that the Convention may judge proper for defraying the expense of any measures necessarily adopted for securing American Liberty.

WOODBIDGE (NEW-JERSEY) COMMITTEE.

The Committee of Observation for the Township of Woodbridge taking into consideration the conduct of the inhabitants of Staten Island, in neglecting or refusing to adopt the Association of the General Congress; and as a number of said inhabitants daringly attempted by force to prevent a Ship's returning to Europe, which arrived with Goods after the first day of February, by which they have justly incurred the displeasure of all the friends of liberty, we think it a duty incumbent on us to publish our dislike of such hostile measures, and Suspend all trade, dealings, and intercourse with them till they join the Association aforesaid: Therefore,

Resolved unanimously, That we will from this day break off and suspend all trade, dealings, and intercourse with them, and will use every lawful means in our power to prevent the inhabitants of said Island getting any Timber, Plank, Iron, &c., from this Town. But as we are unwilling to involve the innocent with the guilty, we except, under particular restrictions, such of them as have openly approved of the Association, and are willing to adopt it.

And we do earnestly recommend to all the inhabitants of this Township a strict observance of this suspension, by having no dealings or intercourse with the inhabitants of said Island till they retract their late conduct, and join in the measures recommended by the Congress; and Messrs. Matthias Baker, Samuel Force, William Smith, John Noe, William Cutler, John Conway, John Ross, and Jeremiah Manning, are appointed Inspectors of the several Publick Landings to see that this Resolve is strictly adhered to. Signed by order of the Committee,

JOHN CONWAY, Clerk.

Woodbridge, February 20, 1775.

MARSHFIELD (MASSACHUSETTS) TOWN MEETING.

At a legal Town Meeting held in Marshfield, on the 20th of February, 1775,

Doctor ISAAC WINSLOW, Moderator:

A vote was put to know the mind of the Town, whether they will adhere to, and abide by the Resolves and Recommendations of the Continental and Provincial Congresses, or any illegal assemblies whatsoever? and it passed in the negative.

Secondly, The vote was put to know the mind of the Town, whether they will return their thanks to General Gage, and Admiral Graves, for their ready and kind interposition, assistance, and protection from further insults and abuses with which we are continually threatened? and it passed in the affirmative.

Thirdly, They voted that a Committee be chosen to draw up and send the same to General Gage, and Admiral Graves; the said Committee consisting of twenty-four persons.

NEH. THOMAS, Clerk.

N. B. This Town Meeting was held agreeable to an Act of Parliament, entitled "An Act for the better regulating the Province of Massachusetts Bay," &c., passed in the last session of Parliament.

Protest of sixty-four of the Inhabitants of MARSHFIELD, against the Proceedings of the Town Meeting held there on the 20th of FEBRUARY, 1775.

We, the subscribers, inhabitants of the Town of Marshfield, being greatly aggrieved at the conduct of the said Town at their late meeting, on the 20th of February last, and sensible of the high colouring which the Tories never fail to bestow on every thing that turns in their favour, think ourselves obliged in duty to our King, our country, ourselves, and posterity, to remonstrate and declare,

FOURTH SERIES.

First, That it is our opinion, that the Selectmen of the Town of Marshfield, with a design to answer a purpose, having previously raised the State Bill, which increased the number of voters in the Tory, more than in the Whig interest, so far availed themselves of it, that in the choice of a Moderator, who happened to be a Tory, there appeared about twenty-six or twenty-seven more Tory than Whig voters.

Secondly, that contrary to our minds, the Selectmen and others, inhabitants of this Town, have petitioned his Excellency, agreeable to a late Parliament Act, for leave to hold a meeting here (a thing so contrary to the general sense of the people in this Province) without the knowledge or advice of many in this Town.

Thirdly, That the vote which passed in the negative, whether the Town will adhere to, and abide by the Resolves of the Continental and Provincial Congresses, or any illegal assemblies whatsoever, we think was craftily drawn, and put as if these Congresses were illegal, when we suppose the present situation of our publick affairs makes them both legal and necessary.

Fourthly, That the Town voted thanks should be returned to General Gage and Admiral Graves, for their ready and kind interposition, assistance and protection, from further insults and abuses, with which we are continually threatened, when we do not know or believe that any of the inhabitants of this Town are threatened with insults and abuses.

Lastly, That the Selectmen gave but a single day's warning for the said Meeting; ordered it to be held in a part of the Town where a Town Meeting was never before had, and that information was not given in the notification of the design of said Meeting.

ADDRESS OF THE TOWN OF MARSHFIELD TO GEN. GAGE.

To his Excellency THOMAS GAGE, Esq., Captain-General and Governour-in-Chief in and over his Majesty's Province of the MASSACHUSETTS BAY.

We, the Inhabitants of Marshfield, in legal Town Meeting assembled, this 20th day of February, 1775, beg leave to return your Excellency our most grateful acknowledgments for your seasonable assistance and protection, in sending a detachment of his Majesty's Troops to secure and defend the loyal people of this Town, from the threats and violence of an infatuated and misguided people. We assure your Excellency (whatever may have been surmised to the contrary) that there were sufficient ground and reasons for making application; and we are fully convinced that this movement has preserved and promoted, not only the peace and tranquillity of this Town in particular, but of the County in general; owing, in great degree, to the prudence, firmness, and good conduct of Captain Balfour, who, with pleasure as well as justice we say it, has done every thing in his power to obtain those laudable ends and purposes.

Thankfully we acknowledge our obligations to our Sovereign, for his great goodness and wisdom, in placing at the head of affairs, in this Province, in this day of difficulty, confusion, and discord, a gentleman of your Excellency's well known humanity, moderation, capacity and intrepidity, and shall constantly implore the Supreme Governour of the universe to assist and direct you in the faithful discharge of the various functions of your exalted station, with fidelity to your King, with honour to yourself, and with happiness to the people committed to your charge.

With pleasure we embrace this opportunity of expressing our detestation and abhorrence of all assemblies and combinations of men (by whatever specious name they may call themselves) who have or shall rebelliously attempt to alter or oppose the wise Constitution and Government of Great Britain.

Furthermore, we beg leave to inform your Excellency, that in the most critical and dangerous times, we have always manifested and preserved our loyalty to the King, and obedience to his laws; carefully avoided all constitutional covenants and engagements whatsoever, that might warp us from our duty to our God, our King, and country and as we are determined to persevere in the same course, we flatter ourselves that our endeavours and exertions will meet with our most gracious Sovereign's approbation, as well as your Excellency's, and that under his and your gentle and humane government and kind protection, we may peaceably and quietly sit under our own vines and fig-trees, and have none to molest or make us afraid.

ISAAC WINSLOW, Chairman of the Committee.

His Excellency's Answer.

To the Loyal Inhabitants of the Town of MARSHFIELD.

GENTLEMEN: I return you my most hearty thanks for your Address, and am to assure you that I feel great satisfaction in having contributed to the safety and protection of a people so eminent for their loyalty to their King, and affection to their country, at a time when treason and rebellion is making such hasty strides to overturn our most excellent Constitution, and spread ruin and destruction through the Province.

I doubt not that your duty to God, your King, and country, will excite you to persevere in the glorious cause in which you are engaged, and that your laudable example will animate others with the like loyal and patriotic spirit.

T. GAGE.

TOWN OF MARSHFIELD TO ADMIRAL GRAVES.

To the Honourable SAMUEL GRAVES, Esq., Vice-Admiral of the Blue, and Commander-in-Chief of all his Majesty's Navy in NORTH AMERICA, &c.

We, the Inhabitants of Marshfield, in Town Meeting legally assembled, the 20th of February, A. D. 1775, penetrated with the highest sense of gratitude, present our sincere and hearty thanks to you sir, for your ready compliance with a request of a number of our inhabitants, in ordering an armed Vessel to protect and defend us from the lawless insults and abuses with which we were threatened by numbers of seditious and evil-minded people, for no other reason. (that we can conceive) but our loyalty to the best of Kings, and firm adherence to the laws of Government. With hearts replete with gratitude, we contemplate the paternal care and goodness of our most gracious Sovereign, in the appointment of a gentlemen to command his Navy in America, at this critical juncture, whose duty, inclination, and abilities, so happily coincide to answer the good purposes of his department.

Permit us to acquaint your Honour, that we have always endeavoured to comport ourselves, and regulate our conduct agreeable to the laws of England and this country; that we have not been guilty of any riots or illegal assemblies, or adopted or subscribed any unconstitutional resolves, covenants, or combinations whatsoever, but have constantly and uniformly borne our testimony against such measures and proceedings; that it is our serious intention and firm resolution to respect the English Constitution; and demean ourselves like true, loyal and obedient subjects, by doing which we apprehend we shall entitle ourselves to the continued protection of our most gracious King, your Honour, and every friend to peace and good Government.

ANSWER OF ADMIRAL GRAVES,

To the Inhabitants of the Town of MARSHFIELD.

GENTLEMEN: The warmth with which you declare your principles of loyalty to your Sovereign, and his constitutional Government, cannot fail of being grateful to the mind of every lover of his country; and it is much to be wished that the uniform propriety of your conduct will extend its influence to the removal of those groundless jealousies which have unhappily warped the affections of too many of your countrymen from the parent state, and which are now tending to raise violent commotions, and involve in ruin and destruction this unfortunate Province.

The approbation you are pleased to express of his Majesty's appointment, at this critical juncture, to the command of his American Fleet, is flattering; and you may be assured that my countenance and support shall never be wanting to protect the friends of the British Government, and reduce to order and submission those who would endeavour to destroy that peace and harmony which it is the end of good legislation to produce.

S. GRAVES.

JOSEPH WARREN TO ARTHUR LEE.

Boston, February 20, 1775.

DEAR SIR: My friend, Mr. Adams, favoured me with the sight of your last letter. I am sincerely glad of your return to England, as I think your assistance was never more wanted there than at present. It is truly astonishing that the Administration should have a doubt of the resolution of the Americans to make the last appeal, rather than submit to wear the yoke prepared for their necks. We have waited with a degree of patience which is seldom to be met with; but I will venture to assert that there has not been any great alloy of cowardice, though both friends and enemies seem to suspect us of want of courage. I trust the event, which I confess I think is near at hand, will confound our enemies and rejoice those who wish well to us. It is time for Britain to take some serious steps towards a reconciliation with her Colonies. The people here are weary of watching the measures of those who are endeavouring to enslave them; they say they have been spending their time for ten years, in counteracting the plans of their adversaries; and many of them begin to think that the difference between them will never be amicably settled; but that they shall always be subject to affronts from the caprice of every British Minister. They even sometimes speak of an open rupture with Great Britain, as a state preferable to the present uncertain condition of affairs; and although it is true that the people have yet a very warm affection for the British Nation, yet it sensibly decays. They are loyal subjects to the King; but they conceive that they do not swerve from their allegiance, by opposing any measures taken by any man or set of men, to deprive them of their liberties. They conceive that they are the King's enemies, who would destroy the Constitution; for the King is annihilated when the Constitution is destroyed.

It is not yet too late to accommodate the dispute amicably; but I am of opinion that if once General Gage should lead his Troops into the country, with a design to enforce the late Acts of Parliament, Great Britain may take her leave, at least of the New England Colonies, and, if I mistake not, of all America. If there is any wisdom in the Nation, God grant it may be speedily called forth. Every day, every hour, widens the breach. A Richmond, a Chatham, a Shelburne, a Camden, with their noble associates, may yet repair it; and it is a work which none but the greatest of men can conduct. May you be successful and happy in your labours for the publick safety.

I am, sir, with great respect, your very humble servant,
JOSEPH WARREN.

London, February 21, 1775.

At a Court of Common Council, held at Guildhall, the following Resolutions were come to:

Resolved, That the measures of Administration respecting our fellow-subjects in America, adopted by the late Parliament, appear to this Court in the highest degree dangerous and alarming, and demand our most serious attention.

Resolved, That as the opinion of this Court hath already been very fully and particularly declared against an Act of the late Parliament, entituled "An Act for the making more effectual provision for the government of the Province of Quebec, in North America," we think it equally our duty to bear testimony also against four other Acts of the said Parliament; which we esteem highly injurious to our fellow-subjects in America, viz: "An Act for the better regulating the government of the Province of the Massachusetts Bay;" also "An Act for the impartial administration of Justice, in the cases of persons questioned for any acts done by them in the execution of the Law, or for the suppression of Riots and Tumults in the Province of Massachusetts Bay;" and also "An Act to continue the landing and discharging, &c., of Goods, Wares, and Merchandises, at the Town and in the Harbour of Boston;" and also an Act entituled "An Act for providing suitable Quarters for Officers and Soldiers in his Majesty's service in North America;" they appearing to this Court to be not only contrary to many of the fundamental principles of the English Constitution, and most essential rights of the subject, but also apparently inconsistent with natural justice and equity; and we are therefore of opinion that our fellow-subjects, the Americans, are justified in every constitutional opposition to the said Acts.

GEORGIA.

By his Excellency Sir JAMES WRIGHT, Baronet, Captain-General, Governour and Commander-in-Chief in and over his Majesty's Province of GEORGIA, Chancellor, Vice-Admiral, and Ordinary of the same:

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas, the Collector of his Majesty's Customs in the Port of Savannah, in this Province, did, on Wednesday, the fifteenth day of February, instant, in the Stores and upon a Wharf, (at the distance of about a quarter of a mile from the Town of Savannah,) in the occupation of Andrew Elton Wells, seize and take in his possession eight hogsheads of Molasses, and six hogsheads and one barrel of French Sugars, the Duties arising therefrom not having been discharged or paid; and the better to secure the said effects, appointed one James Eggar, a waiter, usually employed, to take care of the same, and applied for and obtained two Seamen from his Majesty's armed Schooner the Saint John, to assist the said waiter. And whereas, about twelve of the clock of the night ensuing the same day, a large number of people, disguised with their faces smutted, and armed with Pistols and Cutlasses, in a very riotous and unlawful manner, assembled themselves together and proceeded to the place where the effects seized as aforesaid remained in the possession and under the care of the persons aforesaid, and there struck, and in a very riotous and disorderly manner abused the waiter aforesaid, tore his clothes from his body, and tarred and feathered him, and threw the Seamen over the wharf into the River Savannah, and rescued, removed, and carried off the effects so as aforesaid seized. And whereas, one of the Seamen, namely, David Martin, was seen in the water begging for mercy, and hath not since, although the most diligent inquiry hath been made after him, been seen or heard of, and from the former conduct of said Seaman, and many other circumstances declared upon oath, there is the greatest and most probable reason to believe the said David Martin, not being permitted to come out of the River, there perished and was drowned.

And whereas, such proceedings are not only shocking, unwarrantable, and illegal, but subject the offenders and perpetrators thereof to great and severe pains and penalties; and it is highly necessary such atrocious offenders should receive the punishments due to their offences. To the intent, therefore, that the persons concerned in the above matters and offences, may be apprehended and brought to condign punishment, I have thought fit, by and with the advice of his Majesty's Honourable Council, to issue this my Proclamation, offering, and I do hereby prorate a reward of Fifty Pounds, lawful money of this Province, to any person or persons who will give such information against any one or more who was active and concerned in rescuing the effects aforesaid, and in committing the other riotous, unlawful, and unwarrantable proceedings, so as he or they may be apprehended upon and convicted of the said offences; the said reward to be paid upon conviction of any one or more of the offenders. And if any person who may have been an accomplice, (other than the person or persons who actually treated the Waiter in the manner above described, or actually threw or forced the Seaman, non-resisting, into the River,) will inform me, he shall receive his Majesty's pardon, and be admitted as King's evidence.

Given under my hand and the great seal of his Majesty's Province, at the Council Chamber, in Savannah, the twenty-first day of February, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five, and in the fifteenth year of the reign of his Majesty King George the Third.

JAS. WRIGHT.

By his Excellency's command,

THOS. MOODIE, Dep. Secretary.
GOD save the King.

AUGUSTA COUNTY (VIRGINIA) MEETING.

After due notice given to the Freeholders of Augusta County, to meet in Staunton, for the purpose of electing Delegates to represent them in Colony Convention, at the Town of Richmond, on the 20th day of March, the Freeholders of said County thought proper to refer the choice of their Delegates to the judgment of the Committee, who, thus authorized by the general voice of the people, met at the Court House on the 22d day of February, and unanimously chose Mr. Thomas Lewis and Captain Samuel M'Dowell to represent them in the ensuing Convention.

Instructions were then ordered to be drawn up by the Reverend Alexander Balmain, Mr. Sampson Matthews, Captain Alexander M'Clenachan, Mr. Michael Bowyer, Mr. William Lewis, and Captain George Matthews, or any three of them, and delivered to the Delegates thus chosen; which are as follows:

To Mr. THOMAS LEWIS and Capt. SAMUEL M'DOWELL:

The Committee of Augusta County, pursuant to the trust reposed in them by the Freeholders of the same, have chosen you to represent them in a Colony Convention, proposed to be held in Richmond, on the 20th of March, instant. They desire that you may consider the people of Augusta County as impressed with just sentiments of loyalty and allegiance to his Majesty King George, whose title to the imperial Crown of Great Britain rests on no other foundation than the liberty, and whose glory is inseparable from the happiness of all his subjects. We have also a respect for the parent state, which respect is founded on religion, on law, and the genuine principles of the Constitution. On these principles do we earnestly desire to see harmony and a good understanding restored between Great Britain and America. Many of us and our forefathers left their native land, and explored this once savage wilderness, to enjoy the free exercise of the rights of conscience and of human nature. These rights we are fully resolved, with our lives and fortunes, inviolably to preserve; nor will we surrender such inestimable blessings, the purchase of toil and danger, to any Ministry, to any Parliament, or any body of men upon earth, by whom we are not represented, and in whose decisions, therefore, we have no voice.

We desire you to tender, in the most respectful terms, our grateful acknowledgments to the late worthy Delegates of this Colony, for their wise, spirited, and patriotick exertions in the General Congress, and to assure them that we will uniformly and religiously adhere to their Resolutions, prudently and generously formed for their country's good.

Fully convinced that the safety and happiness of America depend, next to the blessing of Almighty God, on the unanimity and wisdom of her Councils, we doubt not you will, on your parts, comply with the recommendation of the late Continental Congress, appointing Delegates from this Colony to meet in Philadelphia on the 10th of May next, unless American Grievances be redressed before that time; and as we are determined to maintain unimpaired that liberty which is the gift of Heaven to the subjects of Britain's Empire, we will most cordially join our countrymen in such measures as may be deemed wise and necessary to secure and perpetuate the ancient, just, and legal rights of this Colony and all British America.

As the state of this Colony greatly demands that Manufactures should be encouraged by every possible means, we desire you to use your endeavours that Bounties may be proposed by the Convention for the making of Salt, Steel, Wool Cards, Paper, and Gunpowder; and that, in the mean time, a supply of Ammunition be provided for the Militia of this Colony. We entirely agree in opinion with the gentlemen of Fairfax County, that a well regulated Militia is the natural strength and stable security of a free Government, and therefore wish it might be recommended by the Convention to the officers and men of each County in Virginia, to make themselves masters of the military exercise, published by order of his Majesty, in the year 1764.

Placing our ultimate trust on the Supreme Disposer of every event, without whose gracious interposition the wisest schemes may fail of success, we desire you to move the Convention that some day, which may appear to them most convenient, be set apart for imploring the blessing of Almighty God, on such plans as human wisdom and integrity may think necessary to adopt, for preserving America happy, virtuous, and free.

To the Honourable PEYTON RANDOLPH, Esquire, President, RICHARD HENRY LEE, GEORGE WASHINGTON, PATRICK HENRY, RICHARD BLAND, BENJAMIN HARRISON, and EDMUND PENDLETON, Esquires, Delegates from this Colony to the General Congress.

GENTLEMEN: We have it in command, from the Freeholders of Augusta County, by their Committee, held the 22d of February, to present you with their grateful acknowledgments of thanks, for the prudent, virtuous, and noble exertions of the faculties with which Heaven has endowed you in the cause of liberty, and of every thing that men ought to hold sacred, at the late General Congress; a conduct so nobly interesting, that it must command that tribute of applause, not only from this, but succeeding ages. May that sacred flame that has illuminated your minds, and influenced your conduct, in projecting and concurring in so many salutary determinations for the preservation of American Liberty, ever continue to direct your conduct, to the latest period of your lives. May the bright example be fairly transcribed on the hearts, and reduced into practice by every Virginian, by every American. May our hearts be open to receive, and our arms strong to defend, that liberty and freedom, the gift of Heaven, now banishing from its last retreat in Europe. Here let it be hospitably entertained in every breast; here let it take deep root, and flourish in everlasting bloom; that, under its benign influence, the virtuously free may enjoy secure repose, and stand forth the scourge and terrour of tyranny and tyrants of every order and denomination, till time shall be no more. Be pleased, gentlemen, to accept of their grateful Sense of your important services, and of their ardent prayers for the best interest of this once happy country; and vouchsafe, gentlemen, to accept of the same from your most humble servants,

THOMAS LEWIS,
SAMUEL M'DOWELL, Delegates.

To THOMAS LEWIS and SAMUEL M'DOWELL, Esquires.

GENTLEMEN: Be pleased to transmit to the respectable Freeholders of the County of Augusta our sincere thanks for their affectionate Address, approving our conduct in the late Continental Congress. It gives us the greatest pleasure to find that our honest endeavours to serve our country on this arduous and important occasion, has met their approbation, a reward fully adequate to our warmest wishes; and the assurances from the brave and spirited people of Augusta, that their hearts and hands shall be devoted to the support of the measures adopted, or hereafter to be taken, by the Congress, for the preservation of American Liberty, give us the highest satisfaction, and must afford pleasure to every friend to the just rights of mankind.

We cannot conclude without acknowledgments to you, gentlemen, for the polite manner in which you have communicated to us the sentiments of your worthy constituents; and are their and your obedient, humble servants,

PEYTON RANDOLPH, RICHARD BLAND,
RICHARD HENRY LEE, BENJAMIN HARRISON,
GEORGE WASHINGTON, EDMUND PENDLETON.
PATRICK HENRY,

To the Honourable PEYTON RANDOLPH, RICHARD BLAND, EDMUND PENDLETON, RICHARD HENRY LEE, PATRICK HENRY, GEORGE WASHINGTON, and BENJAMIN HARRISON, Esquires, Delegates from Virginia to the late General Congress.

The Address of the Freeholders and Inhabitants of the County of BOTETOURT.

We, the Freeholders and Inhabitants of the County of Botetourt, assembled at the Court House, taking into our consideration the unhappy disputes which at present subsist between Great Britain and America, and being greatly alarmed at the dangerous and unconstitutional measures adopted by Administration, with respect to the Colonies, beg leave now to address you as the guardians of our rights and privileges.

Please, therefore, to accept our most sincere and grateful acknowledgments for your steady and patriotick conduct in the support of American Liberty, at the late General Congress. And we assure you, that although the alarming situation of our frontiers, for some time past, hath prevented our co-operating with our fellow-subjects, in their laudable efforts to obtain redress of our common grievances, we highly approve of the plan you have adopted for that purpose, and shall most cheerfully abide by your resolutions.

As you have so fully and clearly ascertained the Rights and Liberties of American subjects, we have nothing to add on that head. We are happy to find our sentiments entirely correspond with yours; because, in these sentiments, we are determined to live and die. We are too sensible of the inestimable privileges enjoyed by subjects under the British Constitution, even to wish for a change, while the free enjoyments of those blessings can be secured to us; but, on the contrary, can justly boast of our loyalty and affection to our most gracious Sovereign, and of our readiness in risking our lives, whenever it has been found necessary, for the defence of his person and Government.

But should a wicked and tyrannical Ministry, under the sanction of a venal and corrupt Parliament, persist in acts of injustice and violence towards us, they only must be answerable for the consequences. Liberty is so strongly impressed on our hearts, that we cannot think of parting with it but with our lives. Our duty to God, our country, ourselves, and our posterity, all forbid it. We therefore stand prepared for every contingency.

Philadelphia. February 22, 1775.

As the establishing of Manufactories among ourselves, must undoubtedly be of great advantage to the publick, it is hoped that every friend to his country will endeavour to promote the following Plan, to which a considerable number of gentlemen have already subscribed:

Plan of an AMERICAN Manufactory.

We the subscribers, being deeply impressed with a sense of our present difficulties, and earnestly solicitous, as far as in our power, to support the freedom and promote the welfare of our country on peaceable and constitutional principles, and well knowing how much the establishing Manufactories amongst ourselves, would contribute thereunto, besides exciting a general and laudable spirit of industry among the poor, and putting the means of supporting themselves into the hands of many, who at present are a publick expense, and also to convince the publick that our country is not unfavourable to the establishing Manufactories, do agree to form ourselves into a Company for the promoting of an American Manufactory, on the following principles, subject to such rules and regulations as shall be hereafter agreed on.

1. That the Company be called "The United Company of Philadelphia for promoting American Manufactures."
2. That the Company shall continue for three whole years, commencing on the day of the first general meeting of the subscribers.
3. That a share in the Company be fixed at ten Pounds; after the payment whereof, every subscriber shall be entitled to a vote in common on all occasions, and also to be elected to any office belonging to the Company, and no person shall be entrusted with any office but a member thereof.
4. That we will begin with the manufacturing of Wool-lens, Cottons, and Linens, and carry on the same to the greatest extent and advantage our stock will admit of during the three years aforesaid, for which purpose we do agree to pay into the hands of the Treasurer, who shall be hereafter chosen, one moiety, or full half of each of our subscriptions, within one week after the first general meeting of the subscribers, and the other moiety within two months after the aforesaid general meeting; all which moneys paid as aforesaid, together with all the profits arising from the Manufactory, shall be continued as Company stock, for the space, and to the full end of three whole years, commencing on the day of the first general meeting of the subscribers aforesaid.
5. That a general meeting of the subscribers shall be called by written tickets, within one week after two hundred subscribers are obtained, in order to choose by ballot, for the first year, twelve Managers, a Secretary and Treasurer, to fix the time of the annual meeting for our future elections, and to do all other matters and things as may then be deemed necessary for the better regulating the affairs of the Company.

6. That one third of the Managers, and no more, be changed annually, on the day of the election, by their drawing lots for their going out; and on the death, or departure out of the City and its Districts, of any Manager, for the space of three calendar months, the other Managers may choose another in his stead, who shall be considered as acting in the room of the deceased or departed Manager.

7. That the Managers carry on the Manufactory agreeable to the rules of the Company, and shall have the whole direction thereof, and shall attend two by two, in turn, every day, at the Manufactory Store, at such hours as they shall agree upon, to oversee the business, draw orders on the Treasurer, and give the necessary directions.

8. That the Treasurer shall give security for the faithful discharge of his trust, and for accounting for, and delivering up to his successor in said office, all such moneys, books, writings, and effects, as shall then be in his hands, belonging to the Company, at such times as the Managers, or a majority of them, shall direct and require, which security the Managers are hereby required to see duly given, executed, and recorded in the office for recording of Deeds for the County of Philadelphia, before any such Treasurer, so elected, shall enter upon his said office. And the Treasurer is hereby enjoined to answer no order but such as shall be signed by the two attending Managers for the day, as aforesaid, which said orders shall be good vouchers to indemnify him.

9. That a state of the Manufactory, and of the Company's accounts, shall be fairly made cut at the end of every six months, and kept in the Manufactory Store, for the inspection of the Members.

10. That the Managers shall have power to call a general meeting, as often as they shall find it necessary to take the advice of the Company in any affair, or to lay any proposal or matter of importance before them.

11. That after the first general meeting of the subscribers, three weeks notice of the time and place of meeting, in one of the Newspapers, shall be sufficient to call a general meeting of the Company; and no rule nor regulation shall be binding on the Company, but such as shall have received the approbation of a majority of the Members present at a general meeting.

New-York, February 23, 1775.

On last Thursday night, the 16th instant, the Ship Beulah, Captain William M'Bussell, arrived at the Watering Place, about three leagues from this City, in nine weeks from London. The Pilots, we are informed, were ordered not to bring her up, lest her being in the Harbour should give uneasiness to the City. The same night, a Sloop with some members of the Sub-Committee of Observation, and other citizens on board, went down and anchored near the said Ship, to observe her conduct, and they will continue there till she departs. The Ship wants a new bowsprit; when she is furnished with this, and other necessities for her voyage, she will be despatched without delay. She has neither entered nor broke bulk, and we are informed will be ready to sail about Sunday next.

SUFFOLK COUNTY (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE.

At a Meeting of the Committees of Observation for the several Towns and Districts of Huntington, Smithtown, Islip, and Southhaven, and some of the principal inhabitants of the Town of Brookhaven, in the County of Suffolk, and Province of New-York, held at Smithtown, on the 23d day of February, 1775,

Colonel PLATT CONKLIN, being Chairman:

1. Resolved, nem. con., That the Proceedings of the Committee of Correspondence for this County, at their meeting on the 15th of November last, be published in the New-York Journal, or General Advertiser.

Which Proceedings are as followeth:

"At a Meeting of the Committee of Correspondence for the County of Suffolk, in the Province of New-York, at the County Hall, on the 15th day of November, 1774:

"1. Voted, That we do recommend it to the several Towns in this County to set forward a subscription for the employment and relief of the distressed poor in the Town of Boston, to be collected in such manner as the Committees in each Town shall judge proper; to be in readiness to be forwarded early next Spring.

"2. Voted, That Mr. John Foster have the care of procuring a Vessel to call at the several Harbours in this County to receive and carry the above donations to Boston for the purpose aforesaid.

"3. Voted, That we do fully approve of the Proceedings of the late Continental Congress, and recommend it to the Committees of the different Towns to see that the Association by them entered into on behalf of themselves and their constituents, be strictly observed.

"Signed by order of the Committees,

"EZRA L'HOMMEDIEU, Clerk."

2. Resolved, nem. con., That we think ourselves under obligations of gratitude to the worthy gentlemen in particular who represented this County in the late Continental Congress, and to that whole assembly in general, for their noble, patriotick, and faithful discharge of their important trust.

3. Resolved, nem. con., That a Letter be sent to William Nicoll, and Nathaniel Woodhull, Esquires, Representatives of this County, informing them that if a motion should be made in the House for appointing Delegates to represent this Province at the Continental Congress to be held at Philadelphia, in May next, it is our opinion and desire that they should join in their appointment.

4. Resolved, nem. con., That in case the Assembly do not appoint Delegates for the purpose above mentioned, the Committee of Correspondence for the City of New-York be desired, and they are accordingly hereby desired in that case to call a Provincial Convention for that purpose.

5. Resolved, nem. con., That we do highly disapprove of the conduct of Major Benjamin Floyd, and others, inhabitants of Brookhaven, in this County, as it is represented in Mr. Rivington's and Mr. Gaine's Papers; and it is our firm opinion that most of the subscribers to the writing in said Papers mentioned, were induced to sign it by unfair practices and misrepresentations; for we are credibly informed that a great number of them are very much dissatisfied that they have signed an instrument which they since understand is in opposition to the measures of the Congress, and unfriendly to the liberties of their country.

6. Resolved, nem. con., That we think that all those publications which have a tendency to divide us, and thereby weaken our opposition to measures taken to enslave us, ought to be treated with the utmost contempt by every friend to his country; in particular the Pamphlet entitled "A Friendly Address," &c., and those under the signature of "A. W. Farmer," and many others to the same purpose, which are replete with the most impudent falsehoods, and the grossest misrepresentations; and that the Authors, Printers, and abettors of the above and such like publications, ought to be esteemed and treated as traitors to their country, and enemies to the liberties of America.

Signed by order of the meeting,

PLATT CONKLIN, Chairman.

N. B. Most of the Towns and Districts in this County have, at publick Town Meetings fully adopted the measures recommended by the Congress, and determined upon a strict observance of the Association.

READING (CONNECTICUT) ASSOCIATION.

Mr. RIVINGTON: In the present critical situation of publick affairs, we the subscribers, Freeholders and Inhabitants of the Town of Reading, and the adjoining parts, in the County of Fairfield, and Colony of Connecticut, think it necessary (through the channel of your Paper) to assure the publick that we are open enemies to any change in the present happy Constitution; and highly disapprove of all measures in any degree calculated to promote confusion and disorder; for which purpose, and in order to avoid the general censure incurred by a great part of this Colony from the mode of conduct here adopted for the purpose of opposing the British Government, we have entered into the following Resolves and Agreements, viz:

First. Resolved, That whilst me enjoy the privileges and immunities of the English Constitution, we will render all due obedience to his most gracious Majesty King George the Third; and that a firm dependence on the mother country is essential to our political safety and happiness.

Second. Resolved, That the privileges and immunities of this Constitution are yet (in a good degree) continued to all his Majesty's American subjects, except those who, we conceive, have justly forfeited their title thereto.

Third. Resolved, That we suppose the Continental Congress was constituted for the purpose of restoriog harmony between Great Britain and her Colonies, and removing the displeasure of his Majesty towards his American subjects; whereas, on the contrary, some of their Resolutions appear to us immediately calculated to widen the present unhappy breach;counteract the first principles of civil society, and in a great degree abridge the privileges of their constituents.

Fourth. Resolved, That notwithstanding we will, in all circumstances, conduct with prudence and moderation, we consider it an indispensable duty we owe to our King, our Constitution, our country, and posterity, to defend, maintain, and preserve, at the risk of our lives and properties, the prerogative of the Crown, and the privileges of the subject from all attacks by any rebellious body of men, any Committees of Inspection, Correspondence, &c.

[Signed by one hundred and forty-one Inhabitants, whose names are to be seen at the Printer's.]

READING (CONNECTICUT) COMMITTEE.

Whereas, there was a certain number of Resolves published in James Rivington's Gazetteer, of the 23d of February, 1775, and said by said Rivington to be signed by one hundred and forty-one Freeholders and Inhabitants of the Town of Reading, and the adjoining parts, in the County of Fairfield, and Colony of Connecticut; and whereas said Resolves are injurious to the rights of this Colony, and breathe a spirit of enmity and opposition to the rights and liberties of all America, and are in direct opposition to the Association of the Continental Congress; and notwithstanding said Resolutions were come into with a (seeming) view to secure to the said signers some extraordinary privileges and immunities, yet either through negligence in the Printer, or upon design of the subscribers, said signers' names are not made publick: And now, if there be any advantage in adopting those principles, we are willing they should be entitled thereto; and for which end, and for the more effectual carrying into execution said Association, we have taken some pains, and by the assistance of him who carried said Resolves to said Printer, we have obtained the whole of said names. But as we mean not to publish the names of any except those that belong to said Reading, their names are as follows, viz:

TO THE PROVINCIAL CONGRESS OF MASSACHUSETTS.

GENTLEMEN: Your assuming the Government of Massachusetts Bay, makes it unnecessary for me to make any apology for addressing you in this publick manner, further, than by acquainting you that it is to represent to you the distresses of some of those people, who, from a sense of their duty to the King, and a reverence for his laws, have behaved quiet and peaceable; and for which reason they have been deprived of their liberty, abused in their persons, and suffered such barbarous cruelties, insults, and indignities, besides the loss of their property by the hands of lawless mobs and riots, as would have been disgracefnl even for savages to have committed. And the Courts of Justice being shut up in most parts of the Province, and the Justices of those Courts compelled by armed force, headed by some who are members of your Congress, to refrain from doing their duty at present, it is rendered impracticable for those sufferers to obtain redress, unless it be by your interposition, or the aid of military force, which will be applied for in case this application fails.

A particular enumeration of all the instances referred to, is apprehended unnecessary, as many of your members are personally knowing to them; and for the information of any of you, who may pretend ignorance of them, the following instances are here mentioned, viz: In August last, a mob in Berkshire forced the Justices of the Court of Common Pleas from their seats, and shut up the Court House. They also drove David Ingersoll, Esquire, from his house, and damaged the same, and he obliged to leave his estate; after which his enclosures were laid waste. At Taunton, Daniel Leonard, Esquire, was drove from his house, and bullets fired into it by the mob, and he obliged to take refuge in Boston, ever since last August, for the supposed crime of obeying his Majesty's requisition as one of his Council for this Province. Colonel Gilbert, of Freetown, a firm friend to Government, in August last, being at Dartmouth, was attacked at midnight by a mob of about an hundred; but by his bravery, with the assistance of the family where he lodged, they were beat off. The same night, Brigadier Rattles was also attacked by another party, about the same time of the night, who were routed, after having painted, and cut the hair off of one of his Horses mane and tail, afterwards had his Arms taken from his dwelling-house, in Hardwiel all which are not yet returned; he had at another time a very valuable English Horse, which was kept as a stallion, poisoned to death, his family disturbed, and himself obliged to take refuge in Boston, after having been insulted in his own house, and twice on his way, by a mob. The Chief Justice of the Province in Middleborough was threatened to be stopped on the highway in going to Boston Court; but his firmness and known resolution for supporting Government in this, as well as in many other instances, intimidated the mob from laying hands on him; he was also threatened with opposition in going into Court, but the terrour of the Troops prevented it. The whole Bench were hissed by a mob as they came out of Court; since that, his carriages stopped, and some turned back; his goods and effects kept from him, and he obliged to take refuge in Boston ever since last August. In September, Mr. Sewall, his Majesty's Attorney General for this Province, was obliged to repair to Boston for refuge; his elegant house at Cambridge was attacked by a mob, his windows broke; but they were beat off by the gallant behaviour and bravery of some young gentlemen of his family. About the same time, the Lieutenant-Governour Oliver, President of his Majesty's Council, was attacked at his elegant seat at Cambridge, by a mob of about four thousand, and was compelled to resign his seat at the Board, since which, upon further threats, he has been obliged to leave his estate, and take refuge with his family in Boston. At Worcester, a mob of about five thousand collected, and prevented the Court of Common Pleas from sitting, (about one thousand of them had fire-arms,) and all drawn in two files, compelled Judges, Sheriffs, and gentlemen of the Bar, to pass them with cap in hand, and read their disavowal of holding Courts under the new Acts of Parliament, not less than thirty times in their procession. Daniel Oliver, Esquire, of Hardwick, was disarmed by the mob, for the purpose of arming some of the mob for putting down the Court of Worcester, and has been obliged to take refuge in Boston ever since, to the total loss of his business. Colonel Phips, the very reputable and highly esteemed Sheriff of the County of Middlesex, by a large mob, was obliged to promise not to serve any processes of Courts, and to retire to Boston, for protection from further insults. Colonel Saltonstall, the very humane Sheriff of the County of Essex, obliged to take refuge in Boston, to screen himself from the violence of the mob. The Court of Common Pleas was forbid to set at Taunton, by a large mob, with a Justice acting as one of their Committee. At Middleborough, Peter Oliver, Esquire, by a mob, was obliged to sign a paper not to execute his office under the new Acts. At Springfield, the Courts of Common Pleas and General Sessions of the Peace, were prevented sitting by a large mob, who kept the Justices from entering the Court House, and obliged them, the Sheriff, and gentlemen of the Bar, to desist, with their hats off, from holding any Courts. Colonel Edson, one of his Majesty's Council, has been driven from his house in Bridgewater, and kept from it ever since last August, by the threats of mobs, and has been obliged to take refuge in Boston, for his being a friend to Government, and accepting his Majesty's appointment as Counsellor.

The Courts of General Sessions of the Peace, and Inferiour Court of Common Pleas for the County of Plymouth, have been shut up by mobs. Colonel Putnam of Worcester, a firm friend to Government, had two fat Cows stolen and taken from him, and a very valuable Grist Mill burnt, and he obliged to leave a fair estate in Worcester, and retire to Boston, where he has been ever since August last, for his protesting against riots, &c. Colonel Murray, of Rutland, one of his Majesty's Council, has been obliged to leave a large estate in the County, and repair to Boston, to save himself from being handled by the mob, and compelled to resign his seat at the Council Board; his house has been attacked, his family put in fear, &c., &c. Colonel Vassal, of Cambridge, from intolerable threats, and insolent treatment of mobs to his friends and himself, has left his elegant seat there, and retired to Boston, with his amiable family, for protection. John Borland, Esquire, in the same predicament with Colonel Vassal. Honourable John Chandler, Esquire, Judge of Probate, &c., for the County of Worcester, obliged to retreat to Boston for protection, and leave his business, and a numerous family of hopeful youths behind him, with great reluctance, and who before he came away, was ordered by the mob to hold his office till further order. The Plymouth Protesters, Addressers, and Military Officers, were compelled, by a mob of two thousand, collected from Plymouth and Barnstable Counties, to recant and resign their military commissions. Thomas Foster, Esquire, an ancient gentleman, was obliged to run into the woods, and had like to have been lost; and the mob, although the Justices, with Mr. Foster, were sitting in the Town, yet ransacked his house, and damaged his furniture; he then fled into the woods, and had like to have lost his life there; he was obnoxious as a friend to Government, and for that reason they endeavoured to deprive him of his business, and prevent even his taking the acknowledgment of a deed. Richard Clark, Esquire, a consignee of the Tea, was obliged to retire from Salem to Boston, as an asylum; and his son Isaac went to Plymouth to collect debts, but in the night was assaulted by a mob, and obliged to get out of Town at midnight. Jesse Dunbar, of Halifax, in Plymouth County, bought some fat Cattle of Mr. Thomas, the Counsellor, and drove them to Plymouth for sale; one of the Oxen being skinned and hung up, the Committee came to him, and finding he bought it of Mr. Thomas, they put the Ox into a cart, and fixed Dunbar in his belly, and carted him four miles, and then made him pay a dollar, after taking three more Cattle and a Horse from him; the Plymouth mob delivered him to the Kingston mob, which carted him four miles further, and forced from him another dollar, then delivered him to the Duxbury mob, who abused him by throwing the tripe in his face, and endeavouring to cover him with it, to the endangering his life, then threw dirt at him, and after other abuses, carried him to said Thomas's house, and made him pay another sum of money: and he not taking the beef, they flung it in the road and quitted him. Daniel Dunbar, of Halifax, an Ensign of Militia there, had his colours demanded by the mob, some of the Selectmen being the chief actors; he refused, they broke into his house, took him out, forced him upon a rail, and was held on it by his hands and legs, and tossed up with violence; in resisting, when they attempted to put him on the rail, they seized him by his private parts to drag him on it, then beat him, and after keeping him two or three hours in such abuses, he was forced to give his colours up to save his life. A Constable of Hardwick, for refusing to pay his collections directly, contrary to the oath of his office, was bound and confined six and thirty hours, and threatened with being sent to Simsbury Mines; was not suffered to lay on a bed; his wife being dangerously ill, he was released, after signing a something which one of the mob drew up for him to sign. The Mob Committee of the County of York, ordered that no one should hire any of Sir William Pepperell's estates, buy any wood of him, or pay any debts due to him. In February, at Plymouth, a number of ladies attempted to divert themselves at their Assembly Room; but the mob collected, the Committee having met previous thereto; they flung stones, which broke the shutters and windows, and endangered their lives; they were forced to get out of the hall, and were pelted and abused to their own homes; after this, the ladies diverted themselves by riding out, but were followed by a mob, pelted and abused with the most indecent Billingsgate language. These firings happened at the time when some of the people of Plymouth, in conjunction with the Committee-men from other Towns in that County, aided and assisted by four dissenting Clergymen, were presenting to the General by their Memorial, the peaceable state they were in before the arrival of a party of Soldiers at Marshfield, in that County.

The Honourable Israel Williams, Esquire, one who was appointed of his Majesty's new Council, but had declined the office through infirmity of body, was taken from his house by the mob in the night, carried several miles, put into a room with a fire, the chimney at the top, and doors of the room being closed, and kept there for many hours in the smoke, till his life was in danger, then carried home, after being forced to sign what they ordered, and a guard put over him to prevent his coming from home.

To recount the suffering of all from mobs, rioters, and trespassers, would take more time and paper than can be spared for that purpose. It is hoped the foregoing will be sufficient to put you upon the use of proper means and measures for giving relief to all that have been injured by such unlawful and wicked practices.

Boston, February 23, 1775.

INSTRUCTIONS OF GENERAL GAGE TO CAPTAIN BROWN AND ENSIGN D'BERNICRE.

Boston, February 22, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: You will go through the Counties of Suffolk and Worcester, taking a sketch of the country as you pass; it is not expected you should make out regular plans and surveys, but mark out the Roads and Distances from Town to Town, as also the situation and nature of the country; all Passes must be particularly laid down, noticing the length and breadth of them, the entrance in and going out of them, and whether to be avoided by taking other routes.

The Rivers also to be sketched out, remarking their breadth and depth, and the nature of their banks on both sides; the Fords, if any, and the nature of their bottoms; many of which particulars may be learned of the country people.

You will remark the Heights you meet with, whether the ascents are difficult or easy; as also the Woods and Mountains, with the height and nature of the latter, whether to be got round or easily passed over.

The nature of the country to be particularly noticed, whether enclosed or open; if the former, what kind of enclosures, and whether the country admits of making Roads for Troops on the right or left of the main Road, or on the sides.

You will notice the situation of the Towns and Villages, their Churches, and Church-yards, whether they are advantageous spots to take post in, and capable of being made defensible.

If any places strike you as proper for encampments, or appear strong by nature, you will remark them particularly, and give reasons for your opinions.

It would be useful if you could inform yourselves of the necessaries their different Counties could supply, such as Provisions, Forage, Straw, &c., the number of Cattle, Horses, &c., in the several Townships.

I am, gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,
THOMAS GAGE.

To Captain Brown, Fifty-second Regiment, and Ensign D'Bernicre, Tenth Regiment.

NARRATIVE OF ENSIGN D'BERNICRE.

The latter end of February, 1775, Captain Brown and myself received orders to go through the Counties of Suffolk and Worcester, and sketch the Roads as we went, for the information of General Gage, as he expected to have occasion to march Troops through that country the ensuing Spring.

We set out from Boston, on Thursday, disguised like countrymen, in brown Clothes and reddish handkerchiefs round our necks; at the Ferry of Charlestown, we met a sentry of the Fifty-second Regiment, but Captain Brown's servant, whom we took along with us, bid him not to take any notice of us, so that we passed unknown to Charlestown. From that we went to Cambridge, a pretty Town, with a College built of brick; the ground is entirely level on which the Town stands. We next went to Watertown, and were not suspected. It is a pretty large Town for America, but would be looked upon as a Village in England; a little out of this Town we went into a Tavern, a Mr. Brewer's, a Whig; we called for dinner, which was brought in by a black woman, at first she was very civil, but afterwards began to eye us very attentively; she then went out and a little after returned, when we observed to her that it was a very fine country, upon which she answered so it is, and we have got brave fellows to defend it, and if you go up any higher you will find it so. This disconcerted us a good deal, and we imagined she knew us from our papers, which we took out before her, as the General had told us to pass for surveyors; however, we resolved not to sleep there that night, as we had intended, accordingly we paid our bill, which amounted to two Pounds odd Shillings, but it was old tenor. After we had left the house we inquired of John, our servant, what she had said; he told us that she knew Captain Brown very well, that she had seen him five years before at Boston, and knew him to be an officer, and that she was sure I was one also, and told John that he was a regular - he denied it; but she said she knew our errand was to take a plan of the Country; that she had seen the River and Road through Charlestown on the paper; she also advised him to tell us not to go any higher, for if we did we should meet with very bad usage. Upon this we called a council, and agreed that if we went back we should appear very foolish, as we had a great number of enemies in Town, because the General had chose to employ us in preference to them; it was absolutely necessary to push on to Worcester, and run all risk rather than go back until we were forced. Accordingly we continued our route and went about six miles further; we met a country fellow driving a team, and a fellow with him whom we suspected to be a deserter; they both seemed very desirous to join company with us, and told us, upon our saying we were going towards Worcester, that they were going our way. As we began to suspect something, we stopped at a Tavern, at the sign of the Golden-ball, with an intention to get a drink and so proceed; but upon our going in the landlord pleased us so much, as he was not inquisitive, that we resolved to lie there that night; so we ordered some fire to be made in the room we were in, and a little after to get us some Coffee; he told us we might have what we pleased, either Tea or Coffee. We immediately found out with whom we were, and were not a little pleased to find, on some conversation, that he was a friend to Government; he told us that he had been very ill used by them some time before, but that since he had shewed them that he was not to be bullied, they had left him pretty quiet. We then asked him for the Inns that were on the road between his house and Worcester; he recommended us to two, one at about nine miles from his house, a Mr. Buckminster's, and another at Worcester, a namesake of his own, a Mr. Jones.

The second day was very rainy, and a kind of frost; with it, however, we resolved to set off, and accordingly we proceeded to Mr. Buckminster's; we met nothing extraordinary on the road; we passed some time in sketching a Pass that lay on our road, and of consequence were very dirty and wet on our arrival. On our entering the house we did not much like the appearance of things; we asked for dinner, and they gave us some sausages; we praised every thing exceedingly, which pleased the old woman of the house much; when we told them we intended staying the night, they gave us a room to ourselves, which was what we wanted; after being there some time we found we were pretty safe, as by that time we perceived that the côte du pays was not a dangerous one; of consequence we felt very happy, and Brown, I, and our man John, made a very hearty supper, for we always treated him as our companion, since our adventure with the black woman. We slept there that night, and the next morning being a very fine one we resolved to push on for Worcester, which was about thirty miles from us; we proceeded about nine miles without anything extraordinary happening, except meeting two men whom we suspected to be deserters.

We then dined in the woods on a tongue and some cherry brandy we brought with us, and changed our stockings, which refreshed us much, our feet being very wet. We then travelled through a very fine country, missed our way and went to Southborough; we were obliged to turn back a mile to get the right road. We then passed through Shrewsbury, all a fine open cultivated country. We came into a pass about four miles from Worcester, where we were obliged to stop to sketch. We arrived at Worcester at five o'clock in the evening, very much fatigued; the people in the Town did not take notice of us as we came in, so that we got safe to Mr. Jones's Tavern; on our entrance he seemed a little sour, but it wore off by degrees and we found him to be our friend, which made us very happy; we dined and supped without any thing happening out of the common run.

The next day being Sunday, we could not think of travelling, as it was contrary to the custom of the country; nor dare we stir out until the evening, because of meeting, and nobody is allowed to walk the streets during divine service, without being-taken up and examined; so that thinking we could not stand the examination so well, we thought it prudent to stay at home, where we wrote and corrected our sketches. The landlord was very attentive to us, and on our asking what he could give us for breakfast, he told us Tea or any thing else we chose - that was an open confession what he was; but for fear he might be imprudent we did not tell him who we were, though we were certain he knew it. In the evening we went round the Town, and on all the Hills that command it, sketched every thing we desired, and returned to the Town without being seen. That evening about eight o'clock the landlord came in and told us there were two gentlemen who wanted to speak with us; we asked him-who they were? on which he said we would be safe in their company; we said we did not doubt that, as we hoped that two gentlemen who travelled merely to see the country and stretch our limbs, as we had lately come from Sea, could not meet with anything else but civility, when we behaved ourselves properly; he told us he would come in again in a little time, and perhaps we would change our minds, and then left us; - an hour after he returned, and told us the gentlemen were gone, but had begged him to let us know, as they knew us to be officers of the Army, that all their friends of Government, at Petersham, were disarmed by the Rebels, and that they threatened to do the same at Worcester in a very little time; he sat and talked politicks, and drank a bottle of wine with us, and also told us that none but a few friends to Government knew we were in Town; we said it was very indifferent to us whether they did or not, though we thought very differently; however, as we imagined we had staid long enough in that Town, we resolved to set off at daybreak the next morning, and get to Framingham; accordingly off we set. after getting some roast beef and brandy from our landlord, which was very necessary on a long march, and prevented us going into houses where perhaps they might be too inquisitive.

We took a Road we had not come, and that led us to the Pass four miles from Worcester; we went on unobserved by any one until we passed Shrewsbury, where we were overtaken by a horseman who examined us very attentively, and; especially me, whom he looked at from head to foot, as if he wanted to know me again; after he had taken his observations he rode off pretty hard and took the Marlborough Road, but by good luck we took the Framingham Road again to be more perfect in it, as we thought it would be the one made use of. We arrived at Buckminster's Tavern about six o'clock that evening; the Company of Militia were exercising near the house, and an hour after they came and performed their feats before the windows of the room we were in; we did not feel very easy at seeing such a number so very near us; however, they did not know who we were, and took little or no notice of us. After they had done their exercise, one of their commanders spoke a very eloquent speech, recommending patience, coolness and bravery, (which indeed they much wanted,) particularly told them they would always conquer if they did not break, and recommended them to charge us coolly, and wait for our fire, and every thing would succeed with them - quotes Cæsar and Pom- pey, Brigadiers Putnam and Ward, and all such great men; put them in mind of Cape Breton, and all the battles they had gained for his Majesty in the last war, and observed that the Regulars must have been ruined but for them. After so learned and spirited an harangue, he dismissed the parade, and the whole company came into the house and drank until nine o'clock, and then returned to their respective homes full of pot-valour.

We slept there that night and nobody in the house suspected us. Next morning we set off for Weston, had a very agreeable day, having fine weather and a beautiful country to travel through; we met nothing extraordinary on the road; nobody knew us, and we were asked very few questions.

On our arrival at Mr. Jones's, we met with a very welcome reception, he being our friend; we received several hints from the family not to attempt to go any more into the country; but as we had succeeded so well heretofore, we were resolved to go the Sudbury Road (which was the main Road that led to Worcester), and go as far as the thirty-seven mile-stone; where we had left the main Road, and taken the Framingham Road. We slept at Jones's that night, and got all our sketches together and sent them to Boston with our man, so that if they did stop and search us, they would not get our papers. The next day was very cloudy and threatened bad weather; towards twelve o'clock it snowed; we dined soon, in hopes the weather would clear up. At two o'clock it ceased snowing a little, and we resolved to set off for Marlborough, which was about sixteen miles off; we found the Roads very bad, every step up to our ankles; we passed through Sudbury, a very large village, near a mile long; the Causeway lies across a great swamp; or overflowing of the River Sudbury, and commanded by a high ground on the opposite side; nobody took the least notice of us until we arrived within three miles of Marlborough, (it was snowing hard all the while,) when a horseman overtook us and asked us from whence we came; we said from Weston; he asked if we lived there, we said no; he then asked us where we resided, and as we found there was no evading his questions, we told him we lived at Boston; he then asked us where we were going, we told him to Marlborough, to see a friend, (as we intended to go to Mr. Barnes's, a gentleman to whom we were recommended, and a friend to Government;) he then asked us if we were in the Army, we said not, but were a good deal alarmed at his asking us that question; he asked several rather impertinent questions, and then rode on for Marlborough, as we suppose, to give them intelligence there of our coming, for on our entering the Town the people came out of their houses (though it snowed and blew very hard) to look at us; in particular a baker asked Captain Brown, where are you going master? he answered, off to see Mr. Barnes.

We proceeded to Mr. Barnes's, and on our beginning to make an apology for taking the liberty to make use of his house, and discovering to him that we were officers in disguise, he told us we need not be at the pains of telling him, that he knew our situation, that we were very well known (he was afraid) by the Town's people (we begged he would recommend some tavern where we should be safe, he told us we could be safe no where but in his house; that the Town was very violent, and that we had been expected at Colonel Williams's the night before, where there had gone a party of liberty people to meet us - (we suspected, and indeed had every reason to believe, that the horseman that met us and took such particular notice of me the morning we left Worcester, was the man who told them we should be at Marlborough the night before, but our taking the Framingham Road when he had passed us, deceived him.) Whilst we were talking, the people were gathering in little groups in every part of the Town. Mr. Barnes asked us who had spoke to us on our coming into the Town? we told him a baker; he seemed a little startled at that; told us he was a very mischievous fellow, and that there was a deserter at his house; Captain Brown asked the man's name, he said it was Swain, that he had been a drummer; Brown knew him too well, as he was a man of his own Company, and had not been gone above a month; so we found we were discovered. We asked Mr. Barnes if they did get us into their hands, what they would do with us? he did not seem to like to answer; we asked him again, he then said we knew the people very well, that we might expect the worst of treatment from them. Immediately after this Mr. Barnes was called out; he returned a little after and told us the Doctor of the Town had come to tell him he was come to sup with him - (now this fellow had not been within Mr. Barnes's doors for two years before, and came now for no other business than to see and betray us;) Barnes told him he had company and could not have the pleasure of attending him that night; upon this the fellow stared about the house, and asked one of Mr. Barnes's children who her father had got with him? the child innocently answered that she had asked her pappu, but he told her that it was not her business; he then went, I suppose, to tell the rest of his crew. When we found we were in that situation, we resolved to lie down for two or three hours, and set off at twelve o'clock at night; so we got some supper on the table, and were just beginning to eat, when Barnes (who had been making inquiry of his servants) found they intended to attack us, and then he told us plainly he was very uneasy for us, that we could be no longer in safety in that Town; upon which we resolved to set off immediately, and asked Mr. Barnes if there was no road round the Town; so that we might not be seen; he took us out of his house by the stables, and directed us a bye road which was to lead us a quarter of a mile from the Town; it snowed and blew as much as ever I see it in my life; however, we walked pretty fast, fearing we should be pursued; at first we felt much fatigued, having not been more than twenty minutes at Mr. Barnes's to refresh ourselves, and the roads (if possible) were worse than when we came; but in a little time after it wore off, and we got, without being perceived, as far as the hills that command the Causeway at Sudbury, and went into a little wood where we eat a bit of bread that we took from Mr. Barnes's, and eat a little snow to wash it down. After that we proceeded about one hundred yards, when a man came out of a house and said those words to Captain Brown, "What do you think will become of you now?" which startled us a good deal, thinking that we were betrayed. We resolved to push on at all hazards, but expected to be attacked on the Causeway; however we met nobody there, so began to think it was resolved to stop us in Sudbury, which Town we entered when we passed the Causeway. About a quarter of a mile in the Town we met three or four horsemen, from whom we expected a few shot; when we came nigh they opened to the right and left and quite crossed the Road, however they let us pass through them without taking any notice, their opening being only chance; but our apprehensions made us interpret every thing against us. At last we arrived at our friend Jones's again, very much fatigued, after walking thirty-two miles between two o'clock and half-after ten at night, through a road that every step we sunk up to the ankles, and it blowing and drifting snow all the way. Jones said he was glad to see us back, as he was sure we should meet with ill usage in that part of the country, as they had been watching for us some time; but said he found we were so deaf to his hints that he did not like to say any thing for fear we should have taken it ill. We drank a bottle of mulled Madeira wine, which refreshed us very much, and went to bed and slept as sound as men could do that were very much fatigued. The next morning, after breakfast, we set off for Boston. Jones shewed us a Road that took us a quarter of a mile below Watertown Bridge, as we did not choose to go through that Town. We arrived at Boston about twelve o'clock, and met General Gage and General Haldimand, with their Aid-de-Camps, walking out on the Neck, they did not know us until we discovered ourselves: we besides met several officers of our acquaintance, who did not know us.

A few days after our return Mr. Barnes came to Town from Marlborough, and told us, immediately on our quitting the Town, the Committee of Correspondence came to his house and demanded us; he told them we were gone; they then searched his house from top to bottom, looked under the beds, and in their cellars, and when they found we were gone, they told him if they had caught us in his house they would have pulled it about his ears. They then sent horsemen after us every road; but as we had the start of them, and the weather being so very bad, they either did not overtake us, or missed us. Mr. Barnes told them we were not officers, but relations of his wife's, from Penobscot, and were going to Lancaster; that, perhaps, might have deceived them.

Salem, February 28, 1775.

Last Sabbath, the 26th instant, the peace of the Town was disturbed by the landing of a Regiment of the King's Troops, the particulars relative to which are as follows:

A Transport arrived at Marblehead, apparently manned as usual. Between two and three o'clock (as soon as the people had gone to meeting) the decks were covered with Soldiers, who having loaded, and fixed their bayonets, landed with great despatch, and instantly marched off. Some of the inhabitants suspecting they were bound to Salem, to seize some materials there preparing for an Artillery, despatched several messengers to inform us of it. These materials were on the North side of the North River, and to come at them it was necessary to cross a Bridge, one part of which was made to draw up to let vessels pass. The inhabitants kept a look out-for the appearance of the Troops. The van guard arrived, and took their route down Town as far as the Long Wharf, perhaps to decoy the inhabitants thither, away from the place to which the main body was destined. The main body arrived soon after, and halted a few minutes by the Town-house. It is said inquiry was immediately made by some of the officers for a half-brother of Colonel Browne, the Mandamus Counsellor. Be this as it may, he was soon whispering in the Colonel's ear, in the front of the Regiment, and when he parted from the Colonel the Regiment marched with a quick pace towards the North Bridge; just before their entering upon which the Bridge was pulled up. The Regiment however pushed on till they came to the Bridge, not observing (as it seemed) that it was drawn up. The Colonel expressed some surprise; and turning about, ordered an officer to face his Company to a body of men standing on a wharf on the other side the draw-bridge, and to fire. One of our townsmen who had kept alongside the Colonel from the time he marched from his own house) told him he had better not fire; that he had no right to fire without further orders, and if you do fire (said he) you will be all dead men. The Company neither faced nor fired. the Colonel retired to the centre of his Regiment, assembled his officers, and held a consultation; which being ended he advanced a little, and declared he would maintain his ground, and go over the Bridge if it was a month first. The same townsman replied, he might stay there as long as he pleased, no one cared for that. The half-brother, before mentioned, (it is said) made towards the Bridge, but seeing the draw-bridge up said "it is all over with us."

He has since disappeared, meanwhile two large gondolas that lay aground (for it was low water) were scuttled, lest they should cross the channel in them. But whilst one gentleman with his assistants was scuttling his own gondola, a party of about twenty Soldiers jumped into it, and with their bayonets charged against our unarmed townsmen, (some of whom they pricked) compelled them to quit it; but before this a sufficient hole was made in the bottom. This attack of the Soldiers, and some other occurrences occasioned a little bickering, but by the interposition of some of the inhabitants, the disputes subsided. At length some gentleman asked the Colonel what was his design in making this movement, and why he would cross the Bridge? He said, I have orders to cross it, and he would cross it if he lost his life with the lives of all his men; and asked, why the King's highway was obstructed? He was told it was not the King's Road, but the property of the inhabitants, who had a right to do what they pleased with it. Finally the Colonel said he must go over, and if the Bridge was let down so as he might pass, he pledged his honour he would march not above thirty rods beyond it, and then immediately return.

The Regiment had now been at the Bridge about an hour and an half; and every thing being secured, the inhabitants directed the Bridge might be let down. The Regiment immediately passed over, marched a few rods, returned, and with great expedition went back to Marblehead, where they went on board the Transport without delay.

When all the circumstances are considered, there can remain no doubt that the sole purpose of this manœuvre was to steal away the Artillery materials.

It is regretted that an officer of Colonel Leslie's acknowledged worth, should be obliged, in obedience to his orders, to come upon so pitiful an errand. Various reports were spread abroad respecting the Troops; the country was alarmed, and one Company arrived in Arms from Danver's, just as the Troops left the Town. We immediately despatched messengers to the neighbouring Towns, to save them the trouble of coming in; but the alarm flew like lightning (and some, doubtless, magnified the first simple reports) so that great numbers were in Arms, and some on their march, before our messengers arrived.

Charlestown, South Carolina, February 27, 1775.

This day arrived Captain William Carter, of the Snow Lively, from Falmouth and Teneriffe, having imported two ton of Potatoes, which fell under the last clause of the tenth article of the Continental Association. Rather than endanger the health of his people by carrying them back, he chose to throw them overboard into the River, which he did in the presence of the Committee of Observation.

The Ship Charming Sally, Captain Fortune, which arrived here the 16th instant, from Bristol, having on board a cargo which likewise falls under the tenth article of the Continental Association, (viz: three thousand eight hundred and forty-four bushels of Salt and thirty-five chaldrons of Coal, consigned to Mr. John Nutoille; forty thousand and five hundred Tiles, consigned to Mr. John Webb, for covering a house which he is building; and forty-four pieces of Sail Duck, consigned to the master) went over into Hogs Island Creek, the concerned therein choosing that the Salt, Coal, and Tiles should be thrown overboard as ballast, rather than be carried back to Bristol, and this morning the said cargo began to be thrown into the said Creek accordingly, the Committee of Observation attending by desire.

In Committee, Philadelphia February 27, 1775.

Resolved, That the following Notification, and Extract from the Association of the Continental Congress be published in the Papers.

As the Continental Congress have recommended to the inhabitants of these Colonies the total disuse of all East India Teas, after the first day of March, this Committee think it expedient to remind the inhabitants of the City and Liberties of the great necessity of observing the Association of the General Congress in this particular.

From the uniform spirit and conduct of the people in the faithful execution of said Association, in all cases which have hitherto occurred, the Committee have no doubt but the general good, and a regard to the liberties of his country will continue to influence every individual to a steady adherence to measures upon which the political salvation of this country seems, under God, to depend; and that the honour and publick virtue of the people may be safely confided in.

Extract from the Association of the Continental Congress: -

"Third. As a Non-Consumption Agreement, strictly adhered to, will be an effectual security for the observation of the Non-Importation, we, as above, solemnly agree and associate, that, from this day, we will not purchase or use any Tea imported on account of the East India Company, or any on which a Duty hath been or shall be paid; and from and after the first day of March next we will not purchase or use any East India Tea whatsoever."

From the minutes of the Committee for the City and Liberties of Philadelphia.

J. B. SMITH, Secretary.

Committee Chamber, New-York, February 27, 1775.

Ordered, That as the Non-Importation of India Tea is to take place in a few days, the third article of the Association be printed, in all the publick Papers of this City, in order that the inhabitants be apprized thereof. By order of the Committee,

ISAAC LOW, Chairman.

NEW-MILFORD (CONNECTICUT) RESOLUTIONS.

A great number of Freeholders and Inhabitants of the Town of New-Milford, in Litchfield County, being highly sensible of the blessings of good order and government, and much alarmed at the horrible prospect of anarchy and confusion, did, on Monday, the 27th instant, unanimously enter into the following Resolutions:

1. That we think it a point of duty, in this day of trouble and confusion, to make it known to the World, that we have signed a Protest against the Town of New-Milford's adopting the Resolves of the Continental Congress.

2. That we do acknowledge his most sacred Majesty, King George the Third, to be our rightful Sovereign; and do hereby publickly avow our allegiance to him and his legal successors.

3. That we acknowledge that the King arid Parliament have a constitutional right of Government over every part of the British Empire; and that we look upon ourselves as not bound by any unconstitutional assemblies of men whatever, such as are not warranted by the laws of the land.

The above is signed by one hundred and twenty inhabitants of the Town of New-Milford in Litchfield County.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM PHILADELPHIA, TO A GENTLEMAN IN NEW-YORK, DATED FEBRUARY 27, 1775.

I hope you will not be misled by the puffs of Mr. Rivington's Philadelphia Correspondent, respecting the state of publick virtue in this Province. Our Assembly begin to vie with the Assemblies of Virginia and Massachusetts Bay. A motion has made a few days ago in the House to petition the Throne, but it was strenuously opposed, as a measure that detracted from the union and dignity of the Colonies. Mr. Dickinson acquired fresh laurels in this debate. His zeal and firmness in the cause of liberty cannot be too much commended. Our new Speaker, Mr. Biddle, has taken a decisive part in the present controversy, and has exerted the whole of his abilities and influence in supporting the measures of the Congress. The motion for petitioning the King, was put off till next week when there is no doubt but it will be rejected by a great majority of the House. Our Counties (Bucks excepted) are as one man, and are ready to do or suffer any thing in support of American freedom. Our City Committees have subdued all opposition to their measures; in a word, we have all the wealth, virtue, and understanding in the Province, on the side of liberty. I must here except that share of them which belong to the Friends; but even this body of people are divided; many of them, perhaps most of them, disapprove of the Testimony which was published against the Proceedings of the Congress: it was agreed upon and written at a meeting of only twenty-six of that society. There are but eight or ten avowed Tories in our City, and those consist chiefly of young lads who have just emerged from behind the counter; and like the Town of Geneva, owe their security entirely to their weakness. It would give them that kind of consequence they aim at, only to mention their names. The most contemptible of them all is universally suspected of being Rivington's lying Correspondent.

You may publish the whole of the above account of our Assembly, Province, &c., in Mr. Holt's Paper. It may serve as an antidote against some of the falsehoods in the Gazetteer.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM PHILADELPHIA, TO MR. RIVINGTON, NEW-YORK, DATED FEBRUARY 28, 1775.

I have now to inform you that the opposition to the Congress has done some good in our Assembly. Mr. Galloway spoke most ably; he told the House that the measures of the Congress, if pursued, would ruin America, reduce it to a conquered country; that they ought to be opposed, &c., &c. A congressional termagant retorted on him with more violence than sense, declared that there was not one man in a thousand who disapproved of their proceedings. The former replied that he was mistaken; that thousands and tens of thousands abhorred and dreaded them; that their numbers were increasing with the most amazing rapidity, &c., &c. These debates ensued upon a motion of the House to consider the Governour's Message relative to a Petition to the King; on a division, I think there were ninetion for taking the matter into consideration ten days hence, and eighteen for throwing it out. Before this division, the Pennsylvania's oracle proved, to the conviction of every Member, that no Petition from America had ever been rejected, when couched in such terms that it could be received with dignity. Should our Assembly agree to petition, it will be done in a very dutiful style, without retrospect on their own conduct.

PENNSYLVANIA COUNCIL.

At a Council held at Philadelphia, on Saturday, 25th February. 1775: Present, the Honourable John Penn, Esquire, Governour, Benjamin Chew, James Tilghman, Edward Shippen, Junior, Esquires.

The Governour laid before the Board several Letters he had this day received by expresses from the Magistrates of Westmoreland County, complaining of further violences in breaking open the Jail of that County, and discharging the prisoners, and other outrages lately committed by the Militia and people of Virginia, and enclosing sundry Depositions supporting those complaints; which were severally read, and follow in these words, viz:

ROBERT HANNA TO GOVERNOUR PENN.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: On Tuesday, the 7th instant, came a number of armed men to this Town, who demanded entrance in the Jail of this County. - On the Jailer's refusing to admit them, they in a violent manner broke said Jail with a sledge, which they took out of the Smithshop without leave. One William M'Geery came to me about daybreak, to inform me of the affair, on which I as soon as possible went to the Jail, and demanded of them what they were about. Benjamin Harrison (one of the company) answered, "what they had done, they did by the authority from Virginia. They had before this broke the Jail doors, and released the prisoners. I then commanded silence, and read the Riot Act, and immediately the Sheriff of this County came up, and demanded by what authority they broke the Jail. They said they had authority, which they could show if they pleased. The Sheriff replied, a civil question demanded a civil answer. Then they produced a paper which they read as their order from William Crawford, Esquire, President of our Court, which will further appear from the Sheriff's Deposition, (and I believe the Sheriff does every thing in his power in the execution of his office.) After reading the Riot Act, they remained together upwards of one hour. They took three prisoners with them, and what they were committed for, your Honour will know by the enclosed Depositions. One Samuel Wilson presented his gun at me at the same time, which I caught hold of to prevent his shooting me; he also used very bad language. There will, it is thought, (unless your Honour does something respecting this affair,) be few Pennsylvanians here, as the chief of the people are taking out orders from Virginia. They are in so confused a situation, that they seem not to know what they are about. I have it from good authority, at David Vance, one of the above company, damned the Pennsylvania Magistrates, and also their authority.

I am your Honour's most humble servant,

ROBERT HANNA

To the Honourable John Penn, Esquire, Governour-in-Chief of the Province of Pennsylvania, &c.

February 8, 1775.

JOHN CARNAGHAN TO GOVERNOR PENN.

Hanna's Town, February 8, 1775,

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: Enclosed you have four Depositions, by which your Honour may see the proceedings of the Virginians against this Province.

I am at a loss how to proceed in matters, as I am daily threatened of my life and property, if I proceed to execute my office, which I have to the utmost of my power endeavoured to do, (having likewise seen a gun presented at Mr. Hanna, Esquire, by one of the Virginia party, Samuel Wilson by name, after reading the Riot Act to a party of them.) It is still my desire to go on accordingly, but should be glad your Honour would give me such directions as you in your wisdom shall think fit.

I am your Honour's most humble servant,

JOHN CARNAGHAN.

DEPOSITION OF JOHN CARNAGHAN.

WESTMORELAND County, SS:

Personally appeared before me, the subscriber, one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the County aforesaid, John Carnaghan, Esquire, High Sheriff for the County aforesaid, who being duly sworn upon the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, doth depose and say, that, yesterday morning, he hearing that there were a number of armed men breaking the Jail, he went to see whether it was so, and coming up to the Jail, he saw a number of armed men, (by name, as the party themselves gave them in,) Benjamin Harrison, David Vance, Samuel Newal, Robert Newal, James People, Thomas Bays, Joseph Marshqll, Charles Clark, Isaac Justice, David M'Kaw, John M'Kaw, William Bays, Charles Kyle, Hugh Newal, (Samuel Warden, Samuel Wilson, John Neil, the three prisoners,) George Watt, who having broke two of the Jail doors, (both being locked,) upon which he, the said Carnaghan, demanded to know by what authority they broke those doors, they made answers, and told him that they had their authority, upon which he demanded to see it, when one Benjamin Harrison, who appeared to be their commander, told him they had their orders from Major William Crawford, and that he could shew them, if he pleased, upon which he told him, (the said Harrison,) that a civil question deserved a civil answer, upon which the said Harrison, shewed him, the said Carnaghan, a paper, and read to this effect, or near to this substance: For them, the party aforesaid, to press horses, and what was necessary, and to go to Hanna's Town, and to open the Jail, and let the prisoners go out; and signed by William Crawford. And the said John Carnaghan further saith, that the party aforesaid shewed a warrant signed by one Dorsey Penticost, as they told him, who acts as a Magistrate under the Colony of Virginia, to take one Captain James Smith, and one Edward Murray, for executing warrants, and taking one of the people, which the party aforesaid took out of Jail, (for committing a riot, and throwing down a man's house, and almost killing a woman,) and acting as Constables, under the Province of Pennsylvania, and upon which warrant, signed by Dorsey Penticost, (as they said,) they took the aforesaid James Smith and Edward Murray along with them to answer for the crime aforesaid, (as they called it,) and the said John Carnaghan further saith, that one of the aforesaid party, (David Vance by name,) told him that he would be taken soon, and that he, the said Vance, had positive orders, that if any Pennsylvania officer would offer to take him, or any of them, with precepts under the Government of Pennsylvania, to shoot them, and that he would do it; and further this deponent saith not.

JOHN CARNAGHAN.

Sworn and subscribed before me, this 8th day of February, 1775.

ROBERT HANNA.

DEPOSITION OF JAMES KINKAID.

WESTMORELAND County, ss:

Personally appeared before me, William Lochey, one of his Majesty's Justices for the County aforesaid, James Kinkaid, Coroner for said County, who, on his solemn oath on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, deposeth and saith, that on Tuesday morning, the 7th instant, about twilight, he heard some person or persons striking with a sledge on the Jail door, as he looked out of the window in a room of Robert Hanna, Esquire, and then went to the Jail, found the doors broken off the hinges, and hanging on the locks, and Stephen and a number of men armed present. Mr. Hanna says, boys, you are early up to buy a rope to hang yourselves. Benjamin Harrison answered, (one of the men under arms,) what we have done, we have done by authority, and we are not afraid of damage. Mr. Hanna brought the Riot Act, and called silence, and read the same, so that every spectator might hear. Harrison, as well as others of the parties, said he might have let that alone, for they did not regard the Act, nor them that read it, nor them that made it; for they had their orders for what they had done. John Carnaghan then came, and demanded said Harrison to shew his authority, if he had any. At first he seemed to refuse, but at last did read, and this deponent saw the same signed by William Crawford, wherein he had orders to press horses, raise men, &c., go to Hanna's Town, open the Jail doors, and set the prisoners at liberty; and further saith not.

JAMES KINKAID.

Sworn and subscribed before me, the 13th of February, 1775.

WM. LOCHEY.

DEPOSITION OF SAMUEL WHITESITT.

WESTMORELAND County, ss:

Personally appeared before us, the subscribers, three of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the County aforesaid, Samuel Whitesitt, who, being duly sworn upon the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, did depose and say, that this day, the 7th day of February, in the morning, between twilight, there came a number of armed men, and with a large sledge, about ten pounds weight, broke open the outside Jail door, and one of the inside doors, both being locked, and sent the prisoners then in Jail, being three in number, (who were committed, one, by name John Nell, for a riot, and throwing down a man's house, with a number of others, the other two, by name Samuel Warden and Samuel Wilson, who were committed for a trespass,) off, and giving each of the prisoners, after the Jail being broke, a pistol, and told them, the prisoners, that they had helped them so far, and now to clear their own way; and the said Samuel Whitesitt further says, that he heard the number of armed men aforesaid say, that for their so doing they had orders from Captain William Crawford; and further this deponent saith not.

DEPOSITION OF CHARLES FOREMAN,

WESTMORELAND County, ss:

Personally appeared before us, the subscribers, three of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the County aforesaid, Charles Foreman, who, being duly sworn upon the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, doth depose and say, that this morning, between twilight, being the 7th day of February, he heard a noise at the Jail, and getting out of his bed, he saw a number of armed men breaking the door and charging the prisoners then in Jail to go about their County aforesaid, ask one Benjamin Harrison, who appeared to be their head man, whether they had any orders for their so doing, upon which he read a paper, and said it was Captain William Crawford's orders so to do; and the said Charles Foreman further saith, that he saw one Samuel Wilson make a push at one Robert Hanna, Esquire, with a gun, and told him not to be so saucy, and a great deal of ill tongue; and further this deponent saith not.

ROBERT HANNA, WILLIAM LOCHEY, JOHN CARNAGHAN, AND DEVEREUX SMITH, TO GOVERNOUR PENN.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: SIR, Our difficulties on account of the Connolly party is now grown to an extreme; all we can do or say in favour of our privileges from Pennsylvania will not do; the Depositions sent down, or transmitted to you, will, we hope, give you a sense of their very irregular proceedings. We are sorry to have occasion to repeat our complaints so often, but William Crawford, Esquire, and Dorsey Penticost, hath each opened a Land Office, and assumed the title of Deputy Surveyors to execute their entries. Several surveys they have already made. The people in general have already given up; and what can we do to support Government, there now being writs granted for almost every acting officer in this County, and we are every day expecting confinement. In short, any person applying for justice to us, may be assured to be arrested by them. James Smith, Captain, was taken and bound over to the Virginia Court, for only applying to the laws of Pennsylvania to have a banditti of villains punished for pulling down his house. Our Jail is of no use; the worst rascal is set at liberty; so we rest with patience, waiting for the opinion of your Honour, with such instructions as you may think adequate to our present difficulties. This from, sir, your Honour's most obedient and most humble servants,

ROBERT HANNA, JOHN CARNAGHAN, WILLIAM LOCHEY, DEVEREUX SMITH.

Hanna's Town, in Westmoreland County, February 13, 1775.

DEVEREUX SMITH TO GOVERNOUR PENN.

Hanna's Town, February 14, 1775.

SIR: The situation of this County, at present, is really distressing. Every man who has the least feeling, must pity the poor inhabitants, who, after returning to their places when the disturbances with the Indians subsided are now daily plundered of what little provisions they had to support their families, by a party of men kept up by order of Lord Dunmore, for what reason I am not able to a Judge. The Indians were never more peaceable than at present; it is true they have nine Mingoes prisoners in the Garrison; but they have other places of confinement that might answer as well, and save the expense of keeping seventy-five men in pay, and robbing the country to support them with provisions.

A set of people call themselves Virginians, have taken possession of most of the lands here, and say they have rights from the Virginia offices, two of which are held here, one by Captain William Crawford, and the other by D. Penticost.

The obstructions to the proceedings of our Court, prevents us from recovering our just debts; unless some speedy steps be taken to prevent their outrageous proceedings, this County must be inevitably ruined.

Mr. Connolly and Mr. John Campbell left Pittsburgh about fifteen days ago, and are gone for Williamsburgh. They had a petition about, which was signed by same people disaffected to this Government, praying the House of Burgesses that a Town might be laid out near Pittsburgh.

I send you the enclosed Depositions, that your Honour may see the many difficulties we labour under, and the unhappy situation of the inhabitants of this County. I am, with the greatest respect your very humble servant,

DEVEREUX SMITH.

DEPOSITION OF DEVEREUX SMITH.

WESTMORELAND County, ss:

Personally appeared before Joseph Spear, Esquire, one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for said County, Devereux Smith, Esquire, and being duly sworn, deposeth and saith, that on the night of the 8th instant, between eight and nine o'clock, twelve or more armed men, belonging to the Garrison kept up by Lord Dunmore's orders at this place, surrounded the house of the said Devereux Smith, in Pittsburgh, in the said County, threw stones, and attempted to break open his doors and windows, to the great terror of his family, at the same time telling him that they would shew what Virginia boys could do. That with the violence of throwing stones, &c., they split one of his window-shutters, and continued about the street till near twelve o'clock, during which he was under the necessity of sitting up in arms to protect his infant family; and further this deponent saith not.

DEPOSITION OF JAMES MEYERS.
WESTMORELAND County, ss:

Came before me, Devereux Smith, Esquire, one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for said County, James Meyers, and being duly sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, depose, that upon the 9th instant, a man who said he was one of the Militia, came to my house, and remained there till after night, and then produced a green Indian scalp, which he said he had taken off an Indian that he had killed the day before; he said he was then on his way down the country; and further this deponent saith not.

DEPOSITION OF DR. SAMUEL M'KENZIE.
WESTMORELAND County, ss.

Came before me, Devereux Smith, Esquire, one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for said County, Doctor Samuel M'Kenzie, and being duly sworn on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, depose, that on the night of the 8th instant, as he was sitting in the house of Mr. Butler, in Pittsburgh, they heard a noise, and on going to the door of said house, a number of men, armed with bayonets, run at Mr. Richard. Butler and deponent; that they were obliged to retreat into the house, and there remain about three hours, till the mob dispersed. That on the 9th instant, a party again surrounded Butler's house, not less than twelve in number, armed with bayonets and large bludgeons, and threatened the life of Mr. Butler and deponent; that about three o'clock on said day, while one of the Militia officers was at Butler's, a man came in who belonged to the Garrison, and said that a party of their men had gone out that morning to commit murder; and further this deponent saith not.

DEPOSITION OF JAMES SMITH.
WESTMORELAND County, ss:

Personally appeared before me, Robert Hanna, one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace of the County aforesaid, Captain James Smith, who, on his solemn oath on the Holy Evangelists of Almighty God, depose and saith, that he, this deponent, was Bound over to answer the Court of Virginia, before Dorsey Penticost, one of their Justices; and at same time said Penticost granted precepts for Robert Hanna, Esq., William Lochey, Esq., and John Carnaghan, Sheriff; and at same time this deponent said to Penticost, What do you mean by these precepts. Penticost said they were impostors on the Government and Dominion of Virginia, and he would have them confined, and then he said he was sure he had the others forced to a compliance to their laws. This deponent further said, your proceedings are illegal and irregular; and one day or another I think you will repent your conduct. Penticost said Lord Baltimore's heirs was not of age, and there was a dispute between the heirs of Lord Baltimore and Penn, which cannot be settled for some years, and for that time he liked to keep them in suspense; and let them do what they would until then, there would be an oblivion act made before the matters would be settled and compromised.

PENNSYLVANIA ASSEMBLY.
Monday, February 20, 1775.

The House met pursuant to their adjournment.
Ordered, That Mr. Rodman and Mr. Humphreys wait on the Governour and acquaint him that the House having met pursuant to their adjournment, are ready to receive any business he may be pleased to lay before them.
Mr. Speaker communicated to the House a Letter received in their recess from the Honourable Cortland Skinner, Esquire, Speaker of the Assembly of the Province of East and West Jersey, enclosing certain Resolves lately passed by that Assembly, which were read by order, and are as they severally follow, viz:

David Vance present, said, if he did not expect such an act, he would not have done what he had done; and further this deponent saith not.

March 1, 1775.

The Governour, this day, wrote a Letter to his Excellency the Earl of Dunmore, Governour of Virginia, enclosing copies of several Depositions which he lately received relative to the Disturbances in Westmoreland County, and despatched the same by express, which Letter follows in these words, viz:

Philadelphia, March 1, 1775.

MY LORD: When you reflect how many of my letters to your Lordship on publick affairs remain unanswered, you must be sensible it cannot be very agreeable to me to write to you on the present occasion; yet I find myself under a necessity of troubling you once more on the subject of the disturbances in the Western parts of this Province, The enclosed copies of several Depositions will inform your Lordship what recent outrages have been committed in the County of Westmoreland, under the sanction of your Government, as those who have been active in them publicly declare; and my intelligence informs me that your Lordship has set up an office for granting lands far within the limits of this Province, and that lands already patented by me have been granted by your Lordship, which cannot fail to produce the utmost confusion.
The justice due to myself and the other proprietors, and the protection I owe to the people who have taken up lands under this Province and settled there long before your Lordship thought fit to disturb its peace by extending the Government of Virginia within our Charter bounds, oblige me to apply to your Lordship to know if these violent proceedings are the effect of your orders, or have your countenance, that in case they have I may take the proper measures for redress; or if they have not that they may receive your discouragement. Your Lordship well knows that a Petition is depending before the Crown, for settling the bounds and running the lines of this Province, which, when done, will put an end to the unhappy disputes between the two Governments. You must remember that you have engaged to forward that good work, rather than throw impediments in its way; and I would fain hope that your Lordshp, in the mean time, will use your power and influence in composing rather than inflaming the differences amongst his Majesty's subjects of the two Colonies, occasioned by our clashing jurisdictions, especially when you consider that the County which is the seat of the present disturbances, was first settled under this Province, and that our jurisdiction was extended there in the time of your predecessor, Lord Botetourt, and recognized by his Lordship, in his sending hither for trial a person who had committed a murder at Stewart's Crossings, which is Westward of the Laurel Hill. I shall forbear to take any steps in this disagreeable affair, till I have the honour of an answer to this letter, which I hope your Lordship will favour me with by the return of the express. I have the honour to be your Lordship's most obedient humble servant,

JOHN PENN.

To the Right Honourable the Earl of Dunmore, Governour and Commander-in-Chief of his Majesty's Province of Virginia, Williamsburg.

Perth Amboy, January 25, 1775.

SIR: By order of the House of Assembly, I enclose you the Resolutions of this House, approving of the Proceedings of the Continental Congress, and am, sir, your very humble servant,
CORTLAND SKINNER, Speaker.
To the Honourable Edward Biddle, Esq., Speaker of the Assembly of the Province of Pennsylvania.
HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY, January 25, 1775.

Mr. Crane and Mr. Kinsey laid before the House the Proceedings of the Continental Congress, held at Philadelphia in September last, which were read.
On the question, Whether the House approve of the said Proceedings? It passed in the affirmative.

Resolved, That this House do unanimously approve of the Proceedings of the Congress.

Resolved, That James Kinsey, Stephen Crane, William Livingston, John De Hart, and Richard Smith, Esquires, or any three of them, be and they are hereby appointed to attend the Continental Congress of the Colonies, intended to be held at the City of Philadelphia in May next, or at any other time or place, and that they report their proceedings to the next session of the General Assembly; instructing the said Delegates to propose and agree to every reasonable and constitutional measure for the accommodation of the unhappy difference at present subsisting between our mother country and the Colonies, which the House most ardently wish for.

Ordered, That Mr. Speaker do transmit a copy of the foregoing Resolutions to the Speakers of the Assemblies of New-York and Pennsylvania.

Resolved, That the thanks of this House be given to James Kinsey, Stephen Crane, William Livingston, John De Hart, and Richard Smith, Esquires, for their faithful and judicious discharge of the trust reposed in them at the late Continental Congress.

JONA. DEARE, Clerk.

The Members appointed to wait on the Governour, reported that they had delivered their message according to order, and that his Honour was pleased to say he had no business at present to lay before the House, but if any should occur during their sitting, he would acquaint them with it by Message.

Tuesday, February 21, 1775.

Upon motion, the Draught of Instructions reported at the last sitting for the Deputies appointed on the part of this Province to attend the Continental Congress to be held at Philadelphia in May next, were again read, and referred to further consideration.

The Governour, by Mr. Secretary, sent down a written Message to the House, which was read by order, and is as follows, viz:

GENTLEMEN: At a time when the disputes between Great Britain and her Colonies are drawing towards an alarming crisis, I cannot, consistent with my duty to his Majesty, or a proper attention to the true interests of the people over whom I preside, avoid recommending to you any measure which occurs to me as proper for the Representatives of the Province to pursue, or which, in my opinion, may have a tendency to compose those unhappy differences.

You will agree with me, gentlemen, that in all cases wisdom dictates the use of such means as are most likely to attain the end proposed. On the present occasion it is conceived that any grievances which his Majesty's subjects in America apprehend they have reason to complain of, should be humbly represented to his Majesty by the several Assemblies, as the only proper and constitutional mode of obtaining redress, and I have the best reason to believe that a proper attention will be paid to such representations and to any propositions that may be made through that channel, on the present state of American affairs.

This mode, therefore, I earnestly recommend to you to adopt; and I most ardently wish that the proceedings of this as well as the other Colonies, may be of such a temperate and dutiful nature, as to afford a foundation for a re-establishment of that harmony with the mother country which is so essential to both.

JOHN PENN.

February 21, 1775.

Thursday, February 23, 1775.

The House met pursuant to adjournment, and taking into consideration the Governour's Message of the 21st instant, after some time spent in debate thereon, referred the same to further consideration to-morrow morning.

Friday, February 24, 1775.

The House met pursuant to their adjournment, and proceeded, agreeable to the Resolution of yesterday, in the consideration of the Governour's Message. which producing debate of considerable length, the question was called for and put by the Speaker, Whether the further consideration thereof shall be postponed till some day in the week after next? Carried in the affirmative.

Saturday, February 25, 1775.

Upon motion,

Resolved, That this House will, on Wednesday, the 8th of March next, resume the consideration of the Governour's Message.

Saturday, March 4, 1775.

"Upon motion by a Member, that the Doors be opened and the reputable inhabitants of the City admitted to hear the debates of the House on Wednesday next, the question was put by the Speaker, and carried in the negative.

The Governour, by Mr. Secretary, sent down a written Message to the House, which was read by order, and is as follows, viz:

GENTLEMEN: On Saturday last a number of Indians of the Tuscarora, Nanticoke, and Conoy Tribes, who reside on the heads of the Susquehannah, came to Town with their families, on a friendly visit to this Government.

They have represented to me that they are very poor, and in great want of clothing and other necessities, which they earnestly request to be supplied with.

As I think humanity, as well as good policy, requires that we should comply with their request, I must recommend it to you to make immediate provision for furnishing them with a present of such goods as their necessities demand, and defraying the expenses of their journey.

JOHN PENN.

A Representation and Petition from the American Philosophical Society, was presented to the House, and follows in these words, viz:

To the Honourable the Representatives of the Freemen of the Province of PENNSYLVANIA, in General Assembly

GENTLEMEN: It must yield a sensible satisfaction to the good people of this Province which you represent, to find, that although it be among the youngest of our American settlements, its reputation, has risen high among the sister Colonies, and has extended even to the remotest parts of Europe, on account of our many publick spirited Institutions, and our rapid improvements in all useful arts. This satisfaction is also greatly increased, when we consider that, notwithstanding these institutions, through the necessity of the case, were generally obliged to derive much of their first support from the benevolence of individuals, yet, a liberal spirit for their encouragement and final establishment, has gone forth among our Representatives, in proportion, to the increase of our Provincial funds, and indeed the savings of publick money, after supplying the exigencies of the state, are never more laudably directed than towards the promoting whatever is useful and ornamental in society.

It is with unfeigned gratitude that your Petitioners recollect the repeated occasions you have given them of acknowledging, your bounty and protection in carrying on their designs "for the advancement of useful knowledge." and it is their firm resolution never to abuse your former indulgence by any future unnecessary or unimportant applications." By the means now in their own power, they hope in general to be able to prosecute their plan, except so far as they may sometimes find it incumbent on them humbly to suggest to you the encouragement of useful inventions, and the patronizing undertakings beneficial to the whole Community; and it is in this last view that they presume to address you at this time.

Amidst the variety of fields which in this new world lie open to the investigation of your Petitioners, they have, for several years, turned their views towards one wherein they hope to gather some of their chief laurel's, and to make discoveries alike honourable to their country and themselves, Our distance from the chief Observatories in the world the purity and serenity of our atmosphere, invite us, nay, loudly call upon us, to institute a series of regular Astronomical Observations, the comparison of which with those made in Europe and elsewhere, might settle some very important points, and contribute greatly to give a last perfection to Geography and Navigation. The advantages derived to those noble and useful sciences, from such observations, are so obvious, that there is scarce a civilized Nation in the world that has not made some provision for prosecuting them, and your Petitioners have been honoured with repeated solicitations from some of the greatest men in Europe, to join with them in this great work, and in a mutual communication of our labours.

It would be inexcusable, therefore, in your Petitioners to neglect the present opportunity of endeavouring to set such a design on foot, when we have a gentleman among us whose abilities, speculative as well as practical, would do honour to any country, and who is nevertheless indebted for bread to his daily toil, in an occupation the most unfriendly both to health and study. Under his auspices the work may now be undertaken with the greatest advantages, and others may be bred up by him to prosecute it in future times; but if the present opportunity is neglected, perhaps whole centuries may not afford such another. To rescue such a man from the drudgery of manual labour, and give him an occasion of indulging his bent of genius, with advantage to his country, is an honour which crowned heads might glory in; but it is an honour also, which it is hoped in the case of a native, Pennsylvania would not yield to the greatest Prince or people on earth. The design which your Petitioners have projected, and now humbly beg leave to lay before your Honourable House, is as follows, viz:

First. That the Honourable Proprietaries be petitioned to grant a lot of ground for erecting a publick Observatory, and to give such other encouragement to the design as they may think proper. And from their known attachment to the interest of this country, as well as their professed readiness to serve the gentleman who is proposed to conduct the design, your Petitioners cannot have any doubt of their kind compliance with this humble request.

Secondly. That the assistance of your Honourable House be also requested, agreeable to the concluding prayer of this Petition.

Thirdly. That a subscription be promoted for erecting a publick Observatory, and furnishing it with such instruments as may be wanted, in addition to those valuable ones now in the Province else success of this subscription among our benevolent fellow-citizens, there can be no doubt, and the expense of the additional instruments will not be great, as the gentleman proposed to conduct the design is capable of constructing them all with his own hand, in the most accurate and masterly manner.

Fourthly. That the Observatory shall be at all times open to the curious, and particularly that captains and mates of vessels, and young gentlemen desirous of obtaining a practical knowledge in Astronomy, shall have admittance, and (under proper rules to be framed for that purpose,) be taught the use of instruments and the method of making observations; especially the new method of ascertaining the longitude at Sea, for the perfecting of which the Parliament of Great Britain has of late given such ample rewards to the singular advantage of trade and navigation.

Fifthly. That the observatoons to be made by the publick Observer, shall be annually published under the inspection of the American Philosophical Society, and communicated to the learned societies in Europe, with such remarks as may render them generally useful and entertaining.

Sixthly. That the same person might also be appointed Surveyor of the High Roads and Waters, in order that when any publick proposals are to be made for improving navigation and shortening the communications between capital trading places, there may be always a person who has leisure and is skilled in measuring and reducing distances, taking heights and levels, and who may be employed in conjunction with others, when necessary, to make report on all such matters, either at the expense of those who request such service, or at the publick expense, as the case may require.

Your Petitioners therefore humbly, pray, that your Honourable House would take the premises into your consideration, and allow a yearly salary for such person, at least as a publick Astronomical Observer, if you should not view the additional office of Surveyor of High-Roads and Waters in the same important light as it is viewed by your Petitioners; and they further pray that you would give them leave to bring in a bill for the Legislative appointment of such publick Observer, and for regulating his duty in the execution of his trust; and your Petitioners shall ever pray, &c.

Signed in behalf and by order of the American Philosophical Society, at Philadelphia.

THOMAS BOND, V. P.

March 6, 1775.

Wednesday, March 8, 1775.

The House met pursuant to adjournment, when the Order of the 25th of last month being read, they proceeded to the consideration of the Governour's Message, and after a debate of some length, Ordered, That Mr. Dickinson, Mr. Mifflin, Mr. Galloway, Mr. Pearson, Mr. Morton, Mr. Ross, Mr. Swoope, Mr. Allen, Mr. Chreist, Mr. Edmonds, Mr. Dougherty, Mr. Hunter, and Mr. William Thompson, be a Committee to prepare and bring in a draught of an Answer to the said Message.

March 8, P. M.

The House resumed the consideration of the Governour's Message of yesterday, relating to the company of Indians now in Town; and after some debate thereon,

Resolved, That a sum not exceeding one hundred Pounds be allowed for the expenses of the said Indians, and for purchasing such clothing as they may stand in need of.

The Committee appointed to prepare and bring in an Answer to the Governour's Message, reported that they had essayed a draught for that purpose, which was read, and referred for further consideration till to-morrow.

Thursday, March 9, 1775.

The House resumed the consideration of the Answer brought in last night to the Governour's Message, which was again read, when a Member moving that the said Answer be recommitted, a debate arose, and after some time spent therein, the question was called for and put by the Speaker.

Carried in the negative.

The Answer of the House to the Governour's Message, being transcribed according to order, was signed by the Speaker, and follows in these words, viz:

May it please your Honour:

We are sincerely obliged to your Honour for your attention to the true interests of the people over whom you preside, at a time when the disputes between Great Britain and the American Colonies are drawing towards an alarming crisis; and we agree with you, "that in all cases "wisdom dictates the use of such means as are most likely "to attain the end proposed."

We have with deep concern beheld a system of Colony administration pursued since the year 1763, destructive to the rights and liberties of his Majesty's most faithful subjects in America, and have heretofore adopted such measures as we thought were most likely to restore that affection and harmony between the parent state and the Colonies, which it is the true interest of both countries to cultivate and maintain, and which we most sincerely wish to see restored.

We must inform your Honour, that a most humble, dutiful, and affectionate Petition from the Delegates of all the Colonies from Nova Scotia to Georgia, is now at the foot of the Throne, and we trust in the paternal affection and justice of our most gracious Sovereign, that he will interpose for the relief of his greatly distressed and ever faithful subjects in America.

We assure your Honour that this House will always pursue such measures as shall appear to them necessary, for securing the liberties of America, and establishing peace, confidence, and harmony between Great Britain and her Colonies.

Signed by order of the House,

EDWARD BIDDLE, Speaker.

March 9, 1775.

Ordered, That Mr. Morton and Mr. Wayne wait on the Governour, and deliver the foregoing Answer to his Message.

Friday, March 10, 1775.

The House resumed the consideration of the Representation and Petition from the American Philosophical Society, and after some debate, referred the same to further consideration.

Monday, March 13, 1775.

Mr. Speaker laid before the House a Letter of the 24th of December last, from William Bollan, Benjamin Franklin, and Arthur Lee, Esquires, Agents in London, for the Provinces of Massachusetts Bay, Pennsylvania, and Virginia, informing the House that the Petition from the American Continental Congress to the Crown, had been presented by Lord Dartmouth, was very graciously received, and that his Majesty had been pleased to say it was of so great importance, that he should, as soon as they met, lay it before his two Houses of Parliament.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF THE COLONY OF NEW-YORK.

Die Martis. 10 ho., A. M., the 10th January, 1775.

His Excellency William Tryon, Esquire, Captain-General and Governour-in-Chief of this Colony, on the 19th day of March last, prorogued the General Assembly thereof, till the 17th day of May following; and on the 7th day of April last, his said Excellency departed from this Colony for England; in consequence whereof, the Government devolved upon the Honourable Cadwallader Colden, Esquire, his Majesty's Lieutenant-Governour, who, by Proclamation in Council, on the 16th day of May last, prorogued the said General Assembly till the 16th day of June following; and by several Proclamations since published, further prorogued them to this day, to meet and proceed upon business. In consequence of which, nine Members appearing in the Assembly Chamber, in the City Hall, in the City of New-York, they directed Mr. Speaker to take the Chair, and desired Mr. Nicoll and Colonel Woodhull, to wait on his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour, and acquaint him that there are not a sufficient number of Members met to proceed upon business, and that they intend to adjourn till ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

And then Mr. Speaker adjourned the House till ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

FOURTH SERIES.

Tuesday. March 14, 1775.

A Letter from the Speaker was laid before the Members who met this morning, acquainting them he was so much indisposed that he could not leave his chamber, and desiring they would choose another Speaker, to prevent any delay of business.

Ordered, That Mr. Hillegas and Mr. Ross wait on the Speaker in the morning, and report whether the state of his health will allow him to attend the service of the House at any time to-morrow.

It was then moved that the Clerk do, by direction of the Members, adjourn them to ten o'clock to-morrow morning; and they were adjourned accordingly.

Wednesday, March 15, 1775.

A quorum met pursuant to the adjournment of yesterday, and the gentlemen appointed to wait on the Speaker, reported that he is still too much indisposed to leave his chamber; that he returns his acknowledgments to the Members for their kind attention to him, but requests they will make choice of another to supply his place, as it is at present uncertain when he may be able to attend the business of the House.

The Members then proceeded to choose another Speaker, when John Morton, Esquire, was unanimously chosen for that service, and accordingly placed in the Chair.

Ordered, That Mr. Pearson and Mr. Humphreys wait on the Governour, and acquaint him that the late Speaker being, through indisposition, prevented from attending the House, the Members have chosen Mr. Morton in his stead, and request to know when his Honour will be pleased to receive the House, that they may present their Speaker for his approbation.

The Members return, and report they had delivered their message according to order, and that the Governour was pleased to say he would be at the Council Chamber in half an hour, to receive the House with their Speaker.

Then Mr. Speaker with the whole House waited on the Governour, and being returned from the Council Chamber, the Speaker resumed the Chair, and reported that the House had waited on his Honour and presented their Speaker, (of whom he had been pleased to approve;) that he (the Speaker) had then mentioned that, as his predecessor had lately claimed in behalf of the present Assembly their usual privileges, it was unnecessary for him to renew such claim, except in respect to his own unwilling mistakes as Speaker, which he hoped might be excused by the Governour, and not imputed to the House.

Saturday, March 18, 1775.

The House adjourned to Monday, the first of May next, at four o'clock, P. M.

Die Mercurij. 10 ho., A. M., the 11th January, 1775.

Fifteen Members appearing in the Assembly Chamber, Mr. Speaker took the Chair, and adjourned the House till ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Die Jovis, 10 ho., A. M., the 12th January, 1775.

Pursuant to adjournment of yesterday, fifteen Members appearing in the Assembly Chamber, Mr. Speaker took the Chair, and adjourned the House till ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Die Veneris, 10 ho., A. M., the 13th January, 1775.

Seventeen Members appearing in the Assembly Chamber, Mr. Speaker took the Chair, Ordered, That Mr. Gale and Colonel Ten Broeck wait on his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour, and acquaint him that a sufficient number of Members are met to proceed upon business, and that they wait his directions.

Colonel Ten Broeck reported, that Mr. Gale and himself had waited on his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour, and delivered their message; and that his Honour had been pleased to say, he would come up to the Council Chamber, in the City Hall, immediately, and would then send a message to the House.

A Message from his Honour the Lientenant-Governour, by Mr. Bayard, Deputy Secretary:

MR. SPEAKER: His Honour the Lieutenannt-Governour requires the immediate attendance of this House in the Council Chamber, in the City Hall.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair, and with the House, attended accordingly; and being returned, resumed the Chair, and reported that his Honour had been pleased to make a Speech to the House; of which, to prevent mistakes, he had obtained a copy; and the same being read, is as followeth, viz:

Gentlemen of the Council and General Assembly:

I think it unnecessary at this time, particularly to recommend to your attention the ordinary business of the Legislature. Whatever may be found conducive to the dignity of his Majesty's Government, or the happiness of his people in this Colony, I shall cheerfully promote.

Gentlemen of the General Assembly:

The support of his Majesty's Government, and other allowances for his service, I doubt not you will readily provide for.

Gentlemen of the General Assembly:

We cannot sufficiently lament the present disordered state of the Colonies. The dispute between Great Britain and her American Dominions, is now brought to the most alarming crisis and fills every humane breast with the deepest affliction. It is to you, gentlemen, in this anxious moment, that your country looks up for counsel; and on you, it in a great measure depends, to rescue her from evils of the most ruinous tendency. Exert yourselves, then, with the firmest becoming your important office. If your constituents are discontented and apprehensive, examine their complaints With calmness and deliberation, and determine upon them with an honest impartiality. If you find them to be well grounded, pursue the means of redress which the Constitution has pointed out. Supplicate the Throne, and our most gracious Sovereign will hear and relieve you with paternal tenderness. But I entreat you, as you regard the happiness of your country, to discountenance every measure which may increase our distress. And anxious for the re-establishment of harmony with that Power with which you are connected by the ties of blood, religion, interest, and duty, prove yourselves, by your conduct on this occasion, earnestly solicitous for a cordial and permanent reconciliation:

Gentlemen of the Council and General Assembly:

In the absence of our most worthy Governour-in-Chief, no less distinguished by his extensive abilities, than his zeal for the honour of the Crown, and his affection for the people of this Province, and at so critical a conjuncture, it gives me great consolation that I can repose the utmost confidence in your wisdom, your attachment to the Constitution, and your regard for the interest of the British Empire. And you may be assured, that my most strenuous efforts shall be exerted to co-operate with you in restoring that tranquility, which must be the ardent desire of every wise, virtuous, and loyal subject.

CADWALLADIER COLDEN.

Ordered, That his Honour's Speech be forthwith printed.

Resolved, That the same be taken into consideration immediately.

Resolved, That an humble Address be presented to his Honour, in answer to his Speech, and that a Committee be appointed to prepare the said Address; and a Committee was appointed accordingly.

Ordered, That the further consideration of his Honour's Speech be referred to a Committee of the Whole House, and that the said Committee take the same into consideration on Tuesday next.

Ordered, That the Votes and Proceedings of this House be printed from time to time, being first perused and signed by the Speaker; and that no other person but such as lie shall appoint, do presume to print the same. *

The Committee appointed to correspond with Edmund Burke, Esquire, Agent of this Colony at the Court of Grôat Britain, laid before the House several Letters received from him during its recess, together with the copies of several Letters to him; and the same being read,

* By virtue of an Order of the General Assembly, I do appoint Hugh Gaine to print these Votes, and that no other person presume to print the same.

JOHN CRUGER. Speaker.

Ordered, That the said Letters and copies of Letters lie on the table, for the perusal of the Members.

Die Martis, 10 ho, A. M., the 17th January, 1775.

Mr. Speaker, in behalf of the Committee appointed by this House the last session, to obtain the most early and authentick intelligence of all such Acts and Resolutions of the British Parliament, or Proceedings of Administration, as do or may relate to or affect the liberties and privileges of his Majesty's subjects in the British Colonies in America, and to keep up and maintain a correspondence and communication with our sister Colonies, &c., laid before the House several Letters received by the said Committee since the last session, from several of the Speakers of the Houses of Assembly on this Continent, with sundry Resolutions entered into by them; also, several Acts of Parliament relating to, and affecting, the liberties and privileges of his Majesty's subjects in America, together with the copies of several Letters wrote by the said Committee, in answer to those received from the Speakers of the other Houses of Representatives on this Continent; and the same being severally read, Ordered, That the said Letters, &c., be taken into further consideration by this House.

Resolved, That his Honour's Speech be taken into further consideration on Friday next.

ADDRESS OF THE COUNCIL, IN ANSWER TO THE GOVERNOUR'S SPEECH.

To the Honourable CADWALLADER COLDEN, Esquire, his Majesty's Lieutenant-Governour and Commander-in-Chief of the Province of NEW-YORK, and the Territories thereon depending in AMERICA.

The humble Address of his Majesty's Council for the Province of NEW-YORK.

May it please your Honour:

We, his Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Council for the Province of New-York, return you our thanks for your Speech.

The utility and necessity of promoting his Majesty's service, and the felicity of the Colony, are so apparent, that you may be assured of our ready concurrence in every measure friendly to those important and inseparable objects.

Attached, most affectionately and inviolably attached to the honour and interest of the King, zealously concerned for the prosperity and glory of Great Britain and her Dependencies, and impressed by a due sense of the innumerable benefits flowing from an harmonious connection between the several branches of the Empire, we cannot look at that awful precipice to which the unnatural discords between the parent state and her Colonies are tending, without horror and consternation.

In controversies turning upon principles of the deepest policy, and of such amazing magnitude, as to involve the Colonies in the most distressing perplexities, the glorious work of restoring the common tranquillity, and establishing an intimate and permanent union between all the parts of the Empire, must (under God,) ultimately depend upon the wisdom and benignity of the Crown, and the justice and magnanimity of the Brhish Nation.

Gladly shall we seize every opportunity to effect a reconciliation between countries whose interests are so inseparable; that the true patriot of either, must be a real friend to both. And while the means to this desirable end employ the Councils of the Nation, our most vigorous efforts shall be steadily exerted to prevent the destructive consequences of anarchy and confusion.

It affords us great relief in this critical hour to find your Honour heartily disposed to promote the same salutary designs; and it adds to our consolation, that in so alarming a conjuncture, this Colony has, in her Chief Governour, an advocate near the Throne, upon whose distinguished abilities, and active and generous benevolence, men of all ranks amongst us rely with the firmest confidence, for a true and faithful representation of our condition and character.

By order of the Council.

DANIEL HORSMANDEN, Speaker.

Council Chamber, January 18, 1775.

His Honour's Answer.

GENTLEMEN: I thank you for this Address: It will give me pleasure to convey to the Throne these warm expressions of your loyalty and attachment to our gracious Sovereign, and your solicitude for the glory of the British Empire.

While we with confidence rely on his Majesty's wisdom and paternal affection, and the justice and magnanimity of the Nation, for restoring harmony among the various parts of the Empire, our utmost efforts are necessary to prevent the destructive consequences of anarchy and confusion.

CADWALLADER COLDEN.

Die Veneris, 10 ho., A. M., the 20th January, 1775.

The House resumed the consideration of his Honour's Speech, and agreed to the following Address in answer thereto:

To the Honourable CADWALLADER COLDEN, Esquire, his Majesty's Lieutenant-Governour and Commander-in-Chief, over the Colony of NEW-YORK, and the Territories depending thereon in AMERICA.

The humble Address of the General Assembly of the said Colony.

May it please your Honour:

We, his Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the General Assembly of the Colony of New-York, beg leave to return your Honour our most hearty thanks for your Speech.

The assurances your Honour has given us of cheerfully promoting whatever may be conducive to the dignity of his Majesty's Government, and the happiness of the people in this Colony, merit our most grateful acknowledgments.

The provision for the support of his Majesty's Government, and the necessary allowances for his service, shall be the objects of our attention, together with the ordinary business of the session.

Affected with the deepest concern by the distressed state of the Colonies, and impressed with a due sense of the fatal consequences attending the unhappy dispute between Great Britain and his Majesty's American Dominions, we feel the most afflicting anxiety at the alarming crisis. Fully convinced that the happiness of our constituents depends greatly on the wisdom of our present measures, we shall exercise the important trust they have reposed in us, with firmness and fidelity, and with calmness and deliberation pursue the most probable means to obtain a redress of our grievances; and it affords us the highest satisfaction to hear from your Honour, that our most gracious Sovereign will be attentive to the complaints of his American subjects, and ready with paternal tenderness, to grant us relief. Anxious for the interest and happiness of our country, and earnestly solicitous for the re-establishment of harmony with Great Britain, we shall discountenance every measure which may tend to increase our distress, and, by our conduct, shew ourselves truly desirous of a cordial and permanent reconciliation with our parent Kingdom.

The absence of our most worthy Governour-in-Chief, whose upright conduct so deservedly acquired him the affections of the Colony, will, we have the strongest reason to expect, be less sensibly felt from the wise administration of his experienced successor. The confidence your Honour has been pleased to repose in our attachment to our happy Constitution, and our regard for the interest and prosperity of the British Empire, demand the exertion of our most strenuous efforts to co-operate with you in endeavouring to restore the tranquillity so ardently desired by all true friends to the mother country and the Colonies.

By order of the General Assembly.

JOHN CRUGER, Speaker.

Assembly Chamber, City of New-York, 20th of January, 1775.

Resolved, That the said Address be presented to his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour, by the whole House.

Ordered, That Mr. Kissam and Captain Seaman wait on his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour, to know when and where he will be pleased to be attended by the House, with their humble Address.

Colonel Seaman reported that Mr. Kissam and himself had waited on his Honour the Lieutenant Governour, and delivered their Message, and that his Honour had been pleased to say he would receive the Address of this House at half past two o'clock, at his house, in the City of New-York.

Mr. Speaker left the Chair, and with the House, attended his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour, with their humble Address, according to his appointment; and being returned, resumed the Chair, and reported that the House had attended his Honour with their humble Address, and that his Honour had been pleased to return the following Answer thereto; and the same being read, is in the words following, viz:

GENTLEMEN: I return you my most cordial thanks for this loyal and affectionate Address.

The affliction you express at the unhappy contest between Great Britain and his Majesty's American Dominions; your virtuous resolution to discharge your important trust with firmness and deliberation; your solicitude for a re-establishment of that harmony with our parent state, which can alone diffuse happiness and security to the various branches of the-Empire; and your assurance that you will discountenance every measure which may increase our distress; while they hold you up as guardians on whose wisdom and integrity your constituents may rely with well grounded confidence, cannot fail of giving me the most sincere satisfaction, and of recommending you to general approbation.

You may be assured, gentlemen, that to deserve the good opinion and esteem with which you are pleased to honour me, shall be my constant study, and the object of my ambition.

CADWALLADER COLDEN.

New-York, January 20, 1775.

Resolved, That there be a call of the House on Tuesday, the 7th day of February next.

Ordered, That the Clerk of this House write to the absent Members, to require their punctual attendance on that day.

Resolved, That his Honour's Speech be taken into further consideration on Thursday next.

Die Jovis, 10 ho., A. M., the 26th January, 1775.

A Message from his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour, by Mr. Bayard, Deputy Secretary; and the same being read, is in the words following, viz:

GENTLEMEN: In the mouth of August last Governour Penn made an overture to me for settling the boundary line between this Province and Pennsylvania. He very justly observed, that as the settlements under both Governments were daily approaching the line, it was of great importance to have the boundary marked without delay. The gentlemen of the Council were of opinion that it would be sufficient at this time to find the beginning of the forty-third degree of latitude upon the Delaware and Susquehannah Rivers; to mark those points and so much of the boundary line as lies between them, They advised me to appoint Samuel Holland, Esquire, to perform the work on the part of this Province, in conjunction with the persons whom Governour Penn should appoint on the part of Pennsylvania.

Mr. Holland and Mr. Rittenhouse went upon this work in November last, and fixed the latitude on Delaware River. They met with unexpected fatigue and danger, from the severity of the weather, which made it impossible for them to proceed any farther. I send you Mr. Holland's account; he has advanced a considerable part of the amount, and I recommend to you, gentlemen, now to make provision for the payment of this service, which I have reason to think has been accurately performed.

CADWALLADER COLDEN.

New-York, January 26, 1775.

Ordered, That the said Message, and the Account therein mentioned, be referred to the consideration of the Committee to whom his Honour's Speech is committed.

A motion was made by Colonel Ten Broeck, in the words following, viz:

Mr. Speaker: I move that this House take into consideration the Proceedings of the Continental Congress, held in the City of Philadelphia, in the months of September and October last.

Whereupon Colonel Philips moved that the previous question be first put, whether the question upon Colonel Ten Broeck's motion should be now put? Upon which debates arose, and the said previous question being accordingly put, it was carried in the negative, in manner following, to wit:

For the Affirmative.	For the Negative.
Colonel Woodhull,	Mr. Walton,
Colonel Schulyer	Mr. Rapalje,
Mr. Clinton,	Mr. De Lancey,
Mr. Van Cortlandt,	Mr. Brush,
Mr. De Witt,	Mr. Jauncey,
Colonel P. Livingston,	Colonel Philips,
Captain Seaman,	Colonel Seaman,
Colonel Ten Broeck,	Mr. Kissam,
Mr. Nicoll,	Mr. Wilkins,
Mr. Boerum.	Mr. Billopp,
	Mr. Van Kleeck.

Resolved, That his Honour's Speech and Message, &c., of this day, referred to the Committee thereupon, be taken into further consideration to-morrow.

Die Veneris, 10 ho., A. M., the 27th January, 1775.

A Message from his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour, by Mr. Bayard, Deputy Secretary; and the same being read, is in the words following, viz:

GENTLEMEN: In April last, Joshua Root and Abijah Rood, of the County of Albany, by their Petition to me in Council, prayed relief for the loss of time and expense they have incurred on account of the assistance they had given to an officer of this Government in executing a warrant issued by the Judges of the Supreme Court. For the particulars I refer you to the copies of the Petition and other Papers which I have ordered to be delivered to you. The gentlemen of the Council, at that time, advised me to issue a warrant to the Treasurer of this Colony to pay the Petitioners twenty Pounds, three Shillings, and four Pence, out of the contingent fund, and that I should recommend their case to your consideration. The Petitioners are now again come to this place in hopes of receiving something for their relief, and I doubt not that they will meet with that compensation which is due to those who suffer in supporting the Magistrates and authority of Government.

CADWALLADER COLDEN.

New-York, January 27, 1775.

Ordered, That the said Message, and the Papers delivered therewith, be referred to the consideration of the Committee to whom his Honour's Speech is committed.

Resolved, That his Honour's Speech, and the several matters referred to the Committee thereupon, be taken into further consideration on Tuesday next.

Die Sabbati, 10 ho., A. M., the 28th January, 1775.

Mr. Speaker laid before the House a Letter he had received from the Honourable Cortlandt Skinner, Esquire, Speaker of the House of Assembly of the Colony of New-Jersey, enclosing sundry Resolutions entered into by the said House; and the said Resolutions being read, are in the words following, viz:

HOUSE OF A'SSEMBLY, January 25, 1775.

Mr. Crane and Mr. Kinsey laid before the House the Proceedings of the Continental Congress, held at Philadelphia in September last, which were read.

On the question, Whether the House approve of the said Proceedings? It passed in the affirmative.

Resolved, That this House do unanimously approve of the Proceedings of the Congress.

Resolved, That James Kinsey, Stephen Crane, William Livingston, John De Hart, and Richard Smith, Esquires, or any three of them, be, and they are hereby appointed to attend the Continental Congress of the Colonies, intended to be held at the City of Philadelphia in May next, or at any other time and place; and that they report the proceedings to the next session of the General Assembly, instructing the said Delegates to propose and agree to every reasonable and constitutional measure for the accommodation of the unhappy difference at present subsisting between our mother country and the Colonies, which the House most ardently wish for.

Ordered, That Mr. Speaker do transmit a copy of the foregoing Resolutions to the Speakers of the Assemblies of New-York and Pennsylvania.

Resolved, That the thanks of this House be given to James Kinsey, Stephen Crane, William Livingston, John De Hart, and Richard Smith, Esquires, for their faithful and judicious discharge of the trust reposed in them at the late Continental Congress.

A true copy: JONATHAN DEARE, Clerk.

Die Martis, 10 ho., A. M., the 31st January, 1775.

A motion was made by Colonel P. Livingston, in the words following, viz:

Mr. Speaker: I move that a day may be appointed to take the state of this Colony into consideration, to enter such Resolutions as the House may agree to, on their Journals; and in consequence of such Resolutions, to prepare a humble, firm, dutiful and loyal Petition to our most gracious Sovereign.

On the question, whether the House agree to the said motion? It passed in the affirmative, nemine contradicente.

And then a motion was made by Mr. De Lancey, in these words, viz:

Mr. Speaker: I move that a Memorial to the Lords, and Representation and Remonstrance to the Commons of Great Britain, may be prepared, together with the Petition to his Majesty.

On the question, whether the House agree to the said motion? It passed in the affirmative, nemine contradicente.

Ordered, That Mr. De Lancey, Colonel Schuyler, Mr. Clinton. Mr. Brinckerhoof, Mr. Gale, Mr. Wilkins, Mr. Brush, Mr. Billopp, Mr. Rapalje, Mr. Kissam, and Mr. Nicoll, or the major part of them, be a Committee to prepare a state of the Grievances of this Colony, and report the same to this House with all convenient speed, after the call thereof, to be had on the 7th day of February next.

Resolved, That his Honour's Speech, and the several matters referred to the Committee thereupon, be taken into further consideration on Thursday next.

Die Mercurij, 10 ho., A. M., the 1st February, 1775.

Mr. De Lancey moved for leave to bring in a Bill for the general quiet of his Majesty's subjects in this Colony, against all pretences of concealment whatsoever.

Ordered, That leave be given accordingly.

Die Jovis, 10 ho., A. M., the 2d February, 1775.

Mr. Kissam, from the Committee of the Whole House, to whom his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour's Speech, Messages, &c., were referred, reported that he was directed by the Committee to report to the House, that they had made some progress therein, and had directed him to move for leave to sit again. Which Report he read in his place, and afterwards delivered it in at the table, where the same was again read, and thereupon it was

Resolved, That his Honour's Speech, and the several matters referred to the Committee thereupon, be taken into further consideration on Tuesday next.

Die Martis, 10 ho., A. M., the 7th February, 1775.

A Message from his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour, by Mr. Bayard, Deputy Secretary, which being read, is in the words following, viz:

GENTLEMEN: The settlements in the Northeastern part of this Province have, within a few years, advanced with that rapidity as affords the strongest prospect of their soon becoming, in a commercial view, highly beneficial to the Colony. The produce of that country has already appeared at our markets; and, from the great fertility of the soil, there can be no doubt of large and plentiful supplies from thence, whenever a safe and easy communication shall be opened to Albany, by great Roads from Connecticut River. The Circuit Courts are as necessary in the most remote County, as in the nearest; otherwise the laws cannot be duly executed; and the subject will, in many instances, be deprived of the aid and protection he is entitled to. The Judges cannot go into those distant Counties, with tolerable ease and safety, unless the Roads are made. This is an object not to be attained without the aid of the Legislature the inhabitants, under their present circumstances, being unable to support the expense; and as the advantages which the publick will derive from it are apparent, and evince the propriety of the measure, I persuade myself you will think it deserving of your serious attention.

CADWALLADER COLDEN.

New-York, Fcbrnary 7, 1775.

Ordered, That the said Message be referred to the consideration of the Committee to whom his Honour's Speech, &c., are committed.

The Resolution of this House, of the 20th day of Jan- uary last, respecting a call thereof to be made on this day being read,

Resolved, That the call of this House be postponed till Friday next.

Mr. Kissam, from the Committee of the Whole House, to whom was referred his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour's Speech, Messages, &c., reported, that he was directed by the Committee to report to the House, that they had made some further progress therein, and to move for leave to sit again; which Report he read in his place, and afterwards delivered it in at the table, where the same was again read, and thereupon it was Resolved, That his Honour's Speech, Messages, &c., be taken into further consideration on Friday next.

Die Jovis, 10 ho., A. M., the 16th February, 1775.

A motion was made by Colonel Schuyler, in the words following, viz:

Mr. Speaker: I move that a certain Letter, dated *Hartford, June 4, 1774, directed, Honourable John Cruger, Esquire, James De Lancey, James Jauncey, &c., Esquires, Committee of Correspondence, New-York, and subscribed by Silas Deane, in behalf of, and per order of the Committee of Correspondence, Connecticut. And also a certain Letter enclosed within the foregoing, dated *Hartford, June 3, 1774, together with the copy of a Letter dated *New-York, June 24, 1774, directed to the Committee of Correspondence of the Colony of Connecticut, and subscribed by John Cruger, James Jauncey, Frederick Philips, James De Lancey, Jacob Walton, Simon Boerum, John Rapalje, Daniel Kissam, Zebulon Williams, late Zebulon Seaman, Benjamin Seaman. And also a Letter from the Committee of Correspondence appointed by this House, dated September 5, 1774, to Edmund Burke, Esq., Agent of this Colony, at the Court of Great Britain, be forthwith entered on the Journals of this House, and that the Clerk of this House be ordered to deliver copies of the same to the Printer of this Colony, that they may be by him inserted in the publick Newspapers.

And debates arising upon the said motion, and the question being put thereon, it was carried in the negative, in manner following, viz:

SPEECHES OF MR. BRUSH AND MR. WILKINS, ON MR. THOMAS'S MOTION,

[On Thursday, February 93, the General Assembly now sitting, entered into the consideration of Mr. Thomas's motion for the appointment of Delegates on the part of this Colony, to attend the General Congress to be held at Philadelphia, in the month of May next. The House being divided on this important question, the matter was fully debated on both sides.* In the course of the debates, Mr. Brush, Member for Cumberland, offered his sentiments on the subject; in the answers given to which, that gentleman being frequently charged with using expressions which threw indecent reflections both on the conduct of the gentlemen of the Opposition, and on the proceedings of the last Congress, in order that the publick may form their own judgment on this subject, the Printer has been favoured with the following, by a friend, who assures him it contains nearly the very words made use of by Mr. Brush on that occasion.]

MR. SPEAKER: The time and attention of this House during the present session, has been principally engaged by a series of motions tending to extort our approbation of the measures dictated by the late Congress, The address that has been shown in varying the expressions of the several motions for that purpose, may evince the ingenuity of the gentleman who framed them; but it would reflect the utmost dishonour on this House, if it was to be so destitute of discernment as not to perceive their true intent. For nay part, sir, I again freely repeat my opinion, that as the late Congress acted without any power or authority derived from this House, and (at least as far as respected this Province,) from the Laws and Constitution of our country, its Proceedings could not, with propriety, come before us for consideration: Of the same opinion was the majority of this House, upon a motion made at the beginning of the session, and I therefore hoped, that without entering into unnecessary debates, we would all have seriously applied ourselves to the constitutional mode of obtaining redress of our grievances; but I cannot help mentioning the precipitate manner in which the intemperate zeal of some gentlemen induced them to act, with respect to the motion which extracted this opinion. A special call of the House was resolved on the 20th of January, the time for which did not expire until the 7th of this month. This call was expressly resolved upon, that the present important and critical situation of publick affairs might be discussed in a full House; but the design of these gentlemen could by no means admit of so tedious a delay in the discussion of the motion to which I have alluded. The concurrence or non-concurrence of this House with that motion, was universally allowed to be a matter of the most weighty and important nature ever offered to the consideration of a General Assembly of this Colony; and yet, setting aside every regard to the thinness of the House, and the indelicate treatment of many Members who were absent, the immediate design of that very weighty and consequential matter was urged with unremitting ardour, before the expiration of the call, from no other motive than an expectation that in the present situation of the House it was the only probable opportunity which would offer of laying the great corner stone of their future operations. But notwithstanding the sense of the majority was fully expressed upon this important point, and consequently the House precluded from taking up the Proceedings of the late Congress during the present session, yet two subsequent attempts have been made to extract from us an implied approbation of those very Proceedings; the first by a motion to return the thanks of the House to the Delegates from this Colony, which would naturally imply an unlimited approbation of what we had agreed ought not even to be considered, since upon the face of the Proceedings, it appears that those gentlemen had concurred in them all without any reserve, whatever private sentiments they may have then entertained or since adopted. This extraordinary motion meeting with the fate it deserved, a second was framed to obtain our thanks to the Merchants and Inhabitants of this City, for their firm adherence to the Association enacted by the Congress, which this House had already resolved not to consider, and consequently could not determine to be either good or bad. This motion, therefore, as well as the last, carried absurdity upon the very face of it, and if agreed to, would have subjected this House to the charge of inconsistency, must, in a great measure, have frustrated our designs for a constitutional redress of grievances, and, in all probability, would have been wrested from its genuine meaning, and made a sanction for past and future disorderly, illegal, and tumultuous acts of violence. The House having rejected all these motions, and firmly adhered to the principle which it at first established, another motion was now made, different in appearance, but similar in reality, to those already determined, for appointing Delegates on the part of this Colony, to meet at the General Congress to be held at the City of Philadelphia in May next.

* Colonel Schuyler and Mr. Clinton spoke several times in support of the motion, and were answered with great clearness and precision by Mr. Wilkins.

As the proposed Congress is to be a continuation of the last, and is to meet in consequence of their vote declaring the necessity of holding it, by nominating Delegates for it we shall, in effect, recognise the last Congress, and make ourselves parties to all the measures then agreed upon. If this will be the consequence, as I conceive it clearly will, of the present motion, no other reason can be necessary why this House should not agree to it; because we have already determined not to consider the Proceedings of that Congress, much less espouse its principles or adopt its measures. But, sir, we are the legal and constitutional Representatives of the people; to us the care of their liberties is, in the most sacred manner, entrusted; and I think it would be a breach of our trust to delegate that most important charge to any body of men, whose powers are circumscribed by no law, and their existence unknown to the Constitution. If, indeed, we acknowledge ourselves incapable of executing the trust reposed in us. there may be some plea for agreeing to the present motion, but the moment we do, we agree to our own annihilation, and, with the powers of this House, subvert the Constitution of our country. I am sure, however, that an idea of this kind could never prevail within these walls, where such measures are at this very time in contemplation, as are most likely to establish a firm and permanent union between Great Britain and her Colonies, and maintain the liberties of the latter, without injuring the just and natural superiority of the former. I must therefore, sir, be of opinion, that the appointment of Delegates would involve us in inconsistency, be a departure from the trust reposed in us by our constituents, and plainly reduce this House to the condition of a Corporation, which only meets to enact by-laws, whilst all matters of higher importance are referred to a superiour assembly.

I have hitherto, sir, avoided particularizing the Proceedings of the late Congress; but as they have been frequently alluded to in our debates, and some gentlemen appear to lay great stress upon them, give me leave to add, that reasons of the most forcible nature against this motion, may be derived from the powers assumed and the spirit manifested by them. I believe no gentleman could have imagined, had not experience convinced him, that a Congress could have supposed itself vested with a power to enact laws for the government of the whole Continent. I say, sir, to enact laws, with the severest penalties, without previously consulting the several Colony Legislatures. But, sir, strange as this may appear, yet no one can be ignorant that the late Congress, (which even if it had been regularly chosen, yet, from its very nature was only to advise and consult upon the proper mode of obtaining redress of our grievances,) swelled with the idea of its own importance, erected itself into the Supreme Legislature of North America. How dangerous, then, must it be for us to countenance the meeting of a body which could in so glaring a manner deviate from its obvious intention, and assume to itself the powers peculiar only to the Legislature?

I am now to consider the spirit which the Congress manifested at their last meeting; and here I must observe, that in the present unhappy disputes between Great Britain and her Colonies, it was the wish of every wise and good member of society, that such a plan of conduct might be adopted as might tend to heal our differences, and bring about a firm and permanent reconciliation. For this purpose the most conciliating measures were proper; our disease required medicines of an emolient nature, not such as would irritate and inflame the parts affected. Our contest was with a parent country, from which we had always received protection, and with which we were connected by the ties of language and manners - by the ties of religion, and by the ties of law. Such being the case, what must we think of those who, so far from endeavouring to close, have attempted to widen the breach between us? The late Congress, sir, (I speak it with that boldness which truth inspires,) seem to have entertained a design of that nature; they have not only insisted upon the redress of real grievances, but have even industriously sought after and inserted in their catalogue what can never be esteemed as such; and they not only advise the people of the Colonies to prepare for mournful events, but seem resolved, even for the most trivial reasons, to involve this country in blood and confusion. They will not relinquish the most considerable of their demands, and threaten that in case some late Acts are even attempted to be put in execution, all America shall unite in the opposition; by which they clearly mean to unsheath the sword and come to an open rupture. To keep this fiery spirit alive, is evidently the intention of the approaching Congress. The same Delegates, or others of still warmer sentiments, have been chosen in the other Colonies, so that we have not the least reason to expect greater moderation from them than appeared at their last meeting. I need not, sir, enter into a more minute examination of the late Congress, which as far at least as they regard Ireland and the West Indies, are fraught with inhumanity, and totally destitute of good policy. It is sufficient for me, that the spirit by which they are actuated, and which is likely again to predominate, is a spirit of so dangerous a nature as ought not to receive our countenance. Whilst, therefore, we regard the dignity and importance of this House; whilst we desire to preserve consistency in our conduct, we cannot consent to a motion which would establish a body who have assumed the most unlimited powers, and are actuated by the most dangerous principles; therefore, I hope this House will have too much prudence, as well as virtue, to give a sanction to an assembly who would sap our Constitution, and may probably involve this once happy country in all the horrors of a civil war. However, let their determination be as it will, I shall have the satisfaction of doing my duty, in declaring my dissent to the motion now before the House.

[The following was sent to the Printer by a gentleman who assures him it is nearly verbatim as it was spoken by Isaac Wilkins, Esquire, of Westchester, during the late session of the General Assembly of the Province of New-York, in a debate relative to the Continental Congress.]

MR. SPEAKER: The subject now under our consideration, is the most important, I believe, that has ever come before this House; nothing less than the welfare, I had almost said the existence, of this Colony, and perhaps of all America, depends upon the result of our present deliberations.

Deeply impressed with this idea, I rise with the greatest anxiety of mind to deliver my sentiments on this occasion. Whether they are such as this House will think proper to approve, I cannot tell; but sure I am they are such as are dictated by an honest heart - an heart biased by no selfish or sinister motives, and warped by no attachment to sect, persons, or party.

There is not, I am persuaded, an individual in this Assembly who does not wish well to America in general, and who is not solicitous for the preservation of this Province in particular. For my own part I feel more real concern than I can well express, at the gloomy prospect of our affairs, and I would sacrifice more, much more, than most men would be willing to believe, if I could by that means rescue my country from the ruin and destruction that is now ready to overwhelm her. The necessity of a speedy reconciliation between us and our mother country, must be obvious to every one who is not totally destitute of sense and feeling; so that there can be no dispute now, I presume, but about the means of accomplishing it. Before I give my opinion, however, upon this matter, I must beg the indulgence of the House, while I exhibit a short view of the rise and progress of our present disturbances in America.

Ever since the first settlement of these Colonies, Great Britain has claimed and exercised the right of jurisdiction over them, and her claim was founded in reason, and in the nature of Civil Government; for it is certain beyond all manner of doubt and controversy, that the supreme authority of every Empire must extend over the whole and every part of that Empire, otherwise there must be imperium in imperio, two absolute and distinct powers in one and the same Government, which is impossible; and consequently the supreme authority of the British Empire, which is vested in the King, Lords, and Commons, must extend over these Colonies, which are part of the British Empire. This authority was never disputed by the Colonists till the time of the Stamp Act, and then no farther than as to the right of imposing internal taxes; for the right of regulating trade, and of imposing duties upon articles of commerce, was universally acknowledged as essential to the supremacy of the British Parliament. Their right of internal taxation over the Colonies, was by the Americans opposed upon this principle, that it was contrary to one of the fundamentals of our free Constitution, which forbids the taking of the subjects' money without their consent, given either personally or by their Representatives. This power of disposing of their property, they imagined and asserted was lodged in their Provincial Legislatures only. Be that as it will, this was certainly placing their liberty upon a proper basis; here they ought to have rested; here they ought to have bounded their demands; this would have been a sufficient barrier against arbitrary power. The Parliament, in consequence of this, although they did not relinquish their claim of right to tax the Colonies, repealed that impolitick and oppressive Act; and although they afterwards imposed duties on Paper, Glass, Paints, Colours, &c., yet those also, in compliance with our demands, were taken off; so indulgent has our mother country been to the claims and the humours of her children. This complying disposition, however, in her, so far from exciting our gratitude, or satisfying our uneasiness and discontent, has only emboldened us to make further encroachments upon her authority. We foolishly attribute this gentle conduct towards us to fear, and to a consciousness of her inability to compel us to submission. And when a three-penny duty on Tea was demanded of us, we peremptorily refused to comply; and instead of expostulating, or of shewing our disapprobation of that Act, by remonstrating in a legal and constitutional way, as we ought to have done; or instead of taking that easy and effectual method that offered itself to us - I mean the not purchasing that commodity, while encumbered with the duty, we flew into the most indecent rage, and hastily adopted every unwarrantable measure that could irritate and provoke the Government; we either destroyed or sent back, in a most contemptuous manner, all the Tea that entered our Harbours; we insulted her Ministers, and absolutely denied her authority.

The Colony of Massachusetts Bay was the foremost and the most violent in this opposition, and chastisement followed close upon the transgression, which, though the mildest that could possibly have been inflicted, considering the nature of the offence, has kindled such a flame through the whole Continent of America, as threatens universal devastation. The Colonies, instead of endeavouring to extinguish it, are increasing its violence; instead of striving to restore peace and good harmony, so essential to the welfare of both countries, are using every possible means to widen the breach and make it irreparable. Good God! that we should be so void of common sense; that we should be so blind to our own happiness! What advantage, in the name of Heaven, can we propose to ourselves, in being at enmity with Great Britain? Shall we by this means become more powerful, more wealthy, or more free? Let us pause a moment, and reflect a little upon the absurdity and folly of such expectations.

On the contrary, shall we not derive every desirable advantage from being in friendship and amity with her? Shall we not derive strength, protection, and stability, from that oak around which we have so long twined ourselves, and under the shadow of whose branches we have so long flourished in security.

Permit me to carry on this allusion. We are a vigorous and fertile vine, but without some prop, without some sufficient support, we shall only trail upon the ground, and be liable to injury and destruction from the foot of every passer. But if Great Britain gives us her protection; if she cultivates us with tenderness and care, we shall yield her a rich and plentiful vintage, as necessary to her welfare and prosperity, as her support is to our existence. In this mutual relation do we stand to each other. Let us, therefore, like wise men, endeavour to establish a lasting and permanent union between us; let us endeavour to remove every obstacle to this desirable end; and let us reject with the utmost disdain and abhorrence, every measure that can tend to increase the difference between us, and make this necessary union impracticable. Let us therefore, to the utmost of our power, endeavour to put a stop to the illegal and disorderly proceedings and resolutions of Committees, Associations, and Congresses. They have already driven this Colony to the brink of a precipice; some of our sister Colonies, (I speak it with the deepest concern) have already taken the desperate plunge, and unless the clemency of Great Britain shall work a miracle in their favour, I know not how they will escape perdition. Let us be warned by their example; let their folly and precipitation teach us wisdom; and instead of linking ourselves to the chain of their evil destiny, let us instantly break loose, and, by a well-timed effort, rescue ourselves from destruction, and endeavour to make peace for ourselves - not a shameful - not an ignominious peace, but such an one as shall be worthy of freemen; such an one as will secure to us our liberties and properties, and render the union between us and our mother country permanent and lasting; in short, such as will be worthy Great Britain to offer, and Americans to receive.

And here let it not be said that it will be a base desertion of our sister Colonies, to withdraw our assistance from them when in so critical and dangerous a situation. But let it be remembered that Great Britain is our mother - a kind and indulgent mother, who hath nourished, protected, and established us in this land of Canaan, this land flowing with milk and honey - a mother whose arms are open to receive all such of her children as will return to their duty, who is willing to hear their complaints, and to redress their grievances. And shall we take part against such a parent? Shall we, like detestable parricides, wound her bosom for the sake of ungrateful brethren, who have willfully shut their eyes both to their interest and their duty, and who are obstinately bent upon their own destruction? Surely we cannot. No, I am persuaded there is not an individual in this House who would not reject such a proposal with the utmost abhorrence. We have too much understanding not to know that the interest of these Colonies and of Great Britain are the same; that we are all one people - of the same laws, language, and religion, each of us equally bound to each other by the ties of reciprocal affection; and we have too much loyalty to the best of Sovereigns - too great a regard to order and good Government, to assert that insurrections and tumults in one Colony, can or ought to justify them in another. Indeed, so far am I from thinking that this conduct in us would be deserting the common cause of the Colonies, that I am convinced it is the only expedient left, by which we can in any measure promote their real and true interest. By uniting with them, we shall in all probability sink with them, but by rending ourselves from the rash and ill-judged combination in which they are engaged, while we are doing good to ourselves, we may do good also to them. We may have it in our power, as I know we shall have it in our will, to stretch out an helping hand to raise them from the pit into which they are falling. And I will venture to assert it with boldness and confidence, that if this loyal Province will do her duty, and act with wisdom and moderation in the critical juncture, she may yet save America.

Great Britain is not the only quarter from whence danger is to be apprehended. Her resentment, no doubt, is to be dreaded, and it behoves us, if possible, to avert it. She may destroy our cities; she may ruin our commerce; she may reduce us to so deplorable a condition that we shall be willing to accept of peace and reconciliation upon any terms which she shall think proper to impose. This is what she may do, and what most probably she will do, unless we alter the mode of our conduct towards her. But if she should think proper to decline the contest; if in her wrath she should give us up to our own direction, and leave us to cut and shuffle for ourselves, and to settle our boundaries, and to appoint our own forms of Government, deeper and more terrible scenes of distress will present themselves to our view. Fain would I draw a veil over this melancholy prospect, and hide it from the eye of humanity; but my duty to my family - to my constituents - to my country, forbid me to be silent. Factions and animosities will lay waste our country. Provinces will rise against Provinces, and no umpire to determine the contest but the sword. This once flourishing and happy land will smile no more; it will become a field of blood, and a scene of terror and desolation.

To such calamities shall we awake from our dreams of independence, and to such miseries will our unreasonable love of liberty lead us. Let us, therefore, moderate a little the eagerness of our pursuit, and not prostitute this noblest and best principle of the human heart, to the unworthy purposes of sedition and rebellion.

The Americans love liberty, 'tis their grand, their darling object, and may they ever have virtue and spirit enough to assert and defend it, as well as wisdom and prudence to enjoy it. But that love of liberty which beats so strongly at our hearts, and which seems to animate and inspirit almost every individual, if not carefully watched and attended to, will, on some future day, (should we be so fortunate as to escape our present danger,) prove a dreadful source of misfortunes to us, if not of ruin. Liberty and licentiousness are nearly allied to each other; like wit and madness, there is but a thin partition between them; the licentiousness invariably leads to slavery. Almost every page of history will furnish abundant proofs of the truths of these observations; and God grant that the annals of this country may not add to the number; but I fear from the present licentious conduct, we are much nearer to a state of slavery and oppression than we seem to be aware of. So far already have we advanced towards it, that all internal order and subordination is nearly at an end among us. the authority of the Civil Magistrate is become useless, and almost contemptible; even the authority of this House, nay, of the whole Legislative body of the Province, has been treated with the utmost contempt, and our power in a manner wrested from us, by a set of men who have arrogated to themselves the style of the People's Representatives. If they are in reality such, to what purpose are we here assembled? If they are authorized to make laws, to establish penalties, and to regulate the concerns of this Colony, why are we called together? What is left for us to do? Nothing, sir, but to do our duty; to undo, if possible, all that they have done; to strip them of their borrowed plumes, and to resume that authority which has been delegated to us for the most important purposes; for the preservation of liberty, order, and good Government. We are the Representatives of the inhabitants of this Colony; they have entrusted us with the guardianship of their rights and liberties; and they look up to us for the preservation of them. Let us therefore act as becomes us, with firmness and resolution. the eyes of all honest and good men are upon us: their hopes; their expectations of peace and safety, under Heaven, are centred here. Let us not disappoint those hopes, but let us lay aside every prejudice; let us suppress every passion and sentiment that can interfere with our country's welfare, and let us unite with one voice and one mind, to save her from destruction.

We have this day before us the choice either of peace or war; of happiness or misery; of freedom or slavery; and surely we cannot hesitate a moment which to choose. By proceeding in a firm, but in a peaceful, loyal, and constitutional manner, in the settlement of this unhappy difference with our mother country, we cannot fail, I am convinced, of meeting with all desirable success. We shall by these means, undoubtedly secure to ourselves a free Constitution; we shall have a line of Government stretched out and ascertained, and we shall be restored to the favour and protection of the parent state, which, next to the favour and protection of Heaven, will be our best and strongest safeguard and security.

But, if you listen to the dictates of violent and enthusiastick men; if you adopt the ill-judged, tyrannical, and destructive measures of the Congress, where will your miseries end? Where, indeed, I cannot tell; but from that moment you must date the commencement of them; from that moment be assured that your ruin is inevitable. Now is the critical moment of our fate; we have it now in our power to do the most essential good, or the most essential mischief to ourselves and our posterity. If we neglect this opportunity of promoting our common felicity, and of establishing our liberties upon a firm and lasting basis, we may perhaps never have another, and we shall repent of our fatal infatuation and folly, when too late to retrieve the mistake; when the horrors and miseries of a civil war shall be increased, if possible ten fold upon our heads, by the curses and execrations of our distracted and deluded constituents; when all orders and degrees of men shall, in the bitterness of their hearts, point us out as the authors of their ruin; when we shall be obliged to submit to the laws of conquest, or to the penalties of rebellion.

I have now, sir, delivered my sentiments freely and candidly upon the subject under our consideration. I have shown that the rise of our present disputes with Great Britain, has been an unreasonable jealousy on our parts, originating from an impolitick exertion of authority on her's. I have proved that it is both our interest and our duty to ehivate the closest and most intimate union with her. I have shown that the authority of the British Parliament, which is the Supreme Legislature of the Empire, extends over these Colonies, which are parts of that Empire. I have shown the extreme danger of an undue opposition to that authority, which either by exerting itself against us, or giving us up to our own government, will equally involve us in misery and destruction. I have shown, that by a peaceful and loyal conduct, we may now procure for ourselves, and perhaps for our sister Colonies, a more perfect System of Government than that which we have hitherto enjoyed, which was indeed better calculated for our infant state, than for the present period of our maturity - a period that requires, (however paradoxical it may seem,) at the same time more liberty and a stricter Government.

I have, therefore, Mr. Speaker, nothing more to add, than that, if contrary to my hopes and my most ardent wishes; if, contrary to the honour and dignity of this House; if, contrary to the dictates of humanity, and to the duty which we owe to our constituents and our country, you adopt the unjust and destructive measures of the Congress, and by that means involve our country in a civil war, the most dreadful calamity that can befall a people, I hereby declare my honest indignation to that measure, and now call Heaven and this House to witness, that I am guiltless of the blood of my fellow-subjects that will be shed upon the occasion - I am guiltless of the ruin of my country.

Die Veneris, 10 ho., A. M., the 24th February, 1775.

Resolved, That his Honour's Speech, and the several matters referred to the Committee thereupon, be taken into further consideration on Wednesday next.

Die Martis, 4 ho., P. M., the 28th February, 1775.

A Petition of Herman Zedwitz, and thirty-one other persons, was presented to the House, and read, setting forth that they are, by education and profession, Protestants, but of foreign birth, and are very desirous of becoming his Majesty's liege subjects within this Colony, and therefore humbly pray they may have leave to bring in a Bill for their Naturalization.

Ordered, That leave be given accordingly.

Die Mercurij, 10 ho., A.M., the 1st March, 1775.

The Order of the Day being read, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House upon the Report of the Committee appointed to prepare a state of the grievances of this Colony; and after some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Colonel Seaman reported that he was directed by the Committee to report to the House that they had made some progress therein, and to move for leave to sit again; which Report be read in his place, and afterwards delivered it in at the table, where the same was again read; and thereupon it was

Resolved, That this House will again to-morrow resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole House, to proceed to the further consideration of the said Report.

Resolved, That his Honour's Speech, and the several matters referred to the Committee thereupon, be taken into further consideration on Tuesday next.

Die Jovis, 10 ho., A. M., the 2d March, 1775.

The House, according to order, resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House, upon the Report of the Committee appointed to state the grievances of this Colony; after some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Colonel Seaman reported that he was directed by the Committee to report to the House that they had made some further progress therein, and to move for leave to sit again; which Report he read in his place, and afterwards delivered it in at the table, where the same was read; and thereupon it was

Resolved, That this House will again to-morrow resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole House, to proceed to the further consideration thereof.

Die Veneris, 10 ho., A. M., the 3d March, 1775.

The Order of the Day being read, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House upon the Report of the Committee appointed to prepare a state of the grievances of this Colony; which Report is in the words following, viz:

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee that the Act of 6th George the Third, chapter 12, entitled "An Act for the better securing the dependency of his Majesty's Dominions in America upon the Crown and Parliament of Great Britain; declaring the right of Parliament to bind the Colonies in all cases whatsoever," is a grievance.

A motion was then made by Colonel Schuyler in the words following, viz:

Mr. Chairman: I move that the Act of 4th George the Third, chapter 15, so far as it imposes Duties for the purpose of raising a Revenue in America; extends the Admiralty Courts beyond their ancient limits; deprives his Majesty's American subjects of Trial by Jury; authorizes the Judge's Certificates to indemnify the prosecutor from damages which he might otherwise be liable to; and holds up an injurious discrimination between the subjects in Great Britain and those in America, is a grievance.

Mr. De Lancey then moved that their previous question be first put, whether the question upon that part of Colonel Schuyler's motion which is comprehended in the following words, that is to say, "So far as it imposes Duties for the purpose of raising a Revenue in America," be now put? And debates arising thereon, and the said previous question being accordingly put, it was carried in the affirmative, in manner following, viz:

For the Affirmative.		For the Negative,
Colonel Schuyler,	Mr. Clinton,	Mr. De Lancey,
Mr. Brinckerhoff,	Mr. Billopp,	Mr. Wilkins.
Mr. Gale,	Mr. Nicoll.
Mr. Kissam,

The question being then put on Colonel Schuyler's motion, it was carried in the affirmative; and thereupon it was

2d. Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee that the aforesaid Act of 4th George (he Third, chapter 15, so far as it imposes Duties for the purpose of raising a Revenue in America; extends the Admiralty Courts beyond their ancient limits; deprives his Majesty's American subjects of Trial by Jury; authorizes the Judge's Certificates to indemnify the prosecutor from damages that he might otherwise be liable to; and holds up an injurious discrimination between the subjects in Great Britain and those in America, is a grievance.

Mr. De Lancey then made a motion, in the words following, viz:

Mr. Chairman: I move that the opinion of this Committee be taken, whether his Majesty and the Parliament of Great Britain have a right to regulate the Trade of the Colonies, and to lay Duties on articles that are imported directly into the Colonies, from any foreign country or plantation which may interfere with the Products or Manufactures of Great Britain, or any other part of his Majesty's Dominions.

Mr. Clinton then moved that the previous question be first put, whether the question upon Mr. De Lancey's motion be now put? And debates arising thereon, and the said previous question being accordingly put, it was carried in the affirmative, in manner following, viz:

For the Affirmative.		For the Negative.
Mr. Billopp,	Mr. Nicoll,	Colonel Schuyler,
Mr. Wilkins,	Mr. Rapalje,	Mr. Clinton
Mr. Gale,	Mr. Brinckerhoff,
Mr. Kissam,	Mr. De Lancey.

The question being then accordingly put on Mr. De Lancey's motion, it was carried in the affirmative; and thereupon, it was

3d. Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that his Majesty, and the Parliament of Great Britain, have a right to-regulate the Trade of the Colonies. and to lay Duties on articles that are imported directly into this Colony from any foreign country or plantation, which may interfere with the Products or Manufactures of Great Britain, or any other parts of his Majesty's Dominions

Colonel Schuyler then made a motion in the following words, viz:

Mr. Chairman: I move the following, in addition to the preceding Resolution, to wit: "Excluding every idea of "Taxation, internal or external, for the purpose of raising "a Revenue on the subjects in America, without their "consent."

Mr. Billopp then moved that the previous question be first put, whether the question upon the said motion be now put? And debates arising thereon, and the said previous question. being accordingly put, it was carried in the negative, in manner following, viz:

For the Negative.		For the Affirmative.
Mr. Nicoll,	Mr. Rapalje,	Colonel Schuyler,
Mr. Kissam,	Mr. Billopp,	Mr. Clinton,
Mr. Gale,	Mr. De Lancey.	Mr. Brinckerhoff.
Mr. Wilkins,

The Act of 3d George the Third, chapter 22, section 8th, being read, and debates arising thereon, the question was put, whether the sum directed therein to be given as security by claimants of vessels, is a grievance? The same passed in the negative, in manner following, viz :

For the Negative.		For the Affirmative.
Mr. De Lancey,	Mr. Nicoll,	Mr. Clinton,
Mr. Gale,	Mr. Rapalje,	Colonel Schuyler,
Mr. Kissam	Mr. Wilkins.	Mr. Brinckerhoff.
Mr. Billopp,

4th, Resolved therefore, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the sum directed in the said last mentioned Act, to be given as security by claimants of vessels, is not a grievance.

5th. Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the ninth section of said last mentioned Act, giving the Courts of Admiralty a concurrent jurisdiction with the Courts of Common Law in causes arising within the body of a County, and thereby leaving it in the power of the prosecutor to deprive the subject of a trial by Jury of the vicinage; and the Act of 8th George the Third, chapter 22, giving similar powers to Courts of Vice-Admiralty, are grievances.

6th. Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the Act of 4th George the Third, chapter 34, is a grievance, inasmuch as it prohibits the Legislature of this Colony from passing any law for the emission of a paper currency, to be a legal tender within the Colony; so advantageous to the growth and commerce of this Colony; the want whereof might, in a great measure, disable his Majesty's subjects here, upon proper requisition, from granting such aids as may be necessary for the general weal and safety of the British Empire.

7th. Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the Act of 6th George the Third, chapter 52, so far as the same lays a duty on Molasses and Syrups, or Coffee, and on Pimento, of the growth or produce of any British Colony or Plantation in America, which shall be imported or brought from thence into any other British Colony or Plantation in America, is a grievance.

8th. Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the Act of 7th George the Third, chapter 46, raising a Revenue for making provision for defraying the charge of the administration of justice, and the support of Civil Government, is a grievance, as it lays a duty on Tea, which is a commodity we are obliged to get from England, and prohibited from importing from any other place; as it raises a Revenue for the support of Government, and the administration of justice in the Colonies, independent of the people, is contrary to, and a revocation of that system of rights and privileges on which the Government of the Colonies hath been established; as it deprives the Legislatures of the Colonies of that check and control upon the servants of the publick, which the Parliament hath in Great Britain, and deprives the subjects in the Colonies of the rights and privileges which they always, before the passing of that Act, have been esteemed entitled to, and of right enjoy, equal with the people of Great Britain.

9th. Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the Act of 7th George the Third, chapter 59, requiring the Legislature of this Colony to provide for the services therein mentioned, without application made to the Representatives of the people of this Colony, in General Assembly, and holding up by any other Acts a suspension of the legislative powers of this Colony, until such requisition be complied with, is a grievance, dangerous to the rights of his Majesty's subjects in this Colony.

10th. Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the Act of 12th George the Third, chapter 24, entitled "An Act for the better securing and preserving his "Majesty's Dock-Yards, Magazines, Ships, Ammunition "and Stores," as it deprives the American subject of a trial by Jury of the vicinage, and authorizes the trial of persons charged with committing certain offences out of the Realm, in any Shire or County within the Realm, is dangerous to the lives and liberties of the subject.

11th, Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the construction of the Statute of 35th Henry the Eighth, chapter 2, as held up by both Houses of Parliament, in their Address to his Majesty, in the ninth year of his reign, recommending the issuing a special commission for inquiring of Treasons, and misprision of Treasons, committed in the Province of Massachusetts Bay, in order to have the offenders, if any there were, tried in Great Britain, is a grievance.

12th. Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the Statute of 14th George the Third, chapter 88, so far as it imposes Duties upon certain articles of Merchandise imported into the Province of Quebec, (which, by another Statute of the same year, chapter 83, is so extended, as to comprehend all the Indian country from Hudson's Bay to the mouth of the River Ohio;) is a grievance; as by the said Statutes the grand commerce formerly carried on from this Colony, with the numerous Indian natives, is in a great measure destroyed; and by which the beneficial and useful intercourse with them is almost entirely cut off, as the only place by which the dutied articles may be imported into the said Province, is restricted to the Port of St. John's, on the River Sorel, which is so extremely remote from the other Colonies, that the carrying of Goods to be entered there to prosecute the Indian Trade, must necessarily be attended with such a heavy expense, as to amount to a total prohibition. That the discrimination made in the said Statute of 14th George the Third, chapter 88, in favour of the Sugar Colonies, by subjecting the Continental Colonies to a larger Duty on the dutied articles, is a grievance. And that the said Statute of 14th George the Third, chapter 83, so far as it may be construed to establish the Roman Catholick Religion in the Province of Quebec, so extended, is a grievance.

The Act of 14th George the Third, entitled "An Act "to discontinue, in such manner and for such time as are "therein mentioned, the landing and discharging, lading or "shipping of Goods, Wares, or Merchandise, at the Town, "and within the Harbour of Boston, in the Province of "Massachusetts Bay, in North America;" being read, and debates arising thereon, and the question being put, whether the same is a grievance that affects this Colony? it was carried in the affirmative, in manner following, viz:

For the Affirmative.		For the Negative.
Colonel Schuyler,	Mr. Clinton,	Mr. De Lancey,
Mr. Nicoll,	Mr. Brinckerhoff.	Mr. Wilkins,
Mr. Rapalje,		Mr. Billopp,
Mr. Kissam,		Mr. Gale.

13th. Resolved therefore, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the last mentioned act is a grievance. Mr. Nicoll, Mr. Kissam, and Mr. Rapalje, conceive the above Act to be a grievance, so far as the same affects the Trade of this Colony.

14th. Resolved, That the Act of 14th George the Third, chapter 39, entitled "An Act for the Impartial "Administration of Justice in the cases of persons ques- "tioned for any acts done by them in the execution of the "Law, or for the suppression of Riots and Tumults in the "Province of the Massachusetts Bay, in New England," so far as the same may establish a dangerous precedent in America, is a grievance.

The Act of 14th George the Third, chapter 45, entitled "An Act for the better regulating the Government of the "Province of the Massachusetts Bay, in New England," being read, the question was put, whether the same is a grievance? And debates arising thereon, it was carried in the affirmative, in manner following, viz:

For the Affirmative.		For the Negative.
Colonel Schuyler,	Mr. NicolI,	Mr. De Lancey,
Mr. Clinton,	Mr. Brinckerhoff.	Mr. Billopp,
Mr. Kissam,		Mr. Witkins,
Mr. Gale,		Mr. Rapalje

15th. Resolved therefore, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the last mentioned Act is a grievance.

Mr. Nicoll, Mr. Kissam, and Mr. Gale, conceived that the aforesaid Act, so far as the same may form a precedent for altering or taking away Charter rights granted to the subjects in America, contrary to the ordinary course of law, is a grievance.

After some time spent thereon, and having gone through the same, Mr. Speaker took the Chair, and Colonel Seaman reported, that he was directed to make the following Report to the House, to wit:

That after reading the Report in the Committee, and upon reading it again, paragraph by paragraph, on the questions upon the first and second Resolutions, severally, whether they agreed to the same? they passed in the affirmative.

That he then read the third Resolution; upon which debates arose, and the question having been put thereon, it passed in the affirmative, in manner following, viz:

For the Affirmative.		For the Negative.
Mr. Jauncey,	Mr. Ten Eyck,	Mr. Thomas,
Mr. Brush,	Colonel Philips,	Colonel Schuyler,
Mr. Gale,	Mr. Brinckerhoff,	Captain Seaman,
Mr. Wilkins,	Colonel Wells,	Mr. De Witt,
Mr. Rapalje,	Mr. Nicoll.	Colonel P. Livingston,
Mr. Kissam,		Mr. Boerum,
Mr. Speaker,		Colonel Woodhull,
Mr. De Lancey,		Mr. Clinton,
Mr. Billopp,		Colonel Ten Broeck,
Mr. Van Kleeck,		Mr. Coe.

That he next read Colonel Schuyler's motion for the following addition to the said third Resolution, to-wit: "Excluding every idea of Taxation, internal or external, for the purpose of raising a Revenue on the subjects in America, without their consent." On the question, whether they agree to the said addition? debates arose, the Committee divided, and it passed in the affirmative, in manner following, viz:

For the Affirmative.		For the Negative.
Mr. Brinckerhoff,	Colonel Ten Broeck,	Mr. Jauncey,
Mr. Thomas,	Captain Seaman,	Mr. Brush,
Mr. De Witt,	Mr. Coe.	Mr. Wilkins,
Mr. Boerum,		Mr. Rapalje,
Mr. Gale,		Mr. Kissam,
Mr. Van Kleeck,		Mr. Speaker,
Mr. Ten Eyck,		Mr. De Lancey,
Colonel Schuyler,		Mr. Billopp,
Colonel P. Livingston,		Colonel Philips,
Colonel Woodhull,		Colonel Wells,
Mr. Clinton,		Mr. Nicoll.

Resolved therefore, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the foregoing addition, as moved by Colonel Schuyler, be added to the said third Resolution.

On reading the fourth Resolution, debates arose, and the question being put, whether they agree thereto, it passed in the affirmative, in manner following, viz:

For the Affirmative.		For the Negative.
Mr. Coe,	Mr. Speaker,	Mr. Brinckerhoff,
Mr. Jauncey,	Mr. Billopp,	Mr. Boernm,
Colonel Philips,	Mr. Walton,	Mr. Clinton,
Colonel Wells,	Mr. Van Kleeck,	Mr. De Witt,
Mr. Wilkins,	Mr. Brush,	Col. P. Livingston,
Mr. Kissam,	Mr. Gale.	Colonel Woodhull,
Mr. Nicoll,		Captain Seaman,
Mr. Rapalje,		Colonel Ten Broeck,
Mr. Ten Eyck,		Mr. Thomas,
Mr. De Lancey,		Colonel Schuyler.

That the fifth, sixth, seventh, eighth, ninth, tenth, eleventh, and twelfth Resolutions, were severally read, and on the questions severally put thereon, were agreed to nenine contradicente.

The thirteenth Resolution being then read; on the question, whether they agree to the same, debates arose, the Committee divided, and it passed in the affirmative, in manner following, viz:

For the Affirmative.		For the Negative.
Mr. Coe,	Colonel Schuyler,	Mr. Jauncey,
Mr. Van Kleeck,	Mr. Kissam,	Colonel Philips,
Mr. Brinckerhoff,	Mr. Nicoll,	Colonel Wells,
Mr. Boerum,	Mr. Rapalje.	Mr. Wilkins,
Mr. Clinton,		Mr. De Lancey,
Mr. De Witt,		Mr. Speaker,
Col. P. Livingston,		Mr. Billopp,
Colonel Woodhull,		Mr. Walton,
Captain Seaman,		Mr. Brush,
Colonel Ten Broeck,		Mr. Gale,
Mr. Thomas,		Mr. Ten Eyck.

The question was next put on the fourteenth Resolution; which passed in the affirmative, nemine contradicente.

The fifteenth Resolution being next proceeded on; after some time spent in debates, and the question being put thereon, it passed in the affirmative, in manner following, viz:

For the Affirmative.		For the Negative.
Mr. Gale,	Mr. Kissam,	Mr. Rapalje,
Mr. Thomas,	Captain Seaman,	Mr. Jauncey,
Mr. Van Kleeck,	Mr. De Witt,	Mr. Walton,
Mr. Clinton,	Mr. Brinckerhoff,	Mr. Brush,
Mr. Coe,	Col. P. Livingston,	Mr. Speaker,
Colonel Schuyler,	Colonel Ten Broeck.	Mr. De Lancey,
Mr. Nicoll,		Colonel Wells,
Colonel Woodhull,		Mr. Wilkins,
Mr. Boerum,		Mr. Ten Eyck,
Colonel Philips,		Mr. Billopp.

Mr. Nicoll, Mr. Kissam, Mr. Gale, and Col. Philips, conceive the Act alluded to in the said fifteenth Resolution, so far as the same may form a precedent for altering or taking away Charter rights granted to the subject in America, contrary to the ordinary course of law, is a grievance.

Which Report he read in his place, and afterwards delivered it in at the table, where the same was again read. On the question whether the House agree thereto, debates arose, and it passed in the affirmative.

Resolved therefore, That this House doth agree with the Committee, in their said Report and Resolutions.

Die Martis, 10 ho., A. M., the 7th March, 1775.

Ordered, That Mr. De Lancey, Mr. Clinton, and Mr. Kissam, or the major part of them, be a Committee to prepare a set of Resolutions, agreeable to Colonel P. Livingston's motion on the 31st of January last, and lay the same before this House, with all convenient speed.

Resolved, That his Honour's Speech, and the several matters referred to the Committee thereupon, be taken into further consideration on Friday next.

Die Mercurij, 10 ho., A. M., the 8th March, 1775.

Mr. Kissam, from the Committee appointed to prepare a set of Resolutions to be entered on the Journals, pursuant to Colonel P. Livingston's motion of the 31st day of January last, reported that they had prepared sundry Resolutions accordingly; which he read in his place, and afterwards delivered them in at the table, where the same were again read; and thereupon, it was Ordered, That the said Resolutions be referred to the consideration of a Committee of the Whole House, and that the House resolve itself into a Committee thereupon immediately.

The House then accordingly resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House upon the said Resolutions. After some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Colonel Seaman reported, that he was directed by the Committee to report to the House, that they had gone through the said Resolutions, and made some amendments thereto; which he read in his place, and afterwards delivered them, as amended, in at the table, where the same were again read, and are as follow, viz:

1st, Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the people of this Colony owe the same faith and allegiance to his most gracious Majesty, King George the Third, that are due to him from his subjects in Great Britain.

2d. Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that his Majesty's subjects in this Colony owe obedience to all Acts of Parliament calculated for the general weal of the whole Empire, and the due regulation of the Trade and Commerce thereof, and not inconsistent with the essential rights and liberties of Englishman, to which they are equally entitled with their fellow-subjects in Great Britain.

3d. Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that it is essential to freedom, and the undoubted right of Englishman, that no Taxes be imposed on them but with their consent, given personally, or by their Representatives in General Assembly.

4th. Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the Acts of Parliament, raising a Revenue in America, especially to provide for the support of the Civil Government and administration of justice in the Colonies - extending the jurisdiction of the Courts of Admiralty beyond their ancient limits - authorizing the Judge's Certificate to indemnify the prosecutor from damages he would otherwise be liable to, giving them a concurrent jurisdiction of causes heretofore cognizable only in the Courts of Common Law, and by that means depriving the American subject of his trial by a Jury, are destructive to freedom, and subversive of the rights and liberties of the Colonies.

5th. Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that a trial by a Jury of the vicinage, in all capital cases, is the grand security of freedom, and the birthright of Englishmen; and therefore, that the seizing any person or persons residing in this Colony, suspected of Treasons, misprisions of Treason, or any other offences, and sending such person or persons out of the same to be tried, is dangerous to the Lives and Liberties of his Majesty's American subjects.

Colonel Seaman then also reported, that when they came to the second Resolution, Colonel Woodhull moved, that between the word "thereof" and the word "and," the following words be inserted, to wit: "excluding every idea of "Taxation, internal or external, for the purpose of raising a "Revenue on the subjects in America, without their consent."

That Mr. De Lancey then moved that the previous question be first put, whether the question upon Colonel Woodhull's motion be now put? And debates arising thereon, and the said previous question being accordingly put, it was carried in the negative, (that is to say, that the question upon Colonel Woodhull's motion be now put.) in manner following, viz:

For the Negative.	For the Affirmative.
Mr. Wilkins,	Colonel P. Livingston,
Mr. Kissam,	Mr. Clinton,
Mr. Billopp,	Mr. De Witt,
Mr. Brush,	Colonel Woodhull,
Colonel Wells,	Captain Seaman,
Mr. Speaker,	Mr. Boerum,
Mr. Jauncey,	Mr. Ten Eyck,
Mr. De Lancey,	Mr. Van Kleeck,
Mr. Nicoll,	Colonel Ten Broeck,
Mr. Walton,	Mr. Brinckerhoff,
Mr. Coe,	Colonel Schuyler,
Mr. Gale,	Mr. Van Cortlandt,
Colonel Philips,	Mr. Thomas.
Colonel Seaman, Chairman.

That on reading the third Resolution, a motion was made by Mr. Clinton, in the words following, viz:

Mr. Chairman: I move that the following words be inserted in the third Resolution, between the words "Taxes" and "be," to wit: "of any kind or nature, or under any denomination whatever." And debates arising upon the same, and the question being put thereon, it was carried in the negative, in manner following, viz:

For the Negative.	For the Affirmative.
Mr. Wilkins,	Colonel P. Livingston,
Mr. Kissam,	Mr. Clinton,
Mr. Billopp,	Mr. De Witt,
Mr. Brush,	Colonel Woodhull,
Colonel Wells,	Captain Seaman,
Mr. Speaker,	Mr. Boerum,
Mr. Jauncey,	Mr. Van Kleeck,
Mr. Walton,	Colonel Ten Broeck,
Mr. De Lancey,	Mr. Brinckerhoff,
Mr. Nicoll,	Colonel Schuyler,
Mr. Coe,	Mr. Van Cortlandt,
Mr. Gale,	Mr. Thomas.
Colonel Philips,
Mr. Ten Eyck.

Which Report he read in his place, and afterwards delivered the Bill in at the table, where the same, with the aforesaid Resblutions, were severally read a second time. On the question whether the House agree to the same? debates arose, the House divided, and it passed in the affirmative, in manner following, viz:

For the Affirmative.	For the Negative.
Mr. Wilkins,	Mr. Coe,
Mr. Kissam,	Mr. Livingston,
Mr. Billop,	Mr. Clinton,
Mr. Brush,	Mr. De Witt,
Colonel Wells,	Colonel Woodhull,
Mr. Jauncey,	Captain Seaman,
Mr. Van Kleeck,	Mr. Boerum,
Mr. Walton,	Colonel Ten Broeck,
Mr. De Lancey,	Mr. Brinckerhoff,
Mr. Nicoll,	Colonel Schuyler,
Mr. Gale,	Mr. Van Cortlandt,
Colonel Philips,	Mr. Thomas.
Colonel Seaman,
Mr. Ten Eyck.

Resolved therefore, That this House doth agree with the Committee, in their said Report and Resolutions.

Die Jovis, 10 ho, A. M., the 9th March, 1775.

part of them, be a Committee to prepare the draft of a Representation and Remonstrance to the Commons of Great Britain, pursuant to Mr. De Lancey's motion on the said 31st day of January last; and that the said Committee lay the said drafts before this House, with all convenient speed.

Die Sabbati, 10 ho., A. M., the 11th March, 1775.

The Committee appointed to correspond with Edmund Burke, Esquire, Agent of this Colony at the Court of Great Britain, laid before the House a Letter received from the said Agent, by the Packet; which being read,

Ordered, That the said Letter lie on the table, for the perusal of the Members.

Die Lunæ, 4 ho, P. M., the 13th March, 1775.

Mr. Speaker laid before the House a Letter from William Bollan, Benjamin Franklin, and Arthur Lee, Esqs., Agents for some of the North American Colonies, dated London, December 24, 1774, directed to the Speaker of the General Assembly of this Colony, acquainting him that they had presented the Petition of the Continental Congress to Lord Dartmouth, who had laid it before his Majesty. And the same being read, Ordered, That the said Letter lie on the table, for the perusal of the Members.

A Message from his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour, by Mr. Bayard, Deputy Secretary; and the same being read, is in the words following, viz:

GENTLEMEN: The very insufficient state of the publick office of the Secretary of the Province is obvious. The records and papers, which are of the greatest importance to the whole Province, are, from the ruinous state of the house, daily exposed to the worst effects of the weather. You will find this business requires your immediate attention; and I therefore recommend it to your consideration.

CADWALLADER COLDEN.

New-York, 13th March, 1775.

Ordered, That the said Message be referred to the consideration of the Committee to whom his Honour's Speech, &c., are committed.

Die Mercurij, 10 ho., A. M , the 15th March, 1775.

The Order of the Day being read, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House, upon his Honour's Speech, Messages, &c. After some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Mr. Kissam reported, that he was directed by the Committee to report to the House, that they had come to sundry Resolutions thereon; which he read in his place, and they are as follow, viz:

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that there be allowed unto his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour, or to the Commander-in-Chief, for the time being, for his administering the government of this Colony, from the 7th day of April last, till the 1st day of September next, after the rate of two thousand Pounds per annum.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee that there be allowed unto Samuel Holland, Esquire, for his services on the part of this Colony, in conjunction with

Mr. Rittenhouse, on the part of Pennsylvania, in fixing the beginning of the forty-third degree of latitude, upon the River Delaware, as per account, the sum of two hundred and two Pounds, thirteen Shillings, and six Pence.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that the foregoing several allowances be made payable out of the moneys arisen, or which may arise by virtue of the following Acts, viz: the Act entitled "An Act further to continue an Act entitled 'An Act for granting to his Majesty the several Duties and Impositions on Goods, Wares, and Merchandise imported into this Colony, therein mentioned;" the Act entitled "An Act to continue an Act entitled 'An Act to regulate the sale of Goods at public Vendue, Auction, or Outcry, within this Colony;" and the Act entitled "An Act to revive an Act entitled 'An Act to restrain Hawkers and Pedlars within this Colony, from selling without license, with an addition thereto."

Mr. Kissam then also reported, that he was directed by the Committee to move for leave to sit again; which Report he read in his place, and afterwards delivered it, with the said Resolutions, in at the table, where the same were again read, and agreed to by the House.

Ordered, That a Bill be brought in, pursuant to the said Resolutions, and that Mr. Kissam and Mr. Walton prepare and bring in the same.

Resolved, That his Honour's Speech, and the several matters referred to the Committee thereupon, be taken into further consideration to-morrow.

Die Jovis, 10 ho., A. M., the 16th March, 1775.

Mr. Wilkins, from the Committee appointed to prepare the draught of a Petition to the King, laid before the House a draught accordingly.

Mr. Brush, from the Committee appointed to prepare a draught of a Memorial to the Lords; and

Mr. De Lancey, from the Committee appointed to prepare the draught of a Representation and Remonstrance to the Commons of Great Britain, laid before the House the said draughts accordingly; and the said three draughts being severally read, Ordered, That the said three draughts be referred to the consideration of a Committee of the Whole House.

Resolved, That his Honour's Speech, and the several matters referred to the Committee thereupon, be taken into further consideration on Tuesday next.

Die Martis, 10 ho., A. M., the 21st March, 1775.

Resolved, That his Honour's Speech, and the several matters referred to the Committee thereupon, be taken into further consideration to-morrow.

Die Mercurij, 4 ho., P. M., the 22d March, 1775.

The Order of the Day being read, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House upon his Honour's Speech, Messages, &c. After some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Mr. Kissam reported that he was directed by the Committee to make the following Report to the House, to wit:

That after reading his Honour's Message of the 7th ultimo, wherein he recommends to the House to take into consideration the opening an easy communication by Great Roads to Albany, from the Northeastern part of this Colony, the Committee were of opinion that the consideration of the said Message be postponed till the next session.

That he then read his Honour's Message of the 9th Ultimo, wherein he recommends to the House to make provision for an annual salary to the Honourable James Jauncey, Junior, Esquire, Master of the Rolls.

On the question, Whether provision be made, pursuant to the said motion? debates arose, the Committee divided, and it passed in the affirmative, in manner following, viz:

For the Affirmative.		For the Negative.
Colonel Wells,	Mr. Van Kleeck,	Mr. Boerum,
Mr. Clinton,	Colonel Schuyler,	Mr. Thomas,
Mr. Brush,	Mr. Gale,	Mr. De Witt,
Mr. Walton,	Mr. Ten Eyck,	Mr. Coe,
Colonel Philips,	Colonel Seaman,	Mr. Van Cortlandt,
Mr. Speaker,	Mr. De Lancey,	Colonel Woodhull,
Mr. Kapalje,	Mr. Billopp,	Captain Seaman.
Mr. Wilkins,

That it was then proposed the sum of two hundred and fifty Pounds, per annum, be allowed to the said Master of the Rolls; on which debates arose, the Committee divided, and it passed in the affirmative, in manner following, viz:

For the Affirmative.	For the Negative;
Mr. Speaker,	Mr. De Witt,
Mr. Walton,	Mr. Clinton,
Mr. De Lancey,	Colonel Schuyler,
Mr. Van Kleeck,	Mr. Coe,
Colonel Wells,	Colonel Seaman,
Mr. Brush,	Mr. Billopp,
Mr. Ten Eyck,	Captain Seaman,
Mr. Wilkins,	Colonel Woodhull,
Colonel Philips,	Mr. Van Cortlandt,
Mr. Gale,	Mr. Thomas.
Mr. Jauncey.

Resolved therefore, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that there be allowed unto the Honourable James Jauncey, Junior, Esquire, Master of the Rolls of this Colony, for his services in that station from the 24th day of March, 1774, to the 1st day of September, 1775, after the rate of two hundred and fifty Pounds per annum; and that a Committee be appointed to draw up an humble Address to his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour, requesting that the commission for that important office may be granted during good behaviour.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that there be allowed unto his Excellency Governour Tryon, or his order, for the moneys advanced by him for repairs in Fort George, and on the Battery, as per account, the sum of sixty-four Pounds, sixteen Shillings, and four Pence.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that there be allowed unto Theophilus Hardenbrook, for sundry repairs on the Battery, and the Garden at Fort George, as per account, the sum of nine Pounds, eleven Shillings, and one Pennv.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Committee, that there be allowed unto Gerard Bancker, a sum not exceeding forty Pounds, to be laid out by him in repairing the Secretary's office of this Colony,

Which Report he read in his place, and afterwards delivered it, with the foregoing Resolutions, in at the table, where the same were again read, and agreed to by the House.

Ordered, That Mr. Clinton and Mr. Brush be a Committee to prepare and bring in the draught of an humble Address to be presented to his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour, agreeable to the first Resolution.

Die Jovis, 10 ho., A. M., the 23d March, 1775.

A Message from his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour, by Mr. Bayard, Deputy Secretary, which being read, is in the words following, viz:

GENTLEMEN: You will see, with just indignation, from the Papers I have ordered to be laid before you, the dangerous state of anarchy and confusion which has lately arisen in Cumberland County, as well as the little respect which has been paid to the provisions of the Legislature, at their last sessions, for suppressing the disorders which have for some time greatly disturbed the Northeastern Districts of the County of Albany, and part of the County of Charlotte.

You are called upon, gentlemen, by every motive of duty, prudence, policy, and humanity, to assist me in applying the remedy proper for a case so dangerous and alarming.

The negligence of Government will ever produce a contempt of authority, and by fostering a spirit of disobedience, compel, in the sequel, to greater severity. It will therefore be found to be not only true benevolence, but also real frugality, to resist those enormities at their commencement; and I am persuaded, from your known regard to the dignity of Government, and your humanity to the distressed, that you will readily strengthen the hands of civil authority, and enable me to extend the succour and support which are necessary for the relief and protection of his Majesty's suffering and obedient subjects, the vindication of the honour, and the promotion of the peace and felicity of the Colony.

CADWALLADER COLDEN.

New-York, March 23, 1775.

Ordered, That the said Message, and the Papers attending the same, be referred to the consideration of a Committee of the Whole House.

Die Veneris, 10 ho., A. M., the 24th March, 1775.

The House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House, upon the draught of a Petition to the King. After some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Colonel Seaman reported that he was directed by the Committee to make the following Report to the House, to wit:

That after reading the said Draught through in the Committee, and upon reading it again, paragraph by paragraph, when he came to the fifth paragraph, a motion was made by Colonel Schuyler, in the words following, viz:

Mr. Chairman: I move that the following words be struck out of the fifth paragraph, beginning after the word "her," to wit: "We acknowledge there are appearances "which may be construed to our disadvantage, and that "several of the measures pursued by the Colonies, are by "no means justifiable; yet, while we disapprove and condemn them, we entreat you, as the indulgent father of your "people, to view them in the most favourable light, and to "consider them as the honest, though disorderly struggles "of liberty, not the licentious efforts of independence;" and that the following words be substituted, to wit: "And "as we have too much reason to suspect that pains have "been taken to induce your Majesty to think us impatient "of constitutional Government, we entreat you, royal sir, "to believe that our commotions are honest struggles for "maintaining our constitutional liberties, and not dictated "by a desire of independence. Could your princely virtues, as easily as your powers, have been delegated to "your servants, we had not at this time been reduced to "the disagreeable necessity of disturbing your repose, on "an occasion which we sincerely lament."

Upon which debates arose, and the question having been put thereon, it passed in the negative, in manner following, viz:

For the Negative.		For the Affirmative.
Mr. Brush,	Mr. Jauncey,	Mr. De Witt,
Mr. Billopp,	Mr. De Lancey,	Colonel Schuyler,
Colonel Wells,	Mr. Rapalje,	Mr. Clinton,
Mr. Nicoll,	Mr. Ten Eyck,	Mr. Boerum,
Mr. Kissam,	Mr. Speaker,	Captain Seaman,
Mr. Gale,	Mr. Wilkins,	Colonel Woodhull,
Mr. Coe,	Colonel Philips.	Mr. Thomas,
Mr. Van Kleeck,		Mr. Van Cortlandt.

That on reading the sixth paragraph, a second motion was made by Colonel Schuyler, in the words following, viz:

Mr. Chairman: I move that the following words be struck out of the sixth paragraph, to wit: "Your Majesty's American subjects have hitherto been in a state of infancy, "and till lately have submitted implicitly, and without repining, to the authority of the parent state; they have "now reached the period of maturity, and think themselves "entitled to their birth-right - an equal participation of "freedom with their fellow-subjects in Britain;" and the words following be-substituted, to wit: "Although your "Majesty's American subjects have, in some instances, "submitted to the power exercised by the parent state, "they nevertheless conceive themselves entitled to an equal "participation of freedom with their fellow-subjects in Britain."

On which debates arose, and the question having been put thereon, it was carried in the negative, in manner following, viz:

For the Negative.		For the Affirmative.
Mr. Brush,	Mr. Rapalje,	Mr. De Witt,
Mr. Billopp,	Mr. Ten Eyck,	Colonel Schuyler,
Colonel Wells,	Mr. Speaker,	Mr. Coe,
Mr. Nicoll,	Mr. Wilkins,	Mr. Clinton,
Mr. Kissam,	Colonel Philips.	Mr. Boerum,
Mr. Gale,		Captain Seaman,
Mr. Van Kleeck,		Colonel Woodhull,
Mr. Jauncey,		Mr. Thomas,
Mr. De Lancey,		Mr. Van Cortlandt.

That a third motion was then made by Colonel Schuyler, on reading the said sixth paragraph, in the words following, viz:

Mr. Chairman: I move that the following words be struck out of the sixth paragraph, after the word "Parliament," to wit: "On the contrary, we cheerfully acknowledge our "subordination to it as the grand Legislature of the Empire; we wish only to enjoy the rights of Englishmen, "and to have that share of liberty, and those privileges "secured to us which we are entitled to, upon the principles of our free and happy Constitution. Permit us,

"therefore," and the following words substituted, to wit: "Conscious of the incompetency of the Colony Legislatures to regulate the trade of the Empire, we cheerfully "acknowledge such a power in that august body, as is "founded in expediency, and confined to the regulation of "our external commerce, with a view to the general weal "of all your Majesty's subjects, and in such a manner as "will leave to us, unimpaired, those rights which we hold "by the immutable laws of nature and the principles of the "English Constitution; but the exercise of powers incompatible with those rights, not justified by expediency, "and destructive of English liberty, induces us"

And debates arose on the said motion, and the question having been put thereon, it was carried in the negative, in manner following, viz:

For the Negative.		For the Affirmative.
Mr. Brush,	Mr. Jauncey,	Mr. De Witt,
Mr. Billopp,	Mr. De Lancey,	Colonel Schuyler,
Colonel Wells,	Mr. Rapalje,	Mr. Clinton,
Mr. Nicoll,	Mr. Ten Eyck,	Mr. Boerum,
Mr. Kissam,	Mr. Speaker,	Captain Seaman,
Mr. Gale,	Mr. Wilkins,	Colonel Woodhull,
Mr. Coe,	Colonel Philips.	Mr. Thomas,
Mr. Van Kleeck,		Mr. Van Cortlandt.

That on reading the seventh paragraph, a motion was made by Colonel Woodhull, in the words following, viz:

Mr. Chairman: I move that the following words be struck out of the seventh paragraph, after the word "Representative," to wit: "This right we do not at present enjoy, inasmuch as the British Parliament, in which we have no "representation, have claimed and exercised a right of "making laws binding upon us in all cases whatsoever;" and the following words substituted, to wit: "This invaluable right the British Parliament, in which we neither "are nor can be represented, have declared an intention to "infringe, by asserting an authority to bind us by their Acts "in all cases whatsoever."

Upon which debates arose, and the question having been put thereon, it was carried in the negative, in manner following, viz:

For the Negative.		For the Affirmative.
Mr. Nicoll,	Mr. Jauncey,	Colonel Schuyler,
Mr. Kissam,	Mr. Speaker,	Mr. Clinton,
Colonel Philips,	Mr. De Lancey,	Mr. Van Cortlandt,
Mr. Ten Eyck,	Mr. Van Kleeck,	Mr. Boerum,
Mr. Coe,	Mr. Rapalje,	Colonel Woodhull.
Mr. Wilkins,	Mr. Brush.	Captain Seaman,
Mr. Walton,		Mr. Thomas,
Mr. Billopp,		Mr. De Witt,
Colonel Wells,		Mr. Gale.

That on reading the thirteenth paragraph, a motion was made by Colonel Schuyler, in the words following, viz:

Mr. Chairman: I move that the following words be inserted in the said thirteenth paragraph, between the word "thereof" and the word "and," to wit: "An abridgment "of your Majesty's prerogative, in the preservation of which "we are deeply interested, and a violation of our legislative rights." On the question, it passed in the affirmative.

That on reading the fourteenth paragraph, a motion was made by Mr. De Witt, in the words following, viz:

Mr. Chairman: I move that the following words be struck out of the fourteenth paragraph, to wit: "The Act "for the regulation of the Government of Quebec, we must "beg leave to mention also to your Majesty, as the extension of that Province, and the indulgence granted by it to "Roman Catholics, have given great uneasiness to the "minds of many of your Majesty's American subjects;" and the following words substituted, to wit: "We beg leave "to hold up to your Majesty, as a most alarming grievance, "the change wrought by your Parliament in the Government of Quebec; a change by which your Majesty's "Royal Proclamation, conferring the privileges of Englishmen on the inhabitants of that conquered country, is abrogated; the rights of your Majesty's natural born subjects, "who have settled there in confidence thereof, wholly defeated; its future population by emigrants who know the "value of British liberty, most effectually discouraged; "Popery highly encouraged, if not established; and a form "of Government unknown in the British Constitution, "erected in that very extensive Dominion, to the great grief "and danger of your Majesty's ancient, loyal, free, and "Protestant Colonies on the Continent?" On the question, debates arose, the Committee divided, and it passed in the negative, in manner following, viz:

For the Negative.		For the Affirmative.
Mr. Walton,	Colonel Wells,	Colonel Schuyler,
Mr. Nicoll,	Mr. Jauneey,	Mr. Clinton,
Mr. Kissam,	Mr. Speaker,	Mr. Van Cortlandt,
Colonel Philip's,	Mr. De Lancey,	Colonel Woodhull,
Mr. Ten Eyck,	Mr. Van Kleeck,	Captain Seaman,
Mr. Gale,	Mr. Rapalje,	Mr. Thomas,
Mr. Wilkins,	Mr. Brush.	Mr. De Witt,
Mr. Billopp,		Mr. Coe.

That on reading the fifteenth paragraph, Mr. Clinton inbred that the same be struck out, which is in these words, viz: "The late Acts for shutting up the Port of Boston, "and altering the Charter of the Massachusetts Bay, we pre-"same not to mention to your Majesty, without first assur-"ing you, that we, in many instances, disapprove of the "conduct of that Province, and beseeching your gracious "interposition in their favour; we cannot, however, help "observing, that those Acts seem to establish a dangerous "precedent, by inflicting punishment without the formality "of a trial," and the following words substituted, to wit: "Although, royal sir, it would be improper here to enter "into a justification of the merits of the measures which "occasioned the late act for shutting up the Port of Bos-"ton, abridging the Charter rights of the Massachusetts Bay, and for the impartial administration of justice in "that Province; your Majesty will, however, graciously "be pleased to permit us to observe, that the ill-policied "scheme of Colony Administration pursued by your Majes-"ty's Ministers since the close of the last war, has been "productive of great warmth in every part of your Em-"pire; nor can we avoid declaring, that we view those "Acts with that jealousy which is the necessary result of a "just sense of the blessings of freedom, and abhor the "principles they contain, as establishing precedents subver-"sive of the rights, privileges, and property, and danger-"ous to the lives of your Majesty's American subjects."

Upon which debates arose, and the question having been put thereon, it was carried in the negative, in manner fol-

For the Negative.		For the Affirmative.
Mr. Walton,	Mr. Jauncey,	Colonel Schuyler,
Mr. Nicoll,	Mr. Speaker,	Mr. Clinton,
Mr. Kissam,	Mr. De Lancey,	Mr. Van Cortlandt,
Colonel Philips,	Mr. Van Kleeck,	Colonel Woodhull,
Mr. Ten Eyck,	Mr. Rapalje,	Captain Seaman,
Mr. Wilkins,	Mr. Brush,	Mr. Thomas,
Mr. Billopp,	Mr. Gale.	Mr. De Witt,
Colonel Wells,		Mr. Coe.

That Colonel Philips then moved to have the words "seem to" struck out of the said fifteenth paragraph, which passed in the affirmative.

That on reading the sixteenth paragraph, a motion was made by Mr. Clinton, in the words following, viz:

Mr. Chairman: I move that the said sixteenth para-graph be struck out, which is in these words, to wit: "We "cannot quit the subject of our grievances, without humbly "representing to your Majesty, that we are apprehensive "many inconveniences may arise from the Judges of the "Supreme Court in this Colony holding their commissions "during pleasure; we therefore entreat your Majesty to "grant them them commissions upon the tenure that the "Judges of your Majesty's Courts in England hold theirs, "during good behaviour; and we assure your Majesty, that "if you shall be pleased to grant us this indulgence, you "will find the Representatives of this Colony ready and "willing to annex such adequate and permanent salaries to "those offices, as shall render them as independent of the "people, as your Majesty may be pleased to make them "of the Crown;" and the following words substituted, to wit: "With the highest satisfaction, most gracious Sove-"reign, we reflect on your royal declaration from the "throne, at your happy accession, that it was essential to "the impartial administration of justice, and one of the "best securities to the rights and liberties of your subjects, "that your Judges should hold their commissions during "good behaviour; permit us then to pray, that you will be "graciously pleased to remove the distinction between your "subjects in England and those in a America, by commis-"sioning your Judges here to hold their offices on the same "tenure; in which case we beg leave to assure your Ma-"jesty, that we stand ready to give them such adequate "and permanent salaries as will render them independent "of the people." On the question, the Committee agreed to the same, nemine contradicente.

That after he had read the seventeenth paragraph, Mr. Clinton moved that the following words be struck out from the beginning of the said seventeenth paragraph, to wit: "We have now, most gracious Sovereign, stated our griev-"ances to your Majesty; we have done it, we trust, with "all the respect due to the best of Kings, and with that "decent freedom becoming the Representatives of a [faith-"ful, ancient, and loyal Colony;]

[Here four pages of the original are missing. They contained the remainder of the Proceedings on the Petition to the King, and the Proceedings on the Memorial to the House of Lords, as far as the twenty-first paragraph.]

"part of his Majesty's Dominions; but that it is essential "to freedom, and the undoubted, rights of our constituents, "that no Taxes be imposed on them but with their consent, "given personally or by their lawful Representatives;" and the following substituted, to wit: "And while we es-"teem it our duty thus fully to lay them before your Lord-"ships, we beg leave to assure you, that we shall never re-"pine at the exercise of Parliamentary authority to regulate "trade for the general weal of the Empire, when it is solely "employed in the enacting Duties on imports from foreign "countries, that may interfere with the products or manu-"faEtures of any part of the British Empire, provided that "in the mode, every idea of taxation for the purpose of "raising a Revenue in America, be excluded." Upon which, debates arose, and the question having been put thereon, it was carried in the negative, in manner following, viz:

For the Negative.		For the Affirmative.
Mr. Walton,	Mr. Rapalje,	Colonel Schuyler,
Mr. Kissam,	Mr. Van Kleeck,	Mr. Clinton,
Colonel Philips,	Mr. Jauncey,	Colonel Woodhull,
Mr. Ten Eyck,	Mr. Brush,	Captain Seaman,
Mr. Billopp,	Mr. Gale,	Mr. Van Cortlandt,
Mr. Nicoll,	Mr. Cue,	Mr. Thomas,
Mr. Wilkins,	Colonel Wells,	Mr. De Witt,
Mr. De Lancey,	Mr. Speaker.	Mr. Boerum.

That after going through the same, paragraph by para-graph, and having made several amendments thereto, he asked the Committee whether they agreed to the same, and would direct him to report them to the House? Upon which debates arose, the Committee divided, and it passed in the affirmative, in manner following, viz:

For the Affirmative.		For the Negative.
Mr. Walton,	Mr. De Lancey,	Colonel Schuyler,
Mr. Rapalje,	Mr. Van Kleeck,	Mr. Clinton,
Mr. Kissam,	Mr. Jauncey,	Colonel Woodhull,
Colonel Philips	Mr. Brush,	Captain Seaman,
Mr. Ten Eyck,	Mr. Coe,	Mr. Van Cortlandt,
Mr. Billopp,	Mr. Gale,	Mr. Thomas,
Mr. Wilkins,	Colonel Wells,	Mr. De Witt,
Mr. Nicoll,	Mr. Speaker.	Mr. Boerum.

Which Report he read in his place, and afterwards deli-ivered it, with the said draught and amendments, in at the table, where the same were again read; and on the ques-tion, Whether the House agree to the same, and would order the said draught and amendments to be engrossed? It passed in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the said draught and amendments be engrossed.

The House then resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House, upon the draught of a Representation and Remonstrance to the Commons of Great Britain. After some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Mr. Kissam reported, that he was directed by the Committee to make the following Report to the House, to wit:

That after reading the said draught through in the Com-mittee, and upon reading it again, paragraph by paragraph, when he came to the fourth paragraph,

A motion was made by Mr. Clinton, in the words fol-lowing, viz:

Mr. Chairman: I move that the word "internal," be-tween the words "from" and "Taxation," in the fourth paragraph, be struck out; as also the following words, at the end of the said fourth paragraph, to wit: "Especially "for the support of Government, and the other usual and "ordinary service of the Colonies,." On which debates arose, and the question having been put thereon, it was carried in the negative, in manner following, viz:

For the Negative.

Mr. Walton,	Mr. Rapalje,
Mr. Kissam,	Mr. Van Kleeck,
Colonel Philips,	Mr. Jauncey,
Mr. Ten Eyck,	Mr. Brush,
Mr. Billopp,	Mr. Coe,
Mr. Nicoll,	Mr. Gale,
Mr. Wilkins,	Colonel Wells,
Mr. De Lancey,	Mr. Speaker.

For the Affirmative.

Colonel Schuyler,
Mr. Clinton,
Colonel Woodhull,
Captain Seaman,
Mr. Van Cortlandt,
Mr. Thomas,
Mr. De Witt,
Mr. Boerum.

That on reading the eighth paragraph, Mr. Clinton moved that the word "their," between the words "branches" and "authority," be struck out; and the words "in exercising an" be substituted; and between the words "Dominions" and "has," the following words be inserted, to wit: "which authority, when founded in expediency, and calculated for the general weal of the whole Empire."

On which, debates arose, and the question having been put thereon, it passed in the negative in the same manner as the preceding question.

That on reading the eleventh paragraph, Mr. Clinton moved that the words "the Roman Catholick religion," between the words "which" and "has," be struck out, and the following substituted, to wit: "A sanguinary religion, equally repugnant to the genuine simplicity of christianity, and the maxims of sound philosophy." On which debates arose, and the question having been put thereon, it was carried in the negative, in the same manner as the two last questions, excepting that Captain Seaman was for the negative.

That on reading the 12th paragraph, Mr. Clinton moved that the following words be struck out of the latter end thereof, to wit: "At the same time we also must express our disapprobation of the violent measures that have been pursued in some of the Colonies, which can only tend to increase our misfortunes, and to prevent our obtaining redress." On the question, debates arose, the Committee divided, and it passed in the negative, in the same manner as the two preceding questions before the last.

That after going through the same, paragraph by paragraph, and having made several amendments thereto, on the question whether they agree to the same, and would direct him to report them to the House? It passed in the affirmative.

Which Report he read in his place, and afterwards delivered it, with the said draught and amendments, in at the table, where the same were again read. On the question, whether the House agree to the same, and would order the said draught and amendments to be engrossed? It passed in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the said draught and amendments be engrossed.

And then the House adjourned till ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Die Sabbati, 10 ho., A. M., the 25th March, 1775.

The engrossed Petition to the King's most excellent Majesty, was read: On the question, whether the House agree to the same? It passed in the affirmative.

Ordered, That Mr. Speaker sign the said Petition in behalf of this House.

TO THE KING'S MOST EXCELLENT MAJESTY.

The humble Petition of the General Assembly of the Colony of NEW-YORK.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

1. We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the General Assembly of the Colony of New-York, beg leave most humbly to approach your Majesty.

2. Inviolably attached to your royal person and Government, to which we are bound by the strongest ties of duty and affection, and in the fullest assurance that your paternal care is extended over ALL YOUR PEOPLE, as well the inhabitants of the New World as those who flourish and are happy under your more immediate influence in the Old, we are emboldened to throw ourselves at your Majesty's feet, humble Petitioners in behalf of the loyal Colony we represent.

3. Vouchsafe, then, most gracious Sovereign, to attend to the prayer of your faithful subjects, and while we are pleading our own cause, and the cause of liberty and humanity, deign to consider us as advocates for our sister Colonies also.

4. The present unhappy and unnatural disputes between the parent state and your Majesty's American Dominions, give us the deepest and most unfeigned concern. We lament it as one of the greatest misfortunes, that the happy and peaceful harmony which has hitherto subsisted between us should now by any means be interrupted; and 'tis the earnest and first wish of our hearts that it may be speedily restored, and placed upon so permanent a basis, as that neither time or accidents may be ever able to disturb it.

5. We acknowledge, with the warmest gratitude, the favour and protection of our mother country, which, flowing from policy, dictated by wisdom and humanity, hath enabled us to become so important a part of the British Empire; and we beseech your Majesty to believe us, when we assure you that we still retain the duty and affection of children; that we love and reverence our venerable parent; and that no calamity would be so truly afflicting to us as a separation from her. We acknowledge there are appearances which may be construed to our disadvantage, and that several of the measures pursued by the Colonies are by no means justifiable; yet, while we disapprove and condemn them, we entreat you, as the indulgent father of your people, to view them in the most favourable light, and to consider them as the honest, though disorderly struggles of liberty, not the licentious efforts of independence.

6. Your Majesty's American subjects have hitherto been in a state of infancy, and till lately have submitted implicitly, and without repining, to the authority of the parent state. They have now reached the period of maturity, and think themselves entitled to their birth-right, an equal participation of freedom with their fellow-subjects in Britain. It is with this view we now address your Majesty: we mean not to become independent of the British Parliament; on the contrary, we cheerfully acknowledge our subordination to it as the Grand Legislature of the Empire; we wish only to enjoy the rights of Englishmen, and to have that share of liberty, and those privileges secured to us, which we are entitled to upon the principles of our free and happy Constitution. Permit us, therefore, most gracious Sovereign, to lay our grievances before you, which we now do with the greatest humility, and in the fullest assurance that your royal justice and clemency will be exerted in our behalf.

7. Your Majesty's subjects in this Colony think it essential to freedom, and the undoubted right of Englishmen, that no Taxes should be imposed on them without their consent given personally, or by their Representatives. This right we do not at present enjoy, inasmuch as the British Parliament (in which we have no representation) have claimed and exercised a right of making laws, binding upon us in all cases whatsoever. This claim, and this exercise of unlimited power by the Parliament, we esteem a grievance of the most dangerous nature, and directly tending to the subversion of our constitutional liberties. We are willing, to the utmost of our abilities, to contribute our proportion for the support of Government; but we would do it in a constitutional manner, by the interposition of the COLONY LEGISLATURE.

8. We likewise beg leave to declare to your Majesty, that we consider the Acts of Parliament, raising a Revenue in America, but more especially those to provide for the support of Civil Government, and the administration of justice in the Colonies, and extending the Courts of Admiralty beyond their ancient limits, giving them a concurrent jurisdiction, in causes heretofore cognizable only in the Courts of Common Law, and by that means depriving the American subjects of a trial by Jury, as grievous and destructive of our rights and privileges.

9. That the Act of Parliament authorizing the apprehension of persons resident in the Colonies, on suspicion of certain offences, and sending them out of the same to be tried, is dangerous to the lives and liberties of your Majesty's American subjects, as it deprives them of a trial by a JURY OF THE VICINAGE, which, in all cases, is the grand security and birth-right of Englishmen.

10. That we humbly conceive the Act requiring the Legislature of this Colony to provide for the services therein mentioned, and the other for suspending the Legislative power thereof, till such requisition should be complied with, were unconstitutional, and tended to destroy that confidence which we had always reposed in the mother country.

11. That the imposition of Duties upon articles of Commerce, imported from Great Britain, is oppressive and impolitick, as it gives the greatest encouragement to illicit trade, and operates as a prohibition on our commerce with the mother country, which, for the mutual advantage of both, we conceive, ought to be free and unrestrained.

12. That the Act passed in the fourteenth year of your Majesty's reign, imposing Duties upon certain articles imported into the Province of Quebec, (the limits whereof by an Act of the same year are so extended, as to comprehend all the Indian country from Hudson's Bay to the mouth of the Ohio River;) and restricting the importation of those dutied articles to the Port of St. John, on the River Sorel, is injurious to this Colony, as it almost entirely destroys our important Indian trade; that Port being so very remote from this and the other Colonies, that the conveyance of Goods thither for the prosecution of the traffick, must unavoidably be attended with so enormous an expense, as well nigh amounts to a total prohibition; the unmerited discrimination made by the first above-mentioned Act in favour of the Sugar Colonies, by subjecting the Continental Colonies to a larger Duty on particular articles, is so detrimental to the interest of this Colony, that we cannot avoid complaining of it to your Majesty as a grievance.

18. We likewise think the Act prohibiting the Legislature of this Colony from passing any law for the emission of Paper Currency, to be a legal tender therein, is disadvantageous to the growth and commerce thereof; an abridgment of your Majesty's prerogative, (in the preservation of which we are deeply interested,) and a violation of our legislative rights; and may hereafter disable your Majesty's subjects, upon proper requisition, and upon certain emergencies, from granting such aids as may be necessary for the general safety of the Empire.

14. The Act for the regulation of the Government of Quebec, we must beg leave to mention also to your Majesty, as the extension of that Province, and the indulgence granted to it by Roman Catholics, have given great uneasiness to the minds of many of your Majesty's American subjects.

15. The late Acts for shutting up the Port of Boston, and altering the Charter of the Massachusetts Bay, we presume not to mention to your Majesty, without first assuring you that we, in many instances, disapprove of the conduct of that Province, and beseeching your gracious interposition in their favour. We cannot, however, help observing, that those Acts establish a dangerous precedent, by inflicting punishment without the formality of a trial.

16. With the highest satisfaction, most gracious Sovereign, we reflect on your royal declaration from the throne at your happy accession, that it was essential to the impartial administration of justice, and one of the best securities to the rights and liberties of your subjects, that your Judges should hold their commissions during good behaviour; permit us then to pray, that you will be graciously pleased to remove the distinction between your subjects in England and those in America, by commissioning your Judges here to hold their offices on the same tenure: in which case, we beg leave to assure your Majesty that we stand ready to give such adequate and permanent salaries as will render them independent of the people.

17. We have now, most gracious Sovereign, stated our grievances to your Majesty; we have done it, we trust, with all the respect due to the best of Kings, and with that decent freedom becoming the Representatives of a faithful, ancient, and loyal Colony; and we have not the least doubt but that, by your merciful mediation and interposition, we shall obtain the desired redress, and have such a system of government confirmed to us by your Majesty, and your two Houses of Parliament, as will sufficiently ascertain and limit the authority claimed by the British Legislature over this Colony, and secure to us those just and invaluable RIGHTS AND PRIVILEGES which all your Majesty's subjects are entitled to. This, most gracious Sovereign, is the sum of our wishes, and the end of our desires; and we beg leave to assure your Majesty, that we are convinced this will be the only effectual method of quieting the minds of your Majesty's faithful American subjects, and of restoring that harmony and cordial union between the mother country and us, which is so essential to the welfare and prosperity of both. We beseech your Majesty to believe, that our earnest prayer to Heaven is that your Majesty may continue long the happy and beloved Monarch of a brave, a free, a virtuous, and united people, and that your children after you may continue to fill the British Throne to the latest generations.

By order of the General Assembly,

JOHN CRUGER, Speaker.

Assembly Chamber, City of New-York, the 25th day of March, 1775.

The engrossed Memorial to the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, in Parliament assembled, was read. On the question, whether the House agree to the same? It passed in the affirmative.

Ordered, That Mr. Speaker sign the said Memorial in behalf of this House.

To the Right Honourable the Lords Spiritual and Temporal of GREAT BRITAIN, in Parliament assembled,

The Memorial of his Majesty's faithful subjects the Representatives of the Colony of NEW-YORK, in General Assembly convened.

May it please your Lordships:

1. We, his Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Representatives of the Colony of New-York, in General Assembly convened, are conscious when we address your Lordships, that we are applying to a body who have ever been distinguished for the firmest attachment to the principles of liberty, and that happiest result of them, the British Constitution.

2. We acknowledge ourselves and the people we represent, strictly bound by the ties of faith and allegiance to our most gracious Sovereign; that we justly owe the same faith and allegiance as are due to him from his subjects in Great Britain; that we regard him with the utmost veneration, and that we shall ever be ready to contribute to his service, and to support the dignity of his Crown and Government.

3. We esteem ourselves happy in our connection with the PARENT STATE, whose true interests are inseparably united with our own; and we are fully sensible that none but the enemies of both countries could ever wish to disjoin them.

4. Impressed with these sentiments, we consider ourselves as parts of one great Empire, in which it is necessary there should be some supreme regulating power. But though we acknowledge the existence of such power, yet we conceive it by no means comprehends a right of binding us in all cases whatsoever; because a power of so unbounded an extent, would totally deprive us of security, and reduce us to a state of the most abject servitude.

5. The Colonies, as your Lordships know, were not in contemplation when the forms of the British Constitution were established; it followed, therefore, from its principles, when colonization took place, that the Colonists carried with them all the rights they were entitled to in the country from which they emigrated; but as from their local circumstances they were precluded from sharing in the representation in that Legislature in which they had been represented, they of right claimed and enjoyed a Legislature of their own, always acknowledging the King, or his representative, as one branch thereof. This right they have pointedly, repeatedly; and zealously asserted, as what only could afford them that security which their fellow-subjects in Great Britain enjoy, under a Constitution at once the envy and admiration of surrounding Nations; because no money can be raised upon the subject in Great Britain, nor any law made that is binding on him, without the concurrence of those who have been elected by the PEOPLE to represent them.

6. For what happiness can the Colonists expect, if their lives and properties are at the absolute disposal of others, and that power which when restrained within its just bounds, would dispense light and heat to the whole Empire, may be employed like a devouring flame, to consume and destroy them.

7. Your Lordships will excuse, nay, we doubt not, will commend us for speaking at this important juncture, with the freedom becoming the Representatives of a free people, when addressing ourselves to this most illustrious body.

8. We therefore beg leave, on this occasion, to declare, that we conceive the people of the Colonies entitled to EQUAL RIGHTS AND PRIVILEGES with their fellow-subjects in Great Britain.

9. That upon these principles, it is a grievance of a most alarming nature, that the Parliament of Great Britain should claim a right to enact laws binding the Colonies in all cases whatsoever.

10. Incompatible as this claim is with the very idea of freedom, your Lordships cannot wonder that the Colonies should express an invincible repugnance to it. Absolute and uncontrollable power in any man or body of men, necessarily implies absolute slavery in those who are subject to it, even should such a power not be carried into execution; yet, let it be remembered, that the liberties of an Englishman are his rights, and that freedom consists not in a mere exemption from oppression, but in a right to such exemption, founded on law and principles of the Constitution.

11. But your Lordships cannot be ignorant that this claim has been exercised in such a manner as to give the Colonists the utmost uneasiness, and the most unexceptionable grounds of complaint.

12. Duties, for the express purpose of raising a Revenue in America, have been imposed upon several articles imported directly from Great Britain, or the British Colonies, and on foreign Wines, an article which does not in the least interfere with the products of Great Britain, or any of its Colonies.

13. The jurisdiction of the Admiralty Courts has been extended beyond its ancient limits; the Judges of those Courts invested with new and unconstitutional powers; the subjects of America, in many cases, divested of that invaluable privilege, a TRIAL BY JURY, and a discrimination highly injurious, held up between us and our fellow-subjects in Great Britain.

14. Acts have been passed for the purpose of suspending the Legislature of this Colony from the exercise of its constitutional powers, till it should comply with requisitions which it had before judged improper; and laying an unreasonable restraint upon us, with respect to the emission of a Paper Currency to be a legal tender within the Colony.

15. Officers employed in the administration of justice, have been rendered independent of the people, with respect both to their salaries and the tenure of their commissions, whereby they are freed from those checks to which, as servants of the publick, they ought to be subject, although the Representatives of the people have ever been ready, and now declare their willingness to make suitable provision for their support.

16. New and unconstitutional Acts have been passed, and constructions made of an old one, by which the American subject is directed to be tried for offences, either real or supposed, not in the place where the fact was committed, where his witnesses reside and their characters are known, but in a strange country, where his witnesses may not attend, and where their credibility cannot be ascertained.

17. We are extremely unhappy that occasion has been given us to add to the catalogue of our grievances, the laws enacted in the last session of the late Parliament, for shutting up the Port of Boston; for altering the Government of the Massachusetts Bay, and for the impartial administration of justice in certain cases in that Province.

18. Although it is not our intention to enter into a justification of the measures which occasioned those Acts, or to intimate an approbation of the mode pursued for redressing the grievances of which they have been productive, yet we cannot help viewing them as forming precedents of so dangerous a nature, as must render the privileges, the property, and even the byes of all his Majesty's American subjects precarious and insecure.

19. By other Acts of the same session, the bounds of the Province of Quebec are considerably extended; the Roman Catholick religion may be construed to be established throughout that Province; and such regulations are enacted respecting its trade, as not only hold up a discrimination between the Continental and other Colonies, injurious to the former; but in the establishment of the Port of Entry, cannot fail totally to deprive this Colony of an extensive and important commerce, which it formerly carried on with the native Indian inhabitants of that vast tract of country, now included within the bounds of that Government.

20. These are the principal grievances under which our constituents at present labour; but though we conceive it our duty thus fully to lay them before your Lordships, we beg leave to assure you that we shall always cheerfully submit to the CONSTITUTIONAL exercise of the supreme regulating power lodged in the KING, Lords, and Commons of Great Britain, and to all Acts calculated for the general weal of the Empire, and the due regulation of the Trade and Commerce thereof.

21. We conceive this power includes a right to lay Duties upon all articles imported directly into the Colonies from any foreign country or plantation, which may interfere with products or manufactures of Great Britain, or any other part of his Majesty's Dominions; but that it is essential to freedom, and the undoubted rights of our constituents, that NO TAXES be imposed on them, but with their consent given personally, or by their lawful Representatives.

22. Whilst, therefore, we entertain such dispositions of obedience to the lawful powers of Government, of allegiance to our most gracious Sovereign, and attachment to the parent country, we humbly hope that your Lordships will aid and concur in redressing our grievances, removing all causes of dissension with Great Britain, and establishing our RIGHTS AND PRIVILEGES UPON A SOLID AND LASTING FOUNDATION. And your Memorialists shall ever pray.

By order of the General Assembly,

JOHN CRUGER, Speaker.

Assembly Chamber, City of New-York, March 25, 1775.

And then the House adjourned till four o'clock this afternoon.

Four ho., P. M.

The engrossed Representation and Remonstrance to the Commons of Great Britain, in Parliament assembled, was read. On the question, whether the House agree to the same? It passed in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Speaker sign the said Representation and Memorial in behalf of this House.

To the Honorable the Knights, Citizens, and Burgesses, of GREAT BRITAIN, in Parliament assembled.

The Representation and Remonstrance of the General Assembly of the Colony of NEW-YORK.

1. Impressed with the warmest sentiments of loyalty and affection to our most gracious Sovereign, and zealously attached to his person, family, and Government, we his Majesty's faithful subjects, the Representatives of his ancient and loyal Colony of New-York, behold with the deepest concern the unhappy disputes subsisting between the mother country and her Colonies. Convinced that the grandeur and strength of the British Empire, the protection and opulence of his Majesty's American Dominions, and the happiness and welfare of both depend essentially on a restoration of harmony and affection between them, we feel the most ardent desire to promote a cordial reconciliation with the parent state, which can be rendered permanent and solid only by ascertaining the line of Parliamentary authority and American freedom, on just, equitable, and constitutional grounds. To effect these salutary purposes, and to represent the grievances under which we labour, by the innovations which have been made in the constitutional mode of Colonial Government. Since the close of the late war, we shall proceed with that firmness which becomes the descendants of Englishmen, and a people accustomed to the blessings of liberty, and at the same time with the deference and respect which is due to this august Assembly, to shew.

2. That from the year 1683, till the above mentioned period, this Colony has enjoyed a Legislature consisting of three distinct branches - a Governour, Council, and General Assembly, under which political frame the Representatives of the people have uniformly exercised the right of granting aids to the Crown, and providing for the support of their own Civil Government, and the administration of justice in the Colony.

3. It is therefore with inexpressible grief, that we have of late years seen measures adopted by the British Parliament subversive of that Constitution under which the good people of this Colony have always enjoyed the same rights and privileges so highly and deservedly prized by their fellow-subjects in Great Britain; a Constitution in its infancy, modelled after that of the parent state; in its growth more nearly assimilated to it, and tacitly implied, and undeniably recognised in the requisitions made by the Crown, with the consent and approbation of Parliament.

4. An exemption from Internal Taxation, and the exclusive right of providing for the support of our own Civil Government, and the administration of justice in this Colony, we esteem our undoubted and unalienable rights as Englishmen. But while we claim these essential rights, it is with equal pleasure and truth we can declare, that we ever have been, and ever will be, ready to bear our full proportion of aids to the Crown for the publick service, and to make provision for these necessary purposes, in as ample and adequate a manner as the circumstances of the Colony will admit. Actuated by these sentiments, while we address ourselves to a British House of Commons, which has ever been so sensible of the rights of the people, and so tenacious of preserving them from violation, can it be a matter of surprise, that we should feel the most distressing apprehensions from the Act of the British Parliament, declaring their right to bind the Colonies in all cases whatever, a principle which has been actually exercised by the Statutes made for the sole and express purpose of raising a Revenue in America, especially for the support of Government, and the other useful and ordinary services of the Colonies.

5. The trial by a Jury of the vicinage, in causes civil and criminal, arising within the Colony, we consider as essential to the security of our lives and liberties, and one of the main pillars of the Constitution; and therefore view with horror the construction of the Statute of the thirty-fifth of Henry the Eighth, as held up by the joint Address of both Houses of Parliament, in 1769, advising his Majesty to send for persons guilty of Treasons and misprisons of Treason, in the Colony of Massachusetts Bay, in order to be tried in England; and we are equally alarmed at the late Acts empowering his Majesty to send persons guilty of offences in one Colony, to be tried in another, or within the Realm of England.

6. When we consider that the cognizance of causes arising on the land, has, by the wisdom of the English Constitution, been appropriated to the Courts of Common Law, and the jurisdiction of the Admiralty confined to causes purely marine, we regard the great alterations that have been made in that wholesome system of laws, by extending the powers of the Courts of Admiralty; authorizing the Judges' certificates to indemnify the prosecutor from damages he might otherwise be liable to; giving them a concurrent jurisdiction with the Courts of Common Law, and by that means depriving the American subject of his trial by a Jury, as destructive to freedom, and injurious to our property.

7. We must also complain of the Act of the seventh of George the Third, chapter the fifty-ninth, requiring the Legislature of this Colony to make provision for the expense of supplying the Troops quartered amongst us with the necessaries prescribed by that law, and holding up by another Act of suspension of our Legislative powers, till we should have complied, as it would have included all the effects of a Tax, and implies a distrust of our readiness to contribute to the publick service.

8. Nor in claiming these essential RIGHTS, do we entertain the most distant desire of independence on the parent Kingdom. We acknowledge the Parliament of Great Britain necessarily entitled to a supreme direction and government over the whole Empire, for a wise, powerful, and lasting preservation of the great bond of union and safety among all the branches; their authority to regulate the trade of the Colonies, so as to make it subservient to the interest of the mother country, and to prevent its being injurious to the other parts of his Majesty's Dominions, has ever been fully recognised; but an exemption from Duties on all articles of Commerce which we import from Great Britain, Ireland, and the British Plantations, or on commodities which do not interfere with their products or manufactures, we can justly claim; and always expect that our Commerce will be charged with no other than a necessary regard to the trade and interest of Great Britain and her Colonies evidently demands. At the same time, we humbly conceive that the money arising from all DUTIES RAISED IN THIS COLONY, should be paid into the Colony Treasury, to be drawn by requisitions of the Crown to the General Assembly, for the security and defence of the whole Empire.

9. We cannot avoid mentioning among our grievances the Act for prohibiting the Legislature of this Colony from passing any law for the emission of a Paper Currency to be a legal tender in the Colony; our Commerce affords so small a return of specie, that, without a paper currency, supported on the credit of the Colony, our trade, and the change of property, must necessarily decrease. Without the expedient, we never should have been able to comply with the requisitions of the Crown during the last war, or to grant ready aids on any sudden emergencies. The credit of our Bills has ever been secured from depreciation by the short periods limited for their duration, and sinking them by taxes raised on the people; and the want of this power may, in future, prevent his Majesty's faithful subjects here from testifying their loyalty and affection to our gracious Sovereign, and from granting such aids as may be necessary for the general weal and safety of the British Empire; nor can we avoid remonstrating against this Act as an abridgment of the Royal prerogative, and a violation of our Legislative rights.

10. We must also complain of the Act of the last session of Parliament imposing Duties on certain articles imported into the Province of Quebec, and restricting the importation of them to the Ports of Quebec and St. John's on the river Sorel, by which the commerce formerly carried on by this Colony with the Indians, is in a great measure diverted into another channel, as by the extension of the bounds of that Province from Hudson's Bay to the Ohio, by a Statute of the same session, a great extent of country is cut off from this Colony, in which hitherto the most lucrative branches of the Indian trade were pursued; and by directing the Duties on the articles necessary for that commerce to be paid only at the above Ports, which are so very remote from this and other Colonies, that the importation of them by those places will be attended with such a heavy expense as to amount to a total prohibition. These Acts, in our opinion, bear with peculiar hardship on the people of this Colony, when we reflect on the vast sums of money which have been expended by our Legislature in conciliating the friendship of the Savages, and the essential services which were derived to the British arms during the last war, from our alliance with, and influence over them, founded on a free and unrestrained commerce. We are at a loss to account why articles imported from the Continental Colonies, and imported into the Province of Quebec, should be loaded with heavier Duties than those brought from the West India Islands, by which, while we are deprived of a most lucrative branch of commerce, we behold a discrimination made between us and the Sugar Colonies to our prejudice, equally injurious and unmerited.

11. Nor can we forbear mentioning the jealousies which have been excited in the Colonies by the extension of the limits of the Province of Quebec, in which the Roman Catholick religion has received such ample supports.

12. Interested, as we must consider ourselves, in whatever may affect our sister Colonies, we cannot help feeling for the distresses of our brethren in the Massachusetts Bay, from the operation of the several Acts of Parliament passed relative to that Province, and of earnestly remonstrating in their behalf; at the same time we also must express our disapprobation of the violent measures that have been pursued in some of the Colonies, which can only tend to increase our misfortunes, and to prevent our obtaining redress.

13. We claim but a restoration of those rights which we enjoyed by general consent before the close of the late war: we desire no more than a continuation of that ancient Government to which we are entitled by the principles of the British Constitution, and by which alone can be secured to us the rights of ENGLISHMEN. Attached by every tie of interest and regard to the British Nation, and accustomed to behold, with reverence and respect, its excellent form of Government, we harbour not an idea of diminishing the power and grandeur of the mother country, or lessening the lustre and dignity of Parliament; our object is the happiness which we are convinced can only arise from the UNION OF BOTH COUNTRIES. To render this union permanent and solid, we esteem it the undoubted right of the Colonies to participate of that Constitution, whose direct end and aim is the liberty of the subject; fully trusting that this Honourable House will listen with attention to our complaints, and redress our grievances by adopting such measures as shall be found most conducive to the general welfare of the whole Empire, and most likely to RESTORE UNION AND HARMONY AMONG ALL THE DIFFERENT BRANCHES.

By order of the General Assembly,
JOHN CRUGER, Speaker.

Assembly Chamber, New-York, March, 25, 1775.

Ordered, That the said Petition to the King's most excellent Majesty; the said Memorial to the Lords Spiritual and Temporal; and the said Representation and Remonstrance to the Commons of Great Britain in Parliament assembled, be transmitted by the Speaker, will all convenient speed, to Edmund Burke, Esquire, Agent of this Colony at the Court of Great Britain; and that a Letter be prepared, to be approved of by this House, to the said Agent, with directions that he present the same in behalf of this Colony, as they are respectively directed, as soon after the receipt thereof as possible.

Ordered, That Mr. Speaker transmit, at the same time, to the Agent, the state of the Grievances of this Colony, and the Resolutions of this House thereupon.

Die Martis, 10 ho., A. M., the 28th March, 1775.

A Message from his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour, by Mr. Bayard, Deputy Secretary; and the same being read, is in the words following, viz:

GENTLEMEN: By desire of Governour Tryon, I last Spring sent by Mr. Collins, the Deputy Surveyor-General of the Province of Quebec, a copy of the Resolve of your House, that you would make provision for paying fifty Pounds sterling for completing the line between this Province and the Province of Quebec. Mr. Collins, by his letter of the 24th of November last, informed me that he had completed the work; that the distance being greater than was expected, had occasioned a greater expense than was foreseen; and that, of consequence, he was liable to be a considerable loser by the service which he had undertaken for the Government, unless some further allowance was made for his disbursements. With his letter of the 28th of February, Mr. Collins has sent me an account of his disbursements, and has drawn upon me for the fifty Pounds sterling, which cannot be paid until an Act is passed for the purpose. I send to you the letters and account, that you may make the necessary provision.

CADWALLADER COLDEN.

New-York, 28th March, 1775.

Ordered, That the said Message, and Papers therein mentioned, be referred to the consideration of the Committee to whom is committed the Bill entitled "An Act for the payment of the Salaries of the several Officers of "this Colony, and other purposes therein mentioned."

Die Jovis, 10 ho., A. M., the 30th March, 1775.

Ordered, That Mr. Speaker issue his Order or Orders to the Treasurer of this Colony, to pay to Edmund Burke, Esquire, Agent of this Colony at the Court of Great Britain, or to his attorney, for so much money as may, from time to time, be due to him on account of his salary; and also the sum of one hundred and forty Pounds for the contingent charges of the said Agent.

The House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House, upon his Honour's Message, &c., of the 23d instant. After some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and Mr. Clinton reported that he was directed by the Committee to make the following Report to the House, to wit:

That after reading the said Message in the Committee, and the sundry Papers that attended the same, and after some time spent in examining two witnesses on the subject-matter of the disturbances, mentioned in the said Message, to have lately happened in the County of Cumberland,

The following question was proposed, to wit:

Whether it appears to this Committee that there is a necessity for any provision being made to enable the inhabitants of the County of Cumberland to reinstate and maintain the due administration of justice in that County, and for the suppression of riots? Upon which, debates arose, the Committee divided, and it passed in the affirmative, in manner following, viz:

For the Affirmative.		For the Negative.
Mr. Speaker,	Mr. Gale,	Mr. Kissam,
Mr. De Lancey,	Mr. Coe,	Mr. Ten Eyck,
Mr. Jauncey,	Mr. Rapalje,	Mr. Nicoll,
Mr. Walton,	Colonel Philips,	Captain Seaman,
Colonel Wells,	Colonel Seaman,	Mr. Van Kleeck,
Mr. Brush,	Mr. Wilkins,	Mr. Van Cortlandt,
Mr. Billopp,	Mr. Thomas.	Mr. Boerum,
		Colonel Schuyler,
		Colonel Woodhull.

That a motion was then made by Mr. Brush, in the words following, viz:

Mr. Chairman: I move that the sum of one thousand Pounds be granted to his Majesty, to be applied to enable the inhabitants of the County of Cumberland to reinstate and maintain the due administration of justice in the said County, and for the suppression of riots therein. On which, debates arose, and the question having been put thereon, it was carried in the affirmative, in manner following, viz:

For the Affirmative.		For the Negative.
Mr. Speaker,	Mr. Gale,	Mr. Kissam,
Mr. De Lancey,	Mr. Coe,	Mr. Ten Eyck,
Mr. Jauncey,	Colonel Philips,	Mr. Nicoll,
Mr. Walton,	Colonel Seaman,	Captain Seaman,
Colonel Wells,	Mr. Wilkins,	Mr. Rapalje,
Mr. Brush,	Mr. Billopp.	Mr. Thomas,
		Mr. Van Kleeck,
		Mr. Van Cortlandt,
		Colonel Schuyler,
		Colonel Woodhull.

That the Committee had directed him to move for leave to sit again on the said Message, &c. Which Report he read in his place, and afterwards delivered it in at the table, where the same was again read; on the question, whether the House agree to the same?

Debates arose, the House divided, and it passed in the affirmative, in manner following, viz:

For the Affirmative.		For the Negative.
Mr. De Lancey,	Mr. Coe,	Mr. Kissam,
Mr. Jauncey,	Colonel Philips,	Mr. Ten Eyck,
Mr. Walton,	Colonel Seaman,	Captain Seaman,
Colonel Wells,	Mr. Wilkins,	Mr. Rapalje,
Mr. Brush,	Mr. Billopp.	Mr. Thomas,
Mr. Gale,		Mr. Van Kleeck,
		Mr. Van Cortlandt,
		Colonel Schuyler,
		Colonel Woodhull,
		Mr. Clinton.

Resolved therefore, That this House will make provision for granting to his Majesty the sum of one thousand Pounds, to be applied in enabling and assisting the inhabitants of the County of Cumberland, to reinstate and maintain the due administration of justice, and for the suppression of riots, in the said County.

Resolved, That this House will again, to-morrow, resolve itself into a Committee of the Whole House upon the said Message, &c.

Die Veneris, 10 ho., A. M., the 31st March, 1775.

Ordered, That Mr. Speaker write to the Speakers of the several Houses of Assembly on this Continent, as soon after the rise of this House as conveniently may be, and transmit to them the List of Grievances stated by this House, and the Resolutions thereof, in consequence; together with the Petition to the King's most excellent Majesty; the Memorial to the Lords Spiritual and Temporal; and the Representation and Remonstrance to the Commons of Great Britain in Parliament assembled, requesting them to lay the same before their respective Houses of Assembly, at their first meeting after the receipt thereof.

The Order of the Day being read, the House resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House upon his Honour's Message, &c., of the 23d instant. After some time spent therein, Mr. Speaker resumed the Chair, and

Mr. Clinton reported, that he was directed by the Committee to make the following Report to the House, to wit:

That when they came to that part of the said Message, wherein is mentioned the disorders that have for some time greatly disurbed the Northeastern Districts of the County of Albany, and part of the County of Charlotte; and after some time spent in examining witnesses, touching the same, the following question was proposed, to wit:

"Whether it appears to this Committee that there is a "necessity for any provision being made, to enable the inhabitants of the Counties of Albany and Charlotte to suppress riots in certain parts of the said Counties?"Upon which debates arose, the Committee divided, and it passed in the negative, in manner following, viz:

For the Negative.		For the Affirmative.
Mr. Speaker,	Mr. Boerum,	Mr. Billopp,
Mr. Jauncey,	Mr. Thomas,	Mr. De Lancey,
Colonel Schuyler,	Colonel Seaman,	Mr. Gale,
Mr. Ten Eyck,	Colonel Woodhull,	Colonel Philips,
Mr. Nicoll,	Mr. Van Cortlandt.	Mr. Rapalje,
Captain Seaman,	Mr. Kissam.	Mr. Walton,
		Mr. Wilkins,
		Colonel Wells,
		Mr. Brush.

That a motion was then made by Colonel Schuyler, in the words following, viz:

Mr. Chairman: I move that it be resolved, as the opinion of this Committee, that it appears necessary that proper persons be appointed to inquire into, and state the cause of the disorders prevailing in the Northeastern parts of the County of Albany, and in part of the County of Charlotte, and to report the same at the next sessions. Upon which debates arose, and the question having been put thereon, it was carried in the negative, in manner following, viz:

For the Negative.		For the Affirmative.
Mr. Speaker,	Mr. De Lancey,	Mr. Kissam,
Mr. Jauncey,	Colonel Seaman,	Mr. Boerum,
Mr. Brush,	Mr. Gale,	Colonel Schuyler,
Colonel Wells,	Mr. Nicoll,	Captain Seaman,
Colonel Philips,	Mr. Billopp,	Mr. Thomas,
Mr. Rapalje,	Mr. Wilkins.	Mr. Ten Eyck,
Mr. Walton,		Mr. Van Cortlandt,
		Colonel Wroodhull.

A motion was then made by Mr. Speaker, in the following words, viz:

Mr. Chairman: I move that an additional reward of fifty Pounds each, be voted, for apprehending in any Jail in this Colony, the following persons, being rioters, named in the Act of the last sessions, entitled "An Act for preventing Tumultuous and Riotous Assemhlies in the places "therein mentioned, and for the more speedy and effectual "punishing the Rioters,"to wit: Ethan Allen, Seth Warner, Robert Cochran, and Peleg Sunderland. And that a reward of fifty Pounds be feted for apprehending and securing as aforesaid, James Meed, Gideon Warner, and Jesse Sawyer, or either of them, so that they can be brought to justice, for assisting the four first mentioned persons in committing sundry violent outrages on the person of one of his Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the County of Charlotte.

On the question, it passed in the affirmative. Which Report he read in his place, and afterwards delivered it in at the table, where the same was again read, and agreed to by the House; and therenpon, it was Resolved, That this House will make provision to pay the aforesaid rewards, for apprehending either of the said persons, so that they can be brought to justice.

MASSACHUSETTS PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.
Record of the Proceedings of a Provincial Congress of Deputies of the several Towns and Districts in the Province of MASSACHUSETTS BAY, in NEW ENGLAND, convened at CAMBRIDGE, on WEDNESDAY, the first day of February, A. D. 1775, with a List of the persons chosen to represent them in the same.
FOR THE COUNTY OF SUFFOLK.
BOSTON. - Honourable Thomas Cushing, Esq., Honourable John Hancock, Esquire, Mr. Samuel Adams, Doctor Joseph Warren, Doctor Benjamin Church, Mr. Oliver Wendall, Mr. John Pitts.

Die Sabbati, 10 ho., A. M., the 1st April, 1775.
A motion was made by Mr. Boerum, in the words following, viz:

Mr. Speaker: I move that the sum of one thousand Pounds, voted by this House to his Majesty, to be applied in enabling and assisting the inhabitants of the County of Cumberland, to reinstate and maintain the due administration of justice, and for the suppression of riots in the said County, be repaid into the Treasury of this Colony, by an equal sum to be raised of and from the freeholders and inhabitants of the said County, by a tax for that purpose.

Upon which, Mr. De Lancey moved that the previous question be first put, whether the question upon Mr. Boerum's motion be now put? And the said previous question being accordingly put, it was carried in the negative, (that is, that ihe question upon Mr. Boerum's motion be not now put,) in manner following, viz:

For the Negative.	For the Affirmative.
Mr. Brush,	Mr. Kissam,
Mr. De Lancey,	Captain Seaman,
Mr. Gale,	Mr. Thomas,
Colonel Wells,	Mr. Rapalje,
Mr. Walton,	Mr. Boerum,
Mr. Billopp,	Colonel Seaman,
Mr. Jauncey,	Mr. Ten Eyck,
Mr. Wilkins,	Mr. Nicoll,
Colonel Philips,	Mr. Van Cortlandt.

The House being equally divided, Mr. Speaker declared himself for the negative, and so it passed accordingly.

Ordered, That a Standing Committee of Correspondence and Inquiry be appointed, to consist of the following persons, to wit: John Cruger, Esquire, Speaker, James De Lancey, James Jauncey, Jacob Walton, Benjamin Seaman. Isaac Wilkins, Frederick Philips, Daniel Kissam, Zebulon Seaman, John Rapalje, Simon Boerum, Samuel Gale, and George Clinton, Esquires, or any seven of them, whose business it shall be to obtain the most early and authentick intelligence of all such Acts and Resolutions of the British Parliament, or Proceedings of Admistration, as do or may relate to or affect the liberties and privileges of his Majesty's subjects in the British Colonies in America; and to keep up and maintain a correspond-once and communication with our sister Colonies, respecting these important considerations; and the result of their proceedings to lay before the House.

Die Lunæ, 10 ho., A. M.. the 3d April, 1775.
Ordered, That the Treasurer of this Colony pay, on warrant or warrants, to be issued by his Honour the Lieutenant-Governour, or Commander-in-Chief, by and with the advice and consent of his Majesty's Council of this Colony, the sum of one thousand Pounds, voted by this House the 30th ultimo, to enable and assist the inhabitants of the County of Cumberland, to reinstate and maintain the due administration of justice, and for the suppression of riots in said County.
His Hononr, the Lieutenant-Governour, having required the attendance of the House in the Council Chamber, Mr. Speaker left the chair, and with the House attended accordingly; when, after the Lieutenant-Governonr had given his assent to thirty-two Acts, his Honour was pleased to recommend to him to return to the Assembly Chamber, and adjourn the House till Wednesday, the 3d day of May next.
And being returned, Mr. Speaker resumed the chair, and adjourned the House till Wednesday, the 3d day of May next.

Resolved, That the Secretary have power to adjourn this Congress in the absence of the President.

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Tuesday, February 7, 1775, A. M.

The Committee on the vote of the Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Boston, and others, having amended their Report, again reported, and was considered and accepted, and is as followeth:

FOURTH SERIES.

Whereas, it appears to this Congress, that certain persons are employed in divers kinds of works for the Army now stationed in Boston, for the purpose of carrying into execution the late Acts of Parliament, and in supplying them with Iron for Wagons, Canvass, Tent Poles, and other articles of field equipage, whereby said Army maybe enabled to take the field, and distress the inhabitants of this country:

Therefore, Resolved, As the opinion of this Congress, and is accordingly strongly recommended to the inhabitants of the several Towns and Districts of this Province, that should any person or persons presume to supply the Troops now stationed at Boston, or elsewhere in said Province, with Timber, Boards, Spars, Pickets, Tent Poles, Canvass, Bricks, Iron, Wagons, warts, Carriages, Intrenching Tools, or any materials for making any of the Carriages, or implements aforesaid, with Horses or Oxen for draught, or any other materials whatever, which may enable them to annoy, or in any manner distress said inhabitants, he or they shall be held in the highest detestation, and deemed inveterate enemies to America, and ought to be prevented and opposed by all reasonable means whatever.

And whereas, it appears to this Congress, that large quantities of Straw will be wanted by the inhabitants of this Province, in case we should be driven to the hard necessity of taking up arms in our own defence:

Therefore, Resolved, That no person or persons ought to sell or dispose of any Straw, which he or they may have on hand, except to the inhabitants of this Province for their own private use, or the use of said Province.

And it is strongly recommended by this Congress, to the Committees of Correspondence, and inspection in the several Towns and Districts in this Province, to see that the above Resolves be strictly and faithfully adhered to, till otherwise ordered by this or some other Provincial Congress or House of Representatives.

Ordered, That the above Resolves be published in all the Newspapers in this Province, and that it be attested by the Secretary.

Ordered That Mr. Fisher, Doctor Church, Mr. Bailey, Doctor Warren, and Colonel Thomas, be a Committee to take into consideration the account of the late Delegates from this Province, who attended the Continental Congress, and report what they be allowed for their expenses, and for their time, while absent on the business of the Province; and also devise some method how the money shall be procured to discharge the same; and also, how the money shall be procured to enable our present Delegates appointed to attend the American Congress, to refund their expenses.

The Committee appointed to draft an Address to the inhabitants of this Province, accompanying the Resolve which is ordered to be published relative to the Province Taxes being paid to Henry Gardner, Esquire, reported a draft, which was read, and considered in paragraphs.

Ordered, To be recommitted for amendments, and that Doctor Church and Doctor Warren be added to the Committee.

Adjourned to three o'clock, P. M.

Afternoon.

In consideration of the coldness of the season, and that the Congress sit in a house without fire,

Resolved, That all those Members who incline thereto, may sit with their Hats on while in Congress.

The Committee on the State of the Province, reported, in addition to the Report of the late Provincial Congress, relative to the power of the Committee of Safety, and General Officers. After some debate thereon, it was referred for further consideration till to-morrow morning, ten o'clock.

Resolved, That at ten o'clock to-morrow morning, the Congress will come to the choice of some person to serve on the Committee of Safety, instead of Norton Quincy, Esquire, who declined accepting that trust.

Adjourned till to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

Wednesday, February 8, 1775, A. M.

The Committee appointed to prepare an Address to the inhabitants of this Province, having amended, again reported the same. After consideration thereon, it was ordered to be recommitted for further amendments,

Upon a motion made by Mr. Hall, that he might be excused from serving any longer on the Committee of Supplies, in consideration of his ill state of health, the question was put, whether he be excused for the reason mentioned, and passed in the affirmative.

Resolved, That at three o'clock this afternoon, the Congress will come to the choice of some person to serve on the Committee of Supplies, instead of Mr. Hall, excused.

The Order of the Day was moved for; accordingly the Congress resumed the consideration of the Report of the Committee relative to the power of the Committee of Safety, and the powers of the General Officers. After some debate thereon, it was referred for further consideration until the afternoon.

Afternoon.

The Congress resumed the consideration of the same Report; which was recommended for amendments proposed.

Ordered, That as Doctor Warren and Doctor Church are absent, Colonel Dwight and Colonel Coffin be added to the Committee on the Account of the late Delegates from this Province to the Continental Congress.

The Committee appointed to report an Address to the inhabitants of this Province, having amended their draught, reported; which was again ordered to be recommitted for amendments.

A Petition of Boice and Clark, praying that this Congress would take some step for the encouragement of collecting Linen Rags in their respective Towns; read, and Ordered, That Mr. Gorham, Mr. Bigelow, and Mr. Freeman, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve recommending the saving of Linen Rags, according to the prayer of the Petition.

Resolved, That the Congress will now proceed to the choice of some one to serve on the Committee of Safety, in the place of Norton Quincy, Esquire, who declined serving thereon.

Ordered, That Mr. Pitts, Major Fuller, and Doctor Holten, be a Committee to count and sort the votes for a person to serve on the Committee of Safety, in the stead of Norton Quincy, Esquire, who declined serving thereon.

The Congress then proceeded to bring in their votes for a person to serve on the Committee of Safety. The Committee having sorted and counted the same, reported that Mr. Jabez Fisher was chosen.

Resolved, That to-morrow morning, at ten o'clock, the Congress will come to the choice of some person to serve on the Committee of Supplies, instead of Mr. Hall, who hath been excused.

Adjourned till to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

Thursday, February 9, 1775, A. M.

The Report of the Committee relative to the power of the Committee of Safety, and the powers of the General Officers, being amended, was accepted, and is as followeth, viz:

Resolved, That the Honourable John Hancock, Esquire, Doctor Joseph Warren, Doctor Benjamin Church, Junior, Mr. Richard Doyens, Captain Benjamin White, Colonel Joseph Palmer, Mr. Abraham Watson, Colonel Azor Orne, Mr. John Pigeon, Colonel William Heath, and Mr. Jabez Fisher, be, and hereby are, appointed a Committee of Safety, to continue until the further order of this, or some other Congress, or House of Representatives of this Province, whose business and duty it shall be, most carefully and diligently to inspect and observe all and every such person or persons, as shall at any time attempt to carry into execution, by force, an Act of the British Parliament, entitled "An Act for the better regulating the Government of the Province of the Massachusetts Bay, in New England," or who shall attempt to carry into execution, by force, another Act of the British Parliament, entitled "An Act for the Impartial Administration of Justice in the cases of persons questioned for any act done by them in the execution of the Law, or for the suppression of Riots and Tumults in the Province of the Massachusetts Bay;" which said Committee, or any five of them, (provided always, that not more than one of the said five shall be an inhabitant of the Town of Boston;) shall have power, and they are hereby empowered and directed, when they shall judge that such attempt or attempts are made to alarm, muster, and cause to be assembled, with the utmost expedition, and completely armed, accoutred, and supplied with provisions sufficient for their support in the march to the place of rendezvous, such and so many of the Militia of this Province, as they shall judge necessary for the end and purpose of opposing such attempt or attempts, and at such place or places as they shall judge proper, and them to discharge, as the safety of the Province shall permit. And this Congress do most earnestly recommend to all the Officers and Soldiers of the Militia in this Province, who shall from time to time, during the commission of the said Committee, receive any call or order from the said Committee, to pay the strictest obedience thereto, as they shall regard the liberties and lives of themselves and the people of this Province, any order or orders of any form Congress varying therefrom notwithstanding.

Resolved, That the Honourable Jedediah Preble, Esquire, Honourable Artemas Ward, Esquire, Colonel Seth Pomeroy, Colonel John Thomas, and Colonel William Heath, be, and they hereby are appointed General Officers, whose business and duty it shall be, with such and so many of the Militia of this Province as shall be assembled by order of the Committee of Safety, effectually to oppose and resist such attempt or attempts as shall be made for carrying into execution, by force, an Act of the British Parliament, entitled "An Act for the better regulating the Government of the Province of the Massachusetts Bay, in New England," or who shall attempt the carrying into execution, by force, another Act of the British Parliament, entitled "An Act for the more Impartial Administration of Justice in the cases of persons questioned for any act done by them in the execution of the Law, or for the suppression of Riots and Tumults in the Province or the Massachusetts Bay," so long as the said Militia shall be retained by the Committee of Safety, and no longer; and the said General Officers shall, while in the said service, command, lead, and conduct in such opposition, in the order in which they are above named, any order or orders of any former Congress, varying therefrom notwithstanding.

The Order of the Day was moved for.

Upon a motion, Ordered, That a Committee be appointed to count and sort the votes for the choice of a person to serve on the Committee of Supplies in the place of Mr. Hall, who hath been excused. Accordingly, Mr. Sayer, Mr. Lothrop, and Captain Greenleaf, were appointed.

The Congress then proceeded to bring in their votes for a person to serve on the Committee of Supplies; after counting and sorting the same, the Committee reported that Mr. Manning was chosen.

Upon a motion made by Mr. Manning, the question was put, whether he be excused from serving on the Committee of Supplies, and passed in the affirmative.

The Congress then proceeded to bring in their votes for a person to serve in his place; and after counting and sorting the same, the Committee reported that Mr. Elbridge Gerry was chosen.

Ordered, That during the debates of the Congress, the Members thereof be seated in their proper places.

A number of Letters said to be from gentlemen in England, were read. Upon a motion, Ordered, That they be committed to the Committee on the State of the Province, to take them into consideration, and report.

The Committee appointed to prepare an Address to the inhabitants of this Province, having amended their Report, the same was read, considered and accepted, and ordered to be attested, and added to the pamphlet directed to be printed by this Congress, and is as followeth, viz:

To the Inhabitants of the MASSACHUSETTS BAY.

FRIENDS AND FELLOW-SUFFERERS: When a People entitled to that freedom which your ancestors have nobly preserved, as the richest inheritance of their children, are invaded by the hand of oppression, and trampled on by the merciless feet of tyranny, resistance is so far from being criminal, that it becomes the Christian and social duty of each individual. While you see the lives of your fellow-men, in other Nations, sported with and destroyed, and their Estates confiscated by their Prince, only to gratify the caprice, ambition, or avarice of a Tyrant, you ought to entertain and cultivate in your minds the highest gratitude to the Supreme Being for his having placed you under such a form of Government, as when duly administered, gives the meanest peasant the same security in his life and property as his Sovereign has in his crown.

The Constitution of Government secures to each one, subject thereto, such an entire property in his inheritance, and the fruit of his industry, that they cannot be taken from him without his personal or representative consent; and as the evidence of entire property arises from the uncontrollable power of disposing, when your estates shall be brought into such a situation, or under such a form of Government, as that they can be disposed of or granted by persons who are by no means accountable to you therefore, you cease to have any thing more than a licensed and precarious property in them.

Notwithstanding these principles have been warmly contended for, and nobly defended at the expense of much blood and treasure, by your British ancestors, who have ever been seriously alarmed at the least infringement on this branch of their happy privileges, the House of Commons there, over whom you have not the least control, and in whose election you have no voice, have claimed and exercised the power of granting you money without your consent; and what renders the same more aggravated is, that the money extorted from you is applied to the vile purpose of maintaining a set of men who, through depravity of mind, and cruelty of disposition, have been and still are endeavouring to enforce certain Acts of Parliament, made with express purpose to take from you your Charter rights, and reduce you to a state of misery, equal to that ever attendant on those whose Prince has the sole disposal of their lives and properties. Fleets, Troops, and every implement of war, are sent into the Province with apparent design to wrest from you that freedom which it is your duty, even at the risk of your lives, to hand inviolate to posterity.

These strides of tyranny have fixed the united attention of all America; and being greatly and justly alarmed, the wisdom of the whole Continent has been collected in that Congress, whose salutary Resolutions have pointed you to effectual means of redress, and the execution of the plan projected by that honourable assembly has been warmly recommended to you by your former Provincial Congress.

The transactions of your former Congress, with regard to placing the Militia on such a footing as may serve to defend you from each act of hostility that may be offered, have been carefully transmitted to you, and we rejoice to hear that you have cheerfully paid the strictest attention to them, and ardently wish that the same martial spirit which so remarkably prevails among you, may be encouraged and increased.

Though we deprecate a rupture with the mother state, yet we must still urge you to every preparation for your necessary defence; for, unless you exhibit to your enemies such a firmness as shall convince them that you are worthy of that freedom your ancestors fled here to enjoy, you have nothing to expect but the vilest and most abject slavery.

The foregoing sheets contain the Resolutions of your former Congress, respecting the improvement of your public moneys at this critical juncture of your public affairs. Such is the alarming state of the Province, that the necessity of punctually complying with these Resolves can by no means need any further argument to stimulate thereto, than what naturally arises from facts under your constant observation; but as necessary preparations for your defence require immediate supplies of money, duty and faithfulness to you compel us to take leave to hint, that should you be so unhappy as to be driven to unsheath the sword in defence of your lives and properties, the having proper magazines duly prepared, may give that success which cannot be expected without them.

Subjects generally pay obedience to the Laws of the land, to avoid the penalty that accrues, on breach of them, and on the same principles we are assured, that as you hitherto have, you will continue still strictly to adhere to the Resolutions of your several Congresses; for we can conceive of no greater punishment for the breach of human laws than the misery that must inevitably follow your disregarding the plans that have, by your authority, with that of the whole Continent, been projected.

You conduct hitherto, under the severest trials, has been worthy of you as men and Christians; and, notwithstanding the pains that have been taken by your enemies to inculcate the doctrines of non-resistance and passive obedience, and by every art to delude and terrify you, the whole Continent of America has this day cause to rejoice in your firmness. We trust you will still continue steadfast; and having regard to the dignity of your characters as freemen, and those generous sentiments resulting from your natural and political connections, you will never submit your necks to the galling yoke of despotism prepared for you; but with a proper sense of your dependence on God, nobly defend those rights which Heaven gave, and no man ought to take from us.

An Address from the Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Scituate, and others, showing that a number of his Majesty's Troops are now stationed in the Town of Marshfield, &c., being read, Ordered, That Doctor Warren, Doctor Taylor, Colonel Henshaw, Mr. Watson, and Mr. Gill, be a Committee to take the same into consideration, and the Papers accompanying it, and report.

Ordered, That Mr. Sullivan, Mr. Pickering, and Captain Greenleaf, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve empowering the Committee of Safety to take into their hands the Warlike Stores, the property of the Province.

Ordered, That Colonel Thomas, Colonel Heath, Honourable Colonel Ward, Colonel Pomeroy, and Colonel Gardner, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve, directing how the Ordnance in the Province shall be used.

Afternoon.

The Committee on the Petition of John Sawyer, and others, reported, by way of Resolve; which Report was ordered to lie on the table.

Ordered, That the several Members who were appointed to make return of the Officers and number of the Militia and Minute-men, in the several Counties, be directed to comply with the said order as soon as possible.

Upon a motion, Ordered, That Colonel Patterson, Mr. Brown, of Pittsfield, and Major Bliss, be a Committee to report a Resolve for the publication of the Names of those who have been appointed Counsellors by Mandamus, and have refused to resign their appointments.

The Committee on the Accounts of the Delegates from this Province to the Continental Congress, reported, which was accepted; and thereupon, Ordered, That Mr. Sullivan, Mr. Devens, and Mr. Gotham, be a Committee to report a Resolve agreeable to the same.

The Committee on the Petition of Boice and Clark, reported by way of Resolve; which was read and accepted, and is as followeth, viz:

Whereas, the encouragement of Manufactories of this Country will, at all times, (and more especially at this,) be attended with the most beneficial effects; and Messrs. Boice and Clark having represented to this Congress that they have, at a very considerable expense, erected Works at Milton, in this Province, for the making of Paper, and have not heretofore been able to obtain a sufficiency of Rags to answer their purpose; and in order to procure a larger quantity of that article, have raised the price thereof: Therefore,

Resolved, That it be recommended, and is by this Congress accordingly recommended, to every family in this Province, to preserve all their Linen and Cotton Rags, in order that a Manufactory so useful and advantageous to this Country, may be suitably encouraged; and it is also recommended to our several Towns, to take such further measures for the encouragement of the manufacture aforesaid, as they shall think proper.

Adjourned till to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

Friday, February 10, 1775, A. M.

Ordered, That Mr. Devens, Mr. Watson, Colonel Gardner, Colonel Howe, and Captain Batchelder, be a Committee to observe the motion of the Troops said to be on their road to this Town.

An application from Thomas Legate, Esquire, was read.

Ordered, That it be committed.

Accordingly ordered that Mr. Pickering, Colonel Cushing, and Colonel Farley, be a Committee to take the same into consideration.

Ordered, That Colonel Palmer, Colonel Cushing, and Mr. Cushing, of Scituate, be a Committee to set in the recess of this Congress, to prepare all such Rules and Regulations for the Officers and Men of the Constitutional Army, which may be raised in this Province, as shall be necessary for the good order thereof.

The Committee appointed by the late Provincial Congress to estimate the loss and damage which hath accrued to the Province by the operation of the Boston Port Bill, and the Act for altering the Civil Government of this Province, reported; the Report ordered to be filed.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve relative to the payment of the late Delegates to the Continental Congress, reported; the Report was accepted, and is as followeth, viz:

Whereas the accounts of expenses incurred by the Honourable Thomas Cushing, Mr. Samuel Adams, John Adams, and Robert Treat Paine, Esquires, in the execution of the trust reposed in them as Representatives of this Province, at the Grand Continental Congress held at Philadelphia, in the months of September and October last, has been exhibited to and approved of by this Congress, and there appears to be due to the said Delegates the sum of nine Pounds, Seventeen Shillings, and ten Pence, lawful money, in order to discharge their said expenses; and this Congress have voted that the sum of fifty-six Pounds be paid to each of the aforesaid Delegates, in order to compensate them for their time spent in said service: Therefore,

Resolved, That Henry Gardner, Esquire, Receiver General of this Province, be directed, and he is hereby accordingly directed to pay to the Honourable Thomas Cushing, Esquire, the above sum of nine Pounds, seventeen Shillings, and ten Pence, for expenses, and the sum of fifty-Six Pounds for his time spent in the service aforesaid; and to Mr. Samuel Adams, John Adams, and Robert Treat Paine, Esquires, each the sum of fifty-six Pounds, as a recompense for their time spent in said service.

The same Committee reported the following Resolve, which was accepted, viz:

Whereas the Honourable John Hancock, Honourable Thomas Cushing, Mr. Samuel Adams, John Adams, and Robert Treat Paine, Esquires, were, by a former Provincial Congress, chosen and appointed a Committee of Delegates to meet the Delegates' from the other American Colonies, at Philadelphia, on the 10th day of May next, or sooner, if necessary. And whereas it is ordered by this Congress that the sum of one hundred Pounds be allowed and paid each of them to enable them to perform said journey:

Therefore, Resolved, That Henry Gardner, Esquire, Receiver General of this Province be, and hereby is ordered and directed to pay unto Robert Treat Paine, Esquire, the sum of forty-six Pounds, lawful money, in consideration of the same sum being by him accidentally lost out of his pocket while on his journey to Philadelphia, in the service of this Government.

Afternoon.

Ordered, That Mr. Sullivan, Colonel Patterson, and Colonel Thomas, be a Committee to revise the commission of the Committee of Safety, and the commission of the Committee of Supplies, and point out what amendments, if any, are necessary.

Upon a motion made, the question was put whether the vote relative to committing the Petition of Thomas Legate, Esquire, be reconsidered, and the Petitioner have leave to withdraw his Petition, and passed in the affirmative.

Ordered, That the Secretary be directed to publish the names of the Mandamus Counsellors (in all the Newspapers in this Province) now in Boston, agreeably to the order of the late Provincial Congress.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration how the Ordnance should be disposed of, are directed to make report to the Committee of Safety.

A Petition from the Delegates of the several Towns and Districts in the Counties of Hampshire and Berkshire, was read, and is as followeth, viz:

To the Honourable House of Delegates for the Province of the MASSACHUSETTS BAY, in NEW ENGLAND, in, Provincial Congress assembled, at CAMBRIDGE, in the County of MIDDLESEX, on WEDNESDAY, the 1st day of FEBRUARY, 1775:

The subscribers, Delegates from the several Towns and Districts in the Counties of Hampshire and Berkshire, in the Province aforesaid, in behalf of their constituents, the inhabitants of the said Counties, most humbly shew: That the inhabitants of the said two Counties are very generally determined strictly to keep, perform, and abide by the Association and recommendations of the late Honourable Continental Congress; and also, to the uttermost of their power, to conform and execute the recommendations and directions of the late Congress of this Province, more especially such of them as refer to the payments to Henry Gardner, Esquire, of the publick moneys heretofore granted by the General Court, yet outstanding, and for the organizing and equipping, accoutring, and disciplining the Militia in general, and the Minute-men in particular, and also respecting the procuring full supplies of the Town stocks of Ammunition, according to law; but, upon a careful view and examination of the Arms of the inhabitants of the said Counties, already had by the Military Officers lately chosen there by the people, it appears that, although able-bodied, effective, and well-disposed men generally equip, and furnished with good fire-arm, have already freely offered themselves to fill up and complete their full proportion of Minute-men, as recommended by the Provincial Congress, in the County of Berkshire, and in the greatest part of the Towns in Hampshire, and all the other Towns in said County of Hampshire are proceeding to fill them up. Nevertheless, there are not to be found in the said County good effective fire-arms, fully sufficient to equip all the men there able to bear arms, and to act in defence of their country; and as the enemies of these Colonies frequently throw out that Administration have conceived a bloody plan of mustering great numbers of French Canadians, and remote tribes of Savages, and to bring them against this Province, in order to effect their system of despotism and tyranny over the inhabitants of these Colonies; and as the inhabitants of the said Counties apprehend it highly probable that the first attacks that will be made on the people of this Province by the said Canadians and Indians, if any such should happen, will fall upon them:

The inhabitants of Berkshire and Hampshire are therefore humbly of the opinion, that it is absolutely necessary that every man in both the said Counties, able to bear arms, should be furnished with a good effective fire-lock; and, as there are several such men in both the said Counties utterly unable to furnish themselves with such arms, and as many such able-bodied men there are settled upon lands which are not incorporated into Towns or Districts; and therefore such arms cannot be procured for them, in such manner as prescribed for the procuring of arms for the poor inhabitants which belong to any Town or District, by the Laws of this Province, your Petitioners, theretore, humbly supplicate that this Congress would take some order which shall be effectual, for the procuring such a number of fire-arms, at the expense of the Province, and bestow them upon such poor inhabitants, that there may not be so much as one able-bodied man in either of the said two Counties who shall not be equipped with a good effective fire-arm. All which is most humbly submitted, and your Petitioners, as they ought, shall every pray.

Signed by SETH POMEROY, and nineteen others.

Ordered, That the same be committed to the Committee on the State of the Province, and that the Committee make the Petition publick if they think proper.

Adjourned till to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

Saturday, February 11, 1775, A. M.

The Committee appointed to revise the commission of the Committee of Safety and the Committee of Supplies, &c., reported by way of Resolve, which was considered and accepted, and is as followeth, viz:

Whereas several Resolves have been passed by this and the former Provincial Congress, authorizing and directing the Committee of Safety, in case of necessity in the defence of the Province, to call together, arm, accoutre, and equip the inhabitants thereof. And whereas by Resolves of the same Congress, a Committee of Supplies is appointed to provide Ordnance, Stores, Provisions, and Arms, and to place them where the said Committee of Safety shall order; but there is no provision made by whom, to whom, or in what manner and quantities the Supplies provided by said Committee shall be delivered.

It is Resolved, That said Committee of Safety, or the major part of them, shall be, and hereby are empowered to appoint one of their number a Commissary, whose business it shall be to deliver all such Stores, Ordnance, Arms, and Provisions, as shall be by the Committee of Supplies provided, as the said Committee of Safety shall order and direct, until the Constitutional Army shall take the field; when and during all the time said Army shall be in the field, until they are discharged by the Committee of Safety, the Commissary appointed by the Committee of Safety shall deliver the said Warlike Stores to the order of the Commanding Officers of said Army.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve relative to the disposal of some Bayonets, &c., reported the following Resolve, which was accepted:

Whereas there are a number of Bayonets and other implements of war purchased at the expense of the Province that are not now in the bands of the Committee of Safety, as they ought to be:

It is therefore Resolved, As the opinion of this Congress, that the Committee of Safety ought to possess themselves of all the said Bayonets and implements of war as soon as they conveniently can, and that they ought to dispose of the same for the use of the Province to such persons, and on such conditions, as they shall think proper the Committee on the State of the Province reported a Resolve, recommending that a day of Fasting and Prayer be kept throughout the Province; which was considered, and ordered to be on the table.

Ordered, That Mr. Sullivan, Mr. Stickney, and Colonel Cushing, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve empowering the Committee of Safety to direct the Committee of Supplies to make such further provision for the defence of the Province as may be necessary.

Resolved, That all the Members of the Congress be enjoined to attend, and that none depart without special leave be first obtained.

Ordered, That Colonel Tyng, Mr. Adams, Doctor Warren, Major Hawley, Colonel Ward, Honourable Mr. Hancock, and Mr. Paine, be a Committee to report a Resolve purporting the determination of this people coolly and resolutely to support their rights and privileges at all hazards.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration the Address from the Committee of Correspondence for the Town of Scituate, and others, reported; the Report was read, and ordered to be recommitted for amendments.

Adjourned till Monday next, at ten o'clock, A. M.

Monday, February 13, 1775. A. M.

The Committee on the State of the Province reported the form of a Receipt, two of the same tenor and date to be signed by the Receiver General, one of which to be lodged with the Town or District Treasurer, and the other to be kept by the Constable or other Officer, who shall pay the money to him.

Ordered, That the Report be recommitted for amendments.

Adjourned till three o'clock in the afternoon.

Afternoon.

Ordered, That Mr. Sullivan, Colonel Patterson, Mr. Fisher, Mr. Hobby, and Mr. Freeman, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve for inquiring into the state of the Militia; their numbers and equipments; and recommending to the Selectmen of the several Towns and Districts in this Province to make return of their Town and District Stock of Ammunition and Warlike Stores to this Congress.

Ordered, That Mr. Stephen Hall, Doctor Warren, and Mr. Brown, of Abington, be a Committee to take into consideration and report what is necessary for this Congress to do for the encouragement of making Saltpetre, Ordered, That Colonel Patterson bring in a Resolve appointing an Agent for and in behalf of this Province, to repair to the Province of Quebec, and there establish a correspondence to collect and transmit to us the best and earliest intelligence that can be obtained of the sentiments and determination of the inhabitants of that Province with regard to the late Acts of Parliament, or any other important matters that do, or may affect the Colonies in their present dispute with Great Britain.

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Tuesday, February 14, 1775, A. M.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve relative to an inquiry into the state of the Militia, Town Stocks, &c., reported; the Report was recommitted for amendments.

Afternoon.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve relative to inquiring into the state of the Militia, &c., having amended their Report, again reported, which Was read and accepted, and ordered that it be printed, and a copy thereof attested by the President, sent to each Town and District in this Province, and is as followeth, viz:

Whereas, it appears necessary for the defence of the lives, liberties, and properties of the inhabitants of this Province, that this Congress, on the first day of their next session, should be made fully acquainted with the number and military equipments of the Militia and Minute-men in this Province, as also the Town stock of Ammunition in each Town and District;

It is therefore Resolved, That it be and hereby is recommended to the Commanding Officers of each Regiment of Minute-men that now is or shall be formed in this Province, that they review the several Companies in their respective Regiments, or cause them to be reviewed, and take an exact state of their numbers and equipments; and where there is any Company that is not incorporated into a Regiment, the Commanding Officer thereof shall review the several Companies, or cause them to be reviewed and take a like state of their number and equipments.

And it is also recommended to the Colonels or Commanding Officers of each Regiment of Militia in this Province, that they review the several Companies in their respective Regiments, or cause them to be reviewed, and take a state of their numbers and accoutrements; which said state of the Minute-men and Militia, shall be by said Officers returned in writing to this Congress, on the first day of their next session after the adjournment.

And it is further Resolved, That it be recommended to the Selectmen of each Town and District in this Province, that on the same day they make return in writing of the state of the Town and District stock of Ammunition and Warlike Stores to this Congress.

Mr. Patterson reported a Resolve relative to appointing an Agent for and in behalf of this Province, to repair to the Province of Quebec, &c., which was recommitted, and he, with Mr. Bigelow and Colonel Henshaw, are directed to bring in a Resolve directing and empowering the Committee of Correspondence for the Town of Boston, to establish an intimate correspondence with the inhabitants of the Province of Quebec, &c.

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Wednesday, February 15, 1775.

Resolved, That at three o'clock this afternoon, the Congress will come to the choice of a General Officer, in addition to those already appointed.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve empowering the Committee of Safety to give orders to the Committee of Supplies to make such further provision for the defence of the Government, as they shall think necessary, reported.

Ordered, That the consideration of this Report be referred to the next session of this Congress.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve empowering the Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Boston to correspond with Quebec, &c., for and in behalf of this Province, reported. The Report was read and accepted, and is as followeth, viz:

Whereas, it appears the manifest design of Administra-

tins to engage and secure the Canadians and remote tribes of Indians, for the purpose of harassing and destroying these Colonies, and reducing them to a state of absolute slavery. And whereas, the safety and security of said Colonies depend in a great measure, (under God) on their firmness, unanimity, and friendship:

Therefore, Resolved, That the Committee of Correspondence for the Town of Boston, be and they are hereby directed and empowered, in such way and manner as they shall think proper, to open and establish an intimate correspondence and connection with the inhabitants of the Province of Quebec, and that they endeavour to put the same immediately into execution.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration what is necessary for this Congress to do for the encouragement of making Saltpetre, reported. The Report was read and accepted, (excepting that part thereof which relates to Essay-masters, which part was referred for further consideration to the next meeting of the Congress,) and is as followeth, viz:

Resolved, That this Congress do now appoint a Committee to draw up directions in an easy and formidable style, for the manufacturing of Saltpetre, and that the same be printed and sent to every Town and District in the Province, at the publick expense.

2d. That for the encouragement of such as are disposed to set up the manufacture of Saltpetre, this Congress do engage to purchase the Whole quantity that shall be manufactured in this Province within twelve months from this date, at the rate of fourteen Pounds per hundred.

3d. That a proper Essay-master be appointed in every County, to receive and pay for the Saltpetre which shall be brought to him with a satisfactory certificate that the same was actually manufactured in this Province.

The Committee on the State of the Province, reported again the form of a Receipt, two of the same tenor and date to be signed by the Receiver General, one of which is to be lodged with the Town or District Treasurer, or Clerk, who shall send their money, and the other to be kept by the Constable, Collector, or other Officer who shall pay the same to him; which was read and accepted, and is as followeth:

Resolved, That it is proper and expedient, that Henry Gardner, Esq., Receiver General of this Province, should, for the greater security of the Province, give two several Receipts for all such sums of money as he shall for the future receive for the use of the Province; and for the greater satisfaction of all such persons as shall make payments to the said Receiver General, it is hereby recommended to the said Henry, or his successor in office, that he make both such Receipts, as near as possible, to the form following, to wit:

" * * * * * , 177 .

"Received of A. B. the sum of * * * * * "being (part) (or the whole) of the Province Tax set on "the Town of C * * * * by the General Court, in the "year 17 * * , for which sum I have given the said A. B.
"another Receipt of the same tenor and date with this."

One of which Receipts the person paying the said money is requested to lodge with the Treasurer or Clerk of the Town and District on whose account the money shall be paid, or such other person as the inhabitants of such Town or District shall appoint.

Ordered, That Mr. Adams, Major Hawley, Mr. Gerry, Honourable Mr. Cashing, Mr. Paine, Colonel Palmer, and Mr. Freeman, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve holding up to the people of this Province the imminent danger they are in from the present disposition of the British Ministry and Parliament, and that there is reason to fear that they will attempt our sudden destruction, and the importance it is to the inhabitants of this Colony to prepare themselves for the last event.

The Committee on the State of the Province, reported a Resolve relative to Pedlars, &c., which was read, considered, and accepted, and ordered to be published in all the Newspapers, and is as followeth, viz:

Whereas, the practice of Pedlars and Petty Chapmen, in going from Town to Town selling East India Goods and Teas, and various sorts of European Manufactures, in direct opposition to the good and wholesome laws of this Province, whereby they are liable to the forfeiture of all their Goods, besides being subject to the penalty of twenty Pounds, does manifestly tend to interrupt and defeat the measures necessary to recover and secure the rights and liberties of the inhabitants of these Colonies. And whereas, the law relating to Pedlars and Petty Chapmen, cannot at present be effectually carried into execution, it is therefore hereby earnestly recommended to Committees of Inspection of the several Towns and Districts in this Province, that they be very violent and industrious to discover and find out when any Pedlars and Petty Chapmen shall come into their respective Towns and Districts; and that the said Committees, whenever they shall find out that any Pedlar or Petty Chapmen shall be in the Town or District for which such Committee is appointed, that such Committee, without fail, make a thorough and careful search and examination of the Packs, Baggage, and all the Goods, Wares, and Merchandises of such Pedlars and Petty Chapmen; and in ease such Committee shall find any India Teas or European Manufactures in the possession of such Pedlars or Petty Chapmen, it is further recommended to such Committee to prevent, by all reasonable means, such Pedlars and Petty Chapmen from vending any such Teas and Manufactures; and it is hereby recommended to the inhabitants of this Province not to trade with such Pedlars and Petty Chapmen for any article whatever.

Ordered, That Major Fuller, Mr. Brown, and Mr. Bigelow, be a Committee to direct and forward the Pamphlets printed by order of Congress, to the several Towns and Districts in the Province.

The Order of the Day was moved for.

Ordered, That Mr. Gill, Mr. Pitts, and Colonel Mansfield, be a Committee to sort and count the votes for a General Officer, in addition to those already appointed.

The Congress then proceeded to bring in their votes for a General Officer. The Committee having counted and sorted the same, reported that the Honourable John Whitchcomb, Esquire, was chosen.

Ordered, That the Members from the Town of Boston be desired to wait on the Honourable John Whitcomb, Esq., with a copy of the Resolve electing him a General Officer, and request his answer whether he will accept that trust, as soon as may be.

Ordered, That the Report of the Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve holding up to the people the imminent danger they were in, &c., be now read; which was done accordingly, and accepted, and ordered to be printed in all the Newspapers, and is as followeth, viz:

Whereas, it appears to this Congress, from the present disposition of the British Ministry and Parliament, that there is real cause to fear that the most reasonable and just applications of this Continent to Great Britain, for "Peace, Liberty, and Safety," will not meet with a favourable reception; but, on the contrary, from the large reinforcements of Troops expected in this Colony; the tenor of intelligence from Great Britain, and general appearances, we have reason to apprehend that the sudden destruction of this Colony in particular is intended, merely for refusing, with the other American Colonies, tamely to submit to the most ignominious slavery;

Therefore, Resolved, That the great law of self-preservation calls upon the inhabitants of this Colony immediately to prepare against every attempt that may be made to attack them by surprise; and it is, upon serious deliberation, most earnestly recommended to the Militia in general, as well as the detached part of it in Minute-men, that they spare neither time, pains, nor expense, at so critical a juncture, in perfecting themselves forthwith in military discipline, and that skilful instructors be provided for those Companies which may not already be provided therewith.* And it is recommended to the Towns and Districts in this Colony, that they encourage such persons as are skilled in the manufacturing of Fire-Arms and Bayonets, diligently to apply themselves thereto, for supplying such of the inhabitants as may still be deficient.

* London, April, 1775. - It is probably with a view to this Resolution, that a Ship is said to have lately sailed from Stettin, with eight German Officers on board. This Ship was freighted by an American Agent, and was laden with small Fire-Arms, Gunpowder, Ball, and accoutrements, together with thirty Field Pieces, of a light construction, all contracted for at Berlin, and there is no doubt of their being designed for the American Colonies; but how they are to be landed is not so easily to guess. - Gent. Mag.

And for the encouragement of American Manufactures of Fire-Arms and Bayonets, it is further Resolved, That this Congress will give the preference to, and purchase from them, so many effective Arms and Bayonets as can be delivered in a reasonable time, upon notice given to this Congress at its next session.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration the Address from the Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Scituate, and other Towns in that vicinity, reported. Their Report was read and accepted, and ordered that it be published in the Newspapers, and is as followeth, viz:

Voted, That the Congress do highly approve of the vigilance and activity of the Selectmen and the Committees of Correspondence of the several Towns of Plymouth, Kingston, Duxbury, Pembroke, Hanover, and Scituate, in detecting the falsehoods and malicious artifices of certain persons belonging to Marshfield and Scituate, not respectable either in their numbers or their characters, who are, with great reason, supposed to have been the persons who prevailed upon General Gage to take the imprudent step of sending a number of the King's Troops into Marshfield, under the pretence of protecting them, whereby great and just offence has been given to the good people of this Province, as very fatal consequences must have arisen therefrom, if the same malevolent spirit which seems to have influenced them, had actuated the inhabitants of the neighbouring Towns; or if the same indiscretion which betrayed the General into the unwarrantable measure of sending the Troops, had led this people to destroy them.

Voted, That the Congress do earnestly recommend it to the Selectmen and Committees of Correspondence in the several Towns of Plymouth, Kingston, Duxbury, Pembroke, Hanover, and Scituate, steadily to persevere in the same line of conduct which has in this instance so justly entitled them to the esteem of their fellow-countrymen, and to keep a watchful eye upon the behaviour of those who are aiming at the destruction of our liberties.

Ordered, That Mr. Adams, Mr. Gerry, Honourable Mr. Cushing, Mr. Paine, Honourable Colonel Ward, Colonel Prescott, and Major Holten, be a Committee to wait on the Honourable Colonel Williams and _____ Walter, and inform them that the Congress have had a notice of their being in Town as a Committee from Connecticut, in order to have a conference with us; and that we are ready to confer with them by a Committee, at such time and place as shall be most agreeable to them.

Ordered, That no Member of this Congress depart therefrom, until the conference with the Committee from Connecticut be over.

The Committee appointed to wait upon the gentlemen from Connecticut, reported that they had attended that service, and delivered the message with which they were charged, and that the gentlemen propose this evening to meet the Committee from this Congress, at such place as you shall appoint.

Ordered, That the Committee on the State of the Province be the Committee from this Congress to meet the gentlemen from Connecticut this evening, at Captain Stedman's, for the proposed conference.

Adjourned until to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

Thursday, February 16, 1775, A. M.

Adjourned to twelve o'clock at noon.

Met agreeable to adjournment.

Ordered, That Mr. Pickering, Doctor Warren, and Mr. Lothrop, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve purporting the business and duty of a Committee to be appointed to correspond with the House of Assembly of Connecticut, and if necessary, with the other neighbouring Colonies.

Resolved, That at three o'clock this afternoon the Congress will come to the choice, by ballot, of a Committee to correspond with the neighbouring Governments.

Afternoon,

Ordered, That Mr. Pitts, Mr. Gill, and Mr. Fuller, be a Committee to Count and sort the votes for the Committee to Correspond with the neighbouring Governments.

Ordered, That Major Hawley, Mr. Brown, and Colonel Patterson, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve relation to the adjournment, and empowering the Members of Charlestown, and others, to call the Congress together at an earlier day than that to which it may be adjourned.

Ordered, That Colonel Gardner, Major Holten, and Captain Batchelder, be a Committee to wait on the Rev. Doctor Appleton, and return him the thanks of this Congress for his services as their Chaplain during this session.

The Congress then proceeded to bring in their votes for a Committee to correspond with the neighbouring Governments. After sorting and counting the same, the Committee reported that the Honourable John Hancock, Esquire, Honourable Thomas Cushing, Esquire, Samuel Adams, Doctor Joseph Warren, Mr. Elbridge Gerry, and Colonel William Heath, were elected.

Upon a motion, the question was put, whether the vote in the morning relative to the choice of a Committee to correspond with the neighbouring Governments, by ballot, be so far reconsidered, as that the three persons now to be appointed thereon, be chosen by a hand vote, and that Mr. Richard Doyens, Colonel Joseph Palmer, and Mr. Moses Gill, be of the Committee, and passed in the affirmative.

Resolved, That Henry Gardner, Esquire, Receiver General, be and hereby is directed to pay into the hands of the Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Boston, the sum of twenty Pounds, lawful money, to enable the said Committee to correspond with the inhabitants of Canada, they to be accountable for said sum to this or some other Congress.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve setting forth the business and duty of the Committee appointed to correspond with the neighbouring Governments, reported. Read and accepted, and is as followeth, viz:

Resolved, That the Honourable John Hancock, Esquire, Honourable Mr. Cushing, Mr. Adams, Mr. Gerry, Doctor Warren, Colonel Heath, Mr. Devens, Colonel Palmer, and Mr. Gill, or the majority of them, be and are hereby appointed to act as a Committee of Correspondence with the other Colonies on this Continent, during the recess of this Congress, and they are hereby empowered and directed to consult with and make proposals to such Committees as now are or shall hereafter be appointed as Committees of Correspondence in the several American Colonies, and to make report of their doings to this Congress, at their next session.

While the iron hand of power is stretched out against these American Colonies, and the abettors of tyranny and oppression are practising every art to sow the seeds of jealousy and discord among the several parts of this country, it is incumbent on us to take every step in our power to counteract them in their wicked designs; and as we are convinced that the union now established throughout the several Colonies, can never be maintained without frequent communication of sentiments between them; nor can any plan formed for their common benefit be carried into execution, without a previous knowledge of the general disposition of the Colonies.

The Report of the Committee recommending a day of Fasting and Prayer to be kept throughout this Province, which was ordered to lie on the table, was now taken up, considered, and accepted, and is as followeth, viz:

Whereas, it has pleased Almighty God, the just and good Governour of the world, to permit so great a calamity to befall us as the present controversy between Great Britain and these Colonies, and which threaten us with the evils of war.

And whereas, it has been the annual and laudable custom of this Colony, at the opening of Spring, to observe a day of Fasting and Prayer, to humble themselves before God for their sins, and to implore his forgiveness and blessing.

It is therefore Resolved, as the sense of this Congress, that it is highly and peculiarly proper, and a duty incumbent upon this people, more especially at a time of such general distress, that a day of Fasting and Prayer should be observed and kept throughout this Colony, not only on account of the present calamities, but also in conformity to the laudable custom of our ancestors; and it is accordingly recommended to the several religious assemblies in the same, that Thursday, the sixteenth day of March next, be observed as a day of Fasting and Prayer, to humble ourselves before God, on account of our sins; to implore his forgiveness; to beg his blessing upon the labours of the Field, upon our Merchandise, Fishery, and Manufactures, and upon the various means used to recover and preserve our just rights and liberties; and also, that his blessing may rest upon all the British Empire, upon George the Third, our rightful King, and upon all the royal family, that they may all be great and lasting blessings to the world; to implore the outpourings of his spirit, to enable us to bear and suffer whatever his holy and righteous Providence may see fit to lay upon us; and also humbly to supplicate his direction and assistance, to discover and reform whatever is amiss, that so he may be pleased to remove these heavy afflictions - those tokens of his displeasure, and may cause harmony and union to be restored between Great Britain and these Colonies, and that we may again rejoice in the free and undisturbed exercise of all those rights and privileges, for the enjoyment of which our pious and virtuous ancestors braved every danger, and transmitted the lair possession down to their children, to be by them handed down entire to the latest posterity.

Ordered, That Mr. Doyens, Mr. Gotham, and Mr. Watson, be a Committee to direct the Resolve recommending a day of Fasting and Prayer, and send them to the several religious assemblies in this Province.

Upon a motion made, the question was put, whether the injunction of secrecy now on the Members of this Congress, be taken off, and that they disclose such parts of their doings as shall appear to them to have a tendency to promote the publick interest; and passed in the affirmative.

Ordered, That Colonel Gardner, Mr. Watson, and Mr. Osgood, be a Committee to return the thanks of this body to the Proprietors of the Meeting House in Cambridge, for their favours in indulging the Congress with the use thereof during their session.

Ordered, That Henry Gardner, Esq., Receiver General of this Province, be and he is hereby directed to pay unto Mr. William Darling, the sum of two Pounds, sixteen Shillings, lawful money, in full for his services as Door-keeper.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve relative to the adjournment of this Congress, and empowering the Members from Charlestown, and others, to call the Congress together sooner than the day to which it may be adjourned, reported. The Report was read and accepted, and is as followeth, viz:

Resolved, That this Congress be adjourned from this day to the twenty-second day of March next, at nine o'clock in the forenoon; to meet at Concord, in the County of Middlesex. And considering the great uncertainty of the present times, and that important unforeseen events may take place, from whence it may be absolutely necessary that this Congress should meet sooner than the day above-said, notwithstanding the adjournment aforesaid, it is further

Resolved, That the Members of this Congress for the Towns of Charlestown, Cambridge, Brookline, Roxbury, and Dorchester, or the majority of them, be and they are hereby authorized, in case they shall judge it necessary, to give notice to the several Members of this Congress, in such way as they shall think proper, to meet at Concord aforesaid, at any certain day other than the above-said twenty-second day of March next, which shall be by them appointed. And it is further recommended to the Members of this Congress, that they conform themselves to said notice.

The President then declared the Congress adjourned accordingly.

Wednesday, March 22. 1775, A. M.

Congress met conformable to adjournment.

Ordered, That Colonel Barret, Honourable Mr. Darter, and Mr. Stickney, be a Committee to wait on the Reverend Mr. Emerson, and desire his attendance on the Congress, and open the same with Prayer at three o'clock this afternoon, to which time this Congress stands adjourned.

Afternoon.

Ordered, That Colonel Barret, Honourable Mr. Dexter, and Mr. Stickney, be a Committee to wait again on the Reverend Mr. Emerson, and desire him, if his circumstances will admit of it, to attend daily on the Congress and officiate as their Chaplain.

Ordered, That all the Debates and Resolutions of this Congress be kept an entire secret, until the farther order thereof.

Ordered, That Colonel Danielson, Colonel Henshaw, Major Fuller, Colonel Prescott, and Colonel Farley, be a Committee to receive the Return of the several Officers of Militia, of their numbers and equipments; and the Return from the several Towns of their Town stock of Ammunition.

Ordered, That Mr. Lothrop and the Honourable Colonel Dexter, be added to the Committee on the State of the Province.

Adjourned until to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

Thursday, March 23, 1775. A. M.

The Committee appointed to wait on the Reverend Mr. Emerson, and desire that he would officiate as Chaplain to this Congress, during their present session, in the Town of Concord, reported that they had attended that service and delivered the message, and that Mr. Emerson would officiate accordingly.

Ordered, That Mr. Gerry, Mr. Paine, and Mr. Adarns, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve expressing the sense of this Congress, that for this people to relax in their preparations to defend themselves; &c., would be attended with the most dangerous consequences.

Ordered, That information be given by the Members to the Committee on the State of the Province, of the number of Field-Pieces; whether the property of the Province, Towns, or private persons, which have fallen within their knowledge; and also, what number of men in the Province acquainted with the business of making Fire-Arms.

Adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

Adjourned until to-morning, ten o'clock.

Friday, March 24, 1775, A. M.

Adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve expressing the danger there would be in relaxing from the present preparations for Defence, &c., reported. The Report was accepted, and ordered that it be attested, and published in all the Boston Newspapers, and is as followeth, viz:

In Provincial Congress, Concord, March 25. 1775.

Whereas, it is indispensably necessary for the safety of a free people, and the preservation of their liberties, that they, at all times, keep themselves in a state of actual defence, against every invasion or depredation; and this Colony being still threatened by a powerful Army posted in its capital, with a professed design of executing certain Acts of the British Parliament, calculated to destroy our invaluable rights and liberties, and the Government of this Colony, as by Charter and Law established therein:

Therefore, Resolved, That the measures that have heretofore been recommended by this and the former Provincial Congress, for the purpose of putting this Colony into a complete state of defence, be still more vigorously pursued by the several Towns, as well as individual inhabitants; and that any relaxation would be attended with the utmost danger to the liberties of this Colony, and of all America; especially as by the latest advices from Great Britain we have undoubted reasons for jealousy, that our implacable enemies are unremitting in their endeavours, by fraud and artifice, as well as by open force, to subjugate this people, which is an additional motive to the inhabitants of this Colony to persevere in the line of conduct recommended by the Congress, and be ready to oppose with firmness and resolution, at the utmost hazard, every attempt for that purpose.

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Saturday, March 25, 1775, A. M.

Ordered, That when this Congress shall adjourn, that it be adjourned to Monday next, at three o'clock in the afternoon.

Ordered, That the Members be enjoined punctually to attend at the adjournment.

Monday, March 27, 1775, P. M.

The Committee appointed to propose a state of the Imports, Exports, &c., reported.

Ordered, That the further consideration thereof be referred to Wednesday next, at three o'clock in the afternoon.

The Committee appointed to prepare some Rules, &c., for a Constitutional Army, reported. the Report read.

Ordered, That the farther consideration of the Report be postponed until to-morrow, four o'clock, P. M., and that the Committee make such additions thereto as they shall think necessary.

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Tuesday, March 28, 1775, A. M.

The several Committees enjoined to sit.

Adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

According to the Order of the Day, the Congress went into the consideration of the Report of the Committee appointed to prepare Rules and Regulations for a Constitutional Army, &c., which was recommitted for amendments.

Adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Wednesday, March 29, 1775, A. M.

Revised the consideration of the Report of the Committee relative to Rules, &c.; considered the same by paragraphs, and passed the same in part.

Adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

The Report of the Committee relative to Rules and Regulations, passed in whole, but ordered to be recommitted for additions.

Ordered, That Captain Osgood, Colonel Thompson, and Captain Greenleaf, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve introductory to the publishing the names of the Mandamus Counsellors.

Ordered, That the vote of Thursday, relative to information being given to the Committee on the State of the Province, be so far reconsidered as that the information be given to the Committee appointed to receive the Return from the Colonels.

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Thursday, March 30, 1775, A. M.

The Doorkeeper directed to call in the Members; they enjoined to attend.

The Committee on the State of the Province reported a Resolve relative to what movement of the Troops should make it fit to call the Militia together to act on the defensive. Report read and considered in paragraphs, and passed unanimously in the affirmative.

Upon a motion made and seconded,

Resolved, That immediately when notice shall be given for the assembling the Forces of this Colony, that the Members of this Congress repair without delay to the place to which they shall be adjourned.

Adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

The Committee appointed yesterday to draw an Introduction to publishing the names of the Mandamus Counsellors, reported. Recommitted to the Committee directed to bring in a report by way of order, &c.

The Committee appointed to receive the Exports and Imports, &c., in the Colony, reported. Referred to Wednesday next, at three o'clock.

Several Committees enjoined to sit and perfect their Reports without delay, in order, if possible, that the Congress may rise to-morrow.

Adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Friday, March 31, 1775, A. M.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve as introductory to publishing the names of the Mandamus Counsellors, reported. Being amended, was read and accepted, and is as follows:

FOURTH SERIES.

In Provincial Congress, Concord, March 31, 1775.

Resolved, That the names of the following persons be published in all the Boston Newspapers, who have been appointed Counsellors by his Majesty's Mandamus; and having accepted and acted under said commission, have proved themselves implacable enemies to the liberties of their country, by refusing to publish a renunciation of their commissions, agreeably to a Resolve of a former Provincial Congress; that the Secretary be directed to transmit authenticated copies of this Resolve, with the names annexed, to all the Printers in Boston, and that they be desired to insert the same in their Papers, that every Town may be possessed of a copy of their names, which are to be entered upon the Town and District Records, that they may be sent down to posterity, (if possible) with the infamy they deserve, viz:

Thomas Flucker, Foster Hutchinson, Harrison Gray, William Browne, James Bouteneau, Joshua Loring, William Pepperell, John Erving, Jun., Peter Oliver, Richard Lechmere, Josiah Edson, Nathl. Ray Thomas, Timothy Ruggles, John Murray, and Daniel Leonard, Esquires.

The Committee appointed to receive the Returns from the several Colonies, &c., reported. The Report was recommitted to be completed.

A Memorial from the Selectmen of the Town of Billerica, was read, and committed to Mr. Marcy, Captain Batchelder, Captain Osgood, Captain Manning, and Mr. Freeman.

Ordered, That the Receiver General be directed to lay a state of the Treasury before this Congress.

The Members enjoined to attend until the further order of this Congress.

Adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

The Committee on the State of the Province reported a Resolve relative to the payment of the Publick Moneys immediately to Mr. Gardner. Read and accepted, and Ordered, That it be printed in Handbills, and a copy thereof sent to each Town, directed to the Committee of Correspondence, if any, if not, to the Selectmen, to be laid before the several Towns.

In Provincial Congress, Concord, March 31, 1775.

Whereas this Congress is informed that many Collectors and Constables, having in their hands considerable sums of publick money of this Colony, have hitherto neglected to pay the same to Henry Gardner, Esquire, of Stow; and the Congress earnestly attentive to the ease of the inhabitants of the Colony, are desirous of completing the preparations so essentially necessary to the publick safety, without calling on them for other moneys than such as are now due to the Colony; it is therefore

Resolved, that the Constables and Collectors aforesaid ought by no means to be longer indulged in their unreasonable neglect of complying with the most important plans of this Colony; and it is hereby strongly recommended to the several Towns and Districts of the same, that they oblige said Constables and Collectors forthwith to pay the balances aforesaid due from them respectively, to the Receiver General; and it is also most earnestly recommended to the Towns and Districts having any publick moneys belonging to the Colony yet uncollected, that they do not fail to hire and pay the same to the said Henry Gardner, Esquire, without delay; and that they vigorously exert themselves to suppress every opposition to measures recommended by the Continental and Provincial Congresses, as they regard the freedom and happiness of themselves and future generations.

Ordered, That Mr. Gorham, Mr. Devens, and Mr. Watson, be a Committee to forward the Handbills to the several Towns, &c.

Resolved, That each Member be desired to urge the Town of which he is a Representative, if they have not paid their money to Henry Gardner, that they would immediately pay it, and if it cannot be soon collected, that they be desired to borrow it; and if there is any Town which does not incline to pay their publick moneys to Mr. Gardner, they are desired to give their reasons for such refusal to this Congress, at the next session thereof.

Adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Saturday April 1. 1775, A. M.

The Committee appointed to report Rules, &c., for the Provincial Army, having made the additions directed, the same were read, and put in whole, and passed; it was then ordered to be recommitted for the bringing in a form of Oaths, and a Resolve relative to witnesses.

The Committee on the State of the Province reported a Resolve relative to furnishing the Indians with Blankets, who have enlisted as Minute-men, &c., and an Address to them; it passed, and is as follows:

In Provincial Congress, Concord, April 1, 1775.

Whereas, a number of Indians, natives of the Town of Stockbridge, have enlisted as Minute-men,

Resolved, That for their encouragement, the following Address to said Indians be presented to them by Colonel John Patterson, and Captain William Goodridge; and that Henry Gardner, Esquire, the Receiver General, be, and hereby is, directed to pay the sum of twenty-three Pounds, lawful money, into the hands of Colonel John Patterson and Captain William Goodridge, to be employed in purchasing a number of Blankets, and some Ribbons, which they are to present to the Indians enlisted as aforesaid, viz: one Blanket, and one yard of Ribbon, to each person that is or may be enlisted; and in case the whole of the money should not be employed in the purchase aforesaid, they are to be accountable for the residue.

To JOHOIAKIN MOTHSKIN, and the rest of our Brethren, the INDIANS, natives of STOCKBRIDGE.

Good Brothers: It affords us great pleasure and satisfaction, to hear by Colonel Patterson and Captain Goodridge, that our Brothers, the natives of Stockbridge, are ready and willing to take up the Hatchet in the cause of liberty and their country. We find you have not been inattentive to the unhappy controversy we are engaged in with our mother country, by reason of sundry Acts the British Parliament have passed, by which our rights and privileges have been invaded, and our property taken from us without our consent. We have frequently petitioned the King for redress of our grievances, and the restoration of our rights; but instead of granting us relief, the King's Ministers have sent a large Fleet, and posted a great Army in the Town of Boston, who are daily abusing and insulting the inhabitants, in order to enforce obedience to these Acts. The whole Continent, from Nova Scotia to Georgia, by their Delegates, have lately presented a Petition to the King, praying for relief, to which we hope we shall receive a gracious answer. We wish the fire of friendship may be again kindled between both countries; but in case our Petition should not be attended to, and the Ministry should determine to deprive us of our rights and property by a Military force, we hold ourselves obliged to defend them at the point of the sword. This is a common cause; a cause you are equally engaged in with ourselves; we are all brothers; and if the Parliament of Great Britain takes from us our property and our lands, without our consent, they will do the same by you; your property, your lands will be insecure; in short, we shall not any of us have any thing we can call our own. Your engaging in this cause, discovers not only your attachment to your liberties, but furnishes us with an evidence of your gratitude to this Province for their past favours. They have frequently, at your request, made laws and regulations for your protection and defence against the ravages and hands of deceitful and designing men. They have constantly and cheerfully afforded you aid and assistance, because you have given them abundant proof of your fidelity. We have directed Colonel Patterson and Captain Goodridge, to present each of you that have enlisted in the service, with a Blanket and a Ribbon, as a testimony of our affection, and shall depend upon your firm and steady attachment to the cause you have engaged in.

Ordered, That Mr. Adams, Mr. Cushing, and Mr. Patterson, be a Committee to draught a Letter to the Reverend Mr. Kirkland, and an Address to the Chief of the Mohawk Indian Tribes.

Moved, That the Congress now go into consideration of what ought to be the conduct of the several Towns in case General Gage should send out his Precepts for convening a new Assembly on the last Wednesday in May next; and what ought to be their conduct in case he should not send out his Writs.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Congress, that in case Writs, in the form the law directs, should be issued, they ought to be obeyed.

Resolved, That in case Writs should not be issued forth, that a Congress be called on the last Wednesday in May next, and in case General Gage should not issue Precepts for calling an Assembly as the law directs, the Members of the Towns of Charlestown, Cambridge, Brookline, Roxbury, and Dorchester, be desired to publish this Resolve, and appoint a place where they shall assemble.

Ordered, That Colonel Warren, Mr. Adams, and Mr. Gill, be a Committee to reduce the several Resolutions of this day, relative to calling a new Congress, to form, and bring in a Resolution accordingly.

The Committee reported; which was read, accepted, and is as follows, viz:

In Provincial Congress, April 1, 1775.

Resolved, That in case Writs are not issued according to law, for calling a General Assembly on the last Wednesday of May next, it be recommended to the several Towns and Districts in this Colony, to choose Delegates for a Provincial Congress, to meet on the said last Wednesday of May next, at such place as the present Members of the Towns of Charlestown, Cambridge, Brookline, Roxbury, and Dorchester, shall appoint, who are desired to cause this Resolution to be published in the several Newspapers, as soon as it can be ascertained that Writs are not issued for calling an Assembly.

An application from the Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Boston, and others, was read.

Ordered, That the consideration be referred to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

The Congress proceeded to consider the application from the Committee of Correspondence of Boston, &c., agreeably to the order of the forenoon.

Ordered, That it be committed to Colonel Danielson, Mr. Gerry, Colonel Foster, Major Fuller, of Middleton, and Colonel Warren, to consider of, and report thereon.

- The Members are enjoined to attend on the adjournment of this Congress, which will be at nine o'clock, A. M, on Monday next.

Monday, April 3, 1775, A. M.

Resolved, That the Committee on the State of the Province be desired to collect all the late intelligence from Great Britain, relative to their sending a reinforcement to General Gage, and on other matters which relate to this and the other Colonies, and report to the Congress what is best to be done.

Ordered, That Doctor Church, Colonel Pomeroy, and Doctor Warren, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve, to be inserted in the Salem Papers, requiring the attendance of all the absent Members, and a recommendation to the several Towns and Districts, who have not yet sent Members to the Provincial Congress, that they elect them, and direct their immediate attendance.

Ordered, That Major Bliss, Mr. Freeman, and Captain Osgood, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve, to be forwarded by an express, to call in the absent Members from the Counties of Hampshire, Berkshire, Worcester, and Bristol.

Adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve, requiring the attendance of absent Members, reported; which was read, and accepted, and is as follows:

Whereas, several Members of this Congress are now absent by leave of this Congress, and as the important intelligence received by the last vessels from Great Britain, renders it necessary that every Member attend his duty,

Resolved, That the absent Members be directed forthwith to attend in this place, that so the wisdom of the Province may be collected.

Ordered, That the Committee on the Memorial of the Town of Billerica, be joined to the Committee appointed to take into consideration the Memorial from the Town of Boston, and others.

Ordered, That the Committee be enjoined to sit immediately.

Ordered, That Colonel Foster be excused from serving on the last mentioned Committee; and that Colonel Cushing be added to them.

Adjourned until to-morrow morning, nine o'clock,

Tuesday. April 4, 1775, A.M.

Upon a motion made that Captain Goodridge have liberty to augment his Company to one hundred men, and that they be considered as Rangers,

Thereupon, Ordered, That Captain Goodridge apply to Colonel Patterson on this affair, who will have an opportunity to consult the Field Officers of those Regiments of the Militia from which said Company is to be enlisted, and that this matter be settled as they shall think best.

The Committee appointed to prepare an Address to the Mohawks, and a Letter to the Reverend Mr. Kirkland, reported. Read, and Ordered, That the Address be recommitted for amendments.

Adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

A Letter to the Reverend Mr. Kirkland, and an Address to the Mohawks, amended, reported, and passed; and is as follows:

Concord, April 4, 1775.

REVEREND SIR: The Provincial Congress have thought it necessary to address the Sachem of the Mohawk Tribe, with the rest of the five Nations, upon the subject of the controversy between Great Britain and the American Colonies. We were induced to take this measure, as we have been informed that those who were inimical to us in Canada, have been tampering with those Nations, and endeavouring to attach them to the interest of those who are attempting to deprive us of our inestimable rights and privileges, and to subjugate the Colonies to arbitrary power.

from a confidence in your attachment to the cause of liberty and your country, we now transmit to you the enclosed Address, and desire you would deliver it to the Sachem of the Mohawk Tribe, to be communicated to the rest of the five Nations, and that you would use your influence with them to join with us in the defence of our rights. But if you cannot prevail with them to take an active part in this glorious cause, that you would at least engage them to stand neutre, and not by any means to aid and assist our enemies. And as we are at a loss for the name of the Sachem of the Mohawk Tribe, we have left it to you to direct the Address to him in such way as you may think proper.

BROTHERS: We, the Delegates of the inhabitants of the Province of the Massachusetts Bay, being for you and ourselves come together, to consider what may be best to get ourselves rid of those hardships which we feel and fear, have thought it our duty to tell you, our good Brothers, what our Fathers in Great Britain have done, and threaten to do with us.

Brothers: You have heard how our fathers were obliged by the cruelty of their brethren, to leave their country; how they crossed the Great Lake and came here; how they purchased their land with their own money, and how, since that time, they, and we, their sons and grandsons, have built our houses, and cut down the trees, and cleared and improved the land, at their and our own expense; how we have fought for them, and conquered Canada, and a great many other places, which they have had, and have not paid us for; after all which, and many other troubles, we thought we had reason to hope, that they would be kind to us, and allow us to enjoy ourselves, and sit in our own houses and eat our own victuals in peace and quiet, but alas! our brothers, we are greatly distressed, and we will tell you our grief, for you as well as we are in great danger.

Brothers: Our Fathers in Great Britain tell us our Lands, and Houses, and Cattle, and Money, are not our own; that we ourselves are not our own men, but their servants; they have endeavoured to take away our Money without our leave, and have sent their great Vessels and a great many Warriours for that purpose.

Brothers: We used to send our Vessels on the Great Lake, whereby we were able to get Clothes, and what we needed for ourselves and you; but such has lately been their conduct, that we cannot; they have told us we shall have no more Guns, no Powder to use and kill our Wolves and other game, nor to send to you, for you to kill your victuals with, and to get Skins to trade with us to buy you Blankets, and what you want. How can you live without Powder and Guns? But we hope to supply you soon with both, of our own making.

Brothers: They have made a law to establish the religion of the Pope in Canada, which lies so near you. We much fear some of your children may be induced, instead of worshipping the only true God, to pay his due to images made with their own hands.

Brothers: These, and many other hardships we are threatened with, which, no doubt, in the end, will equally affect you; for the same reason they would take our Lands, they will take away yours. All we want is, that we and you may enjoy that liberty and security which we have a right to enjoy, and that we may not lose that good Land which enables us to feed our wives and children. We think it our duty to inform you of our danger, and desire you to give notice to all your kindred; and as we fear they will attempt to cut our throats, and if you should allow them to do that, there will nobody remain to keep them from you, we therefore earnestly desire you to whet your Hatchet, and be prepared with us to defend our liberties and lives.

Brothers: We humbly beseech that God who lives above, and does what is right here below, to enlighten your minds, to see that you ought to prevent our Fathers from bringing those miseries upon us, and to his good providence we commend you.

The Committee appointed to draught Rules for the Army, &c., again reported. Recommited to bring in the form of two Oaths.

Adjourned till ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Wednesday, April 5, 1775, A. M.

The Committee appointed to prepare Rules and Regulations for the Massachusetts Army, having brought in the form of two Oaths as directed, the Report in whole read and passed, and is as followeth:

Whereas, the lust of power, which of old oppressed, persecuted, and exiled our pious and virtuous ancestors from their fair possessions in Britain, now pursues with ten fold severity, us, their guiltless children, who are unjustly and wickedly charged with licentiousness, sedition, treason, and rebellion; and being deeply impressed with a sense of the almost incredible fatigues and hardships our venerable progenitors encountered, who fled from oppression, for the sake of civil and religious liberty, for themselves and their offspring, and began a settlement here, on bare creation, at their own expense, and having seriously considered the duty we owe to God, to the memory of such invincible worthies, to the King, to Great Britain, our country, ourselves, and posterity, do think it our indispensable duty, by all lawful ways and means in our power, to recover, maintain, defend, and preserve, the free exercise of all those civil and religious rights and liberties, for which many of our forefathers fought, bled, and died, and to hand them down entire for the free enjoyment of the latest posterity. And whereas, the keeping a Standing Army in any of these Colonies in times of peace, without the consent of the Legislature of that Colony in which such Army is kept, is against law. And whereas, such an Army, with a large Naval force, is now placed in the Town and Harbour of Boston, for the purpose of subjecting us to the power of the British Parliament. And whereas, we are frequently told by the tools of the Administration, dupes to Ministerial usurpation, that Great Britain will not in any degree relax in her measures, until we acknowledge her "right of making laws binding upon us in all cases whatever," and that if we persist in our denial of her claim, the dispute must be decided by Arms, in which it is said by our enemies, "we shall have no chance; being undisciplined, cowards, "disobedient, impatient of command, and possessed of that "spirit of revelling which admits of no order, subordination, "rule, or government."

And whereas, the Ministerial Army and Fleet now at Boston; the large reinforcement of Troops expected; the late Circular Letter to the Governours upon the Continent; the general tenour of intelligence from Great Britain, and the hostile preparations making here; as also from the threats and repeated insults of our enemies in the Capital Town, we have reason to apprehend that the sudden destruction of this Province is in contemplation if not determined upon.

And, whereas, the great law of self-preservation; may suddenly require our raising and keeping an Army of observation and defence, in order to prevent or repel any further attempt to force the late cruel and oppressive Acts of the British Parliament, which are evidently designed to subject us and the whole Continent to the most ignominious slavery. And whereas, in case of raising and keeping such an Army, it will be necessary that the Officers and Soldier's in the same be fully acquainted with their duty, and that the Articles, Rules, and Regulations thereof, be made as plain as possible; and having great confidence in the honour and publick virtue of the inhabitants of this Colony, that they will readily obey the Officers chosen by themselves, and will cheerfully do their duty when known, without any such severe Articles and Rules, (except in capital cases,) and cruel punishments as are usually practised in Standing Armies, and will submit to all such Rules and Regulations as are founded in reason, honour, and virtue. It is, therefore,

Resolved, That the following Articles, Rules, and Regulations for the Army, that may be raised for the defence and security of our lives, liberties, and estates, be, and are hereby earnestly recommended to be strictly adhered to, by all Officers, Soldiers, and others concerned, as they regard their own honour and the publick good.

Article 1st. All Officers and Soldiers not having just impediment, shall diligently frequent Divine Service and Sermon in the places appointed for the assembling of the Regiment, Troop, or Company, to which they belong; and such as wilfully absent themselves, or being present, behave indecently or irreverently, shall, if Commissioned Officers, be brought before a Regimental Court Martial, there to be publicly and severely reprimanded by the President; if Non-Commissioned Officers or Soldiers, every person so offending, shall, for his first offence, forfeit one Shilling, to be deducted out of his wages; for the second offence, he shall not only forfeit one Shilling, but be confined twenty-four hours; and for every like offence, shall suffer and pay in like manner; which money so forfeited shall be applied to the use of the sick Soldiers of the Troop or Company to which the offender belongs.

Article 2d. Whatsoever Non-Commissioned Officer or Soldier shall use any unlawful oath or execration, shall incur the penalties expressed in the preceding Article; and if a Commissioned Officer be thus guilty of profane cursing and swearing, he shall forfeit and pay for each and every such offence, four Shillings, lawful money.

Article 3d. Any Officer or Soldier, who shall begin, excite, or cause any mutiny or sedition, or join in such mutiny, in the Regiment, Troop, or Company, to which he belongs, or in any other Regiment, Troop, or Company of the Massachusetts Forces, either by Land or Sea, or in any Party, Post, Detachment, or Guard, on any pretence whatever, shall suffer such punishment, as by a General Court Martial shall be ordered.

Article 4th. Any Officer or Soldier who shall behave himself with contempt or disrespect towards the General or Generals, or Commanders-in-Chief of the Massachusetts Forces, or shall speak words tending to his or their hurt or dishonour, shall be punished according to the nature of his offence, by the judgment of a General Court Martial.

Article 5th. Any Officer, Non-Commissioned Officer, or Soldier, who, being present at any mutiny or sedition, does not use his utmost endeavours to suppress the same, or coming to the knowledge of any mutiny, does not without delay, give information thereof to his Commanding Officer, shall be punished by order of a General Court Martial according to the nature of his offence.

Article 6th. Any Officer or Soldier who shall strike his Superiour Officer, or draw, or offer to draw, or shall lift up any weapon, or offer any violence against him, being in the execution of his office, on any pretence whatever, or shall disobey any lawful commands of his Superiour Officer, shall suffer such punishment as shall be, according to the nature of his offence, ordered by the sentence of a General Court Martial.

Article 7th. Any Non-Commissioned Officer or Soldier, who shall desert, or without leave from his Commanding Officer, absent himself from the Troop or Company to which he belongs, or from any detachment of the same, shall, upon being convicted thereof, be punished according to the nature of his offence, at the direction of a General Court Martial.

Article 8th. Whatever Officer or Soldier shall be convicted of having advised or persuaded any other Officer or Soldier to desert, shall suffer such punishment as shall be ordered by a sentence of a General Court Martial.

Article 9th. All Officers of what condition soever, shall have power to part and quell all quarrels, frays, and disorders, though the persons concerned should belong to another Regiment, Troop, or Company, and order Officers to be arrested, or Non-Commissioned Officers, or Soldiers, to be confined and imprisoned till their proper Superiour Officer shall be made acquainted therewith; and whoever shall refuse to obey such Officer, (though of an inferiour rank,) or shall draw his sword upon him, shall be punished at the discretion of a General Court Martial.

Article 10th. No Officer or Soldier shall use any reproachful or provoking speeches, or gestures, nor shall presume to send a challenge to any person to fight a duel, nor shall second, promote, or carry any challenge; and whoever shall knowingly and willingly suffer any person whatsoever to go forth to fight a duel, or shall second any such conduct, shall be deemed as a principal; and whatsoever Officer or Soldier shall upbraid another for refusing a challenge, shall be considered as a challenger; and all such offenders in any of these or the like cases, shall be punished at the discretion of a General Court Martial.

Article 11th. Every Officer commanding in quarters, or on a march, shall keep good order, and to the utmost of his power, redress all such abuses or disorders which may be committed to any Officer or Soldier under his command; if upon any complaint made to him, of Officers or Soldiers breaking or otherwise ill treating any person, or committing any kind of riots to the disquieting of the inhabitants of this Continent, he, the said Commander, who shall refuse or omit to see justice done to the offender or offenders, and reparation made to the party or parties injured, as soon as the offender's wages shall enable him, or them, shall, upon due proof thereof, be punished, as ordered by a General Court Martial, in such manner, as if he himself had committed the crimes or disorders complained of.

Article 12th. If any Officer should think himself to be wronged by his Colonel, or the Commanding Officer of the Regiment, and shall, upon due application made to him, be refused to be redressed, he may complain to the General, or Commander-in-Chief of the Massachusetts Forces, in order to obtain justice, who is hereby required to examine into the complaint, and see that justice be done.

Article 13th. If any inferiour Officer or Soldier shall think himself wronged by his Captain, or other Officer commanding the Troop or Company to which he belongs, he is to complain thereof to the Commanding Officer of the Regiment, who is hereby required to summon a Regimental Court Martial for the doing justice to the complaint, from which Regimental Court Martial; either party may, if he thinks himself still aggrieved, appeal to a General Court Martial; but if upon a second hearing, the appeal shall appear to be vexatious and groundless, the person so appealing, shall be punished at the discretion of a General Court Martial.

Article 14th. Whatsoever Non-Commissioned Officer or Soldier shall be convicted at a Regimental Court Martial of having sold, or designedly, or through neglect, waited the Ammunition, Arms, or Provisions, or other Military Stores, delivered out to him to be employed in the service of this Colony, shall, if an Officer, be reduced to a Private Soldier; and if a Private Soldier, shall suffer such punishment as shall be ordered by a Regimental Court Martial.

Article 15th. All Non-Commissioned Officers or Soldiers, who shall be found one mile from the camp, without leave in writing from their Commanding Officer, shall suffer such punishment as shall be inflicted on him or them, by the sentence of a Regimental Court Martial.

Article 16th. No Officer or Soldier shall be out of his quarters, or camp, without leave from the Commanding Officers of his Regiment, upon penalty of being punished according to the nature of his offence, by order of a Regimental Court Martial.

Article 17th. Every Non-Commissioned Officer and Soldier shall retire to his quarters or tent at the beating the retreat; in default of which, he shall be punished according to the nature of his offence, by order of the Commanding Officer.

Article 18th. No Officer, Non-Commissioned Officer, or Soldier, shall fail of repairing at the time fixed, to the place of parade, of exercise, or other rendezvous, appointed by the Commanding Officer, if not prevented by sickness, or some other evident necessity, or shall go from the said place of rendezvous, or from his guard, without leave from his Commanding Officer, before he shall be regularly dismissed, or relieved, on penalty of being punished according to the nature of his offence, by the sentence of a Regimental Court Martial.

Article 19th. Whatsoever Commissioned Officer shall be found drunk upon his guard, party, or other duty under Arms, shall be cashiered for it; any Non-Commissioned Officer or Soldier so offending, shall suffer such punishment as shall be ordered by the sentence of a Regimental Court Martial.

Article 20th. Whatever Centinel shall be found sleeping upon his post, or shall leave it before he shall be regularly relieved, shall suffer such punishment as shall be ordered by the sentence of a General Court Martial.

Article 21st. Any person belonging to the Massachusetts Army, who, by discharging of Fire-Arms, beating of Drums, or by any other means whatever, shall occasion false alarms in camp or in quarters, shall suffer such punishment as shall be ordered by the sentence of a General Court Martial.

Article 22d. Any Officer or Soldier who shall, without urgent necessity, or without leave of his Superiour Officer, quit his platoon or division, shall be punished according to the nature of his offence, by the sentence of a Regimental Court Martial.

Article 23d. No Officer or Soldier shall do violence, or suffer any insult or abuse to any person who shall bring provisions or other necessities to the camp or quarters of the Massachusetts Army; any Officer or Soldier so offending, shall, upon complaint being made to the Commanding Officer, suffer such punishment as shall be ordered by a Regimental Court Martial.

Article 24th. Whatever Officer or Soldier shall shamefully abandon any post committed to his charge, or shall speak words inducing others to do the like in time of an engagement, shall suffer death immediately:

Article 25th. Any person belonging to the Massachusetts Army, who shall make known the watchword to any person who is not entitled to receive it, according to the rules and discipline of war, or shall presume to give a parole or watchword different from what he received, shall suffer death, or such other punishment as shall be ordered by a General Court Martial.

Article 26th. Whosoever, belonging to the Massachusetts Army, shall relieve the enemy with Money, Victuals, or Ammunition, or shall knowingly harbour and protect an enemy, shall suffer such punishment as by a General Court Martial shall be ordered.

Article 27th. Whosoever, belonging to the Massachusetts Army, shall be convicted of holding correspondence with, or giving intelligence to the enemy, either directly or indirectly, shall suffer such punishment as by a General Court Martial shall be ordered.

Article 28th. All Publick Stores taken in an enemy's camp, whether of Artillery, Ammunition, Clothing, or Provisions, shall be secured for the use of the Massachusetts Colony.

Article 29th. If any Officer or Soldier shall leave his post or colours in time of an engagement, to go in search of plunder, he shall, upon being convicted thereof before a General Court Martial, suffer such punishment as by said Court Martial shall be ordered.

Article 30th. If any Commander of any Post Intrenchment, or Fortess, shall be compelled by the Officers or Soldiers: under his command, to give it up to the enemy or to abandon it, the Commissioned Officers or Soldiers who shall be convicted of having so offended shall suffer death, or such other punishment as may be inflicted on them by the sentence of a General Court Martial.

Article 31st. All sellers and retailers to a camp, and all persons whatsoever serving with the Massachusetts Army in the field, though not entitled Soldiers, are to be subject to the Articles, Rules, and Regulations of the Massachusetts Army.

Article 32d. No General Court Martial shall consist of a less number than thirteen, none of which shall be under the degree of a Field Officer; and the President of each and every Court Martial, whether General or Regimental, shall have power to administer an oath to every witness, in order to the trial of offenders; and the Members of all Courts Martial shall be duly sworn by the President, and the next in rank on the Court Martial shall administer the oath to the President.

Article 33d. The Members both of General and Regimental Courts Martial shall, when belonging to different Corps, take the same rank which they hold in the Army; but when Courts Martial shall be composed of Officers of one Corps, they shall take rank according to their commissions, by which they are mustered in the said Corps.

Article 34th. All the Members of a Court Martial are to behave with calmness, decency, and impartiality, and in the giving of their votes, are to begin with the youngest or lowest in commission.

Article 35th. No Field Officers shall be tried by any person under the degree of a Captain; nor shall any proceeding or trial be carried on excepting between the hours of eight in the morning and three in the afternoon, except in cases which require an immediate example.

Article 36th. The Commissioned Officers of every Regiment may, by the appointment of their Colonel or Commanding Officer, hold Regimental Courts Martial for the inquiring into such disputes or criminal matters as may come before them, and for the inflicting corporeal punishments for small offences, and shall give judgment by the majority of voices; but no sentence shall be executed until the Commanding Officer, (not being a Member of the Court Martial) shall have confirmed the same.

Article 37th. No Regimental Court Martial shall consist of less than five Officers, excepting in case when that number cannot be conveniently assembled, when three may be sufficient, who are likewise to determine upon the sentence by the majority of voices, which sentence is to be confirmed by the Commanding Officer, not being a member of the Court Martial.

Article 38th. Any Officer commanding in Forts, Castles, or Barracks, or elsewhere, where the Corps under his command consists of detachments from different Regiments, or of independent Companies, may assemble Courts Martial for the trial of offenders in the same manner as if they were Regimental, whose sentence is not to be executed till it shall be confirmed by the said Commanding Officer.

Article 39th. No person whatsoever shall use menacing words, signs, or gestures, in the presence of a Court Martial then sitting, or shall cause any disorder or riot, so as to disturb their proceedings, on penalty of being punished at the discretion of said Court Martial.

Article 40th. To the end that offenders may be brought to justice, whenever any Officer or Soldier shall commit a crime deserving punishment, he shall, by his Commanding Officer, if an Officer, be put in arrest; if a Non-Commissioned Officer or Soldier, be imprisoned till he shall be either tried by a Court Martial, or shall be lawfully discharged by proper authority.

Article 41st. No Officer or Soldier who shall be put in arrest or imprisonment, shall continue in his confinement more than eight days, or till such time as a Court Martial can be conveniently assembled.

Article 42d. No Officer commanding a Guard or a Provost Martial, shall refuse to receive or keep any prisoner committed to his charge by any Officer belonging to the Massachusetts Forces; which Officer shall, at the same time, deliver an account in writing, signed by himself, of the crimes with which the said prisoner is charged.

Article 43d. No Officer commanding a Guard or Provost Martial shall presume to release any prisoner committed to his charge, without proper authority for so doing; nor shall he suffer any prisoner to escape on the penalty of being punished for it by the sentence of a General Court Martial.

Article 44th. Every Officer, or Provost Martial, to whose charge prisoners shall be committed, is hereby required, within twenty-four hours of such confinement, or as soon as he shall be released from his guard, to give in writing to the Colonel of the Regiment, to whom the prisoner belongs, (when the prisoner is confined upon the guard belonging to the said Regiment, and that his offence only relates to the neglect of duty in his own Corps,) or to the Commander-in-Chief, their names, their crimes, and the names of the Officers who committed them, on the penalty of his being punished for his disobedience or neglect, at the discretion of a General Court Martial.

Article 45th. And if any Officer under arrest shall leave his confinement before he is set at liberty by the Officer who confined him, or by a superiour power, he shall be cashiered for it.

Article 46th. Whatsoever Commissioned Officer shall be convicted before a General Court Martial of behaving in a scandalous, infamous manner, such as is unbecoming an Officer and a Gentleman, shall be discharged from the service.

Article 47th. All Officers, Conductors, Gunners, Matrosses, Drivers, or any other person whatever, receiving pay or hire in the service of the Massachusetts Artillery, shall be governed by the aforesaid Rules and Articles, and shall be subject to be tried by Courts Martial in like manner with the Officers and Soldiers of the Massachusetts Troops.

Article 48th. For differences arising amongst themselves, or in matters relating solely to their own Corps, the Courts Martial may be composed of their own Officers; but where a number sufficient cannot be assembled, or in matters wherein other Corps are interested, the Officers of Artillery shall sit in Courts Martial with the Officers of the other Corps.

Article 49th. All crimes not capital, and all disorders and neglects which Officers and Soldiers may be guilty of, to the prejudice of good order and military discipline, though not mentioned in the Articles of War, are to be taken cognizance of by a General or Regimental Court Martial, according to the nature and degree of the offence, and be punished at their discretion.

Article 50th. No Court Martial shall order any offenders to be whipped, or receive more than thirty-nine stripes for any one offence.

Article 51st. the Field Officers of each and every Regiment are to appoint some suitable person belonging to such Regiment to receive fall such fines as may arise within the same, for any breach of any of the foregoing Articles, and shall direct the same to be carefully and properly applied to the relief of such sick, wounded, or necessitous Soldiers as belong to such Regiment; and such person shall account with such Officer for all fines received and the application thereof.

Article 52d. All Members sitting in Courts Martial shall be sworn by the President of said Courts, which President shall himself be sworn by the Officer in said Court next in rank; the oaths to be administered previous to their proceeding to the trial of any Offender, in form following, viz:

You, A. B., swear that you will well and truly try, and impartially determine the cause of the prisoner now to be tried, according to the Rules for regulating the Massachusetts Army, so help you God.

Article 53d. All persons called to give evidence in any case before a Court Martial, who shall refuse to give evidence, shall be punished for such refusal, at the discretion of such Court Martial.

The Oath to be administered in the form following, viz:

You swear that the evidence you shall give in the case in hearing, shall be the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, so help you God.

Resolved, That the inhabitants of the Town of Northfield be desired, in consideration of the body indisposition of their Member, Mr. Ebenezer Jones, which prevents his attendance, to add one other Member to him in order that their Town may be represented in Congress, who are very desirous that the wisdom of the Province may be collected at this critical juncture of our publick affairs.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration the application of the Committee from Boston, and others, reported that the Papers lie on the table for further consideration at some future day.

Adjourned to three o'clock in the afternoon.

Afternoon.

Ordered, That the Committee on the State of the Province be directed to sit.

Congress adjourned until to-morrow morning, ten o'clock.

Thursday, April 6, 1775, A. M.

An application from the Committees of Inspection of Taunton, and all the other Towns in the County of Bristol, setting forth that General Gage had applied to five Justices in said County to provide Quarters for two hundred of his Majesty's Troops, which may be sent to the Town of Freetown:

Thereupon, Ordered, That Mr. Murray, Doctor Gunn, Colonel Pomeroy, Colonel Cushing, Mr. Freeman, Captain Holmes, and Mr. Watson, be a Committee to take the said application into consideration, and report thereon.

Adjourned until twelve o'clock, at noon.

Met and adjourned to four o'clock, P. M.

Afternoon,

The Committee appointed to take into consideration the application of all the Towns in the County of Bristol, reported; amended, and passed unanimously, and is as followeth, viz:

GENTLEMEN: Your very interesting letter of the 4th instant, directed to the President, has been early laid before us; heartily affected with the matters it contains, this Congress resolved on the immediate consideration of it. The part acted by Colonel Gilbert, respecting the common cause of America, since the commencement of its publick troubles, is sufficiently consonant to the tenour of his ordinary conduct so far as it has been the object of publick observation, and leaves no American room to hesitate in pronouncing him an inveterate enemy to his country, to reason, justice, and the common rights of mankind; and therefore whoever has knowingly espoused his cause, or takes up Arms for its support does, in common with himself, deserve to be instantly cut off from the benefit of commerce with, or countenance of, any friend of virtue, America, or the human race.

This Congress cannot but rejoice in the satisfactory evidence they have of the patriotism and publick spirit of the County of Bristol, and the vigilance of its inhabitants, over the manœuvres of the incendiaries among them; we are much pleased with their joint readiness, for their most vigorous exertions in this country's cause, and earnestly hope that their preparations will be pursued with unabated zeal, as the known resolutions of our publick enemies have at last necessitated the contemplations of a plan of general defence, in support of which the spirit and prowess of the County of Bristol may very soon be called up to the view of mankind.

We earnestly recommend to you, gentlemen, as guardians of the publick interest, to exert yourselves, that the Militia, and especially the Minute-men of your County, be found in the best posture of defence, whenever any exigence may require their aid. But the plans laid for the general good oblige us to request that whatever patience and forbearance it may require for the present, you would act on the defensive only until the further direction of this Congress.

And, therefore, though we could wish that a particular account of the conduct of Colonel Gilbert and his adherents, as well as of the King's Troops, whilst stationed among you, might be taken on sufficient evidence, in perpetuam rei memoriam, yet we could not advise to any measures, either with respect to said Gilbert and his banditti, or the King's Troops, that our enemies might plausibly interpret as a commencement of hostilities.

This Congress, however, are clearly of opinion, that whatever Justice of the Peace, or other person, in the County of Bristol, shall be active in providing Quarters or other supplies for the said Troops, or any others sent in like manner, will be considered by all America as aiding and assisting in the execution of the oppressive acts of the British Parliament, against which, as fundamentally destructive of the most invaluable rights and privileges of the Colonies, America has unitedly remonstrated.

In Provincial Congress, Concord, April 6, 1775.

Resolved, That the foregoing be signed by the President, in behalf of this Congress, and sent to the Committee of Inspection of the County of Bristol.

Ordered, That the application from the Selectmen of Billerica, and the application from the Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Boston, and others, be again committed to the Committee who had them under consideration, and reported that they lie on the table.

The Committee ordered to sit immediately.

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Friday, April 7, 1775, A.M.

Ordered, That Doctor Warren and Doctor Church be added to the Committee on the State of the Province.

Mr. Crane laid on the table a number of Letters which were sent to him from Stoughton, and said to be from Colonel Gilbert, and others.

Ordered, That Colonel Thomas, Mr. Devens, Mr. Crane, Mr. Gardner, and Doctor Perkins, be a Committee to take them into consideration and report; they reported as expedient that they be read.

Ordered, That the Committee on the State of the Province be directed to wait on the Honourable Governour Hopkins and the Honourable Governour Sessions, and congratulate them on their arrival to this Town, and hold a correspondence with them on the present state of our publick affairs.

The Committee appointed to consider on the application from Billerica, &c., reported; the Report amended, accepted, and is as follows, viz:

In Provincial Congress, April 7. 1775.

Resolved, That the following Letter be signed by the President, and directed to the Selectmen of Billerica:

GENTLEMEN: This Congress, deeply sensible of the high-handed insult offered to the Town of Billerica, the Colony of the Massachusetts Bay, and this Continent in general, in the vile and ignoble assault on the person of Thomas Ditson, by a party of the King's Troops, under General Gage's command, do highly approve of the manly and resolute conduct of the Town of Billerica, by their manifesting a due resentment to the General, and demanding constitutional satisfaction.

Notwithstanding you have not received that satisfaction from the General which you had a just-right to expect, yet this Congress humbly hope, under Providence, that the time is fast approaching, when this Colony and Continent will have justice done them, in a way consistent with the dignity of freemen, on such wicked destroyers of the natural and constitutional rights of Americans.

Gentlemen, we are confident that the Town of Billerica will still continue in the candid pursuit of peace and good order, which manifestly appears in their late conduct.

Ordered, That the Letters which have been received, or laid on the table by Mr. Crane, be sent to the Committee on the State of the Province:

Adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration the application from the Committee of Correspondence of Boston, and others, reported; the Report read, and accepted, and is as followeth, viz:

GENTLEMEN: Your Petition and Memorial of the 31st March we have received, since which intelligence of the most extraordinary nature from Great Britain has come to hand.

We are, gentlemen, much pleased with the spirit and sennment of your Memorial; but as the greatest and most important matters now demand our immediate attention, and the consideration of them will take up the most important matters in your Petition, we therefore most earnestly recommend to you, gendemen, as guardians of the publick interest, to exert yourselves, that the Militia and Minute-men of your Counties be found in the best posture of defence, whenever any exigence may require their aid; but as the plans laying for the general good oblige us to request that, whatever patience and forbearance it may require, you would act only on the defensive, until the further order of this Congress; and, therefore, though we could wish a particular account of the Ministers' Troops, while stationed among you, might be taken on sufficient evidence, yet we Could not advise to any measure respecting them that our enemies might plausibly interpret as a commencement of hostilities; but, on the contrary, let your characteristic be, as it always has been, conservators of peace and good order, and the just rights of mankind.

We most earnestly wish that the blessing of Heaven may accompany your laudable endeavours to preserve the publick weal of this Province. We remain, &c.

In Provincial Congress, April 7, 1775.

Resolved, That the foregoing Letter be signed by the President, in behalf of this Congress, and sent to the Committee of Correspondence of the Towns of Boston, Milton, Roxbury, Dorchester, Cambridge, Newton, Watertown, Lynn, Malden, Woburn, Charlestown, and Marlborough, directed to William Cooper, Clerk of said Committees of Correspondence.

Ordered, That Captain Osgood, Major Fuller, of Mid-dleton, and Mr. Webster, be added to the Committee appointed to disperse the Handbills, &c.

Adjourned until to-morrow morning, nine o'clock.

Saturday, April 8, 1775, A. M.

The Doorkeeper directed to call in the Members, and to call none out till the further order of this Congress.

The Committee on the State of the Province reported a Resolve relative to raising and establishing an Army, and that Committees be appointed forthwith to repair to Connecticut, Rhode-Island, and New-Hampshire, to inform them of our resolution, and desire their co-operation, &c.

Resolved, That the Report be considered in paragraphs.

Ordered, That the Members be enjoined to attend.

Adjourned to three o'clock, P. M.

Afternoon.

The Congress resumed the consideration of the Report made in the forenoon, which passed. Present, 103 Members; in favour, 96 - and is as follows:

In Provincial Congress, Concord. April 8, 1775.

Resolved, That the present dangerous and alarming situation of our public affairs, renders it necessary for this Colony to make preparations for their security and defence by raising and establishing an Army, and that Delegates be appointed forthwith to repair to Connecticut, to Rhode-Island, and New-Hampshire, informing them that we are contemplating upon, and are determined to take effectual measures for that purpose, and for the more effectual security of the New England Colonies and the Continent, to request them to co-operate with us, by furnishing their respective quotas for general defence.

Resolved, That there be sent two Delegates to each New-England Colony with the above Resolve.

Resolved, That the Congress choose, in the first place, Delegates to repair to Connecticut. Accordingly, chose Colonel Foster and Mr. Bliss.

Resolved, That they choose in the second place, Delegates to repair to Rhode-Island. Accordingly chose Colonel Timothy Walker and Doctor Perkins.

Resolved, That in the third place, the Congress choose Delegates to repair to New-Hampshire. Accordingly chose Mr. Freeman and Captain Osgood.

Ordered, That Mr. Gerry, Mr. Adams, and Captain Osgood, draught a Letter to each of the Colonies, viz: Connecticut, Rhode-Island, and New-Hampshire.

Resolved, That the Committee on the State of the Province take into consideration what number of men, in their opinion, will be necessary to be raised by the four New England Governments, for their general defence, and report.

Adjourned to Monday next, nine o'clock, A. M.

Monday, April 10, 1775, A. M.

The Committee appointed to draught a Letter to the Colonies of Connecticut, Rhode-Island, and New-Hampshire, reported; the Report read, and accepted, and is as follows:

In Provincial Congress, Concord, April 10, 1775.

SIR, (OR GENTLEMEN:) In consideration of the measures that have been taken by the British Administration to subjugate the North American Colonies; the rapidity with Which their plans have been hitherto executed; the late very alarming intelligence from Great Britain; the false and inflammatory accounts that have been laid before our Sovereign and his Parliament, to induce them to consider this Colony as in a state of rebellion, and our sister Colonies as countenancing us therein, and the violent measures that are ordered in consequence thereof, together with the daily and hourly preparations that are making by the Troops, under the command of General Gage, in Boston, this Congress have come to a full conclusion that very little, if any expectation of the redress of our common and intolerable grievances is to be had from the humble and dutiful Petition and other wise measures of the late Honourable Continental Congress, and therefore have come into certain Resolutions, to be communicated to you by Delegates appointed for that purpose, in which they are earnestly desirous of the concurrence of your Colony.

Wishing that the American Colonies may, at this important crisis, be under the direction of Heaven, I am, in the name and by order of the Congress.

Ordered, That the foregoing be signed by the President, in the name and behalf of this Congress.

Ordered, That the Committee on the State of the Province take into consideration and report what number of men, in their opinion, will be necessary for the Army prepared to be raised.

Resolved, That there be three added to the Delegates appointed to repair to the neighbouring Governments, and that this Congress choose them at three o'clock this afternoon, by ballot.

Adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

The Order of the Day moved for.

Ordered, That Major Fuller, Captain Greenleaf, and Mr. Ellis, be a Committee to count and sort the votes for the gentlemen to be added to the Delegates appointed to repair to Connecticut, Rhode-Island, and New-Hampshire; and that they bring in the votes for a gentleman to repair to Connecticut.

Having sorted the votes, reported that the Honourable Timothy Danielson, Esquire, was chosen.

Ordered, That votes be brought in for a gentleman to be added to the Delegates appointed to repair to Rhode-Island.

After couniing and sorting the votes, reported that the Houourable James Warren, Esquire, was chosen.

Ordered, That votes be brought in for a gentleman to be added to the Delegates appointed to repair to New-Hampshire.

After counting and sorting the votes, reported that Mr. Elbridge Gerry was chosen.

Ordered, That the Committee on the State of the Province be directed to draught such Instructions as they shall think necessary to be given to the Delegates appointed to repair to the neighbouring Governments, and report.

The Committee on the State of the Province reported a Resolve relative to exercising the Minute-men in Battalion, and that they be paid out of the Publick Treasury, &c.

Ordered, That the consideration of this Report be deferred until to-morrow morning, ten o'clock.

Adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Tuesday, April 11, 1775, A. M.

The Committee on the State of the Province reported Instructions to the Delegates appointed to repair to Connecticut, &c.; read, and accepted, and Ordered, That it be signed by the President, and is as follows:

In Provincial Congress, Concord, April 11, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The thorough knowledge you have of our publick affairs, and the distressed circumstances of this devoted Province, makes it unnecessary, to be particular in any instructions with regard to the important trust committed to your care.

We would, notwithstanding, in general, give you some hints which may serve to cement and continue that union which has so happily taken place in this Continent. In order to effect these desirable ends, that as soon as may be, you repair to Connecticut, and endeavour to obtain such an early conference with the Governour and Company of that Colony, as the pressing exigencies of our affairs may demand; and as an immediate exertion of our united efforts to recover and maintain those invaluable blessings ofliberty which are in part wrested from us by the hands of arbitrary power, and of which we have no other prospect of a restoration under God, but by the firm and unshaken resolutions and conduct of Americca; and that as Ministerial vengeance appears to be levelled at the Northeast Colonies in particular, it is of the utmost importance that immediate measures (such as is consonant with the union of all the Colonies) be pursued for their mutual defence; and that you would endeavour to obtain an explicit and full answer, so that we may unitedly exert our strength in the common cause for the salvation of our country; and to this end we would recommend your continuance there until this important purpose may be effected, which we presume will be as soon as circumstances will admit. You will, however, govern yourselves with respect to time and conferences, as to you in your wisdom shall seem meet; and may God bless your endeavours for the common good.

Ordered, That the Letter to New-Hampshire be directed to the Honourable John Wentworth, Esquire.

A Letter from Mr. Barber read;

Thereupon, Ordered, That it be committed to Doctor Holten, Mr. Sargeant, and Colonel Pomeroy, to consider thereof, and report.

The Committee thereon reported, verbally, that Colonel Thompson be desired immediately to repair to Brunswick, Casco Bay, Woolwich, Georgetown, and other places, and take the most effectual measures to acquaint the people that one Mr. Perry is in the eastern part of the country, endeavouring to supply our enemies with Masts, Spars, and Timber, and to make use of all proper and effectual measures to prevent their aiding him in procuring said articles.

Moved, That the propriety of this Congress advising the inhabitants of the Town of Boston to be moved from thence, be now taken into consideration.

After a long debate thereon,

Resolved, That a Committee be appointed to take into consideration the particular state of the Town of Boston. and report.

Accordingly Mr. Sargeant, Mr. Murray, Colonel Henshaw, Captain Stone, Mr. Cross, Major Fuller, of Middleton, Doctor Taylor, and Colonel Prescott, were chosen.

Ordered, That Mr. Murray be joined to the Committee on the State of the Province.

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Wednesday, April 12, 1775, A. M.

The Committee on the State of the Province reported a Resolve relative to appointing County Committees to receive returns from the Committees of Correspondence of the state of their Towns, &c.; read, and accepted, and is as follows:

In Provincial Congress, Concord, April 12, 1775.

Whereas, the preservation of our country from slavery depends, under God, on an effectual execution of the Continental and Provincial measures for that purpose:

Resolved, That there be now appointed for each County in this Colony a Committee, consisting of five persons, any three of whom to be a quorum, whose business it shall be to receive from the Committees of Correspondence in their respective Towns, a state of the conduct of the Towns and Districts with respect to their having executed the Continental and Provincial plans, as aforesaid; and it shall be the duty of said Committees to meet on the first Wednesday's of May, July, September, November, January, and March, and prepare a report of the same, to be laid before the Congress at its then next session, that any neglect of such Towns and Districts in executing such plans, may be speedily and effectually remedied.

Also, Resolved, That it be, and it hereby is strongly recommended to the Committees of Correspondence in the several Towns and Districts in this Colony, some time before the first Wednesday in May, July, September, November, January, and March, aforesaid, to render to any one of the Members of their County aforesaid, a true state of the conduct of their respective Towns and Districts, with respect to their having used each plan, recommended by the Continental and Provincial Congresses, and use their utmost diligence for this important purpose.

And whereas some Towns and Districts in this Colony may be destitute of so excellent an institution as Committees of Correspondence,

Resolved, That it be, and hereby is, strongly recommended to such Towns and Districts forthwith to choose Committees of Correspondence, and to afford them assistance at all times in effectually suppressing the efforts of the enemies of America whenever they shall make them.

It is further Resolved, That the County Committees are hereby required to render their Account quarterly to this Congress, that they may receive an order therefor on the Publick Treasury of the Colony.

Resolved, That at three o'clock, this afternoon, the Congress will come to the choice of the County Committees.

Resolved, That the Members from each County be together, and agree on the gentlemen to constitute their County Committee.

The Congress renewed their consideration of the Report of the Committee on the State of the Province, relative to exercising the Minute-men in Battalions, and paying them for the time they spend in that service.

After a long debate, the question was put whether the Report be accepted, and passed in the negative.

Adjourned to three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon.

The Order of the Day moved for.

Ordered, That Mr. Devens, Captain Rawson, and Colonel Davis, be a Committee to distribute the Handbills.

Ordered, That the Committee be enjoined to sit and complete the business.

An application from the Plantation of New-Providence, read, committed to Colonel Dwight, Captain Goodridge, Colonel Pomeroy, Colonel Patterson, and Mr. Crane.

Adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Thursday, April 13, 1775, A.M.

Ordered, That the last Resolve in the Report, which was last night ordered to be published, be not printed.

The Committee on the State of the Province reported a Resolve, engaging six Companies of the Train, and keeping them constantly in exercise, and their paying them, &c.; read, considered, and accepted, and is as follows:

In Provincial Congress, Concord, April 13, 1775.

Resolved, That the Committee of Safety be directed to engage a suitable number of persons and form six Companies of Train for the Artillery, already provided by this Colony, to immediately enter on discipline, and constantly be in readiness to enter the service of the Colony when an Army shall be raised; and that the Committee be, and they are hereby empowered to draw on the Publick Treasury for paying said Companies a suitable consideration for their services.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration the propriety of removing the inhabitants from the Town of Boston, reported. The consideration thereof deferred until three o'clock this afternoon.

Afternoon,

The Congress resumed the consideration of the Report defended; after a long debate thereon,

Ordered, That it be recommitted.

Adjourned to nine o'clock to-morrow morning.

Friday, April 14, 1775, A. M.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration the Petition from the Plantation called New-Providence, reported; the Report was read, and accepted, and is as follows, viz:

In Provincial Congress, Concord, April 14, 1775.

Resolved, That Major Joseph Bennett be advised to pay Henry Gardner, Esquire, the full sum assessed on the Plantation of New-Providence, for the year 1774, taking a proper and suitable receipt of said Henry Gardner, for the Collector appointed by the Town of Lainsborough, to collect said sum, and that said Collector be advised to discharge the several persons' proportion of said Tax in said Plantation, and collect the same.

Per order of Committee,

SIMEON DWIGHT, Chairman.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration the removal of the inhabitants of the Town of Boston, reported; which Report was accepted, and is as follows, viz:

In Provincial Congress, Concord, April 14, 1775.

Whereas, the late accounts of the hostile intentions of the British Parliament towards this Colony, have so greatly agitated the minds and raised the fears of many good people in the Town of Boston, as to induce many of those who are able to remove with their effects into the country, which, in the opinion of this Congress, is a prudent step; and as there is no prospect of the repeal of the cruel Port Bill, whereby many poor industrious persons, if continued in that place, must be still great sufferers, notwithstanding the generous donations; and as the season of the year is now approaching in which they may be, in some measure, serviceable to themselves and families in such parts of the country as can find them employment in their several occupations,

It is therefore recommended to the Committee of Donations that they afford to such poor persons, who are anxious to remove themselves and families into the Country, such assistance as may enable them to do it, Voted, That the Members of the Town of Boston be desired to communicate this recommendation with the schedule to the Committee of Donations.

The Committee on the State of the Province reported a Resolve relative to appointing a Committee to apply to a suitable number of persons to be in readiness to enter the Service of this Colony as Officers, when an Army shall be raised.

Ordered, That the consideration thereof be referred to three o'clock, P. M.

Ordered, That at four o'clock, P. M., the Congress will come to the choice, by ballot, of a person to serve on the Committee of Safety, instead of Doctor Fisher, who was excused.

Adjourned to three o'clock, P. M.

Afternoon.

The Congress resumed the consideration of the Report referred, agreeably to the Order of the Day. After some debate thereon, it passed, and is as follows, viz:

In Provincial Congress, Concord, April 14, 1775.

Resolved, That a Committee be now appointed to apply to a suitable number of persons, to be in readiness to enter the service of this Colony to act as Field Officers. Such Field Officers, in conjunction with the Committee, to apply to proper persons as Captains, and they to determine on such Subaltern Officers as may be necessary for each Regiment, when an Army shall be raised; the Committee and Officer, ceteris paribus, to give the preference to persons who have been chosen Officers in the Regiments of Minute-men.

Ordered, That the Committee of Safety be the Committee to apply to a suitable number of persons to act as Officers, as recommended in the foregoing Resolve.

Ordered, That the Congress now proceed to the choice of a gentleman to serve on the Committee of Safety, in the place of Mr. Fisher.

Ordered, That Mr. Cushing, Colonel Palmer, and Mr. Bigelow, be a Committee to count and sort the votes. - Reported that Colonel Thomas Gardner was chosen.

Ordered, That the Reverend Mr. Murray, Mr. Mayhew, and Colonel Pomeroy, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve, recommending a day of Fasting and Prayer.

Ordered, That the Committee on the State of the Province, take the late Newspapers from England into consideration, and report what there is relating to this Province.

Adjourned to ten o'clock to-morrow morning.

Saturday, April 15, 1775, A. M.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve recommending a day of Fasting and Prayer, reported; amended, and accepted, and is as follows, viz:

Whereas, it hath pleased the Righteous Sovereign of the Universe, in just indignation against the sins of a people long blessed with inestimable privileges, civil and religious, to suffer the plots of wicked men on both sides of the Atlantic, who for many years have incessantly laboured to sap the foundation of our publick liberties, so far to succeed, that we see the New England Colonies reduced to the ungrateful alternative of a tame submission to a state of absolute vassalage to the will of a despotick Minister, or of preparing themselves speedily to defend, at the hazard of their lives, the unalienable rights of themselves and posterity, against the avowed hostilities of their parent state, who openly threaten to wrest them from their hands by fire and sword.

In circumstances dark as these, it becomes us as men and Christians, to reflect, that whilst every prudent measure should be taken to ward off the impending judgment, or prepare to act a proper part under them when they come; at the same time, all confidence must be withheld from the means we use, and repose only on that God who rules in the Armies of Heaven, and without whose blessing the best human councils are but foolishness, and all created power vanity.

It is the happiness of this Church, that when the power of Earth and Hell combine against it, and those who should be nursing Fathers become its persecutors, then the Throne of Grace is of the easiest access, and its appeal thither is graciously invited by that Father of Mercies who has assured it, that "when his children ask bread, he will not give them a stone." Therefore, in compliance with the laudable practice of the people of God, in all ages, with humble regard to the steps of Divine Providence toward this oppressed, threatened, and endangered people, and especially in obedience to the command of Heaven, that binds us to call on Him in the day of trouble:

Resolved, That it be, and hereby is recommended to the good people of this Colony of all denominations, that Thursday, the eleventh day of May next, be set apart as a day of Publick Humiliation, Fasting and Prayer; that a total abstinence from servile labour and recreation be observed, and all their Religious Assemblies solemnly convened, to humble themselves before God, under the heavy judgments felt and feared; to confess the sins that have deserved; to implore the forgiveness of all our transgressions; a spirit of repentance and reformation; and a blessing on the Husbandry, Manufactures, and other lawful employments of this people; and especially, that the union of the American Colonies in defence of their rights, (for which, hitherto, we desire to thank Almighty God,) may be preserved and confirmed; that the Provincial, and especially that the Continental Congresses, may be directed to such measures as God will countenance; that the people of Great Britain and their Rulers may have their eyes open, to discern the things that shall make for the peace of the Nation and all its connections; and that America may soon behold a gracious interposition of Heaven, for the redress of her many grievances, the restoration of all her invaded liberties, and their security to the latest generations.

Ordered, That the foregoing be copied, authenticated, and sent to all the Religious Assemblies in this Colony.

Ordered, That Mr. Devens, Mr. Cheever, and Mr. Stephen Hall, be a Committee to get the Resolves printed and dispersed.

Adjourned to three o'clock in the afternoon.

Afternoon.

In Provincial Congress, Concord, 15th April, 1775.

Resolved, That Henry Gardner, Esquire, Receiver General of the Province of the Massachusetts Bay, be, and hereby is directed to pay to Messrs. Edes and Gill, Printers, the sum of thirty-six Pounds, six Shillings, and nine Pence, lawful money, for printing for said Province to the 27th of March last.

In Provincial Congress, Concord, 15th April, 1775.

Resolved, That Henry Gardner, Esquire, Receiver General of the Province of the Massachusetts Bay, be, and hereby is directed to pay to Richard Devens, the sum of eleven Pounds, nineteen Shillings, and six Pence, Half-Penny, for sundry accounts by him paid and discharged, for services done for the said Province.

In Provincial Congress, Concord, 15th April, 1775.

Resolved, That Henry Gardner, Esquire, Receiver General of the Province of the Massachusetts Bay, be, and hereby is directed to pay unto Jeremiah Hunt, the sum of four Pounds, four Shillings, for his attendance as Doorkeeper, and for Paper and Quills by him furnished, for the use of the Congress.

Ordered, That Henry Gardner, Esquire, Colonel Barret, and Colonel Henshaw, be a Committee to wait on the Reverend Mr. Emerson, and return him the thanks of this Congress for his faithful attendance on, and especially for officiating as their Chaplain during this session.

Ordered, That the same Committee be directed to wait on the Committee of the Proprietors of this House, and return the thanks of this Congress for the use thereof.

Ordered, That on the return of the Members to their respective Towns, they use their interest with the inhabitants thereof, that they immediately pay their publick moneys to Henry Gardner, Esquire, Receiver General of this Colony.

Ordered, That the Members use their interest to promote the Military discipline.

Resolve for adjournment passed, and is as follows:

Resolved, That this Congress be adjourned from this day, to Wednesday, the 10th day of May next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to meet at Concord, in the County of Middlesex. And considering the great uncertainty of the present times, and that important unforeseen events may take place, from whence it may be absolutely necessary that this Congress should meet sooner than the day above mentioned, notwithstanding the adiournment aforesaid:

It is further Resolved, That the Members of this Congress for the Towns of Charlestown, Cambridge, Brookline, Roxbury, and Dorchester, or a majority of them, be, and they are hereby authorized, in case they should judge it necessary, to give notice to the several Members of this Congress, in such way as they shall think proper, to meet at Concord aforesaid, at any earlier day than the abovesaid

At a Meeting of the Committee of Safety, at Concord, April 1st, 1775, Voted, That the Stores at Concord and elsewhere shall not be removed, without written orders from the Committee of Safety.

CONSIDERATIONS ON THE MEASURES CARRYING ON WITH RESPECT TO THE BRITISH COLONIES IN NORTH AMERICA. *

No one knows how far every person in Britain may be interested in the event of the measures now carrying on

* The author of this Pamphlet, who, it is said is the eldest brother of the celebrated Mrs. Montague, is a very able and spirited advocate for the Colonies; discussing with great strength of argument the claim of Taxation, and the danger of enforcing it, even though the contest should be in our favour. We will not injure it by an abridgment, but heartily recommend the dispassionate consideration of the with respect to our Colonies in North America. This seems to entitle any man, on account of his own stake therein, to speak his sentiments on the subject. The concern of the community gives to them likewise for the better security, a claim that every opinion may be offered for whole to all our Statesmen and Senators, to all who have it in their power by lenient measures to avert the evils which Mr. Robinson, without the spirit of prophecy, prognosticates. At all events, his name, and that of Bishop Shepley, will ever be held in honour in America, and we shall not wonder if their busts are placed by the side of the statues of Lords Chatham and Camden. - Gent. Mag.

consideration. These things result from the nature of a free society, and particularly from the Constitution of Great Britain, where the people choose one part of the Legislature, and where every man is supposed to have ultimately a share in the government of his country.

One point in dispute between us and the Americans is, the right of taxing them here at home. This may be said to concern the power of our Parliament; but so does every general proposition of right and wrong. When any thing is affirmed to be unjust, does not it include and is not it almost synonymous to the saying, that a law made to enforce it would be so too, and beyond the proper power of a Legislature? Vengeance and punishment do, in the course of things, assuredly pursue States and Nations for their oppression and injustice; against the commission of which it is beyond question the right of every member of the community to warn the rest.

I say it with submission, but the power of the Parliament is the right of the publick. The particular Members of that most respectable body are, in the statutes enacted by them, no more personally interested than the rest of their countrymen. These pass through their hands, but being so passed, they are themselves bound to obey them in common with others. They are, indeed, our trustees and guardians in that high office, but they will on that account be the more inclined, that every step taken or to be taken by them should be fully and carefully examined, like all other honest men earnest for the interest of those whose concerns are committed to their care.

A consideration of the measures now proposed may likewise possibly lead towards some nice and delicate conjunctures or circumstances, whether of the present time or of that to come. But it need not be said that the writer only finds the one and guesses at the other; they depend on an author much higher than Princes or their Ministers, but who is pleased to suffer the actions of these to have most essential effects in the producing them. What can then be a more fit means to induce a due reflection on our proceedings, and to insure from them a desirable success, than to lay before the publick or the Governours of it some possible consequences of their conduct?

We have not far to seek for the cause of the present situation of things between the mother country and our Colonies of North America; of the opposition and disturbances on the one hand, and of the violent laws, motions, and preparations on the other. These all undoubtedly proceed from our having taxed those Colonies without their consent. A perfect affection and union obtained between us until this was done; that attempt immediately stirred up animosity and opposition. However, these subsided, and peace and satisfaction were again restored on our staying our hands. We are now once more come back to the charge, and the spirit of discord seems likewise returned seven time stronger than it was before. Other broils and contests may, and many no doubt will arise from this cause, should it proceed; but this is the origin, the spring, and the source.

The right itself of this measure is in question, as well as the expediency of it; I will therefore presume to say something to that proposition. the inhabitants of our Colonies in North America are supposed to consist of about two millions of persons. They occupy and possess a very extensive territory, much larger than Great Britain; they are not themselves the original people of the country, but they now stand in their place; they have, in general, been born and bred there, however they receive likewise yearly from other places many who mix themselves with them; they have divided themselves into several different Governments; they have, according to certain rules or laws, agreed upon among them, allotted every man his own; they have felled the forests; they have cleared and tilled the land - they have planted it - they have sown it - they have stocked it with cattle; they have built themselves houses; they have entered into exchange and commerce; they have spared and saved for a future day or for their families; they have by many and various means acquired many and various sorts of property; they are by nature entitled to welfare and happiness, and to seek and pursue those blessings by all the methods not attended with fraud or violence towards others, which they shall believe the most probable to procure or ensure them; they have, for that end, a right to freedom in their Governments, and to security in their persons and properties. None are warranted to deprive or dispossess them of these things. Should, on the contrary, one man or a body of men, advance any claim which tended to enslave all the persons, or to unsettle all the property of this great community, to divest them of every thing which they possess, and to leave them nothing which they could call their own, of all that they have thus inherited, earned, or acquired; the very enormity, the evil and unnatural consequences of such a proposition would, of themselves, sufficiently shew its absurdity, weakness, and unreasonableness.

These are all either primary, essential inherent rights of human nature, or such as do with respect to persons in the situation before described, necessarily flow and follow from them. Those were conferred upon them by the great Author of their being, when he was pleased to endow them with the faculties of men; with the perception of good and evil; with the means of self-preservation and self-defence; with the organs of reason and of speech, and with a capacity to associate themselves for their mutual protection and support. They are common to all mankind; they subsist at all times, in all regions, and all climates: in Turkey, in Spain, in France, in Old England and in New, in Europe, and in America; whenever and wherever a number of men are found to be the objects of them. I don't mean that they are in all these places always, or at this time, possessed and enjoyed as they ought to be; but they are to answer for that who do so commonly employ to the enslaving and oppressing of mankind, the powers which these entrust only for their protection and defence. However, this is only abuse, violence, and injustice; the right nevertheless subsists and remains.

It is not on this subject necessary to enter into any minute detail of reasoning, or long and learned discourse on the law of nature. These principles are with us common and publick; they are founded on the good, the welfare, and the happiness of mankind. They were the principles of our ancestors, of our grandfathers, and of our fathers. They may not, perhaps, be at present in their full vigour, however, I trust, that they are not yet so worn out or lost from among us, but that they still remain the principles of the Nation. They are, to describe them by a word well known in our language, the principles of Whigs; whereby I don't, however, mean of certain modern Whigs, who seem more fond of the word than of any thing belonging to the character; who have, perhaps, at one time or other of their lives, counteracted all the measures and contradicted all the principles that ever did honour to the name - but I mean of Whigs before the Revolution and at the time of it; I mean the principles which such men as Mr. Locke, Lord Molesworth, and Mr. Trenchard, maintained with their pens; Mr. Hampden and Lord John Russell with their blood, and Mr. Algernon Sydney with both; names which must surely, by all Englishmen, be ever revered, as those of some of the first among men. But let me add, that they are not only the principles of speculative students in their closets, or of great but unfortunate men whom their zeal and virtue have lead to martyrdom for the liberties of their country and the welfare of mankind; but that they are likewise the real principles of our present actual Government, the principles of the Revolution, and those on which are established the throne of the King, and the settlement of the illustrious family now reigning over us.

On the same principles rest both in general many rights of the Americans, and in particular the right now before us. These are hereby involved and interwoven with our highest and most sacred concerns. We cannot lift up our hands to take them away without forfeiting our national character; without renouncing the tenets and maxim whereon we have, on our most important and critical occasions ever acted as a People; without declaring that we claim a right to resist and oppose all those who oppress us ourselves, and at the same time to trample upon and tyrannize over all others, where we hope that we have the power to do it with impunity.

But it may be said that these are, indeed, in themselves, very true and commendable opinions; but that they are here introduced on subjects not worthy of them, a duty of a few Shillings upon some sorts of Paper or Parchment, and of a few Pence upon a pound of Tea. Let us, therefore, more particularly consider the nature of the claim and pretension in question. Suppose, then, one person to have in his pocket an hundred Pounds, but another to have the right to take it from him and to put it into his own pocket, or to do with it what he pleases, to whom does that money belong? This needs no answer. Suppose the sum to be a thousand or ten thousand Pounds? That makes no difference. Suppose one person to have a right to demand of another not only one certain sum or what he has about him, but as much as he pleases and as often? This goes to the all of that other. But suppose not one single person only to be subject to such demands from one other, but a number of men, a Colony, or any other community to be so subject to the demands of some other society. What then? Why, then, that will go in like manner to their all. This seems to be so evident, that whoever shall multiply words on the subject, will hardly do it for the sake of being convinced.

But is this case that of the Americans; for if it is said that the money raised on them is to be employed for their own benefit, in their civil service or military defence? let me ask then, Who are in their case to determine, whether any money is at all wanted for such purposes, they who pay it, or they who take it? They who take it. Who are to determine the quantity wanted? They who take it. Who are to determine how often it is wanted? They who take it. Who are to determine whether it is really laid out in the purposes pretended? They who take it. Suppose the Americans should be of opinion, or declare that the money so raised is used not for their advantage, but the contrary, Is that a bar to the raising? No. Suppose them to complain that the money pretended to be laid out in their Civil service is given to corrupt their Governours or Judges, Is that a bar to the raising? No. Suppose them to signify that the money alleged to be used in their Military defence is employed in paying Troops to enslave them, and which they had rather be without, Is that a bar to the raising? No. Wherein, then, does this differ from will and pleasure in the most absolute sense?

This claim affects, therefore, most clearly, the all of the Americans. Two millions of people, subject to twelve different Governments or more, and inhabiting, possessing, and being masters of a country exceedingly larger than that of those who make the claim, or in whose name it is made, have, on this ground, no property at all, nothing which they can truly call their own, nothing but what may at any time be demanded of them, but what they may be deprived of without and against their will and consent. It cannot, therefore, surely be made a question, whether or no this is a matter of such a magnitude as to deserve the most serious discussion? But it might here be, without further words, left to the immediate determination of every man, whether it is on the one hand a reasonable ground whereon to put into confusion all the parts of the British Empire, to throw the mother country and her North American Colonies into the most deadly feuds, and perhaps a direct war with one another; or whether it is not, on the other hand, a proposition inconsistent with the essential laws of nature, subversive of the first and inherent rights of humanity, contrary to the principles whereon our forefathers defended, and under the sanction of which they have, through many civil wars, and with the deposition, banishment, and change of many Princes, delivered down to us the rights and properties which Englishmen now enjoy.

But it is in this dispute very often represented, that a total and absolute dependence on the British Parliament, without any exception whatsoever, either with regard to Taxes or any other, is liberty itself; it is British liberty, which is the best of liberty. I answer, who says otherwise in the case of us, who choose that Parliament; but that in some other cases this position may perhaps be more liable to question. Our North American Colonies are, as to their internal constitution, a very free people - as free as the Venetians, the Dutch, or the Swiss, or perhaps more so than any of them. This proceeds from their Assemblies being not only the nominal but the real Representatives of those whom they govern. These are elected fairly, fully, and often. In these Assemblies their liberty consists, and it is certainly true and genuine. But change the scene a little; let any one Colony be taxed and governed not by their own but by the Assembly of another, what is then become of this their genuine liberty? It is lost and gone with their own Assembly. Let all the Colonies be so subjected to the Assembly of some one among them. That won't mend the matter. Let us take a larger scale. Suppose this power over them to be lodged in the Parliament of Ireland. We are never the nearer. Let us come toward home. Were the Kingdom of Ireland under the taxation and direction of the British Parliament, would they then think themselves to be very free? For an answer to this question, inquire of one of that country. Place, then, the Irish under one of the Assemblies before mentioned; they would be yet further from home, and it might not be better with them. Let us take our own turn. Suppose Great Britain, on the like conditions, under the Parliament of Ireland. God forbid. I think that I have but one more point, before that I am at an end of my combination. Place over our heads, with all these powers in their full force, the Assembly of Massachusetts Bay, what then? I fancy that we should soon change a certain language, and sing another song, than what we do at present. Let me then most seriously question any man, from whose breast all candour and justice are not totally banished, where is as to liberty or property the difference between any of the cases now supposed and that original one which has given occasion to them? I speak this no otherwise than with the utmost reverence and respect towards our own Legislature; but are we to conceive, or would it be a compliment to them, or does any one mean to say that they are not men, or that they are to be excepted and exempted from the reasons and the rules which obtain and take place in the case of all the rest of mankind?

One of the long robe may, perhaps, demand the exact time when these rights begin, in rising and growing states, to take place, and how many years, months, and days a Colony must be first settled. I may venture to promise to resolve such an one, when he shall tell me in how many years, months, and days an oaken plant grows to be an oaken tree, or a boy becomes a man; which seem to be two much easier questions. The boundaries are seldom nicely distinguishable, where nature proceeds with an even and constant hand. But it is not difficult to answer that the event has already taken place, when near two millions of people are in full and peaceable possession of such a country as is occupied by our North American Colonies.

It may likewise be asked, whether these laws are applicable to all cases of private property between man and man. But the full resolution of this question might demand a Spanish casuist, or a book as big as a volume of our Statutes at large. Any man may for me amuse himself with trying the titles of Nations to the territories and possessions which they fill, enjoy, and inhabit, as he would do those between man and man about a house and garden; and should the process in the first case last as long in proportion as one does in the latter before some Courts of Justice in Europe, the defendants need not perhaps desire a longer or surer possession.

But may not these principles go far, if carried to the extent? That is, indeed, a very serious question, and perhaps well worthy of consideration. Our Colonies are content that we should, at our pleasure, regulate their trade, provided that what we do is bona-fide, really, truly, and sincerely for that purpose, and that only; but they deny that we shall tax them. They assent and agree to the first, but they absolutely refuse the last. These two different points do likewise not stand on the same foundation; they have to the one submitted ever since their origin; it has been corroborated by their perpetual and constant consent and acquiescence; the other is a novelty, against which they have, from its first attempt, most strongly protested and acted. Why cannot we, therefore, content us with the line drawn by themselves, and with the present establishment, from which we receive such prodigious benefit and advantage, now arising and yearly increasing? But may not they in time extend their objections to this also? The course of things, and the flux of years, will certainly produce very many things more extraordinary than that. All the whole of our Colonies must, do doubt, one day, without force or violence, fall off from the parent state, like ripe fruit in the maturity of time. The earth itself, having had a beginning, cannot but decay likewise, pass away, and have an end. But why should we be over-curious about objects perhaps very far remote, and disturb ourselves about a futurity which does not affect us, and the distance of which we don't know nor can divine. Why should we shake the fruit unripe from the tree, because it will of course drop off when it shall in due season have become fit and ripe for that purpose? Every time has its own circumstances, according to which the events of it must be provided for when they happen. That cannot now be done. New and unreasonable demands, injustice, oppression, violence on our parts, will forward and hasten these events even before their time. Let us withhold our hands from these things. We have never yet, on this subject, had reason to boast ourselves of such expedients; nor, let me add, ever to repent us of the contrary conduct. There are, no doubt, in all Governments, many most important points unsettled and undetermined; such in particular as relate to the limits between the power of the Sovereign and the obedience of the Subject. This must always be the case between Kings and their People, principal States and their dependencies, mother countries and their Colonies. It is very much the part of every prudent Ruler, whether the first Minister of a Prince or any other, to avoid with the utmost care and solicitude all measures which may possibly bring any such critical circumstances into public debate and dispute. It is always a bad sign when such contests arise; they cannot do so without the disorder of the whole, but they are to the Sovereign, in particular ever dangerous, and often fatal. They may, perhaps, be compared to Gunpowder, than whose grain nothing is more harmless while it is at rest, but let it by the application of fire be put into action, and it will make the wildest ravages all around or overthrow the strongest bulwarks and fortifications. To how many of these questions did our Charles the First give in his time rise or occasion, and how dearly did he abide it! How many points of this sort are undetermined between Great Britain and Ireland, which are now to our mutual comfort entirely dormant, but which started and pursued with obstinacy and eagerness, might make one or both of the Islands to run with blood. They need, perhaps, be no further looked for than certain doctrines formerly advanced by Mr. Molyneux on the one hand, and the Law of Poinings on the other. But it has pleased Providence to shelter us hitherto from this mischief. Many months are not perhaps passed, since we did not want an opportunity to have engaged in one such. The alterations of a late Bill from that country were only accidental. However, does any one doubt, whether some forward man might not have been found who would have furnished reasons better or worse to maintain the claim of making them, if such an one had been sought for. But how much more prudent was our conduct on the occasion? If peace and harmony are then so beneficial and desirable between Great Britain and Ireland, and the measures producing or insuring them good, upright, and wise, why do these things alter their nature when they are applied to America? The present accursed question between us and our Colonies, how long was it unknown or unthought of? Who heard of it, from the first rise of those settlements until a very few years ago, that a fatal attempt forced it into notice and importance? But it is now already setting at work fleets and armies; it threatens the confusion and perhaps the destruction of both countries, and but too probably of one of them, although God only knows whether the calamity will fall on that of the two, which many men may now imagine and believe to be the most in danger. This point is not alone; there are other questions of the same sort, concerning which no man now disturbs himself, but which stirred and started by new demands, or any other means, might in like manner, band against one another, Great Britain and its Colonies. Princes and States never do better than when their claims are not fathomed, nor, if I may use the expression, the bottom of them over-curious-sounded and examined. The terms of Municipal Laws usually favour the Sovereign; they are often framed or drawn by his creatures and dependants. The law of nature is more commonly in support of the people and the publick; it is the production of Him who sees with an equal eye Prince and Subject, high and low, European and American. God forbid that two such parts of the British Empire as the mother country and her Colonies should, in our times, divide and contend against one another on the sanction of these two different laws, which ought, in every state, to be constantly blended and united, and which can never, without the utter disorder and confusion thereof, be made to strike and to clash against each other. Whenever that shall happen, let us be assured that we are turning towards our ruin and destruction those very means which ought most to serve us for our peace, safety, and protection.

I have hitherto, on the law of nature and the common rights of humanity, considered the claim of the Americans not to be taxed by us here in England. It rests firmly on that foundation; but I don't mean to say that it rests on that only. Could this be removed, there would yet remain another on which it would nevertheless stand sure and unshaken: I mean that of the Special Constitution of Great Britain, which does herein most justly and wisely coincide with the general constitution of humanity, and require that the property of no man living under its protection should, without his consent, by himself or representative, be taken from him, or, according to the language of the times, that representation should go along with taxation.

But this argument has particularly been in the hands of the first men of our times; they have set it in its full light, and their authority has recommended it to the attention of their country. It is well known, and well understood, and I am persuaded that it is unanswerable; but I bear more respect both to those persons and to the publick, than to go over it again so much to its disadvantage. I will therefore beg leave only to assume this reason, and to join it to my former; when the right of the Americans will stand on this double foundation of the general law of nature, and of the particular Constitution of Great Britain.

However, it has been said that the Americans are in our Parliament virtually represented. How that should be, when they are not really so, I shall leave to be explained by those who advance it. But God forbid that the condition of British subjects should ever be such, as for a whole people of there to be in danger of being stripped of all their properties only by the logick of such an unmeaning word or distinction as that is.

But what are then the precise bounds and limits of real representation? I will excuse myself from entering into that question. But will an American scruple to say, that if in any future time things should here at home be from their present state so far changed, and the Constitution of Great Britain so lost, that a great majority of its Representatives shall be named only by a handful of needy men; that they shall most evidently and most notoriously be both chosen by a corrupt and undue influence, and be afterwards guided and governed by the same, will he not say that it may, at that distant day, better become such a meek Representative to prove their right of taxing Britain, than to pretend to tax America? I will withal add, as an Englishman, that arguments tending to demonstrate that the House of Commons does not, in its present state, represent us inhabiting here, must be most strange ones to produce for the proving, that it does represent our Colonies lying beyond the Atlantic Ocean; that such points seem much more proper to raise scruples among ourselves at home, than to satisfy and appease those of people abroad. - (See Tucker's Four Tracts, page 103.) I could, on this subject, speak more plainly and explicitly, if I would, but I avoid it.

So much for consent and representation. But there is another ground whereon the Americans likewise rely, which is that of their own Provincial Charters. I shall leave the particulars of this subject to themselves, who are best acquainted with them. However, I will in general say, that these Charters are no doubt in aid and assistance of the two sanctions before mentioned, very properly brought for the shortening and silencing of disputes and debates, by the producing the special authority of Government. But they must be interpreted by those before mentioned, and consistently with them. They cannot be construed so as to overturn the others. It would be the most downright absurdity, and the most direct contradiction in itself, to talk of a Grant or Patent or Charter of Rights given to any one to take away all the rights he had in the world, to confer on him the privilege of having nothing of his own now, nor of being able to acquire any such thing in time to come, neither he, himself, or his posterity after him. Every thing of this kind must be understood so as to coincide with the original inherent rights of any single person or community, whether as men or as Britons.

Charters would, without doubt, be for some purposes very effectual, if every thing would take place as it is written on a paper or parchment. Suppose a parcel of miserable people, starved out of their native country, or persecuted and prosecuted there, because they don't believe just what some other men do or pretend to do; that they cannot leave their homes without the consent of their persecutors; that they must take with them a piece of parchment; did their tyrants write thereon, that their descendants shall go upon all-fours, shall be born with hoofs instead of hands; and with instinct instead of reason, and the faculty of speech, and that these things would so happen? This might, to be sure, give very notable powers over them. They might then be yoked as horned cattle, saddled and bridled as horses, or fleeced and sheared as sheep. The difference in the species would naturally and necessarily effect this; but nothing of it all will come to pass. This future offspring will, notwithstanding, be born with the nature, the qualities, and the talents, and consequently with the claims, the rights, and the privileges of men. However, suppose these strange terms to be on account of the absurdity of them dropped, but that there are instead really entered on the parchment, or charter, such an arbitrary superiority, such despotick and uncontrollable powers and prerogatives over these poor people and their posterity, as are only fitting, suitable, and analogous to the former circumstances: Will this, in right or in reason, be a whit more valid than the other? or where is the sense or justice in demanding such enormous consequences, when we are forbidden the unnatural premises, from which alone they can follow? Suppose that it was on a paper or parchment written in fair characters, that the horses and other cattle of the New-Forest, in Hampshire, should have to them and their heirs forever, the said Forest, and it might be added to hold in free soccage of the Manor of East Greenwich? Suppose that dents were made in the paper or parchment, and a stamp put upon it, and that it was signed, sealed, and delivered as an act and deed, what would be the effect? It will be answered that it would be a thing to laugh at; for how should brute beasts take property, who have neither understanding or capacity, or any means for that purpose; that it would be contrary to nature for them so to do. But let me demand in my turn, where is the difference as to the effect, whether it is written that beasts shall become men, or that men shall become beasts; that a herd of beasts shall be able to take and hold property, or that a community of men shall not? The one is just as contrary to nature as the other. It might, indeed, be a happy day for despotism could such things be done; but they are beyond its strength. The great Author of the World has, for the transcendent purposes of his unfathomable wisdom, placed in the hearts of men pride, ambition, avarice, and self-interest; but he has, at the same time, been pleased, with his most benevolent hand, and by the laws of nature and the course of things, to appoint bounds to the power of these passions, which they can no more surpass than the sea can exceed its shores.

So much for Charters in general. However I will likewise say something concerning one particular Charter before I leave the subject. When the havock happened among Charters in England, a short time before the Revolution, and which contributed not a little to produce that event, America was not spared. About the year sixteen hundred and eighty-four, a quo warrauto was on that head issued against Massachusetts Bay; some of the Colonies did, on the like occasion, give way, and throw themselves on the pleasure of the King. Massachusetts Bay refused to do this; they were ex-parte, and for non-appearance condemned, and their Charter shared the same fate as that of the City of London and so many others. Four years afterwards the Revolution happened. As soon as ever the news of it arrived at Boston, the Colony declared in favour of it. They took possession of King James's Governour, and of the rest of his creatures, and sent them all home to England. But then it will, perhaps, be said, they recovered in return their Charter. Is there almost faith in man to believe otherwise? The other Colonies fared well enough, who did not withstand the will of the King, and whose Charters had not been vacated in a Court of Justice. They put them again in execution themselves, and no words were made. Our own Charters here at home were likewise returned. But the Colony of Massachusetts Bay did not find the same good fortune. They went on that account first into the Convention Parliament, where however, they could not get through. It is well known that our Parliaments are not usually dissolved or prorogued while any business is depending, which there is an inclination to pass. They had then nothing left but to beg and pray of the King's Ministers. But is it credible, that they could not procure the restoration of their Charter of these Revolution-Ministers, of these makers and unmakers of Kings, who had so lately been on the same bottom with them, and in whose cause the Colony had so readily declared itself, but who had now obtained their own ends? Tired out, therefore, with delays, and not being sure of the worst that might happen, they were, in the end, obliged to accept of a new Charter, mutilated and castrated of many of the most important and essential privileges of the old. I shall take notice of no other particulars, than that before they chose annually their own Governour, Deputy-Governour, and Secretary. These were from this time to be appointed during pleasure by the King. Of what extreme consequence the change in the nomination of these their three Chief Officers has proved to them, no man at all acquainted with the name of Massachusetts Bay can be so ignorant of their history as not to be informed and sensible. Hence their differences with their own Governours there, and with our Ministers at home; hence the present Military Governour, and the Armies and Fleets now gone or going against them; hence the strange provision said to be in agitation, that their blood may not be liable to be answered for there. They would otherwise, in all appearance, be at this moment in the same situation on these subjects as their neighbours of Connecticut and Rhode-Island, with whose Charters their own agreed, until they lost it by their resistance and opposition to the will of the two last Stuarts, when the others saved theirs by giving way. I shall leave my readers to judge, whether it was the good or the evil contained in this poor piece of parchment, which thus united against it Stuart Kings and Revolution-Ministers. But this Charter must certainly have been granted under an unfortunate planet, if what some people say be true; that it is now again under displeasure at home, and on the brink of being once more reversed and altered. But that event has not on the writing of this happened. I am therefore perfectly persuaded, that should any thing upon that subject take place it will, on the contrary, be the restoration of those its former privileges and powers, which was so unreasonably and so unjustly refused at the Revolution. But let any one consider this history of a Charter, and then reflect whether mankind have not reason to bless themselves that they have some rights of a higher nature than Charters, superiour to them, and independent of them.

But are we not the parent country? That is a very respectable word, but so likewise is the relation of it mutual. It has always hitherto had its full weight with our Colonies of North America, and will probably continue so to have, if we can content ourselves with any tolerably reasonable sense and use of it. But was every master and mistress of a family resident there the immediate son and daughter of a father and mother living now at this time in England, yet they being gone from us, and having established themselves, and got families of their own, and having acquired a large territory, we could by no means, even as true and real parents, make out any claim having such consequences as that which we advance. However, the fact is very different; they left us in former times a part of the publick as well as others; they are since become hardly our cousin's cousins, and no man knows how far we might mount toward Adam or Noah, to settle the real relation between us. But was their history told as it deserves: How they have made these their great establishments at their own charge, and with almost no expense of ours: How we have ever had the total command of the produce of that immense country, so as to regulate the commerce and exportation of it merely according to our own advantage and convenience; that this is grown to be an object of perhaps no less than four millions sterling a year, all turned towards our profit. Could the extreme benefit be all set forth, which we have by this means received from the first foundation of these Colonies to this time, and the cheerfulness, fidelity, and loyalty wherewith they have submitted to this, the sincere and warm friendship and affection which they have ever born us while we kept ourselves within these bounds; the assistance which we have received from them in war, as well as the profits in peace: could all these circumstances be, with very many others, favourable to them, told and represented together, and in their full light, the story itself would bid fair to make these harsh and unmerited Acts of Parliament drop out of our hands, if we held them at the time. But, however these points may be forgotten or overlooked by us, they are not so by the Americans themselves; they are sensible and mindful of them, from whom they have proceeded, whatever we may be, who have received them. Our neglect and indifference on the subject have, with them, the effect of poison upon our weapons. They make every wound given by us to rankle and to fester. Every stroke carries with it, on that account, a tenfold sharpness and acrimony. However at least don't let us extend a figurative and metaphorical saying to the divesting of all their properties, near upon two millions of people, and make it at the same time a warrant for ourselves to hold towards them an unjust, rapacious, and unnatural conduct, directly contrary to that of real parents towards their children, and totally inconsistent with the expression whereon we would ground our pretensions.

But how do these projectors and promoters of taxes and taxing hold concerning Ireland? Do they reckon that to be likewise within the jurisdiction of their ways and means, and in the same predicament with America? Adventurers went formerly from hence, others succeeded, more followed, until they were masters of the Island. It might be added, that this was done with a much greater expense of the blood and treasure of this country than our settlements in America ever cost us. The Representative body of Ireland is called a Parliament, that of America, an Assembly; the term of Kingdom obtains in one country, and that of Colony in the other. Is there any charm in the sound Of these words which makes a difference, Or would the author of the Stamp Act have gone thither also, had the people of America shewn a facility to his first attempts with them, and if the Parliament of Ireland had ever made difficulties to his future demands there? Does any one imagine that learned or other arguments would have been wanting to maintain the rectitude of the one measure any more than of the other?

But is there any medium? Must not we either rigorously enforce obedience from our Colonies, or at once generously declare them free and independent of all allegiance to the Crown of Great Britain? To which I answer, if there is a medium between Great Britain and Ireland, why may there not be also between Great Britain and North America? The claims of the Colonies are not higher than those of Ireland. Certain rules of mutual respect preserved between Us and that neighbouring part of the King's Dominions, keep us on the best and happiest terms together, terms of perpetual and almost unspeakable profit and advantage to England. Does this overturn the Constitution of Great Britain, or weaken the dependency on its Crown, as some language has been? Why should not then forbearance, moderation, and regard towards that, a little more distant portion of our country, produce in the one case effects consonant and answerable to what the like causes do in the other? It is most evident, and may in general be depended on, that no evil consequences can happen from any condition or situation between Great Britain and her Colonies, which does actually and advantageously obtain between Great Britain and Ireland. How was it there twenty years ago, before the first or the last of these taxes were either of them thought of? All was then peace, calm, and content. The repealing the first of them, the Stamp Act, did that do any mischief? Not unless the reconciling, uniting, and connecting again together all the part of our Government be such. There was hardly anywhere to be found a man, but who was pleased and happy in the measure, except a Minister or two at home, who lost their power and their places on the occasion, and except a few sycophants abroad, who hoped to recommend themselves by traducing and disturbing those to whom they owed assistance and protection, and who desired to fish in troubles which they themselves contributed greatly to create, What evil star reigns then at this period, that these blessings cannot now take place as they formerly did?

I have on this subject no mind to play with the name of Ireland. I presume to introduce on the scene, and to couple, as it were, with America, that country only, in order to expose the more plainly by the instance of the one some notions advanced concerning the other, and at the same time, to the utmost of my small power, to recommend, inculcate, and enforce that cautious, considerate, brotherly, and affectionate conduct towards both, which I am sure that they each of them most exceedingly well deserve, whether of the Government or of the people of England.

It is sometimes made a claim on the Americans, that we incurred on their account a great expense in the late war. On whose account have we not since the Revolution incurred a great expense? Our whole history from that time to this is little else but a scene of prodigality in the service of different people or Princes, no way to our own advantage, and for which no man can give any good reason. However I answer on this occasion with the fact. We did not engage in the late war at the request of the Americans, nor upon any desire or inclination of theirs. The language at the time was on the contrary; that the less concerned the inhabitants of our Colonies appeared to be about the encroachments of the French, the more reason we had to be jealous on the subject. I believe that I may, in support of what I am saying, venture to appeal to those who are the best acquainted with that period. Had it been otherwise we should no doubt have heard enough of it. Substantial reasons might be given that the Americans judged better in the case than we. There may be ground for us to condemn ourselves for not having consulted them more on the subject than we did, before that we were so hasty to take up the hatchet. However there is not the least pretence for charging to their account the consequences of a war which we undertook without any instance and application from them, and entirely of our own motion.

But the honour of Government is concerned. That is certainly an unaccountable reasoning, though not perhaps very uncommon; that if Government, or, in plain English, the Minister and those about him, do a thing which had better been undone, they are therefore to proceed in the same road arid do many more such, until at length the case may perhaps be beyond redress. Surely the more discredit is incurred, the deeper that people are plunged into mischief. The welfare and happiness of five or six millions of mankind, or more, is a prodigious object. Whoever puts himself at the helm of our State undertakes in a manner for that. We are all mortal and fallible. One in such a situation had need to march with the utmost caution, circumspection, and foresight; should he make an unlucky step, it is his highest duty to endeavour instantly to retreat and to retrieve it. In the present case a gulf is before us which will not admit of many steps forwards, but that the Government and the publick will both go headlong.

But their outrages about the Tea. I presume these to be an object of discourse as well as any other subject; how can they otherwise be discussed and considered? However I shall, without declaring any opinion of my own, take them up only in the light as they may appear to an American. He will certainly say that these receive their complexion from the claim of the Colonies not to be taxed by us, and accordingly as that shall be grounded or not. If that is not well founded, that then their whole opposition is unlawful, whether force and violence, or only concert and combination. That the former may indeed be productive of more mischief than the latter, but that they are, on such a supposition, both of them entirely unwarrantable. I would willingly, in this case, write freely, but without offence; he would therefore certainly add, that should the Americans, on the other hand, have a real right not to be so taxed, they are undoubtedly entitled likewise to the necessary means of using and enjoying that right. That this is a rule of the law of nature, as well as of the law of the land, or rather that the latter has only borrowed it from the farmer; I speak with submission; but he would without doubt proceed that the means used on this occasion were absolutely those necessary ones and no other; that an object was artfully or judiciously chosen for this tax, which is so constant a part of diet or luxury, that it was totally impossible to prevent the tax from taking place without hindering the commodity itself from being introduced; that therefore the Americans must absolutely do that or lose their right; that the endeavouring so to do only by a general concert and agreement would have been no better than building a City out of the sands of the sea; that thereupon the Town of Boston did, at a sort of public meeting, use every instance and application possible both with the Captains of the Tea Ships and with the Governour that the Tea might be returned, untouched and damaged as it came; that this would have secured their right, and they desired no more; that this was absolutely refused; that there was thereupon no expedient left for the preserving their right but destroying the Tea; that this was, without any express authority of the Town, done by private people, but in all appearance with the general inclination and with the least mischief and damage possible; that there was some Tea spilt, but no blood; that this refers the whole to the first and original question of the right; that the Americans make thereon the same claim as the people of Scotland would have in an essential circumstance of the union, or those of Ireland, should the line observed between them and Great Britain be passed in any point which would affect their whole interest and welfare as a Nation; that a right in any case whatsoever and an absolute duty of passive obedience and non-resistance in the same are inconsistent terms, a direct contradiction, and totally unintelligible; that in the other Colonies the Governours and Captains consented to the sending back the Tea, or to the shutting it up in such a manner as never to be sold or dispersed; that these did not therefore, in their cases, make immediate remedy necessary, but that their act was in effect the same, and stands on the same ground. That there is nothing malignant in the whole matter, nothing but a determined desire to support this their great and necessary right. This is no doubt the American idea, as appears by many proofs and papers from that side of the water. I shall myself presume to speak no opinion in the case, much less will I again call on the names of our ancestors in support of this pretension. But should it be observed that it ends in a question which concerns the bounds and the limits of Government; I cannot, on the occasion, but repeat and enforce by this example the remark before made, of how dangerous and deadly a nature the disputes and contests are, which lead thither.

So much for the rectitude of taxing the Americans. But I may be told that I have not yet touched the true point; that I have been doing little more than a man who rides post out of his road. That Statesmen and Politicians do indeed sometimes talk of the right and wrong, of the justice and injustice of measures; but that this is all only ostensible reasoning, while there may at the bottom be nothing which they really care less about. That the great do everywhere bear hard on the little, the strong on the weak; that the hawk hunts the partridge, the lion the wolf, and the wolf the lamb; that powerful Princes and States oppress the helpless, and the high and the rich those beneath them; that this is the chapter of the law of Nature and Nations, which we intend to consult and to follow; that we want money at home; that our debts are very heavy, and our resources but too nearly at an end; that we have yet Fleets and Armies, and are determined to bend to our will our Colonies of America, and to make them subservient to our wants and occasions; that this is at the bottom, and that all my casuistry may in the mean time serve the purposes of Grocers and Pastry-Cooks; that when people write about matters of state, they ought to do it like men. It is very well; I join issue hereon; only don't let us go too fast; one thing at a time.

I answer that you cannot force them, nor is there any appearance that you can. The number of free people in those Colonies is reckoned at towards two millions. The common calculation is of one fencible or fighting man in five persons; and this is supposed to be rather under than over the truth. This will give us at least between three and four hundred thousand fighting men on the number before mentioned. Mr. Rome goes so far as to tell us in some Letters, &c., lately published in opposition to the Colonies, "that there is hardly any thing more common, than to hear them boast of particular Colonies, that can raise, on a short notice, a hundred thousand fighting men." The country is itself, in some respects, a very strong one; more so than any in Europe, or the better cultivated parts of the world. It is not on the side of the Sea guarded with Forts and Castles built by men; but it is within secured and protected by the natural fortifications of immense Forests and of large Rivers. What expectation or probability then can there be of sending from hence, Armies capable to conquer and subdue so great a force of men, defending and defended by such a Continent.

But can they arm so many? In any country very greatly taxed, and much more so than its inhabitants would willingly bear with, it is impossible, consistently with such a state of things, to arm the whole body of the people. These might be apt to count noses, and to consider who were the stronger, they themselves, or the Tax-gatherers and the Red-coats, or White-coats, or Black-coats, or any other who support them. The difficulty would be yet greater, were there any further dissatisfaction. But these are all Democratical Governments, where the power is in the hands of the people, and where there is not the least difficulty or jealousy about putting Arms into the hands of every man in the country.

But are they united among themselves? In the cause of not being taxed by us, it is well understood how much they are so. All accounts and reports from thence of all men, and of all parties, run in that style, and concur in that circumstance. It was so experienced to a very great degree, concerning the Stamps, and has now been found the same on the occasion of the Tea. Their conduct has in the case, been everywhere alike and correspondent. The Tea is either returned, without being landed, or received, without being suffered to be sold, at New-York, at Pennsylvania, at Carolina, at all the places to which it was sent. We reckon entirely without our host, if we don't expect to have to do with a union of that Continent, or depend on any measures insufficient to master and overpower the whole.

But let me ask, how can we expect otherwise? They are not unacquainted with the history of the mother country; they know the weight of the taxing hand here; they have heard of our debt of one hundred and forty millions of Pounds sterling incurred, since the Revolution, besides other hundreds of millions spent currently within the same period. The time to come is to be judged of by the time past. Will our brethren of America expect, that this hand should be lighter on them at a distance, or that our breasts will feel more for them than for ourselves? Let an Englishman make the case his own, and question himself, what he should think, were he of that country, and his whole fortune and concerns there. Would not he believe his all to be at stake upon the cast? Does any one in America, or in England, imagine, that all these disputes and feuds are, at the bottom, only about a Duty of three Pence upon a pound of Tea? How can, then, any candid man, doubt whether there will be a general union and concurrence on the subject, or wonder if there is so?

They are said to have already Committees of Correspondence, and no doubt necessity will teach them other means of moving and acting together. Every thing is there by choice and election; they will probably have at their head, as capable, and as wise men, as are to be found among them. The power and influence of Governours, and other Civil Officers appointed from hence, must, on an open rupture, have an end. Our authority would perhaps then extend little further than where it was enforced by our own Troops. We shall bid fair to begin with the loss of the whole Continent.

But what are an untrained and undisciplined multitude? Could not an experienced Officer, with a few Regular Regiments, do what he would in America? I answer, that a different story may be told. In the war before last, our measures directed at home, were everywhere unsuccessful. The Plains of Flanders were fattened with some of the best blood of Britain and of Ireland. Our Government was shaken almost to the foundation, by a rebellion contemptible in its beginning. Were we more fortunate in our attempts by sea, whether, first, in that against Pondicherry, or afterwards, in that against Port l'Orient? But the people of New England maintained at that time, the honour of our arms. It is well known, that they carried on with their own Councils, and with their own Soldiery, and under the command of one of their own Planters, against Cape Breton and Louisbourg, an expedition, the event of which need not now be told. We did not begin in a much better manner the last war. I am unwilling to call to mind our first campaigns in Germany, our situation and Treaty of Closter-Seven, the fate of Minorca, or the histories of Braddock and Abercrombie. But who were at that time the first to stem the tide of our ill-fortune? Was it not an American Militia, who, commanded by Sir William Johnson, a gentleman at that time of the country, met, fought, and beat the French and Indians, under Monsieur Dieskau, and made prisoner their commander? But what wonders were afterwards done by our people, properly conducted and directed? It is very true, and I am sure that I have no inclination to depreciate them. But neither did those of America want their share therein. However, the courage of our countrymen was never yet questioned; but may they always unite and employ it against our common enemies, and never be encamped or embattled against one another, either in America, or anywhere else. But should, through the extreme rashness and weakness of our Councils, such a very great misfortune fall out, is it to be doubted whether the Americans will be wanting to themselves, or whether they will not endeavour to stand in their own defence, against those, who have sometimes in the same country, come by the worst, with inferior enemies, but over whom they have themselves alone, and without assistance, often triumphed?

But we are masters at Sea, and wherever our Ships can come. We may do whatever a Fleet can. Very true; but it cannot sail all over North America. It is said, that Marshal Saxe had, before the declaration of the last war but one, and at the time of our Army being in Germany, conceived a design to have landed on our Coast with ten thousand men, and to have tried the fortune of a brisk march to London. He did not find this so easy to execute as he thought for. He was most happily disappointed. But there was an object. No one can tell the consequence, had he succeeded. The present is a very different matter. No immediate impression upon the Town of Boston, nor possession taken of it by means of a Fleet, nor the same circumstance with regard to any other Towns of America, liable thereto by their situation, will carry the command of that whole Continent, or force it to submit to measures so universally against their bent and inclination.

It may however be said, that this is not the plan. The Charter of the Town of Boston is to be changed, and their Trade suspended, and other measures of the very strongest sort, are to be enforced against them. The moving mountain is, according to the imagination of Doctor Swift, to hang over them, and the sun not to shine, or the rain or the dew to fall on them, until they are brought to submission, and made to the rest of America, an example of the danger of refractoriness and disobedience to the mother country; all which we think may, and will, with time, be compassed and accomplished.

This is indeed, as to the question of force, the true point of the matter, I mean, which will at last, and at the end of a long trial, get the better; but I add, that this will probably not be Great Britain. Here I must again crave leave to write with freedom. If it is the first wisdom of a private man to know himself, so must it likewise be that of a state to consider in all its measures its own condition and situation. The searching into our circumstances neither makes or mars them. But what must be our case, should we have any wound or mischief, and that it might not be probed or examined? We must ever suppose our adversaries to be informed, and not by shutting our own eyes, pretend to blind other people. I shall, therefore, without scruple, inquire into the state of the publick, as far as it concerns my subject.

The condition of the great staple manufactures of our country is well known. Those of the Linen and the Silk are in the greatest distress, and the Woollen and the Linen are now publicly banded and contending against one another. One part of our people is starving at home, on the alms of their Parishes, and another running abroad to this very country that we are contending with. The produce of North America used to be sent yearly to Britain, is reckoned at about four millions sterling; the Manufactures of Britain, and other commodities returned from hence, at nearly the same sum; the debts due from people in America to the British Merchants here, at about six millions, or a year and a half of that commerce. I say, the time past must be our guide with respect to that to come. Supposing, therefore, the Americans to act in this case, as they did in that of the Stamp Act; we shall then have yearly, until the final settlement of this affair, Manufactures to the value of four millions sterling, left and heaped on the hands of our Merchants and Master Manufacturers, or we shall have workmen and poor people put out of employ and turned adrift in that proportion. There will likewise be withdrawn from our home consumption, and out of our general trade and traffick, North American commodities to the same value, and debts will, to the immense sum above mentioned, be withheld from private people here. This was the train of things begun before, and we must look for the like again. What effects these things will produce, considering the present state of our Trade, Manufactures, and Manufacturers, the condition of our poor at home, and the numbers of our people running abroad, it don't want many words to explain and set forth. They were before very severely felt for the time that they lasted, and it is apprehended, that the present situation of the publick is yet more liable to the impression. These are some of the difficulties and distresses, which we are, for the sake of a trial of skill with our Colonies, going to bring on ourselves, and which must be perpetually magnifying and increasing, as long as the unnatural contest shall continue.

To these a former Administration gave way; but it is to be supposed, that the present has, by returning to the shock, resolved to be more callous on the occasion, and to leave the Americans, the Merchants, and the Manufacturers, to settle among themselves their matters as they may. Our people will indeed be less clamorous about the ears of their betters, if they shall all run and emigrate out of the Kingdom. But there is a circumstance not yet mentioned, which will bid fair to go further, and which may but too probably involve in one common confusion the Nation, the Government, and the Administration itself; I mean the danger of a disorder or failure of the Publick Revenue; the difficulty or impossibility to pay the interest of the Debt, the Navy, the Army, the Civil List, and our other expenses, if the present contention shall proceed and continue.

I desire in explanation of this, to consider our present income, our out-goings, and our resources. I will not enter into any detail thereon; the particulars in gross will be sufficient for the purpose before us. I will, however, in order to be the better understood, premise something about the Revenue in general. It may be divided into two parts, the one, of Taxes laid in perpetuity, the other, of such as are granted by the year and for the year. The first part consists of all our taxes in general whatsoever, except the Land Tax, and the annual Malt Tax; the latter consists of these two only. Perpetual Taxes are now, in the language of Europe, often expressed by the name of Funds, as affording a fixed and settled foundation for any special use, and particularly for that of borrowing money. It was to answer the interest of our debts, that our own Funds were established, and they are now pledged for that purpose. These of ours have been chiefly thrown into three great common ones, called the General, the Aggregate, and the South Sea Funds. These are sometimes, with all other funds or perpetual taxes whatsoever, destined and settled for the discharge of the interest of our debt, comprehended and united together in discourse, and called the Sinking Fund; although there is in reality no one particular fund of that name, any more than there is such a piece of money as a Pound sterling, or a French Livre. The civil list is placed on the same funds as the interest of the publick debt. What remains annually of the whole collection of those funds, after the satisfying these two encumbrances, is what is meant by the surplus of the Sinking Fund; I have thought proper to preface these few things, that my own language may at least be understood, in what little I shall say on the subject.

The interest of our debt amounts to near upon five millions a year; all annuities for lives or years, every thing redeemable or irredeemable included. The civil list is eight hundred thousand Pounds a year. the surplus of the Sinking Fund is changing and uncertain, that being composed of very many variable parts. It is impossible to fix it; but I will, at an average, for the sake of round numbers, suppose it to be two millions and more, about as much more as will answer to what the interest of the debt may want of five millions. We shall then have about seven millions and three-quarters for the produce of our perpetual taxes and funds. Our annual taxes remain then only to be considered, which are easily reckoned; the Land Tax granted for a million and a half, at three Shillings in the Pound, as it now is; the Malt Tax always granted at three-quarters of a million. These sums put together, give us about ten millions of Pounds sterling, being our present annual national income, and likewise our present annual national expense, including what may at times be paid towards the discharge of the publick debt, and besides the collection, which is not to my present purpose. Should any one be of opinion, that the surplus of the Sinking Fund is either overcharged or undercharged, he has my consent to make such addition to it, or subtraction from it, as he shall please. Neither the one or the other will affect the argument which I am upon. Our receipts and disbursements will in either ease go hand in hand. I shall therefore, without any more nice disquisition, take these at the medium of about ten millions sterling each.

So much for our income and our expenses. Let us next consider our resources; I mean what resources we may be supposed to have in our power, without creating any new debt. The first to occur will be the surplus of the Sinking Fund. We apply of course to this on almost all occasions. We are by law obliged to discharge regularly the interest of our debt; but whatever prudence and a proper care of ourselves, and of those after us, may confessedly require, we are commonly understood to be, by no contract or engagement, bound to do more, or to pay off any part of the principal of it. This surplus we will therefore suppose to be one resource; but it is such no otherwise or further than it can be spared from our current expenses, towards which it is commonly in whole or in part taken. We can for our present purpose, reckon only on so much of it, as might otherwise be employed towards lessening the capital of our debt. We have now had between eleven and twelve years of peace, in which time, I reckon that we have discharged about eight millions of that capital. This will, therefore, supposing no part of it to be balanced by any debt or arrears incurred and unprovided for, give us, by the year, about seven hundred thousand Pounds. This is what we may look to for one of our resources. But we have likewise another, which is the Land Tax. That is now at three Shillings in the Pound, but it is sometimes at four. We may therefore count, in case of exigency, on one Shilling more; that is on half a million. These two sums amount together, to about one million two hundred thousand Pounds. These are our resources, and without borrowing, these are all.

Let us next turn in our thoughts, whether these twelve hundred thousand Pounds a year, being somewhat more than a ninth part of our present income, are likely to be sufficient for this American occasion, Fleets and Armies, Ships-of-War and Regiments, are the means and the instruments of executing the measures in question. A million goes but a very little way with us in such articles. This business must in it include a supposition, that all our Colonies, all our ancient Colonies on that Continent, may in the progress of it, be combined and united in one common association, interest and defence. There can be no reasonable hopes of success; nothing but mortification and disappointment directly in view, by proceeding on any plan which does not comprehend the probability of that circumstance. What a field is then here opened. Are our twelve hundred thousand Pounds to furnish us there likewise? However, these things concern only our expenses. Let us consider the other side of our situation; how much our income is at the same time likely to be lessened. Four millions sterling yearly of the produce of America; as many of the merchandise of Great Britain; more of debts here at home, withheld and kept back from our Duties, our Customs, and our Excise. What an operation on the Revenue! Is our million two hundred thousand Pounds to supply all this besides? How is it possible either on the one hand, that a person with these circumstances before his eyes, should set on foot the present measures against our Colonies, or on the other, that any one having capacity and understanding to be at the head of the Government and Administration of a great Kingdom, should oversee and overlook them? This seems to be like not discerning the Sun at noon day, or the Moon and the Stars by night.

There is from the general condition of our country, and perhaps from the publick accounts themselves, but too much reason to apprehend, that the National Revenue is at this time, without these additional causes sinking and decreasing. This could not but add greatly to Our difficulties in the situation before described. But a particular investigation of this might lead into too long a labyrinth. I shall therefore not take it into the present account; but most assuredly, any one at the head of our affairs, ought not to forget it in his, if it is true.

But it may be said, that we will, in the supposed exigency, borrow, as our predecessors have done before us. I answer, that this may very probably be then out of our power. I will not go upon a general discussion, whether we should enter into another war with the same credit we have hitherto had; although this may in itself be a subject of the utmost importance, and whereon we have but too much reason to reflect. But the consideration properly before us is, what would be the state of our credit under a revolt and separation of our settlements in America, that great and essential source of our riches and Revenue? Loans and money advanced to us have as yet been reckoned equally secure; there has been no doubt made of the regular payment of the interest, nor in consequence of a publick market for the principal, whether we should ourselves happen to be more or less successful on any occasion, wherein we were at the time concerned, and for which they were borrowed. They were as safe under the defeats and disappointments of the war before, as upon the victories and conquests of the last. However, things could not in this case but be much changed. The security of millions tent must depend upon the future chance and fortune of war. It might be made a doubt, what fruits would, for some years to come, be received from Provinces mangled and mutilated in a severe contest decided to their disadvantage, should these at last return to us again; but no one could overlook what must be the case, if the event should terminate against us, and end, after an expense of much treasure and blood in so fatal and inestimable a loss on our side, as that of these Colonies would be. However, no man knows whether this dispute might run into a very long trial. There are ways of anticipating some parts of the Publick Revenue, and likewise of running behindhand some of the publick services. Things may perhaps be for a short space carried on in that manner, without much notice. But should we once come publicly and professedly to borrowing, and to funding in what some may affect to call a Yankee war, it will be well if the whole fabrick of our credit does not at that moment shake and tremble to its very foundation. A general breach and defection of these Colonies, would withal cut the sinews of our power. We could not, most probably, in such a situation, long continue to provide and pay the interest of our most enormous debt already incurred and subsisting. It need not be repeated, that it is the assistance received from their commerce and produce, which enables us now to do it. Deprived of that, it will be but to little purpose for us to be inventing new funds at home. We have enough of them already. More would only run foul of one another. We may, then, without the operations of a war in America, without the sending or supplying Fleets or Armies at a distance, without creating new Debts, new Funds, and new Taxes, have at our own homes, from our actual situation, business enough on our hands to engage and employ us. We need not, perhaps, be at this time nice in comparing and measuring our force with that of the Americans; the evil of such a day will be but too sufficient to decide the contest.

But it may be asked, what will then be the consequence, should we from these causes become unable to pay the interest of our present debt. I will be bold to say, that there is no man living, wise enough to answer that question in its extent. Experience teaches men; but there is no preceding history or tradition of any State or Nation whatsoever, which can throw sufficient light on that proposition. There never was before in the world, such a debt contracted or subsisting, as the British. Letters and books are older than money; I mean than gold and silver commonly current, and having their weight known by a stamp. But there is no occasion to ransack ancient times on this subject. The discovery of Mexico and Peru, and the possession of them by the Spaniards, is the era from whence we are to date the beginning of the present plenty in Europe of these two precious metals, which command often individuals, and sometimes Commonwealths and Kingdoms. The art of funding was formerly very confined. It is a succession of English Administrations which has carried it to an extent never before known among men. It is a new experiment in a state. There is no example of it in the annals of mankind. We are at a loss where to look for the consequences of such an unprecedented and unheard of deficiency or bankruptcy, as this would prove. However, we cannot but have before our eyes, disorder, anarchy, and confusion; the moneyed interest of the Nation banded against the landed, and the landed against the moneyed; rich moneyed men brought to beggary, and the land drained of the utmost farthing which can be forced from it; every one catching, rending, and providing for the present moment; our manufactures and commerce at a stand; the middling people emigrating out of our country, and the poor in famine or in sedition; foreigners pressing for their demands, and the Dutch particularly, in rage, and almost in madness, for their countless millions trusted and hazarded in our country; perhaps at the same time, our Navy unmanned, and our Army in mutiny for want of pay.

Who can withal tell the end: for the debt, the burthen, and the demand, will ever remain. There was a time, when the Romans had formerly withdrawn themselves from this Island, that the possessions became here, through the weakness and helplessness of those remaining, the prize and the prey of all plunderers, pirates, robbers, and conquerors, who came and seized upon them, until that these people themselves, the Danes, the Saxons, and the Normans, replenished and strengthened again the country. Whether the like scenes will on the same spot be once more acted, or what issue awaits us, he only knows in whose hands these events are. But we must necessarily expect that the distant or detached parts of our Empire will fall from us; the stronger and the larger will probably provide for and govern themselves, the weaker and the lesser sink away, or seek another master. I don't at all mean that they have any inclination so to do, where we give no cause or provocation; but the reins of Government will in such a conjuncture, of course, and of themselves, drop out of our hands. No man can tell, whether Great Britain itself might at that time continue in one, or whether it may again be split and divided into two. There have not been wanting endeavours towards that end. I don't now pretend to decide at whose door this principally lies. It is not perhaps one man, or one party only, that is in fault. There have been on one hand, most unjust and cruel persecutions, and a series of the greatest injuries and provocations. High and strong resentments of these are no otherwise than natural and warrantable, nor do I in general mean to arraign those conceived or expressed on this occasion. But the person wronged, must surely, in his cooler and calmer moments, be himself sensible, that they have in one respect been carried to an unreasonable extent. Reflections have been made and continued, where they are totally ungrounded and unmerited. They have hitherto been borne with a national good sense, that brings more honour to the parties, than all the ribaldry in the world can ever do them discredit. But who knows how their effects may be felt in such a time, as is before described? What a situation! Britain, or England, left alone with a debt of a hundred and forty millions sterling on its head! How can any one have before his eyes such an event, and yet run on the road which leads directly towards it?

But all is not yet said which this subject demands. I have hitherto only considered us and our Colonies as engaged between ourselves; not a word has been said of any foreign state meddling in the matter. That is yet behind. We must look upon our Colonies in the light of the Provinces of Holland, when they contended with Spain. The wish, the hand of every man will be against us. I will not enter into a general discourse of politicks, how far it may be for the common good of mankind to split great states into small ones; to divide them into a size fit to profit and benefit others, but not to overhear or distress them. Let us consider the subject by examples familiar to us. Mexico and Peru are mere distant from Great Britain, than our Colonies of North America from Spain or France; but were those in a state of defection and separation from the Spaniards, I wonder whether we should find a way to approach them, or to avail ourselves in any manner of that circumstance. France was pretty well plumed in the last war; but nevertheless, were the reviving or beginning settlements of Pondicherry, of Mauritius, and Madagascar, disjoined from it, or its own Continent broken once more into several different parts and separate Governments, would our endeavours contribute to unite them? Should Batavia, the Spice Islands, and the Cape of Good Hope, revolt from the United Provinces, would not Englishmen try to profit by the conjuncture? I will not touch on the Brazils; that may be a tender point. But would none of all mankind, neither French, or Spaniards, or Dutch, or Portuguese, or Danes, or Swedes, to say nothing of the Russians, or of the new maritime state of Prussia; would none of them all give, directly or indirectly, aid, assistance, encouragement, countenance, or protection, to our Colonies? Would they not trade or traffick with them; would they supply them with nothing wherewith to defend themselves, or to offend us? Is it very practicable to watch and guard such immense Coasts, or do we at home, with all the Navy of England in our Ports, find this so easy, with respect to those only of the two English Counties of Kent and Sussex? Did neither England or France support formerly the seven United Provinces in their breach with Spain? Have the French at this time afforded no essential assistance to the Turks, nor another Nation to the Russians, while each continues at peace with the enemies of their respective friends? Are the independence of the British Colonies in North America, and their disjunction from Great Britain, no object to other Nations; are not they in particular as much so to France, as this Turkish and Russian squabble? Was formerly that Nation ever wanting to Scotland, or insensible of its interest in assisting that division? I don't at all mean hereby to signify any attempts or endeavours of other Governments to take possession of these Colonies, or any inability in them to defend themselves from that circumstance; but I mean the general desire and inclination, which there would assuredly be in all Europe, to see them disjoined from our Nation, and to become absolute, distinct, unconnected, independent States and Governments, in larger or in smaller portions, and more or less like the present States of Holland, as it should happen. Were there in sight such a condition with respect to Mexico and Peru, or the Dutch settlements in the East Indies, would not the English, without insisting on becoming masters themselves thereof, be most abundantly contented with their general advantage arising from the commerce and traffick with them, and from the other circumstances of their independency? It cannot be doubted, but that there will be found a conduct and actions consequent and correspondent to such universal and almost unanimous views and wishes of mankind.

This is all said on a supposition of peace. But what if one or more of the greatest powers in Europe, should, in a most critical and difficult moment, declare war against us? Have France and Spain forgot the loss of Canada and Georgia, and the many defeats and disgraces, received in the last contest with us? Have they, for their honour or interest, no desire of revenge, nor that those Provinces should again return to their own Crowns? On whom does it depend whether it shall, in the case supposed, be peace or war? Is this to be determined at London, or at Madrid and Versailles? Is it in the power and in the breasts of ourselves, or of those who are most our rivals, and whose enmity may be said to be hardly yet cooled? Are four years past since we had two alarms? Is one year gone since we had one? Should there now be happily at the head of one or other Government a personage inclined to peace; yet, how uncertain are the days of every mortal, and how are Princes, Ministers, or States, tempted into action by circumstances, opportunities, and advantages? Let us well weigh what it is for a private man, but much more for a great Nation, to part with the means of their prosperity out of their own hands, and to place it in the power and determination of those of whom they have, on account of a long and ancient rivalry, and the continuation of many bloody wars, the utmost reason to be suspicious and jealous.

We cannot too much consider or reflect upon what happened between Spain and the Dutch Provinces, at their breach and separation. The Spanish Government consisted, at that time, of Spain, of Portugal, of Mexico, and Peru, and other Provinces of America, of the Spanish and Portuguese, being all the European settlements at that time in the East Indies, and of Flanders, making seventeen Provinces, whereof those now united and then revolted, were only seven. How unequal a match! But yet the battle was not to the strong. The story and event of their war are well known. I am not about to repeat them. How little did, in the beginning, the Spaniards or Portuguese, or even the Dutch themselves, dream that the latter would, before long, strip and divest the former of the chief of these their settlements in the East Indies, and make them their own. They were, nevertheless, different Nations, spoke different languages, had different customs, and religions inconsistent together, and were themselves, before the end, extremely odious to one another. The Dutch obtained nothing except by force, victory, and conquest. But surely we are well aware how different things may, in these respects, be between us and the Americans, and how much to the advantage of the latter. We are one Nation, with the same language, the same manners, and the same religion. Their seamen, their soldiers, their people, are ours, and ours theirs. How easy will be the transition or the change of dependence, protection, or Government, between one and the other? Our people do already and at this moment seek with them shelter and refuge from their domestick poverty and misery. Should ever these our Provinces, in the events of chance and time, come to look us in the face with any near equality, or be much assisted by any other Nation, would it then be a very strange thing if they should cause a general revolt of all or of almost all the seamen of the British Empire? These might not look upon themselves as engaging or acting against their country, but as choosing between two parts of it. They will at their pleasure distribute the titles of unreasonable and unjust, of injured and oppressed. The best terms and the best treatment will not fail to carry the greater numbers. There is, perhaps, on the one side, towards this brave and deserving body of men, a most cruel, unjust, and impolitick practice, which has long cried for vengeance, and which cannot fall to be one day heard, and at that moment, perhaps, as likely as at any other. It is in every one's discourse, that something of the same kind may happen with respect to our common soldiery. I will not, therefore, dwell on that point. But what part might our Islands in the West Indies take at such a conjuncture? To whom are they the nearest, or on whom do they most depend for their provisions, lumber, and other necessary circumstances of their trade? Would there be in the East Indies the same necessity of conquest as the Dutch found? Might more equal conditions, or independence itself, be no temptation to one or the other, or might it in that day be thought a great sin to change the words Old England for New? There is one point so important, so critical, that I hardly know either how to mention or how to be silent in it. Suppose that Ireland itself, I mean the Protestant, opulent, and ruling part of Ireland, should grow jealous - should begin to make comparisons between the state, situation, and relation of the Americans towards us and their own - but I will pass by this subject. However, I know so well the openness and frankness of that Nation, as to be fully assured that there are at least none of that country who advise or urge at this time the present proceedings with any distant or double view to forward and hasten the independence of Ireland, and that not at its own, but at the cost and hazard of America. The human heart can hardly be conceived to conceal such mysteries. But were it otherwise, our Administration would no doubt be sensible of it, and instead of being duped or imposed upon thereby, be only the more circumspect on the occasion, and the more upon their guard.

Unhappy are the people which pursue those steps that their friends most fear, and their enemies most wish. Were the Cabinets of Versailles and Madrid, or any other the most jealous of the power and prosperity of Great Britain, united in council, and that they had it in their option to drive and push us, for their own advantage, upon some ruinous and destructive measure, what would they choose before this very one which we are now of ourselves so fatally and so madly running upon?

It is a common proverb in politicks, that any state may, at its own pleasure, commence war, but that they must afterwards ask their enemies when it shall be ended. Let us stay our hand and reflect once more while we may, and before that the die is cast not to be recalled. No man knows otherwise, whether the next time that we and the Americans shall treat upon terms, it may be on the ground of Acts of Parliament and Acts of Assembly, or upon that of a treaty of peace.

It is sometimes said that Providence blinds the understanding of those whom it destines to destruction. When things are ripe for that end, men often provoke and hasten their own fate. But God forbid that any one being at the helm of this state should ever not fully and repeatedly consider, or that he should from any unhappy impulse scruple or hesitate to stay and to stop such measures as may, in their consequences, make his master to sit uneasy on his throne, nor suffer himself to lay down his head upon his pillow, without bearing on it the curses of his country, but which may throw all the parts of the British Empire into such disorder and confusion, that neither he nor any man shall be able to guide or hold the reins of its Government.

I cannot guess into whose hands these sheets may fall, or how they may be received. It is not a Prince alone who may in these abject times be surrounded with flattery; a Minister may not want his share of it. It is withal but a poor satisfaction for a private person to wish, in the waste and havock of his country, that it may be remembered; that there was not wanting one who laid freely and plainly before the publick and those governing it, the risk and the likelihood of these fatal events and circumstances. But it is to be hoped that better and more substantial effects and consequences will follow, should the things here advanced be, on consideration, found no other than truth and reason. May not otherwise these advices and admonitions rise up one day in witness against those who shall now despise them? It is at the same time the furthest from my meaning, that futurity can be foreseen, or that it is permitted to look into the book of the time to come. There is nothing certain in human affairs; but in incidents of this prodigious importance; in the fate of States and of Kingdoms; in dangers of this transcendent magnitude, probability takes the place of certainty, and every prudent ruler ought to shun and avoid the one with almost as much caution as he would the other; nor can I finish this subject, without once more repeating, that our present debts puts us into a situation in which no Nation ever was before.
